THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal 5. Military Tribunal 5 is now in session.

God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: Military Tribunal 5 will come to order.

The Tribunal will now proceed with the arraignment of the defendants in case number 7 pending before this Tribunal. The Secretary-General will call the roll of the defendants. The defendants will stand and answer their names when they are called.

WILHEIM LIST, MAXIMILIAN VON WEICHS, LOTHAR RENDULIC, WALTER KUNTZE, HERMANN FOERTSCH, FRANZ BOEHME, HELMUTH FEIMY, HUBERT LANZ, ERNST DEHNER, ERNST VON LEYSER, WILHEIM SPEIDEL, HURT VON GEITNER.

MR. DENNY: May it please your Honor, the prosecution has been advised by the custodian of the jail that since the serving of the indictment on the defendant Franz Boehme he has now become deceased, and with that in mind we would request that your Honors strike his name from the list of defendants.

THE PRESIDENT: It is the order of the Tribunal that the name of the defendant just mentioned by counsel be stricken from this indictment.

At this time, however, this Tribunal is desirous that a record be made at this time as to whether or not these defendants desire that the indictment be read again to them and unless each of the defendants waive the reading of the indictment it will be read again to the defendants at this time.

DR. LATERNSEER: I am authorized to declare in the name of the defense, I am Dr. Laternser, defense counsel for the defendants Fieldmarshal von List and von Weichs, that the defendants waive the reading of the indictment.

THE PRESIDENT: May I enquire of counsel as to whether or not he is authorized to represent all the defendants in the waiving of the reading of the indictment at this time.

DR. LATERNSEER: Yes, Mr. President, I am.

THE PRESIDENT: The record may then show that each of the defendants, by their counsel, unless otherwise indicated here at this time waive the reading of the indictment again to them. There being no indication of the desire of counsel or defendants that the indictment again be read, the record may then show that the reading at this time is waived by all defendants. Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America, against Wilhelm List, et al., Defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 15 July 1947, 0930-1630, Justice Wennerstrum, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal 5.

Military Tribunal 5 is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: This Tribunal is convened at this time for the purpose of the presentation of the opening statements on behalf of the prosecution. Prior to the presentation of this opening statement, I wish to make a statement relative to certain motions which have been filed by the defense counsel. These motions will receive the consideration of this Tribunal following the presentation of the opening statements by the prosecution. Is the prosecution ready?

GENERAL TAYLOR: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

GENERAL TAYLOR: May it please Your Honors.

This is the first time, since the conclusion of the trial before the International Military Tribunal, that high-ranking officers of the Wehrmacht have appeared in this dock, charged with capital crimes committed in a strictly military capacity. The conviction and execution of Keitel and Jodl, pursuant to the judgment and sentence of the International Military Tribunal, gave rise to wide-spread public comment, not only in Germany but also in the United States and England. Since that time, there have been several other note-worthy trials of German military leaders.

In the British zone of occupation, Generals von Falkenhorst and Blumentritt have been tried for the murder of prisoners of war. General Sepp Dietrich and his subordinates have been charged in the American zone with responsibility for the Malmedy massacre. Generals von Mackensen and Maeltzer faced a British military court in Italy in connection with the Ardeatine caves massacre of Italians. In Yugoslavia and Greece, Generals Alexander Loehr and Friedrich Wilhelm Mueller have been tried and condemned for war crimes committed in southeastern Europe.

Most recently, Fieldmarshal Albert Kesselring was tried by a British military court in Italy. The court found him guilty of responsibility for the Ardeatine caves atrocity, as well as for other war crimes against Italians committed by troops under his command in northern Italy. It sentenced him to be shot to death. This sentence of capital punishment against one of the outstanding military figures of the recent war again stimulated much discussion, and encountered not inconsiderable criticism, particularly in England. Whether or not as a result of such criticism, about ten days ago the British reviewing authorities commuted the death sentences against Kesselring, von Machensen, and Maeltzer to life imprisonment.

Because of the unusually deep interest which cases of this type have aroused, not only in military and legal circles but throughout the general public, and because the scope and sweep of this case is much greater than any of the previous cases to which I have referred, the prosecution may fairly be required, in opening this case, to do much more than outline the evidence which will be adduced in support of the indictment. Indeed, as this case progresses, I think it will rapidly appear that the evidentiary questions are of secondary importance. That the killings charged in the indictment occurred, that they were carried out by troops under the command of these defendants, and that they were in fact ordered by the defendants will not, I believe, be denied. The naked facts are terribly clear.

Nor, after the evidence is laid before you, can the true meaning of this case be drawn from learned arguments by counsel, analyzing and refining the laws of war as they are written in the Hague Conventions and in textbooks on international law. Of necessity, we will hear much discussion of hostages, and reprisals, and the necessary qualifications of belligerent armed forces. But the exposition of these technical problems of the law of land warfare, important as it may be, does not reach to the heart of this or similar cases in the year 1947.

The doubts which have been expressed concerning the wisdom and value of trials such as this one arise from a variety of conceptions and misconceptions. To some extent, these doubts are the natural result of the passage of time. Hostilities in Europe ended over two years ago, the devastated and stricken condition of Germany has aroused sympathy, and there is general desire to wipe the unhappy past from memory. So we hear it suggested by some that the present plight of Germany should shield men such as these from the consequences of crime, if criminals they be. But Germany is not the only devastated and stricken land, and for every crime there is not only a criminal but a victim. In the minds of many peoples are memories so mordant that they can not be forgotten. If the course of justice is stayed, these sores will only fester the longer and spread the wider. We can not restore the moral fabric of Europe by laying a shroud over unshriven and unburied corpses.

Other and quite different doubts have been raised by some who, with a blurred vision of military discipline; suppose that military men are a sort of race apart, who are not responsible for their actions because they are expected to obey orders. But the law and code of the German Army itself says that it is the duty of every soldier to refuse to obey orders that he knows to be criminal. This may be hard for the ordinary soldier acting under pistol-point orders from his lieutenant.

It is far less difficult for high-ranking commanders such as the men in the dock. These men are not named in the indictment because they are generals; they are named because they are charged with the responsibility for crimes. They must be acquitted if, under the law and the evidence, that responsibility can not justly be attributed to them, but they can not be acquitted merely because they are generals, any more than they can be indicted for that reason alone.

More fundamental and more cogent, I believe, are the doubts of those who question the wisdom and justice of attempting, by criminal prosecution, to enforce the laws of war with meticulous precision. Wars, such people say, are not fought on the dueling ground, and a polished observance of ritual can not be expected. Furthermore, there is a general feeling, not without substantial basis, that some of the laws of war as written in the Hague Conventions are obsolete, and on both sides were honored only in the breach. Then, too, it is felt, and rightly, that violations of the laws of war are committed in the best regulated armies, and it is therefore urged that the commanders should not be held to a strict and rigorous account for occasional lapses. I think that unarticulated doubts of this latter description underlie the criticism leveled against the death sentence which was imposed upon Kesselring, particularly criticism emanated from high-ranking Allied commanders who fought against him. The degree of Kesselring's guilt is, of course, not at issue in this proceeding, but in the course of it we will of necessity find occasion to draw certain comparisons and contrasts between the charges which were laid against Kesselring and those which are laid against the defendants here in the dock.

This case will achieve international meaning and significance, I believe, only if we adopt a realistic and practical approach to such questions.

And I believe that such an approach has been adopted in the framing of this indictment, in the selection of evidence in support thereof, and in the basic theory of the prosecution's case. The prosecution fully recognizes that the laws and usages of warfare must be altered and adapted to reflect the developments in this terrible art which man has learned to practice with such appalling proficiency. We have not sought and will not seek in this case to make murderers out of soldiers for the violation of rules framed in 1907, if those rules today are outmoded and generally disregarded.

So, too, the prosecution takes full account of the true nature of modern warfare as it relates to the responsibilities of commanders. We would not have arrested the defendants, we would not have requested that this court be constituted, and we would not have brought charges against these men, if they were to be accused of mere carelessness or responsibility for occasional or sporadic crimes committed by their troops.

On the contrary, we charge that these men inaugurated and executed a deliberate program of terror and extermination which was boundless in its arrogant contempt for the inhabitants of the lands which the Wehrmacht invaded and overran. It is perhaps the most elementary principle of human intercourse--the bare subsistence level of civilization--that human life should not be destroyed needlessly, or merely because it is regarded as inferior. This is not an elevated or noble principle, although the entire structure of human dignity is built upon it. This principle merely enunciates mankind's instinct of self-preservation, and its observance protects man from selfdestruction. It is so deeply rooted in civilization that the world insists on its observance in war as well as in peace, and the laws of war are, essentially, nothing more than a gloss on this fundamental rubric. It is for denying and undermining the very basis of civilization that these men are indicted.

Let us turn, then, to the indictment in which the charges against these men are set forth. Counts One and Two of the indictment relate to murders and other crimes committed against the civilian inhabitants of Greece, Yugoslavia, Norway, and Albania during the German occupation of those countries. Count Three charges the killing, in violation of the rules of war, of prisoners of war and other members of the armed forces of countries at war with Germany, and of members of the Italian armed forces after Italy's capitulation to the Allied nations. Count Four accuses the defendants of ordering and committing murders and other crimes in furtherance of the "racial" and economic policies of the Third Reich--the slaughter of Jews, the imprisonment and mistreatment of other segments of the civilian population, and the deportation of thousands to slave labor in Germany.

Count One, more particularly, charges the murder of many thousands of civilians under the color of retaliation or "reprisal" for attacks on German forces or military installations. As will appear from the evidence, these killings were carried out pursuant to a plan and system, embodied in orders issued, distributed, and executed by the defendants and others, which called for the retaliatory killing of civilians at arbitrarily established ratios, such as 100 civilians for every German soldier killed, and 50 for each soldier wounded. Usually the Germans referred to the victims of these mass executions as "hostages".

As I said at the outset, the proof of these acts will present no difficulty. The evidence, is all set forth in orders, reports, and other documents issued and circulated by the defendants themselves. Lest your Honors find it hard to credit what the written word so starkly exhibits, the oral testimony of eye-witnesses will also be spread on the record.

The laws of war do, of course, recognize that in certain circumstances belligerents may take steps by way of reprisal. The taking of hostages, too, has been practiced between nations since ancient times. The killing of hostages is a much more recent development; it is not the emblem of an enlightened way of life, and most of the precedents are found in the history of the Germany army and its exploits during the First World War. Furthermore, as will clearly appear, most of the victims who met their death before

German firing squads at Belgrade, or Kraljevo, or Athens, or Klissura were not "hostages" in any true sense of the word.

We will, in due course, endeavor to set forth in some detail the rules of war as they relate to "reprisals" and "hostages". At this point I wish to make only two observations. Both the London Charter and Control Council Law No. 10 declare the killing of hostages to be a violation of the laws of war. This declaration is binding on the Tribunal and the prosecution alike, and the prosecution believes that it is an accurate statement of the law. But the theory of the prosecution's case under Count One does not rest on this rule. We may concede for purposes of argument that the execution of hostages may under some circumstances be justified, harshly as those words may ring in our ears. But the law must be spared the shame of condoning the torrent of senseless death which these men, let loose in southeastern Europe.

Count Two of the indictment speaks in terms of destruction and devastation, totally unjustified by military necessity. Here, too, the victims were the peoples of Norway, Yugoslavia, Greece, and Albania, who saw their homes in flames, their towns and villages erased and their possessions looted and scattered.

Count Three of the indictment is quite different from the first two counts. The victims of the crimes charged in Count Three were not civilians and non-combatants; they were, for the most part, members of the Yugoslav and Greek armed forces who continued to resist the German invader after the defeat of the major units of the Greek and Yugoslav armies and the replacement of their national governments by "puppet" governments or German military occupational administration.

Pursuant to orders issued and executed by the defendants, these troops who continued to resist were not recognized by Germany as belligerents, and when captured were commonly denied the status of prisoners of war and were shot or hanged. We will, subsequently, discuss the rules of war pertaining to the qualifications of belligerent armed forces.

Count Three also charges other crimes against members of the armed forces of various other allied nations, particularly in pursuance of the notorious German order of October, 1942, under which numerous Allied "commandos" were coldly murdered after their capture. It also charges the murder of many officers and men of the Italian armed forces at the time of and shortly after Italy's surrender to the Allies.

Count Four, finally, strikes a still more sombre note. The crimes charged therein were in no way related to military operations. We find the defendants and their troops helping to "purge" southeastern Europe of the so-called "inferior peoples", such as Jews, and "politically unreliable" individuals such as "democrats" and "nationalists". We find them helping to enslave and deport the inhabitants of these lands to join the millions of other unfortunates from all over Europe who were sucked into Germany to work for their conquerors in mines and factories. We see the German army in a shameful role as the servant and tool of Himmler, Sauckel, and other Nazi worthies.

Such in summary, are the changes in this indictment. The Tribunal will observe, from the dates of the particular incidents set forth as illustrations of the charges, that all four counts cover the three and one half years from April 1941 to approximately October 1944.

All four types of crime were committed throughout this period, and often a single episode involved the commission of crimes under all four counts. Consequently, in outlining the evidence today and in presenting it during the next few weeks, the prosecution proposes to proceed chronologically, rather than count by count. We believe this will be conducive to a more orderly and intelligible presentation. However, in presenting particular documents or witnesses, we will of course, specify which count or portion of a count the particular piece of evidence supports.

Before taking up the evidence in more detail, it will be helpful to spend a few moments in outlining the structure and organization of the German military machine, and the way in which it functioned in occupied countries, particularly in southeastern Europe. The prosecution has already submitted to the Tribunal, and to defense counsel, a brief memorandum on the organization of the German army, together with a series of charts showing the chain of command of the more important military units in southeastern Europe and northern Norway, with several maps of Yugoslavia, Greece, and Norway, and other mechanical aids to the understanding of this case. One of these charts has been enlarged for display on the wall of the courtroom.

A. The Supreme Command of the German Armed Forces.

DR. LATERNER (Counsel for defendants List, and von Weichs): Mr. President, I am sorry I have to interrupt at this moment. I am surprised to hear right now the Tribunal has been presented by the prosecution with an information referring to the defense. We are now in a criminal procedure and as far as I know the person who makes a statement has to prove that it is true. I don't know now how the prosecution wants this information to be understood. If it should be regarded as evidence before this Tribunal in that case I must object to the submitted information already to this Tribunal for a summary of the prosecution is not a means of the evidence.

We know the criminal procedure and we know that it consists of evidence and documentary evidence. I cannot see from the information that I have received that a document is in question not been signed by anybody. However, if it is merely information that is no evidence then informing the Tribunal by this material, as far as I know foreign law, can only then be right when the defense agrees with it.

For information of the Tribunal can merely be affected when everybody agrees. In any case if this information is supposed evidence it has to be rejected. We are merely dealing with statements of the prosecution which have now to be proved, for which evidence has to be submitted. I just want to put an example now and I shall soon finish. This information also refers to this chart here, Chart D. It is supposed to serve as information for the Tribunal, to brief the Tribunal. The moment when I entered the court I saw two basic mistakes in this chart. The mistakes are in the chart although in the first trial before the Military Tribunal the position of the O.K.W. was discussed at large.

From this sketch we can see that the O.K.W. and the O.K.M. and O.K.H. -- they were supposed to be one group but that was never the case. The OKW was merely a working staff of Hitlee's and if one regards the results of the first trial, this staff cannot be put right or left in the chart beside that little box, that means "Hitler", this is a basic mistake.

I shall soon finish. The nedt mistake results from the fact that, for instance, army group F is connected with a line supposed to mean technical subordinates. That also is not correct. I therefore ask the Tribunal to ask the prosecution that the information which was submitted by the prosecution may be withdrawn for the assumptions contained in this information the prosecution will have to submit evidence.

GENERAL TAYLOR: May it please Your Honors, the document in question is, as I stated quite briefly, not evidentiary. It is in the nature of a brief. Dr. Laternser, who has been before the IMT, is fully familiar with the procedure. There has been such a brief submitted before every trial that has taken place in this courtroom. It is not evidentiary. It is to enable the Tribunal and defense counsel to follow the opening statements.

The matters contained therein will, to be sure, be supported by documents which will be submitted during the prosecution's case in chief.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal, speaking through the presiding judge, wishes to state that this document which I now have before me was considered by the Tribunal as merely informative. The members of this Tribunal are members of courts in the States who have had many years of not only trials but Appellate experience, and I am certain that I speak the thoughts of my associates when I say to counsel that we shall only decide this case upon the evidence as presented.

It should be kept in mind that the members of this Tribunal have been in this city here, and its surrounding country, for only about one month. Naturally we are desirous, and it is necessary, that we become informed on the procedure that is to be followed in these cases. It is necessary that we learn about the type of the case and the things that will be presented, but I assure counsel for the defense, the defendants, and all other parties concerned that the decision of this court will be based solely upon the evidence as presented, and after counsel for the defendants and the defendants themselves have had a full and fair opportunity to present any matters in rebuttal which may have been presented on behalf of the prosecution.

You may proceed, General Taylor.

GENERAL TAYLOR: When Hitler came to power in 1933, the German armed forces (which then consisted only of the Army and Navy, since the Air Force did not yet officially exist) were controlled and administered by a cabinet department called the Reich Defense Ministry. Under the Reich Defense Minister, at that time von Blomberg, the highest officers of each branch of the service were called respectively the Chief of the Army Staff, that being General von Fritsch, and the Chief of the Naval Staff (Admiral Raeder). In May 1935, when Germany started openly to overthrow the armament restrictions of the Versailles Treaty, von Blomberg was given the title of Reichsminister for War and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, and von Fritsch and Raeder were thereafter called the Commanders-in-Chief of the Army and Navy respectively.

However, the German Air Force, which was officially born at about the same time, was not subordinated to von Blomberg. It was established as an independent institution under Goering, who took the title of Air Minister and Commander-in-Chief of the Air Force.

In February 1938 there was a general reorganization of the German military set-up. Von Blomberg and Fritsch were both retired, and Hitler himself took the title of Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces (Obersterbefehlshaber der Wehrmacht). At the same time Hitler created the Armed Forces High Command (Oberkommando der Wehrmacht, usually referred to as OKW), with authority over all three branches of the armed forces. Wilhelm Keitel was installed as Chief of the OKW, and remained in this capacity until the end of the war in 1945. The OKW was, in effect, Hitler's personal staff for all matters pertaining to the armed forces, and Keitel's function was that of Hitler's executive officer for the administration of the armed forces and the application of Hitler's policies.

As is shown by the chart on the wall (Chart "D" in the explanatory pamphlet which the prosecution has submitted), the three components of the armed forces were directly subordinated to Hitler and the OKW. Admiral Raeder continued as Commander-in-Chief of the Navy (OKM) until 1943, when he was relieved by Admiral Doenitz. Goering continued to head the Air Force (OKL) until the last month of the war. As Supreme Commander of the Army to replace von Fritsch, Hitler selected General (later Field Marshal) Walter von Brauchitsch.

B. The German Army The German army, needless to say, was by far the largest and most important of the three branches of the Wehrmacht.

Von Brauchitsch continued as Commander-in-Chief only until December 1941, at which time Hitler relieved him and himself took the title of Commander-in-Chief of the Army in addition to that of Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces. This dual capacity led to a merging and overlapping of the functions of OKW and OKH, and at times we may find it difficult to differentiate between their respective responsibilities.

The field formations of the German army were normally subordinated to OKH although, as we will see shortly, as the war progressed they were on numerous occasions subordinated to OKW. The largest field formation in the German army, as in most others, was known as an "Army Group", which was, ordinarily, a headquarters controlling two or more "armies". Army groups and armies were usually commanded by field marshals and Generalobersts, ranks which are respectively the equivalent of a fivestar and four-star general in our own military hierarchy. A German "army", however, was sometimes commanded by a mere "General", which is the same as a lieutenant general (three stars) in the American army.

Below the "army" were the lower formations, which followed the same general pattern in the German army as in others -- in order from top to bottom, come the corps and the division, and then the smaller units such as regiments, battalions, and companies. The most important types of divisions were the infantry division, the armored or panzer division, and the motorized or panzer-grenadier division, but the Germans used a number of other special types. In southeastern Europe, where many miscellaneous units were employed, we will frequently encounter the mountain division, the security division (Sicherungsdivision, usually composed of older soldiers), and the reserve division (usually composed of units still undergoing training). There were also infantry divisions formed from the personnel of the German Air Force, and known as German air force field divisions (Luftwaffenfelddivisionen). Side by side with the corps and divisions of the regular German army we find similarly designated formations of Heinrich Himmler's SS.

Not content with his powerful position as head of the SS and of all German police forces, Himmler inaugurated the recruitment and formation into military units of hundreds of thousands of SS men trained and equipped for front-line combat duty. This strictly military part of the SS was known as the Waffen (armed) SS, and by the end of the war it comprised no less than 30 divisions, as well as several corps headquarters and an army headquarters. Himmler's divisions were consecutively numbered and carried special names. In southeastern Europe, during the period covered by this case, the 7th SS Mountain Division "Prinz Eugen", the 8th SS Cavalry Division "Florian Geyer", and several others were very active. During the early part of the war, these SS soldiers were almost all volunteers, frantically devoted to the ideals, if such they may be called, of the SS. Later in the war a number of SS divisions were formed by forcible conscription from the populations of occupied countries. For some purposes, chiefly administrative in nature, the Waffen-SS units remained under Himmler's control, but for operational purposes they were under the command of the German army, and their employment differed little from that of the regular divisions of the army.

As I stated earlier, the field forces of the German army were normally under the OKH, but not infrequently, particularly during the latter part of the war, they came to be subordinated directly to OKW. This was particularly true in territories which the German army had overrun and where military occupational authorities were established. In such regions, the Germans often appointed a senior over-all commander, to whom the heads of the Army, Navy, and Air Force units in that region were all responsible. Such a commander, with local authority over all three branches of the armed forces, was called an "Armed Forces Commander" (Wehrmachtsbefehlshaber). In southeastern Europe, where the Army was the all-important branch of the service, the armed forces commander was almost invariably an army general.

While the Armed Forces Commander had authority over all units of the German armed forces in an occupied region, the administration of the area, in conformity with German rules and policies, was commonly entrusted to an army general designated as "Military Commander (Militaerbefehlshaber). He had the primary mission of insuring security and order, and for this purpose had at his disposal the German police forces and, often, security divisions and regiments of the army. On matters of military government policy, the Military Commander usually took his orders direct from OKH, but as commander of the security and police forces allotted to him, he was tactically subordinate to the Armed Forces Commander in his territory.

Himmler's police and intelligence empire also reached into the occupied territories. Reflecting Himmler's leadership of both the SS and the German police, a Himmler emissary in the occupied territories was called a "Higher SS and Police Leader" (Hoehrer SS und Polizei Fuehrer, usually abbreviated HSSPF). His principal functions were to control the local police authorities and carry out other special missions of a security nature. The HSSPF's remained personally responsible to Himmler, but for tactical purposes were subordinated to the senior Military Commander in their territory.

D. German Military Organization in Southeastern Europe and Northern Norway.

The chain of command and order of battle of the German armed forces in southeastern Europe was complicated and changed frequently. The narrative is most logically broken into three principal periods of time.

From April 1941, when the invasions of Greece and Yugoslavia took place, until August 1942 the focal point of German military authority in southeastern Europe was the headquarters of the 12th Army. The defendant List commanded the 12th Army until October 1941, at which time the defendant Kuntze took charge as acting commander until August 1942.

During this period the defendant Foertsch was Chief of Staff to both List and Kuntze, the defendant Felmy commanded in southern Greece, and the deceased Boehme in Serbia. The defendant Weichs was also active at the beginning of this period. He commanded the Second Army, which invaded Yugoslavia from the north, but he and his army were withdrawn from the Balkans in May 1941 at the conclusion of large-scale operations.

The second period begins in August 1942 when Kuntze left the Balkans and Generaloberst Alexander Loehr, now deceased, became Commanding General of the 12th Army. At about the same time the defendant Speidel followed Felmy as the commander in southern Greece, and the defendant Geitner became Chief of Staff to the Military Commander in Serbia, General Bader, who had replaced Boehme in December 1941. In January 1943 the 12th Army was, as we say, "up-graded" and re-designated as Army Group "E". General Loehr continued in command of Army Group "E" with the defendant Foertsch as his Chief of Staff.

The third and final phase begins in August 1943, and thereafter the organization remained substantially unchanged until the end of the war. The new structure during this final period, shown in the chart on the wall, was largely the result of the Allied landing in Sicily; the resultant threat to German dominion in the Balkans required a stiffening of command and reinforcements. The defendant Weichs returned to the Balkans in over-all command, with a headquarters designated Army Group "F". Under him were General Loehr, with his jurisdiction now restricted to Greece, the defendant Rendulic, as Commander-in-Chief of the Second Panzer Army in Croatia, shown at the center of the chart, and General Felber, of whom we will hear much in these proceedings, as Military Commander for all of southeastern Europe, and with personal jurisdiction in Serbia, shown in the center of chart.

Under Loehr were the defendants Felmy, who returned to Greece in June 1943, and Lanz, both of whom commanded corps under Army Group "E". The defendants von Leyser and Dehner were corps commanders under Rendulic. Foertsch stayed on as Chief of Staff to Weichs and Geitner remained as Chief of Staff to Felber.

Speidel remained as Military Commander in Greece, under the command of Felber as Military Commander for all of southeastern Europe.

The situation in northern Norway is of importance in this case only during the fall of 1944, when the German forces in northern Finland retreated into Norway through the Norwegian province of Finnmark. These forces, comprising the 20th Mountain Army, had been commanded by Generaloberst Dietl, who was killed in an airplane crash during the summer of 1944. The defendant Rendulic left his command of the Second Panzer Army in Croatia and replaced Dietl in Finland. The various units subordinated to Rendulic's 20th Mountain Army are shown in Chart "G" of the prosecution's pamphlet.

GERMAN MILITARY POLICY WITH RESPECT TO "HOSTAGES" Before turning to the particulars of the evidence, and to put this case in its proper setting, we may remind ourselves that the war crimes of the Germany army were not confined to southeastern Europe.

In particular, the practice of taking and executing so-called "hostages" from the civilian population was instituted at the very outset of the war, and was deliberately planned in advance.

In July, 1939, when plans for the invasion of Poland were being laid, the OKH distributed to the army field commanders a series of directives for the maintenance of security in Poland. This initial step was relatively circumspect; the field commanders were told that "hostages" could be taken, but that their execution would have to be approved in each instance by OKH.

The subsequent history of this order might be styled "the rake's progress". About two months later, when Poland had been conquered, the German Military Commander in the Polish city of Poznan ordered that:

.....hostages are to be taken from the Polish civilian population in every village in which troops are billeted.... In the event of attacks on members of the Wehrmacht of persons who are German by race, hostages are to be shot. Only senior officers holding the rank of a division commander will issue orders to shoot hostages.

The "War Diary" of a German rear area commandant carried the story forward. Two weeks later, on October 15, 1939, two hostages were shot in the village of Buk because a sentry had been shot at. Three days later, according to the diary, the following occurred in the Polish villages of Ottorowo and Samter:

In Ottorowo: A carbine had been stolen, the room in which the burglary was committed had been damaged, a swastika flag had been torn down and the Polish Eagle put up. Sentence was passed by a court-martial of the chief of civil administration and after a specified period of time had expired, 5 hostages each were shot in Ottorowo and Samter. The execution took place in the presence of the entire population. There were no tears, and the fine of 10,000 zlotys imposed on the village of Ottorowo was paid, probably with the help of the church.

In Samter: Catholic services may be conducted only once a week.

.... The county governor intends to remove gradually from his county the Polish intellectuals, the owners of large estates, and the clergy.

A Lieutenant, who is a district speaker for the Nazi Party in civilian life, attends to the moral welfare of the troops.

Under this beneficent moral tutelage rapidly emerged, in fearful shape, the German inferiority complex. The Poles were inferior peoples, but the Germans could not be quite sure that this was really true until all the educated Poles had been removed.

The following year the same pattern was repeated in France and the Low Countries. It is June, 1940, and the defendant List, with his Twelfth Army, is attacking across the Aisne River in France. The commander of the rear area of his army gives the order that:

As soon as acts of sabotage - fires also belong in this category - are found, hostages are to be taken. The arrest is to be announced publicly. If the acts of sabotage are repeated, the hostages are to be shot, according to the regulations previously issued, after sentence by a Court martial. Executions by shooting are to be reported to the Twelfth Army and announced publicly.

Belgian citizens, however, may be shot only with the consent of OKH.

As the scourge of war spread from country to country, the ways of the army grew even more savage. In 1941, as the Wehrmacht threw itself into the Slavic countries of Eastern Europe, the Germans encountered peoples whom they held in the contempt born of fear. In the Balkans and Russia, they spread such death and terror that the conscience of the world was made to reel and on October 25, 1941, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is the President of a country still at restless peace, declared prophetically:

The practice of executing scores of innocent hostages in reprisal for isolated attacks on Germans in countries temporarily under the Nazi heel revolts a world already inured to suffering and brutality.

Civilized peoples long ago adopted the basic principle that no man should be punished for the deed of another. Unable to apprehend the persons involved in these attacks, the Nazis characteristically slaughter fifty or a hundred innocent persons. Those who would "collaborate" with Hitler or try to appease him cannot ignore this ghastly warning.

The Nazis might have learned from the last war the impossibility of breaking men's spirit by terrorism. Instead they develop their "Lebensraum" and "new order" by depths of frightfulness which even they have never approached before. These are the acts of desperate men who know in their hearts that they cannot win. Frightfulness can never bring peace to Europe. It only sows the seeds of hatred which will one day bring fearful retribution.

GENERAL TAYLOR: Your Honor, this brings us to the point of the actual invasion of Greece and Yugoslavia, and Mr. Clark Denny will continue with the reading of the statement.

MR. DENNY: May it please Your Honor.

THE INVASION OF GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA We may pass over very briefly the historical background of Germany's simultaneous and ruthless onslaughts against Greece and Yugoslavia in April, 1941.

The highlights are set forth in the judgment of the International Military Tribunal,¹ and a fuller account may be found in the official transcript of the international trial.² It appears from these accounts that, as early as August 1939, just before the attack against Poland, Hitler had discussed with Ribbentrop and Ciano how best the Axis partners could gobble up the neutral countries of Europe.

Hitler cynically suggested to Ciano:

Generally speaking, the best thing to happen would be for the neutrals to be liquidated one after the other. This process could be carried out more easily if, on every occasion, one partner of the Axis covered the other while it was dealing with the uncertain neutral. Italy might well regard Yugoslavia as a neutral of this kind.

In making the suggestion, Hitler was no doubt catering to Mussolini's imperial ambitions in the Balkans, which had been reflected earlier that year in the Italian occupation of Albania. For the next year, however, Germany was sufficiently occupied with the 1. Judgment of the International Military Tribunal, Vol.

campaigns in Poland, Norway, the Low Countries and France, and the next Axis moves in southeastern Europe did not occur until 28 October 1940, when Italy launched its contemptible and ill-fated attack against Greece. It was, furthermore, Mussolini's inability to beat down the heroic resistance of the Greeks that lead Hitler to march into the Balkans the following year.

We may be sure that it was from no particular sympathy with Mussolini's plight in Albania and Greece that Hitler decided to come to his aid. On the contrary, there is every indication that Hitler and the German military leaders were pleased over the discomfiture of their Italian allies, whom they held in such contempt throughout the war. But Hitler was disturbed in Greece from which the valuable oil fields in Rumania could be bombed. And furthermore, as Rommel's campaign in North Africa began to attract attention, Hitler's thoughts turned increasingly towards the eastern Mediterranean and the possibility of establishing German superiority there. Accordingly, in November 1940, Hitler issued Top Secret instructions to Brauchitsch, as Commander-in-Chief of the Army, directing him to:

Make preparations for occupying the Greek mainland, north of the Aegean Sea, in case of need, entering through Bulgaria and thus making possible use of German Air Forces units against targets in the eastern Mediterranean, in particular against those English air bases which are threatening the Rumanian oil areas.

All this time, however, the German High Command was chiefly preoccupied with preparations for the invasion of the Soviet Union, which they had planned for the following spring. This formidable military task required all the forces the Germans could muster and accordingly Hitler and the generals wished to carry out any enterprise which might have to be undertaken in the Balkans with the utmost economy of means. Therefore, there was at this time no intention whatsoever of invading Yugoslavia in addition to Greece; on the contrary, Hitler began an intensive diplomatic campaign to swing Yugoslavia to the side of the Axis and induce her to join the so-called "Tri-partite Pact", to which the principal adherents were Germany, Italy, and Japan.

A. The plan of Attack.

By December, the plans for the invasion of Greece, known under the code name "Marita", had begun to take shape:

My plan therefore is (a) to form a slowly increasing task force in Southern Rumania within the next month, (b) after setting in of favorable weather, probably in March, to send a task force for the occupation of the Aegean north coast by way of Bulgaria and if necessary to occupy the entire Greek mainland.

To carry out the essential first step of persuading Bulgaria to permit the passage of German troops from Rumania to Greece, the defendant List was sent to Sofia, where he secured the necessary consent at a conference early in February, 1941. At the same time, Bulgaria agreed to join the Tri-partite Pact, and a time schedule was established, pursuant to which List, with his Twelfth Army, would commence the building of bridges across the Danube from Rumania into Bulgaria on the 28th of February, Bulgaria would adhere to the Pact on the first of March, and Lists's forces would move across the bridges into Bulgaria on the second of March. All of this happened according to schedule, and List's army started across Bulgaria toward the northern frontier of the Greek mainland. Simultaneously, diplomatic pressure on Yugoslavia was increased, and on the 25th of March the Yugoslav Premier and the Foreign Minister signed the Tripartite Pact at Vienna. Had all gone as planned, Yugoslavia's adherence to the Axis would have enabled List to attack from Bulgaria into Greece without fear that the Yugoslavs might invade Bulgaria and cut him off.

But for once, Hitler's time table was upset. The following day the Yugoslavs repudiated their government's adherence to the pact and the Premier was removed from office.

Yugoslavia "emerged on the morning of the 27th of March, ready to defend, if need be, her independence".¹ The same day, Hitler and his generals met in council of war.

It was pointed out that the uncertain attitude of the new Yugoslav government not only represented a threat to List's rear in the attack against Greece, but would also constitute a potential menace behind the German forces which were being assembled for the attack against the Soviet Union. Hitler announced his determination "to make all preparations in order to destroy Yugoslavia militarily and as a national unit." No diplomatic inquiries were to be made, no assurances by the Yugoslavian government were to be regarded, and the attack was to start at the first possible moment.

Political considerations played a large part in the plans. The old feuds between the Serbs and the Croates were to be capitalized to the 1. The words are those of Colonel H.J. Phillimore, Junior Counsel for the United Kingdom, before the International Military Tribunal.

Vol. 3, Trial of the Major War Criminals, p. 317.

utmost. Turkey was to be frightened out of her wits by the ruthlessness of the attack. The cooperation of the neighboring Balkan states was to be secured by territorial promises. Hitler said:

Politically, it is especially important that the blow against Yugoslavia is carried out with unmerciful harshness and that the military destruction is done in a lightening like undertaking. In this way, Turkey would become sufficiently frightened and the campaign against Greece later on would be influenced in a favorable way. It can be assumed that the Croates will come to our side when we attack. A corresponding political treatment (autonomy later on) will be assured to them. The war against Yugoslavia should be very popular in Italy, Hungary, and Bulgaria, as territorial acquisitions are to be promised to these states; the Adriatic coast for Italy, the Banat for Hungary, and Macedonia for Bulgaria.

The military plans for a simultaneous attack against Yugoslavia and Greece, to replace the plans for the Greek campaign alone, were drawn up during the last few days of March, 1941. The plan for Yugoslavia was called "Operation 25", and was dove-tailed neatly into "Marita". List's Twelfth Army, in addition to pushing across the south Bulgarian frontier into Greece, was to send an armoured assault group across Bulgaria's western border into southern Yugoslavia with the objective of capturing the key city of Skoplje, and then continuing across southern Yugoslavia into Albania and joining forces there with the Italians. Another of List's armoured groups, under the well-known General (later Fieldmarshal) von Kleist, would push from Bulgaria into Yugoslavia in a northwesterly direction toward Belgrade. To complete the concentric operation, strong German forces were to be assembled at the southern Austrian border, and strike southward into Croatia, and a smaller force was to advance southward from Rumania toward Belgrade. The German Air Force, in addition to its normal support functions, was to destroy the city of Belgrade by attacks in waves at the very outset of hostilities.

B. The Invasion.

The plans were well-laid, German strength was overwhelming, and everything went like clock-work. At dawn on Sunday morning, April 6, Belgrade was mercilessly bombed, List attacked south into Greece and west into Yugoslavia, and the next day Scoplje was taken and Kleist started northwest toward Belgrade.

Soloniki fell on the ninth. On the 10th, the German Second Army, which had been assembled in southern Austria under the command of the defendant von Weichs, started south through Croatia at great speed and captured Zagreb. On the 11th, List effected a junction with the Italians in Albania. On the 12th, Yugoslavia's north front against von Weichs collapsed; the Germans had played cleverly on the ancient Serb-Croat enmity, and the Croates offered little resistance and began to clamor for independence. By Easter Sunday the 13th, Kleist's forces held all of Belgrade, and the Germans began a complacent division of the spoils between themselves and their satellite allies. The Yugoslav government capitulated two days later, and by the 16th of April large scale operations had come to an end. The campaign in Greece took longer, but the Greek forces in the north were forced to surrender by the 22nd of April, and by the 28th Athens had fallen. In anticipation of the campaign against Russia, now only a few weeks in the future, the Germans began pulling out of Yugoslavia and Greece as many troops as could be spared and transport could move, leaving behind only enough for security purposes and for the invasion of Crete which, under the cover name "Merkur", was to start out on the 20th of May.

C. Von Weichs and the 100:1 "Hostage" Ratio As appears from the foregoing account, the three principal military figures of the German campaign in southeastern Europe were von Kleist and the defendants List and von Weichs.

After the capitulation of Yugoslavia, Kleist departed almost immediately to head an armoured group in the attack on Russia. List remained as Supreme Commander of the armed forces in the southeast, and his actions in this capacity will shortly be described.

The defendant von Weichs and his Second Army were scheduled for ultimate employment on the Russian front, but did not take part in the initial attack. Von Weichs remained in Croatia until the latter part of May, while List completed the conquest of Greece and Crete. In the meantime, the puppet government of Croatia, headed by Pavelic, was being established, and von Weichs participated in the recruitment and organization of Croatian militia units, known as "ustashi", who were strongly anti-Serbian and whom the Germans were counting on to maintain security in Croatia.

Thereafter, von Weichs and his Second Army headquarters departed, and von Weichs did not return to the Balkans until August 1943. Short as was his stay in the southeast in 1941, he left an indelible imprint as the result of his methods of "pacification".

Just after the German attack on the Soviet Union, the Russian radio broadcast a report that, as a result of the alleged murder of two German soldiers in Belgrade, 100 Serbs had been shot to death. The defendant List, upon making inquiry, learned that no such episode had in fact occurred in Belgrade at that time, but that the Russian report was undoubtedly based on an episode which had occurred in April, 1941, in the course of von Weichs' southward march. As a result of the incident, von Weichs had issued on the 28th of April, 1941, the following order, distributed throughout the Second Army down to battalion level:

The increase in malicious attacks on German soldiers necessitates most stringent counter-measures. Only immediate and ruthless measures guarantee the maintenance of peace and order and prevent the forming of bands.

1) A Division sent out a detachment to carry out the disarmament of a Serbian village. The leader rode on ahead with another officer and a Wachtmeister, whereupon he was overtaken by a Komitadschi band (in Serbian uniform) and was shot to death. His companions were seriously wounded. This occurrence gives us cause to make the following statements:

a) After conclusion of the Armistice there is no Serbian soldier in the whole area who is authorized to carry arms.

b) Whoever is found in Serbian uniform with weapon in hand transgresses the bounds of International Law and is to be shot to death immediately.

c) If in any area an armed band appears, then even those men capable of bearing arms who are seized because they were in proximity of the band are to be shot to death, if it cannot immediately be ascertained with certainty that they were not connected with the band.

d) The bodies of all persons shot to death are to be hanged and left hanging.

e) Arresting hostages after a surprise attack is wrong and is by no means to be taken into consideration. On the contrary, action is to be taken only according to letters a) to d).

2) As preventative protection of the troop against such malicious surprise attacks, I give the following orders: These orders are given in part.

d) In the endangered villages, placards are to be posted wherein the population is notified of the serious consequences to be expected from surprise attacks (the posters will be sent separately).

e) In all localities of the endangered area which are occupied by troops, hostages are to be taken immediately (from all classes of the population) who are to be shot to death and hanged after a surprise attack. This measure is to be made public in the villages immediately.

3) In cases of surprise attacks on the troops, the Division Commanders should examine in detail whether the troop leader in question is to be blamed. In the reports of the Division, regarding encountered surprise attacks, there should always and immediately be a statement to the effect that the attacks were atoned by ruthless measures and account be given as to the manner employed.

The placards which were posted in Serbian villages as a result of this order read as follows:

By a mean and malicious surprise attack, German soldiers have lost their lives. German patience is at an end. As atonement, 100 Serbs of all classes of the population have been shot to death. In the future, 100 Serbs are to be shot without consideration for every German soldier who comes to harm as a result of a surprise attack conducted by Serbs.

Irrelevant as any such circumstance might be, there is nothing to indicate that von Weichs received any directive or suggestion from above calling for the issuance of any such order. It appears that he conceived the order in his own mind and issued it on his own initiative.

It epitomizes the German terror which raged in the Balkans for the next three and one half years. It embodies the two fundamental policies which List and his successors applied: That the enemy should be denied even the bare right of continued resistance and his troops no longer be recognized as belligerents entitled to the protection of the laws of war, and that attacks against German soldiers should be suppressed by executing civilian "hostages" at the astonishing ratio of 100:1. The only important respect in which subsequent practice departed from von Weichs' precedent was that his injunction that "hostages" should not be arrested after an attack, but should always be taken in advance and executed after the attack, was found to present serious inconveniences. With a required ratio of 100:1, it was impossible to keep enough hostages on hand to meet all contingencies, and in subsequent months the Germans repeatedly transgressed this rather formal and academic restriction which von Weichs had laid down.

THE OCCUPATION: LIST AND KUNTZE (April 1941 - August 1942) As von Weichs and Kleist withdrew from the Balkans and turned their attention to Russia, the German High Command drew up blueprints of the military occupational administration for southeastern Europe, which List was to head.

To understand the organization which was created, we must first look at map "A" in the prosecution's explanatory pamphlet, which shows the partition of Yugoslavia effected by Germany and her satellites.

A. The Partition of Yugoslavia and Greece.

In northern Croatia, it will be observed medium-sized portions were annexed by Germany, Italy, and Hungary. The remainder of Croatia, except for those parts of the Adriatic coast which Italy annexed outright, was established as an "autonomous" state, headed by Dr. Anton Pavelic, who called himself the "Poglavnik" of Croatia.

Most of the eastern part of Croatia was occupied by Italian forces, and the Germans were not particularly active there until the collapse of Italy in 1943.

In the southern part of Yugoslavia, Italy also took Montenegro under her control, and Italy absorbed still more by the device of "annexation" to Albania. Serbian Macedonia was annexed to Bulgaria.

The truncated Serbia which remained was put under German military occupational administration, although the southern part of this rump remainder was occupied by Bulgarian troops. It is this portion of Serbia which passed under German administration with which we will be chiefly concerned during the period up to August, 1942.

The occupational fate of Greece is shown on map "C". It will be observed that the greater part of the Greek mainland and the Peloponnesus came under the sway of the Italians. Bulgaria took the long arm of eastern Greece along the northern shore of the Aegean Sea. The Germans contented themselves with small, strategically situated portions. On the mainland, they occupied the area around Saloniki and a narrow strip along the Turkish border.

They maintained troops in Athens, although nominally control of Athens was shared with the Italians. They also occupied Crete and various smaller islands in the Aegean Sea.

B. Structure of the German Occupational Administration Four of the defendants in the box, as well as the deceased Boehme, occupied key positions in the German occupation of Yugoslavia and Greece during this period.

By far the most important, of course, was the defendant List, who, on 9 June 1941, was appointed by Hitler as Armed Forces Commander of all German forces in southeastern Europe, with the title Wehrmachtbefehlshaber Suedost (Armed Forces Commander Southeast). In this capacity, List was directly responsible to Hitler and the OKW. List also retained the title of Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army. The defendant Foertsch was his Chief of Staff. List maintained his headquarters at Saloniki. In October 1941 List fell ill, and thereafter, up to August 1942, the defendant Kuntze was the acting Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army.

Under List (and subsequently Kuntze) were three Military Commanders -- one in Serbia and two in Greece. The deceased Boehme, who commanded the 18th Mountain Corps of the 12th Army, was Commanding General in Serbia from September to December, 1941. He went to Finland at the end of the year and was replaced by General Paul Bader, who is also believed to be now dead.

In Greece a Military Commander for the Saloniki area and the northern Aegean islands was appointed by OKH, and a Military Commander for southern Greece, with authority at Athens and in Crete and the southern Aegean islands, was appointed by the German Air Force. The defendant Felmy was Goering's selection for this position.

Accordingly, during the period up to August 1942 we will be primarily concerned with the activities of the defendants List, Kuntze, and Foertsch, as well as such acts of Boehme and Bader as are relevant to this proceeding.

We will not at this time discuss the acts of the defendant Felmy in southern Greece, inasmuch as the bulk of the evidence pertaining to Greece relates to the period after August 1943, when Italy capitulated and the Germans took over the entire occupation of Greece. It will, therefore, be more convenient to deal with all the evidence pertaining to Greece at a later stage.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, please. You are starting into a different portion of your statement. This will be a convenient place to interrupt. The Tribunal will be in recess for ten minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honors. We now take up the discussion of the activities of the defendants List, Foertsch, and the deceased Boehme during the period April to October, 1941.

The defendant List was an able protagonist in fields ideological as well as military. This is indicated in a letter of 23 April 1941 written by Alfred Rosenberg, who was later appointed Reich Minister for Occupied Eastern Territories, to Martin Bormann. Part of this letter stated:

Art objects generally do not come into the question as far as the Balkans are concerned, only there are Free Masonry archives and Jewish libraries and other relevant research bodies. In my opinion, only the same attitude as that prevailing in occupied French territory can be taken and what I requested was really only an expansion of an already existing regulation. For with General Field Marshal List, and likewise with the General Quartermaster of the Army, the work has already been begun and my men are already at work with these circles in Belgrade. And on command of General Field Marshal List, as well as of his Deputy General, these men will also be employed in closest relationship with the Security Service (SD) in Salonika. As you know, Salonika is one of the largest Jewish centers.

The capitulation was barely finished; yet List, the soldier, was making himself a party to the "cultural" work of the Third Reich.

Early in September 1941, List determined that matters in Serbia required a more forceful executive authority in that territory. With this in mind, List teletyped to OKW and OKH requesting that Boehme, at that time Commanding General of the 18th Mountain Corps, 12th Army, that he be assigned with his staff as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia with supreme authority in that sector, directly responsible to List. List regarded Boehme as being "especially suited" for the position because he had "an excellent knowledge of conditions in the Balkans." This request was answered by a Hitler order of 16 September 1941 in which List was charged with the task of suppressing the insurgent movement in the southeast area, and Boehme was designated as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia with executive power, directly subordinate to List. All military and civilian offices in Serbia were instructed to comply with Boehme's orders.

Upon receipt of the Hitler order, List, on 19 September 1941, advised the Military Commander in Serbia, the LXV Corps Command, and the German General in Zagrab, who was the liaison between the Croatian government and the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, that Boehme had received entire executive power in Serbia and that "all command authorities and forces of the Army existing there or to be transferred there are subordinated to him." He stated further, "Instructions for the carrying out of operations for the necessary protective measures will be given by me only to General Boehme, who is responsible for their being carried out."

One of the first acts of Boehme in his new post, for which List had stated he was "especially suited", was the publishing of an order, which he directed that the recipients destroy after dissemination, and which read as follows:

In March of this year Serbia shamefully broke her friendship treaty with Germany, in order to strike the German units marching against Greece in the back.

German revenge stormed across the country.

We must turn to new, greater goals with all our forces at hand. For Serbia, this was the sign for a new uprising to which hundreds of German soldiers have already fallen in sacrifice. If we do not proceed here with all means and the greatest ruthlessness, our losses will climb to immeasurable heights.

Your mission lies in carrying out reconnaissance of the country in which German blood flowed in 1914 through the treachery of the Serbs, men and women.

You are the avengers of these dead. An intimidating example must be created for the whole of Serbia which must hit the whole population most savagely.

Everyone who wishes to live charitably sins against the lives of his comrades. He will be called to account without regard for his person and placed before a court martial.

So it was that List's Corps Commander, now Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, set the same keynote as had von Weichs for the program of subjugation through terror which was to pervade in the Balkans for the ensuing years of the war.

Now that the chain of command has been clearly established, let us return momentarily to List's request of 14 September directed to OKW. His communication starts with the words "Threatening development of the overall situation in Serbia demands energetic measures." Later on, he states "the present command regulations are based on peaceful conditions and are unbearable under the present turbulent combat conditions". This request having been received at OKW, another order was issued, in addition to the Hitler order appointing Boehme mentioned above. After reciting that it had been established that the opposition to the occupying power was the result of a centrally directed mass movement and that each incident of insurgence against the German Wehrmacht, regardless of individual circumstances, must be assumed to be of communist origin, the order directed:

In order to stop these intrigues at their inception, severest measures are to be applied immediately at their first appearance, in order to demonstrate the authority of the occupying power and in order to prevent further progress. One must keep in mind that a human life practically counts for naught in the affected countries and a deterring effect can only be achieved by unusual severity. In such a case, the death penalty for 50 to 100 communists must in general be deemed appropriate as retaliation for the life of a German soldier. The manner of execution must increase the deterrent effect. The reverse procedure, to proceed at first with relatively easy punishment and to be satisfied with the threat of measures of increased severity as a deterrent, does not correspond with these principles and is not to be applied.

This was the answer of the Army High Command to List's plea for help in "turbulent combat conditions". The order was passed on by list to his subordinate units.

Not satisfied with the initial directive with reference to the killing of innocent people in the Southeast, an additional OKW order, signed by Keitel, came down on 28 September, 1941.

In this order it was directed that Military Commanders have hostages available at all times in order that they might be executed when German soldiers were attacked. The complete ruthlessness of the second Keitel order may be seen from the following provisions:

Because of attacks on members of the Wehrmacht which have taken place lately in the occupied territories, it is pointed out that it is opportune for the Military Commanders to have always at their disposal a number of hostages of different political persuasions, i.e.,

- 1) Nationalists,
- 2) Democratic Middle Class,
- 3) Communists It is of importance that among these are leading personalities or members of their families.

Their names are to be published. In case of an attack, hostages of the group corresponding to that to which the culprit belongs are to be shot.

Nowhere in this order did Keitel attempt to enlighten his commanders as to the means to be employed in identifying the "culprit". It was a matter of little concern to him, and the evidence will show that it concerned his field commanders even less. The manner in which this order was complied with will be detailed at greater length in the evidence which is presented to the Tribunal.

The 100:1 ration having been proclaimed, Boehme, on 4 October 1941, ordered the execution of 2100 persons, to be taken from the concentration camps at Sabac and Belgrade. Those to be executed were primarily Jews and communists. These killings were reprisals for the deaths of 21 German soldiers. On 9 October, 1941, the chief of the Security Police in Belgrade reported that 2100 Jews and gypsies were being executed by the Wehrmacht in reprisal for 21 German soldiers shot to death. The Security Police in this operation were to make available to the Wehrmacht the required number of victims. The report continues that 805 Jews and gypsies were taken from the camp in Sabac and the balance, 1295, were taken from the Jewish transit camp in Belgrade.

On 9 October 1941, Boehme informed List of "an execution by shooting of about 2000 communists and Jews in reprisal for 22 murdered men of the 8th Battalion of the 521st Army Signal Communication Regiment".

A partial report of this action was made to List and Boehme by a Major who commanded the 2nd Battalion of the 521st Army Signal Regiment. The Major's report enclosed a report of the Lieutenant who commanded the company which carried out a portion of this action. The Lieutenant's report is dated 13 October, 1941. The report is sordid in its detail; the shooting of 2200 Jews in the camp at Belgrade had been ordered on 8 October, 1941. The action took place on 9 October in a forest seven miles from Kobin, and on 11 October near the Belgrade shooting range on the road to Nisch. No detail was overlooked, films and pictures were to be taken by an Army Propaganda Company. By issuing spades and other tools to the inmates who were to be executed, the atmosphere of a working party was simulated. Only three guards were placed on each truck to further allay the suspicions of the wretched victims. The prisoners were happy to be leaving the camp, if only for a day of work in the fields. The soldiers were able to execute only 180 on 9 October, and 269 on 11 October. The executions were accomplished by rifle fire at a distance of 12 meters. Five shots were ordered for the shooting of each prisoner. Articles of value were removed under supervision. They were later sent to the Nazi People's Welfare or the Security Police in Belgrade. The Lieutenant reported that the attitude of the prisoners at the shooting was calm and that following the killings the troops "returned to their quarters satisfied."

It was while List was Armed Forces Commander Southeast that concentration camps were introduced in that area. The Military Commander in Serbia, in a letter of 22 June, 1941, spoke of a "concentration camp which I had been ordered to erect." He spoke of the future inmates as "communists and other criminal types".

List himself recommended concentration camps in an order of 5 September, 1941. He stated that the relatives of those people resisting the Army should be transported to concentration camps.

Often has it been urged that the German Army had no knowledge of concentration camps, or at best that they had nothing to do with them.

It has been the repeated refrain of the German military men that such matters were beyond the scope and beneath the concern of a soldier, and that such affairs handled by Himmler and his subordinates. In the Southeast, the Army not only had knowledge of the camps; they were in charge of some of them. An order of 11 September, 1941 will show that the Concentration Camp Serbia, in Belgrade, was made subordinate to the Military Commander of Serbia on that date.

Again, in an order of 18 September, 1941, issued by Bader of the LXV Corps, it was stated, in connection with mopping-up operations, that "the entire male population above 14 years of age is to be arrested, to be sent to a concentration camp which the Division will install, and to be detained there."

Boehme, in an order of 33 September, 1941 to the 342nd Division, directed that unit to "...evacuate Sabac by surprise attack of the entire male population, ages 14-70, and take it to a concentration camp..."

Boehme further concerned himself with the transfer of the Jarak concentration camp from the 342nd Division to the 64th Police Reserve Battalion in an order of 27 September, 1941, which specified in addition that inmates would receive half rations -- only 200 grams of bread daily and 200 grams of meat weekly.

Early in October, Boehme ordered that a concentration camp be located in the Zasaviza area, capable of holding 30,000 inmates. This camp was to be "guarded by restricted forces and closed from the outer world". In the same order, he directed that inmates from another concentration camp be brought to work on this new construction project.

The evidence will show how the Army used the concentration camps as collection points for innocent people who were to be channeled into German industry or to be used for such other purposes as might be directed.

Two final references to List concern his later acts prior to his post being handed over to the defendant Kuntze. On 4 October, 1941, he issued an order in which it was directed that men in insurgent territory who were not encountered in battle were to be examined and "if they are only suspected of having taken part in combat, of having offered bandits support of any sort, or of having acted against the Wehrmacht in any way, to be held in special collecting camp.

They are to serve as hostages in the event that bandits appear, or anything against the Wehrmacht is undertaken in the territory mopped up, or in their home localities and in such cases they are to be shot." This was in keeping with the spirit of an earlier order which he had issued on 5 September, 1941, which provided in part for immediate ruthless measures against the insurgents, their assistants, and their relatives (hangings, burning down of localities participating, increased arresting of hostages, deportation of family members into concentration camps). We are now turning to the period from October 1941 until August 1942 where we are primarily concerned with the defendants Kuntze, Foertsch, the deceased Boehme and the believed to be deceased Bader.

The defendant Kuntze succeeded to the command of the 12th Army late in October, 1941. The measures which had been started under his predecessor, List, were continued with increased severity. Kuntze received periodic reports of the activities of the troops under his command. These reports recited the seizing and killing of "hostages" and the wanton destruction of villages.

On 2 November, 1941, a situation report was signed, on behalf of Kuntze, by the defendant Foertsch. This report gives as one of the reasons for the unrest in the southeast, refers to:

The fact that refugees expelled from the separated territories (from Croatia - 110,000; from Hungary - 37,000; from Bulgaria 20,000) who were transported across the frontier without means and without sufficient care.

The report then set forth the methods to be followed by Kuntze's subordinates in combating opposition. It was stated that he had charged Boehme with the suppression of Serbia and Croatia. He ordered that "all prisoners taken during combat or mopping-up operations will be hanged or shot to death" and that "for the time being, arrests are being made only for purposes of interrogation or to supplement reconnaissance."

In addition, he directed that all male civilians be temporarily collected in camps.

Late in November, or early in December, 1941, Kuntze went to Belgrade. Some notes were made on this trip. One of the items which concerned Kuntze was the question of resettlement. This memorandum provided:

The question of the resettlement of women and children of the insurgents, as well as other unreliable elements, is still being examined. The retention of these people in Serbia, south of the Danube, does not appear to be practical. There are still difficulties with respect to shelter, rations, and guard which oppose the transfer into the Banat.

All Jews and gypsies are to be transferred into a concentration camp at Semlin (at present there are about 16,000 people there). They were proven to be the bearers of the communication service of the insurgents.

On 20 December, 1941, Kuntze's subordinate, the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, Bader, who had succeeded Boehme earlier in the month, issued an order to his troops. After reciting that there had been proper compliance with the prior orders concerning reprisals, he stated:

The reprisal measures will be continued further. In order to exclude any existing doubts concerning them, I am referring to the fact that these groups of prisoners are to be differentiated: Reprisal prisoners are persons who, for reason of their attitude, are destined for reprisals for German human lives, for example, communists not encountered with weapons, gypsies, Jews, criminals, and the like.

Hostages are persons who play a role in public life and on the basis of their personalities exercise a certain influence on the population in their realm of activity. They comprise the most varied strata of the population. They guarantee with their lives the public peace, order and security in their part of the country.

Prisoners of the unit are persons who are taken in the course of an operation, as suspicious. They require a further examination by the administrative sub-area headquarters authorities. They will either be released or transferred to the reprisal prisons.

It is clear that there was to be no change, save for the worse, under Kuntze as Armed Forces Commander Southeast, in the matter of "hostage" takings and retaliatory killings.

The policy as set forth was implemented by further orders of the German division commanders. Hoffman, the Commanding General of the 342nd Division, on 6 January, 1942, issued an order to his troops which provided "Communists, in any event, will be shot immediately after a short interrogation; only in special cases will they be brought back to the Division."

A particularly harsh policy was established by Kuntze made effective on 6 February, 1942. He called for detailed reports on counter measures taken by subordinate units. He further directed that persons who loitered around the battle field should be considered as having taken part in the battle and therefore should be shot.

With the advent of spring, Kuntze anticipated increased activity from the people of the occupied area. With this in mind, he issued an order on 19 March 1942. He emphasized the degree of importance which he attached to the regimental commanders and stated that Himmler's security units and the Serbian police should cooperate closely with the German troops.

He directed that "captured insurgents are to be hanged or shot as a matter of principle. If they are used for information purposes, this only postpones their execution. In an appendix to the same order, he advised "It is better to liquidate 50 suspects than lose one German soldier." He dictated that in areas which had been mined, the Serbian population, among others, should be used to clear the terrain. And appeared there again the 100:1 ratio in the event death came to any German.

Later in March, on the 23rd, Kuntze sent a teletype to Bader, in which he agreed that insurrectionists not captured in battle should be deported for work in Norway. He failed to explain how the identity of those to be deported could be established.

Kuntze had more to say about forced labor on another occasion. Bader, in an order of 25 March, 1942, mentioned an earlier order of Kuntze, dated 18 March, which directed:

Persons who are arrested because of being suspected of supporting or collaborating with the insurgents are to be handed over to concentration camps; where they are to be interrogated (by the SS) who will make further disposition, for example, handing over as forced laborers in the German interest sphere.

From this same order, it is evident that three concentration camps were presently available in this area at Sabac, Belgrade-Delinjo, and Nisch, with a fourth to be opened shortly at Semlin.

Kuntze advised OKW from time to time of the success of the measures he was directing in the Southeast. On 7 April 1942 he informed them that since 1 September 1941, 11,522 of the enemy had been shot in battle and 21,809 persons had been killed in retaliation measures. On 23 June 1942 Kuntze advised OKW that a total of 37,477 had been shot in battle or in way of reprisals, as of that date, in Serbia and Croatia.

He mentioned that the mayor of Crete had been slain and, in retaliation persons sharing in the guilt and a number of hostages were shot.

Kuntze left his post as Armed Forces Commander Southeast on 8 August 1942, but before leaving he knew that there had been more than 45,000 people killed by the Germans in Serbia and Croatia during the period September, 1941, through July, 1942. He knew that people were being deported to labor in the German war economy, both in the Reich and in Norway. He knew that he had done his work well and faithfully in the service of Hitler.

Mr. Fenstermacher will take up the opening statement at this time, Your Honors.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: May it please the Tribunal, we take up now the occupational period, August 1942 until August 1943.

By the 8th of August, 1942, when Generaloberst Alexander Loehr replaced Kuntze as Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army and Armed Forces Commander Southeast, the German reprisal machinery was completely set up and functioning. It remained only to keep the existing machinery running and, if possible, to increase the efficiency with which the retaliation measures were carried out.

The defendant Foertsch, who had served as Chief of Staff under both List and Kuntze, remained in the same capacity throughout the twelve months period of Loehr's supreme command in the southeast. General Bader, the Commanding General in Serbia under Kuntze, also stayed on. A few weeks before Loehr arrived in the southeast, the defendant Geitner arrived in Serbia as Chief of Staff to Bader.

To pacify the civilian inhabitants, Bader and Geitner divided Serbia into various field headquarters areas which corresponded in the main to the larger cities and important strategical points throughout the country. The field headquarters areas were in turn sub-divided into smaller territorial units known as district commands. This was the organizational machinery which General Bader utilized for the security of Serbia.

When a telephone line was cut or railroad tracks torn up or a mine blown shut or shipping on the Danube mined -- whether by partisan units in the course of legitimately planned actions, or by unknown persons -- the reprisal machinery swung into action. The district command notified field headquarters of the incident and field headquarters in turn notified Geitner, Bader's Chief of Staff in Belgrade, suggesting that certain stated reprisal measures be taken in retaliation. Geitner and Bader would either approve the proposals of field headquarters or issue new orders to cover the case. In either event, the district command was notified, orders were issued and carried out, and reports were sent back up through the established channels. The reprisal orders were almost invariably the same. To insure the consistent execution of the German program and to prevent delay, as well as to avoid the confusion that might ensue from the exercise of individual decision by the German mind, a retaliation code was established for the guidance of all concerned. An arithmetical table was so easy to follow -- even the slowest and dullest Battalion or Company Commander could comprehend its ready meaning. What did it matter that the ratio of Serbs to Germans seemed high or that innocent people would necessarily suffer for the deeds of persons whom the Germans were unable, or did not even try, to apprehend? Weren't the Germans a superior race, and wasn't it better that 99 innocent men -- either hostages or so-called reprisal prisoners -- should die than that one guilty person go free?

With the precedents that Weichs, List, Boehme, Kuntze and Foertsch had established before them, Bader and Geitner on 28 February, 1943, devised a more detailed table of retaliation quotas to take care of an increased number of factual possibilities which new conditions had brought to the fore:

For one German, or one Bulgarian Occupational Corps member, killed -- 50 hostages are to be executed.

For one German, or one Bulgarian Occupational Corps member, wounded -- 25 hostages are to be executed.

For the killing of a person in the service of the occupying power, regardless of his nationality, or a member of the Serbian Government, High Serbian Official (district supervisor or mayor), official of the Serbian State Guard, or member of the Serbian Volunteer Corps -- 10 hostages are to be executed.

For the wounding of any person in the previous categories -- 5 hostages are to be executed.

For an attack against important war installations, up to 100 hostages are to be shot to death, according to the seriousness of the case.

That these retaliation quotas were no idle German boast or mere paper threat is made quite clear by the literally dozens and dozens of both orders and reports that poured in to, and went out from, Geitner's own hands:

15 December 1942 -- "5 D.M. followers shot in retaliation for the German sergeant shot to death near Zlotovo."

25 January 1943 -- "Since the Organization Todt driver Braun had not returned as of 1 January 1943, a total of 50 followers of Draja Mihailovic and communists were shot to death," 10 February 1943, near Gr. Milanovac -- "25 Communists arrested, 10 shot to death in reprisal for murder of mayor."

On 14 May 1943 the War Diary of the 104th Jaeger Division contained this entry:

"The Division applies to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia for the shooting to death of 125 communist hostages and the evacuation of the villages of Kamendo and Dubona in reprisal for the attack on the railroad patrol Drazanj."

7 August 1943--"As retaliation for the surprise attacks in the Runjkovao-Leskovac District, on 16 and 28 July 1943, in which two members of the German customs border guard were killed and two were wounded, 150 communist reprisal prisoners were shot."

15 August 1943--"15 Communist reprisal prisoners shot in retaliation for murder of a mayor and the burning of threshing machines."

16 August 1943--"In retaliation for the killing of the leader of a mixed harvesting crew on 7 August 1943, 50 communist reprisal prisoners were shot".

On occasion they even returned to the earlier and higher quota of 100:1 for each German soldier killed. A proclamation by Bader of 19 February 1943 stated:

In the forenoon of 15 February 1943 a passenger car of the German Wehrmacht was attacked by partisans on the road Petrovan-Pozarevac near Toponica. The four passengers, two officers, one non-commissioned officer and one enlisted man were murdered and robbed. The vehicle was set on fire.

As a reprisal measure 400 communists have been shot to death today in Belgrade. The village of Toponica was partly burned down. Several hundred persons arrested, who were seized in the district area Pozarevac will not return to their villages but will be given worthwhile employment elsewhere.

The perpetrators of the attacks for which reprisal measures were instituted were frequently unknown to the Germans. Sometimes, however, the attacker was caught in the act or his identify became known. But even knowledge or apprehension of the guilty offender did not rule out or prevent the application of the retaliation table--the hostages had to shot anyway in order to set an example. The following entry for 24 December, 1942, in the War Diary of the 704th Infantry Division , a unit subordinate to Bader, makes this last fact very clear:

Lieutenant Koenig, Executive Officer, II Battalion, 724th Grenadier Regiment and 2nd Lieutenant, Dr. Engelhardt, Battalion physician of the II Battalion, 724th Grenadier Regiment, were fired on in Mladenovac at 1413 hours by a 20 year old woman who was assumed to be a communist.

They were severely wounded (shot through lung and stomach) and immediately transferred to the military hospital in Belgrade. A former Chetnik leader was also shot to death by the woman while trying to arrest her. Later she shot herself. The 724th Grenadier Regiment ordered the encirclement and search of Mladenovac. 72 men and 52 women were arrested. A part of the population fled immediately after the attack on the officers. Local police and Serbian State guards participated in the military measures without causing trouble. 3 pistols were found.

The Division applies for authorization to shoot in reprisal 50 hostages and/or all people detained as retaliation prisoners.

The reply of Bader and Geitner to the division's incredible application is apparent from the entry in the division's War Diary on the following day:

49 men and one woman shot to death in Mladenovac for the attack on two officers of the II Battalion, 724th Grenadier Regiment. 2nd Lieutenant Dr. Engelhardt died in the military hospital in Belgrade. The Division applies for authorization to shoot an additional 25 hostages and/or all people detained as retaliation prisoners from the district of Mladenovac. The execution will be carried out by the SD in Belgrade.

At least 75 innocent persons, perhaps more if the division's request to shoot all retaliation prisoners held in the Mladenovac district was honored, were killed in spite of the fact that the guilty party was known. This was German justice in Serbia on Christmas Day, 1942. Can any doubt remain that German policy in the Southeast, as in Poland and the East, was designed and calculated to decimate the native populations for generations and generations?

But if the saboteur or attacker was really unknown--that is, if even the easily convinced Germans were too baffled to hazard a guess as to the "culprit's" political affiliation--then an equal number of both Draja Mihailevic followers (D.M.'s as they were called) and Partisans would be shot. The German reports are full of examples of such arbitrary and indiscriminate executions. On 27 June 1943, Bader ordered:

15 communist and 15 D.M. hostages are to be shot to death in reprisal for the attack and destruction of mines near Aleksinac on 8 June 1943.

Another order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, this time of 13 August 1943, stated:

In retaliation for the murder of two and the wounding of two German soldiers by insurgents on the highway at Pozarevac, 9 August 1943, 150 reprisal prisoners are to be shot.

Since the political origin of the perpetrators cannot be definitely established, 75 D.M. and 75 communist reprisal prisoners are to be executed.

To cope with the gigantic problem of hostage supply posed by this wholesale reprisal program, the district commands turned for assistance to their well-trained and widely-experienced co-workers in mass crime, the SD. With the help of native collaborators the SD had prepared lists of "suspects"-- relatives of men who were absent from a village or immigrants without valid reason from another village, "persons of a hostile attitude", and the like -- the definition was uncertain and ambiguous and no one quite knew how his name got on or remained off the lists. One thing, however, was sure -- there was no investigation and no trial and no appeal from the German judgment of inclusion. From time to time, as the available supply of hostages dwindled in the face of an astounding number of mass executions, troops of the districts commands and SD detachments would stage "special actions" to round up additional victims. Large hostage camps were constructed at various strategic places -- their locations were changed from time to time to make for more efficient administration and quicker executions -- and when the orders came, the hostages would be shot, Either at the hostage camp itself or on the site of the attack. In general, retaliation victims were supposed to be residents of the village in or near which the attack allegedly occurred. But if a sufficient supply of hostages or retaliation prisoners was not on hand in a particular district camp, then the balance of persons necessary to satisfy the hostage quotas would be shot from the central camp in Belgrade. With a macabre fascination for mathematics and a consuming passion for everything smacking of rote, the Germans enforced the code firmly, precisely, exactly -- no matter where the hostages were from.

Two examples will suffice. On 28 May 1943, Bader issued the following order to Field Area Headquarters 610:

A total of 100 D.M. hostages is to be shot to death in retaliation for the murder of three members of the Russian Protective Corps near Konarevo, wounding a member of the Russian Protective Corps near Ivanjica on 11 May and for the murder of two members of the Serbian Volunteer Corps near Vezania.

Since D.M. Hostages are not available at the present time in the camp of Field Area Headquarters 610, they are to be made available from other camps by the Commander of the Security Police.

On the same day, 28 May 1943, Bader signed and Geitner distributed a similar order to Field Area Headquarters 809:

150 communist hostages are to be shot to death in retaliation for the murder of three members of the German customs border guard near Vucje on 15 May 1943.

Since there are no communist hostages available at present in the camp of Field Area Headquarters Nisch, they are to be made available from other camps by the Commander of the Security Police.

Nor was there ever any jurisdictional conflict between the district commands and the SD over the sheer physical task of executing these thousands of retaliation victims. Generally losses of the military were avenged by the military themselves. Police units usually furnished the execution squads in reprisal actions for their own losses, as well as for attacks on other soldiers and installations under German protection. Both groups were ready and willing to participate in the mass massacres. If a particular hostage camp was administered by the SD rather than by a temporarily under--manned district command, then its personnel would supply the trigger men. There was no set rule; both organizations cooperated to do the job at hand. Tho orders for the actual executions, however, invariably came down through the military Bader-Geitner chain of command. The SD did not exorcise a concurrent jurisdiction. In those matters it was subordinate to, and took orders, from the Wehrmacht commander in whose fields area headquarters or district area it was stationed and operating. An entry in the War Diary of the 104th Jaeger Division for 4 April 1943 states;

By order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, in reprisal for the murder of the Organization Todt man shot to death by communists 8 km.

south of Pozarevac, 78 hostages were shot to death in Pozarevac by the SD.

While Geitner was having conferences with SD leaders and the subordinate troop commanders on such diverse subjects as conditions at the Semlin concentration camp where "up to 100 persons were dying daily", on "the execution of invalids, sick or pregnant women, or people over 60, male or female", if they took part in combat, "with or without weapons", against the Germans, on the deportation of the male population of whole areas for labor in Germany, and kindred subjects, Foertsch at Supreme Headquarters also kept occupied with current business. To him and to Loehr came the daily, weekly and monthly reports from their vast Southeastern empire -- from Bader and Geitner in Serbia, from General Lueters, the German Commander in Croatia, from General Brauer on the island of Crete, and from various other commanders on the Peloponnese peninsula.

Croatia by this time was in an uproar. Tito's Partisans were growing stronger by the minute. By the end of 1942 they could boast of having called a Congress, of a government of their own which exercised control in an area 250 km by 100 km., of a regular civil and military administration within that area, and of an armed force numbering almost 100,000 men skillfully organized into brigades, battalions and companies. Lueters was completely unable to cope with the problem. He gave the usual orders for the execution of hostages, the burning of villages, and the arrest of "suspects" and relatives of "bandits", but to no avail. As the practical-minded Lueters himself pointed out, the existing techniques and methods were wrong since "in any case, cleaning-up or retaliatory action against the civilian population the innocent are seized, the guilty having earlier taken to the woods". Nor should captured partisans be shot as a matter of course, pleaded Lueters. Perhaps if they were given fair treatment many of them would desert --at least that now approach ought to be tried."

But Lueters' complaints fell on deaf ears at headquarters. Orders continued to come through Foertsch from Loehr that they would assume responsibility for what their subordinate commanders did, that no one would be held responsible for having employed harsh methods, that "individual soldiers should not be prosecuted for being too severe with the native inhabitants", and that commanders who failed to take retaliatory measures for reasons of negligence or softness would be held responsible. In spite of the fact that the German intelligence service reported the presence of partisan troop units, with the names of their leaders, the various insignia of rank worn, the size of their battalions and companies, their weapons, and other details, captured partisans continued to be executed after a brief interrogation. The reports are full of references to "temporary prisoners", as the partisans captured-but-not-yet-executed were called:

3 August 1942-- "In mopping-up, 39 temporarily arrested persons shot."

5 August 1942-- "In west Bosnia another temporarily arrested. 8 persons shot."

17 August 1942-- "In Syrmia, 90 persons shot in reprisal, 65 temporarily arrested."

29 August 1942-- "In Samarica, 262 persons temporarily arrested, of this number 20 shot immediately.

There was no trial, hearing or court martial for these men who fought as honorable and patriotic soldiers for their nation. The orders distributed to the lowest of units were unmistakably clear. Lueter's directive to his troops of 7 January 1943 is representative: "Execute and hang partisans, suspects and civilians found with weapons. No formal proceedings are necessary". No wonder that Foertsch could report to OKH in Berlin that up to 24 August 1942, 49,724 and up to 8 September 52,362 "insurrectionists" had been shot in battle or by way of reprisals.

Just as it was in Serbia, the German directives in Croatia were by now the old familiar ones -- comb whole areas, seize the entire male population capable of bearing arms for deportation to Germany for labor, choose "unreliables" as hostages to be executed in case of attacks on convoys or communication lines, enter into negotiations with the enemy for the exchange of wounded, the better treatment of prisoners, or recognition of their belligerent status.

Instead treat captured partisans as criminals to be hanged after all possible information had been drained from them, with or without torture. In Croatia, just as in Serbia, the revolt continued to gain momentum. By the middle of 1943, with the Allies advancing in the Mediterranean Theater, the German Commanders realized that what was going on in the Balkans was really a war.

During the period of General Loehr's supreme command, on 1 January 1943, the 12th Army went out of existence, or more accurately from a practical standpoint, it changed its name. Loehr's headquarters was redesignated Army Group "E", and until August, 1943 it remained the supreme headquarters for the southeast theater. The change, however, was of little practical significance; Loehr continued to command and Foertsch continued as his Chief of Staff. In Serbia, Bader and Geitner were still subordinated to Loehr.

The structure of Army Group "E" is shown on Chart "C" of the prosecution's pamphlet. To almost every rule there is an exception, and the Court will note that here we have an army group to which no army was subordinated; instead, this army group commanded a heterogeneous collection of corps, Military Commanders, "fortress" commanders, and others.

The tide of war was soon to bring about still another departure from orthodox German military structure. The German terror had not brought peace and order in southeastern Europe; Serbia was as restless as ever, and the partisan forces in Croatia and Greece were growing stronger all the time. On the 10th of July, 1943 the Allies landed in Sicily, and it became apparent that soon they would be on the Italian mainland, and in a much better position to bring material assistance to the national armies of liberation in Greece and Yugoslavia. Faced with these new and unfavorable developments, in August 1943 the Germans reorganized the entire command structure in southeastern Europe. New faces appeared and a familiar face reappeared. We will now turn to the story of this last and most important occupational period.

THE OCCUPATION: VON WEICHS AND RENDULIC (After August, 1943) The year 1943 was known to the American public as the "end of the beginning". To the German Army, reeling under the heavy blows of Allied military might, it was indeed the "beginning of the end". The invasion of North Africa and Montgomery's advance from Egypt in November, 1942 were followed by the crushing surrender of von Paulus' crack Sixth Army before Stalingrad.

Rommel's retreat and defeat in Libya and Tunisia was followed by the invasion and rapid conquest of Sicily. Finally it was Italy's turn. With the invasion of the Italian mainland, the long-despised and very tired Italian accomplice collapsed in thankful relief.

A. Reorganization of the Southeast Command.

Reorganization of the command structure was the first step taken towards meeting the new challenge in southeastern Europe. From the Russian front where, as commander of an army group he had won promotion to the rank of Fieldmarshal, Hitler called Maximilian von Weichs.

A new army group headquarters – Army Group "F" -- was established in Belgrade, as the vehicle for von Weichs' supreme command over southeastern Europe. The defendant Foertsch, the veteran of service as Chief of Staff under List, Kuntze and Loehr, now came to Serbia as Chief of Staff to von Weichs.

The new command structure which von Weichs headed is shown in the chart on the wall. Loehr remained in Greece, and his headquarters continued to be called Army Group "E", thus creating the double anomaly of an army group with no "army" beneath it, and which was itself subordinated to another army group. From this time on, Loehr's headquarters concerned itself exclusively with Greece and the Aegean Islands, and Loehr reported to von Weichs. The two corps commanders under Loehr were the defendant Felmy, who had returned to Greece in July, and the defendant Lanz, who had been a divisional commander during the original invasion of southern Yugoslavia, and who arrived in Greece in August.

Although von Weichs maintained his headquarters in Belgrade, so far as military operations against the partisans were concerned, the center of gravity was shifting toward Croatia. To cope with Tito's partisans and to protect the long Dalmatian coastline, exposed as it was to an Allied invasion or raids from nearby Italy, the headquarters of the Second Panzer Army, which had been engaged on the Russian front, was moved to Croatia. To command this army, and to carry out the difficult mission of re-establishing order in Croatia and safeguarding it against enemy attacks, the German High Command selected the defendant Lothar Rendulic. An Austrian, whose mother was Croatian, Rendulic had learned much about the Balkans by the sheer process of growing up under the Hapsburgs and living in the center of their sprawling empire. He had joined the Austrian Nazi Party in the early thirties at a time when it had been declared illegal, and was regarded on all sides as a "Nazi General."

In 1938, he was the Austrian Military Attache at Paris, in which his rise was phenomenally rapid. At the outbreak of the war in 1939, he held the rank of Colonel. He participated in the Polish campaign as chief of staff of an infantry corps, and thereafter was given command of a division during the campaign against the Low Countries and France. He commanded another infantry division in Russia, and in 1942 he was given command of a corps; in the same year, he reached the rank of General der Infanterie (equivalent to a Lieutenant General in the American Army). His outstanding combat record, which had won him the highest German decorations, brought him to Hitler's attention and undoubtedly led to his appointment as Commander of the Second Panzer Army. In the spring of 1944 he was promoted to Generaloberst. Two more of the defendants, Leyser and Dehner, now appear for the first time in this case as corps commanders under Rendulic.

In Serbia another new face was introduced. General Hans Felber had led troops in battle and seen occupation duty in France. Weichs and Rendulic thought Bader too old and routine--minded for the requirements of the new situation; he was relieved as Military Commander of Serbia and replaced by Felber. The defendant Geitner, however, carried on as Felber's Chief of Staff.

Felber's jurisdiction, however, was broader than that which had been exercised by Bader. Just as von Weichs, as commander of all the armed forces in the southeast was the superior of Loehr in Greece and Rendulic in Croatia, so Felber, with the title of Military Commander Southeast, was now made the superior of the German Military Commanders in Greece and Montenegro and of the "Plenipotentiary Generals" in Croatia and Albania. The Military Commanders in Greece, beginning in August 1943, was the defendant Speidel. Accordingly, in this final phase of the case, all of the defendants except two (List and Kuntze) are involved.

Von Weichs, of course, had supreme authority over the entire organization - over Rendulic and Loehr as tactical commanders, and over Felber and his subordinate "Military Commanders". Geographically speaking his responsibilities were far greater than those which had been borne by List, Kuntze, and Loehr before him. He had barely arrived in the Balkans when the Italian capitulation occurred, and he was immediately confronted with the task of disarming and rendering harmless the Italian forces in Croatia, Montenegro, Albania and Greece. At the same time, he had to take over occupational responsibility for the areas which the Italians had theretofore controlled.

B. The Italian Surrender.

The new leadership was on the defensive from the start. Sicily had been invaded by the combined British and American forces in July. A fortnight later Mussolini was deposed and the King appointed Marshal Badoglio to conduct the war as new head of the Italian Government. But in six more weeks, on September 8, 1943, the Italian armed forces surrendered unconditionally. Under the terms of the armistice all of the Italian armed forces were to cease hostilities of any kind against the forces of the United Nations and to withdraw to Italy immediately from all areas in which they were currently engaged.

The German High Command was not caught unawares by this development. Italy's defection had been anticipated, and when it actually occurred, the Germans proceeded with synchronized swiftness to attack and disarm their one-time colleague. The orders from Berlin were clear and precise. Italian soldiers who wished to continue fighting on the German side were to retain their arms, to be accorded treatment "completely consistent with their honor", and to receive rations "based on those of the Germans". Indeed, they even were to receive 50% of the German pay corresponding to their ranks.

German gratitude and generosity to the "faithful" was boundless. Those Italians who did not wish to continue fighting for the Germans were to be disarmed and made prisoners-of-war. They, however, would not have to endure the long, boring days of waiting in the barbed-wire enclosures that is the legal fate of prisoners-of-war. Instead they were to be turned over to the Plenipotentiary for Labor Employment and the Reichsminister for War Production and Armament, so that their strength and skill might be fully utilized in the German war production.

For those Italian soldiers who dared to obey the orders of their own Supreme Commander and resisted German forces either actively or passively, a mere select fate was in store – the officers of all Italian troop units who let their arms fall into the hands of insurgents or in any way made common cause with insurgents were to be shot to death after summary court martial; the non-commissioned officers and men of such units were to be taken away for labor employment.

The Fuehrer's order was put into savage execution. In a matter of hours von Weichs had ordered its distribution to all tactical commanders in the theater. In some cases the order was passed on in expanded form. Rendulic, for example, gave more detailed instructions to his troops: Should an incorrigible Italian division destroy its arms and supplies, besides the individual "culprits", one officer of the Divisional Staff and 50 men of the division should be shot to death; any individual Italian soldier selling or giving away his arms to civilians or destroying them without explicit orders would be shot to death; any Italian soldier arriving at his embarkation station without his weapon was to be shot to death together with his responsible unit leader; for every motorized vehicle made useless, one officer and 10 men would be executed.

In a matter of days, fiftyone hesitant Italian divisions had been totally disarmed by but seventeen German divisions. However, at least two whole Italian divisions resisted, while thousands of individual Italian soldiers, noting the treatment meted out by the Germans to resisters and surrendered alike, took to the hills to join the partisans.

The reports poured in – from the division to the corps, the corps to the army, the army to the army group, and the army group to OKW in Berlin:

On 27 Sept. 1943, from Split on the Dalmatian coast: "city and port occupied, 3 generals, 300 officers, 9,000 men of the Italian "Bergamo " Division taken prisoners; officers to be shot to death according to the Fuehrer order."

30 Sept. and 1 Oct. 1943: "3 generals shot in Split after summary court martial; 45 more guilty Italian officers shot in Split."

From the 7th SS Division on the 29th Sept. 1943: "The Italian General Fulgowi has been convicted for delivering arms to the partisans and sentenced to death."

From the XXIst Mtn. Corps on the 9th Oct. 1943: "Operations against the Italian 'Taurinense' Division concluded in the main, reprisal measures carried out against 18 officers."

From the XXIIInd Mtn. Corps on the 23rd Sept. 1943: "Gen. Gandini and all his staff captured, special treatment according to Fuehrer order. The following day "Gen. Gandini and all officers have been shot."

From the 100th Inf. Div. on the 1st Nov. 1943: "Reprisal measures are being taken against the 2 Italian colonels (the Ia and IIa of the 9th Italian Army) captured near '505'".

On 13 Oct. 1943, from Von Weichs the Supreme Commander Southeast: "Execution of general Roncaglis, Commander of the Italian XVth Army Corps, ordered in case of further opposition".

This calculated slaughter of captured or surrendered Italian Officers is one of the most lawless and dishonorable actions in the long history of armed combat. For these men were fully uniformed. They bore their arms openly and followed the rules and customs of war.

They were led by responsible leaders who in repelling attack were obeying the orders of Marshal Badoglio, their Military Commander in Chief and the duly authorized political head of their nation. They were regular soldiers entitled to respect, humane consideration, and chivalrous treatment.

C. Croatia With the disarming and liquidation of the Italians complete, the Southeast Command returned to the continued prosecution of its principal mission of pacification.

In Croatia the task of defeating the guerrillas was alone a big order. To do that and quiet the civilian population in addition was far more difficult.

To begin with, the puppet Croatian Government of Ante Pavelic was of no help whatever. Its inefficient and poorly organized national militia, led by Kvaternik, was unable to maintain order within the country, let alone protect the vital German supply lines running from the Reich through Croatia to Serbia and Greece. Even for the German troops of the Second Panzer Army, it was a full-time job to keep the supply and communication routes open. In an earlier period, the enemy had waged guerrilla warfare; it was the only way he could fight, and the way which suited him, his resources, and the topography of the country best. He staged surprise raids on lonely German outposts or under-manned garrisons, he mined bridges, derailed trains, cut telegraph wires, fired supply depots, and exploded ammunition dumps. That sufficed in an earlier time. Now after two years in the hills he was experienced and well trained; the Allies were on the offensive and had supplied him with weapons, ammunition, food and clothing; he was expertly led and efficiently organized. Now he was a real enemy, a belligerent of major proportions, and a foe to be reckoned with in terms of large scale operations and overall strategy.

To meet the challenge of the big and the new, the Germans had only the small and the old. From the day in 1941 when the campaigns against Greece and Yugoslavia had been declared ended and the front line troops redeployed to the East, the Southeastern commanders had begged for replacements and reinforcements. The Southeast theater was continuously under strength throughout the war. Yet always the same answer came -additional troops cannot be spared from the decisive Russian front. But not only were the troops in the Southeast too few; they were also of inferior quality.

They included many reserve troops who were over-age and jaded. Insufficient and inferior troops had been the German problem from the beginning. In 1941 and 1942 they had met it the only way the heavy-handed Germans knew how to meet any resistance -- by terror. In 1943 and 1944, as unimaginative and blindly cruel as ever, they would meet it in the same way.

The practice of seizing scores of hostages in each village in which German troops were stationed or in the vicinity of which German troops were operating was continued. In 1941 the Germans had taken democrats, nationalists, and Jews as their hostage victims. Now that most of those had been liquidated they were choosing "communists", "bandit suspects", "bandit helpers", or relatives of "bandits" as security pawns against attacks. How did one distinguish a "communist" from the rest of the population? Only the SD, the Croatian police, or the village quislings could answer that. If men thereby were victimized by spiteful and gossiping neighbors, it was just unfortunate.

The pattern of terror and intimidation was simple. After the Germans had entered a village, all of the inhabitants -- old men, women and young children alike -- were summoned to the central square or market place. From a sound truck a German officer would announce to the assemblage that there were partisan bands operating in the vicinity. The Germans wanted information concerning the size, location and leadership of those bands, the number of men missing from the village, and the names of strangers presently living in the village. Unless the inhabitants came forward voluntarily with the desired information, other and more drastic steps would be taken to procure it. When there were no volunteers, priests, school teachers, small shopkeepers or farmers -sometimes just every third, fifth or tenth man -- were called out of ranks and loaded in lorries for shipment to the division's hostage camp at some distant central collecting point. Whether to save one's husband, father or son by revealing that a neighbor's brother had joined the bands or was absent from the village was a difficult choice for those who remained.

Sometimes men or women weakened. More often they just stood there -- some passive, others weeping, all hating.

The basic pattern of burning homes and villages was also continued. Partisan bands moved from village to village, changing their bases of supply and operations as the Germans advanced or retreated. As the Germans advanced on a village there might be an exchange of fire, perhaps a few shots by retreating guerrillas. That the villagers had not asked the partisans to come, had given them food and supplies only under protest, or were powerless to resist their intrusion was of no moment to the Germans. The inhabitants would be evaluated, on foot to the rear. Some of the aged would die en route; of the others some would be executed as "bandit suspects" or "bandit helpers" after screening by the SD; the remainder would be sent to the Reich for labor; the village would be reduced to rubble and ashes.

These severe retaliation measures served only to defeat the Germans' own purpose. Glasie-Herstenau in Croatia knew it, the defendants know or should have known it. After a few months in the Balkans anyone with the slightest objectivity would have known it. Those measures were military suicide, not military necessity. In spite of the hangings and burnings -- indeed because of them -- the resistance continued. With his home and village destroyed, his means of livelihood cut off, his family and friends executed, in concentration or hostage camps, or slaving in Germany, there was little else for a man to do but take to the woods. Completely without roots, immunized, against fear and nursing a bitter hate, he was excellent material for the partisan forces.

By mid-1943, after the influx of thousands of lonely, angry, and displaced men, the guerrillas numbered in the tens of thousands. His attention drawn to the tremendous labor needs of the Reich, Hitler, on 27 July 1943, issued a new order finally recognizing the magnitude, importance and regular military nature of the warfare in the Southeast. In order that more human material might be imported into the Reich to insure the necessary supply of coal, all "bandits" captured in combat were no longer to be executed.

Henceforth they were to be deported to Germany by way of prisoner collecting points. Prisoners were to be executed no longer -- not because it was thought illegal or inhuman to execute prisoners, but simply because their labor was now necessary for the Nazi war machine.

In order to clear up any doubts concerning this unusually humane Hitler order, the OKW issued a clarifying order, dated August 18, 1943. Paragraph 3 of the succeeding order empowered any commander having the rank of at least a Divisional Commander, "in cases of particularly malicious procedure on the part of the bandits or their accomplices", to issue precautionary directives not to take any prisoners, or to shoot prisoners and the population captured in the combat areas. In his order of 15 Sept. 1943, passing on this clarifying order, Rendulic said -- and for this he deserves the dubious honor of having "improved" on a Fuehrer order:

- 1) All operations against collective bands or against individual bandits are to be executed with ruthless severity. The unit employed in band combat is not to be satisfied merely to chase away the bands, but it must attempt again and again to exterminate bands or at least parts of them.....
- 2) The severity of the fights against the cunning enemy often makes it impossible to bring in prisoners without endangering one's own men. The precautionary directives under No. 3 of the OKW's order below, not to take prisoners, will frequently become necessary against the bands in the Serbo-Croatian area. Should the individual bandits nevertheless be captured alive by our own troops, they are to be treated in accordance with the attached order of the OKW/WFST secret, dated 18.8.43.

What a thinly veiled invitation to the wholesale murder of defenseless prisoners of war, of men who satisfied all the criteria prerequisite to full belligerent status. Small wonder, then, that brutalized by such orders, the common German soldier lost all sense of chivalry, all regard for decency. As inexorably as night follows day, the issuance of these criminal orders was followed by the reports of their enforcements:

Captured 31 partisans -- 27 of them were shot;

2 partisans, captured during an attack on Bijela, refused to tell the name of the Brigade or Division to which they were attached. After their interrogation, they were shot;

18 captured partisans shot;

4 partisans captured -- shot;

Communist courier hanged after interrogation;

100 bandits hanged for railway sabotage and for a surprise attack on police;

20 partisans hanged for an attempt to blow up a railroad.

You will read these and scores of similar reports until numbed by the monotony of their tragic sameness, your emotions may well be incapable of registering further horror and pite.

Although a critical manpower situation in the Reich was responsible for modification of existing orders respecting the treatment of captured partisans, there was no similar practical excuse for a change in the basic orders governing reprisal measures. The consistency of the German retaliation rules runs like a steady red thread throughout this case. These rules, like the physical presence of Foertsch, lend consistent if appalling unity to the periods of List, Kuntze, Loehr and von Weichs.

The already mentioned Rendulic order of 15 Sept. 1943 is as revealing on the subject of reprisal measures as it was on the treatment of captured partisans. It is not an exceptional order. It is, unfortunately, thoroughly representative of every single man in the defendants' dock.

The order states:

Attacks on German members of the Wehrmacht and damages to warimportant installations are to be answered in every case by the shooting or hanging of hostages and the destruction of surrounding villages, which latter is to take place, if possible, after the arrest of the male population which is capable of bearing arms. Only then will the population, in order to avoid reprisal measures, inform the German authorities if bands collect.

Unless in individual cases different orders are issued, the rule for reprisal measures is:

1 German killed 50 hostages 1 German wounded 25 hostages Kidnapping of a German will be considered equal to killing a German unless the kidnapped person does not return within a definite period.

According to the severity of the attack, 100 hostages may be hanged or shot for each attack against war essential installations.

These reprisal measures are to be executed if the culprit is not caught within 48 hours.

With orders of this nature outstanding, there could have been only satisfaction, not surprise, as the routing, matter-of-fact reports came in:

20 hostages hanged and 26 shot for railway sabotage;

As a retaliatory measure for an attack on an armored column 27 Chetnik hostages hanged;

Arrest of a woman teacher in Kapela as a hostage, whose husband, a Croatian captain, deserted to the bands;

Relatives of track attendant Petric, who left his post at 1800 hours, will be shot if he fails to return;

The mass of the population of the villages of Paklenica and Vocarica arrested as hostages and the villages burned down in reprisal for a band surprise attack on Novska;

One village burned and 100 bandits shot as a measure of retaliation for raid on railway southeast of Gracenica;

In retaliation for a raid on a freight train southeast of Vinkovci 21 bandit suspects taken from near the place of the raid and executed there.

Von Weichs knew of this and other of Rendulic's orders. He knew, too, of their precise execution -- he was Rendulic's commander, it was his business to know. Dehner and Leyser knew of them also -- it was they who saw to it that the orders were carried out. It was their divisions, regiments and battalions who did the shooting.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess at this time until 1:30 this afternoon at which time this Tribunal will reconvene in Court Room No. 2.

AFTERNOON SESSION (The Tribunal reconvened at 1330 hours, 15 July 1947)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Counsel may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If the Tribunal please, prior to the recess, you will remember, we were discussing the final occupational period, the period August 1943 to October 1944. We were particularly concerned with the basic orders issued by Weichs for the whole theater, and with their execution by Rendulic, Dehner and Leyser in Croatia.

Not until late December 1943, four months after the inauguration of the new Southeast command, did a major reorientation in theater policy take place. Minister Plenipotentiary Neubacher, Ribbentrop's top political advisor for southeaster Europe, had long worried over the boomerang effect of the German occupational terror. After conferences with Weichs and his army commanders, it was agreed that "the reprisal, penal and revenge measures practiced up to now must in the future, take into account the new political objectives." In cases of attacks or acts of sabotage, the new principle was "to seize the perpetrator himself and to take reprisal measures only as a second course, if through reprisal measures the prevention of future attacks is to be expected." Up until now the hangings and burning admittedly had occurred first, and the search for the guilty only later. A reversal in technique was a tribute, not to justice, but to military expediency.

This order of the Supreme Command Southeast, dated 22 December 1943, is a remarkable document in many ways. It rescinded all previous orders concerning hostage quotas. But though reprisal quotas were no longer to be fixed, they were not at all prohibited. Rather the extent of the reprisal measures was to be "established in advance in each individual case." The order is unique also because of this twisted and inconsistent language. It reads in part as follows:

The procedure of carrying out reprisal measures, after a surprise attack or an act of sabotage, at random on persons and dwellings in the vicinity, close to the scene of the deed, shakes the confidence in the justice of the occupying power and also drives the loyal part of the population into the woods. This form of execution of reprisal measures is accordingly forbidden. If, however, the investigation on the spot reveals open or concealed collaboration or a conscientiously passive attitude of certain persons concerning the perpetrators, then these persons above all are to be shot as bandit helpers and their dwellings destroyed....

If such people as are guilty can not be found, those persons must be resorted to who, without being connected with the actual deed, nevertheless are to be regarded as co-responsible.

Why should persons not connected with the actual deed "nevertheless be regarded as co-responsible"? When superior orders are so incomprehensible and so in need of lower-level clarification, it is not surprising to find one of Rendulic's Division commanders, writing to his troops in the following simple, straightforward, understandable language:

All is right which leads to success. After three full years of war in the Balkans each commander knows what is best.

Not because of the new policy directive, but rather because of tactical considerations arising out of the regular military nature of the current war in the Southeast, there was a noticeable change in the Croatian picture in the early months of 1944. The change was not so much a decline in the quantum of crime committed by the German troops there as it was a shift in emphasis from one type of crime to another. The number of hostage hangings may have decreased, but in their place were the many raids on partisan concentrations, followed, after all military operations were ended, by the deliberate burning of partisan hospitals and medical supplies and, on occasion, by the merciless execution of their sick and wounded patients. With periodical "purge actions" and "punitive expeditions" throughout 1944, for example, units of the "Prinz Eugen" and "Devil's" Divisions, both subordinate to Rendulic, went on a rampage of blood and cruelty that can only be duplicated in history by the orgies of Genghis Khan. A dozen or more inoffensive Dalmatian villages were burned and plundered. Three villages were destroyed and more than 800 of their inhabitants massacred on a single day. The troops machine-gunned crowds which they, themselves, had assembled, they looted the dead and then half burned the bodies on giant funeral pyres, they poured gasoline on live victims and then set them on fire, they raped and they pillaged and they slaughtered.

What else could be expected of men brutalized and incited to crime by the ruthless orders of ruthless commanders?

Then there were the deportations to slave labor in the Reich. Worried by the threat of an Allied invasion across the Adriatic Sea, but more anxious about the continuous thrusts of Tito's National Army of Liberation and by the labor needs at home, scores of islands and thousands of square miles of Dalmatia and Croatia were completely evacuated of all their inhabitants by the Second Panzer Army. Mixed Croate-German ---

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt just a minute. We need a short recess in order to fix the sound system.

(Short recess taken)

THE PRESIDENT: I am informed that the English was coming over Channel 3 and the other language over another channel. The English is now coming over 2, so you will kindly watch and see that you are getting it on your right dial. And the German is on 3.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Mixed Croate-German commissions rounded up all able-bodied men between 17 and 40 and gave them their choice of being drafted into the Croatian Army or joining strongly guarded labor battalions building fortifications, and coastal defenses, both alter natives which meant fighting on the side of those who would keep them in bondage. Altogether, between 150,000 and 200,000 Croates were up-rooted from their homes and villages and transported to district and regional collecting camps from which they were later screened -- the weak to remain in local concentration camps and all the strong to labor in Germany. In one single action alone, Operation "Panther", more than 6,000 persons were deported to the Reich for labor. Old men, women, nursing children, all had to go, wearing only the clothes they had on and taking with them only what they could carry.

And always, as an area was combed, several groups of the SD were asked to accompany the army to "clean up" in its rear. To "clean up" -- a polite expression for political, racial and ideological murder. So widespread were the evacuations, and so wholesale the deportations, that even the supine Croatian Government protested in their quick and arbitrary manner that the Germans were deporting hundreds whose loyalty to the Pavelic Government and the German occupation was above suspicion.

Hangings -- of hostages, "communists", "bandit helpers", "suspects"; executions -- of prisoners, civilians, "anti-Germans", "unreliables"; burnings -- of homes, villages and towns; punitive expeditions and "purge actions"; mass evacuations and deportations to slave labor--that was the answer of Rendulic, Dehner and Leyser to the problem of Croatian pacification.

If Croatia under the aegis of Rendulic was an operational channel house, then Serbia under Felber and Geitner was an administrative extermination camp. In no other country did the machinery for murder operate with such chain-like precision.

With impartial ruthlessness and severity, Felber and Geitner liquidated both D.M.'s and Partisans, depending upon the political affiliation of the group to which the Germans believed the perpetrators of the hostile acts belonged. They hanged and shot in incredible quantities, reflected in their daily and monthly reports to von Weichs:

2 September 1943: "450 communist suspects ordered to be shot in course of operation in area of Leskovac";

29 September 1943: "10 D.M. hostages and shot to death in Jagodina for the murder of the district supervisor";

4 October 1943: "283 D.M. hostages and 42 communists shot to death in Cacak on 1 October in reprisal for a number of attacks in the area of F.K. 610 during which German and Bulgarian members of the Wehrmacht were killed.";

17 October 1943: "In retaliation for attack on German customs and police patrol, 100 D.M. in the district of F.K. 810 and 150 communist hostages in Belgrade shot to death;"

29 October 1943: "In reprisal for the attack on two German soldiers by D.M. Chetniks near Tejika on 17 October, for a further attack on 21 October near Gr. Milanovac, and for the attack on barges on the Danube near Izlaz on 26 October, 150 D.M. followers were shot;"

29 October 1943: "As revenge for the surprise attack on a cattle purchasing detachment at Sljivar 100 D.M. followers and 200 communists were shot in Belgrade";

29 October 1943: "As revenge for the surprise attack on the collecting detachment of the 8th Auxiliary Police Battalion at Lelasnica 100 D.M. followers were shot";

1 December 1943: "27 communist hostages shot in retaliation for the attack on the train Negotin-Nisch".

Even after the order of December 1943 rescinding all hostage quotas and decreeing a policy change in reprisal measures, Felber and Geitner continued to execute in arithmetical ratio:

22 January 1944: "50 communist hostages shot to death for the murder of a German police captain in Kragujevac";

24 January 1944: "10 communists shot to death in Pozarevac in reprisal for the murder of the mayor";

On 24 March 1944 in a memorandum addressed to F.A. 610, Felber approved the execution of 10 "communists hostages at the Krusevac airport, and as late as 30 May 1944, he ordered the execution of 50 "communists" in retaliation for the death of two German soldiers.

Such was the record of crime which Felber and Geitner compiled in Serbia.

Von Weichs knew the effect these massacres had on the Serbian state of mind, and he knew that they were directly related to the problem of pacification of the whole Southeast. He knew, too, that in a theater of war without the usual operational zones and rear areas tactical security and administrative security were one and the same thing. Von Weichs was law in Serbia as he was law in all the Southeast. He knew of Felber's and Geitner's bloody work--he knew, he condoned, he consented, and he approved.

For reasons of convenience and clarity in the statement of this case, we have postponed our description of the German occupation of Greece in order to treat it all together. Greece had been stunned almost into quiescence during the first half of the joint German-Italian occupation. Always a heavy food-importing country, Greece, with her outside sources of supply cut off and her food stocks plundered by the Italian and German occupiers, faced national starvation. Hundreds died in the streets of Athens daily, children with the bloated bellies of undernourishment could be seen everywhere, and between August 1943 and October 1944, the drachma declined from one--three hundredth to one trillionth of its pre-war value. With a population of slightly over seven million people, Greece lost an estimated 300,000 of its inhabitants because of the food shortage.

To a people accustomed to horses and carts, German mechanized might was overwhelming. The military end had come with such speed that it took some time before the Greeks could even entertain the thought of rebelling against half-tracks, panzers and airplanes.

"But", as Lord Dunsany says, "in three thousand years, freedom grows so hard that it is like a piece of rock at the core of a mountain, that cannot be broken or ground away, and cannot disappear ever." In the latter part of 1942, at the time of Stalingrad and the Allied victories in North Africa, the Greek resistance movement began to gather strength. In Crete, an all too familiar note was heard as early as November 1942, when the German commander General Brauer, instructed his commanders to educate the troops "to show no mercy whatsoever to the civilian population."

As had been observed, up to August 1943 the greater part of Greece was occupied by the Italians. But in November and December 1942 and January 1943, Loehr's reports to OKH began to contain an increasing number of references to retaliation measures against sabotage and guerrilla attacks in the German-occupied portions of Greece.

By June and July 1943, the situation in Greece had become increasingly similar to that in Yugoslavia. Loehr's reports to OKH are an accurate barometer of the terroristic pattern:

3 June 1943: "10 communists from a concentration camp shot in Larissa as a retaliation measure."

2 July 1943: "4 villages burned down and 50 communists shot near Litochoron for attack on German sergeant and blasting of railroad tracks."

4 July 1943: "87 suspects shot while trying to escape".

5 July 1943: "50 Greeks shot in Melaxa for sabotage of cable lines."

Just as in Yugoslavia, literally dozens of separate resistance groups at first arose in Greece. But after a period of merger and consolidation, two organizations of major importance were discernible: General Zervas and his approximately 10,000. EDES troops in the Epirus section of western Greece, and the ELAS units, 15,000 strong, in eastern Greece, the Peloponnessus peninsula, Crete and the islands.

To put down the Greek resistance the Germans tried the same old methods. Terror and intimidation, hostages and reprisal measures, hangings and burnings, had failed to pacify Serbia and Croatia. But the Germans, never humane and seldom smart, knew no other course.

Greece during 1943 and 1944 was, like Yugoslavia, divided theoretically into both operational areas and so-called administrative areas, each with its own separate jurisdiction, organization and personnel. For the efficient execution of their respective missions of pacification and security, it was, of course, quite necessary that the regular tactical troops of Flemy and Lanz should cooperate closely with the district and sub-area police troops under Speidel's jurisdiction. This was achieved both by personal contact of the major personalities involved and by the regular interchange of information, daily and weekly situation reports, and the like. Generally speaking, the tactical troops confined their activities to regular military engagements against the organized partisan bands. Speidel's police troops, on the other hand, were concerned for the most part with the civilian population--seizing workers for forced labor in the Reich, deporting Jews from Crete, Corfu, Rhodes and the other islands putting down strikes, executing hostages in retaliation for acts of sabotage and the clandestine killings of German police and quelling Greek mayors.

The orders of Flemy, Lanz and Speidel in Greece were similar to these issued by Rendulic, Dehner and Leyser in Croatia and by Felber and Geitner in Serbia. When attacks on troops, installations and supply lines continued, notwithstanding a previous 10:1 "hostage" quota, the Germans, with their customarily inflated notions of their own worth, promptly raised the quota to 50:1. But even the execution of 50 civilians in retribution for attacks by unknown persons did not completely satisfy General Lanz.

On the 25th of October 1943, his 1st Mountain Division ordered that the 50:1 arithmetical key be applied even to German losses suffered in regular military combat with the legitimately organized and uniformed guerrillas. After October 1943 the out-moded 10:1 ratio was to be effective only for the less serious deaths of such racial inferiors as a "pro-German Greek or a Greek working for the Germans."

By mid--1943, the "Andartes", as the Greek partisans were called, were an enemy to be seriously reckoned with. The Germans, however, refused to grant full belligerent status to the Greek resistance forces. Instead they waged war against the Greeks in 1941-42--by pressing the native population into service on the side of the terror that was oppressing them. They intimidated the inhabitants of peaceful villages into giving information concerning the size and location of partisan troops. They executed civilians in reprisal for the bombing of bridges and tunnels, and for sabotage of communication lines. They labeled men "Bandits", "communists", bandit suspects" and "bandat helpers" and killed them without benefit of investigation, trial or even summary court martial. In short, they resorted to every trick and device that a tyrant, blinded by the fury of his own insanity, might resort to. The reports to von Weichs and Foertsch tell the story of the harvest of the German policy in Greece:

29 November 1943: "In reprisal for band attack on the road Tripolis-Sparta, 100 hostages shot at the scene of the attack."

1 December 1943: "In reprisal for the killing of one German soldier in Tripolis, 30 'communists' were shot."

2 December 1943: "For attack on railroad bridge southeast of Tripolis 50 hostages hanged."

3 December 1943: "19 communist reprisal prisoners shot in revenge for the murder and wounding of Greek police."

6 December 1943: "As reprisal for band attack southeast of of Gythion 25 hostages shot."

621 December 1943: "In the area of Volos 25 bandits shot to death in reprisal for an attack on motor vehicles."

25 February 1944: "50 hostages from the hostage camp at Tripolis shot to death on 23 February in reprisal for the murder of an interpreter."

9 March 1944: "In reprisal for strike agitation by communists 50 communists shot to death."

25 March 1944: "45 hostages shot in Corinth, 52 in Tripolis, 44 in Sparta."

1 April 1944: "Special train Athens-Salonika hit mines. One dead, 14 wounded. Tracks blocked only short while. The execution of 70 Greeks at the site of the incident ordered."

Lidice, the small Czech village which the Germans leveled to the ground in 1942, stands today as a symbol of German savagery. In Greece there are a thousand Lidices--their names unknown and their inhabitants forgotten by a world too busy and too cynical to remember. Greece has many small primitive villages with 500 to 1,000 inhabitants who live in mud houses with thatched roofs that have been lived in for centuries. There are, for example, the villages of the Peloponnes peninsula which were leveled to the ground in December 1943 during the notorious "Operation Kalavrittha." Touched off by a report that "bandits" in the vicinity had killed 78 German prisoners, troops subordinate to General Felmy embarked upon a reprisal expedition that lasted for eight days before their senseless bestiality had been satiated. Fourteen villages were completely destroyed and their male inhabitants shot. 511 persons from Kalvritha alone were executed. Whether the Partisans had killed captured German soldiers or not, there was no legal excuse, and there can be no moral mitigation, for seeking wholesale and indiscriminate revenge on the innocent.

Then there were the parallel tragedies of Klissura and Distomen. On an April morning in 1944 partisan troops appeared on the outskirts of Klissura and forbade the inhabitants to leave the village. On the afternoon of the same day, about two miles away, one German motorcycle was attacked and two German soldiers killed.

German reprisal methods being well known by now, all the male population of the village fled in fear to hide in the hills.

Only old men, women and young children remained behind. About 4 p.m. that afternoon the 7th SS Panzer Grenadier Regiment and Bulgarian Occupational Militia subordinate to its command, both under Felmy's tactical jurisdiction, threw a cordon around the village, searched the houses unsuccessfully for weapons and ammunition, and called all the people together in the public square. Then the killing and burning began. When it stopped, there were 223 victims lying in the square -- fifty of them children under ten years, 128 women and the rest old men -- Klissura was a mass of smouldering rubble.

The "blood bath of Klissura", as the Germans so appropriately entitled their own report on the affair, was too much for Minister Neubacher to stomach. Not because it was inhumane but because it would have serious political repercussions, Neubacher immediately protested to Weishs. He said:

"It is sheer insanity to shoot babies, children, women and old people because heavily armed Reds had been quartered for one night in their houses and had shot two German soldiers in the neighborhood. The political consequences of such deeds may be very serious. It is obviously easier to kill quite harmless women, children and old men than to hunt down an armed band. I demand a thorough investigation of the matter."

The investigation was ordered. The military whitewash of an SS unit by a Wehrmacht Field Marshal came two months later when Weichs wrote to Neubacher:

"The Greek witnesses cannot be believed. The village was taken by storm, the inhabitants killed by artillery fire. There was no retaliation action."

Just two months after Klissura, in June 1944, troops of the same 7th SS Panzer Grenadier Regiment were involved in a similar massacre at Distomon.

From the Germans' own lengthy report of the incident the following facts appear. As a German company approached the village, 18 Greek civilians were seen. Although they did not fire on the Germans, six of the 18 "were shot while trying to escape". The remaining 12 civilians were arrested and taken along with the company, which continued on to Distomon, remained there for several hours undisturbed, and then set out on the road from Distomon to Stiri. About two kilometers from Distomon, 30-35 partisans, well-entrenched in ridges overlooking the road and armed with an 8 cm. trench mortar that covered the entire area, lay in ambush. Before the surprised Company could disperse and reorganize to return the sudden Partisan fire, the enemy had gone.

In defiance of orders restricting the initiation of reprisal measures to commanders of at least division commander level, the company commander returned his troops to Distomon to retaliate the villagers because they had not previously disclosed the presence and position of the "bandits". A report of a German Secret Field Police member, who was in Distomon at the time, relates what happened after the troops returned: "After the troops returned to Distomon, the 12 prisoners who were taken back were shot dead in the market place as a reprisal measure.....

Subsequent to that, all people present in Distomon were shot dead wherever they happened to be. At that time, I was at the market place and was looking after our wounded interpreter. As far as I observed events, 60 to 70 persons -- men, women and children -- were killed in the vicinity of the market place. As far as I could see it, all were shot dead. I did not see inhabitants being killed in any other way, i.e. beaten to death by rifle butt, or by pouring gasoline over them and setting them on fire."

Why were the 12 arrested Greek civilians killed? What had they to do with the subsequent action by the "Andartes"? Why were 270 inhabitants of Distomon killed?

What was their crime? Why did the Secret Field Police member feel obliged to say that he had not seen any inhabitants "killed in any other way, i.e. beaten to death by rifle butt, or by pouring gasoline over them and setting them on fire"? Was that the usual method of executing retaliation victims?

Again Neubacher was dismayed by the political, not the moral, insanity of such actions. And again he protested -- not to Himmler, although SS troops were once more involved, but to Weichs, the omnipotent master of the Southeast, the Commander of Wehrmacht and SS troops alike. This time the investigation was more lively, for it revealed that the regiment to which the company involved was subordinate had knowingly issued a false official combat report of its action against Distomon.

According to the regimental report the 16 Greek civilians opened fire upon the company as it was approaching Distomon and were "shot while trying to escape", while Distomon itself was taken only after a hard battle followed by a mopping-up operation.

From a sheer internal military standpoint, the SS company commander had not only violated orders regarding the initiation of reprisal measures. He had also deliberately issued a false official report. But convinced that the "competent authorities would also subsequently have ordered reprisal measures against Distomon which would have necessitated sending at a later time a strong mission with corresponding high fuel consumption" and believing that the company commander's procedure was "merely a transgression against formality and corresponded to a natural soldierly feeling", the regiment requested permission to handle the matter "by disciplinary proceedings only". General Felmy, the corps commander involved, consented to the regimental request, and Field Marshal Weichs agreed. Neubacher was informed. The case was closed.

The events of Distomon merit this somewhat detailed account because in this single tragedy there is presented in microcosm the evil of the German Army in Greece and in the whole Southeast during four years of ruthless occupation.

It gives good insight, for example, into the mental processes of a young German officer of company grade, completely devoid of any notions of decency and honor, thoroughly corrupted by the regulations, directives and orders handed down by his superiors. It reveals precisely how war in the Southeast was fought, how the peaceful population was drawn into the struggle, what a reprisal action specifically entailed. It indicates how little the top military authorities did to humanize the already existing techniques and methods of anti-partisan warfare, how lax they were in disciplining their own troops, how they shielded the guilty. Finally, it gives the lie to one of the most important single myths that the Wehrmacht seeks desperately to perpetuate -- that the terrible crimes of troops in the field were committed by SS units over whom the Wehrmacht had no power or control, and that Wehrmacht commanders constantly and vigorously protested to higher authorities against the undisciplined excesses of the SS troops. Weichs knew the inhabitants of Klissure had been killed in a reprisal, not a combat, action by the same SS unit which later was involved at Distomon. He not only did not remove the commanders responsible for that atrocity before they could repeat the same criminal performance at Distomon, but he lied to Neubacher in order to shield it from criticism.

During the spring and summer of 1944 both the tactical commons of Felmy and Lanz and the administrative organization of General Speidel worked feverishly and desperately to postpone the bitter end. The order of 14 August 1944 of General Friedrich Wilhelm Mueller, Commanding General on the island of Crete, is representative of the attitude that prevailed:

"Numerous attacks on German vehicles require vigorous counter measures to demonstrate to the Greek people that we are masters on the island. Consideration for innocent people cannot be shown any more."

Although they knew the war was irretrievably lost, the Southeast Command continued to hang and burn and deport, and as always the Germans' own reports tell the story:

6 April 1944: "In reprisal for an attack by bandits during battalion roll call, killing 4 and wounding 11, 150 persons suspected of belonging to bands were shot in Verria."

23 April 1944: "In Tripolis 12 communists shot in reprisal for a murdered Gendarme."

30 April 1944: "60 communists shot in Athens as further reprisal measures for attack on police officer."

30 April 1944: "200 Greeks will be shot to death as a reprisal measure for the killing of Gen. Krech and his escort detachment." 1 May 1944: "In reprisal for attack on the truck convoy of the 41st Fortress Div. in the southeast Peloponnesus area, 335 communists and band suspects shot to death."

10 May 1944: "In the Boestia area, in reprisal for an attack on vehicles on 26 April 1944, an additional 100 hostages are being shot in Athens."

In May and June 1944: "1600 Jews deported from Corfu and 350 Jews from Crete."

From 1 May to 1 June 1944: "1747 laborers sent to the Reich in three transports. Compulsory deportation to the Reich, particularly from the Peloponnesus, will take place soon."

From 16 June to 15 July 1944: "600 men ready for shipment from the Peloponnesus for employment in the Reich. Transport will take place in a few days for 'Reichswerke Hermann Goering' iron ore mines."

13 July 1944: "50 communists hanged in retaliation for attack on two German officers."

31 July 1944: "Line repair detachment attacked by band west of Agrinion, 8 dead, 14 wounded, Reprisal measures -- 71 communists shot."

10 August 1944: "F.K. 817 reports 50 communists shot at scene of incident at Manara in reprisal for band attack on Athens-Thebes road."

5 August 1944: "Railroad sabotage on train Corinth-Tripolis. Seven cars derailed. No losses of our own. In reprisal 18 hostages who had been taken along were shot."

26 August 1944: "18 communists shot in Athens in reprisal for German soldier shot from ambush."

23 August 1944: "During mopping-up operations near east Messara, Crete, 191 persons suspected of being bandits shot 1 village destroyed, 1500 civilians being resettled."

5 September 1944: "In retaliation for raid on truck convoy, 186 suspects shot to death."

In August and September 1944: "13 villages destroyed in retaliation for the kidnapping of Lt. Gen. Kreipe."

Finally, in October 1944, the end came. Threatened from the West by combined Anglo-American forces and from the East by the Soviet armies, German troops were withdrawn from the southeast to defend a crumbling Reich. British units landed on the mainland; ELAS and EDES troops came down out of the hills. After four long and difficult years under the Nazi yoke, Greece was starving and destitute. But proud and courageous as always, Greece was at last free to resume her own national destiny.

The generals of the Southeast Command went home, were reassigned, surrendered. Twice in 25 years mere readiness for war had been insufficient. As had happened once before, the Balkans had proved to be an Achilles heel to German aggression. The generals were never able to understand why – but strong, independent peoples accustomed to hardship, innured to suffering, and born to freedom can "no more be broken by tyranny than a diamond scratched by a sword."

GENERAL TAYLOR: Your Honor, I desire to turn next to the charges concerning devastation and deportation in Northern Norway. These are the charges embodied in the first specification of Count

Two of the indictment, and to examine them we must turn our attention from the Balkans to the northernmost part of the European mainland – the province of Finnmark in northern Norway.

These charges concern only the defendant Rendulic.

Even since the initial attack against Russia, the German 20th Mountain Army had been situated in the northern part of Finland, holding Petsamo and threatening Murmansk and the railroad line from Murmansk south to Leningrad, one of the two main avenues for the weapons and supplies which America and Britain were sending to the Soviet Union. This army had been commanded, since January 1942, by Generaloberst Edward Deitl, who met his death in an airplane crash in June, 1944. Rendulic was chosen to succeed him, and arrived in Finland in August. The order of battle of the 20th Mountain Army, predominantly comprised of mountain troops, is shown in chart "G" of the prosecution's pamphlet.

Rendulic's arrival in Croatia in August, 1943, had been followed almost immediately by the collapse of Germany's Italian ally, now he was to encounter a parallel situation in Finland. On the fourth of September, 1944, the Finns capitulated to the Soviet forces, and demanded that the Germans promptly withdraw their troops from Finland. Rendulic decided to fall back across the northwestern Finnish frontier into northern Norway.

The region in which this retreat took place is shown in map "E" of the prosecution's pamphlet. The northernmost province of Norway is known as Finnmark, and the province just to the south as Troms. Including a nomad population of Laplanders, the population of this area numbers approximately 62,000, most of whom live in small ports and villages along the heavily indented coastline, and make their living as fishermen. It is a very wintry and isolated region; there are no railroads, and the only communication with southern Norway is by sea or by the single road along the coast known as Route 50.

Rendulic began his retreat in September, 1944. The two northernmost corps of his army were the XIX Mountain Corps under General Ferdinand Jodl (brother of the Jodl who was a defendant in the International trial) and this corps was in the extreme north near Petsamo; the other was the XXXVI Mountain Corps, about 100 kilometers to the south of Jodl's unit. It was the troops of these two corps that were chiefly concerned in the activities which form the basis of the charges in the indictment. By the latter part of October, part of these troops had been withdrawn westward from Petsamo through Kirkenes and were resting around the village of Tana, and others to the south were making their way out of Finland by the more southerly route shown on the map which joins Route 50 near Porsanger-Halvoya. The darkness of the northern winter was rapidly settling in, it was very cold, and there was more than enough snow. The advancing Soviet troops had kept contact with the Germans as far as Tana. In order to make the Russian advance as difficult as possible, the German troops had been systematically destroying barracks and buildings and port facilities, and endeavoring to persuade the Norwegian population to evacuate, in the area between Kirkenes and Tana.

Late in October 1944, the German High Command decided that this program of devastation and deportation should be much more extensive and rigorous. As a result, on 28 October 1944, the OKW, over Alfred Jodl's signature, issued the following order to Rendulic as Commander of the 20th Mountain Army:

Because of the unwillingness of the north Norwegian population to voluntarily evacuate, the Fuehrer has agreed to the proposals of the commissioner for the occupied Norwegian territories and has ordered that the entire Norwegian population east of the fjord of Lyngen be evacuated by force in the interest of their own security and that all homes are to be burned down or destroyed.

The supreme commander, Northern Finland, is responsible that the Fuehrer's order is carried out without consideration. Only by this method can it be prevented that the Russians with strong forces, and aided by these homes and the people familiar with the terrain, follow our withdrawal operations during this winter and shortly appear in front of our position in Lyngen. This is not the place for sympathy for the civilian population.

 It must be made clear to the troops engaged in this action that the Norwegians will be thankful in a few months that they were saved from Bolshevism, and that the barbarian methods of the air war against our German country and her cultural shrines have brought a thousand times more misery to our people if compared with the humane evacuation and destruction of homes in northern Norway, which is necessary for our war effort, and which, if it is not done, must be paid with the blood of German soldiers.

The population, whose livelihood is fishing, in northern Norway, furthermore has enough shipping space at its disposal to be able to get out of the way en masse across the water. A large part of the small Norwegian ships which are kept hidden at present can be used for this, and can later also be used for our own transportation needs.

The danger of the formation of guerrilla bands on the part of the Norwegians appears to be negligible since they can no longer use the houses during the winter.

It was claimed, in defense of Alfred Jodl, during the international trial that this order was unnecessarily far-reaching, and that Alfred Jodl, by various subtle means endeavored to convey to Rendulic that it should not be complied with to the fullest degree.¹ If this be true, there is little evidence that Rendulic undertook to soften its effect in any material respect. The order which Rendulic issued to his subordinate commands the following day follows very closely the language of the OKW order and includes the following:

1. Because of the lack of willingness of the north Norwegian population to evacuate the country voluntarily, the Fuehrer has ordered the compulsory evacuation of the population east of the Lungenfjords in the interest of the security of the population, which is to be 1. Alfred Jodl's contention in this regard is referred to in the Judgment of the International Military Tribunal, Vol I, Trial of the Major War Criminals, p. 324.

preserved from Bolshevism, and that all houses be burned down or be destroyed. It is the responsibility of the Commander-in-Chief of Northern Finland that this order be carried out ruthlessly so that the Soviets supported by dwelling places and a population which knows the country will be prevented from following our withdrawal with strong forces. Pity for the civilian population is out of place.

* * * * * 5. The following directions were given for the Execution of the Evacuation:

- a) The entire evacuation area is to be emptied of people.
- b) Evacuated settlements are to be destroyed unless they are to be used thereafter by troops marching through (that is, at the latest by the rear guards) .
- c) The operation must be a sudden one and the officers of the Reichs Commissar of Norway must participate, and Norwegian authorities must be harnessed for it; the latter, however, only from the beginning of the operation.
- d) The seized population is to be led to the nearest ports under military guard (also small ports with docks suitable for cutters) .
- e) Local and district commanders are to erect reception camps in or near these ports.
- f) Men capable of working and marching, and in the western districts women capable of marching also, are to be coupled to the marching units furthest in front and to be taken along.
- g) Insofar as the population still has small ships available, they are to be used for the deportation of the evacuees under military cover!
- h) All ships used by the Wehrmacht (freighters and Army transports) are to be loaded additionally with as many evacuees as possible.
- i) Columns on Route 50 to be formed only to an unavoidable degree; invalids, women and children to be assisted by loading them on trucks. Only men really capable of marching to join the march columns!

* * * * * Finally I request all offices concerned to carry out this evacuation in the sense of a relief action for the Norwegian population.

Though it will be necessary here and there to be severe, all of us must attempt to save the Norwegians from Bolshevism and to keep them alive.

On November first, the Germans made known to the population what was in store for them. Rendulic's proclamation stated in part:

TO THE POPULATION:

The evacuation of a part of northern Norway has been rendered a military necessity as a result of the treachery of a Finnish Government clique.

The evacuation necessitates the removal of the civilian population, as the enemy has proved that, in those territories occupied by him, he ruthlessly and brutally forces the civilian population to give him active assistance in achieving his aims.

This means that the shelter or means of existence of any kind can be left to the Bolshevik enemy in the fighting zone. All such installations as housing accommodations transport facilities and food stocks must be destroyed or removed.

HE WHO DOES NOT COMPLY WITH THESE UNEQUIVOCAL INSTRUCTIONS EXPOSES HIMSELF AND HIS FAMILY TO POSSIBLE DEATH IN THE ARCTIC WINTER WITHOUT HOUSE OR FOOD."

(signed) by TERBOVEN, (signed) by RENDULIC, Reichskommissar for the Generaloberst, Occupied Norwegian Territories.

Commander-in-Chief 20th Army.

This ruthless and in large part unnecessary decision was carried out by Rendulic's forces according to plan. Northern Norway, from Kirkenes nearly to Tromsø, was turned into an Arctic desert. Over 43,000 men, women, and children over two thirds of the entire population of an area about the size of Scotland - were herded down Route 50 or crowded into small boats. We may be sure that the official German report to Rendulic of the manner in which the evacuation was carried out is not overstated. I quote :

Some untoward events, such as the separation of men from their families to be deported the burning down of houses in the presence of inhabitants even where an immediate destruction was not necessary, and shelling of the locality Kjallefjord by units of the German Navy, hindered the readiness of the population to follow the officially prescribed way.

The prosecution will submit evidence to show that the devastation and evacuation, at least in large part, were wholly unjustified from a military standpoint, and that, under the spur of Rendulic's admonition that his order was to be "carried out ruthlessly" and that "pity for the civilian population is out of place", the destruction and evacuation were carried out with unnecessary brutality, resulting in the impoverishment of the entire population, in the death of some, and the suffering of many thousands.

We will turn to the final portions of the indictment - those relating to THE MURDER OF CAPTURED "COMMANDOS" AND "COMMISSARS" Two of the specifications in Count Three of the Indictment differ from the others in that their scope is not restricted geographically to southeastern Europe.

These are sub--paragraphs "b" and "h" of paragraph 12 of the indictment. Both of these specifications refer to orders of general application, issued by OKW and OKH and distributed generally through the field commands of the Wehrmacht, which denied the protection of the laws of war to two special categories of enemy troops, and directed that they be executed if captured. These two categories were the commando troops, which the British and later the Americans made such effective use of, particularly prior to the invasion of France, and the so-called "political commissars", who were regularly attached to units of the Soviet forces and fought with them in regular Soviet uniforms.

Firstly as to the commandos.

The order for the murder of captured commandos was issued by Hitler through the OKW in October, 1942.¹ It directed that enemy commandos were to be slaughtered to the last man; that even if they surrendered, nonetheless they were to be shot immediately, unless interrogations were necessary, in which case they were to be shot thereafter. The order was not a purposeless piece of criminality; Allied commando operations were proving alarmingly effective, and Hitler apparently thought that this order would act as a deterrent.

The order was distributed to all three branches of the Wehrmacht, and there is ample evidence that it was widely distributed and wellknown throughout the German army. In all probability, all of the defendants (except List, who had retired just prior to its issuance) distributed or enforced the order at one time or another.

In July, 1944, the commando order was given a new and special application in southeastern Europe. A new order from OKW directed that it should be applied to the members of foreign "military missions" who might be captured with the partisan forces in the Balkans. This new order, dated 30 July 1944, stated:

In the areas of the High Command Southeast and Southwest, members of foreign so-called "Military Missions" (AngloAmerican as well as Soviet-Russian) captured in the course of the struggle against partisans shall not receive the treatment as specified in the special orders regarding the treatment of captured partisans. Therefore, they are not to be treated as prisoners-of-war, but in conformity with the Fuehrer's order for the elimination of terror and sabotage troops of 18 October 1942.

We must not forget that to kill a defenseless prisoner-of-war is not only a violation of the rules of war. It is murder. The commando order required the commission of murder, and every German officer who handled it knew that perfectly well. The signs of a guilty conscience are only too clear in another paragraph of the order which I have just read, which required that the distribution copies of it should be de 1 The circumstances pertaining to the commando order are summarized in the Judgment of the International Military Tribunal.

Vol. I, Trial of the Major War Criminals, p. 328.

There is ample evidence showing general compliance with this order, as was found by the International Military Tribunal which stated in its judgment:

Under the provisions of this order, Allied commando troops, and other military units operating independently, lost their lives in Norway, France, Czechoslovakia, and Italy. Many of them were killed on the spot, and in no case were those who were executed later in camps ever given a trial of any kind. For example, an American Military mission Which landed behind the German front in the Balkans in January 1945, numbering about twelve to fifteen men and wearing uniform, were taken to Mauthausen under the authority of this order, and according to tho affidavit of Adolf Zutte, the adjutant of the Mauthausen concentration camp, all of them were shot.

Secondly, Commissars:

Whereas the commando order Was especially designed for and executed in western, and later in southeastern, Europe, the commissar order was of principal importance on the Russian front. Unlike the commando order, it was not the result of, or issued in reply to, enemy action. On the contrary, it was issued and distributed nearly three weeks prior to the initial attack on the Soviet Union. Its words reflect, not the hurried decisions of men beleaguered, but the considered opinion of men who had pondered the conclusion sot forth.

The order was issued on 8 July 1941 by von Brauchitsch, as Commander-in-chief of the Army. That the authors were aware of the criminal character of its contents, is apparent from the restricted distribution instructions which it bore. It was "For General officers only. To be delivered through officers only.....You are requested to limit the distribution to Commanders-in-Chief of Armies or Air Forces, respectively, and to inform junior commanders by word of mouth". It provided, in part:

When fighting Bolshevism, one cannot count on the enemy acting in accordance with the principles of humanity or international law. In particular, it must be expected that tho treatment of cur prisoners by the political commissars of all types who are the true pillars of resistance, will be cruel, inhuman and dictated by hate.

The German troops must realize:

1. That in this fight, it is wrong to treat such elements with clemency and consideration in accordance with international law. They are a menace to our own safety and to the rapid pacification of the Conquered territories.
2. That the originators of the Asiatic barbaric methods of fighting are the political commissars. They must be dealt with promptly and with the utmost severity.

Therefore , if taken while fighting, they are offering resistance and they must, on principle, be shot immediately.....

....These commissars will not be recognized as soldiers; protection granted to prisoners--of-war in accordance with international law will not apply to them. After having been segregated, they are to be dealt with.

When the defendant Weichs received this order as Commander-inChief of the Second Army, he was not in combat but in the quiet of a then secure Germany. His army had just been withdrawn from the southeast, and he had returned to Germany; his army was in reserve and was not committed in actual combat until July on the eastern front. Weichs distributed the order to the subordinate commanders in his Army, and they in turn passed it down to the troops. The prosecution will introduce evidence showing that others among the defendants also distributed and executed this order.

The Second Army had been in the front line in Russia but a few days when reports began to come in to Weichs' headquarters, showing that the order had been carried out. Indeed, Weichs' headquarters appeared to have been especially interested in the effect which this order was having in actual combat; on 9 September 1941, his Chief of Staff advised the next higher headquarters (Army Group Center) that the commissars were fighting tenaciously and setting a courageous example for the Soviet troops. He further stated, that there was no evidence that the Soviet forces were taking any measures by way of reprisal.

Typical, reports from the corps commanders in the Second Army to Weichs Headquarters read as follows:

Up to 25 July, 3 commissars eliminated by the 293rd Division.

From 25 to 27 July, 4 commissars eliminated.

This order, like the commando order, called for the deliberate murder of prisoners-of-war. One's private feelings about political commissars, favorable or unfavorable, have absolutely nothing to do with the case. They were regularly attached to Soviet units, they fought in full Soviet uniform, and, as the documents show, they fought with great courage.

Your Honor, would this be a convenient time for a break? The prosecution has perhaps another hour and ten minutes.

THE PRESIDENT: I guess we'd better proceed for about a half hour.

GENERAL TAYLOR: Before concluding. Your Honor, I made the suggestion to inquire whether the translators still have enough German pages left to continue.

 Mr. Frank advised me they have only five pages they have translated, and with a break of ten minutes we probably would be able to get the rest of the German up here so that we will be able to go through without a break.

THE PRESIDENT: The court will recess for ten minutes.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: General Taylor, before you continue with your opening statement, may I inquire -- I started to say before you conclude your opening statement, may I inquire as to whether or not you will be able to conclude this afternoon and give us time for the submission of these motions?

GENERAL TAYLOR: Yes, Your Honor, we will be finished before four o' clock?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

GENERAL TAYLOR: I would like to explain, Your Honor -- that the responsibility for the delay in translation is mine and not the interpreters. I did not give them this material until very late yesterday, and they have done very well to get it ready by now.

Before concluding, the prosecution wishes to outline its views on certain legal questions which are sure to be discussed in the course of this trial. No doubt the Tribunal may desire a fuller discussion of these matters at a later date, but we think that a few remarks at this time may be of assistance.

Certain points may be passed over briefly, The defendants may contend, for example, that the crimes charged against them were committed under the compulsion of orders from their military superiors. As has been stated, their own military law is to the contrary. Paragraph 7 of the German Military Penal Code is quite clear and states:

If execution of an order given in line of duty violates a statute of the penal code, the superior giving that order alone is held responsible for it. The subordinate obeying that order, however, is liable to punishment as an accessory in the event...that he was aware that the order involved an act the commission of which constituted a common or a military crime or offense.

In any event, the London Charter and Control Council Law No. 10 are governing. Paragraph 4 (b) of Article II of Law No. 10 states:

The fact that any person acted pursuant to the order of his Government or of a superior does not free him from responsibility for a crime, but may be considered in mitigation.

So far as the plea of mitigation is concerned, should any of the defendants succeed in bringing themselves within the scope of this provision, the prosecution will suggest that it has little, if any, application to persons holding the high military rank of these defendants. There may be room for application of this provision in the lower ranks of the military, but if it is to be applied to fieldmarshals and generals, the whole doctrine of responsibility for the commission of war crimes would be absurdly limited and rendered totally ineffective. And, as the International Military Tribunal declared in finding Keitel and Jodl guilty.¹ Superior orders, even to a soldier, cannot be considered in mitigation where crimes as shocking and extensive have been committed consciously, ruthlessly, and without military excuse or justification.

But there are a few legal matters which have a more substantial bearing on this case. These include the principles of international law and the qualifications of belligerents. We do not believe that these principles will have any decisive bearing on the outcome of this proceeding; no doubt there are many delicate and unsettled questions pertaining to hostages and belligerents, but the defendants so frequently, so deliberately, and so far transgressed the outer-most boundaries of what might be justified or defended as not unlawful, that in the final analysis no such difficult problems will confront us.

I shall deal first with Hostages and Reprisals:

The concepts of "hostage" and "reprisal" both derive from relations between nations, or between their opposing armed forces, and not from the relations between a nation or its armed forces on the one hand and the civilian population of an occupied territory on the other. This circumstance is not infrequently overlooked, and perhaps accounts for the lack of precision in much of the writing on these subjects. In war time, reprisals are actions taken by a nation or its agents in order 1. Vol.

to prevent an enemy from continuing to violate the laws of war. Thus, if on one side, hospital ships are constantly being attacked, or the protective symbol of the Red Cross ignored, the other side is entitled to take action by way of reprisal in order to dissuade the enemy from continuing his lawful course of conduct. Retaliatory action so taken may include actions which would themselves be violations of the laws of war but for the circumstance that the acts were done as legitimate reprisals. Reprisal actions need not be identical with the unlawful act which gave rise to the reprisals, but they should not in quantity or character, be out of keeping with or disproportionate to the enemy actions which they seek to stop. Reprisals may, in some circumstances, be taken against a civilian population of an enemy country. For instance, if two belligerents are each occupying a portion of the other's territory, and one of them mistreats the inhabitants in a manner not permitted by international law, the other belligerent might take similar action in the territory under its occupational control. But in such a case, the penalties would be inflicted upon the civilians of the enemy country for the purpose of persuading the enemy government to discontinue an unlawful course of action, and not for the purpose of punishing the civilian inhabitants themselves. Indeed it is basic to the law of reprisals that although they are in a sense retaliatory, their purpose is not revenge but correction of the enemy's behavior.¹ The practice of taking or exchanging hostages is very ancient; its original purpose was to insure the performance on both sides of treaties or agreements mutually entered into.

The hostages were in the nature of a pledge offered to guarantee a certain course of behavior. In more recent time, hostages have been taken not only to 1. Oppenheim, International Law, Vol.

secure the performance of treaties, but also to enforce the payment of requisitions, to protect or secure the return of individuals held by the enemy, and for other like purposes. It will be observed that, at bottom, the purpose of taking hostages is to put oneself in a position where reprisals can be taken if the enemy (or, in time of peace, the other party to the agreement) does not follow a lawful or an agreed upon course of action. It is for this reason that a distinguished author in the field of international law has said "the whole question of hostages is bound up with the question of reprisals."¹ 1. J. M. Spaight, War Rights on Land, p. 469 (1911). Beginning with the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71, and probably before that, it has frequently occurred that hostages are taken from the civilian population of an occupied territory, not in order to affect the course of conduct of the government to which these civilians owe allegiance, but in order to control the conduct of the civilian inhabitants themselves.

This practice has been most frequently adopted by the Germans, for no other reason than that during the last eighty years, they have been most frequently in the situation of occupying the territory of a belligerent adversary. However, other nations have from time to time taken hostages for this purpose, most noticeably the British during the Boer War.

The practice of taking hostages from the civilian population of an occupied territory in order to insure the peaceful behavior of the inhabitants has been much criticized,¹ but is acknowledged as lawful by the great majority of text writers and, in the light of actual practice it certainly can not be considered as a war crime. But the taking of hostages for such a purpose is not, strictly speaking, a reprisal at all, because it is not "a measure which is especially aimed at the enemy's method of waging war and which aims to force the enemy government or armed forces to abandon measures which are contrary to the laws of war."² Although frequently called a reprisal, such a taking of hostages is really a "police" or "security" measure. There is no opposing government or Military Commander with whom the occupying 1. Hyde, International Law, Vol.

3, pp. 1902-03 (1945); "While the taking of hostages by the occupant may, under certain circumstances, operate as a reasonable mode of securing compliance by a restive population with a just demand designed to promote the maintenance of order, occurrences in the course of World War 1 encourage the conclusion that it is also a weapon likely to be employed by a despot to check interference of any sort with ruthless and cruel acts inspired by caprice."

2. Ascan Lutteroth, Der Geisel im Rechtsleben, p. 243 (1922).

power can deal on belligerent terms. From both a military and legal standpoint, the taking of hostages or any other kind of oppressive action for the purpose of maintaining order in occupied territories must be considered from the standpoint of the right and responsibilities of the inhabitants under international law, and the probable effect of the measure upon their course of conduct. Steps which might be quite effective in order to persuade an enemy government to alter its course of conduct might be quite ineffective when addressed to the inhabitants of an occupied territory, and vice versa.

As Professor Lauterpacht, Professor of International Law at Cambridge University and a scholar who is both distinguished and modern, has pointed out:¹the impact of the operation of reprisals is not as considerable as would appear at first sight.

In particular, it does not seriously affect that most potent source of war crimes which originates in the lawlessness and the brutality of the occupying State.

This brings us to the question whether, if hostages are taken to insure peaceful and orderly behavior on the part of the civilian population of an occupied territory, the hostages may lawfully be executed if violent conduct by members of the population continues to endanger the security of the occupying forces. The Hague regulations of 1907 do not contain any express provisions concerning either the taking or the execution of hostages in occupied territory. They do provide, however, in Articles 43 and 46, respectively, of the Annex to the Convention, that:

The authority of the legitimate power having in fact passed into the hands of the occupant, the latter shall take all the measures in his power to restore, and ensure, as far as possible, public order and safety, while respecting, unless absolutely prevented the laws in force in the country.

Family honour and rights, the lives of persons, and private property, as well as religious convictions and practice, must be respected.

And, if these quoted provisions are not governing, we must take full account of the declaration in the preamble to the Hague Convention, that:

1. H. Lauterpacht, The Law of Nations and the Punishment of War Crimes, printed in "the British Year Book of International Law", p. 77 (1944) It has not, however, been found possible at present to concert Regulations covering all the circumstances which arise in practice:

On the other hand, the High Contracting Parties clearly do not intend that unforeseen cases should, in the absence of a written undertaking, be left to the arbitrary judgment of military commanders.

Until a more complete code of the laws of war has been issued, the High Contracting Parties deem it expedient to declare that, in cases not included in the Regulations adopted by them, the inhabitants and the belligerents remain under the protection and the rule of the principles of the law of nations, as they result from the usages established among civilized peoples, from the laws of humanity, and the dictates of the public conscience.

The majority of the text writers in the field of international law, ancient and modern, have determined, either from the unwritten usages of war, or by clear implication from the language of the Hague Convention, that the killing of hostages, under the circumstances and for the purposes with which we are here concerned, is unlawful, and that the continued confinement of hostages in as far as the occupying power is permitted to go. For example, Oppenheim sanctions the taking of hostages by the occupying power only "provided that he does not kill them."¹ The classical statement by Crotius that "hostages should not be put to death unless they have themselves done wrong"² is in accordance with the views of other old authorities and has been echoed in more recent times not only by Oppenheim but by Garner³ 1. Oppenheim, op.

cit. supra, Vol, 2, pp. 241-242.

3. J.W. Garner, International Law and the World War, Vol. 1, pp. 306-311 (1920) and others,⁴ As might be expected, in view of the German propensity for occupying the territory of neighboring countries, and the sustained practice of the German Army in recent decades, German scholars take the contrary view, and defend the execution of hostages as a necessary measure in the event of continued civil disturbances, dangerous to the security of the occupying forces.

⁵ A few English and American writers have expressed agreement with, this view and argue, theoretically rather than practically, that there is a fundamental absurdity in taking hostages if they can not be executed.¹ The military Field Manuals of the United States and England do not throw much light upon this problem.

The American manual states that "hostages taken and held for the declared purpose of insuring against unlawful acts by the enemy forces or people may be punished or put to death if the unlawful acts are nevertheless committed," but in practically the same breath states that "when a hostage is accepted, he is treated as a prisoner of war," and that "reprisals against prisoners of war are expressly forbidden by the Geneva Convention of 1929".² The British manual is not entirely clear either, but it contains the declaration that hostages are to suffer captivity, not death, if an agreement is violated.³ Despite these conflicting views in years gone by, the results of German practices with respect to hostages during the last two wars has led to more definitive declarations in accordance with the opinion ⁴. 271-274, April 1942.

which most authorities have always upheld. In January 1942, the representatives of nine European governments-in-exile, in the famous St. James Declaration, branded the execution of hostages as "part of a regime of terror" and categorically described such executions as punishable war crimes.⁴ The London Charter, in Article 6 (b), and Control Council Law No. 10 in paragraph 1 (b) of Article II, both recognize the "killing of hostages" as a war crime. The opinion of the International Military Tribunal makes repeated reference to the killing of hostages as a war crime.⁵ The prosecution suggests to the Tribunal that the execution of hostages, under the circumstances pertinent to this case, is quite definitely and clearly a crime under international law.

The provisions of Law No. 10 are not only binding upon the Tribunal, but are in accordance with the views which most authorities in the field have held for decades past. But in urging the rightness of this conclusion, the prosecution does not rely principally upon the weight of authority, however impressive. On the contrary, our position is based squarely upon practical considerations of military necessity. The fundamental tenet of the laws of war, as we said at the outset, is that human life should not be taken unnecessarily. Over the past decades, only the Germans have adopted a general practice of executing civilian hostages in order to maintain security in occupied territories. Occasional examples in the military history of the other western nations may perhaps be found, but there is absolutely no footing, either in the authorities or in practical experience, for the conclusion that the execution of hostages is ever really necessary. And, if not, such executions are in flat contradiction of Article 46 of the Annex to the Hague Conventions.

The short and conclusive answer to this much-mooted question is that the execution of hostages practically never achieves its intended effect. If the practice is once adopted on a systematic scale, it deteriorates rapidly into a barbaric blood bath. The officers and men of an occupying force will always find it easier to take vengeance on innocent civilians who can be readily rounded up than to track down the actual perpetrators and bring them to justice; it is only human nature, though scarcely a credit to it, that once the taking and killing of hostages is sanctioned, efforts to apprehend the real offenders will be slackened, and repeated breaches of security will be countered only by ever greater slaughter of hostages. Furthermore, the execution of hostages, far from frightening a rebellious people into submission, tends rather to deepen their hatred for the invaders and provoke them to renewed outbursts.

Even the timid and quiescent will be driven to resist, not so much out of patriotism, as because they are no longer sure that good behavior will safeguard their own security. When hostages are going executed at the rate of 100:1, there is no security for anyone. If women and children and old men of the most pacific disposition are liable to be put away in concentration camps and eventually executed because of violence in the surrounding countryside, they will soon feel much safer in the ranks of the insurgents than anywhere else.

And that is just what happened in the countries with which we have been chiefly concerned today. The truth of what I have just said should have become apparent to the Germans within a matter of weeks after large scale military operations in Yugoslavia had been concluded. It did become apparent to some of them, but they were not listened to. As early as the 31st of July 1941, a German lieutenant colonel in Belgrade wrote a report to the defendant List in which he said:

Though nothing is said publicly about the shooting of Jews and Communists as reprisal for acts of sabotage, these shootings have, however, made a deep impression in Belgrade.

It is doubtful whether the shooting will prevent a repetition of acts of sabotage. The saboteurs are to be looked for in the camp of the former Serbian officers, of the Cetniks as well as of the Communists, who have the common interest of creating unrest in the country and stirring up the population to boiling point against the occupation authorities. For their purpose the shooting of people who did not directly participate in the acts of sabotage is actually welcome.

One week later, another report from Belgrade stated:

Reprisal measures, as for instance the severity of the shooting of 81 persons collected haphazardly did not bring out pacification nor did it serve as an intimidation. On the contrary, the feeling of being plundered, chased away, or slaughtered with wife and child, either by criminal Ustaschi people in Bosnia or Herzogowina, or by robber elements, or to lose life and property as the casual object of reprisal at the hands of the Germans, has embittered and made desperate the otherwise quiet and politically indifferent and loyal parts of the Serbian population, who are automatically driven into the ranks of some kind of insurgent groups.

The German civil authorities in Belgrade were of the same opinion. A report dated 20 August, 1941, by an official of the Ministry of Interior to the Military Commander in Serbia, disclosed the following:

A German officer - a captain - was killed from ambush on the road Arandjelovac-Topola, 4 kilometers from Arandjelovac near the village of Banja on the morning of 16 August. The officer was going on duty by car to Belgrade. The offense was committed by a Communist who has remained unknown. This Communist had been lying in ambush in the cornfield and had fled through the corn to the woods after committing the deed.

Eleven young farmers working in the fields were captured and shot for this murder by the Germans at the place of the incident, a state of siege was declared for the entire district.

In order to combat Communist operations which had got out of hand during the last few days, the German headquarters sent a motorized assault troop which is at present going through all the villages, making arrests and - due to ignorance of the situation - is killing innocent men, women and children. All this is done on their own initiative, without inquiries and without any kind of close cooperation with the Administrative authorities at the Gendarmerie, although such cooperation is an absolute necessity for the combating of the Communist action and for exterminating the Communists in the woods. The District Office has available reports from which the movements of the Communists could be established and it also has at its disposal all personal data of the individual Communists. However, the German headquarters does not request anything nor does it ask the District Administration for any information, and is opposed to taking to any suggestion.

The consequence of the procedure of the German assault troupes will be that a large number of innocent people will be slaughtered and that the Communists in the woods not only will not be exterminated but will increase in numbers. Because many farmers, even entire villages – even though up to now they had no connection with the communists – will flee into the woods only out of fear and will be received there by the Communists. They will be provided with arms and used for combat and for open revolt against the German Wehrmacht.

This insurrection will develop on a large scale and will have incalculable and terrible consequences for the entire population.

There was no lack of these warnings. With respect to reprisal shootings carried out in the town of Kragujevac, the local German¹ commandant, a captain, reported to the Military Commander in Serbia:

1. It goes without saying that even those commentators who have defended the principle of executing hostages on the ground of military necessity make no defense of the German Army's practice of this principle. See Hammer and Salvin, op. cit. supra. pp. 26, 27–28 and 32; see also Stewell, Military Reprisals and the Sanctions of the Laws of War, in "The American Journal of International Law" (1942) According to my standpoint, shooting partly or completely innocent persons from this city can have directly harmful effects.

It is to be expected that embittered relatives of those shot will now practice acts of revenge on members of the German Wehrmacht.

Sabotage acts on drinking water and on the current temporary light supply, as well as a large attack of the bandits against the city, in which the units could suffer more losses than before, are not out of the realm of possibility. Above all, the psychological effect will be catastrophic. The residents of Kragujevac have expected of the German Wehrmacht the elimination of the Communist danger and the aligning into the new construction of Europe. With the methods used here, we shall not attain in any case the winning again of the favorably-inclined elements.

Two years later, the same Cassandra-like prophesies are found in the documents. No one can ever say that these defendants were not warned. In July 1943, Glaise-Horstenau, the German Plenipotentiary-General in Croatia, strongly admonished the German Air Force for reprisal actions by way of bombing villages, because, I quote, 'It only forces additional adversaries 'into the woods', and it does not help to pacify the country, but is detrimental and shake's the confidence in the German soldier of those parts of the population which are of good will'. But not until December 1943 did the German military leaders in the Balkans even pay lip service to these truths. Finally, Loehr's order of that month recognized that, and I quote:

"The procedure of carrying out reprisal measures after a surprise attack or an act of sabotage at random on persons and dwellings, in the vicinity, close to the scene of the deed, shakes the confidence in the justice of the occupying power and also drives the loyal part of the population into the woods."

But even this order was, in other aspects, so ambiguous that it did little to change those stupid and cruel policies. The slaughter of the innocent continued and the Germans reaped only a harvest of dragons' teeth.

The second set of principles of international law which are worthy of preliminary discussion at this time are those pertaining to the qualifications of belligerents. Under what circumstances are combatants entitled to belligerent status? Under what circumstances must they, if captured, be treated as prisoners-of-war, and under what circumstances may they be treated as a mere armed band and disposed of by summary execution?

These questions are especially relevant to Count Three of the indictment.

The Hague Regulations do deal with this question in Article 1 of the Annex which provides:

The laws, rights, and duties of war apply not only to armies, but also to militia and volunteer corps fulfilling the following conditions:

1. To be commanded by a person responsible for his subordinates;
2. To have a fixed distinctive emblem recognizable at a distance;
3. To carry arms openly; and 4. To conduct their operations in accordance with the laws and customs of war.

These requirements are traditional and generally accepted. To the extent that captured partisans in Greece and the Balkans did not observe them, we may concede that the Germans would have been within their rights in denying them the status of prisoners-of-war and executing them.¹ But this does not mean that all of us here in the courtroom could here and now form ourselves into a military company, choose a commander, wear a distinctive emblem, carry arms openly, and obey the laws and customs of war, and on that basis alone claim the right here and now to wage warfare and the status of prisoners-of-war if captured.

Obviously, the members of an armed group can not claim the status and rights of belligerents until a war has started. The determination of the starting point of a war may sometimes present problems, but ordinarily the far more difficult question is to ascertain when a war has stopped. In accordance with "the laws of humanity and the dictates of the public conscience", it is desirable that wars be stopped as soon as possible, and under some circumstances it may be wise to adopt a 1. Except insofar as the provisions of Article 2 of the Annex, relating to the so-called "levy on masse" may have applied, and except insofar as the Germans themselves, by committing the crime of waging aggressive war and, in their own operations, departing from the laws and customs of war, may have deprived themselves of the right to demand compliance with Article 1 on the part of the partisans.

fairly rigorous attitude when major military operations have come to and end, and declare that, after the signing of a treaty or armistice, the inhabitants of the defeated and occupied country, civilians and former soldiers alike, no longer have the right to carry on warfare and can not claim the status of belligerents.

On the other hand it can be, and is, often argued cogently and with the benefit of many examples from history, that nations can rise from apparent total defeat, long after the capitulation of their own former government, expel the invader, and ultimately achieve victory. As long as there is hope and particularly if there are strong allied nations as yet undefeated, true patriots of the conquered country will continue to offer desperate resistance to the invader, no matter what armistice or treaties may have been concluded with him.

The argument between the proponents of those two divergent approaches to the problem has been waged briskly ever since the representatives of the European powers met at Brussels in 1874 to formulate a code of war. In general, the powerful countries with large armies have tended to favor strict qualifications for belligerent status, and the smaller powers a very much more liberal set of rules.¹ It goes without saying that the Germans have been in the vanguard of the former group of powers.

The International Red Cross has consistently sought to extend the protection of the laws of war to the members of all substantial armed groups who meet the requirements of Article 1 of the Annex to the Hague Conventions.² We can not, in this proceeding, settle this thorny and complicated problem. And we do not need to.

1. An excellent discussion of these questions is contained in Nurick and Barrett, Legality of Guerrilla Forces in the Laws of War, in "The American Journal of International Law", pp. 563-583 "(July 1946.) See also I.P.Training, Questions of Guerrilla Warfare in the Law of War, in the same publication at pp. 534-562.

2. Rapport sur l'activite du Comite international de la CroixRouge en faveur des "partisans" tombes aux mains do l'ennemi, Geneva, October 1946.

To begin with, it will be quite clear that the war did not end in Yugoslavia in April or May, 1941. Article 42 of the Annex to the Hague Conventions states very clearly that:

A territory is considered occupied when it is actually placed under the authority of the hostile army. The occupation extends only to the territory where such authority has been established and can be exercised.

The second sentence quoted above is of special importance. No doubt the Germans, had they so chosen, could have left sufficient troops in Yugoslavia to establish their authority throughout the country. But they chose not to do this. They were pre-occupied with the forth-coming campaign in Russia, and pulled out their troops before hostilities had been fully concluded in practical effect and while large portions of the country, particularly in the mountains, were controlled by substantial enemy forces who announced openly that they would continue to resist. Whatever might be the rule in other circumstances, it was not open to the Germans to sweep through Yugoslavia, evacuate the bulk of their troops before their authority had been fully established, and then declare that all future resistance would be considered a violation of the laws of war.

Furthermore, the cause of the Yugoslavian and Greek resistance forces was at no time hopeless, as events have abundantly proved. Governments-in-exile were promptly established, under whose authority these forces continued their operations, indeed, long before the end of the war, there was an enemy government within Yugoslavia. Powerful allies of the Yugoslavs and Greeks continued to maintain armies in the field and to assist the resistance groups.

Furthermore, if we look at the question as presented in this case from a practical standpoint, we again discover that the case is not nearly so difficult as it seemed at first blush. If resistance forces consist only of a few small bands, whose activities are limited to sniping and minor sabotage and who enjoy no support from other powers, there may indeed be reason for denying them the status of belligerents.

1 But there can be no reason for such a policy when the enemy remains in large numbers, and fights in large units and with modern weapons. To deny his troops the status of belligerents under such circumstances will merely invite counter-reprisals against troops of the occupying power, and a senseless war of extermination may ensue. Even more important, such a policy will inevitably rally more and more inhabitants of the occupied country to the standard of the resistance forces. These very arguments were presented to Loehr and Lueters by Colonel Heinz, Commander of the 4th Brandenburg regiment, in July 1943. Discussing the impossibility of capturing Tito and his staff by orthodox military action, Heinz declared:

Such an elimination can only be achieved by former partisans in cooperation with the Brandenburg regiments.

The method followed up to now of shooting to death all partisans without distinction, could never be successful. Many became partisans by the combined influence of several circumstances such as Usaschi-Moslem-or Cetnik-atrocities, want and starvation, terror and duress by other partisans.

They stay partisans because the way back is blocked by the German orders. They have lost their country and their family, and so they fight to their death.

Since the political conditions in Croatia are not improving, now partisans replace those who are killed.

According to observations of my troop, it would have been possible to win over a certain percentage of the captured partisans for fighting on the German side, if their lives were spared and food, as well as their return to their homesteads later on, were guaranteed.

1. But the distinguished jurist, Oppenheim, would not even agree with this statement, Oppenheim, International Law, Sec. 60 (1928).

But the final and compelling answer to the question as it is presented in this case is that the Yugoslavs and Greeks alike, even assuming that they were completely conquered and their country wholly occupied and under German authority, had every right to rise and defend themselves by armed force because the German themselves so flagrantly violated the laws of war. True it is that the inhabitants of an occupied territory have responsibilities and duties as well as rights under the Hague Conventions. If the occupying forces comport themselves lawfully, the population is under a duty to remain peaceful and to refrain from endangering the security of the occupation troops. If the inhabitants do not fulfill these responsibilities, the occupying forces may take proper security measures, including retaliatory action, to re-establish order. But this works both ways. If the occupying forces inaugurate a systematic program of criminal terror, they can not thereafter call the inhabitants to account for taking measures in self defense. This is no technical doctrine of "unclean hands", this is elementary justice and common sense. What I have said nowhere appears in so many words in the Hague Conventions, but it is in entire harmony with the purpose of the articles, and I think no one will be heard to deny that this is the only conclusion which is possible in accordance with "the principles of the law of nations, as they result from the usages established among civilized peoples, from the laws of humanity, and the dictates of the public conscience."

In this case, ten thousand times ten thousand murders are charged, and for murder there is usually a motive. What moved these men to murder? Some of them religious, most of them well-educated. Some of them may now realize what they did was wrong, but, had the war ended otherwise than it did, I doubt that these things would have caused them many restless nights. Their policy of terror was a military failure, and an important cause of the defeat which has brought them to their present plight. Yet these men are certainly not without ability and some measure of understanding. Why did they not see what others saw so clearly?

I think that we can find the answer in two deep-seated characteristics of the German military mind. Whether the characteristics prove the inheritance of acquired characteristics, whether they spring from undiscernible geophysical factors, or whether they are the result of the curious and narrow training and indoctrination to which German officer candidates are subjected, one may leave to the educators, historians, psychologists and anthropologists. Today is the day of the jurists, and today it is sufficient to observe that the characteristics of which I speak led these men, and others of their caste, into crime.

One of these qualities is that their every thought and impulse is geared to a world in which Germany is at war, in which Germany is attacking and invading, in which Germany is conquering and occupying. Lacking such conditions, their world is in a state of suspended animation. Their martial fantasies have permeated German scholarship and, by the latter part of the nineteenth century, had thoroughly poisoned the most distinguished German minds. It was the great German historian and philosopher Treitschke who declared:¹ It is not for Germans to repeat the commonplaces of the apostles of peace or of the priests of Mammon, nor should they close their eyes before the cruel necessities of the age.

Yes, ours is an epoch of war, our age is an age of iron. If the strong get the better of the weak, it is an inexorable law of life.

For the German militarist, other nations exist only to be conquered by Germany. They persist in the illusion that the other nations will benefit thereby, and are often sincerely puzzled when their occupying armies are treated coldly. This, too, we find Treitschke:^{1a} We Germans, who know Germany and France, know better what is good for Alsace than the unhappy people themselves, who through their French associations have lived in ignorance of the new Germany.

We will give them back their own identity against their will. We have in the enormous 1. J. H. Morgan, The German War Book, p.42 (1915) ^{1a}.

Morgan, op. cit. supra. p. 46 changes of these times too often seen in glad astonishment the immortal working of the moral forces of History to be able to believe in the value of a plebiscite on this matter.

We invoke the men of the past against the present.

With such a point of view towards war and the rights of German conquerors, it is no wonder that German military leaders have little or no respect for the laws of war or the dignity of peoples who may come under their way. This is because they do not value, and in fact are contemptuous of, the reasons which underlie those rules. "If the strong get the better of the weak, it is an inexorable law of life, " This attitude shows only too clearly in the "German War Book" -- the manual of the usages of war on land, issued by the Great General Staff (Gorss General Stab) of the German army. In the introduction to this manual, we read:¹ Nowadays it is not only the army which influences the spirit of the customs of war and assures recognition of its unwritten laws.

Since the almost universal introduction of conscription, the people themselves exercise a profound influence upon this spirit. In the modern usages of war, one can no longer regard merely the traditional inheritance of the ancient etiquette of the profession of arms, and the professional outlook accompanying it, but there is also the deposit of the currents of thought which agitate our time. But since the tendency of thought of the last century (i.e. the 19th century) was dominated essentially by humanitarian considerations which not infrequently degenerated into sentimentality and flabby emotion, there have not been wanting attempts to influence the development of the usages of war in a way which was in fundamental contradiction with the nature of war and its object. Attempts of this kind will also not be wanting in the future, the more so as these agitations have found a kind of moral recognition in provisions of the Geneva Convention and the Brussels and Hague conferences.

In this case, the second marked characteristic of the German officer caste comes into sharp focus - their profound contempt, mingled with fear, of the peoples of Eastern Europe. Again and again this emerges in the orders to their troops and the reports to their superiors. We hear this note in Keitel's order of September, 1941, declaring that "a human like in unsettled countries frequently counts for nothing". Von Weichs, when he inaugurated the 100:1 ratio a few 1. Morgan, op.

months earlier, responded, to the same inner feeling. These orders, too, are echoes of Treitschke, whose voice, spanning over half a century, is heard, to say:¹ Each dragoon who knocks a Croat on the head does far more for the German cause than the finest political brain that ever wielded a trenchant pen.

What these men have never realized is that no caste, and no notion, however mighty, can hold the world in contempt and set its laws at naught. Their military downfall was due, in no small part, to crimes such as those with which they are charged.

What we have said may explain, hut it does not condone. We may try to understand, but it is not ours to forgive. What these men did they meant to do.

There are only 11 men physically present in the dock, but they do not stand there alone. In a sense, they are hostages for the judgment which history will pass on many others like them. But they are more fortunate than the hostages we have heard so much about today. They will not be punished for the crimes of other men. Centuries ago, Grotius wrote that "hostages should not be put to death unless they have themselves done wrong." That is the law of humanity, the law which they themselves are charged with transgressing. And that is the law under which they will be judged.

GENERAL TAYLOR: This concludes the statement, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: This, I take it, concludes the Opening Statement on behalf of the Prosecution. The Prosecution having stated that this concludes that portion of these proceedings, the Court will now give consideration to certain motions which have been presented to it concerning procedural matters, and a motion for continuance or adjournment for a certain period of time. The first motion which will receive consideration is that concerning the request for removal of these 1. Garner, op.

cit. supra, p. 43.

proceedings to a later date, which has been presented by counsel for the defendant. We will hear from the defense at this time.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, Honorable Judges, the application in question is already in the hands of the Tribunal in writing. That is merely just an additional reason which I would like to add, which in my opinion will be the decisive one, so that the motion will be granted. The defense is engaged in obtaining evidence, and considerable difficulties have occurred in this connection, and because, up to the end of the month of June, two American camps were dissolved. The inmates have partly been released, and some of them were transferred to other camps so that the defense is not now in possession of the addresses of witnesses whom we wish to call. This, of course, is an additional difficulty and an additional reason which I would like to state in order to give additional weight to the application of the defense, and that is all that I wish to say in connection with that question.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal desires to make some inquiries at this time. I understand that there are only three counsels who are affected.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, might I add that I should like to repeat the application with the agreement of all the defense counsels in this trial.

THE PRESIDENT: Perhaps Mr. Denney could make some reply at this time and expedite the matter.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honor, the application of which Dr. Laternser speaks is dated 11 July and was served on us, the Prosecution, last evening, and our memorandum in reply was given to the Secretary General this morning, just before the Court convened. At that time Dr. Laternser was given a copy in English, and I believe that it has not as yet been translated into the German. The motion, or rather the application, as presented by Dr. Laternser is signed by six of the nine counsel. The first point which is urged is the fact that at the present time most of the defense counsel are engaged in other trials, which are now approaching their conclusion.

To my knowledge the only trial which is presently approaching its conclusion is the Trial No. 1, before Military Tribunal No. 1, the United States against Karl Brandt and others. Three of the nine counsel who represent defendants in this cause have clients in cause No. 1 before Military Tribunal No. 1. They are Dr. Weissberger, Dr. Marx, and Dr. Sauter. The application for adjournment was signed by Dr. Weissberger and Dr. Marx, each of whom has one client in this cause, one of whom has one client before Military Tribunal No. 1, and the other of whom, Dr. Marx, has two clients before Military Tribunal No. 1. The third counsel appearing in this cause, Dr. Sauter, has two clients before this Court and two clients in causes before Military Tribunal No. 1, but it was not until Dr. Laternser's statement of a moment ago that we were advised that he joined in the application.

He did not sign the original application dated 11 July.

Secondly, the counsel for the defense urge that only one week will have elapsed between the opening session, if no adjournment is granted, and the time when the proceedings were commenced by the arraignment. I might call the court's attention to the rules, the uniform rules of procedure, Military Tribunal of Nurnberg, 1 April 1947, OMGUS. Rule 26 provides, in part, to defense counsel representing multiple defendants, I quote--"No adjournment or delay shall be granted any defendant on the ground that his counsel is engaged in the trial of another cause before a separate tribunal."

Rule 4 of the same rules makes provision with reference to time intervening before service and trial. This rule provides a period of not less than thirty days shall intervene between the service of the indictment upon a defendant and the day of his trial pursuant to the indictment.

There is no provision in the rules which makes it mandatory in a cause that there be any specified time between the arraignment and the commencement of the trial. In the instant case, more than sixty days, or over twice the statutory period, rather the time required by the rules, have elapsed since the indictment was served on the defendants.

As to the fourth ground urged by Dr. Laternser this afternoon, the fact that the Office of Military Government, United States for Germany, had dissolved two American camps and that they have had difficulty in obtaining addresses and hence have not been able to collect their evidence--it is submitted that they can continue to endeavor to collect evidence at the time that the case is going forward, which we anticipate will take several weeks.

Further, with reference to the documents, we plan to present approximately 325 in the Prosecution's Case, in chief, of these 428 have already been made available to the Defense Information Center and approximately 400 of these have been furnished for use of defense counsel prior to the first of July, and it is respectfully submitted by the Prosecution that the application for the postponement which has been made by defense counsel through Dr. Laternser be denied.

DR. LATERNSE: Mr. President, I should like to draw attention to the fact that it is not true that only three of my colleagues are active in other trials. Yesterday, I ascertained on a conference with my colleagues that there are six of them who are thus engaged, some of them in the medical trial, some of them in the SS trial and they are particularly overburdened with work at the moment since some of them are preparing their pleas and others are at present dealing with their own defense case.

There is one more point dealing with documents. Naturally, we have for some time had the documents of the prosecution for our perusal but those documents are so voluminous that during the short period which we had at our disposal we have had no opportunity for going through them as thoroughly as is essential for speedy and simple development of these proceedings and that is all that I have to add to the application for an adjournment.

HR. DENNEY: Your Honor, please may I say one thing in reply to what Dr. Laternser said about other counsel being engaged? I mentioned only the military--or the medical case, because of the fact that paragraph one of the application reads as follows and I quote: "Host of the defense counsel are at present time still engaged in other trials which are now approaching their conclusion; in the physicians' trial, for example, the final pleadings will be held by the defense next week (which is this week, this memorandum being dated the 11th). For those pleadings, the presence of all the defense counsel is absolutely necessary."

I am not unaware that other counsel are acting in cases No.6, No.4 and.

No. 3. However, I have talked, with counsel for the prosecution in cases 4, 6, and 3, and have been advised by all of them that those cases are not approaching conclusion. Therefore, I would urge the court that Dr. Laternser's motion be limited to the specifications he makes in the first paragraph of his application to the effect that they are engaged in trials now approaching their conclusion. I was not aware that he was urging on this court the fact that other counsel have clients in other cases. I am, in fact, prepared to furnish the court with a list of co-counsel with Dr. Laternser who are in cases other than case one, but to my knowledge that was not raised by the application--or, so far as I was concerned, the question was not raised by the application.

THE PRESIDENT: The motion as presented will be considered submitted to this Tribunal and we shall rule shortly upon this motion. We shall not do so at this time.

INTERPRETER FRANCK: We did not hear you.

THE PRESIDENT: I shall repeat the statement that I previously made. The Tribunal will not rule upon this motion which has now been submitted at this time but we shall presently do so before the final adjournment of this Tribunal session. We shall now proceed with the submission of the second motion which concerns the seating of certain counsel for the defendants.

DR. LATERNSE: I believe, Mr. President, there is an erratic transition under way. The further application made by the defense is aiming at the cancellation of a measure which is intended, through which the defendants who, up to now, have remained in solitary confinement in the prison should be accommodated in pairs in solitary cells. As I heard of such an intention, I made an application to the effect that I am asking the Tribunal to decide that such a joint confinement of defendants of two in one cell should be refrained from, because the Defense----

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt, please? This Tribunal has not been furnished any such motion at this time. We have had presented to us an application concerning the seating of counsel, and that is--these two motions are the only ones that have been presented and sent to our respective offices.

DR. LATERNSE: Quite. Mr. President, the application which I have touched upon just now has been submitted to me in writing but I am able to present it to you immediately because the Defense is greatly interested in the decision about the application which we are now dealing with. In the event of the intended measures being carried out, the Defense would feel that their case would thus be limited and we wish to prevent such an occurrence from being realized.

Mr. President, as we have been informed, the defendants who up to now were accommodated in solitary confinement in the prison are now to be accommodated in pairs of two in a solitary confinement cell. We have further been informed that the reason for such procedure is supposed to be that just recently there have been individual cases of attempted suicides. The realization of the measure which appears to be intended is objected to very strongly by the defense. Apart from the fact that it wouldn't be proper that one defendant should be made the watchdog for another defendant, the prison cells are only designed for one inhabitant and consequently their measurement is too small for two defendants. For that reason alone, the joining of two defendants in such a cell would represent a very severe measure which, psychologically speaking, would affect the defendants most unfavorably. In addition to that, on health grounds this measure would have disadvantages since this space is too small for two defendants and circulation too is restricted, particularly with regard to the trial which is now about to start, and which will make considerable demands to the mental powers of the defendants, everything must be avoided which would result in a disturbance of a defendant.

On the trial days, for instance, defendants only have the evening hours to afford them the opportunity to work through the record of the trial and to prepare for the next day. Since the lighting arrangement of the cells is done from the outside, however, defendants have had to make do of it, that they pushed their little table to the door through which the light was coming in. In that manner, at least one defendant can, in a make shift way read. A second table would not find room for such an arrangement in such a cell and certainly not get enough light for the second defendant too to be able to read.

I conclude, if therefore, this pending measure were carried out then this would have to be regarded as a considerable impediment of the possibilities of the defendants. Yet, the defense is of the opinion that something that has been possible up to now must also be possible if it is of even greater importance at this point.

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honor this is the first that the prosecution has heard about the intended re-arrangement in the jail and it is submitted that we have nothing to do with it. However, I am advised that the jail facilities are becoming somewhat crowded and that may, at least in part, account for the change of the billeting arrangements there. That is all we have to say about it.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will now give consideration to the matter of seating, of counsel and will give consideration later to the comments made by counsel for defendants and the prosecution. Do you wish to submit the matter of seating of counsel at this time?

DR. LATENSER: Yes, Mr. President. Mr. President, as my colleagues just tell me, we have no objection to the seating arrangement just as we find it here just now.

THE PRESIDENT: There has been presented to this Tribunal a motion which is signed by Dr. Laternser in which he requests that, "My assistant be permitted to take a seat next to me during the session of the Military Tribunal. Due to the fact that I have two defendants I may need the assistance of Dr. Lucht during the sessions." It was to this request that I made reference.

DR. LATERNSEER: I have already been informed by Mr. Wartens, who is the defense administrator that this application has already been granted so I hadn't thought of it any more because I had already been told that it was all right and I thought the matter had been dealt with.

THE PRESIDENT: That being true the Tribunal does not find it necessary to give consideration to that matter. The court will stand in short recess while we give consideration to the matters as submitted.

We will not adjourn at this time but will return shortly.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, may I touch upon one point, about two minutes. As, Mr. President, you will no doubt have noticed, at the beginning of this afternoon's session there were very few defense counsel present. This was due to the fact that one hour for lunch interval does not suffice for us to eat.

May I be brief in explaining why this is so. All counsel from all the trials eat in one mess. Since all trials adjourn simultaneously at 1230, at or about this time everybody crowds together so that it is difficult to get food quickly. I am awfully sorry to bring it up but there it is. I, therefore suggest that perhaps we might choose 1215 for the mid-day recess so that we wouldn't have to get mixed up in the crowd and we would then be able to manage with one hour, fifteen minutes luncheon recess. It can't be done any other way. So, my application is for adjournment from 1215 to 1330. I have been told that in other trials such lunch time recess has already been set at one hour and fifteen minutes.

THE PRESIDENT: I might say to counsel for defendants that the members of the Tribunal are also suffering from the same inconvenience at times, in finding our time is limited in connection with our lunch period.

DR. LATERNSEER: But, Mr. President, we, the counsel, don't eat in this building. We have to walk about 500 yards, 4 - 500 yards, in order to get to the point where we eat.

THE PRESIDENT: May I make inquiry? Do you not think it might be well for the several Tribunals to give consideration to this request so that it might be worked out on a schedule basis rather than just this Tribunal alone.

DR. LATERNSEER: Quite, Mr. President. That suits me, Mr. President.

THE PRESIDENT: I shall take it up with the presiding judges of the several tribunals.

DR. LATERNSEER: Quite. Thank you very much, Mr. President.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in short recess and will return later.

(a recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: In connection with the several motions on applications which have been presented, the Tribunal wishes to make the following announcements. As to the matter of adjournment for lunch so as to permit counsel for defendants to have sufficient time, we have decided that is a matter which should be taken up with the presiding judges of the several tribunals, and I shall do so and will report later, and if I should fail to do so, may I ask that counsel present the matter later.

In connection with the motion for -- or application relative to the placing of -- or rather the objection of placing the defendants two in a cell, the Tribunal wishes to state that there has been no formal motion or application presented, and in order that there may be a record in writing, the Tribunal will defer any ruling upon that matter until it is formally presented in writing.

In connection with the motion for a continuance or adjournment for a two-week period, this Tribunal is of the opinion that it should be denied, and it is denied. There has been some two months, or approximately two months, since the indictment was returned. Members of this Tribunal have been here for approximately one month. We do not wish to in any way limit or circumscribe the rights of any of these defendants, but we do feel that this case should proceed as promptly and as rapidly as possible. It will take some time for the prosecution to present its case, and after that, it will take some time for the defendants --the respective defendants to present their case; and we are of the opinion that during that period, all parties will have sufficient time to digest the documents which have been presented, will have sufficient time to contact the witnesses that are desired and to obtain these witnesses. If any necessity should arise or if a brief adjournment might be necessary at some later time, the Court will give some consideration to that matter; but we feel that this Trial should proceed now, and that we should enter in with the presentation of the evidence on behalf of the prosecution. Therefore, the motion for a continuance for a two-week period as previously stated will be denied. In that connection, I also might state that we gave consideration to the fact that even though some of the counsel may be required to be absent for a day or a portion of a day, there is furnished to them copies of these proceedings and a transcript of all that has transcribed, and we do not feel that the rights of the defendants will in any way be effected. Court will therefore stand in adjournment until tomorrow morning at 9:30 at the place to which has been assigned the trial of Case No. 7 for Tribunal number 5, which is known to counsel for the prosecution, and I believe, to counsel for the defendants. The Tribunal will therefore stand in adjournment until tomorrow morning.

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List, et al, defendants, sitting at Nuernberg, Germany, on 16 July 1947, 0930, Justice Wennerstrum presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find-their-seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V. Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal. There will be order in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, have you ascertained if all the defendants are in the courtroom?

THE MARSHAL: May it please Your Honors, all the defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Prosecutor, are you ready to proceed?

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honors, in order that the Court may be familiar with the process of procuring the documents which was indulged in by the prosecution, I would like at this time to have Mr. Fenstermacher, pro-counsel in the case, make a statement for the record with reference to the manner in which these documents were procured.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: May it please Your Honors, when the American army invaded Germany and the German army capitulated, we captured in Berlin most of the files of the German Wehrmacht. Those files were removed to Washington and they now repose in warehouses in or near Washington and the bulk of them, about 250 tons, are now in the Pentagon Building in Washington.

When we began to prepare this case, we hired about ten research analysts, people who understand the German language, to screen those documents and during the past six months those people have been going through these documents picking out those which relate to material in which we are interested in this case and sending them over to us.

We instructed the analysts working on this case to pick out certain excerpts and if they found a file of the army group "F", or a corps or division under it, we asked them to screen it, look for the material that was relevant and send over to us here in Nuernberg only that with which we were concerned.

We could not ship 250 tons of German documents here to Nuernberg. That was impossible.

Once the documents were received in Nuernberg, we had additional research analysts again screen them and again certain excerpts of these documents would be marked off and those excerpts are the ones which we have now had translated into English and which appear in the English version of our document books, and their German counterparts appear in the German document books. Those documents, once they were screened here in Nuernberg under the supervision of both a lawyer and other experienced research analysts, received a document number here.

Now, we have tried to be very fair in picking out excerpts. I instructed the people that were assisting me on this case; as they came across material in the documents which related to matters in which the defense would no doubt be interested, I instructed them to mark off those sections of the documents and to also translate those portions; and as they will appear in the English version of the document book, as we come to introduce them, it is our desire to read those portions which perhaps injure the prosecution's case; and should we fail to do that and the Court wishes to call our attention to it, I am sure we will read it into the record so that it will appear at that time.

We have then placed ourselves in somewhat of a trustee relationship with this material. We cannot bring it all physically from Washington to Nuernberg but we instructed our people in Washington and we instructed our people here to extract those portions which were relevant and material to the allegations which we have set forth in the indictment.

I think, Your Honors, that will give you somewhat of an understanding of the problem with which we were faced in screening this material and of the problem that was before us as to what documents and what excerpts to use. We tried to be completely objective about it and to protect, in screening this tremendous amount of material, the interests of the defense as well as of ourselves.

DR. LATERNSEER (Counsel for defendant List): Your Honors, in reply to the statement made by the prosecution, I would like to state my attitude quite briefly because I think this necessary already at this stage of the proceedings. The prosecution has just said that that material which they had sent to Nuernberg from Washington was only material which interested the prosecution. Therefore, I can assume that mainly incriminating material was selected, a fact that I can well understand from the standpoint of the prosecution.

I would like, therefore, to ask that, first of all, the defense be given permission to go through that material which is now in Nuernberg so that we can proceed to the truth. I would, therefore, ask the Tribunal to have the prosecution let us, first of all, go through the material which the prosecution does not want to use here in Nuernberg.

DR. SAUTER (Counsel for defendants Lanz and Geitner): Your Honors, in addition to the statements made by Dr. Laternser just now, I would like to make a concrete request. The prosecution bases its case to a large extent on war diaries, war diaries which the individual units of the German Wehrmacht made on the Balkans. In Germany -- and it is probably the same in America -- each unit, each division, each regiment had to make an official war diary. These war diaries were, as far as I know, saved and are now in the hands of the prosecution. They are, of course, documents which have a special power of evidence and these war diaries are made for the purpose of being able to reconstruct all matters at a later time.

Now, most of the accused generals are, for the most part, dependent on these war diaries for information with regard to events which happened at that time and few of them -- I repeat -- and few of them made these war diaries for their own use, but for the troops, and therefore only few of the generals kept detailed notes about their experiences during the war time.

If we want precise statements about the events in the Balkans, it is urgently necessary that we have insight into these war diaries, i.e. of course as soon as possible, because these war diaries include many volumes and, if the defense is supposed to go through the diaries in time so that the progress of the trial is not delayed, then we must get insight into these war diaries as soon as possible.

Therefore, Your Honors, this is a concrete request which I am stating on behalf of my clients Lanz and Geitner. I think I am also speaking in the name of all the other defendants. Without these war diaries the defendants cannot make reliable statements about the places, times, and reports, and we want to help the Court to get the most reliable and precise reports and statements which each defendant here can confirm under oath. Therefore, Your Honors, I would like to ask that, as far as possible, you would have the prosecution let us have this material and make use of it.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, the material which we have here in Nurnberg has been furnished about 90 per cent to the defendants' counsel. They have much more material than we have here in the document books. We will certainly be glad to let them see the other five or ten per cent that we have not given them up to now. We can make an arrangement whereby they can go over it in the office, with one of the members of the staff for the prosecution.

Now about the request of Dr. Sauter, concerning the war diaries, these diaries are just running accounts of operational reports, and we have taken the material that has to do with a particular happening—the entries on either side of it in some cases, where they have a bearing on it, have been extracted and sent over, and I am not at all sure that we will be able to get all of the war diaries over from Washington.

THE PRESIDENT: May I inquire, Mr. Denney, has the defense counsel any representative in Washington?

MR. DENNEY: Not so far as I know, they do not.

THE PRESIDENT: Why don't they?

MR. DENNEY: I do not know, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there anything further?

THE PRESIDENT: This Tribunal is of the opinion that these defendants should have access to all materials that they feel are essential for the defense of their respective clients; counsel should have access to the material. The Court is interested, and I am sure that all of the parties are interested in getting down to the real facts in the case, so that the attitude of the prosecution will be that this Tribunal wants to feel, when it has completed its deliberations and that defense counsel and defendants will also feel, that they have been given every opportunity to present their case in the manner in which they see fit.

Now when I make that statement, I trust that it will not be, —our liberality will not be abused. We are anxious to try this case as rapidly as possible, but the trying of the case rapidly must not sacrifice the rights of the defendants, and may I suggest that the spokesman for the defense, and the defendants contact the prosecution and work it out with them, for the obtaining of such additional material as they may feel is necessary, and if you should have any difficulties in connection with that material later, then you can present it to the court.

MR. DENNEY: If your honor please, at this time I should like to offer as Exhibit 1, an affidavit of 3 December, 1946, which is the Niebergall affidavit with which I believe some of the defense counsel are familiar, and read it into the record. It merely has to do with some procedural matters that are followed with reference to the documents in the document room.

I believe that most of the defense counsel are familiar with the affidavit, but for the purpose of the written record, it has been handed up to your honors. It is not in the document book.

It is dated 3 December 1946.

AFFIDAVIT 3 December 1946 I, FRED NIEBEGALL, A.G.O. D150636, of the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, do hereby certify as follows:

1. I was appointed Chief of the Document Control Branch, Evidence Division, Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes (hereinafter referred to as "OCC") on 2 October 1946.

2. I have served in the U.S. Army for more than 5 years, being discharged as a 1st Lieutenant, Infantry, on 29 October 1946. I am now a reserve officer with the rank of 1st Lieutenant in the Army of the U.S. of America. Based upon my experience as a U.S. Army Officer, I am familiar with the operations of the U.S. Army in connection with seizing and processing captured enemy documents. I served as Chief of Translations for CCC from 29 July 1945 until December 1945, when I was appointed liaison officer between Defense Counsel and Translation Division of OCC and assistant to the executive officer of the Translation Division.

In my capacity as Chief of the Document Control Branch, Evidence Division, OCC, I am familiar with the processing, filing, translation, and photostating of documentary evidence for the United States Chief of Counsel.

3. As the Army overran German occupied territory and then Germany itself, certain specialized personnel seized enemy documents, records and archives. Such documents were assembled in temporary centers. Later fixed document centers were established in Germany and Austria where these documents were assembled and the slow process of indexing and cataloguing was begun. Certain of these document centers have since been closed and the documents assembled there sent to other document centers.

4. In preparing for the trial before the International Military Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as "IMT") a great number of original documents, photostats, and microfilms were collected at Nurnberg, Germany. Major Coogan's affidavit of 19 November 1945 describes the procedures followed. Upon my appointment as Chief of the Document Control Branch, Evidence Division, OCC, I received custody, in the course of official business, of all these documents except the one's which were introduced into evidence in the IMT trial and are now in the IMT Document Room in Nurnberg. Some have been screened, processed, and registered in accordance with Major Coogan's affidavit. The unregistered documents remaining have been screened, processed, and registered for use in trials before Military Tribunals substantially in the same way as described below.

5. In preparing for trials subsequent to the IMT trial personnel thoroughly conversant with the German language were given the task of searching for and selecting captured enemy documents which disclosed information relating to the prosecution of Axis war criminals.

Lawyers and Research Analysts were placed on duty at various document centers and also dispatched on individual missions to obtain original documents or certified photostats thereof. The documents were screened by German speaking analysts to determine whether or not they might be valuable as evidence. Photostatic copies were then made of the original documents and the original documents returned to the files in the document centers. These photostatic copies were certified by the analysts to be true and correct copies of the original documents. German speaking analysts, either at the document center or in Nurnberg, then prepared a summary of the document with appropriate references to personalities involved, index headings, information as to the source of the document, and the importance of the documents to a particular division of OCC.

6. Next, the original document or certified photostatic copy was forwarded to the Document Control Branch, Evidence Division, OCC. Upon receipt of these document, they were duly recorded and indexed and given identification numbers in one of six series designated by the letters: "NO", "NI" , "NM", "NOKW", "NG", and "NP", indicating the particular Division of OCC which might be most interested in the individual documents. Within each series documents were listed numerically.

7. In the case of the receipt of original documents, photostatic copies were made. Upon return from the Photostat Room, the original documents were placed in envelopes in fireproof safes in the Document Room. In the case of the receipt of certified photostatic copies of documents, the certified photostatic copies were treated in the same manner as original documents.

8. All original documents or certified photostatic copies treated as originals are now located in safes in the Document Room, where they will be secured until they are presented by the Prosecution to a court during the progress of a trial.

9. Therefore, I certify in my official capacity as herein above stated, that all documentary evidence relied upon by OCC is in the same condition as when captured by military forces under the command of the Supreme Commander, Allied Expeditionary Forces; that they have been translated by competent qualified translators; that all photostatic copies are true and correct copies of the originals, and that they have been correctly filed, numbered, and processed as above outlined.

/s/ FRED NIEBELGALL FRED NIEBERGALL Chief of Document Control Branch Evidence Division, O.C.C. I believe this document has been handed to Major Hatfield and I request, if your Honors please, that it be marked as Exhibit 1.

THE PRESIDENT: It is so ordered.

MR. DENNEY: Turning now to the first document in Book 1, I might say by way of preface, if it is agreeable with your Honors and with defense counsel, in view of the fact that these documents are placed chronologically by date, at the time we offer it, we propose to mention generally the defendant's name against whom it is ordered, and a general characterization of the document, and on the following day, after a book has been completed, if it is agreeable with your Honors and defense counsel we will submit a table at the left of which will be the documents which have been offered, then the Count under which it is offered, and then the defendant's name against whom it is offered, so that everyone will not have to keep going back and looking into the record. I believe that will make it more simple.

THE PRESIDENT: That is satisfactory to the Court -- to the Tribunal, if there is no objections on behalf of defense counsel.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I have to say that I haven't correctly understood the proposed procedure. Could it please be repeated so that I could state my attitude towards it?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, you will kindly repeat your statement.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Your Honor. The documents have been arranged in the books by date. If at each time a document is offered we specified all of the defendants against whom it is offered and all of the counts that it is offered on, it will cause a constant searching of the record as to whether or not a defendant is implicated in a count, according to our position, or whether or not a count has been specified. For the convenience of the defense counsel and the Court it is proposed that we will make a general reference at the time we offer specific documents, and at the close of a day we will prepare a table which states all of the exhibits in a book, the counts on which it is offered, and the defendants against whom it is offered. We will furnish tables to each of the defense counsel. They won't have to be translated because it's purely a matter of numbers and names, and we will furnish copies to the Court, and these tables will always be furnished the morning following, following the completion of a document book. Is that agreeable, Dr. Laternser? (Dr. Laternser and other defense counsel agree by nodding in the affirmative.) The other counsel seem to be in accord.

THE PRESIDENT: Counsel for defendants having indicated that such a procedure meets with their approval, you may follow that course of procedure, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Your Honor. The first document which we offer is NOKW-860, which is an affidavit by the Defendant List, executed on 7 March 1947, which contains various biographical material with reference to promotions and declarations. This is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 2--- Document NOKW-860. There being no objections by defense counsel, it is requested that the document be received in evidence and marked as requested, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: it is so ordered.

MR. DENNEY: The first page of the affidavit sets forth some basic information about the Defendant List. I don't think that it's necessary to read it. From information about his promotions on Page 2 it will be seen that he entered the service in 1900, and at the time of the capitulation he had somewhere some few months less than fortyfive months service, and that he became a field marshal in 1940, and that, at the time--in 1939, he was a Generaloberst, equivalent to a four-star general in the United States. The next section, the decorations, will show that he had received his share of them. The Party material indicates that he was not a member of the Party and that he never joined it. On the English copy there is missing a statement to the effect that the affidavit was voluntarily made, but I believe that that appears on the German copy. Perhaps Dr. Laternser can give us some help on that. It is just at the end of the document Doctor. Dr. Sauter advises me that that does appear on the German copy. An error in translation is all, Your Honor. They failed to put it on here, but there is a statement in the German to the effect that the statement was voluntarily made by him. The next document is NOKW-1042, which we offer as Prosecution's Exhibit 3, which is a copy of the personal record taken from the personnel file concerning the Defendant List. This is similar to that is known in our Army as the 201-file. This document is offered by the Prosecution as Exhibit 3. There are no objections, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: There being no objections, it may be admitted in evidence.

MR. DENNEY: We would like to call the Court's attention to the entry on the first page, at the bottom, where it says "10 September 1942, resigned as Commander in Chief, Army Group, and at the disposal of the Fuhrer."

We have heard much in Nurnberg about the impossibility of resigning. On Page 2 of the document there is an entry with 24 April 1942 by Field Marshall Wilhelm Keitel of OKW, commenting on the defendant List's performance in which he states "The Commander in Chief of the 12th Army, and Wehrmacht Commander, Southeast, most highly proven, enjoys the unlimited confidence of the Fuhrer." On the next page, which is Page 3, still Exhibit 3, Document NOKW-1042, we believe in the German copy there is one error on the left-hand column of the dates. It should be 19 March. The date that follows 1 October 1913, and then precedes 2 August 1914, it should be 19 March 1914. The third page sets forth in some detail the rather broad experience of the Defendant List. It is to be noted that he went to the Artillery and Engineer schools and in 1908 he went to the War Academy. Thereafter he was with an Infantry Corps. In 1920 he was commander of an Infantry division and an Infantry regimental staff officer, and he served as a battalion commander. He was in the Reichwehr Ministry and became a brigadier general in the early 30's. He was a first ranking major general in October, 1932. He was commander of a Wehrkreis, which is similar to our service command, in 1933, and he became a general of Infantry in 1935, and General Oberst, or a four-star general in 1939. He became a (6) Field Marshal in the Wehrmacht in July 1940. I referred earlier to his being a major general. That should be Generalleutnant, which is a major general in the American army. The next document which the Prosecution offers as Exhibit 4 in evidence is 071-PS. This document was received as United States of America Exhibit No. 371 before the International Military Tribunal.

Your Honor, I object to the submission of this document. At first glance I can see that it is a photostat copy. From this photostat copy it cannot be seen, first of all, whether it is a carbon copy of the letter or whether it is a copy of the letter. Also, it doesn't show a letter-head nor from whom the letter comes. As to the signature this document isn't even signed.

Thirdly, what the prosecution intends to prove by this I could take from yesterday's opening speech. I would like to suggest the following, the letter proves that it has been written but it doesn't prove that its contents are true. As a rule it shows the opinion of the writer of the letter and need not be in line with the actual conditions since, for all these reasons it cannot be regarded as a proper document, I would ask the Tribunal to look at the document, it must be rejected as evidence of any kind of value.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, the rules provide that documents received in evidence before the International Military Tribunal shall be received in evidence in these cases. Of course with this document as with any document that is offered by the prosecution or the defense, it is for the court to determine what weight they shall give it, if any, and we have nothing to do with probative value. There is a certificate with this document certifying that it was received as an exhibit. It was United States Exhibit No. 371 in IMT. It was put in as part of the case in chief. I believe against the defendant Rosenberg, and while I do not content that one who writes a letter necessarily speaks the truth, we have a later document which refers to a task force Rosenberg which is operating in the Southeast area, which indicates that what is said in this document is true.

THE PRESIDENT: What do you claim for this exhibit?

DR. DENNEY: We claim that this exhibit, your Honor, involves the defendant List. It shows that he was cooperating with the program in the party whereby they were seizing cultural works of art and enabling them to send people to the Southeast. I believe the particular reference here is to the cremation in the Archives in Jewish libraries.

THE PRESIDENT: Who do you claim wrote this letter?

MR. DENNEY: It was written, if your honor please, by Rosenberg who was later to become the Reich protector for the Eastern occupied territories.

THE PRESIDENT: Does the letter so show?

MR. DENNEY: The letter does not so show.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, the letter doesn't show at all who wrote it. In addition the prosecution doesn't even say that this letter was sent. If a copy is made, then I don't understand why this copy doesn't contain the signature. I maintain that this letter was never signed. I could even go further with my allegation. I could, for instance, say--I don't know this--that it wasn't signed because the contents weren't correct. Also, your Honor, the fact that the letter was accepted in the first trial was evidence doesn't make this letter a document. For at the time it was submitted, it was submitted for another reason than it is submitted today, at that time, it was submitted against Rosenberg, I don't know why the cleague at that time didn't object to this letter. I would like to say once again that I cannot see from the document itself, and that is necessary, who wrote the letter. The letter from the document itself, and that is necessary, who wrote the letter. The letter isn't signed and I don't know whether it was ever sent off.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor, please, the rules provide that documents which have been received in evidence before the International Military Tribunal shall be received here. However, for the benefit of the court, I will be glad to check the record there. It is my impression that it was further identified during the proceedings--and see whether or not we can establish that. In any event, it was received in evidence before the IMT.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, may I just say something else? I have already emphasized that the fact that the letter was presented and accepted in the first trial should not matter at all. I am of the opinion that the Tribunal now should rule on my objections to this document and should not be bound by the ruling of the first Tribunal whether it is admissible or not, because I am bringing in a new reason why this document should be admitted as a document.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will reserve ruling on the admissibility of this particular exhibit.

MR. DENNEY: Would your Honor wish that we point out the parts at this time which we offer, subject of course to a motion to strike in the event that the tribunal rules against it?

THE PRESIDENT: The court will give consideration to the document in itself and if and when it is admitted, if it is admitted, then you can comment upon it.

MR. DENNEY: Very well, your Honor. Then if I may suggest that we mark is Exhibit 4-A for Identification at this time so that it will have a number. That is not in evidence, Dr. Laternser, that is merely for identification.

THE PRESIDENT: Purely for the purpose of marking of the exhibit and not for a consideration that it is being admitted, it may be so numbered "4-A".

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor.

The next document is NOKW-1111 which we offer as Exhibit 4.

DR. LATERNSEER: I would also ask if I might look at this document before it is submitted to the Tribunal.

(A copy of the Exhibit 4 was handed to Dr. Laternser)

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I am unfortunately, forced to object to this document too. First of all, it is a photostat copy and is a photostat copy of a copy, which is expressly stated on it. This means that is not a carbon copy of the order which was issued but a copy made afterwards. Your Honor, at the top of this letter is written "Secret". If secret matters were copied in the German Wehrmacht, then the copy had to be certified, and on this photostat copy I see no certification. How can I find out that the typist who copied this order copied the actual order and copied it correctly. In other words, this document is nothing than a sheet of paper typed by someone whom I don't know, without certification.

The probative value is very small, though I realize that just now I cannot concern myself with the probative value; but the lacks of this document so obvious that it should not be accepted in evidence.

Might I stress again that it is not a carbon copy but a copy and that was prepared later that this copy had not been certified by anybody. I don't know whether the typist has made mistakes.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, I certainly don't know whether the German army typist made any mistakes or not either, but as such it is taken from the captured files of the German Army and it is headed "11th Corps Command", and at the bottom it is typed out "Signed von Kotzfleisch, the Commanding General." The probative value is whatever the court wants to give it. We unfortunately did not make the records for the Wehrmacht.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I am very sorry that I have to add something else. The prosecutor says that this letter is signed. It isn't signed. From the beginning to the end, it is typed. I am extremely sorry to say that the original copy from which the photostat was made is not available. Then one could even see more clearly what sort of a document it is.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, I did not say that it was signed. I said that at the end it was typed "Signed von Kotzfleisch," and I would appreciate it if Dr. Laternser would keep the earphones on so that he would understand what I tell the Tribunal.

DR SAUTER: (Attorney for the defendant von Geitner) Your Honor, may I draw your attention to something.

It strikes me that in my copy here, the copy of a corps order, the journal number is missing, that is, the number form which it can be seen which index number the order has received. Such important orders, especially when they are secret orders, must necessarily have a journal number. Every soldier knows this, especially every officer, and it strikes me that in this copy the journal number is missing. I would like to point this out to the prosecution.

THE PRESIDENT: This Tribunal is conscious of the fact that this is a copy taken from the files as found by the American or Allied authorities. It will be accepted for such probative value as the court feels that it should receive, and it is better with the understanding.

MR. DENNEY: Major Hatfield, will you mark it No. 4, NOKW-III. This is dated April 27, 1941 and as has been indicated it is a copy. It is offered as against the defendant von Weichs, Paragraph 2, No. 2, of this order provides "I expect every instance of resistance to be broken with ruthless force. Every person encountered resisting or fleeing with weapon in hand, is to be shot dead immediately; persons surrendering are to be handed over to courts martial or summary court martial to be judged immediately."

Then they speak of the decree dated 2 April, sent forth by the Commander in Chief of the Corps Army, and hereafter, "furthermore, hostages are to be taken, who are to be shot in case further enemy resistance should occur. Any consideration shown by the German troops is interpreted as weakness and is a mistake.

"The disarming and pacification of the areas assigned to the divisions, is to be varied out with extremes care and in compliance with Corps order No.8. The divisions will mop out the areas combed through by the troops and note down the respective dates."

Then the third paragraph speaks of, "The new frontier between the German 2nd Army and the Royal Italian Second Army as ordered by the Commander of the Second Army, von Weichs, as well as the necessary measures for the evacuation of the area occupied by the German troops thus far and its transfer to the Italians, and also for the salvaging of loots from these areas."

And, typed on the copy that we have is the Commanding General, signed von Kotzfleisch. He was at that time the Commanding General of the XIth Corps which was under the 7th Army which was commanded by the defendant then Field Marshall von Weichs.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I am extremely sorry that I have to make such frequent interruptions but it is my duty to do this. I have just found a relevant mistake in translation. I point to Paragraph 2, first passage which reads in German which is the basic text: "In areas of unrest further hostages are to be taken whose execution by shooting has to be applied for in case of further resistance. The translation reads: "Who are to be shot in case of further enemy resistance should occur." The translation says they should be shot. In English, it is translated "who should be shot" which in the German text it says expressly the shooting of whom should be applied for. The German version means something else than that which can be seen from the English text. I would ask that this translation is to be corrected.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, as we can probably anticipate some of these translation difficulties from time to time occur and perhaps Dr. Laternser and I can get together out side of court and work them out to our mutual satisfaction. If not then we can bring them into court and he can say what he thinks the Germans means and I, through someone who knows German better than I, can say what I think it means and the court can decide what it means.

I think we can work it out satisfactorily.

THE PRESIDENT: It seems to me the translation which is presented should be accepted at this time and if it is not a correct translation then the defense counsel can so indicate in its presentation of its case in chief. We cannot and should not at this time engage in some arguments as to translation. I believe that is a defensive matter which should receive consideration by the defendant at such time that it cares to present its case.

MR. DENNEY: May I further make the statement that if counsel for the prosecution and the defense can agree on the translation that of course will solve the problem and it will be helpful to the court and may I suggest that before we give any further time to this matter that we try to work this out between the respective counsel and avoid any further time now.

DR. LATERNSE: Yes, Your Honor, may I still say something quite briefly. Of course I agree with the counsel of the prosecution that translation should be gone through by us beforehand and we should agree upon them; but I want to avoid something, and I would like your Honor to take this into consideration. A wrong translation if once submitted to the Tribunal will give the Tribunal a false idea of certain orders. Your Honor, I think it would be more difficult for the defense counsel to eliminate a wrong impression once it is there; than to prevent a wrong impression to a rise at all. I would prefer the latter. Checking the translation of important documents beforehand we could avoid difficulties. Before submitting documents the translation should be agreed upon by the prosecution and the defense and this would allow the trial to go on without disturbances.

MR DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases, with reference to the suggestion that the prosecution and defense agree on translations beforehand, that I believe is a practical impossibility.

We have people who are translating these documents, some of whom are in our division, some of whom are in the translation division which is a common pool, or rather a joint pool, for everyone in the court house, including various other divisions. In addition the defense, the people for the most part, are German speaking. Now, I would suggest in line with Your Honor's ruling that if they quarrel with a translation that they bring it up as part of their case in chief by way of defense; at anytime we will be available after court to discuss particular translations with them, and see if we can work something out; But it a ruling such as that is made that we must clear everything with the defense at first, it will prolong the trial.

THE PRESIDENT: The court has indicated its attitude in connection with this matter and it is the suggestion of the members of this Tribunal that counsel endeavor to carry out the suggestions as made. Counsel may make the objection and then if they later wish to raise the same question in the case in chief in the presentation of the defendants' case they may do so. But, the court cannot be liable for translations. I wish that I were able to but that would be impossible. The Tribunal will take a recess for 15 minutes at this time.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, before you proceed with the presentation of any other exhibits, the Tribunal wishes to rule on the exhibit marked Exhibit 4A. This exhibit will not be admitted unless it is connected with some particular individual or is shown to have been signed by someone who is connected with this case or in some other way can be further connected with the issues that are involved in this particular trial; the ruling being, therefore, that the objection is sustained, unless it is show that it was issued by someone in authority who had the right to issue it.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, we are having a search made of the I.M.T. records. I should like to call Your Honors' attention to the Ordinance VII, Article 9, which has to do with these tribunals, it being that "the Tribunal shall not require proof of facts of common knowledge but shall take judicial notice thereof. They shall also take judicial notice of official governmental documents and reports of any of the United Nations, including the acts and documents of the committees set up in the various Allied countries for the investigation of war crimes, and the records and findings of military or other tribunals of any of the United Nations."

THE PRESIDENT: The ruling as made will stand, subject to such further presentations as the prosecution may wish to make in connection with it.

MR. DENNEY: As Your Honor pleases.

The prosecution offers, as Exhibit 5, NQKW-1198, which is a copy of an order from the Commander-in-Chief of the 2nd Army, Weichs, with an additional order from the Commander of the 11th Corps. This is dated 28 April 41 and the Court's attention is directed to the fact that this was at about the time that Yugoslavia capitulated as well as Greece and these units were in Yugoslavia.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, before this document is submitted, I want to have a look at it.

Mr. President, I have to object to this document insofar as it contains a copy of the order of Field Marshal von Weichs.

This document, as far as it concerns von Weichs' order, is also a mere subsequently prepared copy, i.e. not a carbon copy of the original. This subsequent copy contains the same mistake and the same sources of mistakes as in the case of the other documents for which I have already presented my reasons for objection. You will notice immediately that this order has no number at all.

I maintain that it cannot possibly be a complete copy because a copy that is signed by the Supreme Commander of an army group must have an index number (Briefgruppennummer). Whether this copy has been prepared correctly I cannot tell. I especially don't know whether the photostat was made in such a way that the factual connection is maintained with page 2, that on page 2, that part which has been signed by General Kotzfleisch, that I don't know; whether it is one page or one sheet or whether it is two, this is not clear from looking at the photostat.

As the prosecution apparently sets great store by this order, we must be especially careful in finding out whether such a copy can be accepted as a document.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection as made will be overruled.

MR. DENNEY: It is requested that this be marked Exhibit 5 in evidence, Document NQKW-1198. Your Honors, please, this is a copy in the first instance and I might point out to the Court that on the photostat which has been offered the signature which appears on page 15 of Kotzfleisch is actually on the photostat in evidence and these are two consecutive pages. The certification accompanying the document will show it if Your Honors at a later time care to look at it. The Commander -the order is from the Commander-in-Chief of the 2nd Army, dated Army Headquarters 28 April 1941.

"Order.

"The increase of treacherous surprise attacks on German soldiers necessitates the severest reprisal measures. Only immediate and ruthless action guarantees the maintenance of peace and security and prevents the formation of bands.

"1) A detachment from a division was sent to carry out the disarming of a Serbian village. The commanding officer with another officer and a sergeant were riding ahead and were attacked by a band of Komitatshi (in Serbian uniform). The commanding officer was shot dead and his companions were severely wounded. This event causes the following statements:

"a) After the conclusion of the armistice there is no Serbian soldier in the entire Serbian area who is authorized to carry weapons.

"b) Who, nevertheless, is encountered in Serbian uniform carrying a weapon puts himself outside of international law and is to be shot to death immediately.

"c) If in an area an armed band appears, the men who are capable of bearing arms who are found in the vicinity of the band are also to be shot to death, if it is not immediately determined without doubt that they had no connection with the band.

"d) All persons shot to death are to be hung up and their corpses are to be left hanging.

"e) The arresting of hostages after a surprise attack is a mistake and may in no case enter into consideration. Rather one must act only according to points 'a' - 'd'."

Those are the four points listed prior to the one statement about these hostages.

"2) As a preventative protection for the troops against such treacherous surprise attacks, I order:

"a) In the area not yet pacified one may not march without security patrols, especially not without flank patrols.

"b) In billets in such areas security measures are to be taken similar to actual conditions in the field.

"c) Within the areas of the division motorized detachments (use of motorized convoys) are to be in readiness; they are to be on call at any time, in order to be able to carry out security and reprisal measures.

"d) In the endangered villages, posters are to be hung up, which draw the attention of the population to the serious consequences of surprise attacks (the posters will be sent separately)."e) In every village occupied by the troops in the endangered area hostages are to be taken immediately (from all classes of the population) who are to be shot to death and hung up after a raid.

This measure is to be made known in the villages immediately.

"3) If raids on the troops occur, the commanders of divisions must examine closely whether guilt lies with the leader of the units concerned.

"In the divisional reports concerning surprise attacks it must be always reported immediately if and how the surprise attacks were avenged, by ruthless measures."

Typed on the copy which has been submitted is "Signed, Freiherr von Weichs".

Then just below this, and on the same page, appeared these dotted lines, and then the 11th Corps which was at that time part of the Second Army and serving in Yugoslavia. The Corps Commander, Von Kortzfleisch sent this order forward, - It was a Corps order from Corps Headquarters in the 29th, - one day after the date of the original order, the following order is to be made known immediately to the troops.

2.) My orders given in the order of the Corps No. 3 (Corps Headquarters XIth Infantry Corps, Ia No. 616/41 Secret of 27 April 41) under paragraph 2 are supplemented according to the order given below, as follows:

a) The order for shooting hostages in the area of a surprise attack can only be given by an officer of the rank of Battalion (Detachment) Commander (inclusive) and upward. In case a direct attack is made on the unit in the area of unrest and in the place where hostages are arrested, the shooting to death can be ordered by order of the highest ranking officer present; the officer has to report immediately on the event. On principle a short record concerning the shooting to death of the hostages is to be taken down containing:

aa) the facts of the case bb) the names of the hostages cc) the execution

b) Houses and villages from which shots are fired are to be set on fire.

(Initial) S The Commanding General (Initial Illeg.)

(Signature)

Distribution: Kortzfleisch Down to Company level.

There appears the initial "S" and the Commanding general with an initial after it, and then the signature which has been photostated Corps Commander, and your Honors will note the distribution and it goes down to company level in the corps, - the lowest troop units.

I should also like to call your Honors' attention that we have not been able to find the earlier Corps' order which is referred to in Kortzfleisch's order here, but it is worthy of note that when he clarifies that early order, it indicates now that here he is advising them that in the areas of the surprise attack the order of shooting hostages can be given only by an officer, and perhaps we can hear some more about this at a later time, but the implication is there that such were not the orders prior to this. Otherwise, why would he make this statement?

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt, Mr. Denney, to ask whether the defendants want the shades put down. Does the sun affect the defendants there. (Shades drawn)

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I do not know whether or not on the next page, where there appears an excerpt from Document NOKW1198, in your Honor's book, on page 16; if it does appear we request that it be disregarded at this time. You can tear it out, or just cross it out. It is not being offered now.

The next document we come to is on page 17 which is NOKW 1145, which we offer as Prosecution Exhibit 6 in evidence. I might say for the benefit of the counsel for the defense that the page which is disregarded is not in the German copies. It was just a mistake that the page was inserted in the English, is all.

THE PRESIDENT: The Court wishes to make this statement, to the effect that where there is an exhibit offered, and there is no statement in the record of any objection, it is presumed that it will be received in evidence without objection, so you will keep that in mind in further proceedings before this Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: For the sake of the record, that applies to the exhibits which have already been offered, your Honor?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you.

Exhibit NOKW 1145, Exhibit 6, is a copy of an activity report from second army commanded by the defendant Weichs, in Yugoslavia for the period 25 April to 20 June, 1941.

The parts which we offer are considerably shorter than those which appear in the complete document. However, the complete document has been offered and has been made available for this period.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, I regret that again I have to intervene. I would like to ask you who has made this copy; whether it was made in Washington from the originals or whether this copy has also been found in the files that have been captured. We must first clear some of these fundamental questions. We, as defense counsel, must have these questions explained. On this document it says, "copy". I don't know who made this copy.

THE PRESIDENT: Counsel for the prosecution, perhaps, can advise defense counsel as to this matter.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, the document is a photostatic copy of a document which is in the files in Washington. The only writing which appears on any of them are the document numbers which we have placed on them. The Abschrift which appears here in German was on the document when it was photostated.

DR. LATERNER: I regret that it is not quite clear to me. My interest is centered on the following questions: I assume, without any further question, that in Washington the original of all war diaries are deposited. Since the original cannot contain the word "copy", it must have been copied. The question is, is this a copy, which has been captured or has this copy been prepared in Washington? I cannot see it from the document itself, and it would be important in order to judge what value we must later give to this document.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor pleases, I believe that if Dr. Laternser had looked, he could see that obviously we did not copy the document in Washington, because the three pages which are here all bear German printing on them, on the top, and the cover page, which has been photostated to show from whence these three pages came, is photostated exactly as it is except for the number which is placed on it, and these are photostats, in every case, of original German documents, not photostats of copies made by the Americans in the German language. These documents have been preserved exactly as they were taken and I believe if Your Honors care to look at this, that it will be plain.

(Document handed to court for examination)

THE PRESIDENT: May I make this statement, Mr. Denney? That up to the present time, all that counsel has, -- the only statement that counsel has made has been an inquiry. There is no objection pending before the Tribunal.

There being no objection pending, and the counsel for the defendant having received this information, unless there is something further to present to the Tribunal we shall proceed.

MR. DENNEY: The cover page states--

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, this extract, as I must again point out to the counsel, because it is the basis of the whole proceeding and the future procedure, -- this extract which is being submitted in this case, is a conglomeration, so to speak, and it is not probable that it should have been prepared previously, because no German agency would never have been interested in it, though on these pages, the heading, appears in German printing, it is very possible that empty diaries have also been captured, forms of which have been used for copies in order to make them look verbatim, and in order to use them here in these proceedings, I would understand this. The question should to be cleared very thoroughly, and until this question is cleared I object to this exhibit. Whether this copy has been made in Washington, then it would have to be certified, in order to have a basis on which to work, whether this copy has been found in its present form, -- that is a very important question.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled.

MR. DENNEY: The first entry which appears on the cover page is "During this period the 2nd Army was immediately subordinate to the OKH." In other words, that means that the chain of command in the 2nd Army, which was commanded by the Defendant Weichs, did not pass through anyone else, but went directly from him to OKH, the so-called Oberkommando, which is synonymous in our Army to the Army, that is, as opposed to the Navy and the Air Force, and OKH, of course, was subordinate to OKH. And then there are a few notes that the activity report was kept by two lieutenants during the first period and by one during the latter period. The first entry which applies to the 4th of May speaks of "Mopping up operation Propastica took place according to plan and successfully. The enemy encountered (up to now 50 men) has been shot to death. 253 hostages were seized. The villages of Propastica and Disevci have been destroyed by fire. The units of the 294 Infantry Division and/or of the 4th Mountain Division will be transferred to their final quarters by E-Transport and by cross-country means." And then it has something to do with the II Army Corps in the evacuation of the Army troops from Yugoslavia. In the entry under the date of 11 May for Belgrade, it says something about the XI Corps under the 2nd Army: "Units of the 60th Motorized Division on 10.5 near Prijepolje encountered armed band 3 men and 1 woman and on 11.5 in the morning near Pozega (15 Kilometers East of Uzice) they encountered a band of 4 men. "It does not say whether or not the four men were armed; it just says they encountered a band of four men. "All members shot to death and hanged." And then there is an entry about the 704th Infantry Division which we may avoid.

And then there is a report from the 12th of May for Belgrade it states that "In the area IV Artillery Regiment 132 (15 kilometers Southeast Zabreb) a soldier of the unit was hit by a bullet and wounded. After investigations had been concluded, 8 Serbs were shot to death and hanged." Under the date 14th May for Belgrade it says, "In reprisal for firing on a motorcycle rider - as reported in daily report of 12.5, paragraph 2b - 3 Serbs were shot to death and 10 hostages seized." The next document, which is NOKW-1151, is offered as Exhibit 7 in evidence. This is a communication from the Army Commander in Chief Southeast, who at that time was the Defendant List, and it was received by the Commander in Chief Serbia. He inquires as to whether or not -- this is on 27 June 1942 -- when he asks "Is Russian radio report of alleged murder of two German soldiers in Belgrade and subsequent order of shooting of 100 Serbian hostages correct?" Then the next page, page 2, is the answer from the Commander in Serbia to the Army Commander Southeast, and it states that the "Russian radio report is so far incorrect as at present no such occurrence. The occurrence in question goes back to the end of April - details about it later." Then the Commander in Serbia writes on 2 July to the Commander Southeast, Defendant List, referring to a telephone conversation of 27 June 1942, "Subject: Russian Radio report," and it says, "In supplementation of our teletype message Command Staff Department Ic No. 108-41 Secret we present below the occurrence which may have been the basis of the Russian radio report." This is the document concerned with the former telegram or teletype on Page 2, which is apparent from the document number which it has from the Serbian Commander, No. 108/41, which appears in the second line of the letter and which also appears on the third line from the bottom of the telegram.

He continues in his reply of 2 July, "From enclosures it is to be seen that, during the month of April, 1941, a detachment of a Division of the 2nd Army Command was sent to carry out the disarmament of a Serbian village. In the course of this operation the leader of the detachment was shot by a Komitadschi band, another officer and a Wachtmeister were severely wounded (unit and place are not known here). On the basis of this occurrence the Commander in Chief of the 2nd Army, (who was then Defendant Weichs), issued the enclosed order of 28 April 1941 which was followed by the poster (a copy is enclosed) concerning the shooting to death of 100 Serbs and the threat of the same reprisals for similar cases. Whether or not and where the Serbs actually were shot is not known and could only be ascertained by inquiry at the 2nd Army Command." Of course, at this time, 2 July, when this letter was written, the 2nd Army Command had left Yugoslavia late in May, the headquarters returned to Munich, and the Army was being reformed to move to the Eastern front, where early in July it was committed in the line, under the command still of the Defendant Weichs, as part of an Army Group under the then deceased Field Marshal von Bach. This letter of the 2nd of July, from the Serbian Commander to the Defendant List, as Commander of Southeast, was signed for the Commander in Serbia by the Chief of Command Staff Gravenhorst, a Lieutenant Colonel on the General Staff. And it is to be noted that there are two enclosures which have been referred to in the letter to the Defendant List. Now, this first enclosure is the same as Exhibit 5, which was NOKW-1198, the order of the Commander of the 2nd Army, XI Corps, which was presented two exhibits ago.

And if Your Honors will examine it, you will see that it is dated the same as the Weichs orders which was sent forward by Kotzfleisch of the XI Corps, and the provisions are the same. They cite the Division detachment's going out to disarm the Serbian village, meeting the Komitadschie in Serbia uniform and the divisions "a" to "e", and it continues. However, there is a distribution list on this which was not on the copy in Exhibit 5, which appears on Page 24 in the English, and shows that down to and including battalions, General Commandos, Divisions, and Local offices: in draft, and for information to the Military Commander in Serbia. The next page of the letter of Colonel Gravenhorst, however, introduces the poster, which was not available in the earlier copy, Exhibit 5. This poster is listed as an enclosure. Gravenhorst says a copy is enclosed, and this provides that it can "be posted up in not yet pacified or endangered villages." "Serbs." -- By mean and malicious surprise attacks German soldiers have lost their lives. German patience is at an end. As atonement 100 Serbs of all classes of the population have been shot to death. In the future 100 Serbs are to be shot without consideration for every German soldier who comes to harm as a result of a surprise attack conducted by Serbs." And below that is printed, "THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE ARMY".

That is the defendant Weichs. He was the commander in chief of the Second Army at that time and there is a note that on the placard -- that is, on the poster -- the text also appeared in the Serbian language. The next document is NOKW-1206, which we offer as prosecution's Exhibit 8 in evidence, which is a report of 17 May 1941 by the 60th Motorized Division, which was part of XI Corps, with reference to certain reprisal measures. It is a report about the conditions in the billeting area Lesnica -- Valjevo -- Cacak -- Sjenica -- Prijepolje -- Visegrad. I might say that, just to keep it in mind, the XI Corps was part of the Second Army, as Your Honors will recall.

"The area where the division is quartered is old Serbian territory with the exception of the areas around Visegrad, Prijepolje, and Sjenica. Accordingly the population is almost purely Serbian; Visegrad and its surroundings belong to former Bosnia and have a predominantly Bosnian Mohammedan population. The districts Prijepolje and Sjenica are situated in the Sandschak of Nove Pazar occupied by Austria from 1878 until 1908. The area Prijepolje-Priboj-Nova-Varos is predominantly inhabited by Bosnian Mohammedans mixed with Serbs; the area around Sjenica predominantly by Albanians."

Then when we get down to the Serbian areas, they say that:

"Complete peace exists in the towns and larger villages. So far the population has remained very reserved. It was still living under the effects of the shock of the past events, which only now is beginning to wear off gradually. But one cannot yet say that life has already resumed its accustomed course.

"In the country the population is still occasionally disturbed by armed bands, who force the population to give food by force of arms and do not shrink back from murder in case of refusal. In Pozega and north of Sjenica the division was able to capture armed detachments. The prisoners, altogether nine men and a woman, were shot and hanged according to the order of the commander-in-chief of the Second Army. The unit has not suffered any losses through armed bands.

"Before the arrival of the division there was a resistance on 21 April during a search in the village of Dobric (three km south of Lesnica) and thereby one lieutenant was killed and one lieutenant and one sergeant were wounded. The village of Dobric was burned in retaliation. The order that 100 Serbs are to be shot for one German killed did not exist at that time."

Now, if we might interrupt for a moment here - this is a report which is dated 17 May and it recites an occurrence in a divisional area of the XI Corps of the Second Army in Yugoslavia, this occurrence having taken place on the 21st and he said that all we did was burn the village because the order for shooting a hundred Serbs didn't exist at that time, so this clearly shows that this order got down to the lower combat units, the division. It continues:

"Brigandage is an occurrence not unusual in the Balkans, and also in peacetimes it has not been possible to have it stopped completely. Since the war these bands have received additions through adventurers, stragglers, and other elements, and have nothing to lose, and on account of the dwindling of the previous state authority, especially the gendarmes' limited ability to act and its political unreliability, they have found a rich field for activity.

"Beside this kind of purely robber bands Serbian political fanatics have united in several places under the name of 'Cetnik'. By terrorizing the population they had to cause the latter to rebel against the German occupation forces, to force the mayors in areas not under Serbian administration to tolerate the Serbian elements of the population. The Cetniks assume the appearance of a large and extensively planned organization."

Now here we have less than a month after the capitulation of Yugoslavia and we have a division commander through his appropriate staff officer reporting to corps command that at this time less than a month after the capitulation of Serbia the Cetniks assume the appearance of a large and extensively planned organization. Then to continue with the letter:

"But the fact that they dare to appear only in small and far remote communities proves their true power. In the imagination of the population the Cetniks are surrounded with a much exaggerated halo, which all results in fear of them.

"In the treatment of armed bands, it makes no difference whether they are Cetniks or ordinary robber bands. Anyone who is found with unauthorized weapons has forfeited his life.

"Recently bands have still caused alarm in the area north of Sjenica and in the area northeast of Uzice. The difficulty of access to the mountainous country favors the hiding of such bands and makes search operations extraordinarily difficult. Even after a search has been carried out, it can never be said with certainty that the area covered has actually been mopped up.

"According to a recently received report, the Serbian population in and around Ivanjica takes completely unsuitable self-confident attitude. It seems that it regards the present conditions to be only temporary. The authorities and especially the gendarmes in this area comply with German instructions only very hesitatingly and reluctantly. So far Ivanjica has had no German troops stationed there. It seems necessary to do this in the future to have the German will respected in the area. Purging the Serbian administration there of unreliable elements will be necessary for this.

"Reports from the rural communities concerning threats by bands and calls to the troops for help have often proved to be greatly exaggerated. A detonation in the townhall at Prijepolje, reported to be a bomb attack, was found to be only an accident caused by improper handling of ammunition collected there. Components of the division and vehicles moving singly were not attacked in any instance or ambushed. In the area north of Rogatica a burst of machine gun apparently from the west bank of the Drina was directed in the vicinity (about 200 meters) of a car being driven there. Investigations remained unsuccessful.

"The Gendarmerie has been set up again in Serbian territory. Its members authorized to carry arms on duty. It is their task to ensure peace and security for the population in cases of reported unrest in the country caused by bands. Only when their power is insufficient will the employment of troops be considered. As long as the Gendarmes remain loyal, it is expedient to employ them extensively and to support them. However, at the present time they need the strictest supervision as their political reliability is concerned.

"The administration in the Serbian territories is being gradually built up again. Control over setting this up rests with the headquarters appointed by the Military Commander of Serbia, administrative sub-area headquarters Uzice, town headquarters at Sabac and at Kosmitrovica. All measures which were effected by the units concerning behavior towards the civilian population must be discussed with these headquarters beforehand, in order to avoid contradicting instructions."

And they continue with areas of mixed population, speaking of Serbian troops being stationed there and employed on guard duty. I don't think we need to read that section. However, it is the last page where they speak of:

"In Sjenica predominantly Albanian Mussulmen live. The Croatian influence is not liked by the population there. For this reason a Croatian detachment of gendarmes, stationed there in the beginning, was withdrawn at the request of the local German commander. The area is also claimed by the Croats, also if possible the entire former Sandschak of Novi Pazar. The main reason for this seems to be to establish a separation, a corridor, so to speak, between old Serbia and Montenegro." And he speaks of "a map showing the areas claimed by the Croats was presented to corps headquarters, XIth Infantry Corps.

"Otherwise opinions are continually arising variously populated territories, mainly among the Mohammedans, who want to have these placed directly under German rule."

And then in summing up:

"The area where the division is stationed can be regarded as pacified. Occasional disturbances which still occur are not of far-reaching importance. By means of immediate ruthless handling this disorder will be kept within the limits which are usual in this country."

A copy went to the corps, to the administrative sub-area headquarters, and also to the division. I don't know whether or not Your Honors' books contain a document listed NOKW-1061. If they do, that is an error.

The next document is NOKW-1522, which is page 33. This is offered as Exhibit 9, NOKW-1522. It is the directive of Hitler, initialed by Keitel and Jodl, for the attack on Crete, "Action Merkur", and also contains some provisions with reference to the various authority in the Southeast as set forth by the Supreme Commander of the Wehrmacht, Hitler, at this time. It is to be remembered that the campaign, so far as Greece and Yugoslavia, is over, that the attack on Crete which is referred to here, "Operation Merkur", is about to come, that List is in the Southeast with his Twelfth Army, and that this is around the time when Weichs is getting ready to withdraw to Germany to go to the Western Front. The copy which we have here is the eighth copy, the first copy received by OKW as the distribution shows, and it is dated the Fuehrer's Headquarters, 17 May 1941, and is Directive No. 29.

The first paragraph speaks of the aim of the Germans in the Southeast to drive the English from the Balkans and to extend the basis for the commitment of the German planes in the eastern Mediterranean and that it will be improved by the execution of the attack on Crete.

He then provides, "In the future, the security of the Greek area will be the task of the Italians apart from the exceptions enumerated below. Consequently, German authorities are not to participate in general questions concerning the security and the administration of the country. In particular any activity as mediator desired by the Greeks is to be rejected."

Then he speaks of arrangements made for bringing up supplies and then he gives directions to the Army:

"Only forces urgently required for the security of the supply base for operation 'Merkur', which are to be closely consolidated locally, will remain in Greece; and, a division near Saloniki," where he refers to a map which is Figure 3, that went forward which we have not been able to find, "which is also charged with the security of Lemnos and other islands which might possibly remain occupied.

"Until the conclusion of operation 'Merkur' however, all areas used for jumping, including the islands intended for this purpose, will have to remain in German hands. All forces superfluous in accordance with this regulation are to be withdrawn as speedily as possible.

"The Italian High Command will be instructed to make all arrangements required for the rapid taking over of Greece with the Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army. He will transfer his headquarters to Saloniki as "Commander-in-Chief of German Troops on the Balkans", that is, referring to Commander List, who at that time was Commander of the 11th Army, this transfer to be made "as soon as the situation (Operation 'Merkur') permits it."

Then he has some directions with reference to the Luftwaffe. The only part we have to be concerned with is the sentence under the fourth line wherein he says: "It has been ordered to cooperate with the 12th Army (Commander of German Troops on the Balkans) for the defense of the Balkan area." Then some additional order with reference to cooperation of the Africa Corps and then "Territorial directives which require coordinated ruling on the Balkans will be issued by the 12th Army for the X Flieger Corps also."

Then he speaks of the ground personnel, and then turning to the Navy, there are some directives for them which are concluded. I don't think we have to read those. At the end it says:

"The German Wehrmacht alone is the authority concerning all military measures around Saloniki. The exact delimitation of this area will be suggested by OKH (Commander-in-Chief of the German Troops on the Balkans.)

"4.) OKH will regulate the Administration of Greek areas to be occupied by German troops by agreement with the Plenipotentiary of the German Reich in Greece. As far as possible, the Greek Administration is to be used and German offices should not be installed.

"5.) 'Military Commander Serbia' is to receive from OKH all the authority and the security troops required for the fulfillment of his urgent economic tasks in order to enable him to complete his mission independently.

"6.) I am expecting reports of the Commanders-in-Chief concerning the measures taken, pursuant to this directive and arrangements made with the Italians."

Now, from this letter it is apparent that at this time the Military Commanders Serbia were acting independently. However, we shall see shortly where the Military Commander Serbia was brought under the command of the defendant List when he becomes the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. And, this distribution list shows how the orders went out from the Wehrmacht, that is OKW, and a little later we have the same order going from the Wehrmacht to OKW, that is, from OKW to OKH, and then on down, so your Honors can see how that is handled.

The next order is Document NOKW-1382 which we offer as Exhibit 10. This, if your Honors please, is the one which has reference to the collection of free Mason lodges and materials from Jewish organizations which was referred to earlier in the unsigned letter which was offered and rejected. This is a report from the Commander of the Rear Army Area 560 and it is dated 21 May 1941, Athens.

"Subject: Commitment of the offices of Reich leader Rosenberg in the army area.

In compliance with the orders of the 12th Army," at that time it was commanded by the defendant List, "of 19 April 1941, Department 1c/AO No. 1031/41 Secret, there is in operation, in the area of the 12th Army a special detachment of Reichs leader Rosenberg which has the task of examining state libraries, archives and offices of the high church authorities, Free Mason lodges and Jewish organizations for political incidents directed against the Reich and of having the material in question confiscated.

"The special Detachment Rosenberg - Lieutenant von Ingram - is subordinated to the Commandant of the Rear Army Area, until further notice; the Headquarters of the office is Athens. The address reads as follows:

"Special Detachment Rosenberg, Field Post No. 14894. In Saloniki, in consideration of the exceptional propagation and the influence of the Jewry there, a permanent work group will be established there soon.

"By an order of the 5th of May, the Special Detachment in Athens has already been assigned for administrative purposes to the administrative sub-area headquarters 811. In the same way, the assignment for administrative purposes of the work group Saloniki will be made to the administrative sub-area headquarters there.

"The administrative sub-area and local headquarters will be informed concerning the activities of the Special Detachment Rosenberg and will be instructed to give every possible support to the Representative of Reich Leader Rosenberg in the execution of his tasks. To carry out confiscations, officials of the Secret Field Police, Geheime Feldpolizei, may be assigned on request to the Special Detachment.

"At the same time, the administrative sub-area and local headquarters are instructed to report from time to time concerning Free Mason lodges, synagogues and Jewish organizations of all kinds as they become known."

"For the Commandant Rear Army Area.

The Quartermaster, (Signature illegible) Lt. Colonel (initial illegible)."Now this task force Rosenberg which we will be able to better identify the works of Mr. Rosenberg at a later time, is here shown to be subordinate to the Commandant of the Army Rear Area.

The local Headquarters and sub-area headquarters to which they are attached is only for administrative purposes and it is to be noted that this unit is commanded by a Lieutenant, and Army officer; that they have one now working in Athens; that they will set one up in Saloniki and that in cases they need them they can call upon the Secret Field Police to help them out whenever special confiscations are made.

The next document is NOKW-929 which is offered as Exhibit 11 and is an affidavit.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, before you start in with this exhibit it is now very close to 1215. The Tribunal is inclined to try an experiment to see whether we make haste by giving a little time. We shall adjourn now until 1:30.

(A recess was taken until 1330 hours)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours 16 July 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: All persons in the courtroom will please take their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: May I inquire of counsel for the defendants as to whether or not they have had sufficient time for lunch?

DR. LATERNSE: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, the next document is NOKW-929 which is a combination of an affidavit by the defendant Foertsch dated -

THE PRESIDENT: What page, please?

MR. DENNEY: I am sorry, sir -- page 40, Document Book I, page four zero, dated March 18, 1947; and in conjunction with it is submitted his service record, the whole exhibit being -- I beg Your Honors' pardon -- 929 is Exhibit No. 11. Is that right, Major Hatfield?

MAJOR HATFIELD: Yes, Sir.

MR. DENNEY: 929 is received as No, 11 but we haven't gone into it. The next one is 1559 which is a service record, which will be 12.

THE PRESIDENT: I believe it might be well to read this affidavit because it gives a fairly short but complete description of the defendant's military career and perhaps can save some time later on.

THE PRESIDENT: May I inquire as to what the document is to which you are referring?

MR. DENNEY: 929, NOKW, Your Honor. It is on page 40.

"I was born as the son of a manager of an estate in Frahnów (West Prussia) on April 4, 1885. I attended the elementary school for three years. I then went to the Humanistische Gymnasium in Filehne and later in Schneidemühl. I graduated from the last named in spring 1913. I joined the 175th Infantry Regiment in Graudenz as an officer candidate in March 1913.

After having been assigned to the war academy in Potsdam (November 1913 until July 1914) I was assigned to the 175th Infantry Regiment with the rank of lieutenant. With this regiment I went to the front as a Platoon Leader. And I participated in the battles of the XVII Infantry Corps in East Prussia, Poland and on the Western Front. I was transferred to the 7th Assault Battalion as Company Commander and fought in the West until the end of the war. In 1919/20, I commanded a volunteer company with the rank of first lieutenant (since 1917). I was employed for the security of the Army Command and also in combatting interior unrest. In World War I, I received the Iron Cross 2nd Class in 1914, the Iron Cross 1st Class in 1916 and the Order of the House of Hohenzollern in 1918. 1921-25 I was assigned to the Training Course for assistant chiefs of Staff, two years with the Münster (Westphalia) Wehrkreis, one year with the 17th Infantry Regiment in Brunswick, 2 years with the Reichs Wehr Ministry in Berlin. Of the last mentioned, I spend one year as Ordonnanzoffizier (Adjutant) of the Chief of the truppenamt. Having successfully concluded my training as assistant Chief of Staff I became Press liaison officer in the Reichs Wehr Ministry from 1925 to 1930 and I was charged with evaluating and advising the German Press and the Military Periodicals. I was promoted to Captain in 1926. I was Company Commander of a rifle company in the 17th Infantry Regiment in Göttingen from April 1930 to August 1932. After that I was transferred to the Reichs Wehr Ministry as Press Chief of the Ministry with the rank of Major. Later I became a section Chief "Inland" (Internal Affairs) and I was charged with handling all general problems pertaining to the Wehrmacht. I was transferred to Treptow (Pomerania) as a Battalion Commander in the 4th Infantry Regiment. There I was promoted to lieutenant Colonel in 1936. In fall, 1936, I was assigned to substitute for a sick instructor in the War Academy in Berlin. Subsequently I was transferred there. I became a Colonel in 1938. At the outbreak of World War II, I was Chief of Staff of Wehrkreis VIII in Breslau.

After the Polish campaign I became Chief of General Staff of the XXVIth Infantry Corps in the West. In the fall of 1940 I became Commanding General of the General Staff Courses in Berlin. I participated in the Balkan Campaign as Liaison Officer of the OKH with the 12th Army. I became Chief of General Staff of the 12th Army in May 1941. In 1942 I was promoted to Generalmajor (Brigadier General). I remained in the Southeast as Chief of General Staff of Army Group E and later of Army Group F. From 1943 on I had the rank of Generalleutnant (Major General). I was appointed Commanding Officer of the 21st Infantry Division in the Northern Sector of the Eastern Front in Summer of 1944. Subsequently I was promoted to General der Infanterie (Lieutenant General) and was Commanding Officer of the Xth Army Corps until December 1944. After an interval I took over the command of the 1st Army on the Western Frontier of the Reich on 2.3.45 I remained in this position until the end of the War. On 4.5.45 I signed the surrender of Army Group G in Haar near Munich.- In World War II, in 1940, I was decorated with clasps to the Iron Cross 2nd and 1st Class. In 1943 I received the German Cross in Gold and in 1944 the Knights Cross to the Iron Cross.

"I have been married since 1924. I have three sons who were born in 1925, 1928 and 1934 respectively. The oldest son - an Army Lieutenant - has been missing since January 1945.

"I have never belonged to any party or any other organization. I have been a regular Army Officer without any break.

"From 1927 to 1939 several of my writings of a military nature were published, particularly in the daily press and in military periodicals. My most important book published is entitled "Kriegskunst heute und morgen" (The Art of Warfare Today and Tomorrow). It appeared in Spring 1939 and has been translated into several languages. It was also published in the United States of America."

And then follows the jurat in which he says he has read the statement in the German language and believes it to be true and he has had the opportunity to make changes and corrections and made the statement voluntarily without any promise of reward and was neither threatened nor compelled to do so, signed by defendant Foertsch.

On the German there appears a statement by the witness Kreilishheim which is missing on the English. He was the man who took the statement.

The next exhibit which has already been offered as Exhibit 12, starting on page 43, is the service record of the defendant Foertsch. On the first page in the English, over in the lefthand column under "Home address" the letter "T" should be the first letter on the third line. I don't think it is correct in the German, not that it makes any difference.

Now, the service record as such is not of importance until we get to the period 1941, which states on the 10th of May, 1941 -- on the first page, page 43 -- he became Chief of Staff of the 12th Army and to the recitation there is "Chief of Staff Army Group E" but there is no date to the left and I don't know what that applies to. The date may have been omitted in the translation. In any event, the arrangement, the statement of May 5, Chief of General Staff, 12th Army, is what we are concerned with at this point and later the date of 15 October 1943 when he became Chief of the General Staff Army Group F.

Turning then to page 3 of the personnel report, there are various reports by other defendants on April 1, 1942, which was the tie in with the 12th Army when the defendant Kuntze was in command, the defendant Foertsch was Chief of Staff to him, and it was some two or three months prior to Kuntze departing, which took place in August of 1942.

Kuntze had this to say about him:

Outspoken, leadership personality, systematic, energetic, enthusiastic, intelligent. Excellent General Staff Office. Fully proven as teacher and educator. Good in word and writing. Adapted for Chief of the Generalstaff in an Army Group, Division Commander.

1.3.43 Loehr: Proven excellent as Chief of The General Staff. Mentally superior personality, of rare military and general knowledge. Knows how to represent the German point of view without friction to those allied with the Germans. Always proven as a collaborator Commander in Chief far above average. CG of an Infantry Corps.

24.8.43, Loehr: Filled office further in a distinguished manner.

11.4.44, Freiherr von Weichs: Commander in Chief Army Group F. Proven excellent as Chief of the General Staff. Good expert on the Balkans. Always proven as collaborator and advisor to the Commander in Chief. Mentally superior, especially comprehensive military and general knowledge and interests. Physically fully fit for service. Led the Staff with a firm hand. Superior. CG of an Infantry Corps.

From 25.44 made available by Personnel 3 – for use in other Quarters.

I think that those are all that we need to read of the recommendations. However, I believe it is apparent that his commander regarded him as a strong personality, one who led the staff of which he was chief, and that he served as an able adviser to his Commander-in-Chief.

The last page of the record of service shows principally his pro motions, which have already been read in the affidavit.

He set forth there the various ranks he held, and the times he received them, and I do not think there is any need to go into it further at this time.

The next document is 484, NOKW, which is an insert that I do not believe your Honors have in the document book, but we will hand it up at the present time, so that counsel for defense may not be worried. It is a copy of the Commissar order, substantially the same as the one which you have in the book, except that it is the order issued from OKW, the one you have in your book is the one from OKH, and this is offered purely in order that the court may see the method of distribution. It is not very often that we are able to get both OKW and an OKH release on the same order. And in view of the fact that the next exhibit has some additions to it the order is OKW 484, which we offered as Exhibit 13, and will be commented upon but briefly with reference to the distribution list. We will go more fully into the contents of the order in the next document.

This order is dated 6 June 1941, and is from Fuhrer Headquarters OKW, the 10th copy of 20 copies, and I would call your Honor's attention to the instructions here issued by Warlimont, NOKW to the effect that distribution is to be carried down to Commanders-in-Chief of Armies, or Chiefs of the Luftwaffe only and that the Commanders and Kommandeurs be informed orally, and that is placed for the Chief of the High Command of the Wehrmacht.

This distribution list which occurs just below the signature of Warlimont shows that:

High Command of the Army Operations Department 1st copy General Quarters 2nd copy General for Special Purpose at the High Command of the Army 3rd and 4th copy Commander of the Luftwaffe/Luftwaffe Operations Staff 5th copy General Quarters 6th copy Commander of the Navy/Naval Operations Staff 7th copy OKW/WFSt 8th copy and so on.

The next exhibit which is NOKW 1076, which we offer as Exhibit 14, is the same, with the addition of the first page, which is dated 8 June 1941, and as your Honors can see, this came from the Army High Command Headquarters the OKH, and encloses all of the orders as received from OKW, with of course, a different distribution list, which appears at the end of the order here.

The instructions which are contained, are the same except for two additions which Field Marshal von Brauchitsch, who was still at that time the head of OKH added on the first page, "Action taken against a political commissar must be based on the fact that the person in question has shown by a special, recognizable act or attitude, that he opposed or will in future oppose the Wehrmacht". He states further that "political commissars attached to the troops should be segregated and dealt with by order of an officer, inconspicuously and outside the proper battle zone".

The second page of the order contains the original order, with the suggestion, or the order by Warlimont for the Chief of the Supreme Command of the Armed Forces, reciting that this is the enclosed directives for the treatment of political Commissars and the aforementioned limitation on distribution with the warning to give it to Junior Commanders by word of mouth.

On page 3 of Exhibit 14, NOKW, 1076, the directive starts;

Directives for the treatment of political commissars When fighting Bolshevism one can not count on the enemy acting in accordance with the principles of humanity or International Law.

In particular it must be expected that the treatment of our prisoners by the political commissars of all types who are the true pillars of resistance, will be cruel, inhuman and dictated by hate.

The troops must realize:

- 1.) That in this fight it is wrong to treat such elements with clemency and consideration in accordance with International Law. They are a menace to our own safety and to the rapid pacification of the conquered territories.
- 2.) That the originators of the Asiatic barbaric methods of fighting are the political commissars. They must be dealt with promptly and with the utmost severity.

Therefore, if taken while fighting or offering resistance they must, on principle, be shot immediately.

For the rest, the following instructions will apply:

I. Theatre of Operations.

1) Political commissars who oppose our troops will be dealt with in accordance with the "decree concerning jurisdiction in the "Barbarossa" area".

"Barbarossa", if your Honor Pleases is the code name which was applied for the planned invasion of Russia. In all of these operations I think it has become apparent that the German High Command used a name which they applied for the operation while it was being planned; and "Barbarossa" was the name applied to the planned invasion of Russia.

"Political commissars are recognisable by their special insignia - red star with an inwoven golden hammer and sickle on the sleeves (for details see 'The Armed Forces of the USSR' OKH/GenStdH Army High Command/General Staff of the Army) Then there are some more figures and:

They are to be segregated at once e.c. while still on the battlefield; from the prisoners of war. This is necessary in order to deprive them of any possibility of influencing the captured soldiers. These commissars will not be recognized as soldiers; the protection granted to prisoners of war in accordance with International Law will not apply to them. After having been segregated they are to be dealt with.

3.) Political commissars who are not guilty of any hostile act or are not suspected of such will remain unmolested for the time being. Only in the course of a deeper penetration into the country will it be possible to decide whether officials who remained in their positions can be left where they are, or should be handed over to the "Sonderkommandos". The latter should preferably scrutinize those cases themselves.

As a matter of principle, when deliberating the question of "guilty or not guilty", the personal impression received of the commissar's outlook and attitude should be considered of greater importance than the facts of the case which may not be decisive.

4.) In cases 1) and 2) a brief report (report form) on the incident is to be submitted:

a) to the Division (Ic) (Field Intelligence Officer) by troops subordinated to a Division.

b) to the Corps Command or other respective Commands, as follows (Ic) by troops directly subordinated to a Corps Command, an Army High Command or the Command of an Army Group, or Armoured Group.

5.) None of the above mentioned measures must delay the progress of operations. Combat troops should therefore refrain from systematic rounding-up and mopping-up measures.

II. In the Rear Areas Commissars arrested in the rear area on account of doubtful behaviour are to be handed over to the "Einsatzgruppe" or the "Einsatzkommandos" of the SS security Service (SD) respectively.

III. Restriction with regard to Court Martials and Summary Courts The Court Martials and Summary Courts of regimental and other commanders must not be entrusted with the carrying out of the measures as under I and II.

MR. DENNEY: And then follows a distribution list, and it is to be noted that the eleventh copy of this order went to the High Command of the 2nd Army, which was , at that time, commanded by the Defendant Weichs. It was pointed out yesterday that it is to be noted that this order was issued from OKW on 6 June, which was some fifteen days prior to the invasion of Russia, and that it was passed down by OKH two days later, when there still was no war, so far as the units that are concerned with the Russian campaign are concerned. We now come to Document 454-PS, which is offered as Exhibit 15. It's a Hitler order of 9 June 1941, which goes to all branches, from the Wehrmacht, and also one to List, as the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. This order of Hitler is the one which sets up the Armed Forces Command Southeast. This order of Hitler is the one which sets up the Armed Forces Command Southeast. It's dated 9 June 1941 and is from Hitler, Order No. 31.

In order to create clear and unified conditions of command in the occupied Balkan area, I give the following commands:

1.) To be "Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast" with headquarters in Salonika, I nominate Field Marshal LIST.

The Wehrmacht Commander, South east is the supreme representative of the Wehrmacht in the Balkans and exercises executive authority in the territories occupies by German troops.

The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is, as such, directly subordinated to me.

2.) To the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast are subordinated:

a) For the area old area Serbia:

The "Commander Serbia" (Lt. Gen.

anti-aircraft artillery, von Schroeder)

b) For the area Soloniki and the Island Lemnos, Mytilone, Chios and Skyros:

the "Commander Saloniki- Aegea" (to be filled by OKH)

c) For the territories Athens, Crete, Kythera, Antikythera and Melos:

The "Commander of Southern Greece" (to be filled by the C-in-C of the Air Corps)

3.) With the exception of the conduct of offensive air warfare, the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is to bring together in a unified control all military questions of the Wehrmacht which arise from the occupation: security, supply, transport, and communication affairs of the occupied Southeast area. This is to be done for all three Wehrmacht branches. And he is to make decisions in terms of the overall responsibility which falls to the Wehrmacht in the Southeast area. In this way, the leadership will be simplified, the branches of the Wehrmacht will be relieved of the many individual questions and differences of opinion which are the inevitable result of having all Wehrmacht branches working side by side in the same area.

The following is incumbent on the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast in detail:

A. The safeguarding of the unified defense of those parts of Serbia and Greece which are occupied by the German troops, including the Greek Islands, against attacks and unrest.

Besides the Commanders named who are responsible for the defense as directed by him in their spheres, the following are also subordinated to him in these questions: The Admiral Southeast and the Commander in Luftgau Balkans. Both staffs are to be organized within the staff of the Wehrmacht Commander. The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, determines also to what extent the staffs of the commanders of Salonika-Aegea and Southern Greece subordinated to him are to be united with offices of the other Wehrmacht branches.

b. The centralized direction of the necessarily comprehensive ocean transport movements in the near future to and from Crete and the security thereof:

c. Organized direction of the cooperation with the Italians and - so far as necessary -- with the Bulgarian Wehrmacht in the Balkans.

d. The control of supply on land and on sea for all the Wehrmacht branches deployed in the Balkans in accordance with their demands and the measure of the transport space available;

e. Supervision over the Military Administration to be exercised by the commanders in the territories occupied by the German troops.

4.) The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast has all the powers of a territorial commander in the parts of Serbia and Greece, including the Greek Islands which are occupied by German troops.

The areas occupied exclusively by German troops are operational territory. Here the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast exercises executive power through the Commander subordinated to him.

In the territories belonging to the Italian occupied area in which German troops are quartered, he exercises Military Sovereign Rights for all Wehrmacht Branches insofar as is required by the military mission of the German Wehrmacht.

5.) The limitation of powers of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast against the "Plenipotentiary of the Reich for Greece". (see supplement).

6.) The Island of Crete occupies a special position in the Southeast area:

It is the operational territory from which air warfare in the Eastern Mediterranean Sea in conformity with the situation in North Africa is to be continued (see No. 7) Organization and construction of this base, its security and its provisioning is at the moment the most urgent mission in the Southeast area.

Being an operational base of the Air Corps, the Island of Crete is to be subordinated as a fortress to a special commander (Commandant) of the Air Corps.

This person exercises executive power in accordance with the general directives of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, as a Plenipotentiary (or for) the Commander of South Greece. He is responsible for the unified defense of the Island with all the troops located there and which are subordinated to him for this purpose.

Also, the installations of the Army necessary for the War Administration are under his command.

The Eastern part of the Island to a general line, the western edge of the Bay of Meranbelo to Jerapetra inclusive, is assigned to the Italian occupation. It is subordinated to the Commandant of the Island in all tactical questions which refer to the unified defense of the Island.

7.) Air Warfare in the Eastern Mediterranean is to be conducted according to the orders of the Commander-in-Chief of the Luftwaffe.

The necessary arrangements are to be made directly by him with the Italian Luftwaffe.

Through the Admiral Southeast and in collaboration with the Italian Navy and the X Flieger-Korps the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast regulates the transport of troops and the sending of reinforcements by sea as well as the necessary security on the water or from the air.

The cooperation of the Admiral Southeast with the Rumanian and Bulgarian Navy and questions pertaining to operational naval warfare in case they should arise in the Eastern Mediterranean, are to be regulated by the Commander in Chief of the Navy, directly with the Admiral Southeast.

9.) The order 29 of 17 May 41 is rescinded insofar as it is superseded by the above orders.

Signed: Adolf Hitler Certified Wien Major-General Staff Corps

MR. DENNEY: For the distribution of this the first three copies went to Commander-in-Chief of the Army (Operations Branch), Commander-in-Chief of the Navy (Operations Division), and Commander-in-Chief of the Luftwaffe (Luftwaffe Operations Staff -to the OKH, OKM, and OKL, the Army, Navy, and the Luftwaffe. And the fourth copy went to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the Defendant List.

This Order 29, which is referred to here, is Exhibit No. 9, which has been received in evidence. Now, on the next page there are some "Limitation of Powers of 'Reich Plenipotentiary for Greece' and the 'Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast.'" They provide that "The relations.....

1. The relations of the "Reich Plenipotentiary for Greece" and the "Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast" to one another and to the Greek Government are to be noted from the following reasons.

a.) Fuhrer decree of 28 April 41 for the "Plenipotentiary of the Reich for Greece".

"1. I nominate a "Plenipotentiary of the Reich for Greece". His office is to be Athens.

"2. The plenipotentiary of the Reich has to represent the political, economic, and cultural interests of the Reich in Greece with the new Greek Government until assumption of formal diplomatic relationships with Greece.

"3. Further, the plenipotentiary of the Reich must maintain whatever contact with the Italian occupation he finds necessary for the execution of his duties.

b.) The right of the "Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast" to exercise power in the territory occupied by the German troops.

II. The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast has to support the Reich Plenipotentiary in every respect and to concur with him in the measures he prepares for Greece.

III. Duties in the political , economic and cultural fields will in general devolve on the Reich Plenipotentiary for Greece. Negotiations with the Greek Government with respect to the interests of the Reich along these lines are incumbent on him.

In so far as the current business relative to the territory occupied by the German troops is concerned, agreements will take place on the spot between the plenipotentiary of the Reich and the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

The Reich Plenipotentiary for Greece is to keep the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast informed on foreign political questions, a knowledge of which is necessary for the execution of his military duties.

IV. In the case of military orders which may have foreign political reactions, the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is to establish agreement with the Reich Plenipotentiary for Greece first i.e., in so far as the military situation permits.

V. Control of propaganda in Greece is the duty of the Foreign Office, which is to cooperate with the High Command of the Wehrmacht (WFSt/Wehrmacht Propaganda Office) in this matter.

Handwritten /Initial W

MR. DENNEY: At this time the authority of the Defendant List in the Southeast was clearly setup. It was also at this time that the Defendant Foertsch, who had come to this theatre as Chief of Staff to List early in May, went along with him as Chief of Staff for the entire theatre, that is, as Armed Forces Commander Southeast, in addition to his duties as Commander in Chief of the 12th Army. And, of course , Foertsch maintained his post as Chief of Staff for both units. The threat of List's power in the Southeast I believe is apparent from the Hitler order.

The next document is NOKW-1432, which is offered as Exhibit 16 in evidence. This is a Keitel order which contains regulations for the execution of Directive No. 31, and it's dated, Hitler Headquarters, 15 June 1941.

- 1.) By the appointment of General Field Marshal List to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast his position and duties as Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army remains unaffected.
- 2.) The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is the sole Command Authority of the Wehrmacht on the Balkans concerning all those duties for which he is responsible, pursuant to direction 31. And Directive 31 is the order of 9 June which we have just read.

The High Commands of the branches of the Wehrmacht and the offices of the OKW have been instructed to organize communication with their offices in this area accordingly.

The incorporation of the staffs of Admiral Southeast and of Commander of the Luftgau Balkans may be supplied by liaison detachments of these offices with the staff of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast in as far as the situation requires a transfer of the Navy and Luftwaffe offices to other places.

- 3.) Administrative offices will be put at the disposal of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast by OKH.

Administrative procedure is regulated according to the general rules and directives issued by OKH. In basic problems it will be regulated according to directives issued by OKH/WEST/1.

- 5.) This next stamp which appears here appears at the bottom of the first page of the photostat and is the receipt stamp of 12th Army showing that this title order was received by them on that date. Liaison with the Italian armed forces for the Greek mainland is to be established with the Commander-in-Chief of the Italian 11th Army. Liaison for the Aegean is to be established with the Governor of Rhodes. In basic questions, liaison is to be established directly with the High Command of the Italian Armed Forces (via OKW or via the German General with the High Command or the Italian armed forces.)

- 6.) The Wehrmacht Commander will be informed by the respective offices of the OKW concerning current military, political and economic directives and events.

The Wehrmacht units will regulate the delivery of gazettes.

- 7.) Reports will be made as follows:

- a) Daily situation reports before 2 o'clock to OKW and OKH concerning the events of the previous day.
- b) Monthly reports to OKH with copy for OKW concerning the problems of military administration.

8.) Requisitions for personnel – officers, officials and auxiliary personnel – for the execution of Wehrmacht duties are to be sent to OKW Central Section of Armed Forces High Command as far as necessary – for all three branches of the Wehrmacht.

This order was issued by Keitel from OKW and it had the same distribution as the Directive No. 31 which, as we have seen, went to OKW, OKH, OKL, OKM, and the next copy going to the defendant List, and of course coming to him through his chief of staff to defendant Foertsch.

The next document –

DR. LATERNER: Your Honors, may I please ask the prosecutor to speak a little slower so that translation mistakes which appear in the documents can be found by me? I would ask him to speak a little slower, please.

THE PRESIDENT: I am certain that Mr. Denney will comply with your request.

MR. DENNEY: Certainly, sir. I am sorry if I have been going too fast.

The next document is NOKW-1148 which we offer as Exhibit 17 and as the document is contained in the document book the pages are reversed. However, it doesn't make any difference in the English. The second letter which appears on page 64 which–

THE PRESIDENT: On what page, please?

MR. DENNEY: On page 64, your Honor, which is from General von Schroeder, General of the Anti-Aircraft Artillery, to the Military Commander in Serbia as of this date enclose the letter which starts on page 63. It is just a matter of the letters having been reversed. There were two separate pages originally and as they mimeographed them, one ran over so I shall read the second letter, the one which appears on page 64, which is dated 22 June 1941 and headed "The Military Commander in Serbia" and signed "von Schroeder" first.

The Military Commander in Serbia Belgrade 22 June 1941 Enclosed you will find a letter from the Chief of my Administrative Staff to the Serbian Minister Commissioner Acimovic.

I have ordered reinforced employment of the Serbian Police and Gendarmerie Agents. They are to be supported in every way. They will turn directly to the agents and/or the troops subordinate to me if danger threatens, i.e., if the local commander of the Serbian police forces no longer believes himself master of the situation.

Moreover if a general employment of the troops should become necessary pertinent orders will be issued by central authority.

There follows the distribution list on the next page and the letter which he encloses is one from the administrative staff, military commander in Serbia. It is addressed to the Minister Commissioner of the Interior, Belgrade 22 June 1941.

On the basis of the latest events of the war I request that the arrest of all leading Communists be carried out immediately, as discussed with you previously, and the Police President of Belgrade be instructed to have the leading Communists of the City of Belgrade which are known to him arrested. These persons are to be interned on the Zigeunerinsel. Later on these as well as other Criminal Elements arrested in the country and Communists are to be transferred to the concentration camp which you have been directed to erect. Simultaneously, you are to see that all Rod Spain fighters are to be arrested this very night.

Furthermore I request that the Police President be given the following directives:

1. The Police are to increase street patrols. As ordered before, the police are to organize the night duty details also.

2. The Police President is to issue the necessary directives for the special guard of public buildings and other important installations.

In order to facilitate these tasks, I shall see to it that the necessary arms coming from captured materiel be placed at the disposal of the Serbian Police.

Simultaneously, the German troops will be informed of these directives and will be requested to render assistance to the police if necessary.

In conclusion, I should like to direct your special attention to the cities of Nish, Dragujevac, Uzice, Cacak, Rtanj and the Trepca Mines as well as to the mines of Bor.

Report of completion of mission is requested.

For the Military Commander in Serbia The Chief of the Military Staff (signed) Turner Councillor of State It is here again that we see a reference to concentration camps and the arrest of people solely because of the political affiliation that they have, and the dates of this letter are substantially after the time 9 June of the Hitler order and again after the Keitel order direction which is the 15th of June, a week later, and for a week following the time when the defendant List became the armed forces commander for all of the Southeast.

The next document which is NOKW-902 is an extract from the war diary of the Military Commander of Serbia. It is offered as Exhibit 18. I don't think we need to read all of it. The entry for 5 July 1941 states that thirteen communists and Jews were shot to death and gives as the reason "in an air raid cellar next to the square, where a big demonstration of German Nationals was to take place, 423 packages of explosives were found.

"On the 17th of July 1941, 16 communists were shot to death in Belgrade. Others were arrested and arms were found.

And over to the 19th of July, 1941. "During the illness of the Commander, Colonel von Kaisenberg was at first to become Deputy Commander; by order of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, General of the Artillery Bader will take over the affairs of the Commander."

Bader, it is believed, if your Honors please, is dead. Then it continues "During the leave of General Field Marshal List, General of the Air Corps, Felmy, one the defendants, shall be Deputy Wehrmacht Commander Southeast."

These reports are the first of a very extensive number which will be submitted and it is submitted that they indicate the rather casual way that they were accustomed to dealing with the questions of the shootings of Jews and communists. No reasons are given. There is a reason given for the first one but there is no connection which is set forth in the report between the finding of the explosive and the execution other than that the explosives were found and then the people were killed.

In NOKW-1036, which is Exhibit 19, I will put this in at this time and at a later time we will connect it with the retaliatory measures which took place. This original document -- that is, the photostat which we have has the initials of the defendant Foertsch on it. This is a communication to the 12th Army from the 65th Corps; which was commanded by Bader and which was under 12th Army, 65th Corps, at that time was in Yugoslavia. It was receipted for on the 19th of July, 1941, and is addressed to the Supreme Commander Southeast and also the Supreme Commander of the 12th Army. The actual photostat is the photostat of a teletype; however, the teletype is pasted on a blank such as I believe is familiar to your Honors for the use of teletype and it is on the bank where the 12th Army that the pencil or pen written initials of the defendant Foertsch appeared.

Of course it was addressed to his Chief, the defendant List, and the teletype recites; "Automobile of the Commanding Officer of the 724th Infantry Regiment, General Lontschar fired on 20 kilometers South of Valjevo. General uninjured. 1 officer shot in lung." It is from Roman 65 Corps Command Branch," which is 65th Chief Commander. Written below, not as apart of the telegram, there appears, in German "What counter measures?" and then the question below that , again on the blank, not on the teletype print, "Why no hostages in Valjevo?" Then below that, over to the right is the initial F, or rather the signature of the defendant Foertsch. On Your Honors' copy to the left it says 19 September. That is not correct. That should be 19 July.

The next document is No. NO-2942 which is offered as Exhibit 20. This is a report of events by the Chief of the Security Police and the SD in Berlin, dated 19 July 1942 and recites the report from one of their Einsatzgruppe in Yugoslavia which tells of some orders by the military Commander in Serbia. These are given in July, after the time when the defendant List became Armed Forces Commander Southeast and continued his post as Commanding General 12th Army. The first part is of no importance. It has to do with the Political Review in the Reich. Party (b) says, "Other occupied territories: Yugoslavia:

"Einsatzgruppe Belgrade reports:

"The long distance cable in the city area of Belgrade was cut during the night from 16 to 17 July 41, Military Commander Serbia has ordered the shooting to death of a number of leading communists as a reprisal measure.

16 Communist functionaries and Jews were shot to death by the Serbian Gendarmerie."

The report isn't clear whether these were shot separately or whether these were reprisal measures for the alleged cable cutting on 16 and 17 July, In any event, it is clear that here the Chief of the Security police and the SD is reporting that the Military Commander Serbia gave these orders and that the people that they specify is that they be a member of, or a leading communist.

There is nothing to show that they knew who cut the cables, whether they were communists or perhaps some other group doesn't appear. Then we have a report from Einsatzkommando Zagreb reports:

"In the night of July 14, 140 leading Croatian Communists escaped from the Croatian concentration camp Kerestines near Samobor, The inmates had captured the camp commander and threatened to kill him. The Communists escaped to the surrounding woods. One third of the persons who had escaped have been recaptured up to now. The rest is approaching the German-Controller border. Suitable security measures for the arrest of the Communists were taken immediately by the Croatian Security Police.

"A land area of Zagreb has been blocked off by the Ustasha Police. Meanwhile a member of the people who had escaped were caught and shot to death. Probably 70 Communists were shot to death as compared with 6 members of the guard of the concentration cap who were murdered. The Croatian Police intends to arrest an additional 300 communists. The majority of them will be shot to death by the summary court martial procedure as a reprisal measure."

And, it is to be noted that the distribution list on this report from the Security Police SD in Berlin sends a copy to the OKW Operation Staff Lieutenant Colonel Tippelskirch.

The next report is an additional report of the Chief of the Security Police and of the SD, Berlin 20 July 1941, and again we are concerned with a report on Yugoslavia. This document ties in, if your Honors please, with the document No. 19 which speaks of the General being fired on. Your Honors will recall that that was a report to the High Command by the 65th Corps. Here we see the SD---

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, pardon me, I do not believe you have identified it by number, have you?

MR. DENNEY: This new one, 2943, Your Honor, will be Exhibit 21. The first teletype is dated 19 July and here a day later we got a report on it out of Berlin and this confirms the idea which was conveyed, in the early report about the Military Commander in Serbia giving orders to the Security Police in the SD under Yugoslavia:

"The German General Lomtscha, Division General of Uzice was fired on by bandits on the road between Uzice and Valjevo on 18 July 41 in the afternoon. The general was not hit, his executive officer was shot in the chest. By order of the Military Commander Serbia an operation was initiated with the task of searching for roving bands in the entire territory. This operation was carried out on 19 July 1941 by two companies of the German municipal Police Corps and the troops stationed in Uzico in cooperation with the Serbian Gendarmeria and the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and of the SD. Measures are being taken to confiscate all radio sets from the population. It is further intended to reduce basic rations in order to prevent the population from giving economic assistance to the bands in the forests, Curfew in this area is set for 1900 hours. Persons found on the street after 1900 hours will be shot to death. In addition 10 hostages are seized in each village. These measures will be made known by means of posters in the villages."

Then there is the additional note that the population must feed the German troops, who have been dispatched into these areas, for the duration of the occupation.

And, here again a copy of this document went to the OKW Operation Staff Lieutenant Colonel Tippelskirch. We have the Military Commander in Serbia who was under the defendant List giving an order which calls for the combined action of German police corps and German troops stationed, in Yugoslavia, Serbian Gendarmeria, and Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police of the SD.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I regret having to intervene again, but at this moment I must point out a translation mistake which has caused this conclusion by the prosecution. I would like to point out that the German original is as follows: "By direction' of the Military Commander" and not as translated, "by order", that is, 'by order', if there is a difference in military language. During the course of the proceedings I have found many more translation mistakes of the same kind. I shall notify the court accordingly in writing.

THE PRESIDENT: As I have said before, it is quite possible that there will be differences in translation and in connection with this matter the counsel for the defendants will have the opportunity to present their evidence, to call this to the attention of the court, and the court will also keep in mind that there is bound to be some disagreements as to whether or not it is a correct translation. The court will keep these matters in mind.

MR. DENNEY: Whether it says order, or directive, at least it was Military Commander Serbia who started all this commotion and I trust Dr. Laternser and I will be able to work it out.

THE PRESIDENT: For that matter, I believe it might be well for Dr. Laternser and Mr. Denney to make some notation of these matters and then if they have agreed upon it to call it to the attention of the Tribunal. You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: I am sure Dr. Laternser will keep notes as he goes along and whenever we can I shall be glad to comply with any suggestion.

Then we have another report from the Chief of the Security Police and of the SD, dated 22 July 1941. This is NO-2944 which we offer as Exhibit 22 and which has more to say about Exhibit 19 which was the original teletype from the 65th Corps to the 12th Army. It continued one story which we had in Exhibit 21. This is Berlin 22, July 1941, two days after the prior report, Exhibit 21 in evidence; with reference to Yugoslavia, it says "In reprisal for the attempted attack on the life of German General Lomscha near Uzice, 52 communists, Jews and families of band members in the villages of Uzice, Valjevo and Cacac were shot to death on 20 July 1941. In addition to the previously reported measures a large scale operation with support of Wehrmacht units is in preparation, in agreement with Military Commander Serbia." And again a copy of this went to OKW Operations Staff.

So, to sum up those documents, on 19 July a teletype goes from the 65th Corps to the 12th Army, and on 20 July they start sending reports out on it from the Security Police and SD in Berlin; and the reprisal measures have already been referred to which were taken. There is nothing to show that the lieutenant who was wounded died. One report says he was shot in the lung and another says he was shot in the chest; and nothing happened to the general, apparently the whole thing was done because a German general was fired on.

The next document is NOKW-1199, which we offer as Prosecution's Exhibit Number 23, and is extracts from the War Diary of the 704th Infantry Division; and the extracts are included between the period 4 April 1941 and December 30, 1941. That is withdrawn -- December 30, 1941. However, the extracts which we have quoted are those commencing in July of 1941, at which time the 704 Infantry Division was a part of the 65th Corps which again was part of the 12th Army, which was commanded by the defendant List. And from the date of the Hitler Order in June - after 15 June, while List was also Armed forces -commander of the Wehrmacht in the Southeast.

On 14 July, I don't think that there is anything there that deserves any particular attention.

It speaks of a conference, discussing the combatting of Communist bands. Then on 15 July they speak of "Secret Field Police Units and asks for 7 already arrested communists to be shot to death in Obrenovace at the dynamited bridge." Then, the comment that the "Radio Station Belgrade announces the shooting of these communists at 1400 hours." There again there is nothing to show here that the Communists had anything to do with the bridge dynamiting.

Then on 20 July, they speak of shooting the reprisals which ties in again with the shooting at the German general, which has been earlier described, with the "Serbian Gendarmerie has shot 52 Communists, 17 of them in Valjevo, in reprisal for the attack on the car of Brigadier General Lontschar, Commanding Officer of the 724th Infantry Regiment on 18 July."

Then the entry of 17 August from Valjevo says "Villages east of Uzice near Gorjani which supplied bands with food stuffs are searched by 5 Jaeger Commandos of the 1st Battalion, 724th Regiment, in a strength of 6 officers, 144 men, and 80 Serbian gendarmes. Two farms in which arms were found were burned down, as well as two farms from which shots were fired. One farm was burned down near the tunnel in which in the preceding night a dynamiting attempt had taken place and in which arms had also been found. Five Serbs who were the owners of the farms have been shot to death."

And then the next speaks of an operation, in the character of captured equipment. This report of 18 August 1941 is of some interest because these units had a typewriter, and had a community seal of a community and had two camp newspapers and a camp library, and it is submitted that roving bands of a few people who have no organization would not have that equipment.

Then over on the entry of 25 September 1941, Shillin, Valjevo, they speak of burning 71 farms in which arms and ammunition had been found.

And further down, on 26 September, they speak of 120 farms burned down by the 125th Infantry Regiment, and that is all there is to the project. There is nothing to show what they had done, whether they had found any ammunition in them, whether the owners were the ones who had offended, whether they were Communists -- just a comment 120 farms burned down.

The next document is NOKW-1091, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit Number 24.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, perhaps this would be a good time to have our afternoon recess.

MR. DENNEY: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: The Court will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in sessions.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, the document to which reference was made just before the recess, was NOKW 1091, which has been assigned the Exhibit No, 24.

This is an excerpt from a 3 page report dated: "Belgrade 22 July 1941", which has to do with "Unrest and attacks in the area of the Command", and there follows a list of people who have been shot to death up to now, with the dates and places:

On 5 July in Belgrade 13 6 July Borcana 2 9 July 1 10 July 1 15 July Obrenovac 10 17 July Belgrade 16 (Handwritten) 18 July Sepci 1_4 (Handwritten) 20 July Valjevo 17 Cacak 12 Uzice 22 Palanka 16 111 (Handwritten) (illeg.)

Captain The total is handwritten and there is a signature which is illegible.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, I have just looked at the photostat of this document, of which only a part is in the document book in the English language. If the prosecution had taken the first two pages into this document book, of course, he could see on the strength of it, why the shootings took place. We would have to do that now, because only a partial quotation of this document will give a false picture. It is not possible, that only the result is cited, if in the same document, the cause of this can be found.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, they can offer such additional parts of the document as they wish when they got to their case in chief.

The good faith of the prosecution in the matter is shown by the fact that we gave them all three pages of it. We are not trying to conceal anything.

THE PRESIDENT: As the Tribunal has previously stated, the defense counsel will have opportunity to show any further parts of these documents that they may wish to show in their case in chief. If they feel that some part of this document has not been shown here, which should be shown, they can do so in their case in chief.

MR. DENNEY: That becomes, Major Hatfield, I believe, Exhibit 24. The next document is C-52, which is offered as Exhibit 25.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, the order of this document OKW-52 I will protest against this for the following reason. This order was never valid for the southeast to which this trial refers -- that this order was only intended for the Russian front is shown by its content, especially from No. 6, which is only contained in the English Document Book and which especially stresses that this order is only intended for security measures in the conquered Eastern territories. I know exactly that this order was present in the first trial before the International Military Tribunal as merely valid for the Eastern front. That it was only for the Eastern front is clear from the distribution marks, In the distribution no official date is mentioned -- just station -- at that time in the Southeast. I see no connection with the Prosecution document which refers to the Southeast area. This document will, therefore have to be revoked.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, first this document is not only applied to the East. There is also, as Dr. Laternser can see on it the Army High Command Norway. You will note that Dr. Laternser contends that this is in the East. Second, one of his clients, the Defendant Weichs was in Russia at the time that this order came out -- 23 July 1941 -- as Commanding General of the 2nd Army, which was part of the Army Group under Field Marshal von Wach, and it is offered to show what was urged at that time by the High Command of the German Army.

And I submit that it is relative for that purpose.

DR. LATERNSEER: I cannot be convinced by this because the distribution mentions AOK Norway, and that is right, and I still maintain that that is valid for only the Eastern area because AOK Norway had one part, the northern part. From the contents of this order it is quite clear that it was only valid for the Eastern front, and not for the Southeastern front. For that reason it would have to be rejected.

MR. DENNEY: In addition, there is a later order in which the Defendant List refers to language which is used in this order. It is certainly submitted that it's admissible now as against the Defendant Weichs because he was on the Western front at the time, subject to being introduced later against Defendant List by future documents.

DR. LATERNSEER: The case would be valid for Weichs if, in fact, from the distribution it became clear that this order reached the corps led by Weichs. That is, however, not the case. I mean it isn't admissible that orders valid for one front alone could be introduced into this trial which is mainly concerned with the Southeastern front.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, with reference to the trial, the general charge of the indictment is the Southeast, but we are not limited to it. In the third Count, which specifically has to do with the Commander's Commissar orders and the copy of the Kommando order, of the two copies of the Commissar order which we have introduced one is from OKW to OKH, and the other is from OKH again, only to the armies in the East.

And we may at a later time be able to produce the Commissar order to the Southeast. As yet we have not done it.

DR. LATERNSEER: I think, Mr. President, that the Prosecution should confine itself to the framework which it has set for itself in the indictment. We cannot allow that we now jump to another front because in that direction the defense did not prepare itself in any way whatsoever. Nothing has been mentioned in the indictment that things which appeared in the East could be dealt with here. Therefore, I ask that this order be rejected. If it is not rejected, then, in fact, the Prosecution could use every order which is valid in any front during the war.

MR. DENNEY: Of course, we don't claim to use every order which was valid on any front, but we submit that this is relevant because it applies to the theatre in which the Defendant Weichs was engaged at the time, and also because of the later List reference to language which is contained in this order. And Count 3 of the indictment, the first part, has to do with such illegal orders directed in this order that members of enemy troops should be summarily executed. The restriction also concerns Greece, Yugoslavia etc. Further, this same order having gone to the Norwegian Command may well have been, in effect, at the time that the Defendant Rendulic was put over that area prior to the evacuation of Finnmark.

JUDGE CARTER: Mr. Denney, I notice that this is a supplement to Order No. 33. Do you know where Order No. 33 was sent? That isn't in the record?

MR. DENNEY: No sir, No. 31 is the last one that we put in with its supplement.

THE PRESIDENT: It is apparent to the Tribunal that this particular document, even though it may be of a general nature, is indicative of a general plan, although we're restricted and will restrict ourselves to that which pertains to particular individuals and particular actions, yet we feel that it does not indicate a plan and a course of action which at least bears out that fact. For that reason the objection will be overruled.

MR. DENNEY: This order is dated the Fuhrer Headquarters, 23 July 1941, the Chief of the High Command of the Armed Forces, Top Secret, by officer only. The parts with which we are concerned particularly show that it is a supplement to Order No. 33.

MR. DENNEY: "On 22 July, the Fuhrer, after receiving the Commander of the Army (who at that time was Field Marshal von Brauchitsch), issued the following order with a view to supplementing and enlarging Order No. 33." We will find it on page 62 in the German text, paragraph 6, provides "In view of the vast.

1 to 5: (strategic measures) 6. In view of the vast size of the occupied areas in the East, the forces available for establishing security in these areas will be sufficient only if all resistance is punished not by legal prosecution of the guilty, but by the spreading of such terror by the occupying forces as is alone appropriate to eradicate every inclination to resist among the population.

The respective Commanders, with the troops available to them are to be held responsible for maintaining peace within the regions where security is their responsibility (Sicherungsraums), not by demanding more security forces, but by applying suitable, draconian measures.

(Signed) Keitel Distribution:

CERTIFICATE OF TRANSLATION OF DOCUMENT NO. C-52 24 November 1945.

I, PAUL W. FREEDMAN, S/Sgt. 33799122, hereby certify that I am thoroughly conversant with the English and German languages and that the above is a correct and true translation of Document No. C-52. EXTRACT.

PAUL W. FREEDMAN, S/Sgt. 33799122.

MR. DENNEY: Of course, it was necessary -- and the order is signed Keitel -- of course it was necessary that an order like this come out at this time because in July 1941 the German forces were considerably spread out. They had a tremendous Eastern front. They were occupying the Southeast countries, about which we have heard much. They were occupying Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, and France.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, I regret to have to speak here again in this matter, and here I refer to a usage which was customary before the International Military Tribunal in cases where it could not be looked upon as just that the Prosecution's referring to only part of the document, and when this part is referred to it will have to be followed by an incorrect conclusion. The Court ordered that the whole document would have to be submitted. I refer to this usage and apply that the Prosecution, which so far in its Document Book only gives one figure of the order which contains six figures. I apply to this Prosecution add the other five figures and that they read them during these proceedings. It cannot be right merely by referring to one figure. The facts of the case which are to be proved by this document are shown in another light. It will be shown from the first five figures that this order was meant in a completely different sense than the Prosecution has just read, and it will be shown by reading the other figures. That's what I have to say in this connection, and it is conformity with facts.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases, this is exactly the way the exhibit was introduced in the International Military Tribunal and to my knowledge it has always been available to counsel for the defendant to offer such other parts as they want. If we translated every part of every document, that is just a practical impossibility. We do give them the complete copies. They have had them. That is a very old document. Dr. Laternser has seen this before because it is a "C" document.

THE PRESIDENT: May I make this statement. The tribunal has been advised that the translation department is being burdened with a great deal of work and that due to the fact that six courts are now being operated, they have just about reached their capacity in handling the volume of translations that are presented to them. I am expressing the thought of all the members of the tribunal, I believe, when I state that if Dr. Laternser and his associate counsel wish to call to the attention of this tribunal at this time any matters of importance which are not shown by the English translation and which they feel are material to a fair and proper presentation, this tribunal will not have any objections to their doing so and I take it that the prosecution would not object.

MR. DENNEY: No, your Honor. I don't object at all.

THE PRESIDENT: Now if there are any matters concerning this particular document which the defense counsel wish now to present to the tribunal, they may do so through the interpreters.

DR. LATERNSEER: I thank you, Mr. President, for the opportunity which you have given me. I will be quite brief. I will only say that the first figure of this order refers to the Southeastern part of the Russian front. Figure two refers to the center sector of the Russian front, and part three refers to the Northeastern sector of the Russian front. The figures 4 and 5 - figure 4 contains the announcement that the high command of the army will have to reckon in the further course of events, that Troops will have to be withdrawn from parts of the Russian fronts.

Figure 5 refers to the activity of the navy and the air force, also with respect to the north and the transfer of military aircraft, the Finnish area and the area around Smolensk, and then figure 6 begins, which the prosecution has submitted here, and that is my conclusion that this order was valid for the east and should therefore have been rejected in conformity with this order.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will adhere to its former ruling. Counsel for defendants will keep in mind the statements which this tribunal made in its prior ruling, that it is to be considered for what it shows as possibly indicating a general plan and is accepted for that purpose in so far as the conclusions of the courts are reaching in ruling upon this matter. You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor. The next document is No. NO2952, which is offered as Exhibit 26 and these are extracts from a report of the Chief of the security police and the SD in Berlin, and there will be a later tie-in with reference to one of the instances here to army reports.

Under the heading of Yugoslavia.

The Chief of the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and the SD in Belgrade reports.

On 25 July 1941 at 1520 hours in Belgrade an unidentified Jew wearing the yellow brassard threw a bottle of gasoline at a German motor vehicle in an attempt to set fire to the automobile. He was prevented from doing so and escaped. On the same day three more incidents, unidentified culprits threw bottles of gasoline at German motor vehicles. In an identical incident a sixteen-year old Serbian girl was arrested. She admitted that she was incited to the deed by a Jew. In reprisal 100 Jews were shot to death in Belgrade on 29 July 1941.

On 26 July 1941 the Wehrmacht Liaison Office reported that a Communist plot to bomb radio broadcasting station Makisch was planned for the evening of the same day.

On the basis of this report, members of the Einsatzkommando Belgrade were able to arrest the culprit while he was transferring the bomb. The bomb weighs about 3½ kilograms and was to be filled with Ecracite. The plotter had received a 6.35 pistol and a pineapple hand grenade for his defense. The main culprit who was established by this arrest, committed suicide.

In addition three Jewesses in whose house the instigator of this attack resided were arrested. The prevented attack aimed at the blasting of radio broadcasting station Makisch. If the demolition of the broadcasting station had been successful, the Ministry of the Interior was to be blasted. After this demolition it was intended to blow up the airplane plant in Rakobica with all its workmen.

And then there is a recital about the band printing money and attacks on motor pools and the destruction of trucks of the German forces. Then over on the entry of 29 July, "On 29 July 41 at 0500 hours 100 Jews and 22 communists will be shot to death in Belgrade. On the same day 200 communists from the Banat who were arrested previously will be shot to death in Gross-Betschkerek. The population will be informed by the press and the radio of the executions. They will be requested to cooperate actively in combatting the Communist movement in order to prevent any further bloodshed.

And then they recite that a piece of rail had been removed and a blasting and another railroad bridge having been blown. Then follows the distribution list with again the OKW getting a copy. It is not clear for what reason the 100 Jews and 22 communists were shot in Belgrade, or why the 200 communists in Banat who had been previously arrested were to be shot. It is clear that they were going to publicize it amply and the prior entry with reference to the motor pool apparently refers to the 26th or the 27th of July, the recitation being that the activity took place on the 27th and the note being under the date of the 26th. At a later time, we can show how these same instances were reported by the Wehrmacht.

The next document is NOKW-1100, which is a communication from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to the Commander in Serbia. It will be Exhibit No. 27.

"To Commander Serbia--S e c r e t. OKW deems it requisite that death sentences for sabotage be carried out by hanging and in addition that all other means of intimidation which are customary with the residents of the country be employed." It is signed "Wehrmacht Commander Southeast." and is dated 29 July 1941.

It is submitted that the language used there is at least suggestive of the language of the Higher Keitel order.

The next document 1128 is offered as Exhibit 28. This is from the Commander of Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and refers to an order of 2 August 1941. At this time, the defendant List was still commander Southeast and the defendant Foertsch was his chief of staff. The order apparently had to do with counter measures, based on the contents of this teletype. It is dated 2 August 1941 and states:

Up to the 22.6.1941 the situation in Serbia, apart from smaller band activities, which did not effect the German Wehrmacht, has been quiet. Since then troubles have occurred in various places.

Thus far - countermeasure have consisted essentially of surprise police operatives of the SD and of the Reserve Police Battalion 64 with Serbian Police men. Troops have been employed only occasionally as single units which are readily mobile to follow against bands which move easily.

As of 22.6.1941 razzias have been carried out against Communists in co-operation with the Serbian Police and Gendarmerie, whereby a great number of Communist functionaries were gradually arrested.

Approximately 412 Communist functionaries were shot.

Commander Serbia Command Staff / Ia 2.8.41 238/41 secret And bears a note on the bottom which is illegible.

The next document NOKW-968 is offered as Exhibit 29. This contains reports from various administrative and sub-area headquarters in teletype to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, reports from the SD in Belgrade and on the daily reports to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

- 1) Lt. Neesen of the 7th Company of the 146th Artillery Regiment shot to death while collecting weapons.
- 2) According to reliable reports about 3000 irregular Serbian soldiers are still in the area Pokuplje Bojnik (North of Levane) Kursumnija, among them Major of the Reserve Krista Mihailowitsch. Yugoslav officers also describe the last named as a very ruthless and consequently dangerous person. He does not hesitate to shoot down all those resisting his orders and plans. Major M. has appropriated the Army Motor Vehicle DKW Opel Olympia Ia 1542 (Engine No. 397024) as booty of war which had been taken during temporary capture of wounded first Lt. Kleffel by Yugoslav soldiers. However, in addition to this, private property of 1st Lt. Kleffel (black suitcase, yellow brief case with identification and key, gray laundry bag with contents and Zeiss-Glasses, Silvermar and other things). Headquarters in respect to this refers to the report of the 11th Corps on 17 April 1941.
- 3) During the night from 23 to 24 April 1941, a Serbian band attacked the volksdeutschen officials of the Gold and Silver Mines Leci in Leci (North Medavedja) which belonged to the Hermann Goering Works with machine gun fire and hand grenades. Though lasting several hours, the attack was unsuccessful. A.G. Leci can no longer be reached by motor vehicle. At the request of the OK I/866 (1st Battalion of the 866th Regiment), the divisions of the Divisional Supply Commander of the 294th Infantry Division have gone to Leci today in order to provide to the security of the management on the spot.

Then, there is teletype to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, also commander of the 12th Army, "In connection with the finding of explosives reported previously, 10 communists and 3 Jews were shot to death today."

That is dated 5 July 1941.

Then there is an entry 20 July 1941, "a leave train fired upon. While patrolling three armed franc-tireurs shot to death, 11 arrested, Further investigations....."

There is a note containing the number shot to death, Valjevo, Cacak, Uzice, Palanka, respectively 17, 12, 22, 16, a total of 67.

Then the next note on 21 July 1941, "Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610, Pancevo, reports on the day before Sunday while executing an operation, the 714th Infantry Division killed two Communists, Southwest of Palanka and captured 16 Communists who were also shot to death subsequently....."

"The Chief of Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and SD reports on 30 July 1941. According to a report which has been submitted a blasting plot has been executed by unknown culprits on the garage Zuhumska 26 - owner (Codomir Nedeljskovic) and 22 July 1941.

They recite: "The fuse found by the Serbian Police permits the assumption that the attack was carried out with an egg-type grenade...."

"Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610, reports by telephone: Leading Communists were shot to death by the local police in the presence of the SD in reprisal for the arson committed."

DR. LATERNSE: Mr. President, I have just looked at the photostat copy which has been given to me in order to judge what kind of document is in question here. I have established the following facts; First, the document has no heading; it cannot be found who wrote it; secondly, the document bears no date; thirdly, it bears no signature. It is just sheets written on the typewriter. It is also interesting, page 1 is not numbered. Page 2 is not called page 2 but page 12. The next page is page 48 and the next is page 49a, the next 57a, the next is called 61, and the next page, for a change, carries no number at all. The last two pages are marked 68 and 73 respectively. Mr. President, in my opinion, the foundation of such evidence is not permanent.

As defense counsel we must be able to determine from whom this material comes, the heading, and it must bear some kind of signature or name and we would also have to see a date. Because all these essential prerequisites of a written document in order to have any probative value at all, since they are lacking, I must object to the introduction of this document and apply to the court before it passes ruling on the admissibility of this document to look at the photostat copy.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, these are captured documents taken from the files. It is apparent from the numbering that we have on the left pages that the excerpts taken here are not seriatim. We skip from 112 to 120, 127 to 136, and it is true that there are pages extracted from a complete report. As to their being signed, unfortunately we don't have anything to do with the way the documents are when they are captured. Certainly, if Dr. Laternser wants the pages in between, if the court deems he should have them, we can send over for them. I don't know what material is in there. They have been screened in Washington and of the seven or eight pages that we have here we have used perhaps half of the material. I believe it is apparent that these are just a compilation of reports based on the various units whose names appear.

DR. LATERNSE: Mr. President, in my opinion, there must be a limit. The indiscriminate picking out of documents and the mix up of documents, I want to point especially to the last page which is marked as No. 73 bears another note under it, 73a is to follow. At least the prosecution should have provided me with the last pages in order to see who signed this document, from whom it originates, also the heading is lacking. It is definitely possible and I maintain it is a private compilation. I don't know from whom it comes and the prosecution also will find no point in the document from whom this document originates.

MR. DENNEY: Obviously, your Honor, it is just a compilation of reports which was captured from their files and as can be seen from what is here the entries one above or below the other don't have anything to do with what went on before.

It is certainly true that there is nothing on it to show. I believe it is apparent from the contents of the document that it is a report which has to do with a military office in Serbia because there is a copy later of the daily report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. There is a report from the SD Belgrade and from various sub-area Headquarters. As I say we are not responsible for the condition of the documents when we get them.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is conscious of the fact that the documents which have been presented or the translation of these documents which have been presented are fragmentary. If counsel for the defendants wish to make demand of the prosecution for the presentation of these parts which are not shown here, that is their privilege, and failure to produce them or to give counsel the opportunity to know what they show will be considered by the court in connection with its consideration of these particular matters which are shown in this exhibit.

DR. LATERNSE: (Counsel for the defendant List): I agree with you on this proposal, but I request that it should not be allowed until the missing parts have arrived. The prosecution should not be allowed to proceed with the reading of this document because we don't know where this document comes from, who issued it, who signed it. The prosecution does not know that, I do not know that, and for that reason, I ask that until the parts which are missing have arrived, that until then, the prosecution postpone the reading of this document.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is of the opinion that the consideration of this document and its admissibility, and the reading of it, should not be deferred at this time. I am wondering if counsel for the defendants understood my suggestion as to a demand for it -- on their part, not from us the Tribunal -- but on the part of the defendants of the prosecution. Do I understand the counsel to make such a demand? Dr. Laternser, if you will make such a record through the loud speaker so that it can go into the record rather than by some nod of the head, it would make a better record for the Court and the entire proceedings.

DR. LATERNSE: (counsel for the defendant List): I make the request that the prosecution submit the rest of this document and only then continue reading from this document.

THE PRESIDENT: The Court will make notice of the comments of Dr. Laternser as a request unto the prosecution for the submission of the remainder of these documents; however, the Court will not restrict the reading of these documents that is now before them, and the prosecution may continue with the reading. As the Tribunal previously stated, the failure to present such documents for the benefit of the defense counsel will be taken into consideration by the Tribunal in its consideration of this particular document.

MR. DENNEY: I take it that Dr. Laternser request has been directed to Document NOKW-/968, and the missing pages as shown by the pagination which appears in the document?

THE PRESIDENT: That is the understanding of the Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: Then, there is a report from Administrative Sub-Area 610. "Yesterday at 1830 hours in Petrovgrad leading Communists were shot to death by the local police in the presence of the SD in reprisal for the arson committed last night."

And then there is the report of sabotage under the date of 26 July -

THE PRESIDENT: What page number are you now reading?

MR. DENNEY: On page 96, Your Honor, that is the second entry from the bottom; out to the left is "120". And in the entry below that they speak of setting fire to a grain silo by the Communists and then that 300 double hundred weights were destroyed. And then the "District Headquarters Petrovgrad...." on page 97, the first full paragraph that starts there about six lines down, they suggest "as a deterrent that 5 of the known Communists who are at present under arrest should be shot to death on this very day."

And then the next entry is a daily report 1-A, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast of 29 July 1941. "80 executions by shooting on 28 July in retaliation for attack on Police Patrol on the road of Uzice-Valjeva." And the next entry, "122 Communists and Jews shot to death in Belgrade on 29 July for acts of sabotage in Belgrade previously reported."

The next refers to Wehrmacht Liaison Officer's report with reference to the Serbian Lt. Col Mihailowitsch who is supposed to be the leader of bands, and the balance of the paragraph is an operation report. Then on 1 August '41 "Attacks of smaller bands on Serbian gendarmerie stations and Serbian Mayors' Offices without damage of any extent near Petrovgrad, Pancevo, Topola, and the District Uzice. In reprisal for unrest reported near Petrovgrad, 90 Communists were shot to death yesterday."

And then 6 August '41, "In Zagreb, 4 attackers and 98 Communists and Jewish hostages shot to death."

The next document which is offered as prosecution's exhibit number 30 is NOKW-1114. This bears the signature which is illegible of a Lt. Colonel and is in effect three reports, the second of which starts on page 105, and the third starts on page 109. The first report is dated 31 July 1941 and is directed from the Liaison Office in Belgrade to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, List, and on the front page there is the receipt stamp on 5 August '41 of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

"The widespread acts of sabotage during the last days may without doubt be ascribed to instructions given by the London and Moscow radio. It is certain, that news from foreign countries is still very often listened to and that the order against listening in to foreign countries has been without any essential effect.

Though nothing is said publicly about the shooting of Jews and Communists as reprisals for acts of sabotage, these shootings have however made a deep impression in Belgrade.

It is doubtful whether the shooting will prevent a repetition of acts of sabotage. The saboteurs are to be looked for in the camp of the former Serbian officers, of the Cetniks as well as of the Communists, who have the common interest of creating unrest in the country and stirring up the population to boiling point against the occupation authorities. For their purpose the shooting of people who did not directly participate in the acts of sabotage is actually welcome.

In opposition to the reporting of persons of draft age, there were also people busy trying to recruit for the Cetnici. Officers and men received the instructions not to conform to the duty to report, but to go to the Cetnik gathering places in the country. Persons of draft age who avoided reporting could be got hold of easier, if the local Serbian authorities would work for that purpose; for instance, if one made the proprietors and housekeepers in Belgrade personally responsible, under threat of severe punishment in case of failure, to draw up exact lists, and to submit them, of the inhabitants of the houses, one would certainly be able to seize a large amount of Yugoslavian soldiers who failed to report. Formerly, the police went very often from house to house, asked for the list of inhabitants and checked them in the individual apartments. In this way, too, quite a number of Serbian soldiers who did not report could be seized. In general the population does not understand that the Serbian officers were set free again and remained free, because the large majority of the population expects the officers to carry out operations for the liberation of the country. One often hears that it is good that the officers have got to a safe place, because in that way they can now work for the future liberation of the country.

Especially the younger officers, who have no judgment with regard to reality and what is possible, who have no longer any expectations and who have placed their hopes on a restoration of the old Yugoslavia and a victory of the enemy powers, form a lasting source of danger. Also the other unemployed youth is ready to follow the words of those men who lead the operations directly against Germany. This youth is strongly under the propaganda of the enemy which is extraordinary clever and attuned to the mentality of the Serbian people. Whispering propaganda goes on in every office. Many rumors actually come from state offices and thereby gain their credibility. Even policemen stir up unrest among the population, by promising aid to persons, against payment, in this or that imminent event or because they want to be considered as especially well informed or as important personalities. It is an open secret that in the offices there are often people, who have worked hard against the German Reich and even today are anti-German. In the offices it is even considered dangerous, to be considered friendly towards Germany, as pro-Germans are chased out of the civil service. It is equally an open secret, that University professors, physicians and teachers participate in anti-German and Communist propaganda."

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt, please? The Court will adjourn at this time but before we do adjourn I wish to make certain comments on certain requests.

During the course of this day's deliberations, Dr. Laternser has made all comments on behalf of the defendants and the other counsel, I believe has, not spoken, but I want to suggest to all counsel that in appearing before the desk and the Court and the Tribunal that they identify themselves, so that the record may be properly shown as to who they are and for whom they are speaking. There has been no violation today because the reporters know Dr. Laternser but in other cases they may not know who counsel are and who they represent.

The Tribunal also wishes to make this request and ask that it be complied with. The assistant secretary has certain information that he desires to present to defense counsel. I take it you wish all the defense counsel to remain. I therefore ask that all defense counsel remain for a conference with the assistant secretary general.

It is also requested that one German court reported and interpreter remain for the assistance of the deputy secretary general.

It is also requested that one German court reporter and interpreter remain for the assistance of the deputy secretary general.

The Court will adjourn until nine-thirty tomorrow morning.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will recess until nine-thirty o'clock tomorrow morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 17 July 1947, at 0930 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

THE HONORABLE: Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal. There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, will you ascertain if the defendants are all present in court?

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honors, all of the defendants are present in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: The Secretary General will note for the record the presence of all of the defendants in court.

SECRETARY GENERAL: May it please your Honors, all of the defendants are present in court.

THE PRESIDENT: Before we proceed, Mr. Denney, may I make some comments? The Tribunal wished to state to counsel for the defendants that their motion and request concerning the manner in which the defendants are being confined in the prison have been submitted through channels to the proper authorities for consideration, and will later be reported back to this Tribunal.

The Tribunal wishes also to call to the attention of all parties concerned, that the communication which undoubtedly has been brought to the attention of defense counsel, and perhaps to the prosecution concerning the matter of translations, -in order that there may be no question as to all parties concerned being advised as to this particular matter, I wish to read the following communication, which has been sent out by L. Wartema, Defense administrator: Dated 14 May 1947:

"Subject: Document Books to be submitted to the translation department.

To Defense Counsel:

1. Some defense counsel have failed to realize the amount of time which is necessary to have document books translated, stencils mimeographed and assembled. As a result, the court has been delayed.
2. It is absolutely necessary that defense document books be turned over for translation and reproduction at least two weeks in advance. A careful check is being made on each document book submitted to defense centers. Individual lawyers will be held responsible if sufficient time is not provided for translation and reproduction.

For the secretary general.

(Signed) L. Wartema, Defense Administrator" I am reading that in order that all parties concerned may be advised and guide themselves accordingly.

I realize also that there is a lot of work to be done in connection with the preparation of this case, both on behalf of the prosecution and the defense, and the Tribunal asks the cooperation of all parties concerned so that we may proceed as promptly and as effectively as time and circumstances will permit.

The Tribunal would like to have a conference with two representatives of the prosecution and two representatives of the defense. counsel at the morning recess, and if the defense counsel will select some members of their group to meet with us at that time it will be appreciated if you will kindly come to my office.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, perhaps we might have Mr. Jacobson, one of the interpreters, come in too.

THE PRESIDENT: That is a very good suggestion, and we will ask Mr. Jacobson to come with us.

You may proceed further then, with the presentation of the matter on behalf of the prosecution.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, to sum up what we had yesterday, the first documents showed the initiation of the war in the Southeast.

We had several orders which were introduced to show the manner in which the people were treated there, followed by the 100 to 1 order late in April, issued by the Second Army, to gather with the poster which was sent out to be placed in the various villages this order having been issued by the defendant Weichs, before he left the theatre, and we have seen nothing to indicate that order was sent to him from a higher headquarters; rather was it something that he initiated and passed down himself.

Following that, early in May, on the 10th, the defendant Foertsch came into the theatre and became Chief-of-Staff to the defendant, List, and remained there as Chief-of-Staff to List, both for the 12th Army and for the Armed Forces Command Southeast from that time, May, 1941, until May, 1944, when he left the theatre.

Then we have the Hitler order of 9 June, setting up the Southeast Command, and putting the defendant List in charge, with complete executive powers in Greece, Serbia, and the Aegean Islands. Then in the months of May and June, when the troops were being withdrawn from the Southeast, in order that they might be regrouped and re-equipped to enter the campaign against Russia which was to start late in that month, we find resistance breaking out.

The S.D. reports and the Wehrmacht reports showing how this resistance was treated, also showing how they collaborated the report the execution of 100 Jews for a young girl throwing gasoline at a car, and we are in the middle now of a document, Exhibit No.30, OKW 1114, which is a report showing that the methods that were being used were not being effective; that the resistance was increasing.

The Army was undermanned here. There is nothing show that these measures were militarily necessary, actually, they were militarily unwise because as this report has shown up to now and will show later, the resistance instead of being calmed, as a matter of fact was made the more fierce by reason of these reprisal measures which were being practiced in the southeast.

At page 103 of Document Book I, continuing Exhibit 30 NOKW 1114, this report continues:

It is to be regretted that the German propaganda is not attuned to the people and is not to be heard during the most favorable hours. In Belgrade the workers are already at work in the factories at 0700 therefore radio propaganda should begin earlier, already at about 0530 hours in the morning, so that the workers are subjected to propaganda in the early morning when they are rested and are more inclined to listen. The broadcasts should be given in Serbian language only and should be kept in a popular character. It was also striking, that radio Belgrade announced the shooting of Jews and Communists as reprisal for acts of terror in the German news transmission only and not in the Serbian, where by the deterrent effect among the Serbian population remained questionable. The propaganda should also reach the Serbian woman who naturally is especially approachable. Reasonable arguments appealing to the woman as mother and builder of the people would probably be very successful.

The reports of the enemy stations London, Moscow, which unfortunately are still often listened to, are to be commented on by propaganda. One would have to prove to the people that the reports are false and made up of lies. The Serb loves discussion, therefore propaganda broadcasts in the shape of discussions would be an advantage.

Another source of false news and rumors comes from the prisoners of war dismissed from the Reich as Croats, Slovenes and so forth. Former Yugoslav officers dismissed from captivity have also said, that the food in the German prison camps in the Reich was very bad, that the civilian population was war-weary and that on account of the numerous air raids they flee into the prison camps and there loudly express their war weariness.

Then there is a signature which is illegible, and then the report continues with a report from the Wehrmacht Liaison Office, Belgrade 8 August 1941, directed to the Commander in Serbia and an information to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and on the first page of that report, which is page 4 of the original, page 104 in the Document Book, there are two stamps showing that the report has been received by the 12th Army on 12 August, 1941.

The report also recites the enclosures.

We then turn to page 150 where the report commences.

Handwritten Yes! Then they should help!

The week now reported on brought a renewed deterioration in the attitude of the population. Among the Serbs the acts of sabotage that became known caused terror and excitement, because it is feared that the consequences of these acts of force might affect the population. A large part of the Serbian population disagrees with these acts of sabotage of the Communists, which hinder the building of the country. On the other hand however it can be seen that among the Serbs a certain malicious pleasure appeals, when they believe themselves unobserved, because the German authorities have, up to now, not succeeded in preventing the acts of sabotage. There is also a tendency amongst them, to spread the news that these acts of sabotage were not committed by indigenous Serbs, but by Croatian Communists or by Serbs who do not originate from old Serbia.

(Handwritten) The whispering and atrocity propagandas flourishes as before. It said, *that the German war reports are lies and that the war pictures are posed, that the German losses in Russia are enormous and that the German troops are already being pushed back in numerous places. In Serbia the Russians are supposed to have landed parachutists, who have established contact with the Cetniks and Communists gathered together in the mountains. These insurgents together with the parachutists were going to start an offensive in the near future. These insurgents were supplied in arms and ammunition by the English and Americans. The German soldiers on the other hand were war-weary, part of them leaned towards Communism and some acts of sabotage are even said to have been committed and some acts of sabotage are even said to have been committed by German soldiers.

The Serbian police has little authority over the majority of the population. Again and again it happens that the public takes up an attitude opposed to the intervening police. The opinion amongst the population about the Serbian authorities is bad. On the one hand, especially in combatting the high prices of food, the authorities show extreme weakness according to the opinion of Serbian circles, on the other hand, they are guilty of allegedly provoking arbitrary acts. As an instance, in cases of complaints.....

DR. LATERNER: I believe, as I have established, something has not been translated here. I admit the possibility that I am in error here. ...my views are not expressed in the translation. I am sorry; I have made a mistake.

.....concerning housing the courts are said to force people to move without consideration, or without taking into consideration * Counter propaganda.

the distress of the individual in question. The population does not have much confidence in the Serbian authorities and often the wishes are expressed that other people be put at the head of the administration and the police.

Many insecure elements are said to have penetrated into the police force.

(Handwritten)

Pay attention to arms!

It was to be observed that individual Serbian policemen and police patrols showed complete disinterest in the occurrences in their proximity. They prefer to frequent well lighted streets, whilst in the dark side streets no policemen are to be seen.

Attention must be drawn to the fact that the designation of the Serbian police by black numbers printed on a red arm band is insufficient, as these numbers can hardly be read by day and not at all at night. In case of encroachments committed by members of the (Handwritten) Concentration Camp police there is no possibility to identify the guilty person.

Often it could be determined that Jews walked about without the prescribed yellow arm band. Also the Jews who were baptised "Christians", and who have besides changed their names are not yet taken care of.

It would be advisable to find out at the ecclesiastic matriculation offices which Jews are baptised in recent years.

In the last period many unpleasant contacts of German Nationals were to be determined. Threatening letters also have been sent repeatedly to German Nationals.

German Nationals can be heard complaining about the officials of the food distribution offices of the people's welfare organization. The auxiliary helpers who are German Nationals are said to distinguish themselves by rudeness and coarseness in their behavior towards the customers of their own nationality.

(Handwritten)

As in Germany!

Particular discontent is caused among the population on account of the great difficulty in procuring articles necessary for living, as for instance oil and fat.

These articles are not distributed to the merchants, though there are supposed to be large enough quantities of them in the community warehouses.

These articles are only distributed through the community stores where the consumers have to queue up for a long time and many do not have time enough for this. There are also complaints about the supply of bread. On the other hand, in the restaurants there is bread of the best quality for those who have the necessary means. These discrepancies lead to discontent among the poorer classes of the population. Also, with regard to the tobacco supply, it is found that at the tobacco shops either nothing or only very little is to be bought of better qualities, whereas in the coffee houses and restaurants the waiters sell good tobacco at considerably higher prices.

MR. DENNEY: And herewith is the enclosure No. 3496-7, which is recited on page 104 as being an enclosure. It is a report on the resistance movement in the area of the former Yugoslavia, state of development in general, especially during the period from 1 to 7 August 1941; and it gives the source of their own researches, their own, not of confidential agents and not of confidential agents of the Local Administrative Headquarters in Zagreb.

Summing up it can be said that the general attitude has deteriorated.

Present general state of affairs Insecurity and unrest in the entire Serbian area, furthermore also in the north Banat, Bosnia, Montenegro, Herzegowina, Lika, and Croatia south of the Save.

The areas south of S Uzico-Nis, which are listed as gathering areas of Cetniks, and furthermore Croatian areas north of the Save are to be regarded as comparatively quiet in the recent period. Reprisal measures, as for instance the severity of the shooting of 81 persons collected haphazardly did not bring about pacification nor did it serve as an intimidation. On the contrary the feeling of being plundered chased away or slaughtered with wife and child either by criminal Ustaschi people in Bosnia or Herzegowina or by robber elements, or to lose life and property as the casual object of reprisal at the hands of the Germans has embittered and made desperate the otherwise quiet and politically indifferent and loyal parts of the Serbian population, who are automatically driven into the ranks of some kind of Insurgent groups."

MR. DENNEY: It is submitted, Your Honor, that it is clear from this report that the measures of pacification which they were attempting were not working, that, if anything, it was designed to cause more unrest, the upset people who were paying attention to their own business and not bothering the occupying forces. But rather they were forced to flee to the mountains because of the senseless killing of people, which is recited in the document. And, of course, it is to be noted from the stamps that the document was sent to 12th Army Armed Forces Commander Southeast, commanded by List. The next document is No. NOKW-1034, which we offer as Exhibit 31. This is a teletype which goes to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, from the general in Zagreb. It is dated 10 August 1941, and the receipt stamp of the 12th Army and Wehrmacht Commander Southeast appears in the upper right-hand corner. And just above that is the initial of the Defendant Foertsch, as Chief of Staff The telegram reads: "Reports of English.....

MR. DENNEY: This is apparently a reply in answer to an inquiry by 12th Army. It is to be fairly assumed, I believe, that the inquiry is similar to the one which we saw made earlier by 12th Army, concerning a Russian radio report. However, the only document that we have on this is this reply. Next, we have the report of a Battalion Commander of the 724th Infantry Regiment, which is part of the 704th Infantry Division. This document is NOKW-1216, and we offer it as Exhibit 32. The 704th Infantry Division was part of the 65th Corps which was serving in Serbia. And the 65th Corps was under the Supreme Commander Southeast, the Defendant List.

To the 704th Infantry Division.

On 16 Aug 1941 the Commander in Serbia made known by radio that a village in which a car of the Wehrmacht had been shot at, had been leveled to the ground and that the inhabitants "had been shot to death and hanged".

The inhabitants had seen the preparations for the attack and had omitted to notify the police post situated nearby or to warn the occupants of the car.

Therefore they became accessories to the crime. A similar case occurred in Bela-Crkva, which is shown by the behavior of the inhabitants, especially of the priest and the mayor who left the village already in the morning.

A part of the village was set on fire by the 12th company, however it is likely that there are still houses left into which they inhabitants have returned. Perhaps the priest and the mayor have also come back. The battalion suggests sending another penal expedition to Bela-Crkva, to destroy what is left of the village and to have the priest and the mayor arrested.

MR. DENNEY: There is an illegible signature for the Captain and Commander of the Third Battalion. They don't in their order, of course, suggest how the inhabitants could know that the car was coming in or how they could have warned them. The attitude toward the priests and the mayor of the village certainly needs no comment.

We will pass Document NOKW 901 and the next document will be NOKW 455 which we offer as Exhibit 33. If your Honors please, perhaps with reference to the comment which Dr. Laternser just made, we could give this paragraph to the interpreter and let them read it into the record as they translate it.

THE PRESIDENT: The interpreters which have been appointed for this court?

MR. DENNEY: Those are the interpreters for this court, yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser, does that meet with your approval? Do you have any comments to make concerning it?

DR. LATERNSEER: I don't think I understood you correctly-whether it should be done now or in the future in connection with the correction of the mistakes in translation. Is this to be done in the future or is this to be done right away?

THE PRESIDENT: It would be my personal suggestion that if the Tribunal is to receive any benefit from it, it should be done now. Is that agreeable with you, Mr. Denney?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Your Honor.

DR. LATERNSEER: Yes, indeed.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well then, those matters which seem to be in controversy may be handed to the official translators for their translation at this time and for the benefit of this Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: If I may mark the paragraph on the document--Dr. Laternser is here.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a minute, please. Is it agreed by counsel for the prosecution and Dr. Laternser, representing counsel for the defendants, and the defendants that the document as marked is the portion which is in controversy.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, your Honor.

DR. LATERNSEER: Yes, quite.

JUDGE BURKE: Mr. Denney, are the first four lines on page 113 the subject matter of possible dispute as to interpretation?

MR. DENNEY: The first four lines of the report, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: It being agreed that the document, as marked is the matter in controversy, it may be handed to the interpreter to be read.

THE INTERPRETER: The transition of this paragraph reads as follows: On the 16th of August, 1941, the commander in Serbia made known by wireless that a village in which a Wehrmacht car had been shot at was levelled to the ground and that inhabitants had been shot at and hanged. I agree with this translation.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: Document 445 which has been offered as Exhibit 33 is in order from the corps command, the 65th in Serbia which was serving under the defendant List dated 19 August 1941. It applies to an operation called "Geier" and the order was to be sent to those units appearing in the distribution list on the second page.

Paragraph 1, "The village of Grabovac, presumably the Communist center of the district of Obrenovac, will be surrounded and searched on Saturday 23rd of August 1941 in a surprise attack."

Paragraph 6, the translation of which does not appear in your Honor's copy, gives orders to the troops, the Wehrmacht in connection with this, and reads as follows: "At 4 a.m. on 23 August 1941, all sections will go from their points of departure on a wide front, using as many separate routes as possible, concentrating on Grabovac.

The reinforced 5th Company of the 750th Regiment coming from Bajani, Grabenow-Folji, before Grabenow-Folji will swerve in a northwesterly direction and will march above the village Jem on Grabovac, Kreba, Dor; meanwhile the approaching infantry command of the 704th Infantry Division will break up over the Bajani, Grabenow-Jolji at 4:15 23 August 1941, and advance southeastward on the road Bajani, Grabovac, on Grabovac."

Paragraph 7 provides that "Grabovac must be surrounded from all sides by 0530 o'clock on 23.8.41. The village is to be entered from all sides. The male population of over 14 years of age is to be arrested, collected at the church of Grabovac and handed over to the police. People who resist, who are in possession of arms, or who take flight are to be shot. The farms are to be searched for men only. The search of the houses for arms, etc., will take place only by order of the men in charge after all men have been rounded up."

Then Paragraph 11, an order with reference to the other units which are to participate in it for the operation planned at Grabovac, the following are available:

"1) 40 gendarmes of the gendarmerie station Obrenovac.

"2) 30 gendarmes of the gendarmerie station Ub.

"3) 10 agents of the Belgrade Serbian special police.

"4) 2 leaders, 10 men of the Belgrade Einsatzkommando of the security police."

In this order the commander of the 65th Corps has a combined operation against a town for the purpose of arresting the male population and collecting them. The provision saying that anyone who takes flight will be shot and the order goes not only to troop units but also to the Gendarmerie and also to the Einsatzkommando of the security police.

The next document is NOKW 1487 which is offered as Exhibit 34 and is a letter from the Serbian Minister of the Interior to the Military Commander in Serbia enclosing a report with reference to German actions against communists and others. The letter is dated 20 August 1941, Belgrade. It is addressed to the Military Commander in Serbia.

"I have the honor of enclosing the report of the District Head in Arandjelovac for your information.

"The report shows clearly the urgent necessity of the closest cooperation between agencies of the German Military Authorities and agencies of the civil administration since only in this manner can the combatting of the common enemy, the Communists, be successful."

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser, do you have some matter to present to the court?

DR. LATERNSE: Yes, Mr. President. I object to the introduction of this document for the following reason: I certainly see that a capture of a great number of documents, the prosecution cannot be asked to prove details regarding these documents but one thing is certain, Mr. President, that not everything that has been found also represents a document, and I maintain this is so governing this document. This is a document of three pages which are merely written in typescript, and which is expressly at the beginning marked as copy, that is, as a subsequent copy. In order that a documentary character can be presented, it must have certain prerequisites which must be met in case of a document of this kind. I cannot see that even a single prerequisite is present in this document. It is not a document and for this reason I object to its introduction.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, this is all that we have. We submit that it is complete on its face with the original and the enclosed copy. That is the letter with the enclosure; we don't know where the original is. It is here as it has been photostated. We didn't make the copy.

MR. PRESIDENT: This Tribunal is conscious of the fact that these documents which are presented here are documents which have been obtained through capture at the close of the war or during the war, and that they will have to be considered as documents of that character and their value appraised by the Tribunal in its consideration of the case as a whole. The objection will be overruled.

MR. DENNEY: Continuing with the fourth line of the second paragraph on page 118 of Document Book 1, Exhibit 34 in evidence:

The Servian Administrative agencies know all the details concerning any persons under the slightest suspicion of Communism. However, they can bear full responsibility for the entire anti-Communist action in the country only if they are enabled to apply the methods in the country, which have proved their efficacy in activity over many years.

However, if such cooperation is lacking and if the German agencies proceed independently, it achieves, beyond doubt, the opposite result, that is the result which the Communists themselves wish to bring about by all means. Therefore, I request urgently that an authoritative office issues directives to all German Wehrmacht agencies concerned as soon as possible, pointing out the necessity for cooperation as it is being practiced, with the greatest success, here in Belgrade.

A German officer - a Captain - was killed from ambush on the road Arnadjelovac-Topola, 4 kilometers from Arandjelovac near the village of Banja on the morning of 16 August. The officer was going on duty by car to Belgrade. The offense was committed by a Communist who has remained unknown. This Communist had been lying in ambush in the corn field and had fled through the corn to the woods after committing the deed.

Eleven young farmers working in the fields were captured and shot for this murder by the Germans at the place of the incident, a state of siege was declared for the entire district.

In order to combat Communist operations which had got out of hand during the last few days, the German headquarters sent a motorized assault troop which is at present going through all the villages, making arrests and - due to ignorance of the situation - is killing innocent men, women and children. All this is done on their own initiative, without inquiries and without any kind of close cooperation with the Administrative authorities and the Gendarmerie, although such cooperation is an absolute necessity for the combating of the Communist action and for exterminating the Communists in the woods.

The District Office has available reports from which the movements of the Communists could be established and it also has at its disposal all personal data of the individual Communists. However, the German headquarters does not request anything nor does it ask the District Administration for any information and is opposed to any suggestion. -246 The consequence of the procedure of the German assault troops will be that a large number of innocent people will be slaughtered and that the Communists in the woods not only will not be exterminated but will increase in numbers.

Because many farmers, even entire villages – even though up to now, they had no connection with the Communists will flee into the woods only out of fear and will be received there by the Communists. They will be provided with arms and used for combat and for open revolt against the German Wehrmacht. This insurrection will develop on a large scale and will have incalculable and terrible consequences for the entire population.

Because of this procedure by the German Wehrmacht and the lack of the necessary cooperation with the Administrative authorities and the Gendarmerie, the position of a District Head is untenable and intolerable.

Up to now, the Gendarmerie was powerless and avoided all fighting. Now after such procedure by the German Wehrmacht, there is a danger that all gendarmes will flee into the woods because they do not wish to participate in such murders. It is true that the German soldiers on their patrols take along gendarmes and district officials but only to have them show the way and take hostages. Otherwise, they reject any suggestion by the officials or the gendarmes.

The population, however, sees German soldiers coming accompanied by officials, of the district administration and by gendarmes and assumes that the necessary cooperation exists between these agencies of the native authorities. This assumption will make the situation of the district head and of the officials even worse, as that not only their remaining on their part but also their lives are endangered.

On the basis of the above report, I request that suitable steps will be taken in order to bring about speedily the necessary cooperation of the German Military Authorities with the Administrative Authorities and the agencies of public security.

Returning for a moment to the first page of the enclosure, it says that the person that shot the officer was a communist; yet they cite he was unknown; that he fled, they failed to indicate how they identified him; in retaliation they take 11 young farmers from the fields who were working near the place and shoot them; there has been some cooperation between the Germans and the police but only to the extent of using the police apparently to take hostages. The same recitation is here made which was made earlier in Exhibit 30, that the continued shooting of innocent people is driving more and more people who are otherwise passive, into the woods.

The next document is NOKW 529 which is offered as Exhibit 35. This is an order of the Commander of Serbia dated 21 August 1941. The subject is "Transfer to Security Police of Bandits captured in Combat."

1. In regard to the capture of bandits captured in combat vagueness exists in almost all authorities, which emanates from the delays of the interrogation and the proper treatment of the people.
2. As a matter of principle all bandits are to be transferred to the "Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and of the SD" - in the following designated by the official abbreviation "SP".
3. Prisoners made in Belgrade are to be delivered to the Security Police in the Police Prison Alexandrova 5.
4. If prisoners are made they are to be transferred as rapidly as possible to the nearest Administrative Sub-area Headquarters or District Headquarters. If possible prior announcement should be made, that preparations can be made. Telephone discipline is to be observed thereby.
5. They are experts of the Security Police attached to the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters who can give information in case of doubt.
6. Together with the prisoners to be delivered, a brief report is to be sent regarding the circumstances of the capture. As a matter of principle protracted proceedings by the unit, etc. are to be avoided, except in special individual cases.

7. It has happened that units and organs of the Ordnungs Service have retained prisoners and exposed them to long interrogations without enabling the security police to get hold of these people. Such interrogations are, as stated above, the affair of the security police.
8. In this connection, attention is to be called expressly to the fact that the unit is authorized to shoot down any prisoner attempting to escape.
9. This explanation pertains accordingly to all other political prisoners.

Distribution & Draft For Commander Serbia The Chief of the General Staff (initial) fe (signed) Gravenhorst The other political prisoners, of course, would apply to any other prisoners or bandits they take.

NOKW 1209 is offered as Exhibit 36. This is a report by teletype from the Corps Headquarters of the XVIIIth Corps commanded by the deceased Boehme which is sent to 12th Army Headquarters on 5 August 1941.

164th Infantry Division: Renewed acts of sabotage committed against the telephone line in the area of Florina on 4 August 1941. Increased guard by civilians. Fixing monetary fines and arrest of hostages was ordered.

Activity by Bulgarian agents under Communist influence in the area of Florina. According to statements by Greek authorities, within the next days attacks from the area of Bitolje on Greek territory are to be expected. The troops have been ordered to maintain increased guard and to take ruthless measures.

5th Mountain Division: A Greek civilian detained by rear elements of the 1st Battalion 100th Mountain Infantry Regiment was shot by the guard while escaping.

And then another report, still part of this same exhibit, from the same Corps, the 18th, to the same addressee, the 12th Army, commanded by the defendant List, dated 29 August 1941. The daily report recites that an "Army wire circuit was cut in three places at Chalkis in the night 25-26 August 1941. The perpetrator as yet unknown. Three suspects arrested by the Greek police. 15 hostages taken. By order of the Greek Prefecture about 15,000 people not formerly resident in this area who had migrated thither are to be expelled from Euboea." And again it is from the 18th Corps.

The next document is NOKW-1387, which is offered as Exhibit 37, which is a report from the Commander in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and Headquarters 12th Army, dated 6 August 1941. It is a daily report and recites: "Train collision reported yesterday was not due to sabotage. Losses: 8 dead, 8 seriously wounded, 5 slightly wounded. Interruption of traffic for about 36 hours. Tonight 6 communists arrested at Petrovgrad with arms and incendiary material, 1 communist shot while escaping; at Mokrin, 10 miles north of Kikinda, 70 loads of wheat was burned, the perpetrator who was recognized escaped after disarming the custodian. At Zagreb 4 perpetrators, as well as 98 communists and Jewish hostages, were shot. New communist sabotage device: three pointed wire hook, 7 centimeters high, placed on roads, so far damaged 22 tires, according to reports. Forward directing center 'Jug' departed for Bucharest." And it is from the commander in Serbia.

And follows a daily report for the 15th of August 1941 to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Headquarters 12th Army, again from the Commander in Serbia: "While proceeding to Sabac, car from 3rd Company 64th Police Reserve Battalion (passengers; 1st Lt. Ehrmann, 3 sergeants) subjected to machine gun fire by bandits in the vicinity of Skela. Patrol found the burned-out car. A company of the Police Battalion sent from Belgrade recovered the corpses of 1st Lt. Ehrmann and 1 sergeant out of the Save; 2 sergeants are missing. On 15 August, Skela will be burned and 50 communists from Belgrade hanged there.

Public informed through radio, newspapers and posters. On 14 August, in the vicinity of Lazarevac, 30 kilometers northeast of Valjevo, Telephone Operation Squad fired on by band. At Darosava, 20 kilometers northwest of Topola mines caused derailment of three railroad cars and engine; relief train coming from Lajkovac fired on by bandits; wire were cut. During the night 14-15 August, an ammunition train was attacked at Lajkovac railway station. Infantry Regiment 7 24 suffered 5 dead and 7 wounded, special force sent to the scene of the occurrence. 14 August, 4 band attacks on communities." From the Commander in Serbia.

Then follows a daily report for the 17th of August to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and the Commander of the 12th Army again from the Commander in Serbia. "During the night 14-15, a train carrying a detail transporting arms was attacked by a light machine gun, a heavy machine gun, and with hand grenades in the vicinity of Lejkovac, Wehrmacht losses: 3 dead, 4 wounded, 1 missing. The transport reached its destination after defending itself. According to traces of blood the enemy suffered losses. At 0230, 16 August, the Lejkovac railway station was attacked by unknown persons. Wehrmacht losses: 5 dead, 3 seriously wounded. 1313 hours, 16 August 'S.F.860' fired on by machine gun between Bralina and Stalac. 1330, 16 August, 1 member of Organization Todt shot on the road Cuprja - Jagodina, two kilometers southwest of Jagodina. 2030, 16 August, explosive sabotage on Tunnel No. 10 in the vicinity of Uzica railway station. No considerable damage. Own activities: In the evening of 16 August a fighter detachment of 704th Infantry Division located band 100 men strong in the vicinity of Mionica. Three missing German soldiers and 1 missing German police sergeant were liberated, two communists captured. Pursuit continues, Own losses: 1 missing. A further fighter detachment en route towards Pozega shot three communists and captured three of a band. At Banja, three kilometers north west of Topola, an army car was fired on. Thereupon, a fighter detach ment shot 11 communists and set a number of houses on fire.

16 August, farmhouse in the vicinity of the village of Kikinda burned down, presumably on account of arson. 16 August, band attacks on 5 communities. On 17 August, Sunday morning, five communists convicted of acts of terror and sabotage were publicly hanged in the main street of the city and left there until 1900 today."

The daily report for the 19th of August, again from the Commander in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and also head of the 12th Army. "On 16 and 17 August, 6th Company 920th Regiment sent out a fighter detachment in return for band attack on a German bicycle patrol on 16 August in the vicinity of Milanovac. Two bandits were shot, 6 captured, 4 houses set afire. On 18 August, a fighter detachment from of Pozega. Thirty-eight bandits were shot, 2 machine guns, typewriters and camp library were seized. 1800, 17 August, band attack on Serbian Gendarmerie Station between Zavor and Cuzica, as well as on Gendarmerie Station Cuca. In the morning of 18 August, band attack on Serbian Gendarmerie patrol at Mokrin. 17-18 August, band attacks on 6 community offices."

And the last daily report, the one for 29 of August, again to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and 12 Army from the Commander in Serbia. "Kraljevo airfield threatened by bands on 22 August, 24 August, 28 August, airfield troops were committed. Two Serbian gendarmes were killed, 1 communist was shot. Two 12-kilogram bombs were eliminated. On 28 August, troops operating in the area of Sabac dispersed bands. On 27 August at Kopljaro 3 houses were burned as reprisal measure.

Ammunition was found. Between 22 - 28 August, 5 acts of sabotage in railway installations at Knjazevac, Paracin, Adrani, Vruzi, Darosava. Between 23-28 August, 5 further attacks in the Area Ivanjica-Mionica-Sabac. Files of the community were burned. On 28 August, near Stave, engagement between Serbian gendarmes and communists. Three communists dead, 2 wounded.

One Serbian gendarme wounded. On 26 August, band attack on Serbian gendarme Station. Seven Serbian gendarmes disarmed. On 27 August, Serbian Red Cross car fired on at Topola; driver dead, passenger wounded." The next recites of telephone lines being interrupted. "28 August, strong concentration of insurgents in the area east of Kos. Mitrovica. 28 August, again band attack on railway station at Umkare driven off. 28 August, Wehrmacht patrol shot at railway line Padej-Potiski. One wounded. 29 August, 6.45, truck from Organization Todt fired on 8 kilometers south of Kragujevac. One dead, 1 wounded." And it is from the Commander in Serbia.

These reports that are submitted are a fair example of the kind of opposition they were meeting down there, and there certainly is nothing to warrant the frightful ratio of executions of 100 to 1 and 50 to 1.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, I have just understood that these exhibits, are to prove that such information was sent out. I cannot see any proof in that, and I would subsequently like to contradict the introduction of these things. It is quite clear from the photostat it is a common draft, the preparation for reports of which I don't know whether these reports later on went out like this. We see this from looking at the documents which are, incidentally, not signed. They don't bear any heading. They are again, as so many documents, submitted here, merely sheets of paper which have been written on with a typewriter. From the contents and from the corrections, we can see that they are drafts. The prosecution should at least prove from the evidence which it submits that it was actually valid and had some effect. For this reason, I object to the introduction of this exhibit NOKW-1387.

MR. DENNEY: Of course, Your Honors, we admit that the drafts of documents only go to the weight and are to be given such consideration as the Tribunal sees fit. However, we will have occasion later to show similar drafts where we will also be able to show orders and the finished product based on these drafts. Now, in this case, the only thing we found was these drafts and they are submitted for such weight as the Tribunal sees fit to give them.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled. The Tribunal is admitting these exhibits having in mind the character of the evidence as presented, and will so consider them in its deliberation and final determination of this whole matter. It is also being admitted with the thought that the very character of the evidence as being representative of this type, defense counsel can rebut these matters and also are in a position to comment upon the character of the evidence as presented. The objection therefore will be overruled.

MR. DENNEY: The document in Document Book I is offered as Exhibit 38. It is Document NO-2838 and it is an extract from a report of the Head of the Security Police and the SD in Berlin, 30 August 1941. With reference to Yugoslavia it states that the "Einsatzgruppe Belgrade reports:

"As a reprisal measure for the continuous attempts on members of the German Wehrmacht, 50 Communists well known as functionaries and terrorists were shot to death on 29 August 41 in agreement with the Military Commander of Serbia."

Now, we have seen before other reports by the Einsatzgruppe to the Head of the Security Police and the SD in Berlin which were again issued from the Berlin office of the Security Police and the SD and here on 30 August we have another one where the Einsatzgruppe are reported as committing an act "in agreement with the Military Commander of Serbia."

We also had the earlier order offered today with reference to the operation Geier wherein the Commander of the 65th Corps gave orders to his troops as well as to the SD for the cooperation of the two units in the operation Geier.

That concludes Document Book I and Mr. Fenstermacher will take over, if your Honors, please.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, I believe this would be an opportune time for our morning recess, and may I again remind counsel for Prosecution and counsel for defendants that we -- that the Tribunal are desirous that two representatives from the prosecution and defense meet in our chambers during the recess period.

The Tribunal will be in recess.

Page 257

THE MARSHAL: All persons in the courtroom will please be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I believe, if your Honors please, several of the documents which we have introduced up until this time have been reports from subordinate units in the field to various higher headquarters. The reports of the various armies in the field were also sent to Central Headquarters in Berlin, to the office of the OKH. The next document, which is Document No. NOKW-551, we offer as Prosecution's Exhibit 39, shows the compilation which Army Headquarters in Berlin made of the various reports which they received from the field. In order that Your Honors may have some understanding of what these OKW reports actually looked like, I would ask that the Prosecution exhibit be shown to Your Honors, so that you might have some understanding of the nature of this document. If you will turn to Page 17 in your document book,

THE PRESIDENT: Volume I or Volume II?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Volume II, Your Honoryou will note that on that page we have a translation of the Morning Report, which was prepared by the Operations Department of OKH, Berlin -- a Morning Report of the 29th of July 1941--and you will note that under the Southeast, meaning the matters which follow, were reported by the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast on the 28th of July, the day previous.

The 28th of July, 1941, states as follows: 25 July, "In Belgrade Jewish attempts to burn German vehicles, 100 Jews were shot to death." There is the execution of a hundred Jews in retaliation for an attempt--an attempt! to burn a German vehicle.

On page 16 of the English document book, the daily report of the armed forces commander in Southeast for the 29th of July, "Because of sabotage acts reported previously not 100, but 122 Communists and Jews executed."

And on page 15 of the English document book the daily report of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast for the 1st of August 1941, "Telephone wires cut on the Road Mladenovac-Topola. Attack on Gendarmerie guard. Attacks of small bands on Serbian authorities without particular damage near Petrovgrad, Pancevo, Topola and Uzice."

On 31, July "Petrovgrad--90 Communists executed."

Page 14 of the English document book, the daily report of the armed forces commander Southeast for the 2nd of August 1941, "144 people shot to death during search operations against former Cretan Franc tireurs near Alikianu (southwest of Chania). The village of Skines near Alikianu was burned down because shots were fired from there, on our approaching troops."

On page 12 of the English document book, the daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for 7 August, 1941, "3 more dead communists discovered after the operation Kikinda on 4.8. Meanwhile the leader of the band, a former Serbian 1st Lieutenant, was captured and shot dead." The German document itself admits that the band was led by a Serbian 1st Lieutenant. He must have been wearing a uniform or they wouldn't have known he as a Lieutenant. He was captured and he was shot dead.

On the 6th of August, eighty-seven more communists and Jewish hostages shot dead in Zagreb, the capital of Croatia.

Turn to page 10 of the English document book, the daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 8th of August, 1941--

DR. LATERNSE: I have to ask for a slower presentation since only the pages of the English document book are mentioned and the defense has to deal with the German document book and has to follow by that. Either both pages have to be mentioned or we will have to go slower, please.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I am sorry. I will try to mention the crossGerman pagination too, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: All right. I think it would be advisable if you did mention it. In fact, it is necessary that German page numbers be mentioned so that counsel can follow from it.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I will be glad to do that. The one we are on now is page 10 of the English--that is on page 6 of the German. The daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 10th of August, 1941. "In Uzice: Colonel von Stockhausen ordered the shooting dead of Serbs as a reprisal measure near the locality where an attack on German police drivers had occurred. The Police Company collected 81 Serbs from neighboring villages and Serbian gendarmes were forced to shoot them. The incident caused a temporary crisis in the cabinet. The matter could be settled almost immediately so that all was quiet with regard to this local incident."

Note in German sadism how they get Serbs to shoot Serbs in retaliation for attacks on German police drivers.

The next is on page 8 of the English. The daily report of the armed forces commander Southeast of the 15th of August, 1941, it is on page 8 of the German, 14 August p.m. German police guard attacked near Skela, 15 kilometers west of Pokonovac. One officer, one sergeant of police killed, three sergeants of police missing. As a reprisal, Skela burned down and 50 communists hanged on the 15th of August. Two men were killed and three were missing, but 50 communists had to be hanged and the whole village had to be burned down.

The The next is the morning report of the 16th of August, 1941. It appears on page 6 of the English and on page 8 of the German, the political situation in the area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast This document, if Your Honors please, will tell you exactly what the Germans themselves said was going on, what they were faced with.

1) Serbia:

Situation still tense. Acts of terror and sabotage, seemingly executed according to plan are directed also against the Wehrmacht. Lately also terrorization of the population. Attacks on soldiers have decreased, Operations almost exclusively of communist origin. Reason for this--amongst others - is mass expulsions of Serbians from Croatia. The alleged cession of the Banat which I might say parenthetically was to Hungary contributes to the unrest of the Serbian, population and also of the Germans still living there.

DR. LETERNSER: A mistake on the translation. In the German it says "for the pacification" and not as the translation says "for the unrest." That is for the future possible cession of the Banat.

THE PRESIDENT: May I suggest that the question of interpretation be handed to the official interpreter so that he may give the Tribunal his conception of this particular matter?

DR. LATERNSEER: Page 6 of the English Document book, No. 1,9,8 -8 of page, it says in the English, "The alleged cession of the Banat contributes to the unrest."

In the German document book, page 9, line from above 8. it says "to the pacification of the Serbian population." The correct translation would be to the pacification and not "to the unrest."

THE INTERPRETER: The correct translation, as Dr. Laternser has pointed out, is "to the pacification of the population",--"contributes to the unrest."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Shall we read that line for the purpose of the record then? "The alleged cession of the Banat contributes to the pacification of the Serbian population and also of the Germans still living there."

Continuing, "Up to now only individual actions, which however may lead to larger armed communist insurrection if the situation becomes more tense. The political and economical life has not been disturbed to any extent. The mass of the population itself also suffers heavily under the terror potions, and in general, behaves loyally. Cooperation of Commander Serbia with Commissar government and Serbian police is good. Combatting of bands according to plan of all available troops, police SS and Serbian police.

Turning to the next page , page 7 of the English, we turn to Greece for the moment, page 11 of the German.

"Increasingly negative attitude toward occupation troops as a result of organized communist and English propaganda. Some few cases of sabotage counteracted by reprisals."

So, we see that even in Greece, the resistance was not great - that the German answer was reprisal. Continuing on a few lines later:

"The position of the Greek government is difficult. Lacking authority, a large part of the population rejects it. Population dissatisfied but quiet. At this time the situation does not give any cause for worry. However, we must reckon with further incidents. The remainder of the Franc-tireurs hidden in the mountains are making attacks on Crete. Sharp countermeasures assured."

In the morning report of the 17th of August, turning to page 5 of the English, page 11 in the German. This is the OKH report in Berlin and it includes the report of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast to OKH in Berlin of the preceding day. Besides, the commission hanged Skela, prior to the report of the 15th of August which I have previously read, 15 villages inhabitants shot dead for omitting to report the presence of the bandits.

This is the attempt of the Germans to impress the local population with the operations of its own military forces.

Then turning finally to page 1 of the English, Morning Report of the 1st of September, 1941, page 12 in the German.

1.) 30.8 Communists have pillaged Serbian Gendarmerie post Sidjagovac (or Siljekovac) (20 kilometers southeast of Krusevac).

.....

2.) 28.8 10 bandits taken care of by fighter detachment on ridges southwest of Beljavac (26 kilometer southwest of Zajecar). 7 Houses burned down.

30.8 4 Bandits shot in combat during band attack on the German police station Ubub (16 kilometers northwest of Lazarevac).

Shooting Communists and bandits without any definition of how a bandit was to be warned.

I turn now to the next document which is NOKW 626 becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 40. These are extracts.

THE PRESIDENT: What page, please.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 20 of the English Document Book, Extract of the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia And, again I wish Your Honors might take a look at the actual exhibits so you will know what a war diary really looks like, have some understanding of the nature of the documents we are presenting. We will be presenting reports and war diary extracts and actual orders and it may help to actually see what they are. This is from the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia for the month of September 1941 and about in the middle of the page in the actual photostat copy you will see reference to the 2nd of September.

"20 Communists shot for the 3 German soldiers killed in the surprise attack on the mine of Ptanj (20 Aug)."

There is a relation of three Germans killed and 20 Communists shot in retaliation. A note at the bottom of the page, actual photostat, with reference to 3 September:

"50 Serbs shot in reprisal for the soldiers of the 724th Guard Regiment shot by Communists at 8 a.m."

And, that is from the War Diary of the Commanding General in Serbia. There seems little doubt that the actual report to which the war diary contains a reference was actually sent on to List and Foertsch and 12th Army Headquarters in Athens.

The next document is on page 21, Document NOKW 453 which becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 41. This is an order of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, Field Marshal List, of the 4th of September, 1941 and as you will see tells the subordinates not to enter into any negotiations with the members of the Serbian Resistance Movement. Again, if Your Honors will take a look at the actual photostatic copy you will have some idea of what a teletype order actually looks like.

You will see on the right the initials W B Suedost which means that the order went out from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. You will see on the left of the document that it went out on the 4th of September time 1545. You will see that it went to Befehlshaber, Serbia, to Commander Serbia, Higher Headquarters IXV, and the text is very interesting because it shows the great concern which Field Marshal List had for political maneuvers in Serbia:

Request immediate brief estimate of overall situation.

- a. What guarantee is offered by the new Serbian government?
- b. What are its prospects?
- c. What concessions are offered? (Armed power?)
- d. What intentions generally to restore the situation and its unconditional authority?

The situation in the insurrection area around Krupanj must be restored as speedily as possible with own resources. What measures are usually met with. Take strictest action. Use of arms without consideration, never discussions. Unified leadership of the operation (one commander). Insurrectionists must without exception feel the superiority of the German soldiers and the force of their arms. Do not employ inadequate strength. Reverses must be avoided since they are untenable. Relieve incapable leaders, and if necessary, call them to account.

With severe language like that issuing from a General Field Marshal in command of the 12th Army you can well imagine the type of reports which are going to flow in from the subordinate units in execution of that type of language. The order is signed, Wehrmacht Commander South East, 12th Army.

General Field Marshal List.

We now turn to page 23, Document NOKW 084 which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 42. This, Your Honors, is one of the most important documents.

I wish your Honors would take a look at the photostatic copy which is signed in the handwriting of Field Marshal List. It is from List? Wehrmacht Commander in Chief of the 12th Army. It is from his headquarters on the 5th of September 1941. Six copies were made and this one which we have actually captured is the sixth copy:

"Subject: Suppression of the Serbian insurrection movement. The situation in Serbia does not seem to eliminate the possibility of spread of the insurrection movement. Increased attacks on soldiers and Wehrmacht installations by strong, well-armed bands apparently organized and adroitly led, prove that previous counter-measures are not adequate."

Now, note that language. We are going to hear a lot about this case later on; that these were individual attacks, and that the insurgents were not lead by responsible leaders; that they were not particularly well armed; that they did not wear insignia and that they were apparently just individual bandits.

DR. LATERNSEER: I ask for a slower presentation so I can check the correctness of the translation of this order.

THE PRESIDENT: Counsel will keep in mind the request made. I think that is a, very reasonable request.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This document begins, Dr. Laternser, on page 21 of the German, at the second paragraph.

Commander Serbia and LXVth Corps Command consequently are to make all preparations immediately to enable them to cope with any aggravation of the situation and to pacify the country completely before the beginning of the winter.

In regard to the above the following aspects are to be taken into consideration:

a) If the tension in the situation in Serbia increases the Divisions are to be concentrated on the focal points and on the local centers of the insurgent regions. Then a list of the various places involved.

Villages are to be garrisoned not below battalion strength! Considerations of comfort and improved billets must be secondary! The units are to regard themselves as living under campaign conditions.

This is no insurgent movement by isolated bands. This is a real war. Turning to the next page, page 24 of the English:

"They will have to do without permanent billets during this period and make their billets more like those of mobile warfare. This requires a constantly maneuverable composition and equipment free of any unnecessary ballast.

"Surprising, sudden attacks on the centers of insurrection by surrounding them with superior forces (including Artillery!) The operations are to be commanded by senior, experienced officers, Divisional Commanders, according to detailed plans of operation and after preceding patrolling and reconnaissance."

If I might say parenthetically, war against the insurgents is to be commanded by experienced officers, divisional commanders. And, the outrages which you will see in the succeeding documents, will not be isolated and sporadic retaliatory measures taken by outraged units under lower rank commanders. It will be under the direction of the Divisional Commanders and lead by officers of general officer rank.

Continuing with the document:

Commandos assigned up to now as need arose are no longer sufficient in the present situation. The next paragraph deals with the types of objects these troops were to protect.

The protection must therefore - when not necessary - be limited to objects whose preservation is vital. In this category belong primarily: Belgrade as the capital (here sufficient mobile reserves!), the railway Lenkovac - Nis - Belgrade - Direction Zagreb, the Danube and the Save bridges, the Danube break-through near the Eisern Tor, the copper mines of Bor, etc.

Active strengthened propaganda in the Serbian language with all means at our disposal (radio, leaflets, newspapers, picture posters, etc.

) Increased pressure on the population in areas where insurgents are tolerated in order to bring the residents to a point where they will report the appearance of bands to the German authorities or otherwise co-operate in neutralizing the focal points of unrest." Now, to the next paragraph, the most important one in the document. This is a field marshal of the German Army issuing orders to subordinate units, and this is the language he uses. "Ruthless and immediate measures against the insurgents, against their accomplices and their families. (Hangings, burning down of villages involved, seizure of more hostages, deportation of relatives, etc. into concentration camps.) Close supervision of the Serbian Gendarmerie. Effective punishment must follow immediately in case of passive behavior, for instance, permitting oneself to be disarmed without suffering casualties. On the other hand it is recommended that the prospect of rewards (premiums) be held out for courageous behavior and for corresponding procedure. Increased employment of confidential agents to find out who and where the ringleaders, wire pullers, and focal points of insurrections are. Full employment of the influence of the Serbian Government which is to be made to accept responsibility and to co-operate actively. All members of the German Wehrmacht in Serbia are to be instructed again and again in the situation in Serbia and on their behavior in case of attacks, etc. These instructions are to stress that initiative and prompt action must be demanded from every German soldier. That in no situation can he negotiate with insurgents and that he can never surrender. I particularly expect the unit leaders of all ranks to use exceptional energy and initiative as well as full personal devotion to the task assigned which at this time consists solely and exclusively of suppressing the Serbian insurrection movement rapidly and finally.

"Incapable---"

THE PRESIDENT: May I see the original German document again?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That would be Exhibit No. 24, Major Hatfield.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The final paragraph. "Incapable leaders are to be relieved without delay and if circumstances warrant, they are to be called to account." Signed List, Field Marshal. The distribution list of this order is to the three subordinate units under Field Marshal List, 65th Special Corps Command in Serbia, the Commander in Serbia, and to the Commander in Greece of the Saloniki, Agais Theatre.

We will see in a few minutes the results which flowed in from the issuance of this severe order.

The next document is NOKW-625 on page 27 of the English which becomes prosecution Exhibit 43. This is the same order as the preceding document except that the-

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, please, what is the German page number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The German is on page 23.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you kindly give the German page number at the same time you give the English page number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I will, sir. This is the same as the preceding document from a content standpoint, but it shows the actual receipt stamp of the military commander in Serbia.

The next document is on page 31 of the English and page 27 of the German, Document NOKW-214. It becomes prosecution Exhibit Number 44. This is a report of 738 Infantry Regiment to the 718 Infantry Division, and it relates to various encounters which the regiment has had with enemy groups. The report from the Regiment is dated 9 September 1941, and it was received by the higher division on the 12th of September 1941.

We needn't read this in its entirety but the last paragraph which is on page 33 of the English and on page 29 of the German, under "Supplies.) It reads as follows: "The fights around Kevljaca have shown that the Serbian Insurgent movement already has at its disposal perfectly well organized and disciplined units under good leadership. Terrain and national character favor guerrilla warfare very outstanding in manner; the patrol service and the transmission of Communications facilitated in an extraordinary way the co-operation of the entire population," and the report is signed by the regimented commander, first Lt. Dzaack.

The next document is on page 34 of the English and page 30 of the German, Document NOKW-1049, which becomes prosecution Exhibit Number 45. These are reports of the 65th Special Corps Command which was operating under General Boder in Serbia, commander of the 18th Mountain Corps under General Boehme, reports from those two units to List and Foertsch as the commander and Chief of Staff of the 12th Army in Athens. We need not read all of these again. I wish if Your Honors might take a look at the photostatic copies so that you will understand the nature of the reports of the subordinate units to higher headquarters. First is the daily report of the 17th of August 1941, and the reports are broken down into the various divisions subordinate to the unit which is reporting. For example, there is the 704 Infantry Division and what it reports, and later the 714 Infantry Division and its full line reports, finally 718th Infantry Division and its reports. Those three Divisions were under the Higher Headquarters of Special Corps Command LXV, and in its reports the Corps coordinates reports which it has previously received from the divisions operating under it.

Turning to page 35 of the English and page 32 of the German, the daily report of the 19th of August 1941, the 714th Infantry Division reports as follows:

"A peasant's house, in which munition was found, was burned down on 18 August '41 by the Pursuit Detachment of the 2nd Battalion 721st Regiment, in Glocane, 2 kilometers east of Lapovo. Inhabitants shot." Signed LXV 65th Corps Command.

Turning to page 37 of the English, the daily report of 28 August 1941 page 32 of the German, the daily report, as I said, of the 28th of August. You will note in the succeeding page, page 38 of the English under the 717th Infantry Division, and still page 32 of the German; "Communist leader Petrovic shot; three inhabitants of the house arrested by Pursuit Detachment of the 1st Battalion, 749th Regiment in Rigjage, 5 kilometers west of Cacak, 27 AUG." And still on page 38 of the English, the daily report of 29 August 1941, page 33 of the German, the report from Boehma who was the Commander of the XVIIIth Corps then operating in Greece; and he reports to his Commander of the 12th Army List as follows: "Military cable net in Chalkis cut through in three places the night of 26 Aug. 41. Perpetrator not yet known. Three suspects arrested by Greek police. Fifteen hostages killed."

DR. LATERNER: Again, there is a mistake in the translation. I have to ask again that the documents be presented a little slower so that I can check the translations. The report as we just followed it, "15 hostages..." on page 33 of the German Document Book from the top the 10th line reads as follows, the original text in German reads: "15 hostages taken," quoting. Now, reading the English text, the translation reads: "15 hostages killed." Yes, that is correct. I ask to correct this translation. The English text is on page 38. In the English Document Book, it is the last sentence, the last line.

THE PRESIDENT: May I ask that it be handed to the official interpreter for her interpretation for the benefit of the Tribunal?

INTERPRETER SCHAEFFER: Your Honor, the German text reads as the German counsel stated--"15 hostages were taken." It doesn't say "killed" in any way.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed. Well, perhaps this would be a good time to adjourn. It is now 12:15. The Tribunal has observed that it pays to give a little extra time. We make some headway by giving counsel a little more of a recess period, and we suggest that you show your appreciation by being back here promptly at 1:30. The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:30.

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours 17 July 1947)

THE MARSHAL: Will all persons in the courtroom please take their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: May it please the Tribunal, you will remember that before the luncheon recess we talked about certain reports which subordinate units had sent to Field Marshal List, 12th

Army Headquarters, and other reports which the 12th Army Headquarters had sent out to OKH in Berlin.

We also spent some time on orders issued by Field Marshal List for the destruction of the insurrection movement in Serbia.

Now, with the next document, which is on page 47 of the English and on page 37 of the German, NOKW-1141, which becomes prosecution Exhibit No. 46, you see the connection between the Wehrmacht and concentration camps. This document is in an order of the Commander in Serbia and it is dated "Belgrade 1 September 1941."

The great number of the Communists under arrest impedes the troops. There is danger that these Communists will be liberated by their comrades. Consequently, it is necessary to transfer the arrested Communists to Belgrade as soon as possible in accordance with requisitions of the Security Police. For this purpose the individual military offices are to make lists if possible, immediately -- of the Communists detained by them. These lists must show:

"a) Exact personal data of persons under arrest, "b) Day and place of arrest and the troop unit which has made the arrest, "c) Reason for arrest and brief description of factual circumstances, "d) Exact place where person arrested is presently located.

"For the sake of convenience, these lists are to be submitted directly to the liaison officer of the security police with Higher Command IXV - SS - Obersturmfuhrer Muller -- in Belgrade."

And on the following page, page 48 of the English, page 39 of the German, is letter from "Servia Commander, Command Staff, Section Ia," Secret under date of 21 August 41, ordering that:

"Prisoners with the troops are to be transferred to Concentration camp Belgrade in order that the troops may be relieved of their responsibility. This cancels out the local importance of the concentration camp Belgrade subordinate to the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters.

"Therefore, effective immediately, the concentration camp will be made subordinate to the Commander Serbia/Administrative Staff and will be designated as 'Concentration Camp Serbia, Belgrade.'

"The Administrative Staff will regulate directly the process of taking over of the concentration camp and the inclusion of the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and SD. Guarding of the concentration camp as heretofore."

Signed "Lt. General Air Corps."

You will hear a lot in the next few weeks in this trial about the lack of knowledge by the Wehrmacht Commander of the concentration camps which I am sure they will claim were entirely within the jurisdiction and knowledge of other units of the German occupation forces in Serbia; namely, the SD and Security Police.

This document, I think, will make quite clear that the Wehrmacht knew and had jurisdiction over certain concentration camps in Serbia.

The next document is NOKW-1141. I beg your pardon. The next document will be NO-3154, prosecution Exhibit No. 47, page 50 of the English and page 39 of the German. These are extracts from situation reports of the Chief of the Security Police and the SD and I think if your Honors would look at the original photostat it might be helpful for an understanding of the actual document.

You will note that this is a fairly voluminous report of 16 pages. It's from the Chief of the Security Police and the SD and the date line is "Berlin 11 September 1941" and it contains various references to the activities of the Einsatzgruppe, how it occupied certain territories.

Actually, the excerpt which we are using is Document NO-3154 and this exhibit is the final page of the photostatic copy of page 16. You will see it refers to the "Balkans" and then "Serbia" and the excerpt in translation is as follows:

"Increase of the insurgent movement in the Drina-Save-Triangle and in the area around Lazarevac. Considerable concentration of insurgents around Gor. In general numerous attacks and acts of sabotage mainly on railroads. Line Belgrade-Nish as yet not repaired. In reprisal for attack on a Wehrmacht vehicle on 5 September in a village north of Cacak, the village was destroyed on 6 September."

It is quite clear from this document that the destruction of a village as a retaliation for an attack on a vehicle was not a spontaneous act of outraged troops because the reprisal action took place a full day after the attack occurred.

DR. LATERNER (Counsel for defendants Weichs and List): A translation is not correct. In the German text of the document book, page 39 -- that is page 50 of the English -- it says on the last line: "The village was shot to pieces on the 6th of September"; while in the English document book, on page 50, in the next to last sentence of the text of the document, it is translated as follows: "The village was destroyed."

The translation is not correct at all because the sense of the document if I use the words "shot to pieces" means that it is probably shot to pieces with a fight of bands and not as it looks from the English translation, by way of reprisal.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors, please, I think the translation is quite clear as to whether it was shot to pieces or whether it was destroyed.

It was in fact in reprisal for an attack on a Wehrmacht vehicle which occurred the day previous.

THE PRESIDENT: If there is a question as to whether the translation as given in the English is correct, The Court will ask that it be handed to the official translator for his translation.

May I ask that the translator refer both to the English page of the document book and the page in the German page so it may be properly identified.

THE INTERPRETER: Then in the German document, in the last paragraph -- in the English document book it is page 50 and it is again the last paragraph --- the translation is: "as a reprisal for the attack in the village north of Cacak on the 5th of September on a Wehrmacht vehicle the village was shot to pieces on the 6th of September." That ends this paragraph.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think, if your Honors please, that does not affect the purpose for which the document has been introduced by the prosecution. We intend to show that the village was shot up, or what we intend to show is that the village was shot up in reprisal for an attack which occurred the day previous and it is quite clear, I think, from the text that there was no combat action involved through which the village was shot up.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The next six documents in Document Book 2, your Honors, are probably the most important documents which will be introduced by the prosecution against the defendant List, and I think I should fill in the background a little bit before we actually introduce them.

When the German Army made preparations for the attack against Russia, which was launched on 20 June 1941 -

DR. LATERNER: I believe I must again object. In order to give the background, the prosecution had ample opportunity in its opening statement. We are now in the case in chief, where according to the rules established by the International Military Tribunal connecting sentences, are possible. Additional statements are not possible in the case in chief as far as I know, in the procedure.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I do not mean to enter into any argument at this time, but I believe that for the proper understanding of the document, there ought to be a little bit of association between external events and these somewhat dry and dull words that appear on the printed page. I would fill in the background, as I term it, in about 4 or 5 sentences.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Prosecutor you may make such explanatory comments as you feel may be necessary in connection with these documents. However, this Tribunal is of the opinion that this is not the time to comment on their value or to give your conclusions as to what you think about them.

This Tribunal is interested at this particular time only in the presentation of the evidence. However, as I stated before we have no objections to your briefly commenting on those matters as you feel you should do so to connect them up. Let's limit it to that.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: To go on from the Southeast theatre after the campaign ended in May, immediately during the course of the summer, the insurgent movement grew larger and larger, and finally something had to be done, and we can see that Field Marshal List suggested what should be done from the next document, which is NOKW 1424, and begins on page 51 of the English translation, and page 42 of the German. It becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 48.

This is the request which Field Marshal List sent to OKW in Berlin, requesting that there be unification of commands in Serbia in order to successfully defeat the insurgent movement.

There was a military commander in Serbia at that time, who had administrative troops under him,, and there was a technical commander in Serbia and General Bader with the 65th Army Corps Command who had tactical groups under him.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, I object against this presentation here. It is not right, in order to show the court why these documents are submitted here, the prosecution here presents assumptions, and from these assumptions he must bring proof, and this is not the time to add any assumptions to the documents presented here.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is of the opinion that the objection is made by counsel for the defendant is a proper one, and that the matters which are commented upon become, in their nature, evidentiary. As I stated before, we have no objection to your making brief comments as to these documents, as they are connected, as I stated before, and I believe it should be limited to that, and that there should be no comments as to what could very well be termed evidence being given by the prosecutor.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Exhibit No. 48 is a memorandum from the defendant List, the commander-in-chief of the 12th Army dated 15 September 1941. It goes to OKW headquarters, and it reads as follows:

Threatening development of the overall situation in Serbia demands energetic measures. Even the new Serbian Government does not come up to expectations, according to reports of the Commander in Serbia. Gendarmerie unreliable on an increasing scale. Association between the insurgents - in my opinion not aptly described as Communists by the Commander in Serbia - with the Cetnicks, has been confirmed.

First requisite is a rigid uniform leadership of the offensive operations which are necessary for the restoration of unconditional authority. Moreover it is essential that the overall executive power, including command over the troops which will be committed, should be united in one hand. This can only be that of the supreme troop commander. The present command regulations are based on peaceful conditions and are unbearable under the present turbulent combat conditions.

General of Infantry Boehme is a person to be considered as especially suited for this position since at the same time he has an excellent knowledge of conditions in the Balkans. Together with his staff, he should be made free for this task.

It is fully understood that the interests of the Four Year Plan will also be taken into consideration in this case. Main condition for its realization is security and order in the country.

Even after the transfer of the reinforced 125th Infantry Regiment, the German Forces are in no way sufficient for carrying out the necessary operations in Serbia. The divisions of the 15th Wave, both as regards personnel and material composition, as well as regards leadership, are unsuitable, according to experiences made up until now, "for the destruction of this revolt, which is universally breaking out." Mobile supply installations for larger sized operations are also lacking.

I therefore see myself forced, in spite of my appreciation of the overall situation, to propose the speedy transport of at least one powerful front-line division with tank support.

CERTIFICATE OF TRANSLATION 19 June 1947.

I, Mary E. Carter, British civilian #20134, hereby certify that I am thoroughly conversant with both the English and German languages; and that the above is a true and correct translation of Document Np. NOKW-1424.

Mary E. Carter # 20134

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, I must complain about a mistake in the translation which in my opinion is present. In the German text on Page 41, in Line 9, "for suppressing this revolt which calls itself universal".

This sentence in the English document, on page 51, page 52 I beg your pardon it is on page 52, that's right, - on page 52, line 8, it is translated, "for the destruction of this revolt, which is universally breaking out".

"Destruction" in my opinion is too strong a translation for the military "Niederschlagung" expression- it is not as strong, it is "to suppress", and this translation makes this order bear another sense than it was originally intended to bear.

THE PRESIDENT: Unless there is some objection on the part of counsel which they wish to present, the Tribunal will request that the document in German be submitted to the court interpreter for his interpretation.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: It is agreeable with the prosecution, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Is it so agreeable with the defense counsel?

Dr. Laternser has indicated his approval and it will be landed to the interpreter.

May I ask the interpreter, for the purposes of the record, to indicate from what page and line in the English and in the German documents he is now reading?

The German text is on page 41, and on the 9th line from the top. I must add here that the German text, in the German document book, does not correspond with the document in English and for that reason it is very difficult to translate it. The document on that line says, and I read it in German now:

"Fuer niederschlagen dieses sich abzeichnenden Aufstandes"; (The interpreter then read the sentence again) - "des sich allgemein abzeichnenden Aufstandes"

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, perhaps we could have the actual line from the document itself translated by the interpreter.

THE PRESIDENT: The interpreter shall interpret the line in question from the document as presented.

INTERPRETER: It's on page, Line 9 and reads as follows:

"For the suppression of this revolt which can now be seen and is universally breaking out."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That's the end of this passage. The next document will indicate the reply of Hitler to Field Marshal List's request, as set forth in the previous document. It appears on page 53 of the English and on page 42 of the German. It's Document NOKW-1492, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 49. It's from the Fuehrer and Supreme Commander of the Wehrmacht, Fuehrer Headquarters, 16 September 1941. There are twenty-two copies and this is the eleventh copy.

The primary task is to secure in the Serbian area the traffic arteries and objects which are important for the German War Economy and to re-establish order in the entire area on a long-term basis by the application of the most severe means.

In Croatia, (up to the line of demarkation) measures deemed imperative against the bands are to be taken in agreement with the Croatian government through the mediation of the German General in Zagreb.

For the duration of the execution of these tasks all Army Forces stationed in the insurgent area, as well as those to be brought there, are to be concentrated under the order of the Commanding General of the XVIII Infantry Corps, Lt. General of Infantry Boehme. The latter exercises executive power in the insurgent area itself, pursuant to directives of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. In so far, all military and civilian offices must follow his instructions.

The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast regulates a more accurate definition of his authority. The interest of the Four Year Plan are to be taken into consideration as a matter of principle.

An Infantry Division, Panzer Platoons and captured tanks will be sent by the Commander-in-Chief of the Army into the Serbian area in addition to other security forces (those for Croatia also). He prepares for the bringing up case of need of an additional division as soon as one is released in the East.

I request that the measures be reported in detail to the OKW.

As before, the Commander-in-Chief of the Luftwaffe supports the operation in the insurgent area with all the forces available for this purpose. He designates to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast a leader for tactical co-operation with Lt. Colonel of Infantry Boehme.

It is not permissible to employ forces of the Hungarian, Rumanian and Bulgarian Army and Luftwaffe for these operations without the approval of the High Command of the Wehrmacht. However, Hungarian and Rumanian ships which are offered may be employed together with the Danube Fleet for the security of the Danube traffic. With a corresponding commitment of the German Flotilla, they are to be assigned such duties as will prevent them having anything to do with each other.

The use of Croatian troops in the Serbian border areas adjoining Croatia has been conceded by the Croatian government, and may therefore take place.

The Italian High Command will be informed of the intended measures and will be requested to take suitable energetic action in the territory occupied by the Italians, in agreement with the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

The Foreign Office will carry out a joint political action of the Balkan States against the Communist Central Offices in these countries.

A representative of the Reich will inform Wehrmacht Commander Southeast regarding the details.

Certified True Copy: Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Ia 1953 Top (signature illegible) Secret Lieutenant of 18 September (signed) List General Fieldmarshal

MR. FENSTERNMACHER: The document is signed the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. List, General Fieldmarshal. I think it is important that the Tribunal know who this man was. General Fieldmarshal List was considered especially suitable to suppress the insurgent movement on the Bethaus Franz Boehme was indicated as defendant in this case, but he has died since the indictment was served; however, we have an affidavit of Boehme's which was executed in Nuernberg on the 12th of March 1947. The next document is that affidavit which appears on page 59 of the English and page 47 of the German. It is Document No. NOKW-876, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 51. The first part of the document simply outlines Boehme's carrier from the time he entered the Austrian Army until 1936. I think it need not be read, but I should like to read the bottom, beginning the last six lines on page 59 of the English and page 47 of the German.

MR. FENSTERNMACHER: I think the remainder of the document also need not be read. Signed Boehme. The following document which begins on page 62 of the English and page 40 of the German, is a Service Record of General Franz Boehme. It is Document No. NOKW 1560 which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 52. I think most of it also need not be read since it simply outlines his career, which he also outlines in his own affidavit, but on page 64, of the English and on page 50 of the German are some recommendations from various other German Commanders who commanded General Franz Boehme, and I think it will throw some light on the nature of this man which Fieldmarshal appointed to suppress the revolt in Serbia. On the 22nd of February 1941 Fieldmarshal Weichs said, "Quiet, considered, intelligent, always considerate in furthering the educational position of the subordinate divisions. For his especial adaptation for higher position not yet be disregarded". Then General Dietl in a private letter of 1 September 1943 to the Chief of the Personnel Office says, "Dependable, adaptable troop commander.

Good head. Have not yet learned to know him under large-scale battle conditions. Has to show yet whether he possesses, in long-enduring, largescale battle, necessary severity and the considered leadership qualities above the level of corps. At the present time, therefore not yet adapted for army commander. Considering his knowledge of languages, especially adapted for employment in the Balkans." Then, later on, on the 10th of January 1944, Dietl again says of Boehme, "Has served well as commanding general. No opportunity was present for employment under major and heavy fighting conditions. Very active and adaptable leader. Sometimes somewhat nervous and irritable. Could, as senior commander, be somewhat more generous at times. Especially adapted for employment in the Balkans."

We can now pass to the next document which is on page 67 of the English, and page 52 of the German. If there is any document that is basic in this case, it is this document which we are now about to introduce, NOKW 258, which becomes prosecution Exhibit No 53. This is Field Marshal' Keitel's directive of 16 September 1941 for the suppression of the Communist insurgent movement in the occupied territories. You can see from the distribution list which appears on page 69 of the English and on page 53 of the German that it went to the units operating in Serbia under the command of Field Marshal List. It went to the Corps Command, 65. It went to the 342 Jaeger Division, and it went to the 125 Infantry Regiment. The document originates from the Fuhrer's headquarters, dated 16 September 1941. Forty copies were distributed of which this is the second.

1) Since the beginning of the campaign against Soviet Russia-communist insurgents movements have broken out. The forms they take have increased from propanganda measures and attacks against individual members of the Wehrmacht to open revolt and widespread band warfare. It is established that it is a question of centrally directed mass movement which also must be made responsible for minor isolated incident appearing in territories quiet up to now.

In view of the manifold political and economic tension in the occupied territories one must also assume that nationalists and other circles will exploit this opportunity to cause difficulties for the German occupation power by joining the communist revolt.

In this way an increasing danger for the German conduct of the war arises which shows itself at first in a general insecurity for the occupation units, and which has also led to the transfer of forces to the main places of unrest.

2) Measures taken up to now to counteract this general communist insurgent movement have proved themselves to be inadequate.

The Fuehrer has not ordered that severest means are to be employed in order to break down this movement in the shortest time possible.

Only in this manner, which has also been applied successfully in the history of the extension of power of great peoples can quiet be restored.

3) The following directives are to be applied here:

a) Each incident of insurrection against the German Wehrmacht regardless of individual circumstances, must be assumed to be of communist origin.

b) In order to stop these intrigues at their inception, severest measures are to be applied immediately at the first appearance, in order to demonstrate the authority of the occupying power, and in order to prevent further progress.

One must keep in mind that a human life frequently counts for naught, in the affected countries and a deterring effect can only be achieved by unusual severity. In such a case the death penalty for 50 to 100 communists must in general be deemed appropriate as retaliation for the life of a German soldier. The manner of execution must increase the deterrent effect. The reverse procedure--to proceed at first with relatively easy punishment and to be satisfied with the threat of measures of increased severity as a deterrent does not correspond with these principles and is not to be applied.

d) Indigenous forces generally will fail in the execution of such violent measures. Their reinforcement brings with it increased danger for our own units and consequently must be avoided.

However, premiums and rewards for the population may be employed to a large extent, in order to insure their assistance in appropriate form.

The document is signed "Keitel."

The scene now shifts in time to September, October, November, and December, 1941, and to the activities of General Boehme in Serbia in suppressing the insurrection movement. We would like now to introduce a document which I am not sure is yet in Your Honors' document books.

This will be an insertion for your Honors' document Book. There should be an insertion for page 69-A and 69-B and for the German insert it should be page 63-A and 63-B, No. NOXW-1041.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a minute, please. May we wait until they have been distributed to German counsel?

MR FENSTERMACHER: Document Book II, NOK W-1041, which becomes prosecution exhibit No. 54, it is again an affidavit of the deceased General Boehme and it explains the command jurisdiction which existed in Serbia prior and after he arrived there as representative of Field Marshal List. The affidavit is dated Nurnberg, Germany, April 11, 1947.

I, General Franz Boehme, swear and depose:

I came to Serbia in September 1941. My title was: Plenipotentiary Commanding General of the 18th Army Corps. Duties assigned to me were:

1. securing traffic on the main line and on the Danube, 2. Securing the operation of three mines, 3. Liberating the country from the partisan plague and reconstituting quiet and order with the aid of the forces which were to be brought up.

When I arrived in Serbia, General Rader was there. He commanded 4 Divisions which according to my recollection were numbered as follows: 704, 714, 717, and 718. When I arrived in Serbia General Bader with his four divisions, were subordinated to me though General Bader continued in command of them. Naturally, General Bader knew the situation in Serbia better than I did, so that I did not object to the fact that he remained to a great extent independent in directing the operations.

I received the evening and morning reports from him, daily, so that I was well informed regarding everything he did. General Bader fully appreciated his relationship of subordination to me. Later two more divisions, the 342nd and 113th Divisions came to Serbia which I took over. General Bader never had anything to do with these two divisions. All reports to the 12th Army went via myself.

After my arrival, General Bader no longer sent reports to the 12th Army.

When I arrived in Serbia, General Danckelmann was still there. At that time General Danckelmann bore the title: Military Commander in Serbia. After my arrival he remained in Serbia for about two to three weeks. During that period he had no combat units under him but only some Administrative troops. I cannot recall to whom he turned over these Administrative troops when he left. When I departed, I turned over my functions to General Bader who then carried the title Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

Following is the jurat of General Boehme. I think if Your Honors will turn to the information folder which the prosecution prepared for you, to Chart B, you will have a graphic description of the command relationship which existed in Serbia for the period September 1941 through December of 1941. You will note that Field Marshal List is in charge of the 12th army as the top command in Southeast, that under him he has Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia Boehme who was simultaneously Commander of the 18th Mountain Corps and who had subordinate to him two divisions, the 113th and the 342nd Division.

We have also tried to indicate the subordination of General Bader as the Troop Commander of the 65th Special Corps Command and as Commanding General in Serbia to General Boehme with the various divisions under General Bader.

The next document is on page 70 of the English, on page 54 of the German. It is Document No. NOKW 456 which becomes prosecution Exhibit No. 55. This is an order of General Bader as Commander of the Higher Headquarters, Special Corps Command 65, to his subordinate unit, the 125th Infantry Regiment, and it is dated September, 1941. Only the third paragraph of the order seems material.

"Severest measures are to be taken. Localities showing resistance are to be blocked off and to be burned down." Signed Bader, General of Infantry.

Our next document is on page 71 of the English, page 55 of the German. Document NOKW-1078, prosecution Exhibit 56. It is a report of the Military Commander in Serbia and it relates from a German viewpoint the various insurgent groups which were operating in Serbia to the prejudice of German occupational security. It is signed "For the Military Commander in Serbia," who at that time was General Danckelmann by Danckelmann's chief of staff Lt. Col. Gravenhorst. It originates in the headquarters of the Commander of Serbia in Belgrade, dated 16 September 1941.

With regard to the insurgent movement which increases daily and whose increase is caused by temporary military victories by the insurgents, a counter-attack can only then be carried out successfully, if one is able to distinguish friend from foe, that is the guilty from the not guilty. The development of the insurgent movement was in short the following:

- a) The usual band disturbances known for decades in the Balkans
- b) The beginning of reinforced Communist agitation and Communist outrages to destroy the German supplies at the start of the war with Russia.
- c) Organization of Communist band (partly under military leadership.)
- d) Incited by partly successful fighting by the Communists, the national Serbs are organizing fighting units against the Germans.
- e) Union of Communist and National bands.
- f) Active fighting of both bands (partly united) against the German Wehrmacht.

In the Southeastern part of Serbia in the area of the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters Nisch, apart from the bands fighting against the Germans there are also national-Serbian bands of Kosta Pecanac. The latter with his people stands behind the Serbian government and supports the German occupation troops and the Serbian government with the idea of protecting the country from civil war.

The Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters Nisch has permitted the followers of Kosta Pecanac to carry arms. The weapons however are only to be carried openly. The followers of Kosta Pecanac are mostly in uniform and in possession of identification cards which identify them as members of the Kosta Pecanac group. They are the only acknowledge Chetniks. They want to fight the Communists and in several cases are said actually to have fought against them.

South of Nisch we also find the hitherto pro-German Komitacis.

The treatment of these two groups is to be such that they will continue to have confidence in the German leadership and will destroy Communism in their own ranks on their own initiative. Attention is called to the decree of the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters Nisch No. 353/41 secret, dated 11/9/41: "Relations towards the Chetniks".

In contraction to this, we find bands in the insurgent district between the line Obrenevac-Cacak-Mitrovica and the Drina (the Save-Drina band incl.) some of whom call themselves Chetniks too but who did not subordinate themselves to Kosta Pecanac nor to the Government. The fights near Loznica and Krupanj as well as single enemy operations West of Uzice and near Mitrovica have proved clearly, that these bands are at one with the Communists and face us armed and openly as enemies.

It must be made definitely clear to the unit, that, in this district, every Serb, (the gendarmerie and the finance post excepted) who is apprehended carrying weapons or who supports Communist or other bands is our enemy and is to be destroyed.

The Communist and Serbian bands camouflaged as nationals, who are hostile to us in the insurgent district, have recently organized themselves in such a fashion that one can already speak of enemy organizations. Their military structure is composed of companies and battalions which are frequently under the responsible leadership of former Serbian officers. The armament is distributed in such a manner that each company disposes over an equal amount of weapons. In one company one noticed up to 71 machine guns. The presence of numerous heavy machine guns has been confirmed. There are still numerous unarmed people in the individual companies who as relief take over the weapons from time to time.

In Serbia's other districts the situation at present is so, that up until now only Communist bands face the German Wehrmacht as enemies there.

By reason of the order dated 13 September "Instruction of the Communist party of Serbia for guerrilla warfare" distributed to all offices and troop units within the jurisdiction of the Commander of Serbia as well as its supplement by additional available orders for service within the companies and battalions, one has to reckon with the fact, that in the insurgent district especially we are now facing an enemy who is well organized to the last detail.

For the Commander Serbia (signed) Gravenhorst Lt. Col, General Staff The next document begins on page 75 of the English, page 65 of the German, No. 3150 and becomes Prosecution Exhibit 37.

These are again extracts from the situation report from the Chief of Secret Police and SD. Most of the material contained in the actual document is not of interest to us but there is a section on Serbia which reads as follows:

The Chief of the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and the SD in Belgrade reports:

In reprisal for the murder plot on a German soldiers 50 persons convicted and known Communists were shot to death on 16 September.

Additional numerous acts of sabotage against railroad and telephone lines.

The mopping up of the area Belgrade-Valjevo by a re-enforced infantry regiment starts of 16 September. The supply for Valjevo is under way again by use of detours.

The Serbian Prime Minister in a radio speech requests the laying down of arms and cessation of the acts of sabotage.

Situation in Croatia particularly in Bosnia is tense.

In Zagreb bomb attacks on telephone installations.

Southeast of Karlovac destruction of railroad stations.

Bands are massing on the road Deboj-Tusla.

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt just a moment, please. I observe that some of the interested parties in the courtroom are feeling the effects of the weather. Inasmuch as it is important for all parties concerned, those who are particularly affected, I would suggest that, including the court, everyone stands up at a recess, what we would call in America, a seventh inning stretch.

You may be seated.

Our German associates here may not have understood the reason for that. I noticed that someone was getting sleepy in here and if we just change our posture a little bit it might be beneficial to all concerned. It may be a little unusual but what we are interested in is that everyone keeps awake and that we proceed in a manner here which will result in benefit to all concerned.

You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Prosecution Extract of page 77 of the English, 51 of the German, NOKW 1222, becomes Prosecution Exhibit This document again reveals how the German Army knew the enemy they faced were expertly organized into regular military units and were not isolated bands. It is an order of General Bader as Commander of the Special Corps 65, dated 18 September 1941. The order itself is for the mopping up of the Save band Vest of Sabac and for the encircling of the Cer mountains.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, I object to the submission of this document. At the bottom of this document there is a place left for the signature. This place is not filled in. The document, therefore, though it had room provided for the signature, was not signed. I say that it has not been signed because it was handled otherwise. It is a draft which has not been signed. For that reason I request that it be rejected, especially as it can be established here that it was prepared for signature but this signature for reasons which are not known to me, was not given. That would have to exclude the possibility of using this piece of paper as a document. I ask the court to take note of this document in order that the Tribunal may see that the signature was not given.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors, might be interested in actually seeing this document. It is true that the document is not signed but that its present condition is the way it was found in the captured files of the German Army and we think it should be accepted for whatever probative value the Tribunal wishes to give it.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, may I add that this is an operational order in this case. Operational orders of a military nature, as is well known, are always secret. This order did not receive the degree of secrecy because it was only being prepared. It would have received a secret number because no military order is without number and this confirms me in my view that it is here a case of mere preparations. I request that this document be rejected. This morning I have already said that not everything which has been captured is a document.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honor, please, there are many times in which letters--extra copies of letters are made and put in the files and only the signed copy is distributed. I believe that that is perhaps the case here, but even if this document and this order was not distributed to subordinate units, it certainly reveals the state of mind of the Commander of the 65th Corps, who was subordinate to General Boehme, who in turn was subordinate to Field Marshal List. It indicates the state of mind of that Commander in regard to the suppression of the insurgent movement in Serbia.

DR. LATERNSEER (counsel for the defendant List): Mr. President, may I again contradict. I say here and I maintain that it does not correspond with the state of mind. If it had corresponded with the state of mind, it would have been signed. It is a mere assumption on the part of the prosecution which he has to prove.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think you will see, Your Honors, on the top right-hand of the document, above the date, 18 September 1941, you will see the words "anlazen" which means "enclosures". Now, those words were certainly not put on by Americans, they were put on by someone in the German -- some soldier within the 65th Corps; and it is my belief that this is perhaps the file copy which on many occasions is never signed.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal has taken the attitude heretofore, and it will take the same attitude in connection with this exhibit, that these being purported captured documents, even though it is not signed, it will be admitted for such probative value as the Court would feel should be given to an unsigned document. With that in mind, the objection will be overruled.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This is an order of the mopping up of the Save bend west of Sabac and for the encircling of the Cer Mountains. It reads as follows: "Enemy bands under the leadership of former Serbian Officers are terrorizing the lowlands north of the Cer Mountains up to the Save and Drina Rivers. The staff of the enemy insurgent movement is believed to be in the Cer Mountains.

South of the Cer also, several bands of considerable strength have been reported.

"Enemy resistance is to be broken ruthlessly. All settlements from which or from the neighborhood of which German Troops are fired on or near which arms and ammunitions are found, are to be burned down. Straw and hay supplies in particular are to be burned down, if it is suspected that arms or ammunition are hidden within them.

"The entire male population above 14 years of age is to be arrested, to be sent to a concentration camp which the division will install, and to be detained there. According to the previous combat methods of the enemy, one must count mainly on attacks on the supply and on smaller detachments. Only by the arrest and the evacuation of the male population can these combat methods of the enemy be effectively obviated." Signed the Commanding General, Lt. General of Artillery.

The next document, on page 79 of the English and page 63 of the German, is NOKW-1057, which becomes prosecution Exhibit No. 59. These are reports of the military commands in Serbia over a period of time 5 July to 18 September 1941. The reports from Serbia to List and Foertsch at 12th Army Headquarters in Athens; and I think here again that it might be well if the Tribunal would actually examine the photostatic copy of the document so you can see exactly what a report is and the various stamps which the 12th Army placed on it. You will note on page 2 of the photostatic copy in the right-hand corner the scribbled name "Foertsch". Foertsch is chief of Staff to Field Marshal List, 12th Army Headquarters initialed many of these documents. You will be able to see his name if you will just leaf through, usually in the right-hand corner in quite large scrawl. All of these reports from the Military Commander in Serbia have the receipt stamp of the 12th Army on them. The first report is dated 5 July 1941 to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12th Army, "In connection with the previously reported finding of explosives, 10 Communists and 3 Jews have been shot to death today.

Signed Commander Serbia Command Staff."

The next page is the report of 16 July, "Daily Report: Additional isolated instances of sabotage, in Obrenovac, 10 Communists shot to death."

And the next page, page 81 of the English and page 65 of the German, the Daily Report of 18 July 1941. This one is on page 64 of the German. "Daily Report: Yesterday 16 Communists were shot to death in Belgrade for attempted sabotage acts. In Palanka (northeast of Topola) Communists were caught while putting up posters. One was shot to death, two arrested. Because of new cases of sabotage on the lines in Belgrade the population was employed for guard duty."

Turning to the next succeeding page, the report of 26 July 1941: "Near Petrovgrad during last night, 1,000 100-weights of wheat, in lofts and 800 in stacks were burned. A number of Communists were arrested there. They will be shot today."

The following page, the daily report of 27 July, supplement to daily report of 27 July 1941. "On 25 July a Jew as yet unknown attempted unsuccessfully in Belgrade to set fire to a German motor vehicle by use of a bottle filled with gasoline. On the same day similar attempts were made. A perpetrator, a 16 year old Serbian woman was arrested. She admitted a Jew to be the instigator. In reprisal, 100 Jews will be shot on 29 July in Belgrade."

This, if I might comment to Your Honors, is on 27 July 1941, and the 100:1 order of Field Marshal Keitel was not received in the Southeast until 16 September 1941.

Turning to the next succeeding page, the report of 27 July 1941, the daily report beginning with the last word of the last line on page 85 of the English and 68 of the German: "Because of the destruction of grain as reported yesterday, 5 Communists were shot to death yesterday."

Turning to the next page, the report of 29 July 1941: "80 were shot to death on 38 July, in reprisal for attack on police patrol on road Uzicz-Valjevo.

Paragraph 2. 122 Communists and Jews shot to death in Belgrade on 29 July for previously reported sabotage acts in Belgrade."

The following page, page 88 of the English and page 70 of the German -- I think the interpreter failed to read off in German the previous report which begins on page 87 of the English on page 70 of the German. The Report of 29 July to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12th Army. Daily Report: "One. 80 were shot to death on 28 July, in reprisal for attack on police patrol on road UziczValjevo. Two. 122 Communists and Jews shot to death in Belgrade on 29 July for previously reported sabotage acts in Belgrade."

The next report is on page 88 of the English and page 71 of the German, the report of 1 August 1941. "Daily Report: A reprisal measure for previously reported unrest near Petrovgrad yesterday, 90 Communists were shot to death there."

On page 89 of the English, the daily report of 6 August 1941 and page 72 of the German. "In Zagreb 4 plotters as well as 98 Communists and Jewish hostages shot to death."

On page 90 of the English, the report of 7 August -- I think the interpreters have not yet read the German for the report of the 6th of August which appears on page 89 of the English and page 72 of the German. "Item 3. In Zagreb 4 plotters as well as 98 communists and Jewish hostages shot to death."

The next report is of the 7th of August -

THE PRESIDENT: I think we will take the recess at this time. The Tribunal will be in recess for 15 minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: All right, proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors, you will recall that we were reading from NOKW-1057, Exhibit 59, and we were on Page 90 of the English, talking about the report of the 7th of August 1941, which is on Page 73 of the German. It's a general report from the Commander in Serbia to the Military Commander Southeast. Paragraph 4 states, "In Zagreb on 6.8 an additional 87 Communists and Jewish hostages shot to death." Reading from the next report of 15 August 1941 from the Military Commander in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Daily Report, Paragraph I, "On 14.8 1650 hours a passenger vehicle of the 3./ Reserve Police Battalion 64 (Passengers: 1st Lt. Ehrmann, 3 Sergeants) was fired on by a machine gun near Skela 915 kilometers West of Obrenovac) on the way to Sabac. A patrol found a burned out car. A company of the police battalion sent from Belgrade found the corpses of first Lt. Ehrmann and of one sergeant in the Sabac, two sergeants are missing. On 15.8 Skela will be burned down and 50 Communists from Belgrade will be hanged there." The following reports of the 17th of August again from the Military Commander in Serbia, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, "An additional Jagdkommando against Pizega (12 kilometers East Uzice) shot 3 Communists and took three prisoners of war. In Banja (3 Kilometers Northwest of Topola) Wehrmacht vehicle fired upon. Thereupon, 11 Communists shot to death and a number of houses burned down by Jaegerkommando. Paragraph 5) In Belgrade 17/8 Sunday morning, five Communists convicted of terror and sabotage; hanged publicly in the main street of the city and left there until 1900 hours tonight....," signed Commander Serbia Command Staff. Next report 4th of September to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Daily Report, "In reprisal for the soldier murdered on the street in Belgrade on 3 September, 50 Communists executed." Signed Commander of Serbia Command Staff. Again 50 Communists are executed in reprisal for one German soldier murdered twelve days before the order came down to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from Berlin.

The next report is of 7 September 1941, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast of September Daily report, "In three villages near Petrovgrad and Kik 10 Communists each were hanged publicly. Reason: 50 acts of sabotage on telephone lines." Next the report of 16 September to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from the Commander in Serbia, Daily Report,  Guilty Communists executed as a reprisal measure for plot on soldiers on railroad station Belgrade - Torcider." Next report of 17 September 1941. Paragraph  "Parts of the Belgrade male Jewish population transported to transit * near Belgrade Action continuing," signed by Commander Serbia. Following is the report of 1* September 1941 the Daily Report of the Commander in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, "10 Communists will be hanged, attacked on railroad  near Kosmitrovica, I gendarme dead, I wounded." The Prosecution's * document is NOKW-1315, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No.  It's on Page 101 of the English and page 31 of the German. It's report dated 22 September 1941 of the 738th Infantry Regiment to the 718th Infantry Division, and it relates to the forced labor of native railroad workers in Serbia. The subject of the reports is "Reports on the Operation at Stoeremiried," and you will note the receiving stamp of the 713th Infantry Division of the 25th of September 1941. "In compliance with operational order No. 8 I drove from Sarajevo towards bad on * 1941 at 0030 hours with the 5th Company of the *nd Battalion of the 738th Regiment."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The Regiment's material we have eliminated Your Honors; it relates purely to tactical and operational matters; so we have not had it translated.

MR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, this document of the Prosecution's exceeds what can be called fair. If a document has only a length * I now show to the Tribunal and one only presents the countermeasures, and that only from the first three paragraphs without fact, one can see the reason for the countermeasures which is quite plausible or which might be plausible.

I just looked through it. Then, the Prosecution should not omit that. I cannot regard countermeasures separately, especially from that which causes these countermeasures, and I now request that in this case where it is quite obvious, the Prosecution, if it submits this document, it submits it completely.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, the purpose for which we intend to use this document can be seen from the last paragraph, and I read it, "Therefore, I forced the workers by threatening to use force of arms to continue to work on the line under the fire of the insurgents and also took over the command of the Croatian soldiers as both the officers would- scarcely leave the armored car." Now, no matter what goes before, and we have taken the paragraph which immediately precedes that one and had it translated. It's the contention of the Prosecution that nothing would justify the taking of innocent civilians and forcing them to work for the Germans under the fire of the civilians' own military forces.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser, may I inquire as to your claim for the portions of the documents that are not included in the translation?

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, in this case I would like to see the whole document translated. It can not be separate. It has one page and a quarter, and the Prosecution only presents the end of it. An event cannot be judged separately from the preceding measures. One cannot just judge from the last paragraph.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal appreciates that only a portion of this document was shown in the translation. However, there is no reason by Counsel for the defendants can not introduce in evidence in its case in chief, such portions of this document as he feels is pertinent to a proper defense. That is a matter that can be taken care of by the defendants in the presentation of their evidence. That being true, the objection will be overruled.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I should like to resume the reading of Exhibit 60, in the middle of Page 101 of the English and Page 81 of the German, the middle paragraph.

"Thereupon I had the positions of the insurgents covered with armor piercing explosive shells. However, this did not have the desired effect because the area of traverse of the tank gun is too small for it to be aimed at a side target on the heights. As, in my opinion, the insurgents wanted above all to have our work continued into the night if not to immediately prevent it, I decided to repair the line with all means at disposal before nightfall."

The prosecution's next exhibit in NOKW 194 which becomes prosecution Exhibit No. 61. It appears on page 103 of the English and page 82 of the German. It is an order dated 23 September 1941 of General Boehme as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. and it is to the 342nd Division which was subordinate to General Boehme and you will note on the distribution list at the end of the document, page 104 of the English and page 83 of the German, that informational copies of this order were sent to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and to the Commander of Serbia, the SXV Corps Command, and the German General in Zagreb. The subject of the order is the evacuation of Sabac and it reads as follows:

- 1) On 23 Sept., German patrols were shot at from houses with machine guns and rifles. Losses were sustained.
- 2) 342nd Div. is to evacuate Sabac by surprise attack of the entire male population between the ages of 14 and 70 and take it to a concentration camp set up by the Div. North of the Save, For this purpose, the German troops and offices in Sabac are subordinated to the 342nd Div.
- 3) Execution:
 - a) The following are to be shot at once?

All residents who take part in the battle or offer resistance, The male residents in whose houses weapons or munitions are found, from whose houses shooting takes place, or who wish to escape arrest by fleeing.

- b) Care is to be taken, in liaison with the District Commander of Savac that Volkdeutsche as well as members of Allied or Neutral Nations are not hurt in the action. The District Command is to be charged with the responsibility for their special protection.

- c) Serbian officials (including police and gendarmes) are to be disarmed, but in special custody and guarded closely. So far as they take part in battle actions against the German Wehrmacht, they are to be shot at once.

d) In addition to normal clothing, the male residents to be taken to the concentration camp are to be given?

1 coat 1 blanket 1 mess kit with spoon and rations from their effects.

All other effects, as well as currency, are to be taken from them.

e) Right after the commencement of the operation, Sabac is to be closed for all civilian traffic to the outside. Trespassing of the locality is to be prevented by force of arms.

4) 342nd Division is to report by 1900 hours 24 September, the status of the action and the situation of the concentration camp, after completion of the action, execution by presentation of a report in three copies.

(Signed) The Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia:

Boehme On the succeeding page, page 105 of the English and page 84 of the German, is an advance order which relates to the previous order which I have just finished reading.

The advance order reads as follows:

"342nd Inf, Div. is to remove the entire male civilian population over 14 years of age out of Sabac on 24 September and conduct it into a concentration camp North of the Sava. More exact orders follow.

(Signed) The Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia."

The prosecution's next document is NOKW 183 which becomes prosecution Exhibit No. 62. It begins on page 107 of the English and page 85 of the German. It is an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General, General Boehme, dated 32 September 1941 and it relates to the mopping up of the Sava-Bend.

1) Enemy bands under the leadership of former Serbian Officers have been reported in the Sava-Bend west of the line Mitrovica Savac and to the south in the extensive mountain terrain.

The population in the lowland between the Drina and Sava rivers has joined the insurgent movement. Women and children take care of the intelligence service and keep up the food supply of the roving bands. Thus the entire population is participating in the revolt.

2) The lowlands in the Drina and Sava-Bend which serve as the food supply base for the insurgents is to be mopped up, and bands appearing there are to be annihilated in order to cut off the continued food supply from this area for the insurgents. By means of ruthless measures a deterring example must be created which will become known all over Serbia in a short time.

3) For this purpose the 342nd Infantry Division will cross the Sava river on X day Y hours.

And then there follows material which I don't think we need read at this time.

Dropping down to paragraph 5, "Enemy resistance is to be broken ruthlessly."

All persons participating in the fighting in any form are to be considered franc tireurs and to be treated as such.

All settlements from which or in the neighborhood of which German troops are fired on or near which arms and ammunitions are found are to be burned down.

The entire male population from 15 to 60 years of age is to be arrested and to be transferred at first into prisoners assembly points which are to be organized by the Divisions. Later it is to be employed by sectors for labor in particular for the cutting down of cornfields on transit roads and for the bringing in of the harvest.

From the first day on the entire female population is to be employed for the same work or to be forced into labor employment.

By special order the prisoners are to be evacuated to special concentration camps which are to be organized by Commander Serbia north of the Sava and the female population is to be forced away into the Cer-Mountains to the east. The villages and farms are to be burned down but harvest stores are to be spared.

Cattle is to be driven together in cattle assembly points which are to be organized by the Division directly on both sides of the Sava.

I think we need not read the rest of the order which is signed by the defendant Boehme and is distributed to his subordinate units and his allied units, namely the 342nd Infantry Division, 125th Infantry Regiment, and informational copies to the Commander in Serbia, the Corps Command SXV, and the Plenipotentiary Commanding General and - rather the Plenipotentiary Commanding General's own departments-that is, his I-A, his Operational Department, QU Quarters, his I-C, his Intelligence, and for the War Diary.

Our next document is NOKW 1048 which becomes persecution Exhibit No. 63. It begins on page 114 of the English and page 89 of the German. This is a directive of General Boehme, the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, dated 25 September 1941. Its subject is the evacuation of the Sava Drina Bend and it goes to the Commander of Serbia with a copy for the Chief of Military Administration and to the 342nd Division. It is interesting to note that an informational copy is sent to List as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Another informational copy is to the Corps Command LXV, the German General in Zagreb, and the Plenipotentiary General for Economics. The order reads as follows:

In the course of the mopping up of Communists bands in the Sava Drina bend the male population between 15 and 60 years of age will be collected in prisoner assembly points while the entire rest of the population will be forced into the south into the Cer Mountains.

These measures will be executed by the unit.

A concentration camp is to be erected by Commander Serbia north of the Sava into which the prisoners can be brought from the prisoner assembly points by the unit. Regarding the possible taking over of the concentration camp organized by the 342nd Division pursuant to the order mentioned in the reference above paragraph 2, Commander Serbia will contact the division directly.

If your Honors please, I have been informed that I have been reading from Document numbered NOKW 183 which is prosecution Exhibit No. 62, so that this should not be a new document. This is a continuation of Exhibit No. 62 and not Exhibit No. 63.

Now on page 112 of the English and on page 88 of the German, continuing the reading of the order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, dated the 25th of September, 1941, and relating to the evacuation of the Sava Drina Bend:

For the installation and guard the entire 64th Police Reserve Battalion is to be employed and will be relieved later by Volksdeutsche auxiliary service.

The chief of the military administration with Commander Serbia is charged with the direction of the concentration camps, with the political surveyance of the prisoners and with the jurisdiction.

The economics exploitation of the evacuated territory is the task of the chief of the military administration.

The interests of the plenipotentiary General for economics in Serbia are to be taken into consideration to the fullest extent. The Chief of the Military Administration is requested to guarantee the readiness for employment of Volksdeutsche auxiliary forces up to 28 Sept.

At first the 342nd Division will take over the protection of these forces against possible band attacks.

The Chief of Military Administration will report up to what time this protection is considered necessary.

For the protection of Volksdeutsche and members of Allied or Neutral states living in the Sava Drina Bend paragraph 3b of the order referred to above is to be applied accordingly. (Initialed) PM.

Exhibit No. 63. This is on page 114 of the English and page 89 of the German and it is a directive of General Boehme relating to the retaliation measures in Serbia. It is dated 25 September 1941 and reads as follows:

The following disposition is to be made known to all officers, non-commissioned officers and men. Distribution is to be made down to company, battery, etc.

Volksdeutsche Labor Forces are to be held in readiness for labor employment behind the unit now; the projected labor employment of the male population is accordingly dropped.

The female population is not to be put to work, likewise, but from the start, to be forced off to the Cer Mountain Range with all possible means.

, Infantry Then dropping down to the fourth line at the bottom of the page we read:

After dissemination, destroy.

In March of this year, Serbia shamefully broke the friendship treaty with Germany, in order to strike the German units marching against Greece in the back.

German revenge stormed across the country.

We must turn to new, greater goals with all our forces at hand. For Serbia, this was the sign for a new uprising, to which hundreds of German soldiers have already fallen in sacrifice. If we do not proceed here with all means and the greatest ruthlessness, our losses will climb to immeasurable heights.

Your mission lies in carrying out reconnaissance of the country in which German blood flowed in 1914 through the treachery of the Servs, men and women.

You are avengers of these dead. An intimidating example must be created for the whole of Serbia, which must hit the whole population most severely.

Everyone who wishes to rule charitably sins against the lives of his comrades. He will be called to account without regard for his person and placed before a Court-Martial.

The next document is NOKW 1434 which becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 64. This is a wireless message from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General Boehme, to List, as Armed Forces Commander, Southeast and it is dated the 26 of September 1941. It begins on page 116 of the English and page 91 of the German. I think we need not read anything from this document until we get to paragraph 6 which is on page 117 of the English and on page 91 of the German:

"Jews are being arrested in Smederevo and vicinity, since they were found to be instigators of the insurrection."

Then turning to page 118 of the English, paragraph 3, which is on page 92 of the German. I think the following should be read into the record at this time even though it is material which is helpful to the defense on the question of the insignia worn by the insurgent bands. Paragraph 3. "Bands near Krusevac repelled with the support of a tank platoon and Cetniks (Kosta Pocanac). 125th Infantry Regiment northwest of Valjevo shot 49 bandits including commander (Serbian Reserve Officer). 71 houses destroyed. Some of the enemy is fighting in Serbian fatigue jackets and German caps."

I think we need read no more of that document, your Honors. Our next, document is NOK 1381 which becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 65. It is a report of the 724th Infantry Regiment, dated 27 September 1941 and relates to the insignia worn by the partisan units. The subject of the report is: Communist bands in the area, Valjevo Krupanj:

In the night of the 26 to 27 September 1941 the traffic constable of the 5th Company at the east gate, Private Seliger received the following information unasked for from the Serbian gendarme Hacinovic Milorad who was on duty with him:

He had come into contact with Communists in the neighborhood of Valjevo and had heard that the HQ and leaders of the food supply for the bands was located in the school building and the neighboring buildings in Pricevic. Kitchen and vehicles were sheltered there completely hidden from view of planes. Also air raid trenches had been dug. Their bread was baked in Pecka. Another HQs was located in Susica.

Equipment and clothes as well as weapons captured at Krupanj were utilized by the bandits. Usually they wore a Soviet star on their cap. Wagons with rubber tired wheels drawn by former troop horses brought up the bread. The prieses of Krupanj and of Pricevic as well as a former Serbian Reserve officer (Narednik?) were the leaders of the movement. The front towards Valjevo followed a line from the blasted stone bridge shortly behind Valjevo on the road to Osacina, where troops had already been fired on from machine gun nests hidden on the slopes on both sides of the road, over the heights south of Valjevo to the site of the blasting on the road to Uzice, then along the heights south of Kolubara and to the east along to Mionica and Music. In the latter places were the command posts for the destructions on the railway line Valjevo - Lajkovac. A school teacher was the Commander.

This is an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Franz Boehme, dated 27 September 1941 and it relates to the concentration camp Jarak:

The Jarak Concentration Camp is to be transferred by the 342nd Division to the 64th Police Reserve Battalion, which has assumed direct liaison. With the transfer, guarding and further construction in the camp, guarding by the police, as well as jurisprudence over the inmates are transferred to the commander of Serbia (and/or Chief of the Military Administration directly.).

As far as a juridical interrogation of individual inmates allows important information for the conduct of war to be expected a military court martial proceedings will be ordered by the plenipotentiary commanding general in Serbia from case to case. For this the Oberkriegsgerichtarat with the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia is to maintain direct liaison with the Commanding Officer of the concentration camp. Orders concerning interrogations by the troop in prisoner assembly points are to be issued through Ic.

The procuring and furnishing of rations to the concentration camp is to be carried out by the 342nd Division. Troop rations are to be provided for guard personnel and inmates.

Allocations:

- a) For guard personnel: Full troop ration,
- b) For inmates: Half troop ration (in any case only 200 grams of bread, and weekly 200 grams of meat).

The preparation of the food is an affair of the camp commander. The Commander Serbia is to report to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

- a) The strength on the first, 10th and 20th of the month.
- b) Current special events and any commitments or new installations of concentration camps.

(signed) For the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia: Chief of the General Staff:

These are various activity reports of the 704 Infantry Division. Report of 22 September 1941.

At 1:05 o'clock we saw troops of the 125th Infantry Regiment (as I heard later from some of the officers, their home was Saarbruecken; they were not attached to any division, independent commitment in order to "clear up matters". All branches of arms are represented.

While waiting I talked with officers of the 125th Infantry Regiment; one of them had his left arm in a sling - he had been wounded the day before in fighting with the Communists. The regiment had casualties of dead and wounded. Communists are being caught daily and shot to death immediately - for instance, 12 in one day.

On page 125 of the English, the report of 704th Infantry Division continues. It is on page 96 of the German. This document is very revealing on how the Germans knew who a Communist was.

"Dragoljub Dragojlovic, Judge from Valjevo, Duzanova 41, reports as follows regarding an incident of 25 Sept. 41:

My brother Zivan Dragojlovic, 29 years of age from Radjevo Selo, 3,5 kilometers North of Valjevo, together with his uncle Radovan Dragojlovic was carrying bricks on their ox cart. Machine gun fire could be heard from the 300 meters distant forest belonging to family Dragojlovic. My younger brother Duzan Dragojlovic 19 years of age was just carrying nuts through the court yard into the room where the prune drying ovens stood. German soldiers entered the court, aimed their rifles on Duzan and called him 'Communist', he answered 'no communist'. Duzan who knows a few words of German called 'My brother, my house!' Thereupon the soldiers asked for the identification paper. Both showed their identification papers in addition, Zivan showed his prisoner identification. Then, the soldiers searched all buildings and only found a saddle which was my property. The soldier asked whether it was a soldier's saddle. Duzan answered: "My brother is an officer, Sudja from Valjevo." Thereupon, both brothers were handcuffed and led 300 meters down the country road. There they met the above mentioned Radovan Dragojlovic and his brother Andrija Dragojlovic, both of them had been arrested by other soldiers. Zivan carried the saddle. An interpreter standing near Radovan asked him who owned the saddle. Zivan answered in Serbian that the saddle belonged to the reserve officer Dragoljub Dragojlovic. Question: 'Where is the horse?' 'By order of the German Wehrmacht the horse was turned in.' The interpreter said that you don't have to be afraid. You only have to come to Valjevo for an interrogation. Radovan and Andrejia were to remain there.

"They were asked what they were being there. Answer: 'Together with Zivan, we were carrying bricks for a building.' The soldiers themselves saw that the bricks and the sand were there.

Androjia and Radovan is whose house nothing had been found, now could go home. Zivan and Duzan were taken in the direction of Valjevo, They only went as far as 400 meters.

Krstivoj Dragojlovic, also from Radjevo Selo reports that a group of German soldiers which had just arrived on the spot had brought along in manacles the son of Krstivoj, named Peter, 19 years of age and 2 nephews of Mihajela, 21 years old and Milan 18 years old. The three last named were put together with Zivan and Duzan, one spoke German, no one knows what was said. All five were led off the road to the front of the stable of Krstivoj about 200 meters away. A machine gun was in position, all five were shot to death, the stable was burned down.

The five belonged to a wealthy esteemed family, up to now, no one in the entire village has joined the Communists. All directives and orders of the German authorities have been fulfilled minutely. My reputation as judge is endangered in the fact of the entire populace, since it is assumed that my brothers were shot to death for Communist activities.

This gives Dr. Pantic a new means of propaganda."

The next page, page 127 of the English and page 98 of the German, is a report dated 3 October 1941, stamped "received" by the Infantry Regiment 724 on the 4th of October 1941. The document itself is a report on the Jaeger Kommando of the 2nd October 1941. The document itself will reveal how fiercely the war in Serbia was fought...The enemy fought fiercely, but note the indiscriminate way in which the Germans retaliated. The Commander is Lt. Voelker. "Strength:--" I think we do not need to read that, Your Honors. "The Mission", I think we can read into the record, "Reported were five fuming vehicles of a convoy coming from Belgrade about 25 kilometers outside of Kragujevac on the road Topola-Kragujevac. Some of the men dead beside the vehicles. Stragglers are to be guarded, the dead to be collected and the bandits to be found and annihilated. Departure: 14.30 hours with 2 passenger cars, 7 trucks, 4 motor cycles.

Return: 21.45 Hours. Course of Events, Success:

About two kilometers in front of the locality of the attack, a straggler of the convoy which had been attacked jumps into the road and gives a report on the course of the attack. All troops are scattered, some people killed, some fled East of the road in the direction of Kragujevac. At the place of attack five vehicles were found some of which were still on fire.

In the ditch next to them—dead: one officer, one Oberwachtmeister (Master Sergeant) and 5 men – parts of their equipment stolen. Security troops distributed immediately. The house on the ridge was set afire. Search Commando divided in strength of 2½ groups. The terrain was searched for stragglers and dead in a circumference of 1½ to two kilometers. East of the road behind the ridge, a low Oak forest and underbrush which is very difficult to enter due to creepers. In several places there were holes resembling nests. Nothing to be seen of the bandits. West of the road a gorge with thick deciduous forest and a rivulet with steep grades. Near this gorge, a heavily wounded man was found, who was dressed only in trousers and no boots. According to his statement a group of about 15 men some of which were wounded was driven by the bandits down into the bed of the rivulet and had been shot to death later beneath a white house which is visible from the road. After searching 25 more minutes we reached a little lea. a basin-like hollow with 14 dead German soldiers. All of them were more or less undressed. All boots, all tunics, almost all overcoats and all steel helmets except one are missing. Some of them even have been robbed of their linen and their trousers. A small heap of ashes shows that they burned all papers which seemed to be without value to them including some pay books, drivers licenses. Some of the corpses had been mutilated, skulls were bashed in, feet were cut to pieces, and faces were cut to pieces. The house situated 100 meters above this place was burned, the corpses were brought to the vehicles by Serbs arrested on my orders. The The Serbs were arrested as hostages.

When the column stopped, 19 farmers vehicles suddenly were behind our column, For security and to protect ourselves against surprise, the drivers had to be arrested. After withdrawing the guards and security troops, I had all Serbs except three minors shot to death. The column returned to Kragujevac without being fired on.

Loot: None.

Experiences; See other side!

Experiences: The position of the dead and the reports of the wounded men lead to the conclusion that the men of the convoy limited themselves to defensive measures. This caused the bandits to scatter them into smaller units and they were forced to surrender after having been driven into the bed of the rivulet. The only possibility to come out victorious (in a skirmish with) a numerically superior gang of bandits is the attack and the greatest possible fire attack. The fact that the corpses have been robbed of all their clothing proves that the enemy tries under all circumstances to acquire possession of German uniforms.

The distances of the vehicles in the attack convoy were normal and correct. The rest of the missing including a first lieutenant have apparently escaped; because further traces of blood could not be found." signed: Voelker, Lt.

THE PRESIDENT: Before you proceed further, it is now 4:25. The Tribunal has some matters which are personal to themselves which require their attention; and therefore the Tribunal will adjourn at this time. We will adjourn until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal 5. Military Tribunal 5 is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal. There will be order in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: Marshal, will you ascertain if all defendants are present in the courtroom?

THE MARSHAL: May it please Your Honors, all defendants are present in the courtroom.

The persons in the courtroom will be seated.

DR. SAUTER: Mr. President, Honorable Judges, before we start the session this morning, I would like to ask you to let me make a personal declaration here. I am Dr. Sauter, for the defendants Lanz and von Geitner. I am not talking for the defendants but for myself as defense counsel. Mr. President, for months now we have waged battle which really seems ridiculous, but it is very important to us and it deals with the following. For a few months now it has been arranged that we defense counsels, when we leave and enter the courthouse, our possessions are searched; we are bodily searched. Repeatedly we have protested against this because, in our opinion, this does not comply with our station and with our manners. As spokesman for the defense, I have repeatedly had negotiations with several military and civilian authorities, and President Beals of Case No. 1, with whom I worked as defense counsel for the last month, has repeatedly tried to alter this situation. He did not succeed. We have been told repeatedly that this bodily search was done for security, police reasons, and we could have well understood that. However, we have been searched, as a rule, when we left the house -- that is, at a time and in a situation where reasons of security and police reasons could not really have mattered. As spokes man for the defense, I have then repeatedly tried to ascertain the real reasons why we are being thus controlled, and other people have told us again and again that a lot of things were stolen in the house and, therefore, also the defense counsels too, as well as everybody else, had to be searched.

Once we were told a driving belt was stolen and we were all searched as though we had swiped the driving belt. And at another time in the room of an American $18.00 was stolen during the day and consequently all German defense counsels were searched at the exit by the sentry as though they maybe had the $18.00. The manner of the search is that which really offends us -- insults us and which makes the execution of our job very hard to us and makes our life in the Nuernberg trials seem rather low. This search is carried out in this way. The sentry, often in a very tactless manner, searches through our pockets - the outer pockets; if one wears a coat, one has to take the coat off or open it and the guard puts his hands into the inner pockets of our coat. He puts his hands into the trouser pockets, and it happened to me repeatedly that a guard turned up my trousers right up above the knee to ascertain whether maybe I had anything hidden under my underpants. The competent authorities here have repeatedly tried to alter this situation, especially after I had pointed out - that is repeatedly - that this bodily search is carried out in an impossible manner, in front of everybody present. I myself have experienced cases where 100 or 200 civilians were gathered in front of the exit and watched as one or the other of the defense counsel was searched in this undignified manner. Then we were given a stamp on our passes - courthouse passes. This stamp was supposed to relieve us of this bodily investigation. It was well-meant, but the guards did not pay any attention to that at all. The guards just said that won't do and continued to search in an even more insulting and offending manner. The only thing that we actually achieved was that I myself as spokesman for the defense was two or three times called so that I was in the presence of Mr. Wartena and he was present to avoid the worst circumstances. President Beals received the consent that such searches should only take place in special circumstances against defense counsels and only in closed rooms, so that one would not be let down in front of the whole public.

That was carried out just once and then only half. Like a herd of cattle we were ushered into a cellar room and there we were searched again in the presence of hundreds of other civilians. The worst form happened last night. Last night with several of my colleagues I was in the adjoining school house where we have a mess and where we take our meals. When last night, with several of my colleagues, I left the house at the entrance, that is in the street right by the court, there was a Baltic guard. He knows us and he didn't say anything. In the street were two American soldiers. That is, in the street right on the sidewalk. One stepped up to me and without saying a word held me on both my sides and reached into my trouser pockets and went on to turn up my trousers.

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt? As I understood this, it happened outside the courthouse, outside the Palace of Justice. This last incident happened outside the Palace of Justice?

DR. SAUTER: Will you repeat, please?

THE PRESIDENT: This last incident happened outside the Palace of Justice?

DR. SAUTER: This case last night took place outside of the courthouse in an adjoining building of the courthouse where there is an American unit quartered - billeted. That is, quarters for American soldiers. And we were assigned these rooms for taking our meals, sir, but everything else which I described up to now happened in the entrance of the courthouse, the Palace of Justice. May I add something quite shortly? I then told the American soldier, since I didn't know whether he was a post, a guard, or whether he was just walking around the street and took special pleasure in it to insult a German defense counsel, I told this man that was forbidden. I went up to the Baltic post, who had a gun, and opened my briefcase and showed it to him so that he could convince himself that there was nothing in it except documents. He convinced himself and was prepared to let me go.

At that very moment the American soldier grabbed my jacket and started to shout – I don't know what – and dragged me, as though I were under arrest, up to the third floor. There he dragged me into a room, still holding my jacket, and let me stand there. In the room there were three sergeants who were just there playing cards. After about ten minutes one of them, one of these sergeants, asked what I wanted. I told him I didn't want anything, but I had to stay for another period and then a soldier came and took me down again to the ground floor and let me stand there. I then approached the German kitchen people and asked them whatever was the matter. And one of these kitchen people told me, "Well, there's a lieutenant over there who has ordered that everything has to be searched because so much was stolen in the kitchen and on other floors."

These are the facts of the case, Honorable Judges, I would like to submit to you, and...

And I would like to say in this connection that I do not feel that I am in the position to undergo any longer such an undignified treatment by American authorities in addition if that takes place in full view of the public. When I was searched yesterday, there were about twenty to thirty civilians standing around in the street who all watched when the Post searched me, how I had to hold up my hands and stand there while he searched around in my pockets.

Honorable Judges, when about a year-and-a-half ago I was asked by American officers to take over a defense post here, I was assured then that I would be under the protection under the American courts under all circumstances.

The International Military Tribunal has also repeatedly declared in session that we German defense counsel here had all claims to the protection of the Tribunal and when the Tribunal was not sitting any more then were entitled to protection by the control court in Berlin. Honorable Judges, I have to request you that you on your part protect us against such encroachments. I don't believe that there will be anybody in the United States who would approve of such a treatment of German counsels who have to function in your courts, and help you in forming such judgment.

DR. LATERNSE: Mr. President, just very shortly I would like to add this, that to me, that is, in public, in front of the building where any amount of people could watch, something similar happened to me. I had in full view of the public to hold up my hands and I was badly searched at this time; in the closest neighborhood there were at least thirty persons. There were about twenty to twenty-five adolescents who were very pleased, apparently, over this exhibition.

THE PRESIDENT: Speaking on behalf of this Tribunal, I wish to state to counsel for the defense that the proceedings and incidents which have related to this court do not in any manner meet with the approval of this Tribunal. The men who have been asked to serve as defense counsel apparently have been accepted as men of character, men of standing in their profession, and men whose integrity cannot be questioned.

We who are privileged to serve in a judicial capacity in the United States take a professional statement from counsel as being a correct statement and one upon which a court can depend. It is only after we find that a counsel has made an incorrect statement or an untrue statement to the court that we ever question a counsel.

On behalf of this Tribunal, I wish to state again that incidents of this character do not meet with the approval of this Tribunal, and I trust that counsel will not feel that these incidents are indicative of the attitude of the American people, generally, or of the American government. Incidents of this character are apparently the result of some individuals. I feel I should make this further statement, that this Fifth Tribunal has just been organized and has just started in the trial of this case. We have not been here in Nurnberg very long. We do not wish to be too officious in our attitude towards these matters or toward matters concerning the administration of the Palace of Justice too promptly, at least, but I can assure counsel for the defense that I shall take this matter up with the presiding judges of the other Tribunals and I personally will make a very sincere effort to see that incidents of this character do not happen again.

It is to be regretted that counsel for the defense are not placed not accepted in the same manner as counsel for the prosecution or the court. The court is not subjected to those indignities and I personally and I believe I speak for the members of this Tribunal when I say that there is no reason why the defense counsel should be subjected to it. It is to be regretted. We shall endeavor to see what can be done to correct it.

You may proceed with the further matters on behalf of the prosecution.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If the Tribunal please, I should like to recapitulate very briefly the events of yesterday. The prosecution introduced -

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me just a minute. Earlier in these proceedings we were advised that there would be submitted to this Tribunal and to counsel for the defendants a summary of each day's proceedings as presented by the prosecution. Has that been prepared for the proceedings as presented by the prosecution. Has that been prepared for the preceding days?

MR. DENNEY: I believe, your Honor is referring to the documents which have been submitted?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, sir.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, your Honor, I have them. I have copies here. It is being stenciled now and I will give counsel for the defense one copy and the court a copy and the stencils should be up this morning within the next hour, and then I will be able to distribute stencils to all of the counsel for defense and a stencil copy for each one of your Honors.

THE PRESIDENT: That is all right.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors will recall that yesterday we introduced the request of Field Marshal List to OKW Headquarters in Berlin for unified command in Serbia under General Franz Boehme. We also introduced the Hitler order giving Field Marshal List full powers to suppress the insurrection movement in Serbia and authorizing the appointment of General Boehme and then we saw the List order which actually appointed General Boehme to be List's Plenipotentiary in suppressing the insurgent movement in Serbia. "We introduced several reports from subordinate units to 12th Army Headquarters, showing the execution of reprisal measures at ratios of ten to one to a hundred to one for each German soldier killed, before the issuance of the Keitel order of 16 September 1941 which was an OKW directive authorizing the execution of reprisal measures at ratios varying from fifty to hundred to one for each German soldier killed.

Before the court adjourned yesterday, we were reading from activity reports of the 704th Infantry Division which was subordinate to General Bader who was in turn subordinate to General Boehme who again in turn was Field Marshal List's representative in Serbia, We were on page 129 of the English document book, page 99 of the German document book, and I was reading from NOKW 1043 which was prosecution's Exhibit No. 67.

This is a report of the 724th Infantry Regiment dated 8 October 1941. It is a report on the commitment of a Jagerkommando on the 4th of October 1941. The strength of employment is listed and the mission of the unit, its departure and its return. Then under paragraph 5 of the document which is on page 130 of the English and on page 100 of the German, paragraph 3: Course of Events. I believe these next six lines were mistakenly omitted from the German document book. I will read the English text which is in the English document book and the interpreter will be able to translate these first six lines into German for the German defense counsel.

We have to pause a moment, your Honors, until the Secretary General gets the original document.

THE PRESIDENT: Let me supplement the statement that I made earlier following the comments made by defense counsel. This Tribunal desires counsel to know that they stand before this court on the same basis as counsel for the prosecution and I trust that we will by our actions and our demeanor show to you that you are accepted on that same basis.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors, we have another copy of the document in question which we are now submitting to the interpreters to read the six lines question.

5. Course of events:.....

On 4.10.41, 0200 hours, I left Aragujevac in the direction of Kraljevo with three groups of the battalion. At the city limits of Kragujevac I met the detachment led by Lt. Sickel which two hours previously had encountered enemy machine gun fire about two kilometers further on the road to Kraljevo and which had turned back. In the vicinity of the place on which Sickel's detachment had been attacked, I met a Jagdkommando of the II./749 which likewise consisted of three groups and like myself had been assigned to search the terrain for dispersed and wounded men and then to advance to the railway tunnel leading along the way from Kragujevac to Kraljevo and which was located about 11 kilometers from Kragujevac. Together with this Jagdkommando, I drove beyond the place of attack on which a derelict truck of Sickel detachment was standing, about 3 to 4 kilometers in the direction of Kraljevo until we hit the road block. After having removed the road block which consisted of a stone wall situated in oblique position to the road, we continued about 500 meters. There a ditch ran across the street about 3 to 4 meters broad and 1 meter deep which had not been quite finished. At this spot we left the vehicles in the protection of two groups and we walked ahead along side of the road. After an additional 500 meters we ran across a second similar ditch behind which some men were moving. After we opened fire these men took to flight. After that we searched some houses situated West of the road which had been abandoned by their residents with the exception of one man, he was taken to Kragujevac and hanged. Two houses were set on fire, two Serbs who were within these houses were shot to death and the truck which had been left there was towed away. The truck showed many bullet holes on the sides. About 0700 hours, I returned to Kragujevac with my Jagdkommando.

3/Infantry Regiment, 1 Officer, 4 Non-commissioned Officers, 36 men.

Mission: Search of the woods and of the houses situated to the right of the road Kragujevac - Kraljevo.

Course of events: The houses north of the hayloft were searched for weapons and the woods combed through up to the Northern edge about 1.5 kilometers. No persons could be arrested since the residents had fled before our arrival. I issued an order to burn the abandoned houses (about 12 of them). Some of them I did not have burned down since the high voltage current Kragujevac-Kraljevo leads about these.

None (signed) Jost 1st Lt. The next portion of the same exhibit which begins on page 132 of the English and on page 101 of the German is a report from Higher Headquarters for Special Corps 65, General Bader, Tactical Unit and it goes to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia.

It is dated 10 October 1941 and it reads as follows:

Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia The Commanding General of Higher Headquarters for Special Missions LXV had sent me to Topola on Wednesday 8.10.

41 to have Captain Fiedler Commander of III. Company 749 Regiment account the fact he did not carry out the order: to burn down the village of Gr. Milanovac, to seize hostages and to bring them back.

Captain Fiedler gave me the following explanation:

He had entered Gr. Milanovac on 5.10.41 about 17.30 hours and 120 hostages had been seized immediately. At sundown this mission had been carried out. Among these hostages there had been a Chetnik courier who stated during his interrogation that he had the order to report on that day to the local Chetnik leader. He had been unable to do so because this leader had not arrived as yet but probably would arrive on the following day. He, Captain Fiedler, was of the opinion he would be able with the help of this Chetnik courier and of the expected Chetnik leader whom he hoped to capture to ascertain where the Landesschuetzen Company was and then be able to effect their exchange against a corresponding number of hostages. He believed this to be the primary aim of his mission. Furthermore, he thought it would be senseless to burn down this village immediately on the same evening, because this would immediately destroy any hope of an exchange of the Landesschuetzen. He believed that it would have been absolutely all right to carry out that part of his mission on the following day in case the exchange would have been rejected.

On the morning of the following day, he received the surprising order to march off the the direction of Rudnik at 6 o'clock in the morning. The radiogram did not contain any reason for this. However, during the night, his radio station had monitored an S.O.S. from the direction of Rudnik. Consequently he believed that a detachment near Rudnik was in difficulties and that the order to go there was in connection with that. He clearly realized that it now had become his most important task to provide help for the detachment Rudnik and that the order to burn down the village would have to take second place. This assumption had been reinforced by the consideration that after having brought help to Rudnik, he no doubt would return via Gr. Milanovac. As such time he would be able to carry out the order to burn down the village even if the exchange of prisoners should at that time prove impossible. The hope to achieve that aim was a dim one however, particularly if the skirmishes around.

Rudnik doubtlessly had involved the band which was in Gr. Milanovac too. He was now faced with the question of how to dispose of the hostages. He realized that the march on Rudnik would be difficult and would be impossible without fighting. He knew that road blocks would have to be removed. If he took the hostages along guarding them would have decreased his combat strength. They would only be an impediment. Because of these considerations, he had sent a radio message as to what should be done with the hostages now. He did not receive an answer.

As a result of these considerations, he decided to release the hostages as he was convinced that he could seize them again on his march back via Gr. Milanovac. Then he could take them to his point of departure and thus carry out, the orders he had received.

It has been established that the radio mentioned was actually transmitted but it was addressed to his regiment was was stationed in Kraljevo instead of to his division. The regiment could not estimate the situation and consequently did not answer. If the radio message had been sent to the division, he would have received pertinent orders. I told Captain Fiedler that one could understand his considerations regarding the exchange of prisoners, the burning down of the village, and the carrying out of this part of the order on his march back. Captain Fiedler could not know that it was intended to send him toward the Norht, without touching Gr. Milanovac again. In my opinion, this is an excuse for his behavior and for his omission to burn down the village before marching off. He could easily think that great speed was indicated in order to assist a detachment which had gotten into trouble near Rudnik.

However I told him that I could not understand his considerations regarding the taking along of hostages. If obstruction would have to be removed during the march, hostages would have been the obvious labor forces, would have served as a means of sparing the strength of his own men. Furthermore according to general opinion, taking along a greater number of manacled hostages who were distributed through the march column represented the best protection against attacks.

Hence I could not see any valid reason for his failure to carry out the order. Personally, Captain Fiedler makes a thoroughly soldierly impression, he wears the Iron Cross 1st Class, of World War I. He is Oberstudiendirektor (College Instructor) by profession. He was thoroughly aghast at my reproaches and told me that he not activated by any sentimentality. He was generally reproached for being too hard and ruthless against the residents of Kragujevac. He had tried to carry out his order as well as possible. He remarked on the fact that it was very difficult for him to co-ordinate the short radio message ordering him to march on without any reason or explanation with his mission he had received up to now. He had been completely under the impression that highest speed was required and he had behaved accordingly in order not to delay his advance and not to impede it in any way.

Continuing on page 135 of the English and 103 of the German we have the distribution by General Bader as Commander of the 65th Corps Command to his subordinate unit, the 704 Infantry Division of the well known 100 to one retaliation order. It is dated 13 October 1941:

"In the future 100 prisoners or hostages are to be shot to death for every soldier killed in action or murdered, and for each wounded man 50. For this purpose as many Communists, Nationalists, Democrats and Jews are to be arrested from each garrison area as one can be guarded without imperiling combat strength. Certified True Copy. Unteroffizer."

This is a distribution to subordinate units in Serbia of the titled directive of the 16 September 1941.

DR. LATERNSE: The deduction which the prosecutor draws from this order is not correct if one looks at the original. The original shows quite clearly that this order was merely sent to the 704 Infantry Division

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I was under the impression that all I had stated was that Higher Headquarters of the 65th Corps had distributed an order to the 704 Infantry Division subordinate to it for the execution of the 100 prisoners for each German soldier killed and for the execution of 50 prisoners or hostages for each German ' soldier wounded. I think you will be able to see in one or two documents later that the text is the same as the Keiter order of 16 September 1941.

DR. LATERNSE: I have to object even against these comments. The prosecutor should not assert this. He should prove it.

THE PRESIDENT: I think the prosecutor should limit his remarks to that which is shown by the evidence and to await making any deductions from these documents until his argument.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, Your Honor.

Now, prosecution Document NOKW-1341 which becomes prosecution exhibit 68. It is on page 137 of the English and page 105 of the German. This is the notification by the Armed Forces Commander Southeast to Task Forces Rosenberg of the Wehrmacht on economic and disciplinary matters to Commander Southeast who at this time was the defendant Felmy.

The document is dated 2 October 1941 and it has the receipt stamp of the 12th Army dated 3 October 1941.

"Effective 1 October 1941, Detachment Rosenberg is assigned for rations and quarters and for discipline to Commander South Greece. Lt Ritter von Ingram, the leader of the Detachment, is to make contact immediately with the Staff of the Commander Southern Greece. (signed) Foertsch. for Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, The Chief of the General Staff."

The Prosecution's next document is NOKW-458 which becomes prosecution Exhibit 69. It is on page 139 of the German and page 106 -- rather, page 138 of the English and page 106 of the German.

This is a directive of Field Marshal Keitel at OKW Headquarters in Berlin dated 28 September 1941. It is to OKH and to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. There were five copies distributed of which this is the second.

"Subject: Taking of Hostages.

"Because of the attacks on members of the Wehrmacht which have taken place lately in the occupied territories it is pointed- out that it is opportune for the military commanders to have always at their disposal a number of hostages of the different political persuasions:

that is, "1) Nationalists "2) Democratic Middle-Class and "3) Communists "It is of importance that among these are leading personalities or members of their families.

Their names are to be published. In case of an attack hostage of the group corresponding to that to which the culprit belongs are to be shot. It is requested that commanders be informed in this sense.

"(Signed) The Chief of the High Command of the Wehrmacht Keitel."

The second page of the document, on page 140 of the English and 107 of the German, shows the distribution of the Keitel directive by the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. The distribution is to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, the Commander of Salonika Aegea, and the Commander of Southern Greece.

"Enclosed copy for further action in accordance with the political situation prevailing in the area. Please report action taken.

"For the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the Chief of the General Staff Foertsch."

Our next document is NOKW-203, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit No . 70, in an order of Field Marshal List dated 4 October to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Bader.

"The male population of the territories to be mopped up of bandits, is to be handled according to the following points of view:

"Men who take part in combat are to be judged by court martial.

"Men in the insurgent territories who were not encountered in battle, are to be examined and -

"If a former participation in combat can be proven of them to be judged by courts martial.

"If they are only suspected of having taken part in combat, of having offered the bandits support of any sort, or of having acted against the Wehrmacht in any way, to be held in a special collecting camp.

They are to serve as hostages in the event that bandits appear, or anything against the Wehrmacht is undertaken in the territory mopped up or in their home localities, and in such cases they are to be shot.

"All other unsuspecting men are to be led under guard into their home towns. In the most simple form they are to be obliged to offer the bandits no support of any kind and not to undertake anything against the Wehrmacht. The mayors of the individual localities who are to be replaced, circumstances permitting, must testify as to the local residence of the individual.

"Men foreign to the region are to be held in the collective camps. The localities are to be searched for weapons first.

"This regulation is to be made known to all the men named under paragraph 2. It is to be explained to them furthermore that the most severe measures of punishment will be used without further investigation against localities. above all against the male population of such localities in which or in the proximity of which bandits appear, bandits are supported, surprise attacks take place, sabotage acts take place or anything is undertaken against the Wehrmacht.

"It is to be explained to them further that similar treatment will be meted out to the male population of localities and to localities themselves from which men join the bandits, surprise attacks and sabotage acts are practiced, or anything is undertaken against the Wehrmacht.

"Signed in the draft: List, General Field Marshal."

The next document is on page 143 of the English and page 110 of the German, Document NOKW-262 which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 71. This is an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. General Boehme, dated 6 October 1941 and it relates to the erection of a concentration at Zasaviza. The order is distributed to the Commander Serbia, Chief of Military Administration to the 65th Corps under General Bader and to the 342 nd Infantry Division.

 - 2.) In the proximity of the locality Grn-Zasaviza a camp sufficient for holding some 30,000 prisoners is to be created first of all in the open air, so that the transfer of the inmates in Sabac can take place by 20 October. In the course of further construction the locality is to be included into the same camp for winter quarters.

Organization Tedt is to supply the necessary technical personnel for leadership and construction in agreement with the chief of the military administration. The building equipment necessary for the construction will be furnished. Wood for construction is to be hewn on the spot. Herewith the aspects of the terrain are to be improved at the same time.
- 4.) The 342nd Inf. Div. is to evacuate the terrain between the south border of Mitrovica and the isthmus 1 km. Ne of Bavnje of the entire population by 8 Oct. The economic evacuation of this territory is to be carried on urgently. The population to be evacuated is to be distributed among the localities lying south of Zasaviza.

In addition four hundred workers (carpenters, cabinet makers, smiths, etc.) capable of working are to be brought to Zasaviza from the inmates of the Sabac concentration camp by the 342nd Inf. Div.

The 342nd Police Patrol is to be employed for guard-4 ing the Zasaviza Concentration Camp. It is intended to let the Sabac camp remain further as a reception camp. Taking over by Dulag 183 is being considered."

I think we need not read the rest of the document at this time. It is signed: "For the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, The Chief of the General Staff Pemsel."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The next document is No. 3138, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 72, on page 146 of the English and page 112 of the German. The document consists of extracts from the secret report issued by the Chief of the Security Police and SD in Berlin on 6 October 1941.

Most of the events involved concern the Union of Soviet Republics but there is an excerpt which relates to Serbia. The first page of the document simply lists the number and type of attacks which have occurred in Germany against the German Wehrmacht.

"Enemy losses: 10074 dead, including 742 killed in the fighting during mopping up in the Save bend; prisoners, including the fighting in course of mopping up in the Save bend, 7280; 15 wounded. During mopping up in the Save bend an additional 190 men were shot by firing squads. Through executions approved by the Military Commander in Serbia, 150 were shot in Belgrade, 34 at Cuprija, and 14 at Uikinda (Banat). In Belgrade three police agents were shot and one poisoned. In course of screening of sections of the Vity 171 persons were arrested.

"Serbia.

"Telephone line sabotage at Belgrade; Danube traffic temporarily interrupted by bands at Gradiste.

"Mopping up in the Save bend proceeds according to plan. Near Lajkovac, northeast of Valjevo, an infantry regiment shot twelve insurgents.

DR. LATERNSEER: There is a mistake in the translation which changes the meaning, which I would like to correct. In the German text on the document, on page 113, towards the middle of the page, it reads:

"Mopping up in the Save bend, 190 were summarily shot."

The translation which has just been read will read, "...were shot by firing squads" does not seem to have the same meaning.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Perhaps we can have the interpreter read the sentence in question.

THE PRESIDENT: If that is agreeable with counsel, that procedure will be followed.

INTERPRETER: The translation should read:

"During mopping up operations in the Save bend an additional 190 men were shot summarily."

THE PRESIDENT: Will the interpreter refer to the page and line of it.

INTERPRETER: This sentence is on page 147 of the English, line 5, page 113 of the German towards the middle of the page. It was approximately the last but one sentence that Mr. Fenstermacher has read.

Shall I repeat the translation?

"During mopping up operations in the Save bend an additional 190 men were shot summarily."

DR. LATERNSEER: I do not know whether this expression just hits the meaning. What does "summarily" mean? Does that mean "standrechtlich"? "Standrechtlich" means according to court martial procedure.

THE PRESIDENT: The Court will keep in mind the fact that there is some question as to the translation of this particular phrase and counsel may be sure that we will have in mind that there is some question as to the translation of this particular phrase.

DR. LATERNSEER: But the discrepancies can be quite important, Mr. President, since, when it says here "standrechtlich", that means "according to court martial".

INTERPRETER: Dr. Laternseer wants it translated "standing court". There is no such word as "standing court". "Standrechtlich" is "court martial".

MR. FENSTERMACHER: In accordance with the reading of the document, page 147 in the English and 113 in the German:

"Through executions approved by the Military Commander in Serbia, 150 were shot in Belgrade, 34 in Cuprija, and 14 at Uikinda (Banat). In Belgrade three police agents were shot and one poisoned. In course of screening sections of the city 171 persons were arrested."

I think we need not read the rest of the document at this time.

The next document appears on page 149 of the English, page 115 of the German. It is Document NOKW 1388, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 73. This is an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to subordinate units dated 7 October 1941, and it is particularly important because of the insignia references which are made.

The first page of the document simply gives the distribution list of the order, but on page 150 of the English and on page 115 of the German is this:

"In this area units of Cetniks and groups of partisans have appeared.

"a) Organization and strength:

"Cetniks: Fourteen companies, one machine gun company, one death platoon leader: Captain Racic. Strength about 1,000 to 1,500 men. Armament: rifles and machine guns. Insignia: Yugoslav eagle or "P".

"Partisans: Strength uncertain (1,000 to 4,000 men?) It is certain that there are four Macava and five Cer companies. The armament is not as good as that of Cetniks. The leader is the former teacher, Kebosja Jarkovic. Some are identified by red insignia."

In the next document, beginning on page 151 of the English, page 117 of the German, Document No. NQKW 1129, offered as Prosecution Exhibit 74. This is an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Boehme, dated 6 October 1941, and it prohibits negotiations by his subordinate units with the partisan enemy.

"Subject: Negotiations with Insurgents.

"On 29 September 41 a local defense company in Grn. Milanovac was attacked by insurgents; after a short skirmish the former was captured en masse and led off into the mountains.

"On 4 October 41 a guard commando of the Field Ordnance Battalion 1 and 18 with a strength of four NCO's and forty men was also captured by the insurgents, after an only short skirmish without any losses of our own.

"In both cases the same circumstance was responsible for the out come which was very unworthy of a German soldier.

On our side the very serious mistake was made of negotiating with the insurgents. In both instances the troops let themselves be deceived by the promise of an "honorable withdrawal", instead of defending themselves to the last cartridge.

"On the basis of these events I order the following:

"1) No negotiations are to be held with the insurgents.

"3) Parlamentaires of the insurgents do not enjoy the protection which is due to parlementaires of a regular troops. In case negotiators appear before the opening of a combat action, they are to be arrested and sentenced by summary court martial as franc-tireurs. If negotiators appear during or after a skirmish, they are to be fired upon immediately.

"The Corps Command LXV and the Commander in Serbia are to see to it that this order is made known to all subordinate troop units and offices in the shortest time."

The distribution list is given.

The next document, page 154, Document No. NOKW 263, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 75. This is a ten day report dated 9 October 1941 of the 347th Infantry Division to higher headquarters, the Plenipotentiary Commander in Serbia. It is dated Belgrade.

"During the period from 24.9. to 9.10 at 1600 hours the enemy suffered the following losses:

"88 killed in action.

"1127 executed.

"17,420 prisoners.

"During the same period the following cattle was brought in as booty:

"1205 head of cattle.

"940 hogs.

"of which "952 head of cattle "1811 sheep "809 pigs "were shipped to Belgrade by rail."

Signed: "For Divisional HQ. The 2nd General Staff Officer, Schuler, Captain."

The prosecution's next document is on page 156 of the English, page 120 of the German, Document NOKW-71, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit 76, an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Boehme, dated 9 October 1941, and it relates to the operation of military courts in the suppression of the uprising in Serbia.

"The suppression of the uprising in Serbia must be performed ruthlessly. Above all it has to be carried out by purely military means. Insofar as cooperation of the Military Courts appears to be required, it has to conform to the following principles:

"1) Only the most severe penalties promise a penetrating impact on the population. The death penalty is therefore generally essential in all cases of sabotage, acts of espionage and attempts to join a foreign army. Also in cases of illegal possession of arms at present the death penalty is the only adequate atonement.

"2) The judicial procedures are to be executed quickly and impressively. The execution, especially of death sentences, has to be carried through immediately.

"3) The troop sentences according to martial law insofar as the military situation permits such procedure, those persons who participate in combat personally, i.e. by direct assistance of any other support. The steps taken are to be reported to the competent chief of court.

"5) In cases when persons who generally are to be sent to collecting camps, are suspected of participation in the combat, its preparation or support, particularly of insubordination against the German Wehrmacht, its orders or against organs acting on behalf of German Domestic offices, the following procedure has to be observed:

"a) if proof can be furnished for the participation in the military action or its support, the prisoners are, after effective Contact has been established between the camp commanders and the court of the military commander for Serbia, to be sent to court action.

"b) In all other cases they shall serve as hostages in the event that in the cleaned up territory or in their home localities any action is taken against the German army or administration.

"signed: Boehme "General of the Infantry"

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The final Prosecution document in Document Book II is on Page 158 of the English and Page 122 of the German. It is Document No. NOKW-1386; which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 77. This is an extract from the War Diary of the 704th Infantry Division, dated 9 October 1941, and it relates to the occupation of Monica by a band of two hundred men in uniform. It reads as follows: "Valjevo: Illrd Battalion 125th Infantry Regiment conducts reconnaissance with one company from Divci to Mionica. Monica is occupied by a band of 200 men in uniforms. Enemy losses: 12 dead. Own losses none."

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our morning recess at this time.

(Recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: The prosecution may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, during the recess. I have placed on each of your Honor's desks a mimeographed copy of the list of the exhibits in document book I by document number, by exhibit number. The reference to the counts to which each exhibit has been offered, and the reference to the defendants against whom these exhibits have been offered. There has also been distributed to each of the defense counsel a copy of this and at this time -- I don't think it is necessary to read it into the record but I have given the Secretary General a copy of it. The interpreters have a copy and the stenographers and I suggest that it be marked Exhibit 78 in the record if that meets with your Honors' approval.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, Mr. Denney. This refers to Document Book I only?

MR. DENNEY: Only to Document Book I, yes, Your Honor. It is a list of the exhibits numbered I to XXXVIII which are contained in that document book which have been received in evidence only. There is not there included one which has been marked for identification nor two others, one of which was passed and the other of which, if your Honors recall, was out of place and at the time the book was offered it was requested that the Tribunal disregard that one page.

THE PRESIDENT: In marking this as Exhibit 78, it is not to be considered as an exhibit but merely as explanatory?

MR. DENNEY: For the purposes of identification, yes, Your Honor. Perhaps it would be more convenient for your Honors if we, when we present those -- this idea just occurred -- if we mark this 38-A, which is the exhibit right after the last exhibit in the book.

THE PRESIDENT: I believe that would be better.

MR. DENNEY: And then if we did that in every case, it would be clear both for defense counsel and for the court and for anyone reading the record, so if we change this from 78 to 38-A and hereafter we will follow that procedure, when those are offered, we will give them an "A" number which follows the last exhibit in the book to which it refers, and of course as your Honor has stated this is only being received for purposes of identifying the offer of the evidence as against the defendants and as to counts.

If your Honors please, we turn now to the early days of October in the Southeast, particularly Serbia. As Mr. Fenstermacher indicated this morning, we have seen the deceased Boehme placed as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia in addition to his duties with the XVIII the Corps at the request of the defendant List in September of 1941. The first document in Book III, which is at page one of that book, and also page one of the German is NOKW-192 which we offer as Exhibit 78.

This is a copy of an order by General Boehme which was issued on 4 October 1941 to the Chief of the Military Administration, the Commander of Serbia of 342nd Infantry Division and a Corps Signal Battalion.

DR. LATERNER: Your honors, I object to the submission of this document because it is not signed.

Actually it is only a typewritten sheet of paper which has been photostated.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors will see as we proceed with the presentation of this matter to show that this order was issued again. It is necessary to state that we only can photostat what we find. This is the only copy of this order which we were able to get. The further proof will show that the order was passed down.

THE PRESIDENT: The court is conscious of the fact that this apparently is a copy but as has been indicated in previous rulings it will be taken for such probative value as the court may deem it is entitled to and if it is connected with other matters then the court can give such additional consideration to it as the court may deem proper. Objection will be over-ruled.

MR. DENNEY: 21 Soldiers were tortured to death in a bestial manner on the 2nd of October in a surprise attack on units of the signal regiment between Belgrade and Obrenovac. As reprisal and retaliation 100 Serbian prisoners are to be shot at once for each murdered German soldier. The Chief of the Military Administration is requested to pick out 2100 inmates in the concentration camps Sabac in Belgrade (primarily Jews and Communists) and to fix place and time as well as burial place. The shooting details are to be formed from the 342nd Division (for the Sabac concentration camp) and from the 449th Corps Signal Battalion (for the Belgrade concentration camp). They are to be furnished by the chief of the military administration through the Plenipotentiary Commanding General of Serbia.

The Chief of the Military Administration is requested to order the camp leaders to inform the prisoners of the reason for the shooting.

Returning to page 3 of the English document Book and page 2 of the German Document Book we have NOKW 1211 which we offer as Prosecution Exhibit 79 in evidence.

This, again, is a photostatic copy of an unsigned document and we are interested only in the part which appears under No. 3. It is a report from the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast dated 9 October 1941.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, I must also protest against this document. This is another typewritten sheet of paper.

MR. DENNEY: What applies to this applies to the previous document and it can be connected up later even as will the one Exhibit No. 78.

THE PRESIDENT: The court understands that these documents and this document in particular is one of many which were obtained at the close of the war and is a document which was eventually found in the effects of the Army. It will be taken for what value the court may consider it as an unsigned document.

MR. DENNEY: Paragraph 3 which is all we are concerned with here states:

"Execution by shooting of about 2000 Communists and Jews in reprisal for 22 murdered of the Second Battalion of the 521st Army Signal Communication Regiment in progress."

Then turning to page 4 in the English Book and page 3 in the German Book we come to Document NOKW 497 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 80. If the Clerk would show this to the court I think Your Honors will be able to see the connection between this and the previous document. Excuse me, please, the Secretary-General. The first photostated page is dated 20 October 1941 and is a communication from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Senior Signal Officer, Serbia, and is signed For the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, the deceased Boehme, by Pemsel, Chief of the General Staff. The document refers to a report of the second battalion 521st Signal. The word "Battalion" is here; it should be "Regiment" and Your Honors will recall that in the previous document, No. 79) that unit is mentioned. The subject of the report is Reprisals for 22 fallen members of the 2nd Battalion, 521st Signal - and again that should be Regiment instead of Battalion "It is requested that a final report concerning the execution of the reprisal measures be presented:

That the 2nd Battalion, 521st Signal Regiment, be ordered to submit reports only through channels.

For the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

The Chief of the General Staff: (signed) Pemsel."

And, if Your Honors will note on the bottom there is a faint stamp indicating that it was received by the Military Commander Serbia and have entries for Diary Number and when they were entered in the Diary.

Then turning over to the second page this is part of the first page in the exhibit and just completes the bottom part below the stamp where it says, in the original.

(pencilled note) 21 October In the original To the Plenipotentiary Commanding General of Serbia Belgrad handed back after acknowledgment 17729.

9 and then there is another rubber stamp which says For the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia The Chief of the Administrative Staff and some handwritten initials which are illegible.

Then turning to the next page of the document, page 6 in the English, page 4 in the German, we see a report from a Major and Battalion Commander of the Second Battalion, 521st Signal Regiment. This is dated 15 October 1941, five days prior to the date contained on the previous document and is explanatory in part so far as that document is concerned. The subject of this communication from the Commanding officer of the Second Battalion of the 521st Signal Regiment is: Surprise attacks of Communist Bandits on Members of the Battalion, There is a big stamp on the right of the photostat which indicates that it was received by the XVIIIth Corps on the 15th of October; the 18th Corps was also commanded by Boehme who was also Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

In addition, the distribution list 12th Army, the defendant List, the two positions held by Boehme are next listed, the Commander of Serbia, the IXVth Corps, and the Senior Signal Officers to whom the report of communication of 20 October signed for Boehme by his Chief of Staff was directed. This is a report from the Battalion Commander which recites an enclosure which we will come to in a moment.

The battalion represents as a supplement to the reports about Communist bandit surprise attack, a report concerning the shootings of Jews, which have been carried out.

Further shootings could not be carried out by the battalion, since an allocation of men was impossible on account of their being utilized for re-establishment of the telephone lines from Sabac to Loznica.

The Pongruber corps Signal Battalion was charged by Col. Wurster with the carrying out of further executions.

Then the supplement which is enclosed starts on the next page which is page 5 of the German and page 7 of the English. This is dated 13 October 1941 and is a report by a Lieutenant Liepe which is signed. He appears to have been the Lieutenant who was company Commander of the unit that carried out the executions. The report is headed:

Concerning the shooting of Jews on 9 and 10 October 1941.

1. Mission: On 8 October 1941, the shooting of 2,200 Jews, who were in the camp at Belgrade, was ordered.
2. Leadership and Participation: First Lieutenant Liepe and Comrades of field units 26557 and 06175, of which two officers and twenty men were killed, 16 were missing, and three were wounded.

3. Medical Care and Oberarzt Dr. Gasser, field Unit 39107 Mission: and Corporal Bente, MD, of Unit 26557.
4. Transport and Vehicles: Transport and guard of the prisoners furnished by the participating units. Vehicles were allocated by the motor pool of the Belgrade administrative sub-area Has. The transport of the soldiers taking part was furnished by army trucks.
5. Place of Action: 9 October 1941 - forest about 12 km. east of Kobin. 11 October 1941 - in the vicinity of the Belgrade shooting range, on the road to Nis.
6. Security and Concealment: Took place in close agreement with the command: security police in Belgrade and Pancevo.
7. Film and Pictures: "S" Propaganda Company.
8. Supervision: First Lieutenant Liepe, 2nd Lieutenant Vibrans, 2nd Lt. Luestraeten, SS-Oberscharfuehrer Enge, of the Security Police Belgrade.

"Execution" -- this is on page 7 of the German -- "after basic exploration of the place and preparation, the first shooting took place on 9 October 1941.

"The prisoners were picked up with their emergency baggage from the camp in Belgrade at 0530 hours. Through issuing of spades and other working tools a working party was simulated. Each truck was guarded only by three men so that from the strength of the guard no suspicion should arise concerning the true action.

"The transport took place without difficulties of any sort. The mood of the prisoners during the period of the transport and preparation was good. They were happy about the removal from the camp, since their accommodation there was allegedly not according to their desires. The prisoners were occupied eight km from the place of shooting and brought up later as required. The place was covered sufficiently as regards the preparation as well as the shooting. The shooting took place with rifles at a distance of 12 meters. Five shots were ordered for the shooting of each prisoner. In addition the doctor was allowed two shots which had to cause death by shots in the head according to instruction of the doctor.

"Articles of value and superfluous things were removed under supervision and were later sent to the Nazi People's Welfare and/ or the Security Police in Belgrade. The attitude of the prisoners at the shooting was calm. Two people tried to flee and were accordingly shot at once. Some expressed their feelings, in that they brought another hail to Stalin and Russia. 180 men were shot on 9 October 1941.

"The shooting was finished at 1830 hours. There were no special events worth mentioning. The units returned to their quarters satisfied. The second shooting could not take place until 11 October 1941 on account of construction work on the Danube ferry. As a result of the construction work the next shooting had to take place in the vicinity of Belgrade. For this, exploration of a new place was necessary and demanded a double precaution.

"The next shooting took place on 11 October 1941 in the vicinity of the shooting range. It went according to plan. 269 men were shot. No prisoner escaped in either shooting and the unit had no special events and occurrences to report. A platoon of the unit of major Pon-gruber under command of 2nd Lt. Hau was employed for strengthening the security. Altogether 449 men were shot on the 9th and 11th of October 1941 by the units named. Unfortunately, an additional shooting by the units named had to be stopped on account of commitment and a transfer of the mission to the unit Pongruber resulted."

This is signed: "Liepe, 1st Lieutenant and Company Commander."

The report is thorough in its detail. I should like to call your Honors' attention to the fact that the Army and the SS were participating in the supervision, as is shown on page 7 of the English, in the source of the persons to be executed in the concentration camps and it suggests that this ties back to Exhibit No. 78, the unsigned copy of the order of Boehme to the Chief of the Chief of the Military Administration dated 4 October.

The next document, on page 11 of the English and page 9 of the German, is NO-3156 which again is a report from the Chief of the Security Police and SD in Berlin. The portion of this document which we are using is very short and I would appreciate it if the Secretary General would pass the exhibit to the Court so that they may see the manner in which reports of this sort have been furnished to defense counsel.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you identify it by exhibit number?

MR. DENNEY: It is offered as Exhibit No. 81, if your Honors, please.

THE PRESIDENT: And the German page number?

MR. DENNEY: The German page number is No. 9. We are only using a very brief part of this document from pages 1 and 2.

This report is dated 9 October 1941 which is prior to the date of the report of Lieutenant Liepe and, of course, prior to the date of the letter of the Major commanding the 521st--or the 2nd Battalion of the 521st Signal Regiment and as such the details carried here cannot be as they were in those later documents because your Honors will recall that the executions took place, the first on the 9th, and the second on the 11th, of October; and they were in Serbia and this is from Berlin.

The report:

"Political Review. Foreign Countries. Serbia:

"The Chief of the Einstazgruppe of the Security Police and the SD in Belgrade reports. Mopping-up by the German Wehrmacht in the area of Sabac has resulted up to now in the arrest of 22,000 male persons. These are housed in a temporary camp and are at present being screened by a Detachment of the Security Police with the assistance of the Belgrade Police.

"In reprisal for the 21 German soldiers shot to death near Topola a few days ago 2,100 Jews and Gypsies are being executed. The execution is carried out by the German Wehrmacht. The task of the Security Police is merely to make available the required number. 805 Jews and Gypsies are taken from the camp in Sabac, the rest from the Jewish transit camp Belgrade.

"Collecting camps are installed by the German Wehrmacht in the Save river bend near Mitrovica for the persons arrested in the course of the mopping-up action by the Wehrmacht and also for other arrestees. This camp is being constructed by Organisation Todt. It will have an immediate capacity of 50,000 persons, and can be enlarged to hold 500,000 persons. The camp is constructed like the German concentration camps. The direction of the camp is in the hands of the Linsatzgruppe of the Security Police and of the SD."

Of course, at that time, on the 9th, when the executions were just taking place, the Linsatzgruppe --or, rather, the Security Police and the SD in Berlin -- had no way knowing the numbers who would actually be reported by Lieutenant Liepe in this later report.

The next document is 3404 which we offer as Exhibit 82 and this is the report of a day later to the Chief of the Security Police and the SD in Berlin, dated 20 October 1941.

This again is a substantial report but we are only using a few pages of it. It appears on page 11 in the German document book, page 13 in the English document book. It is offered as Exhibit 82 in evidence.

There first is a report on page 1 on the band situation and shows attacks against German units and installations, post and telegraph offices, railroad stations and installations, etc., and then on the next page it tests the enemy losses and both in prisoners taken, people wounded and people killed.

The first entry on the top of page 14, which is page 12 in the German, recites the use of artillery for the first time by the insurgents. It also contains the note that the insurgents were well armed; and then comes a paragraph which has to do with compulsory recruitment by the insurgents in their area with which we are not concerned; and then at the bottom of the page appears No. "2) Arrests," and there is a recital for the period of this report, "101 persons were arrested mostly for Communistic activity; 12 of the persons arrested have already been convicted and shot to death. Investigations are under way to continue gathering information concerning the communist organisation. The assignment of a reliable interpreter guarantees supervision of the work of the Serbian Special Police (Communist Section). A special detachment has been assigned to the screening of the prisoner's camp in Sabac which had been organized by the Wehrmacht, Total number of prisoners approximately 22,000. Screened up to now, about 8,000; up to now 910 by the Wehrmacht.

"To prevent acts of sabotage a special detachment (Sonderkommando) has been assigned to the Engineer Battalion stationed at the Iron Bridge;" and I don't think we need to read the next four paragraphs.

At the bottom of the page they recite: "420 foreigners screened in Belgrade," and then that two German soldiers had been attached in Belgrade, both of them heavily wounded and as a reprisal measure there were killed a total of 200 Communists and Jews shot to death; and then they again refer to the matter which we have under discussion, the 2100 reprisal killings:

"In reprisal for 21 dead German Wehrmacht Soldiers, 2100 Jews from the Jewish Camp were made available for execution by order of Corps Headquarters 18."

If your Honors, please, as the decreased is Boehme and it is submitted that the copy of the order which is offered as Exhibit 78 which directs in its terms that the Chief of the Military Administration through the Plenitentiary Commanding General -- excuse me -- that the shooting details will be formed and that they are to be furnished by the Chief of the Military Administration through the Plenitentiary Commanding General of Serbia. This refers back to Corps Headquarters 18 which is the same as the Plenitentiary Commanding General of Serbia so far as the persons occupying the positions are concerned.

"The Wehrmacht is carrying out the execution. The seizure of all male Jews in Belgrade and their transfer to a camp completed. Preparations for the Belgrade Jewish Ghettos are completed. After the liquidation of all remaining male Jews as already ordered by Commander Serbia, the Ghetto will receive about ten thousand Jewish women and children."

And then there is a recital that "Arrests prevented the intended flight of a group of 12 wealthy Jews, a great number of valuables and considerable amounts of money were secured. The intermediary who had procured forged Croatian papers for 86,000 Dinars was also arrested. The escape was to be made by Wehrmacht trucks."

Then there is one note at the bottom of page 16, on page 14 of the German, with reference to Greece. "Armed found in the area of Seloniki. Three Greeks shot to death, 12 houses burned."

Next we have the report of 21 October 1941 again from Berlin; Chief of the Security Police and the SD, and with reference again to Serbia.

"The Chief of the Operational Group (EINSATZGRUPPE) of the Security Police and SD in Belgrade reports:" This is document NOKW 3482 and is offered as Exhibit 82. That appears in the English text on page 18 and page 15 in the German.

"The report of the Chief of the Operational Group of the Security Police and S.D. b) Special Events:

"On 14 October 1941 the Insurgent attack on the town of Kraljevo commenced and; with brief interruptions, continued for almost 3 days. For the first time, the Insurgents also employed artillery in the fighting for the town, and on 17 October, for instance, the town received over 100 artillery shells."

I would direct Your Honor's attention to the name of this town, Kraljevo, because there are separate reprisal killings that are intertwined through the next separate documents and this Kraljevo one will appear shortly and I would just like to call Your Honor's attention to that name at this time.

Then under the title "Own Activities" -- that is the activities of the Einsatzgruppe -

Special Events:

After ruthless action by the troops was bound to fail up to the time of the employment of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia because of the lack of corresponding clear orders, Lt. General Boehme's order, according to which 100 Serbs will be executed for every soldier killed and 50 for every soldier wounded, has established a completely clear-cut line for action. On the strength of this order, for instance, 2200 Serbs and Jews were shot in reply to an attack on a convoy near Topola, during which 22 members of the Wehrmacht perished, while in return for the soldiers killed in the fighting for Kraljevo so far 1736 inhabitants and 19 Communist women from Kraljevo have been executed.

If Your Honors will total the figures 1736 and 19, it will be seen that it comes to the figure 1755 which figure we shall find in somewhat later reports, but I would just like to call Your Honors' attention to that figure in connection with the town of Kraljevo, and again, above, there is the recital of the 2200 Serbs and Jews shot near Topola.

"However, it still appears necessary finally to open the eyes of the Serbian people, through corresponding propaganda, to the unpredictable consequences which will result from the ruthless execution of this order.

"It has also been shown again during the week covered in the report that for the speedy and complete suppression of the insurrection the combat troops available are not yet sufficient. Terrain difficulties which arise everywhere require the continual employment of major units if a lasting success is to be obtained, since the insurgents only rarely give battle and total destruction is always possible only through complete encirclement. This fact is also recognized by competent military authorities, and it can be expected that additional troops will soon be employed in Serbia.

Summing up, it can be said that the slight improvement in the entire situation which occurred during the week covered in the report must in no way lead to exaggerated optimism. Until now it has only been possible to destroy small bands, while the large bands in part already completely organized on military lines, are still in the terrain. Only after dispersing and completely destroying them may a decisive improvement in the situation be expected.

Then the last entry, a note with reference to Greece on page 18 of the German and page 21 of the English, still reading from Exhibit No. 83, the report from the Einsatzgruppe to Berlin and released by Berlin on 21 October, 1941? "Greece: At the Strymon Estuary 2 villages were burned down which were found guilty of having supported bands. All male inhabitants (202) were shot. In course of the fire, ammunition, partly also explosive charges, blew up in every house."

Then turning to page 22 in the English, page 19 in the German, Document NOKW-560, which is offered as prosecution's exhibit 84 in the evidence, this is an order of General Boehme of 19 October and I would appreciate the Secretary General handing it to the Tribunal because this copy is signed by his chief of staff in order that they might see the signature on the photostat.

I would also direct Your Honors' attention to the material just below the heavy line which was typed under the words "In Serbia" in the upper left-hand corner where it says ABT. Qu. NR and then the number NO 301/14--that is the order number which is given and we will have occasion at a later time to refer back to this number and if Your Honors will note on the photostat it appears that the "O" was written in. Apparently it was originally mistyped. The "1" may still be seen under the "O" and to the left of the final "1" before the slash. This is from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia by his chief of staff to the LXV Corps, the Belgrade Guard Regiment, and for the information of the Commander Serbia.

It recites the order above named which appears under reference 2848/41. "In execution of the order named in above reference, 2200 arrested Serbs will be shot for 10 killed and 24 wounded German soldiers (members of the troop units besieged in Valjevo)."

This is still another order with reference to reprisal killings. We have had the one from Belgrade with reference to the concentration camp inmates, Belgrade and Sabac. We have had reference to Kraljevo and now we see for the first time the term Valjevo and if Your Honors will see that the number 2200, it is submitted, is computed on the 100 to one and 50 to one ratio. A hundred to one for the ten killed would be 1,000 and fifty to one for the 24 wounded would be 1200 and that adds up to 2200, the number which is indicated in the order.

"The execution of 1600 arrestees is to be carried out by the Belgrade Guard Regiment. The date and place of executions, the picking up and/or delivery of those arrested, as well as more exact details are to be agreed upon directly with the Pleni. CG in Serbia (Commander Serbia - Admin. Staff). Report of completion to Pleni. CG in Serbia."

That, of course, is Boehme. And it is signed for him by his chief of staff Pemsel.

On page 20 of the German and page 23 of the English, we come to Document NOKW 1362, which is offered as prosecution's exhibit 85 in evidence. This is a part from the war diary of the LXV Corps which was commanded by General Bader which was in Serbia and which by the order of Field Marshall List in September of 1941 was subordinated to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Boehme, who was sent there by Field Marshall List, and Boehme of course was under List. The Court might be interested in seeing the cover page of this war diary. I would request that the Secretary General hand it to them because in the writing itself it shows the chief to which this Corps Commander looked.

For the dates on the second line or the third up from the bottom--the dates June 10, 1941 to 20, 1941, they were under the Second Army, Armeeoberkommando II and then from 21 June 1941 until 19-9-41 they were under Armeeoberkommando 12. 19-9 means September 19. Then from the 20th of September until the third of March, 1942, they were under the Plenipotentiary Commanding General for Serbia.

MR. DENNEY: And there is a note below which shows that General Boehme held this position until the 3rd of December 1941, and also that he had the 18th Army Corps. The initials out to the right following the Roman numerals XVIII, and then below that, that Bader took over as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia on the 4th of December 1941 and remained so until the 3rd of March 1942. The excerpts with which we are here concerned begin with the 17th of October 1941, and therefore place the Corps under the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. Became. There is a note for 17 October, "From the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia: Arrest of all relatives of Insurgents." Then, on the 18th of October there is a report from the 717th Infantry Division, a division which is part of the LXV Corps, "In return for losses incurred on 15 October so far 1736 men and 19 Communist women shot." Now, we referred in the earlier document, that is the report from the Chief of Security Police and SD, which was exhibit 83, Page 16 in the German and Page 19 in the English, to the numbers 1736 inhabitants and 19 Communist women, which recites Kraljevo, and it is

Now, you will note that there three divisions in this corps, and we have the report on an earlier page for the 717th Division; therefore, this present report, an order to report deaths for the period 11 to 19 October, is not made to the 717th, but only to the 704th and 718th. And then we have had the reference in the Boehme report to the 1600 arrestees who were to be executed by the Belgrade guard regiment, in Document NOKW-560, Page 19 of the German and Page 22 of the English, which is Exhibit No. 84 in evidence. And now in this report of the LXV Corps, Document No. NOKW-1326, Exhibit 85, we see a report from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Corps, ordering, "Retaliation measures, 1600 from Valjevo to be shot by 734th Infantry Regiment in return for 16 killed and 24 wounded." Then, dropping down to the entry of the 28 of October 1941, the Corps Diary recites that they received, "From the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia through LXV Corps Command to 704th Division, 718th Division, 220th Anti-Tank Battalion, and Guard Regiment, Registration No. 1026-41 secret. Arrest and shooting of hostages has to be carried out according to plan and according the point of view."

And then there is the handwritten note which appears below that, "The order to shoot hostages, No. 926/41 secret, paragraph 3, is materially curtailed through the directive by the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia." This is under date of October 28th. We will have an occasion to refer to that at a later time. On October 29, still in the same Exhibit 85, Page 21 of the German and Page 26 of the English, a report from the "220th Anti-Tank Battalion the LXV Corps Command to be forwarded to XVIIIth Infantry Corps: 50 hostages shot in retaliation for one wounded." And then again the XVIIIth Infantry Corps and the Plenipotentiary Commanding General Serbia are the same people. And then there is a recital that the 714th Infantry Division through the LXV Corps Command to the XVIII Infantry Corps, "Division requests reconnaissance plane and dive-bomber support for attack on band camp 500 men strong in the vicinity of Neresnica (30 km Southwest of Vr. Milanovac)."

And then 30 October "Enemy Artillery firing at a water tower and a school in Kraljevo." And then a report, "From a Guard Regiment 734 to LXV Corps Command, registration No. 1048/secret: Retaliation measures: Guard Regiment reports 101 persons shot. From Plenipotentiary General in Serbia to Corps Command. Wehrmacht Commander Southeast agrees with plans of Plenipotentiary Commanding General about employment of troops. The Organization of units subordinate to LXVth Corps Command can be carried out." And then, "From 610th Administrative Sub Area HQs to Corps Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia: Report on Retaliations at Kragujevac." And then a directive to the 704th and the 717th to report, and this bears out the earlier contention, because here they now ask the 717th to report from the 20th to the 31st, which, if Your Honors recall, they did not ask them to report for the period up to the 20th, because it was submitted that they had already sent their report. And this explains the failure to include the 717th at that time. Now the note at the bottom of the page, which is Page 27 of the English and Page 22 in the German, the "LXV Corps Command to Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. An apparently expedient proposal by the 704th Infantry Division, concerning the question of hostages is presented to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. In this it is suggested to detain arrested hostages from all sections of the population, only for a certain time, so that as large a section of the population as possible will be seized." Here we see a suggestion going up from a division commander through Corps to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, with reference to changing the procedure so far as the time the hostages are being held is concerned. I don't believe we need to take any more of that order.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, just a minute. If I may interrupt, Mr. Denney, perhaps this would be an opportune time and place to adjourn. May I inquire of Dr. Laternser, representing the defense counsel, whether the arrangement for a noon lunch has worked out satisfactorily?

DR. LATERNSER: Yes, thank you, Your Honor; there is sufficient time.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. We will adjourn until 1330 (The Tribunal recessed until 1330)

MR. DENNEY: If it please Your Honors, just before luncheon we were discussing the reprisal measures, the first of which was in Belgrade, with reference to the concentration Sabac in Belgrade, then the one with reference to Kraljevo, and the one with reference to Yaljevo, and then the one with reference to Kragujevac. Those towns all appear on maps A and B in the pamphlet which was submitted to the Tribunal as was the town of Topolje, which was mentioned in the earliest incident, and the town of Obrenovac is to the left of Belgrade on the small dotted line just east of the town of Skela.

Continuing now with the Document NOKW 906, which is on page 24 in the German and page 29 in the English, it is offered as Exhibit 86. This, again, is a captured document with no signature on it. However, on the original there appears the rubber stamp of "704th Infantry Division" with the date 31 October 1941 on it.

If Your Honors will look at the original--

Will the Secretary General kindly hand the original photostat to the Court--

At the top of the document--

THE PRESIDENT: May I inquire, Mr. Denney, which page on the English document?

MR. DENNEY: 29, Your Honor, Document Book 3. Does Your Honor have it?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, sir.

On the photostat of the copy which we have the date at the upper right hand corner, which is typed, is 28 September 1941. It is submitted that that is obviously an error, because the first of the stamps of the 704th Infantry Division which recites 31 October, the lower stamp which is also a 704th Infantry Division stamp, which recites 1 November, and the contents of the letter itself, Your Honors can see in the first paragraph, the second paragraph, the first line of the German, that it recites the date 27/10/1941, and obviously a report could not be made on 28 Sept 1941 of events which occurred on the 27th of October 1941, and the reference which has been made at prior times to the affixation of these stamps of higher headquarters shows that it is a short time, normally, between the date of the writing and the date of the stamping by the superior unit, and in this connection, too, the Court's attention is directed to the fact that this is a report from regiment to division and normally the proximity of regimental command posts to division command posts is much closer than that, say, between the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia and the Armed Forces Commander Southeast.

The reference here is the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia.

No. 3001 41, which Your Honors will recall was Exhibit 84, Document NOKW 560, which is a telegram from the defendant Boehme of 19 October, and that is submitted as a further reason that the date 28 September is improper, because on the 28th of September they could not have had a diary reference to 3001 41, which did not come from the headquarters of General Boehme until 19 October 1941, and the subject which is recited here is reprisal measures which, of course, is the subject that was under discussion in the Boehme order signed by his chief of staff 3001/41, dated 19 October. The contents of this report:

"Subject: Reprisal Measures.

"Pursuant to the above reference 2200 arrested Serbs are being shot to death for ten German soldiers killed in action and 24 wounded." And then they again recite, "(members of the unit encircled in Valjevo)".

"The execution is to be carried out by Guard Regiment Belgrade and 1600 arrestees."

The first 1600, if Your Honors recall, is also apparent in the war diary of the 65th Corps, NOKW 1362, which is Exhibit 85 in evidence, at page 24 of the English and page 21 of the German.

Then there is a recital of an order from Boehme with reference to retaliation measures. The figure "1600" is given from Valjevo to be shot by the 734th Infantry Regiment, the unit which is here recording, in return for 16 killed and 24 wounded, the only difference being that in the regimental report to division the number given as killed is 10, whereas in the report of the corps, of the order from its superior commander, passed on to its lower regiment, or its lower echelon, in this case division, who would in turn pass it to the 734th Regiment, the figure for killed is "16".

Then this report contains a further reference to executions:

"The regiment reports that 101 men of the arrestees were shot to death on 27 October 1941. Further executions by shooting will be carried out after more arrestees have been turned in. Reports thereon by the regiment will be reported in each case."

And it is submitted that the data at the top should be 28, but the month should be October instead of September.

Turning to page 25 in the German and page 31 in the English, Document NOKW-90, which is offered as Exhibit 87 in evidence, this is a report from the 724th Infantry Regiment to the 704th Infantry Division, the 724th being one of the other regiments in the division. The report which we have just seen, Exhibit 86, is a report from the 730th Infantry Regiment. This is dated 31 October 1941 and is from -- or rather the 724th Infantry Regiment to the division. The covering page bears the signature, illegible, of a captain and a regimental adjutant. It is stamped received by the 704th Infantry Division, 1 November 1941, and this covering letter states:

"Enclosed please find commitment report of the 1st Battalion of the 724th Infantry Regiment for the period 17 October to 25 October 1941."

And on page 25 of the German, page 32 of the English, still on Exhibit 87 in evidence on the 18th of October the 724th reports to its division that some railroad lines had been blasted and some track had been removed and thrown down the embankment and that 66 Communists and Jews who were contained in lists were arrested in the evening and sent to the captured material depot. Then it states:

Pursuant to order by the Division, the 9 dead and 6 wounded of the III Battalion of Infantry Regiment 749 must be avenged. Consequently, the capture and shooting to death of the corresponding number of the male population will be carried out during the period from 19 October to 21 October.

19 Octo. 41, they recite, the 1st Battalion of the 724th Infantry Regiment carries out the operation in Grosnica with the 3rd Company and 50 men are shot to death and the villages burned down. Ammunition was found in several places including the church steeple. III Battalion of the 739th has shot to death 182 men in Mackovac. Oct. 20, 1941.

About 3,200 men aged 16 to 50 from Kragujevac are being arrested This is page 26 in the German. In the evening the Communists and Jews arrested on 18 Oct. and 53 penal prisoners from the local prison of Kragujevac were shot to death behind the captured material depot.

And, if your Honors please, it is submitted that the Communists and Jews referred to are those who are recited in the entry of 18 October, the 66 in addition to the 53 penal prisoners.

The next page has the recital for 21 Oct. 41, 0700 hours in the morning, the selection and shooting to death of the arrestees starts. This concludes the operation. A total of 2,300 Serbs of various ages and professions have been shot to death. The next few days of course showed greatest unrest in the population. Consequently security measures are being carried out.

(Signature) Koenig Major and Battalion Commander, of the 274th Infantry Regiment, which in turn, is part of the 704th Infantry Div.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, Mr. Denney, the rain is coming in the windows on the defendants. Will you kindly call the attention of the counsel so they may be closed. They don't need to be closed until you find it necessary, They don't need to close them unless they want to.

MR. DENNEY: Now the next document is Nokw 557 which is Exhibit 88. It is at page 27 of the German document Book and page 34 in the English. This is a signed original and is an order from Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia Boehme dated 10 October 1941 and it has as its number 2848/41. Now in the subject it is to be noted that it speaks of "Putting down Communist insurgent movement. Supplements of the Plenipotentiary Command General in Serbie to 'The Chief of OKW, etc.' No. 00 2060/41 top secret of 16 September 1941" in which the 50 and 100 to one, actually it says, 100 Communists must be in general deemed appropriate retaliation for the life of a German soldier. This is a supplement to that order by Boehme.

1) In Serbia it is necessary, on the basis of the "Balkan mentality" and the great expansion .of insurgent movements both Communists and camouflaged as national to carry out the orders of the OKW in the most severe form. Speedy and ruthless suppression of the Serbian resistance is to consideration not to be underestimated for the German final victory.

2) In all commands in Serbia all Communists, male residents suspicious as such, all Jews, a certain number of nationalistic and demoratically inclined residents are to be arrested as hostages, by means of sudden actions. It is to be explained to these hostages and to the population that the hostages will be shot in case of attacks on Germans or on Volksdeutsche.

LXVth Corps and the Chief of the Mil Adm. (for Belgrade and Banat) are to report on the 10th, 20th and last of each month (for the time, on the 20th Oct.) the number of hostages. Turning to page 38 in the German and continuing on page 34 in the English:

3) If losses of German soldiers or Volksdeutsche occur, the territorial competent commanders up to the regiment commanders are to decree the shooting of arrestees according to the following quotas:

(a) For each killed or wounded German soldier or Volksdeutsche (men, women, or children) one hundred prisoners or hostages.

The shootings are to be carried out by the troops.

If possible, the execution is to be carried out by the part of the unit suffering the loss.

In each individual case of losses a statement is to be made in the daily reports, whether and to what extent the reprisal measure is carried out or when this will be finished.

4) In the burying of those shot, care is to be taken that no Serbian memorials arise, Placing of crosses on the graves, decorations, etc.

is to be prevented. Burials are accordingly to be carried out best in distant localities.

5) The Communists captured by the troops in combat actions are to be hanged or shot as a matter of principle at the location in question as a frightening measure.

6) Localities which have to be taken in combat, are to be burned down, as well as farms from which troops were shot at.

For Wehrmacht Cmdr. SD 1, Defendant List Germ.

Gen. in Zagreb 1 Reserve 2 This document is out of order in the book and I would like to call the attention of Your Honors to its date:

10 October 1941 the day between the first report we have of the killing with reference to the Sabac and Belgrad reference but clearly before the Valjevo, Kragjevo, and Krayujevac.

MR. DENNEY: Turning now to page 30 in the German, page 37 in the English -

DR. DEUTSCHE (Counsel for defendant Foertsch): I think when naming the quota, the ratio, for reprisal, there is an error in translation. The German document which I have before me, page 28 of the German document book, under 3A, it is written, "for every killed or murdered German soldier or Volksdeutsche there are 100 prisoner hostages to be shot." However, when the English text was being read I understood, "for every killed or wounded soldier the corresponding number of hostages or prisoners is to be shot."

JUDGE BURKE: I think the error came about from your using the word "wounded" in place of "murdered". The English volume is correct. The word "murdered" on the bottom of page 34 of the English translation in the last line.

THE PRESIDENT: Apparently, Mr. Denney misread the word. It was caught by the Court but we did not call your attention to it. It is fortunate that counsel did.

MR. DENNEY: I am sorry, Your Honor. The paragraph "a", the first line under "3" of NOKW-557, Exhibit 88 in evidence, should read: "for each killed or murdered German soldier or Volksdeutsche, men women or children, 100 prisoners or hostages." Thank you.

This next document 1208 which is page 30 in the German text and page 37 in the English is offered as Exhibit 89 in evidence and is a report to the 342nd Infantry Division -- or, rather, an order to the 342nd Infantry Division -- from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, dated 12 October 1941.

The first paragraph concerns itself with mopping up operations and gives the division orders to be at the southeastern slope of the Cer Mountains on the evening of the 15th of October.

The second paragraph says that: "concurrent with the mopping up of the mountains two reinforced battalions will advance by surprise without vehicles in the direction of Krupanj from Krivajica across elevation 450 to elevation 543 north of Krupanj, and from Mojko vic on the south ridge of the Likodra to elevation 432 southeast of Krupanj.

Krupanj is to be surrounded, everything met there will be shot, the village is to be burned down."

Then follows page 32 in the German and page 39 in the English, Document NOKW-454 which is offered as Exhibit 90 in evidence. This is a report from the High Command, the 65th Corps of General Bader to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, Boehme, dated the 12th of October, 1941, and recites activities of various so-called pursuit detachments for the period beginning in mid-August and continuing to the 5th of October.

This is offered. I won't attempt to read it but by looking at Your Honors can see the way the German forces were operating their units. They were split. It is submitted because they didn't have enough troops and you can see various battalion designations, pursuit detachments, artillery detachments, companies of infantry, motorized columns, pioneer -- excuse me -- engineer units, small tank detachments, artillery platoons; and the character of the opposition which they were meeting is set forth in the columns concerning operations; and the results of the various acts are listed in the last column.

I don't believe any more need be said about the document.

Turning now to page 40 of the German text, page 49 of the English document NOKW-1154, which is offered as Exhibit 91, this is a signed order by the Commanding General of the 342nd Infantry Division, one of the units which was part of the 18th Corps which was under Boehme. The order is dated 13 October 41 and is entitled: "Orders for the Division for the 14 and 15 October. Then it recites the "General Remarks" which I don't think are necessary to read but the "Instructions for Combat":

"All uniformed persons, furthermore all civilians in the intermediate area who may also be considered Insurgents, are to be shot to death. The male population of the villages is to be deported via Lesnica or Varna to Sabac. The villages south of the Cer mountain range are to be burned down as a reprisal measure. Of the villages north of the Cer mountain range, only Bela Reka and for the time being Petkovica are to spared.

For the rest the combat instructions issued by the Division are valid."

And then the note at the end, just before Major General Hingofer's signature: "Persons found without identification papers are to be removed to the concentration camp in Sabac."

Now, turning to page 41 in the German and 51 in the English, there is a teletype order from the 65th Corps to the 715th and 718th Infantry Divisions as well as to the 704th Infantry Division and I don't think we need to concern ourselves with the smaller unit numbers which appear.

The teletype is dated 12th of October and I believe there is an error on the German copy. It should be "12 October" on page 41 just after the word "Teletype" up at the top. I believe the date is wrong on the German translation.

"IN THE FUTURE ONE HUNDRED PRISONERS OR HOSTAGES ARE TO BE SHOT FOR EVERY SOLDIER KILLED OR MURDERED. FIFTY FOR EVERY WOUNDED. IN ADDITION TO THIS AS MANY COMMUNISTS NATIONALISTS DEMOCRATS AND JEWS ARE TO BE ARRESTED IN EACH LOCALITY AS CAN BE GUARDED WITHOUT CURTAILING THE COMBAT FORCES. REASON TO BE PUBLICLY ANNOUNCED TO THE ARRESTED AND THEIR FAMILIES EXECUTIONS AND ARRESTS TO BE PUBLISHED IN NEWSPAPERS." SIGNED 'CORPS' Signed by "IA of the 65th Corps."

This document is dated the 12th and can be compared with the contents of the Boehme order of the 10th, two days before. That the order got down to Division is clear from the fact that the 718th Infantry Division stamped it as being received on 13 October. In addition, there is also language which is reminiscent of the Keitel order of 28 September 1941 which is on page 138 in Document Book II, Exhibit 69 in evidence. Keitel mentions Communists, Democrats, Nationalists; he does not mention Jews in his order.

On Page 42 of the German, and Page 53 of the English, there is an order, NOK" which is offered as Exhibit 93. This is a signed Boehma order, and was sent to the units of the 65th Corps, 342nd Division, the 125th Infantry Regiment, and other headquarters and officers. The subject is, "The arrest of relatives of Franc-Tireurs" "In the course of the arresting of hostages, it is necessary to seize especially the relatives of the Franc-Tireurs.

Thereby, the liaison of the relatives to the Franc-Tireurs which is exploited many times for transmitting information is prevented.

The levying of these hostages includes the male relatives aged 15 and over, and the wives of the Franc-Tireurs. Those relatives are to be accommodated in the concentration camps. In case of German losses, the male relatives are to be shot according to the provisions of the order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General of Serbia No. 284811.

And that, if your Honors please, is the Boehma order of 10 October 1941, Exhibit 88 in evidence.

Subject: Arrest of relatives of Franc-Tireurs SECRET In the course of the arresting of hostages, it is necessary to seize especially the relatives of the Franc-Tireurs.

Thereby, the liaison of the relatives to the Franc-Tireurs which is exploited many times for transmitting information is prevented.

The levying of these hostages includes the male relatives aged 15 and over and the wives of the Franc-Tireurs. These relatives are to be accommodated in the concentration camps. In case of German losses, the male relatives are to be shot according to the provisions of the order "Plenipotentiary Commanding General 1 in Serbia No. 2848/41. Secret of 10 October 1941. "In garrisons, the senior members are responsible for the arrest; outside of these, the leaders in combat actions.

It may be of value to make use of Serbian offices which have already worked together with us up to now. This must nevertheless take place in such a manner that a warning of those concerned is out of the question.

Evidence from the card index of names of the SD special purposes unit provided the first clue. The LXVth corps is to place itself in direct liaison with the special purpose unit of the SD for this purpose. The 342nd Inf. Div. and the 125 Inf. Reg. are to receive evidence through the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. It is important that this evidence be handed to the unit in good time in connection with the cleaning-up operations.

Details of these families, from which men have gone "into the forest" are to be forced from the population especially from these senior in the locality." I would just like to draw the Court's attention to the fact that the co-operation between the LXV Corps and the SD and the other units is quoted here by Boehem. (pencilled notes) Pn (Signed) by Gen.

Mary E. Carter, 2120728 Warrant Officer, WAAF.

On page 43 of the German text, page 55, of the English text, we have Document W 1070, which is offered as Exhibit 94, in evidence. This is orders from the 342nd Infantry Division to lower units of the Division.

The orders are signed by General Hinghofer, the major general who commanded the Division. It is dated 13 October 1941. The first order is a radio message to the 698th Infantry Regiment.

"Shoot civilian prisoners as reprisal for German losses with indication of the reason".

and from the asterisks below, apparently it was on a radio message form, given over the telephone at 10:30 o'clock.

The next is a Division order for an action dated 13 October 1941, and recites a surprise attack against German troops in Krupanj by insurgents a few weeks before, and states that "the Division has the task of avenging this assault with all severity."

Then it recites the units which will be involved in the small task force which is going out to do this, and then gives the marching orders, and paragraph 3, the first sub-paragraph (a), being directions to the regiment, and paragraph (b) the only important part is the last two lines.

It say, at the bottom of page 43 of the German.

"All soldiers and civilians encountered on the way are to be shot".

Paragraph (f) appears at the top of page 44, in the German text "The village of Krupanj is to be surrounded, all men found there are to be shot, the village is to be burned.

German prisoners there are to be liberated."

I would just like to point out the fact that these people were taking prisoners, and apparently the Germans had reason to believe that they were alive, because they ordered their liberation.

The 5th paragraph is not important.

It is signed, "Hinghofer".

On the 15th of October to the 698th regiment, a communication from the 1 section, 342nd Infantry Division, "all taken prisoners are to be shot on the spot together with a repeated notification of the proclamation. The remaining population is to be gathered around during the action as far as possible."

Then a communication to the Infantry Regiment, 699, again from the 1 section, 342th Division 15 October 1941:

"All those captured in the Church at Prnjavor are to be shot, making the proclamation known beforehand. If possible, the rest of the population is to be gathered around during "this action."

Then we have a recital on 24th October with reference to Valjevo, "For a long time Valjevo has been threatened by the Communists and is partly surrounded. Exact position of the enemy is not known. German troops are in Valjevo."

Then, paragraph 4, orders to subordinate units. An Engineer Detachment, and we small combat groups to move on Valjevo on the 23 October 1941, and then artillery and armor instructions in paragraph 5: The advance detachment will march tomorrow without any vehicles at the spearhead of Group 698 to Biljeg (322). There it turns towards Southeast.

4) Continuation of march a.) Group 698th Engineer Detachment, Groups 699 and 697 continue tomorrow their march on Valjevo as on 23 October 1941. Vehicles and escort troops on the route itself. Escort troops as on 23 October 1941 on the bordering heights on both sides of the route and in the vehicle convoys.

It is important tomorrow to show lively fighting activity. Valjevo itself and the localities nearby, up to 4 km from the edge of the town are to be spared from fire. All other places, especially near roads, are to be submitted to harassing Artillery fire if there are no definite enemy targets.

In and near Valjevo no destructions:

a) The area outside of the 4 km Zone around Valjevo must be denied the enemy for use as quarters and supply area.

All village along the route of advance and in the area to be attacked are to be burned accordingly. The inhabitants will be spared in as far as they are not participants in the fighting, hide arms, or aid the enemy. It is signed, "Hinghofer".

Then comes, on page 46 of the German, page 61 of the English, Document NOKW 1205, Exhibit 95, in evidence, which is an order of General Ainghofer, or a communication from General Hinghofer to the commander of the 342nd Infantry Division, which is under Boehma, which he sends to his chief, as Plenipotentiary Commanding General, and the receipt stamp is for the 18 Corps Headquarters on 16 October.

The report states:

During the mopping up of insurgents - mainly Communists - in the Macva area by the division the male population between 14 and 70 years was brought into a concentration camp as ordered. By this measure the rear of the advancing forces was kept open and thereby their advance was materially facilitated.

In the majority the insurgents wear farmer's clothing. When they lay down their arms they can in no way be distinguished from the village inhabitants. Insurgents remaining with the population could have appeared in the rear of the troops if evacuation had not been carried out - at least they could have interfered noticeably with communications to the rear by surprise attacks. That, indeed, many insurgents stayed with the population is proved by the fact that 233 communists could immediately be taken out of the Concentration Camp in Sabac during the first days of the mopping up operation, who had been named as such and as participants in bandit fighting by their fellow prisoners; they were shot.

In the villages where mopping up operations had been completed the returning male population between 15 and 60 years which was not present during the mopping up operations was requested by means of the enclosed proclamation by the division to report at once to the Mayor's Office in their villages for disposal by the German Army. By this order it would have been possible to take care of the villages without difficulty with only a patrol service (page 2 of original) and to keep them free from insurgents who wish to return.

(handwritten: Because a large part of the population detained after police check) in Concentration Camps was released, the mopping up of the Cer Mountains became partly ineffective, because insurgents who had been forced out were able to mingle easily with the population, without being recognized, in the villages lying near the foot of the mountains to the North. In addition an effective control and supervision by the scanty units available for this purpose has been made extremely difficult.

As is evident from many reports, a number of insurgents not yet determined but certainly large, has returned again, partly armed, to their villages in the Macva. It is not to be expected that the other villagers, who were assumed to have peaceful intentions and were therefore again released from the Concentration Camp will denounce them, not only on account of national motives but - and primarily - out of fear of the insurgents' revenge. To find now these bandits who have returned is a task the accomplishment of which demands a major exertion of forces; but even then it is doubtful whether this task can be accomplished satisfactorily without a renewed complete evacuation of the male population concerned.

It is to be assumed with certainty that the Insurgent Movement in the Macva has been materially eased by the release of many people from the Concentration Camp and will spring up again after the departure of the Division into another area of employment.

MR. DENNEY: On Page 49 of the German and page 64 of the English is Document No. NOKW-1411, which is offered as the Prosecution's Exhibit 96. This is a statement by a subordinate unit-, to the 342nd Infantry Division, which contains the report on the execution of two Communists who were denounced by a third man. I don't think we need to read page 49 of the German, which is page 64 of the English. The account on page 65 of the English, which is page 50 of the German, the subject is "operation to Glusci", dated 16 October 1941, and is a report from 1st Lieutenant in 342nd Artillery Regiment, to the 342nd Infantry Division. ("I left.....Proske") Proske In the Field, 16 October 1941.

Operation to Glusci To the 342nd Infantry Division - Branch Ia "I left Sabac at 0330, arrived at Glusci at 0445.

Of the 4 Communists named in the enclosed Division Ic report Svetomir Olympic and the barber Milovan were able to be surprised and arrested in their houses. They were shot dead on the spot. Both of them stated that they had been with the Communists in the Cer Plania for several weeks and having returned to Glusci only a few days ago. The barber Milovan further stated that he had thrown his rifle and ammunition in a brook about 6 kilometers from Glusci. He was unable to give the name of the brook. The 2 other Communists could not be found. Family and neighbors stated that they had not been home for three weeks. In addition they stated that these two had been with the Communists for a long time and that they would report immediately if the showed up.

Dragomir Brkic is alleged to be in the prison camp in Mitrovica. His leader is said to be the teacher who is still in the Cer Plania.

Proske" And then on page 51 of the German, page 67 of the English, is a report from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, signed by Boehme, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

He has received a communication, which is 1561/41 top secret, which makes inquiry of Boehme. The subject is "hostages". This is dated 19 October 1941. In his reply to List he says, "To the order referred to above the following is reported", and, of course, he is referring to List's communication to him, "1.) With the Commanding General - Plenipotentiary in Serbia III/Chief Military Administration/ Qu No. 2848/41 secret dated 10.10. paragraph 2, the subordinate Hqs. authorities and troop units were ordered;" And then he sets out a portion of his order of 10 October, which has been received in evidence as Exhibit No. 88. He quotes only a short portion of the order, and, if Your Honors will recall, that order was also sent for information to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to Defendant List. This is nine days subsequent to the date of that order. Continuing with the quotation, "In all garrisons in Serbia, all communists, residents suspected of being communists, all Jews, a certain number of nationalists and democratic inhabitants are to be arrested as hostages by sudden operations. These hostages and the population are to be informed that in cases of attacks on German soldiers or Volksdeutsche, the hostages will be shot to death." And then he cites, "With the "Commanding General - Plenipotentiary in Serbia" Administrative Staff/Ic No. 9247/41 secret dated 14/10, it was further ordered that in order to stop the transmission of intelligence of the insurgents, the family members of the insurrectionists in particular are to be seized and this means the male relatives, as well as the wives of the insurgents.

However, for shootings to death only male relatives are to be considered.

3) For Belgrade, large scale arrests of leading personalities are in preparation. The names of leading personalities arrested and of reprisal measures carried out will be published by posters and dropping of leaflets."

MR. DENNEY: It is for the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, and is signed by his Chief of Staff, Pemsel. And, of course, this being a reply, the distribution is substantially different from what we have seen on the other documents, which are orders. In some cases the document, No. 88 for instance, where a copy was sent forward to the Defendant List for information, but here, of course, this went out to the Defendant List. On page 52 of the German and page 69 of the English, Document No. NOKW 191a, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 98. Is that right, Major Hatfield?

MAJOR HATFIELD: Yes, it is.

MR. DENNEY: And was No. NOKW 197 marked Exhibit No. 97?

MAJOR HATFIELD: Yes, it was.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you. This is just a draft form. It is not signed but on the reference numbers appear the numbers 2848/41, and, if Your Honors recall, that is the number which is on the Boehme order of 10 October. And in addition the second paragraph, under Arabic numeral "2", which is on page 27 of the German Document Book III, page 34 of the English Document Book III, and is the first page of Exhibit 88, speaks of reports which are to be made on the 10th, 20th, and last of each month, with reference to the number of hostages. And this has the field numbers in the reference here and is just a blank form, apparently, which was made up, whether it was ever used or not. But it comes from Boehme's headquarters because it has the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia on the top of it and it is listed as a copy, and its subject is "Reprisal Measures". And it is obviously a form that can be sent out in order that actions may be reported back. It says, "Pursuant to the order for the suppression of the Communist insurrection movementhostages will be shot for and then there follows "The execution is to be conducted by" and then it states Commander Serbia, Admin.

Staff, will provides hostages. The date and place of the execution, fetching and delivery of hostages as well as further details will be agreed upon directly between the troop units executing (reprisals) and Commander Serbia, Admin. Staff.

Reports of execution to be sent to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia.

For the Commanding General - Plenipotentiary in Serbia The Chief of the General Staff".

MR. DENNEY: The next document appeals on page 53 of the German, page 71 of the English, and it is offered as Exhibit 99 in evidence. This again is a draft.

THE PRESIDENT: Did you give the number of the document?

MR. DENNEY: The document is No. NOKW 387, if Your Honors please, Exhibit No. 99.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Sir. I may not have stated it. This is, as I have stated, just a draft; however, there is a stamp on the top of it, and it's entitled, "Negotiations with Insurgents", and at the bottom, under Distribution, it says, "In the draft", and "Taken care of immediately."

Subject: Negotiations with insurgents.

On 29 Sept. 41, an anti-aircraft defense company in Grn. Milanovac was attacked by insurgents, and after s short battle, the majority were taken, and carried off to the mountains.

On 4 Oct. 41, a guard detachment of the 1st and 18th Ordnance battalions, 4 NCOs and 40 men strong was likewise captured by the insurgents after a short fight without any losses. In both cases, the same circumstances led to a result unworthy of a German soldier. The serious error was made on our own side, of negotiating with the insurgents. In both cases, the unit let itself be deceived by the promise of a "honorable agreement", instead of defending themselves to the last cartridge.

On basis of these events I command:

1. No negotiations of any sort are to be made with insurgents.
2. Negotiators of the insurgents do not enjoy the protection which negotiators of a regular unit must be allowed. If negotiators appear before the start of a combat action they are to be arrested and tried by courts martial as franc-tireurs. If negotiators appear during or after a fight, fire is to be opened on them at once.

Care is to be taken by the LXVth Corps and the Commander of Serbia that this order is forwarded for the information of all subordinated troops units and offices in the shortest possible time.

Then on page 53 of the German and page 72 of the English, the document continues. This is a report that was submitted to the 610th Administrative Subarea Headquarters and simultaneously for the information of the Commander Serbia and is written by a Captain von Bischofshausen and is directed to the events which took place at Kragujevac on the 20th and 21st of October with which the court is already familiar from the earlier report made by the unit involved. It starts:

In the days from the 14th to the 17th Oct. 41 the 3rd Battalion, 749th regiment stationed in this area carried out an operation to Milanovac where the 6th Company, 920 regiment was kidnapped. The unit was accompanied by two interpreters in German uniform of the district headquarters who informed me about details.

The unit, marching on the highway was allegedly shot at numerous times from the surrounding heights whereby they had losses of 9 dead and 27 wounded (of the latter one more died later). The interpreter, who knew the country, called the attention of the battalion CO numerous times to the fact that a different tactic was necessary in this terrain in order to be able to combat the bandits, otherwise he would have unpreventable losses, without being able to do anything himself.

That happened. 87 of the enemy fell.

The battalion found Milanovac rather empty. About 40 male inhabitants who had concealed themselves, according to information of the battalion CO and had waited for the return of the German Wehrmacht were arrested and brought back with them as hostages.

Milanovac was completely destroyed likewise on the way back, the villages lying on the highway.

After the return from there, the battalion of the 749 regt. received the order to shoot for each dead 100, for each wounded 50 Serbs from Kragujevac.

Accordingly in the later evening hours on 18 Oct. 1941 all male Jews and a number of Communists, altogether about 70 men were arrested according to lists.

Since this number was not sufficient by far for the 2300 to be shot, it was proposed to collect the number lacking through arrests on the streets, squares and dwellings in a unified action in the town of Kragujevac by both the third battalion of the 749th Regiment and the first battalion 724th regt, stationed in Kragujevac.

Since the planned measure was in contradiction to the orders of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General - file notice 73/41 Secret of 9 Oct. 41 and file notes; 2848/41 Secret of 10 Oct. 41 as well as the Commander of Serbia - Admin. Staff Diary 10 Oct. 41, I attempted to inform the local senior officer, Major Koenig of the execution, in the sense of the order cited, in that I suggested, that the villages in the near and far vicinity of Kragujevac known to the district Hq for a long time as completely strewn with Communists, be surrounded and the necessary number to be shot be obtained there.

He accepted my suggestion voluntarily at once, and it was proposed to mop-up the villages Grosnica and Belosovac on Sunday by the first battalion, 724th regt. On Monday both battalions were to mop-up by a joint action the villages Mackovac, Marzic, Korman, Botunje and Komavice in the middle of which, the ill famed Parlog mountain lies, where the bandits allegedly have their forest quarters.

If then the number of those arrested would not have been sufficient, I suggested the combing through of villages further infested with Communists according to my information. I emphasize expressly that in the whole time of the existence of the district headquarters, not a single German Wehrmacht member or Volksdeutscher was wounded or shot in the city.

The citizens, of the city, numbering about 42,000 souls, always showed themselves loyal and inclined to co-operation of the Wehrmacht, whereby it should not be disregarded, that a part of these citizens were inclined always to the bandits; nothing happened.

In the evening of 19th Oct. 41 I was invited to a re-newed conference with Major Koenig, where I learned to my astonishment that the whole plan had been thrown over: During the 19th of October 1941 the villages Grosnica and Milatovac were mopped-up by the first battalion 724 Regt. and burned down, and Meckvoc and Marsic by the third Battalion 749th Regt. At the same time 422 men were immediately shot on the spot in the villages without any losses on our side, among them a priest of the Greek Church in whose church tower ammunition had been found concealed.

In order to obtain the number of the 2300 lacking, a combing of the town Kragujevac was ordered again for the 20th of Oct.

1941. The arrests on the streets, squares, shops, dwellings, stores, etc., took place accordingly to day without regard for the persons involved, taking men between 16 and 60.

According to a statement of Major Koenig of the captives in German hands, those were to be taken who

- a. were in possession of a special pass of the district headquarters or another troop unit stationed here.

- b. members of a vital profession or trade (doctors, druggists, bakers, butchers, grocers, technicians, workers of the light and water plants, etc.)

- c.- could prove themselves members of the Ljotic movement.

In this case, no consideration was taken in any way for the points stated under number 2 in the order 2848/41. Furthermore, the last sentence of the second paragraph in the order made, Diary 4224 ("in order to prevent the annihilation of completely innocent peopleetc.,") was observed in no way.

Even this order of Staatsrat Turner which I brought expressly to the attention of Major Koenig, he did not even wish to read saying that he had to act exclusively according to the order of the regimental commander of the 749th Inf. Regt. which set him to task of bringing together the necessary number of those to be shot from the men of the town of Kragujevac.

By radio, I urgently requested at 600 hours, 20 Oct. 41 an airplane from the Ic Branch, Commander of Serbia in order to attain through personal conference in Belgrade, that the orders issued would be carried out according to their sense. Unfortunately, the airplane was not sent, so that an interference of the superior office is no longer possible because the shootings were set for 7 o'clock early on the 21st Oct. 1941. I should like to state that the losses of the third Battalion 749th Regt occurred in an operation against the guilty locality Milanovac and not in the city of Kragujevac.

If 2300 bandits and those sympathizing with them had been captured and shot the order issued would have been taken care of completely enough.

According to my standpoint, a shooting partly of completely innocent persons from this city can have directly harmful effects. It is to be expected that embittered relatives of those shot will now practice acts of revenge on members of the German Wehrmacht.

Sabotage acts on drinking water and on the current temporary light supply, as well as a large attack of the bandits against the city, in which the units could suffer more losses than before, are not out of the realm of possibility. Above all, the psychological effect will be catastrophic. The residents of Kragujevac have expected of the German Wehrmacht, the elimination of the Communistic danger and the aligning into the new construction of Europe. With the methods used here, we shall not attain in any case the winning again of the favorably-inclined elements.

(Sgd.) v. Bischofshausen Captain and Commandant And then there appears that he reported personally in the above affair on the 26th of October, 1941 to the Chief of Staff, Commander in Serbia, and on the next day, the 29th, with the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia through Major Jais.

Certified a true copy by a captain.

THE PRESIDENT: Perhaps we'd better take a recess. The Tribunal will be in recess.

(There was a short recess.)

Page 396

THE MARSHAL: All persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. DENNEY: At this time we come to a document which is not in the document book and which will have to be inserted. It is NOKW-1638 and it is offered as Exhibit 100. I will hand three copies for the Court, one for the interpreters and reporters, each two copies, and two copies in English to be given to the Secretary General. I will come to the page enumeration in just a moment, your Honors. It is the document, the original of which is in Jugoslavian. We have German translations and English translations. I haven't come to the German copies yet, 11 copies for defense counsel in German, a copy in German for the interpreters and the reporters, and two copies in German for the Secretary General. I suggest that you give all 11 copies, the balance of the copies, to Dr. Laternser, after having given out one each to the counsel present, in order that he may make sure that they are properly distributed: (and finally the original copies that I read, the original in the Jugoslavian language are the three portions of the documents which are being offered at this time which will be handed to Major Hatfield.

DR. LATERNSEER: Before the submission of the original document may I see it? After what I have seen, what has been presented to the defense counsel is not the complete copy of what has just been handed to the Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors, please, the portion which the defense has is the complete portion which is being offered in English. As to the Yugoslavian, I am told that is the original from which this is taken and there is a certificate there. I did notice Dr. Laternser as he went through it -- that there were some lists which were compiled which are not here? but the German translation and the English translation are identical and contain the same material.

Perhaps, if I could see the original from the Secretary General in Yugoslavian -

If your Honors, please, the same practice has been followed here. We have neglected to use all portions of the document; for instance, long lists of numbers have been left out and we will be very glad to have the balance of the document translated and given to Dr. Laternser. The practice, as I say, that we are following - we have have only translated a portion of the documents and these various pages; but we will get the balance of them translated in the German and furnish them tomorrow before -

I am informed by Mr. Varic that he can translate the balance from Yugoslavian into German by Monday evening.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, I would like to protest against the introduction of the document for the following reasons. So far as I can see from the original document, this report is a combination of testimonies by witnesses, certainly several hundred persons. The committee in Yugoslavia has compiled these testimonies. In other words, acted as judges, and did not leave judicial action to the courts as I can see from a very short glance at this document, this is a combination of testimonies by witnesses, several hundred persons, and this established committee has taken judicial action with regard to this compilation which should be left to Judges.

The defense, therefore, has the disadvantage that the incriminating testimonies of the witnesses which can be used here against them, without the defense on their side having the right to cross examine these people, and to find out, through this cross examination, whether the testimonies are true.

Thus it can be seen that this report is completely subjective. If one takes into consideration that they are testimonies from former enemies -- Former enemies speak subjectively, - and I do not blame them but they must be put at the disposal of the defense for cross-examination.

These compilations, through the committee, cannot be checked. Rather, it is a protest, and I therefore protest against the introduction of this document if it is allowed, and I would ask that some of these persons should be placed at the disposal of the defense for cross-examination.

DR. STEFAN FRITSCH (Counsel for defendant Rendulic): I would like to add that these reports which I read here are extracts, presumably; I don't know, from documents from committees from which my colleague Dr. Laternser, has already said, probably hundreds, perhaps thousands of people were interrogated and then the extracts and reports were based on this.

From these documents, I cannot see what sort of a committee this was.

Who appointed it. Whether former soldiers or present soldiers, whether judges, whether they were people who fought on the side of these partisan bonds, or insurgents, or whatever one can call them.

In addition the defense has not ever the theoretical possibility to cross-examine the people who compiled these extracts, because under the report it says, "signature illegible", - that is the signature of the consultant. That is one of the most important people, and this note, "signature illegible" bears quite frequently on the individual reports or excerpts, and I therefore protest against the introduction of these documents.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, it is submitted that these documents are admissible for such value as the Court chooses to give them. Article 9 of Ordinance No. 7, states that the Tribunal shall not require proof of facts of common knowledge, but shall take judicial notice thereof; they shall also take judicial notice of official government documents and reports of the United Nations, including the acts and documents of committees set up in the various allied countries.

The investigation is of war crimes, and it is the function also of military or other Tribunals of any of the United Nations.

The report of the United States with reference to concentration camps was submitted and received in evidence before the International Military Tribunals. Other reports of other countries, Military Tribunal 2, of the present Military Tribunal has received in evidence a report compiled by the Dutch Government, with reference to forced labor conditions in Holland.

JUDGE BURKE: What is this report?

MR. DENNEY: This is a report by the National Commission for the investigation of crimes committed by the occupied forces set up by the Yugoslavian government. The reports that we are submitting today, that we are offering today, are dated 24th of January, 1946; the 19th of November, 1943, and the 15th of August, 1945, and they have to do with events concerning the town of Kraljevo in October, 1941, the Grosnica and Kragujevac and surrounding villages on the same dates.

In addition, the happenings with reference to Sabac on the 18 to the 24 of October, 1941.

THE PRESIDENT: Isn't this report, Mr. Denney, of a nature somewhat similar to the proceedings before this court? They made certain findings, and in the course of time we will be required to make certain findings?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, it is submitted that this is not a finding in the meaning that this court will make a finding. It is just a compilation of evidence with reference to what happened at that time from eye witnesses, taken by the official Commission which was set up for that purpose and which commission has been recognized both by the International Tribunal and other Tribunals here. The court, of course, can give it such value as it sees fit.

THE PRESIDENT: The request of counsel for the Prosecution for the admission of this document seems to be asking for a ruling that is far and beyond what members of this Tribunal are accustomed to consider as evidentiary. We appreciate the fact that there have been certain rules submitted, and established in these Tribunals, which, upon later consideration may require this court to be bound by their acts, but for the time being, the objection will be sustained, subject to the right of counsel for the prosecution to present this matter further, if you care to do so.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, in that event we will have the exhibit marked 100A for identification.

THE PRESIDENT: It may be so marked.

MR. DENNEY: I suggest in the event there is any further reference to this document, that it be assigned page numbers at this time. The numbers which I have in mind, unless your Honors have a different view, is that it be inserted following page 76, and that the pages be numbered consecutively "a" through "o" each preceded by a "76", if that is agreeable with the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: They may be so inserted, keeping in mind, however, the prior rulings of the court.

MR. DENNEY: We turn then to page 77 of the English document book and page 57 of the German book, to NOKW 1047, which is offered as Exhibit 100 in evidence.

If the Secretary General will please pass the exhibit to the court, the photostatic copy which we have, the top part of the defendant Boehme's signature appears on it. It is submitted that it can be identified as such from prior signatures which the court has seen. The bottom part has been cut off, and there are reference which will connect this with prior events.

This is an order of the day for 20 October 1941 from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. It recites:

"Further successes gained recently by the units contribute to strengthening considerably the appearance of the German Wehrmacht in Serbia.

"The enemy was attacked in the Cor Mountain Range by the 342nd Infantry Division after cleaning up Macva. The insurgents lost about 1700 dead and 4500 prisoners. 2 guns, a number of machine guns, rifles and munitions were liberated. The 125th Inf. Regt. cleaned up the regions Ub and SW of Obrenovac. The losses of the enemy in those regions comprised about 300 dead.

"Some freedom of motion was created for the command post by parts of the 704th Inf. Div. through several pushes into the region of Valjevo.

"On 5 October, the attack of the insurgents on Kraljevo which had been prepared for days was beaten off by the unit in the locality with the cooperation of the 1st Battalion of the 737th Infantry Regiment returning there from Krusevac. The enemy lost at least 80 dead. 1755 hostages were shot in reprisal for our own losses.

In order to carry out a former reprisal measure, the 3rd Battalion of the 749th Infantry Regiment fought its way from Kragjevac to upper Milanova and back – in several scrimmages and in the face of numerous blockades.

133 hostages were brought in.

"I express my special recognition to all officers, non-commissioned officer, and men participating in these successful operations."

Onward to now deals! Pm (Sgd.) Boehme"

Page 403

MR. DENNEY: And below that appears "onward to new deeds", signed by Boehme.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, does your copy show "deeds" or "deads"?

MR. DENNEY: Mine says, Your Honor, "deads". I don't know what it says in the German. If I could see it, we could have the copy translated.

(Mr. Denney obtains German copy from Secretary General and takes it to the interpreter for a translation.)

THE PRESIDENT: The translator will give us a translation of the word.

MISS EVAND: Onward to new deeds, d-e-e-d-s.

MR. DENNEY: Now, the figure 1755 has been called to Your Honors' attention in Document NOKW-1363, which is in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit Number 85, and it appears on page 23 of the English book and on page 20 of the German book, and there is the same figure of 1755. In addition, the next page, page 24 of the English and page 21 of the German, the 3rd Battalion of the 749th Infantry is cited in the corps order, that is in the Corps War Diary, as returning to Kragujevac with 133 hostages, the same number that appears here in the second last paragraph of the Boehme order of the day. The next document which appears on page 79 of the English and page 58 of the German is Document No. NOKW1046, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 101 in evidence, and it's an interrogation of two German officers, following their escape from Cetnik bands, those who were opposing the occupiers in this area. It's dated Belgrade, 22 October 1941, and the signature is that of a captain of cavalry, and the heading is "Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, Commander Serbia Section Ia/F Command Staff".

"On 22.10.41 Cavalry Captain Prinz zu Holstein, Chief of Section Ia/F interrogated two non-commissioned officers who had escaped from captivity by the Chetnik bands of Colonel Mihailovic.

"Franz Egger, 6th Company Landeschützen Battalion 920 and "Franz Kleinod, 3rd Company Quartermaster Battalion 18.

"Both Unteroffiziere agreed in their statements that they had been surprised by ruses of the insurgent Chetniks. At the time they were taken prisoners, all they knew was that they were Chetniks loyal to the government. In both cases near Grn. Milanovac and near Stragari, the insurgents by maintaining that they wanted to support the unit against the Communists managed to get possession of the arms of the German troops. In both cases the capture of entire units which up to the moment of their capture had suffered only minor losses can be explained by the fact that the troop leaders in question have negotiated with the Chetniks "In Grn.

Milanovac the case was as follows:

"Chetniks camouflaged as Communists executed a fire attack. After a combat lasting 2 1/2 hours, negotiators bearing a flag of truce were sent over asking surrender. The offer was rejected and the battle continued. After renewed negotiations, the troops withdrew honorably with all arms, allegedly under the protection of the Chetniks. Because of new threats the company commander, assured of unmolested passage, surrendered his arms to the Chetniks, who allegedly wanted to fight the Communists with them. After the arms were surrendered, the German soldiers were taken prisoners and the Chetniks sent them to a prison camp.

"According to the statements of the non-commissioned officers concerned the company commander has asked his people to surrender their arms in order to avoid bloodshed. Almost all the non-commissioned officers were against it, but they obeyed orders. The troops, partly of Slovenian origin and particularly from the older age groups, seemed to agree with this solution, since they did not count on the possibility of a dishonorable captivity when they delivered up their arms.

"It is the opinion of the Unteroffizier that if the battle had been resumed before surrendering arms even though our people would have suffered many losses, it would have contributed to heavy enemy losses and perhaps to the rescue of the remainder of the company. Similar methods were applied by the enemy in Stragari. On 4.10. unexpected attack of fire by the enemy.

The unit in no way experienced, in combat – they were two detachments of the quartermaster battalions 1 and 18 about 20 men strong – let itself be deceived by the enemy. Here too the Chetniks alleged that they wanted to fight against the Communists but they could do so only if the German unit withdrew. Assured of free passage, the Chetniks penetrated the villages as friends and surrounded the unit. Suddenly they demanded the surrender of arms and thus surprised the troops. Resistance was impossible. Here the guilt doubtless fell on the leading Feldwebel of the Quartermaster Battalion 1, who instead of fighting his way through with 40 men, who had sufficient ammunition with them anyway, entered into negotiations with the insurgents. Even though the Feldwebel of a quartermaster battalion is not trained for combat, it must be clear to every German soldier that the enemy cannot be our friend if at first he shoots at us and then suddenly he wants to negotiate in a friendly manner. In both cases the reputation of the German Wehrmacht has suffered enormously due to hesitation and unreflected action.

"The statements of both non-commissioned officers confirmed the rumors that the entire population participated in the insurrection, since all of them from the child to the man were armed and supported the roving bands. Band leaders were mostly Yugoslav officers. These were for the most part wearing old Yugoslav uniforms.

"It is reported for the first time that the German soldiers were not deprived of their uniforms. The soldiers were also left in possession of their property. Colonel Mihailovic had been pointed out personally as the leader of the units in this area to the two non-commissioned officers. He was surrounded by many uniformed officers. The insurgents in this territory designated themselves as the National Free Serbian Army, whose sole and only aim was to drive the Germans from the country. They considered themselves soldiers and consequently recognized as valid the laws of war, hence probably the strikingly good treatment of prisoners.

"During combat action and later in the area of the prison camp, nothing was recognized as Communistic elements by the two non-commissioned officers.

"(signature illegible) "Captain Cav."

And the signature, it is believed, is that of Captain zu Holstein. Then, on page 60 of the German and page 83 of the English, appears Document NOKW-562, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 102 in evidence. This is a signed order of General Boehme and refers again to his order, which by now I believe the Court is familiar with, Exhibit No. 88, which was the 2848/41 Order, dated 10 October 1941. The subject of this communication is the "Suppression of Insurgent Movements in Serbia", and the reference is "Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, III/Chief Military Administration, Qu No. 3208/41 secret", a number which has already been referred to. There is an enclosure.

"Observations and reports show that the units have taken the measures required for the suppression of insurgent movements to a large extent in an exemplary manner and with the desired severity.

"However, in individual cases the pertinent order - a directive applicable for the entire territory of Serbia which is to be executed according to the local situation with divisional and regimental commanders bearing the responsibility - has not been interpreted correctly.

"In order that the taking and shooting to death of hostages is coordinated according to plan, attention is directed to the following points:

"1) Arbitrary arrests and shootings to death of Serbs are driving to the insurrectionists circles of the population which up to now did not participate in the insurrection. They strengthen the power of resistance of communism. They diminish chances for speedy suppression and they are harmful to the political goal of the commitment.

The shooting to death of confidential agents, Croats and entire personnel of German armament factories constitute irreparable errors. In case of doubt, the decision of the superior authority is to be requested prior to executions.

2.) Evidence for the taking of hostages, according to para. 2 of the pertinent order, is in the first instance to be procured through the Administrative Subarea Hqs. and the district Hqs. The pertinent order was issued to the administrative offices by the commander Serbia administrative staff under No. 4224/41 V dated 10.10.41.

Beyond and above, the units are to take hostages by well planned operations in the insurgent districts. These hostages are to be chosen according to the directive above and in required numbers from such villages as are known to be focal points of the insurgent movements. Here it must be avoided that such parts of the population be taken and executed as hostages who, being non-participants in the insurrection, did not flee before a German penal expedition.

In such cases, the family members of those who fled (including women) are to be taken as hostages in the first place. The houses of those who fled are to be burned down.

3.) Women, who actively participated in the flight - with or without arms - are to be treated like the male insurrectionists.

Women who are suspected of having supported the flight are to come before court martial.

Women who are taken as hostages only may not be shot.

4.) Persons already involved in court martial procedure are not permitted to be shot to death before the conclusion of the procedure and not within the framework of reprisal measures. Their sentence is of a demonstrative character and is to be executed according to this point of view.

5.) Generally, those insurgents probably killed in combat are credited to the number of those to be shot to death in reprisal.

6.) You are reminded to include in the daily report a notation as to whether and to what extent reprisal measures have been executed, or when and how much later those will be executed. (Paragraph 3 of the pertinent directive.) If an insufficient number of hostages is not available or cannot be procured the commanding general - plenipotentiary is to be informed and he will order an adjustment.

It is submitted that this should read "If an insufficient number of hostages is available or cannot be procured," or that it should read "If a sufficient number of hostages is not available or cannot be procured."

7.) The reprisal measures which have been ordered charge the unit commanders with a heavy responsibility and they are to be executed in accordance with military customs. For detailed directives see enclosure. (Signed) Boehme, General of Infantry."

And the enclosure which is recited there and also on the first page, prior to the first paragraph of the directive "Detailed directives for the execution of shootings:

- a) The execution detachments are to be headed by officers.
- b) Execution is to be performed by rifle aimed simultaneously on head and heart at a distance of from 8 to 10 meters.
- c) In order to avoid touching the corpses unnecessarily, those to be shot to death are to stand immediately at the edge of the grave. If mass executions take place it is practical to have the hostages kneel facing the grave.
- d) A unit physician is to be attached to the execution detachment. He will order the delivery of "coups de grace".
- e) In no case is it permitted to use clothing (or shoes) for the good of the population. They are to be delivered against receipts to the local competent office of the Military Administration.

The next document is on page 64 of the German text and page 87 of the English text. It is Document No. NOKW-907 and is offered as prosecution's exhibit 103 in evidence. This is another copy of what we have just seen but, whereas the copy which we had before merely went to his own immediate circle, we now see that this copy has various stamps on it which indicate that the order has been passed down.

The stamp in the upper right-hand corner, the 704th Infantry Division and the stamp down below the 704th, 31 October 1941. This is dated 25 October 1941, the same date that the other communication had and it again recites the handwritten enclosure which we have read with reference to the details. The numbers 764th Infantry Division which appear on this are in error. They should be 704th and the three stamps throughout are those of the 704th and not as two of them appear to be—the 764th.

If Your Honors will bear with me for just a moment, the distribution list here says "Distribution as reference instructions." In that appears the reference instructions referring back to Order No. 2848/41 which is secret to October 1941 and the document number is NOKW-557. It is Exhibit 88 in evidence and, of course, they turn back to this in order that the distribution will be the same as that of the original order because this is a supplement to it, and the distribution list on that, as the Court will recall, includes the 65th Corps, the separate division, the separate Infantry Regiment, various other offices and staffs, and then information copies to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the German General in Zagreb, and two copies in reserve. That appears on pages 35 and 36 of the English document book III and the distribution list is completely on page 29 in the German document book.

There is no need to read this document again. It has just been read. The contents are the same down to the instructions which the Court can see at their leisure. On page 68 of the German and page 91 of the English, Document 561 which is a report on the number and category of persons in the concentration camp at Sabac, this is dated 25 October 1941, Belgrade, and is addressed to the commander of Serbia, Administrative Staff for the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia and it is sent by the Chief of the Administrative Staff to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, and says "I transmit in the appendix a tabulation concerning the state of the camp in Sabac for the time from 18th to 24th October 1941."

There is a receipt stamp of the 18th Corps which the Court will remember is commanded by the same man who is the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, dated 26 October 1941, and on page two of the original, the camp in Sabac during the period mentioned 18 to 24 October, there were on 17 October, 15,724 inmates; one week later there were 16,445; an increase of 721. Then it shows that 891 had been examined, 727 discharged, 90 had been shot and the total shot up to now is a thousand.

Major Hatfield, would you please tell me whether or not I gave that last document an Exhibit number?

THE SECRETARY GENERAL: 104.

MR. DENNEY: 104--thank you.

We may pass the next document and we come now to NOKW-802 which is on page 71 of the German text and page 96 of the English text. This is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 105 in evidence. This is a directive of 26 October 1941 from General Boehme through his chief of staff Turner to all administrative subareas and all district headquarters.

DR. LATERNER: I must protest against the introduction of this document. The whole document is again a document merely covered typing. It starts with the word "copy". That is the copy of a document, copying of a document. I would like to draw the attention of the Tribunal that what follows next is top secret. A top secret document can never be allowed to be copied. On the document there is no certification. This certification is also only typewritten and the name is also typewritten. Since there is nothing written with handwriting on the document except that which the prosecution has written itself, this is not a document but just a piece of paper covered with typing.

Since this piece of paper lacks documentary character it has to be rejected as a document.

MR. DENNEY: The answer to the objection is the same as before. This is a captured document. The document is certainly submitted as being just what it purports to be, a typewritten copy which is unsigned, but it bears in type writing also at the bottom, signed Turner, and it is offered for such probative value as the court deems fit to give it in conjunction with all of these other documents which we have seen, many of which are signed, and some of which are unsigned.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is of the opinion that inasmuch as this purports to be a captured document that even though it does not bear a written signature, it will be accepted for such value as the court feels should be given to it and that is in line with the other exhibits.

MR. DENNEY: It is dated Belgrade 26 October 1941, 20 copies, 16th copy.

To: All Administrative Sub-Areas and all District Headquarters.

In that connection, in the way Serbia was organized, this goes to all Administrative sub-areas and all District Headquarters so it is certainly conceivable a good many copies had been made. It is shown on its face there were twenty.

For certain reasons the administrative sub-area and district headquarters are to be informed of the following:

The Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia is charged with carrying out the affairs of the Commander of Serbia. Headquarters Staff and Administrative Staff remain in the same composition as before. If orders of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General refer to the Chief of the Administrative Staff with the Commander in Serbia, who co-operates closely with a Staff of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General.

The situation in Serbia makes it impossible at the present time to have an administration in certain districts.

That is why it is the more important that the Administrative sub-area.

and district headquarters see to it that a Serbian administration under German supervision is recognized in the territories cleaned up by our units or by Serbian Gendarmerie and Police Organs respectively. This is the exclusive task of the Administrative sub-area and district headquarters.

In carrying out the order dated 10.10.41 Diary No. 2848/41 Secret.

If I might interrupt to call the court's attention again, there is the reference to the basic order, which Exhibit 88 in evidence NOKW 557 and appears at page 34 in Document book 3.

Returning now to the text after the word "Secret".

the units have carried out shootings in some localities which have resulted in serious consequences. The order of 25.10.41 No. 3208/41 Secret which is sent to the Administrative Sub-Area and District Headquarters for information concerning certain directives issued by the Commanding General Plenipotentiary.

If I may interrupt again please, that is the order which appears on page 83, the order of 25 October 1941 which had the details enclosed with reference to the directives for executions and I believe the court will recall that we just read it.

THE PRESIDENT: With reference to matters which were presented in the court this morning, arrangements have been made for a conference with certain individuals and that has been set for 4:20. That hour has been reached. We will adjourn at this time until 0930 Monday morning.

THE TRIBUNAL WILL RECESS UNTIL 0930 O'CLOCK MONDAY MORNING, 21 JULY 1947, Official Transcript of Military Tribunal V, Case 7, in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 21 July 1947, 0930, Justice Wennerstrum presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal 5.

Military Tribunal 5 is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Marshal, you will ascertain if all the defendants are in the court room.

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honors, all defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Before we proceed with the regular Tribunal matters, the Court wants to make a statement in connection with the information that was brought to your attention Friday morning by counsel for the defendants relative to the matter of searching the defense counsel.

This Tribunal is conscious of the fact that we do not have any particular control over the administration of the matters which pertain to security, but we are desirous of cooperating with defense counsel and making it possible for them to present their case in a manner which will be helpful to them. Because of that interest, we had a conference with the officials Friday afternoon and the information was brought to us that the incident that happened at the mess hall was a result of a misunderstanding on the part of one of the officers there, and the men concerned.

We were assured that it would not happen again. In that connection, however, I want to make this statement; that as I understand it, as the Tribunal understands it, there was an arrangement made some several weeks or months ago which was agreeable to the security officers and defense counsel relative to these cards. Now there have been some incidents where some of defense counsel have rather hastily pushed the cards at the guards and have indicated that--that is, an attitude that they didn't have to show the cards.

If defense counsel will cooperate in the previous arrangements which have been made relative to the showing of these cards and show the proper attitude--I mean a courteous attitude-- which I know all of them will, I am quite certain that the incident that happened Friday will not occur again.

The Court was willing to take this and to go to this trouble. We were interested in bringing this matter to the attention of the authorities in the desire to be helpful to all concerned and we ask the cooperation now on the part of defense counsel and all other parties who may be concerned. That is all I have to say.

You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, the prosecution has twelve additional copies of the document which was marked Exhibit 38-A for identification, which is the list of documents containing the references to the courts on which each of the documents in Document Book I is offered, and the defendants against whom these counts are offered. And will you hand these to the defense counsel at this time?

With reference to Document Book II, the last document which was offered in that document book was Document 77 and we now ask that a list of the counts on which the documents in Document Book II are offered and the defendants against whom they are offered be marked Exhibit 77-A and inserted at the end of Document Book II. I hand three copies of 77-A to the Tribunal, 24 copies for the defense counsel, two copies for the Secretary General and a copy for the interpreters and the court reporters, one each.

THE PRESIDENT: The marking of this document as Exhibit 77-A is as I understand it to be accepted into the record under the same conditions that the like document was received relative to Document Book II?

MR. DENNEY: One.

THE PRESIDENT: Or one, and is so marked as an exhibit solely for the purpose of identification and is not to be received as an exhibit proper for the benefit of the court and interested counsel in their study of the case.

MR. DENNEY: That is our understanding, if your Honor pleases, in conformity with your Honor's ruling of last week.

On Friday when we adjourned, we had reached Document NOKW-802 which is Exhibit 105, in evidence, appearing at page 96 of the English text and 71 of the German text; and we had reached the end of the first page of the exhibit. I should like to direct your Honors' attention to the fact that this copy which is from the Commanding Plenipotentiary in Serbia, Gen. Boehme, dated 26 October, 1941, to all administrative subareas and all district headquarters, the last page which we had just finished--the last paragraph of the first page which we had just finished reading; there is a reference to diary No. 2848/41 of the 10th of October. That is a reference.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, for my information may I make inquiry as to from what page you are reading?

MR. DENNEY: Page 96 of the English.

THE PRESIDENT: Ninety-six?

Page 417

Continuing then with the paragraph starting at the top of page 97:

This order shows clearly in paragraph 2 the cooperation, and there again he is referring to his order of 25 October, Exhibit 83, I The coo-eration of the Administrative Sub-area and District Headquarters. According to this order not only are the units to be advised in the seizure of hostages but - if my order dated 10.10.41 was carried out as directed - the Administrative Sub-Area and District Headquarters must be able to put at the disposal of the units a number of hostages without any difficulties. The ratio being 1:100 in case of a dead and 1:50 in case of a wounded German soldier it will frequently happen that the Administrative Sub-area and District Headquarters will not be in a position to furnish the required number of hostages, if a certain concept of guilt should be taken into consideration to some extent, even if only on the basis of the general behavior of those to be arrested. In such cases I am to be informed by the speediest possible means.

As a matter of principle it must be said that Jews and Gypsies in general represent an element of insecurity and thus a danger to public order and safety. It is the Jewish intellect which has brought about this war and which must be annihilated. The gypsy, because of his internal and external make-up cannot be a useful member of a peoples' community. It has been found that the Jewish element participates considerably in the leadership of the bands and that Gypsies in particular are responsible for special atrocities and for the communication systems. That is why it is a matter of principle in each case to put all Jewish men and all male Gypsies at the disposal of the units for hostages. Moreover it is intended to transfer the women and children of Jews and Gypsies in a collection camp in the near future and to remove this disquieting element from Serbian territory by way of resettlement.

Proper preparations for this are to be made.

Per se it is against the concept of the German Soldier and civil servant to seize women for hostages. Nevertheless arrests are to be made if it is a matter of wives or family members respectively of insurgents who are in the mountains.

In such case greater severity means at the same time greater clemency. In this way the bandit suffers the consequences of his own actions. The sense of justice of the decent part of the population is appealed to, while the belief in the feeling for justice of the German Wehrmacht must be destroyed if not only people who are completely innocent are shot to death but - as occurred in one case, just those men of the village were executed who had remained at their place of work waiting for the German Troops, because of their confidence in their own innocence and because of their obedience to the German Arms.

These ideas are to be propagated by the Administrative subArea and District Headquarters. A Commanding Officer of a District Headquarters reports that a Regimental Commander forced him to sign an order which was against his own opinion. The Commanding Officers of the Administrative Sub-Area and District Headquarters are in no case subordinate to the unit commander in administrative affairs except by virtue of a Special Order.

In the present situation the Commanding Officers of the Administrative Sub-Area and District Headquarters are carrying a heavy responsibility. Essentially it is their part to bring about a co-ordination of Military needs, which in view of the situation must have priority, with the needs of a well planned administration.

For the Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia The Chief of the Military Staff (signed) Turner Certified True Copy The next document is NOKW 1202 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 106 and is a proclamation by the German Commandant to the Serbian population with reference to retaliation measures.

It was issued sometime in 1941 as may be seen from the dates, that is October 1941, as may be seen from the dates at the close of 21 October to 31 October----12 October and 31 October. Excuse me, Your Honor.

The German Army does not want to take your freedom and to prevent you from working peacefully,. But just like your Belgrade Government it demands, peace, order, and security in the country.

Insurgent Communists, Jews, and plunderers have united. They force you to join their ranks, endanger your property and life.

Repeatedly German soldiers have been murdered cruelly. Also individual national organizations of your country have made alliance with these insurgents in order to harm the German Wehrmacht.

The German Wehrmacht has looked on at this activity for a long time, to give you time to think it over. Instead of acknowledging gratefully the generous attitude of the German Wehrmacht you in many cases have believed more in the lies and provocative whispers of communistic and ambitious leaders. So it happened, that many of you not only did not resist the insurgents but even supported the insurgents. Thereby you have become accomplices to the criminal acts of the insurgents.

Lately raids on vital installations of economy and traffic have increased as well as organized attacks on German forces. Here again many German soldiers were murdered in brutality.

The German Wehrmacht must and shall put an end to this activity with all means and unyielding severity to restore peace and security also for you.

The following directives become effective immediately:

1) He who even supports the insurgents or their accomplices:

by means of arms and ammunition by erecting road blocks, by destroying bridges, by giving food, by transmitting information, by providing transportation, or by any other manner, will be shot.

2) He who even carries fire arms, pointed weapons, hand grenades or other weapons, will be shot.

4) The communities in whose area arms and ammunition are found, in whose area road blocks or destroyed bridges are found without being prevented or immediately averted on by you, in whose area other hostile acts occur, will be severely punished by the burning down of houses and shooting of inhabitants.

For every German soldier killed 100 inhabitants will be shot. (handwritten) 2 Don't permit yourself to be deceived by Communist leaders or other ambitious leaders.

The German Wehrmacht is strong and victorious. Armies of millions of your alleged friends in Russia have been destroyed with their entire equipment.

The rest is being destroyed.

Petersburg and Moscow are about to fall.

The German Wehrmacht is also in a position to break all resistance in Serbia.

Beware of heavy penalties. Keep peace.

The German Commandant And then the stamps which appear below are self-explanatory.

The note to the 342nd Infantry Division, Tactical Group of the General Staff.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, I object to the proclamation to the Serbian population which has just been read. First of all this proclamation isn't signed. These again are three typewritten sheets of paper, without a heading, or a signature, from which no one could see who issued this proclamation. Attached to this document-

I object to the introduction of this document. This again is a document which is neither signed nor has a heading from which one can see who issued it. Attached to it is the photostat copy, of the back side of a cover originating from the Commanding General (KdB) of the 342nd Infantry Division but there are two other proclamations attached to it which are different from what the Prosecutor has just read. Whether these things belong to each other, I do not know it and also the certificate which is attached to these documents does not state any connection for this certificate only speaks about one "Proclamation to Serbians."

MR. DENNEY: The certificate recites 6 photostatic pages which is the number of pages here and again as has been the practice before, we are offering only so much of it as we think is relevant. The cover of which he speaks is a photostatic copy of the back, the binding, of the diary, from which the papers were taken, the diary of the 342nd Infantry Division; the date is 12 October, to 31 October, covered by this period of the diary from which these parts are taken, the captured documents. Perhaps Your Honor would like to see the photostats which we have here.

DR. LATERNER: I would like to state again the attitude of the defense that from each document it must be seen whether it has ever been signed and who signed it. Since this isn't the case I must protest against it.

THE PRESIDENT: This Exhibit comes within the category of similar exhibits which have been found as captured documents, a portion of which is a printed proclamation and under the rules of procedure by which these Tribunals were set up, documents of this character, as this Tribunal understands it, are to be accepted in evidence. We appreciate that it is not shown who signed it but it will be accepted for such probative value as the court considers that it merits. The objection will be over-ruled.

MR. DENNEY: The next document which appears at page 78 of the German text and page 103 of the English text is NOKW 226 and is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 107. In this document I would appreciate if Your Honors would first turn to page 105 which is the third page of the document.

May I see the document for a moment, Dr. Laterner?

If Your Honors will look at page 105 which is page 77 in the German. This is a communication from the defendant List, Wehrmacht Commander, Southeast and Commander in Chief of the 12th Army and one enclosure is recited which recites one incident. It is dated 6 October 1941 and the enclosure will follow. The letter is addressed to the Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia, Bohme, and the letter is signed by Field Marshal List.

It says:

The enclosed incident is to be investigated.

I am under the impression that the procedure in this case is a mistaken one. The dismissal of the farmer (page 2) , and that, if Your Honor pleases refers to the original German, was wrong. What reprisal measures have been ordered against the inhabitants of Grabovac for the sawing through of the telegraph poles?

Then turning to page 156, page 76 in the German. This is the report which Field Marshal List enclosed with his letter to General Boehme. This report is dated 27 September 1941 and it is made by Oberwachtmeister (Master Sergeant) Below. The subject is: Sabotage on telephone Lines Obrenovac-Valjevo during the night of the 25 and 26 of September 1941. The report states:

On 21.9.41 I received the order to repair the destroyed telephone lines Obrenovac in the direction of M1. Borak with 2 telephone construction detachments and 1 Infantry Platoon as construction security.

According to the reconnaissance of the 6th Company about 60 poles were sawed through, about 28 fields were cut and the telephone wire or most of it had been taken away.

On 25 September 1941 the line was ready for operation again up to Brgule. South of it 10 poles had already been laid out for further construction.

When I went to the construction area in the morning of 26 September 1941 I found a new place of sabotage 3 km. south of Obrenovac. 10 poles were sawn through, 1 pole had been 4/5 sawn through, the wires were cut and the insulators were broken. The railroad tracks with their sleepers had been torn from the railroad bed. Since I had along with me railroad workers for switch work at the railroad station of Brgule I employed these to repair the tracks.

After the detachments had been employed for repairs on the new scenes of disturbance and the tracks were made usable for traffic I reconnoitered the line in the direction of the railroad station of Brgule. There I found the second new scene of disturbance, 3 1/2 kilometers south of the railroad station of Stubline. Here 40 poles were sawn through, the lines were cut and the insulators were broken. Here also the tracks were torn out for 2 x 50 meters and were lying next to the railroad bed. At this place on 25 September 1941 I, with my construction detachments, had newly wired 22 fields and had put in again 3 poles.

According to statements of farmers working in the fields the sabotage actions taken place in the morning hours of 26 September 41 between 2:00 and 5:00 o'clock. It seems that the bandits destroyed the lines simultaneously in both places where from it may be deduced that the actions were undertaken through a central office.

The places of sabotage were 9 km. removed from each other.

During the repair work 3½ km. south of Obrenovac a farmer came forward who made the enclosed statements. On my orders the farmer was brought to the police station of Obrenovac.

(signed) Below Then follows the short statement of the farmer made to Sergeant Below which was enclosed with the Sergeant's report which came to the attention of the Field Marshal and which he, in turn, forwarded with his communication to General Boehme.

The report continues:

27 September 1941, Statement of the farmer from Stubline:

The farmer, a native of Stubline, taken alone from the place of sabotage to Obrenovac states as follows:

Communists forced farmers from Grabovac to saw off the wooden bars and 10 poles on the first place of sabotage. The fellow was unable to make any further statements. Thereupon he was dismissed by the police Lieutenant Heinrich.

And, that dismissal, it is submitted, was being complained of in the basic communication forwarding the reports.

Then turning to page 78 of the German, which is page 104 of the English, is the reply of General Boehme to his Commander, Commander List, and the subject contains Ic/Army High Command No. 1807/41 dated 6.10.41 which Your Honors will see is the number the communication received in the diary of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast by looking at page 105 where the same figures appeared. And, also, it says, dated 6 October 1941 and that is the date of the original communication.

This is directed to the Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast and Commander in Chief of the 12th Army.

Referring to the incident above regarding sabotage on the telephone line Obrenovac-Valjevo, report is made as follows:

1. The Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia was not informed that farmers from Grabovac executed the sabotage of the telephone line on 21 September, since this report, by the senior signal communication officer was sent erroneously to the Corps Signal Communication section.
2. The 125th Infantry Regiment was ordered, during the combing of the area south of Obrenovac, to burn down each 5th house in the village of Grabovac as a result of the sabotage.

(initial) B (signature) Boehme General of the Infantry 17729/13 (illegible initial) Turning to page 78 of the German and 103 of the English text, the first page of Exhibit 107 is offered; this is a further communication from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the defendant List dated 20 October 1941 and the same basic number appears in the reference, 1807/41 and the date again referring to the original communication from Field Marshal List and this time a subject has been added and it states:

"Reprisal Measures Grabovac." The communication is again addressed, as was the communication of one week earlier, to the Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast and the Commander in Chief of the 12th Army.

In addition to the report here, dated 6.10.41 it is reported that the village of Grabovac was burned down entirely and 73 inhabitants were shot to death by the 125th Infantry Regiment (handwritten) since shots were fired on the unit from this village.

NOKW 1074 and it is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 109 in evidence. This is extracts of the war diary of the 717 Infantry Division and the period with which we are concerned is that from July to December in the year 1941. During this period the cover page of the diary recites that the unit was subordinate to the 65th Corps which was under the command of one Bader, and was in Serbia and which in turn was subordinate to the defendant List through the deceased General Boehme. The entry for 7 July 1941 During this period the cover page of the diary recites that the unit was subordinate to the 65th Corps which was under the command of one Bader, Bader, and was in Serbia and which in turn was subordinate to the defendant List through the deceased General Boehme.

The entry for 7 July 41: "The 9th and 11th Companies, 737th Regiment under the leadership of Captain Rinkloben reached Borcane after 5 hours of climbing at 0430 hours, without contact with the enemy. In Borcane, 2 dead Serbs, some ammunition, and a few women and children were found. The Battalion is resting up there, will march back and will be transported at 1600 hours in Slatina. Borcane was set on fire, as the male population proved by its flight that it had participated in the combat."

The Daily Report: There is a note about the Honor company, of the 737th Regiment, which is to be ready for the reception of the Field Marshall, --and it is submitted that that refers to the General Field Marshall --- as well as the band of the 749th Infantry Regiment, and both of these units had arrived in Nish.

Then on the date of 21 July -- this is a report to the --partial extraction of the report to the 65th Corps -- on this date we note that the visit of General Field Marshal -- and here his name is recited -- List is progressing according to plan.

"On 20 July at 1000 hours, 11 men and 1 woman arrested by the 2nd Company of the 1st Battalion on 18 July 1941, were shot to death in Cacak by the Serbian gendarmerie under the supervision of the SS. Four men are from Caca; all the others from the neighborhood. Among the 11 men there was allegedly a top leader of the Communists in Serbia."

Then the next page is one that I don't think we need to do any more than note in passing that they report on the 6th of July that 10 houses were set on fire at Borcane and the note at the bottom of the page is self-explanatory.

Then on the following page, the Daily Report of 20 August 1941:

"One platoon of the 2nd Company of the 749th Regiment was transferred to upper Milanovac:" and then the recital about the 8th Company of the 737th Regiment being transferred, and under d "according to report of the Kragujevac District Headquarters, 8 Serbian gendarmes engaged in combat at about 0800 hours with a Serbian band at Knic (about 20 kilometers Southwest of Kragujevac). The "Jagdkommando" of the 3rd Battalion, 749 Regiment immediately went to their aid."

And the next entry: "The 'Jagdkommando' of the 1st Battaion, mentioned in yesterday's Daily Report, reached the Kablar-Height, Point 875 under the leadership of an agent towards midnight. The band was not found; however, on the heights North of the hiding place, machine gun emplacements were found. In one of them, half a box of ammunition was still left. Three persons who wanted to flee were forced by fire to stop; one of them was shot in the lungs and several suspicious persons were arrested. In one of the houses uniforms, shoes , saddles, saddle bags, belts, first aid kits, underwear, and a cap were found. In addition, uniform sleeping accommodation for 20 persons were found in the house. The house was burned down. The arrested were set free after exact identification except for one woman."

The the report of the 23rd of August, excerpt 5, states that: "The 749th Infantry Regiment reports that on 22 August at 1400 hours, 2 Serbian Communists who were arrested on 21 August by police bearing arms were then shot to death by a detachment of the 3rd Battalion and then hanged by Serbs before the Garrison Headquarters. The order for the shooting to death was issued by the competent Administrative Subarea Headquarters."

Then on the 25th: "The Higher Command orders close cooperation with the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters and the District Headquarters as well as the Serbian Authorities and the Serbian Gendarmarie so as to prevent innocent people from being subjected to measures of revenge."

Then the next page: "The 749th Infantry Regiment has carried out Operation Pohevac. Three persons suspected of being Communists were arrested and will probably be shot to death. Two houses set on fire; report follows."

And the portion for 27 August recites that: "The 3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment with two companies has set abandoned houses on fire in Bukurevac (8 kilometers west of Kragujovac) also in Dronak,"it recites "The place of yesterday's attack by bands in which one 2nd Lieutenant and three men of the "Jagdkommando", 3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment were killed. One Technical Sergeant was severely wounded and one sergeant and one private were slightly wounded. It is on march to Marsic (6 kilometers northeast of Kragujovac) where parts of the band are allegedly."

And then the report of the 28th recites "two houses of Communists burned down" and that on the 27th of August: "The Kraljevo gendarmarie arrested a man with a box of hand grenades; he will be shot to death. One Kilometer west of Kraljeveo, two haystacks burned down by unknown perpetrators. The Communist leader Petrovic shot to death, his house set on fire, three inhabitants of the house on 27 August in Rigjage (5 kilometers west of Cacak) arrested and one sniper taken care of by "Jagdkommando", 3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment. The teacher's house (Communist) burned down."

And then it recites: "Telephone line Uzice (50 kilometers West of Cacak) out. Ovcarska railway bridge destroyed. One sergeant and a private shot to death on tour of guard on 28 August by the local headquarters security at Krusovac, as he did not answer the challenge. In Vrdil 4 men with arms arrested. One of them is the brother of of the band leader Vilotovic. Three will be shot to death and their houses burned down."

And then the 4th of September: "the "Jagdkommando" of the 1st Battalion, 749th Regiment, at Zagreb (yesterday's report) 3 September at 1600 hours; traces picked up, two Communists shot to death, one of our own wounded.

Final result not yet received."

And under the Daily Report of that date: "Communists shot at salvage truck with one light machine gun in the morning of 5 September" and then they give the location. They give the German casualties: "1 sergeant dead, 6 men dead, 2 wounded, civilian assistant driver dead, interpreter wounded. Operation of the 1st Battalion, 749th Regiment on 6 September found no trace in 15 kilometer area; village destroyed at place of attack by artillery fire."

In the Daily Report of 9 September 1941 749th Infantry Regiment combed through various towns which are there set forth; on the 8th, 6 Communists shot to death and a truck of the National Guard Milanovac Landesschuetzen shot on 8 September at Rogojevac (10 kilometers west of Kragujevac) and that was set on fire by bands, "Jagdkommando" of the 3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment; a mayor and one Communist shot to death during the firing. The "Fighting discontinued on account of darkness; one soldier wounded."

The report of the 11th: "8 Communist dwellings destroyed by 1st Battalion, 749th Regiment."

The report of the 18th recites the Communist unit burning the the community archives of Vrba on the 17th; telephone apparatus was plundered there and further plunder on the night of the 18th. "The 6th and 7th companies, 737th Regiment combed through ammunition area around Mrsac and they shot at Communists' houses and then set them on fire."

The report of the 20th: "Guard of the 4th Company, 737 Regiment at the Morava Bridge arrested a man with two Serbian hand grenades and loaded pistol on 19 September and shot him in attempted flight."

The report of the 24th gives a supplement to a prior report: "A road bridge was blown up and 22 houses of known Communists at Ljubic were burned down."

And the report of the 25th I don't think needs to be read and the matter appearing on page 119 is also on the end of 118.

I might mention the last part of the report for the 25th that speaks of Krusevac, recites their own losses: 2 Captains, a Second Lieutenant and three men not belonging to the Division and some wounded; and then on the 24th, the prior day to the day of the report: "14 bandits were shot by courts martial and during operations(reconnaissance in town and terrain) 50 to 60 bandits were shot to death. Last night quiet."

The next pages, I believe, are self explanatory and we had considerable material from dates in September so I don't think they need to be commented on. That goes through pages 124 in the English text and page 87 of the German text.

Then turning to the matter contained on page 83 of the German text, and page 125, the entry for 4 October, is similar to those we have seen before, However, I would like to call the Court's attention to the last entry under that date which says:

"Assignment of 1000 workers at Kragujevac Arsenal or delivery to concentration camp requested."

And the report for the 5th:

"Two bandits, (having on them fuse and detonator) near Bogutovac, gasoline dump (10 kilometers Southwest of Kredjevo) shot dead. Kraljevo is carrying out raid on airplane factory, and arresting for the present 600 workers in the hall of the booty dump".

Further report for the 6th:

14 suspected Serbs delivered at concentration camp.

Soldier of 7th Company, 737th Regiment shot on way back, NCO of 2nd Battalion, 737th Regiment Staff missing. 3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment reached Milanovac on 1700 hours, 5 Oct. under continuous enemy fire, found blockades (12 tree -- 4 trench and 3 stone) as well as all bridges blown up. Own losses: 4 dead, 3 wounded, 170 male inhabitants at hand arrested and exchange for National Guard attempted. Intend to burn down town before marching off.

The entry of 9 October 1941 refers to a, work detachment and guard being shot at by strong enemy forces, and further that the 737th Regiment burned down several houses and 70 suspicious communists were shot to death. Then on 11 October the High Command orders repetition of the attack on upper Milanovac on 4 Oct., with the mission of taking hostages and burning down the town.

12 Oct. 1941..... and the further report of that date recites that "enemy menace from Ratine Southeast of Kraljevo averted localities from which shots came were set on fire".

Then re order of 13: The High Command orders revenge measures to be carried out for troop losses, 100 prisoners or hostages for every soldier or Volksdeutsche killed in combat or murdered and 50 for each man wounded.

This refers to the order of October 13, Which is Exhibit 88 in evidence, which appears in this Document Book at page 34, and is at page 27 in the German text.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, however, I have to object to a translation so that there will be no mistake. I found out that "Hoheres Kommando" is translated here as the "High Command".

THE PRESIDENT: What page and date do you refer to?

MR. DENNEY: 127 of the English, page 89 of the German, and the entry to which Dr. Laternser makes reference is the first three words under the entry of 13 October, 1941, which appears, if Your Honors please, in the middle of the page.

DR. LATERNSEER: The agency "Hoheres Kommando" is in my opinion wrongly translated with the word "High Command" because High Command could be understood as also the High Command (Oberkommando) of the 12th Army, while this concerns a definite agency, "Hoheres Kommando", which is a name, "Higher Command".

In this case, because this is a name, I would like the German term to be used, not the translation, the "High Command", because this translation means many things and the German text only means one thing.

MR. DENNEY: I assume that Your Honors will want some sort of a translation of this and not use the German word. We can hand it to the interpreter.

THE PRESIDENT: That has been the procedure followed before this Tribunal heretofore. Unless there is objection on behalf of counsel which this Tribunal feels has merit, we will follow the procedure that we have heretofore taken, and the document will be handed to the interpreter for interpretation, and the Tribunal will be guided by the benefit of the information given.

MR. DENNEY: I submit, if Your Honors please, that we believe that these words apply to the 65th special corps, which, of course, is the Unit above this, which appears in the basic information text which Your Honors have, and it is on Chart 8 of that Text.

THE PRESIDENT: The interpreter will give the interpretation.

MISS EVAND: This has so far been translated as corps, "65th Corps" special corps.

MR. DENNEY: That refers to General Bader's Corps which is the Command Echelon next above the division, the 717th from whose book these extracts are made, and the basic information chart being showed of that, shows that division as being under the command of the 65th Corps.

THE PRESIDENT: May I make this inquiry? The interpreter said that, "heretofore this has been so interpreted". Do I understand that this is also so interpreted at this time?

MISS EVAND: This is how it has been translated so far in all of the translations which came from the translation section.

THE PRESIDENT: What is your translation?

MISS EVAND: Our translation is the same. You can translate it "Higher Command" , but in this case it definitely means the "Corps" , the "Special Corps".

MR. DENNEY: It it will be of any help to the Court and defense counsel, we are willing to concede that the reference here is to the next higher command, which is the 65th corps; that will take care of the matter for everyone.

Of course, we do not say that it stops there, it goes on up, but that this reference here is just one step from Division up to Corps, and of course the Corps is below the Plenipotentiary General in Serbia who in his turn is subordinate to the defendant List, but this entry on the 17th of October, in the Diary of the 717th Division, refers in this record book to the next higher Echelon of Command.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, it ought be changed so that there can be no mistake in this place, at least it ought to be changed into the "higher Command", because the high Command here, probably means the Army; while the Higher Command gleans the next higher agency.

This is important because the German text is quite clear, while the English translation, if it remains like this, is ambiguous.

I do not know what sort of a part this could play in the future.

MR. DENNEY: The English text, to Higher Command, we will agree that this reference is to the 65th Corps, the next unit above, commanded by General Bader.

THE PRESIDENT: It seems to me in the light of the statements made by Prosecutor and the comments made by not only the defense counsel but also by the interpreter, that the court is fully advised as to the meaning of this statement here. However, it being agreed upon that it should read "Higher Command", it may be changed. The record may be changed to show so.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors, it is submitted that this order refers to the order of 19 October 1941. This is Exhibit 88 in evidence. Document NOKW 557, which appears at page 34 of the English text, and page 27 of the German text, in Document Book 3. Reference has been made to this on prior occasions.

On the 14th, the day following receipt the diary contains the note that the division issues Top Secret order No. 24: Arrest of Communists, Nationalists, Democrats and Jews - so far as guarding is possible - no hostages.

And there, that order of the prior date is being passed on to the lower troop units.

The daily report for the same date - bears the information that "On information about approach of troops, Milenkovic left Vrnjacka Banja with his men at 0930 hours. They bore the Soviet Star. At 1545 hours head of the column on march was 5 kilometers east of Vrba, advance march delayed by numerous blockades.

And then on the:

"16 October 1941 Division Orders: carrying out of revenge reprisal measures only on orders of the regimental commander. Report about number of hostages arrested and number of persons shot to death is to be rendered On the 5th, 15th and 25th.

"Daily Report:

"Kraljevo: 1900 to 1930 hours, 14 October, enemy artillery fire on agricultural school and air field. Attack mainly on agricultural school, with strong forces from 0500 hours, 15 October, on warded off. Enemy losses rose to about 100 dead. 0920 hours, state of emergency decreed. From 1000 hours on, situation clear. Second Lieutenant Loechl shot to death, 5 communists, 2 of those in German uniform at the Morava Bridge (4 kilometers east of Kraljevo). 1100 to 1200 hours, Stuka and reconnaissance plane activity. Shuttle tank for Wildermuth slightly damaged by three mines but repaired again. Towards 1800 hours shots from houses, 300 Serbs shot to death. 34 Volksdeutsche transferred to Krusevac. Our own losses - 14 dead, 20 wounded; among the dead, two officers.

"3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment reached Milanovac at 1815 hours on 15 October after overcoming six trench blockades, five blown-up bridges and three stone blockades; further losses of our own: wounded. Report of enemy losses not yet available. Milanovac on fire, hostages are being collected, marching off apparently last night."

And then on the next page, under date of 17 October, when they have a report for the 16th for Kraljevo:

"16 Oct: Enemy artillery fire 1615 hours: ten shots on air field; 1230 hours, 20 shots on air field and Morava Bridge (3 kilometers east of Kraljevo). 1000 hours to 1830 hours, 70 shots on agricultural school with about 30 hits, light damages to vehicles, houses searched in Kraljevo. For losses of 15 October up to the present all together 1736 men and 19 Communist women shot to death."

And, if Your Honors will recall, that's the same figure to which we referred on numerous occasions before -- the total figure of 1755, which we had first in the report with reference to the Kraljevo incident, and it was then later carried in General Boehme's report of "Onward to New Deeds". It appeared in the 21 October report, Chief of Police and SD, which is Exhibit 83, page 19 in the English and page 16 in the German.

And then I believe that's sufficient reference to it.

"1300 hours to 1800 hours electric current cut off. Own losses in Kraljevo: two dead, one wounded. Last night quiet. 3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment reached Donja Drnuca at 1515 hours, stayed there all night. Return march hindered by several concentrations of fire. (Own losses: two dead, two wounded, five horses) Ascertained enemy losses: 25 dead, among them one Serbian 1st lieutenant. Request continuous air reconnaissance, Direction Cacak and Raske, as well as repetition of use of Stukas against artillery ammunition dump (Bogutovac) 15 kilometers south of Kraljevo," And then in the daily report of 18 October:

"Daily Report.

"Report of Agents:

"At Kraljevo withdrawal of insurgents into the mountains. 202nd Armored Train guarding stretch shot at, Wildermuth group combing through Kovaci, Tresnjaci, Krusevica. Light resistance. Artillery fire from the north on Morava Bridge and airfield, from west on agricultural school and south part of Kraljevo. 3rd Battalion, 749th Regiment, back in Kragujevac at 1900 hours, 16 October. Milanovic burned down, 133 hostages taken along."

If Your Honors please, that refers to the same entry which appears in the Corps Diary of the 65th Corps, for the 19th of October, one day later, which is Prosecution's Exhibit 85 in evidence. It appears on page 23 of the English and on page 20 of the German, and in that same document, Exhibit 85 in evidence, on the first page, one page earlier, page 22 of the English, page 19 of the German, there's a reference of 18 October note - 717th Division - which refers to the losses which are listed here in the report of the 16th with reference to Kraljevo here, being the Prosecution's Exhibit 88, the report of the 717th Division, and the same total figures, 1736 men and 19 Communist women shot.

And in the next several pages, which are again similar to some of these we had before and cover the same dates --- that is the period during August. However, there are some notes. Passing first to page 93 of the German and page 133 of the English, being under the column "Prisoners Shot". On that page, under date of 12 October to 21 October, there appears 1 and 2000, and after the 2000 the word "hostages". And then, turning over to the entry for 14 to 17 October, which appears at the top of the next page, the same column, the fifth column over from the left, recital for the 3rd Battalion of the 749th Regiment at Milanovac, "Prisoners Shot" -- 2300 hostages. And then, down at the end of that page, page 134 of the English and page 93 of the German, they have totals for the division. Of the total for October 1941, under the same column there are 36 prisoners and 4300 hostages. That's under the entry "Prisoners Shot". And to the left of that is the entry under "Prisoners" -- 30 "enemy losses", and to the left of that, the "Enemy Wounded" --- "one and many more" -- and next to that the "Enemy Dead" for the month --- "498 and many more". And the German losses appear over on the right, total for the month, "58 to 59" dead, 135 wounded, and two missing. And the column 6, which is the last column just before the German losses, is headed, "Measures of Reprisal and the Like", and the total for October 1941 recites "31 houses and three villages and many more". And it is submitted that that refers to burnings, if the earlier portions of the report are examined. The date above the 30th has the notes in the same column, "Measures of Reprisal and the Like", to the effect that "all houses burned down". And above that "Milanovac burned down". And so on, back up to the first entry on page 130 in the English and page 91 of the German, which starts with 3 October, "three houses set on fire". Page 136 of the English and page 94 of the German--

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, may I interrupt please? I think we will take our morning recess at this time.

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: If it please your Honors, the next document is NOKW-1014, which is at page 94 in the German text, page 136 in the English text. These are extracts from the War Diary of the 717th Infantry Division in the cover page of the Diary.

May I see the original exhibit, please? If your Honors please, this is the 718th Infantry Division and not the 717th. However, it is still a division which is under the 65th Corps of General Bader; and for the period which is indicated on the cover sheet after 17 June 1941 before 31 December 1941. And the note on the cover sheet indicates that during this time this unit, this 718th Infantry Division, was under the 65th Corps.

The first entry is one for 3 August:

"During the night 28 to 29 July thirty hostages from Ilijas were shot to death for an attack on the military guard in Ilijas (about 18 kilometers northwest of Sarajevo) and for a fire attack on a Ustasa patrol. Order and execution by Ustasa.

"For sabotage during the night of 29 to 30 July in the heating plant of the state railroad in Sarajevo (some infernal machines had been put there) 20 Jews and Serbs were shot to death in Sarajevo."

Then 27 October 1941:

"The 823 Homeguard Riflemen Battalion reports that the insurgents have attacked Slatina - Ilidze. The Croatian guards have withdrawn Klasnica. A platoon of the 823 Homeguard Riflemen Battalion was sent marching towards Slatina, another platoon temporarily transferred to reinforce the guard in the munition depot of Kromarice to clarify the situation. The radio signal detachment attached to the platoon arrived in the munition depot at 2145 and has installed radio communications. Schiff (shipping) bridge in Mitrovica destroyed partially by flood and floating wood. Repairs are underway."

This is entry of 28 October 1941:

"The platoon of the 823rd Homeguard Riflemen Battalion has reached Slatina and removed the numerous Abatis on the roads. Thirty-six Jews and Communists were brought in from Slatina."

Then the notes of the 30th; there is one as of 11 minutes after one in the afternoon:

"Panzers had not been loaded since a road bridge in Tuzla has been dynamited."

Then 6th of November 1941, that is, 1709 hours:

"Result of mopping up operation 63 insurgents shot to death, 187 prisoners captured."

Then the entry for the 6th of November:

"Result of mopping up operations on 5 November; four insurgents shot to death, seven prisoners brought in."

That concludes Exhibit 109.

We now have an insert which is NQKW-1219. It is one page and we ask that it be marked page 139a in the English Book and 95a in the German. If Your Honor please, we would like to mark this for identification. Apparently we don't have the German copies here, so we mark it and pass it at this time. This will be Exhibit 110a for identification and we will not make any further reference to it other than to indicate that it is NOKW-1219 to be inserted as page 139a in the English Document Book III and 95a in German Document Book III and perhaps we can have the copy for this afternoon. In returning to the original pages of the book, on page 96 of the German Book III and page 140 of the English Book III is NOKW 1073, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 111 in evidence. These are extracts from the reports of the 154 Infantry Division for various dates in October and November 1941; one of the reports - the first one of 8 October - refers to activities in the month of September. This division, as will be seen from the contents of this report, is in Greece. The first entry is of 8 October 1941:

"Activity Report of the operations branch from 16 September to 30 September 1941.

"With the daily report of 21 September the Commanding General of XVIII Army Corps, Lieutenant General (Infantry) Boehme released the 154 Division from the unit of the Corps..." And that reference to the Corps Headquarters, of course, refers to the Headquarters and Staff of General Boehme, which Your Honors will recall following the Hitler order to List and the List order to Boehme. Boehme was transferred, with his staff, to Belgrade as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. And then the third paragraph entitled:

"Visits to the Troops:

"The visits of the Commander-in-Chief of the Twelfth Army (General Field Marshal List), announced for 17 November to Lemnos and Lesbos, were cancelled at the last minute and postponed to a later date."

And then the reference under:

"Combatting of Unrest.

"On 22 September two German soldiers fell in an armed attack of a Greek band on the road Evangelistria-Saloniki.

"The units are again advised as to the necessity for security measures. A search for weapons on 23 September carried out in the vicinity of the surprise attack had no great result; on the contrary, in an operation carried out on 29 September by the 382nd Infantry Regiment in the farther vicinity of the place of the surprise attack, 27 Greeks were shot, weapons collected and 11 houses burned down.

"The assumption appears justified that unrest has been avoided to a great extent by energetic counter-measures. Nevertheless the continuing Communist propaganda, as well as the difficult social and economic situation of the civilian population in the billeting area of the division, make a further increase in unrest seem probable."

And it is signed by an illegible signature, "Major, General Staff Corps". And there is a note to the effect that it has been seen by "Foltmann, Major General and Division Commander, 14 October 41".

Then the next entry is for 7 October, same division heading, and the Situation Report No. 1 recites activities of the 382nd Infantry Regiment and the 220th Engineering Battalion. on 12 September 1941 in the various localities listed, in which four Greeks, among them two bandit members, were shot, two others wounded, and seven civilians were arrested. Then it recites that:

"Even if the band could not be destroyed by this operation as a result of the great difficulties of terrain and the limited number of troops, nevertheless it appears to have been restricted in its activity by this operation. The other bands were seized in the area north of Evangelistria and consist obviously of unsettled, criminal elements, which are terrorizing the civilian population also. An armed attack in the vicinity of Evangelistria on a truck of the 521st Signal Regiment in which two soldiers were killed and the Greek telegraph worker was wounded may be attributed to it.

"These incidents led to a cleaning up action of the 382nd Infantry Regiment in the area of the localities Strymonikon, Dakriotisa, Zavgolato, Ginatos, sand Korforwuni (west of the Strymon) on 29 September. Twentyseven Greeks were shot in this, partly in flight, partly in attempting to offer resistance, and a few houses and shelters were burned down. A few days earlier during a search for weapons a Greek was shot in flight in the same area, in the locality Nesada."

And the distribution goes down to the three infantry regiments in the division, the artillery regiment, the signal battalion, and the Division Supply Officer for the 220th Regiment.

Then under date of 5 November, giving activity report for the last half of October, the same division:

"On the 18th of October Lieutenant General Kuntze takes over temporarily for General Field Marshal List. (General Kuntze) is well known to the division as the Commanding General in the Ardennes area during the fall of 1940."

Just so there is no lack of clarity on what the prosecution is referring to, that does not refer to the well known Ardennes offensive of 1944. This is the Ardennes area in 1940.

"Beginning with the 30th of October Guard Company Southeast, organized by the division, is immediately under the orders of the Twelfth Army."

Then it recites:

"The 125th Infantry Regiment and 1st Battalion of the 220th Artillery Regiment are no longer subordinated to High Command LXV, that is again 65th Corps, but directly subordinate to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia."

And then on the same report for the last half of October, under the heading, "Combatting of Unrest. The villages Ano Kerzilion and Kato Kerzilion (5 kilometers northwest of the mouth of the Strimon)" - this is on page 98 of the German book and page 8 of the original - "(5 kilometers northwest of the mouth of the Strimon) which according to proof had supported bands, were levelled by units of the Division on 17 October. The male inhabitants between 16 and 60 years (207 people) were shot, women and children were resettled. During a search for weapons in Mesouvunos (35 kilometers northeast west of Kozani) German soldiers were shot at from this village and from the neighboring settlement of Selli with rifle and machine gun fire. In accordance with an order of the Division these villages were handled more energetically on 23 October than was the case on 15 October. Both localities were burned down. The male inhabitants between 16 and 60 years of age (142 persons) were shot, women and children resettled. In the burning down of the villages Ano Kerzilion and Kato Kerzilion, as well as the villages Mesovunos and Selli munition still concealed blew up, although there has been another search for weapons and munitions, and although the inhabitants had repeatedly stated that they possessed no weapons or ammunition whatsoever.

"On 17 October one more of the Russian parachutists was rendered harmless by energetic action of the guard on the Strimon bridge in the direction of the Saloniki, Seres highway into Zilofon (20 kilometers northwest of the Strimon bridge named Sabone.) On 19 October one troop carrier of the Navy was shot at by bandits on the Seres Saloniki highway about 8 kilometers south of the Strimon crossing, in which 2 sailors fell, and the third was wounded.

As direct revenge measure 13 Communists were hanged on 20 October beside the highway. It can be assumed with safety concerning the villages Kizonia, Kliston, and Anbelofito (10 kilometers northwest of Evangelistria) that they likewise served as retreat for bandits. The 3 villages were levelled on 25 October. The male inhabitants between 16 and 60 years (60 persons) were shot, women and children were resettled farther away."

"The energetic assault of the units of the Division against the bandits doubtless makes a considerable impression the population. In some villages defense units armed with axes are organized which prevent the presence of foreign and suspicious elements and are supposed to report them. On 20 October two men suspected of being members of Communists bands, were delivered over to troops of the Division from the village of Efkarpia from the vicinity of the devastated localities Ano Kerzilion and Kato Kerzilion."

Then the report is again signed by a Major and General Staff Officer and it is indicated that it has been seen by the Major General and Division Commander.

And then there is a Situation Report No. 3. This is dated 21 October 1941 and concerns the inner political situation in the Divisional area and the neighboring territories for the week 13th to 20th of October 1941.

"Neighboring Territories," under the heading, "Old Serbia":

"The losses of the insurgents amounted to about 4300 men in the report period. Furthermore, 1736 men and 19 women were shot as reprisal measure for the attack on Kraljev. Total losses of the enemy up to now: 9605 dead."

And I would just like to direct the Court's attention to the figure "1755" which we have seen in the report of the 717th Division, the report of the 65th Corps, and also in the Boehme order.

Then the report with reference to the operation of bands, the operations against the bands. "The operations against the bands in the area West of the Strimon estuary mentioned in Situation Report No. 2 were carried out on the 12th of October and on a larger scale on the 16th and 17th of October. The bandit camps were found empty."

And then they again recite the operations with reference to the villages of Ano Kerzilion and Kato Kerzilion and the shooting of one Greek and the houses of band members who were not present in the village being burned; and then down farther "12 houses of absent band members were burned" in the villages of Zenvohori and Dafni and "the 220nd Engineer Battalion concluded the operation on 17 October.

The villages Ano and Kato Karzilion which had been proven to serve as a support point for the bands were levelled"; and we have again a reference to the people who were killed in the prior report, the same figure, "a total of 207 persons were shot to death, the male inhabitants between the ages of 16 and 60."

And then the Division Commander recites again the acts with reference to the attack on the 19th: "a passenger car of the Navy Commandant Saloniki was attacked by a band. A Naval Sergeant and Corporal were shot to death thereby and a sailor was wounded. In reprisal 13 Communists were hanged at the locality of the attack on 20 October."

And then the next report is one for the 28th, again giving the inner political situation in the Division area and the neighboring territories from 21 to 28 October, is a continuation of the prior report. It's somewhat more in detail. It takes up the activities of the Serbian insurgents. They were "still strong in the period of the report."

"Of special note in the way of sabotage acts are explosions of road bridges, power works, and rail installations among them the main railway Belgrade-Nis twice. The cleaning up actions in the area around Zajecar, Krusevac - Kraljevo - Cacak - Kragujevac, at Pozarovac, south of Belgrade and in the southern part of the bend of the Sava were continued partly under employment of Stukas and parts of the Hungarian Danube flotilla. In these the insurgents lost 1354 dead. In addition to this a blockade zone for the civilian population was created on both sides of the highway Krusevac - Kraljevo in a width of 3 kilometers. The transfer of the population situated within this blockaded zone is being carried out. To safeguard the main line Belgrade Nisch at 11 important objects a company each will be on permanent duty. At these points blockhouses, wire and other barricades will be constructed.

"The lasting impression of these operations on the resistance groups is characterized by the fact that for the first time an insurgent detachment"--if your Honors will bear with me a moment, I want to refer to the original; I don't seem to find it -- "insurgent detachment of 50 men presented themselves with their weapons to the Serbian Gendarmerie with out fighting.

It remains to be seen whether this was only an isolated occurrence or whether this was the beginning of the decline of the insurgent movement."

Then with reference to bands: "The villages, serving as bandit strongholds, Mesovunos and Selli, were levelled to the ground on 23 October 41"; and then it again recites: "The male population of these villages between the age of 16 and 60 years," and the number of persons shot and the Resettlement of the balance.

Then the next paragraph again recites the same figures with reference to 67 persons between the same ages and the resettling of women and children.

Turning then to the report of 10 November, the last page of Document NOKW-1043, which is page 102 in the German and 150 in the English, this is a report of the period 29 October to 10 November:

"In cooperation with the Secret Field Police the 382nd Infantry Regiment carried out raids on 31 October and 1 November in the area of Nigrita. 97 persons were arrested who have been active as Communists. Among the arrested there were also two bandits who after having been interrogated were shot to death on 1 November 41. The other 95 Communists were brought to the concentration camp Saloniki. Besides there was arrested on 2 November 41 in Nigrita a leader of bandits who was used by the 382nd Infantry Regiment as leader for the raid in the area of Kastanohori on 3 November. After the raid was over he was hanged to death on 4 November 41."

MR. DENNEY: And then turning to the last document which is in this book, page 103 of the German and page 151 of the English, Document NOKW-1017, offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 112. These are excerpts from activity reports of the 704th Division, which was one of the divisions under the command of the 65th Corps and, as the note on the cover sheet indicates, from the beginning of October to the end of December 1941 it remained under that command. The 704th here reports for the 2nd of October 1941, with reference to Valjevo:

"Jagdkommando 1st Battalion, 724th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Battalion 749th Regiment, ride to the relief of the raided convoy, 23 kilometers before Kragujevac on the road Belgrade, Topola, Kragujevac. 1 person blown to bits, severely wounded, 21 mutilated load found."

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors recall, this is the earlier report that we had at the beginning of this book. "1 house set on fire, all Serbs arrested in surroundings shot to death." And then they cite a Corps Command order of 13 October, which is Ia No. 908/41 in the Corps Order Book. This is exhibit 92; in this book it appears on page 152 in the English and on page 41 in the German. That, if your Honors recall, was the teletype order from the 65th Corps to the various units, and I believe it will be recalled that in the English every line was printed twice. It was an order from the 65th Corps to its subordinate units, and the Division made this entry about the order. They were stationed at Valjevo on the 13th of October 1941:

"Corps Commando orders: From now on for every soldier fallen in combat or murdered, 100 prisoners or hostages are to be shot to death. For the purpose there are to be arrested immediately in every Headquarters area as many Communists, Nationalists, Democrats and Jews as can be guarded without endangering the fighting efficiency. The purpose is to be made known publicly as well as to those who are to be arrested and their relatives. Reports about the shootings and arrests are to be made in the Daily Reports."

And then the Division passing the order down. Their order No. is 517/41, and they sent it down on the 20th.

"The Division orders: in the future wounded German soldier or German National 50, and for every killed or murdered German soldier or German National 100 Serbs are to be shot to death.

Borowski" "And then of the entry of the 22nd, two days later 50 Jews and Communists shot to death as reprisal for the soldier wounded during the raid on the armored train near Iverac on 20 October.

The Division reports number of arrested and shot to death during the period from 18 to 27 Oct. 41: 18 Oct 41 - 88 arrested 22 Oct 41 - 50 shot as reprisal for a wounded German soldier. It is submitted as the report of the entry for five days prior. 27 Oct 41 - 38 arrested. 9th Company of 433rd Infantry Regiment shoots to death Jews and gypsies in Belgrade as reprisal for German soldiers killed and wounded."

"The Division reports for the period from 27 October 41 to 7 November 41 that on account of replacement by the 342nd Infantry Division and ordered transfer no exercises were held outside the Headquarters and that arrests in Valjevo, as well as in Belgrade were carried out by (handwritten) troop units, not subordinated to the Division. The number of those shot to death by the 734th Infantry Regiment in Belgrade is 101.

" 29 Nov 41 Posarevac. The Division reports to Corps Command LXV that 50 were shot to death as reprisal measure, there remained therefore 38 of 88 hostages.

" 8 Dec 41. Staff of the 19 Bitol Cetnik Group reports: on 15 Nov skirmish between 250 Cetniks with 9 machine guns near Salakovac 7 kilometers southeast of Pozarevac, and 30 Communists. Enemy 8 dead, 2 severely wounded.

"On 16 Nov near Sapina, 15 kilometers southeast of Pozarevac a Communist band of 50 to 70 men dispersed. Enemy losses: 4 dead, 4 Communists taken prisoner.

"On 17 Nov 41 march to Gesljeva Bara, 23 kilometers east of Pozarevac, during march in small combats 12 Communists shot to death, a courier taken prisoner. The house of the mayor who cooperated with Communists set on fire. 1 Communist in Makei arrested and killed.

"On 18 Nov march to Srednjevo, 23 kilometers west of Pozarevac.

"On 21 Nov march to Vel. Gradiste, 21 Communists shot to death, 4 light machine guns, 1 heavy machine gun, 100 rounds ammunition, 50 hand grenades captured. And still further down, 20 Communists arrested, slaughtered and thrown into the Danube.

"On 25 March to Golubac, on the way 45 Communists shot to death, 10 wounded and killed. On 29 Nov in the village of Dobra, 28 kilometers east of Golubac on the Danube, 4 Communists leaders arrested who were sent to Belgrade."

MR. DENNEY: I now have the document which was marked as 110-a for identification, and I will ask that the Court turn back to page 139-a of the record. I hand the Counsel for Defense eleven copies of the document, and three for your Honors, one English and one German copy each for the translators and the reporters. This is the document to which reference was made earlier, The original bears the stamp of the 65th Corps, and the original is signed. It is a report from the 717th Infantry Division to its higher command, the 65th Corps. The report is dated 7 November 1941 and recites the subject as being "Results of the Operations of the 749th Infantry Regiment in October 1941". At the time, the 749th Infantry Regiment, as the Court has seen from Exhibit 109, was part of the 717th Division. And it was received on the 8th of November by the 65th Corps. The letter is addressed to "Corps Command for special assignment LXV."

"Infantry Regiment 749 reports the following results of the operations in October 1941:

1. Enemy losses: Dead 5073, among those 4300 as reprisal for soldiers wounded and killed in action. Prisoners 797 also shot, 5 hanged.

2. Own losses: dead 50 missing 4 wounded 92 For the Division Command:

signed: Hosterbath"

Page 453

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, I must object to the manner in which this document is used. This order consists of one page of three numbers, not two, as the Prosecution implies. He read only a part of the document. Just the third part, which gives the document a special significance, shows the extent and nature of the partisan warfare, and it would give the Court a special picture. It was omitted by the Prosecution. I think there is a limit to how one can use documents. In my opinion the limit was reached when the defense has to protest against the partly using of a document. In such cases in order not to give a false impression, the full document must be made available to the Tribunal. Mr. President, where is the limit to be? One would omit sentences in case the Prosecution's standpoint should be approved. One could omit words. For instance, if the point of view of the Prosecution is correct, one could omit a "not", which would completely change the meaning of the document. The limit is there when the Defense objects to parts of the document, the Prosecution must be obliged to submit the whole document. In this case it is a very short order, and so this demand is not unreasonable. In No. 3, the booty captured comprises a whole list of items which indicate the nature of the fighting between the German troops and the insurgents.

MR. DENNEY: Dr. Laternser may read in the balance of the order. It just lists what they captured. Our good faith is shown by the fact we gave them the whole document. We have no objection to his reading it into the record at this time.

THE PRESIDENT: It being agreed by the prosecution that the matter to which Dr. Laternser objected may be read into the record, Dr. Laternser may so read it at this time if he so desires.

DR. LATERNSEER: Very well.

MR. DENNEY: Unless it is desired that the interpreter read it.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

INTERPRETER von SCHOEN: Very well.

MR. DENNEY: I would like to state for the record, at this time that any time there is any part of a document which we have not read into the record, if the defense counsel will just indicate that he wants it read in, we have no objection. The court being, that, as the court knows, and I believe defense counsel, the translation facilities are somewhat pressed, and we do not try to have translated any more than is necessary. However, we always furnish defense with the complete document from which we translate an excerpt, and if they will just indicate what they would like to go into the record, I am sure that we will make every effort to comply with it.

THE PRESIDENT: The interpreter may read that portion of the document which has been commented upon.

INTERPRETER von SCHOEN: "67 mines; 3 machine guns; 48 rifles; one sub-machine gun; 8 pistols; 3 artillery carriers, with over 300 rounds of ammunition; over 30,000 rounds of infantry ammunition; 200 grenades; 31 bicycles; one typewriter; 31 blankets; 2 saddles; one field kitchen; 2 native vehicles; 3 muskets; telephone cable with 5 telephones; explosives; many hand grenades, food; 95 cattle; 116 pigs; 38 calves and 23 sheep."

THE PRESIDENT: Does that complete the portion that is claimed is not included in the translation furnished in the document book?

I am making the inquiry of the interpreter.

INTERPRETER von SCHOEN: Yes, your Honor.

MR. DENNEY: In order that the record may be clear, if your Honors please, that is all of the document. That is all there is to it.

Now we have some additional documents to be inserted at the end of this document book. The first one is, -

Before we continue, I might ask of the representative of the Secretary General's office to make sure that the letter "a" has been stricken from Exhibit 110 in evidence. The last document which is offered. It was marked 110a, for identification, and now, if your Honors please, I believe it is 110 in evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: The record may so show.

MR. DENNEY: We now hand to the Secretary General's representative, the first document which we offer as Exhibit 113 in evidence, it being document NOKW 1665, and three copies in English to your Honors, 11 copies in German to counsel for the defendants, English and German copies for each of the Court Reporters and the Translators. We ask that this be inserted in Document Book 3a, at the end of the book, and in the English that it bear the page numbers, 157; for page 1; which goes through to the one line; under the entry of October 3, page 158 for page 2; 159 for the third page and 160 for the fourth, the certificate of the translator.

If Dr. Laternser will be kind enough to indicate the last page in the German book 3, we can assign page numbers to that.

DR. LATERNSE: 106 is the last page.

MR. DENNEY: The first page in the German copy will be 107, second 108, third page 109. This is an extract from the war diary of the 18th Mountain Corps which was under the Command of the Wehrmacht Commander southeast, as is recited on the cover page, and also the 12th Army Headquarters for the 18th Mountain Corps, which was commanded by the deceased Boehma, and he also was the officer who held the post of Plenipotentiary Commanding General Serbia.

There is an entry of 19 Oct. 1941, which states, "Order to shoot 50 hostages in retaliation for the wounding of a soldier of 220th Anti-Tank Battalion, and then report to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12th Army Headquarters on arrest of hostages.

Then under the date of 19 October, your Honors will recall that we have been concerned in the earlier pages of this book with the incident at Valjevo, and here it recites an order to the Corps Commander No. 65th concerning the execution by shooting of 2200 serbs in retaliation for 10 German soldiers killed, and 24 wounded from units encircled at Valjevo.

On the date of the 33rd, the Corps'diary recites the report by the 2nd Battalion of the 521st Army Signal Regiment on execution by shooting, and your Honors will recall that report which was from the Major who was the signal officer, and enclosed the report of the Lt. who recited the shootings which took place on the 9th and 11th of October 1941.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, I should like to point out that what the prosecution has just submitted is merely an assertion which has to be proved. What this report referred to is the document of the 2nd Signal Regiment; what the prosecution has just said is merely an assertion.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I was especially careful in this reference to it, to just direct the Court's attention to the earlier documents, just in connection with the entry from this diary where they recite those instances. I especially directed the court's attention to the earlier documents which the court has seen were in similar numbers, with reference to people involved and similar units by regiment and battalion number were offered and received in evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: You are now referring to the entry of October 23, 1941.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: And this statement as here incorporated, is so incorporated in the original document?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor pleases, I can examine-

THE PRESIDENT: I mean in this diary we are referring to here?

MR. DENNEY: I do not know the exact words are incorporated, but the substance, it is submitted, your Honor, is the same. I have not checked them for a verbatim reference, but I see it is now approaching the time for adjournment.

Perhaps if the Court sees fit to adjourn at this time, I can check them during the noon hour and advise the court when we reconvene.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, the court will recess at this time until one-thirty.

AFTERNOON SESSION (The Tribunal reconvened at 1330 hours, 21 July 1947)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. MENZEL: (Counsel for the defendant Kuntze): Your Honor, before the session begins, I would like to report the following: Dr. Marx for the defendant General Dehner is sick. He has asked me, during the session, to represent him. I would like to ask if this is an order.

THE PRESIDENT: There is no objection on behalf of the prosecution, is there?

MR. DENNEY: No, if Your Honors please.

THE PRESIDENT: Inasmuch as the defendant will be represented by counsel through this counsel now appearing, the Tribunal has no objection and you may do so.

DR. MENZL: The German translation didn't come through. Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

The order to Corps Commander Number 65, concerning execution by shooting of 2200 Serbs in retaliation for 10 German soldiers killed and 24 wounded. In Diary entry, exhibit 113, it says "from units encircled at Valjevo", and the order, Exhibit 84, "members of troop units besieged in Valjevo." The entry of 23 October '41, which appears on page 157 of Exhibit 113 in evidence; Your Honors' attention is directed to Exhibit 80 in evidence which is the report of the lieutenant of a company of the 521st Signal Regiment, the Second Battalion, and the commanding officer of the Second Battalion then reports to the Senior Signal Officer, and in addition to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Belgrade. An at page 6, the distribution list of the Major's report, the commanding officer of the second Battalion, 521st Regiment. And the Distribution list as was pointed out to Your Honors at the time contains the 12th Army, Plenipotentiary Commanding General, 18th Corps which is Boehme; and also the 65th corps. And the entry of 23 October 1941 in the exhibit under discussion, the unit recited there, Second Battalion, 521 Army Signal Regiment, appears.

Turning then to page 158 in English, still in Exhibit 113 in evidence, still under the date of 23 October, conference with the Chief of Military Administration about the shootings at Kraljevo and Krajojevac. And the next day another conference; this time the State Councilor Turner on the 24th about occurrences at Krajojevac and Kraljevo. The 31st October recits an order to the Town Commandant of Belgrade to shoot 200 hostages. The date of 3 November, a Lt. Krambacher saw the Counsel for War Administration Dr. Kiesel, about supposed arbitrary shootings by units at Kraljevo, and then it says that the 822 District Headquarters did not participate in the selection.

And I don't think we need to pay any attention to the next notation.

27th of November of '41, order to list by name hostages to be shot; and then the 29th -- or 28th, a call from Captain Schuster: "What is to be done with Mihailovic Checkneks, a reception camp at Belgrade, a transfer to concentration camp to Sabac ordered. The 30th, an order about reporting a discussion of retaliation measures. The first discussions between 1st Lt. Krambacher and Inspector Belderman concerning reports on hostages by the Administrative Staff in addition to the ten day reports. May I see the original, please?

These next pages were taken out of order when the document was translated and the next entry should have appeared earlier.

4 October, verbal request to the Chief of the Military Administration in Serbia, an order that 342 Corps, Signal Battalion 449 by shooting prisoners in Sabac and Belgrade in retaliation for murders of 21 German soldiers at Krajojevac on 2 October, and that, it is submitted, refers to the prosecution's exhibit 78 in evidence; and it is to be noted in this connection, page 1 and 2 of the English text, that the penciled note which is on the original, which has been offered, that is on the copy which has been offered, states only "verbally ordered" and also here, under 4 October 1941, it says "verbal request", and the units again are the same 449. And the shooting details from the 342th.

and here again the 342 appears in Exhibit 113 as it does in Exhibit 78, and the town Brenolvac is mentioned here as it is in the first sentence of Exhibit 78.

Turning then to Exhibit 113, the last comment under 30th October, "ordered the town commandant of Belgrade to shoot 200 hostages." That is with reference to this last order, it is apparent that in the entry for 31 of October, are the same; and from the original it appears that the reservation is for the 30th. Therefore, the prosecution withdraws that section of this document which appears under date of 31 October on page 158. There is only one order to the town commandant of Belgrade to shoot 200 hostages, not two.

Then we ask that the next document which is NOKW1662 be inserted at the end of the record as Exhibit 114. In the original there are two pages which will be pages, English 161 and 162, and if Dr. Laternser would indicate the last page of Exhibit 113 in the German, it will become 110 and 111. Three copies to the court, one each in German and English for the reporters and the translators, eleven copies in German for the defense counsel, and the original for the Secretary General. Will you get the original back for me a minute?

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, I object to the introduction of this document. It is not signed. It has no proper heading from which I can see where the document comes from. I would also like to point out to the Tribunal that the pages -- at the bottom page 42 and the next page is number 43. It seems to be completely taken out of its proper connection and I object to the introduction of this document.

MR. DENNEY: I would like to point out, with reference to the numbers that are at the bottom, these are just numbers that are put on in Washington when the documents are sent over so that they can identify them. The 42 and 43 which appear at the bottom here.

It is conceded that the document is not signed. There is some sort of a mark at the end of it but again it is offered for what it is worth and it does recite a communication to someone whoever drafted the document, an inquiry by the Commanding General Southeast, and it gives the diary number of that communication in the heading.

THE PRESIDENT: It is apparent that this is one of the documents which was taken at the close of the war and is a war document or at least found in the effects of the Germans.

It will be taken for such probative value as the court cares to give to it, and the objection is overruled.

MR. DENNEY: At the top, "The department of National Defense, 21 December 1942. Subject: Use of troops of Allied states for security of Serbia." Then it says "Answer to the teletype of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast of 20 December 1941," and of course at this time the defendant Kuntze had taken over as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. "Department National Defense" -- then it gives the number "2219/41 Top Secret."

The proposal of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is based on the instructions of the Department for National Defense that industrial areas important for German war supplies shall not be occupied by alien troops. In the opinion of the Dept. for National Defense/IV this principle ought to be adhered to, if we want to continue to extract badly needed raw materials and food supplies from Serbia.

Experience up to now shows that from the areas occupied by allies in essential economical advantage does not result for Germany. A separation of the administration and economical exploitation from the security does not appear expedient as the German administration in Serbia, small in numbers relies almost exclusively on troops and indigenous police for its executive. A German administration in an area occupied by foreign troops would lead to troubles in the Balkans still greater than those in the Ukraine.

In order to continue to exploit for Germany, the Serbian areas important for the war effort, we propose to follow in general the proposal of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, concerning the limits of the areas of Serbia to be handed over to foreign troops.

In modification of the pre-requisite required in Para. 1b, it is to be settled, that the areas occupied by the Bulgarians are also to be administered by the, reserving the final fixing of the borders.

And then the last document which we wish to append to this book is NOKW-1661 which will become Exhibit No. 115. I beg your pardon, that is withdrawn. I was in error; that seems to be one that goes in the next book. There was one document which we passed on Friday to which I would like to call the Court's attention. It is NOKW1378 and appears on page 69 of the German and page 93 of the English. This is your report which was, I believe, the Secretary General has the original copy of that. We didn't receive it. It is not in Court?

Well, perhaps we'd better wait until a later time to refer to it. That concludes the Third Document Book, your Honors. We will now proceed with Number Four.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, before proceeding with the presentation of the documents in Document Book IV, we should like to insert one document in Book II. I have eleven copies in German for the defense counsel of NOKW-1661 which we ask to be marked Exhibit 40-A, three copies in English for your Honors -

THE PRESIDENT: What was the exhibit number given it?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Exhibit 40--A, your Honor. One copy in English and German, each, for the stenographers and court interpreters, and the original document for the Secretary General.

Your Honors will recall that Exhibit No. 40 in Document Book No. II, page 20 of the English and on page 18 of the German, referred, to the execution of twenty Communists in retaliation for three German soldiers killed in a surprise attack on the mine of Rtanj.

Exhibit 40 was an extract from the War Diary of the Commanding General in Serbia. The exhibit which we are now concerned with, Exhibit 40-A, ties in with that earlier exhibit. We ask that it be given the page numbers 20-A, 20-B, and 20-C in the English and 18-A, B and C in the German. This is a report from the Military Commander in Serbia, Administrative Staff, dated Belgrade, August 9, 1941, to the OKW Department National Defense Wolfsschanze via Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Its subject is a telephone call from Lt. Col. von Trippelskirch to Ia Major Fentz.

Colonel von Stockhausen, Commander of the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters in Uzice, had ordered the shooting of a great number of Serbs in reprisal for an attack on German police drivers, during which one man was killed and one man was kidnapped, near the locality of the incident. A police company collected 81 Serbs from the surrounding villages and from the fields and forced Serbian Gendarmerie to shoot them. The consequence of this incident was a temporary Governmental crisis and an effect of shock on the population. This affair could, be straightened out almost immediately so that peace was achieved through this local incident. Contrary to the report of the Foreign Office the situation is very tense. Sutable measures are under way.

(signed) Dr. K i e s s e l The next page, 20 b in the English and 18 b in the German, is a communication from the Commandant of the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters, from Freiherr von Bothmer, to the Commander Servia, Command Staff, and it is dated Nis 27 August 1941 and the receipt stamp of the 28 August 1941 of the Military Commander in Serbia.

It appears in the upper right hand corner of the document. The subject is: Attack in Rtanj.

Belgrade Enclosed please find report of the 3rd Company of the 920th Local Defense Battalion concerning the attack in Rtanj.

At the same time Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters requests orders for 15 to 20 Communists who are in jail as hostages here in Nis to be shot dead and hanged in Rtanj in answer to the shooting of German soldiers. The application has been delayed up to now because the deputy of the Security Police has recently been absent almost constantly. Therefore the investigation could not be concluded as to whether the people who were turned over to us, actually are Communists. Caution is indicated since again and again people who had nothing to do with the matter are brought in because of denunciations based on vengeance and the like.

The Commandant of Administrative Headquarters In the lower left-hand corner of the document there is written in hand this notation:

Hostages may be shot anyhow. Why this inquiry?

On page 20 c of the English and page 18 c of the German, we have another communication referring to the same matters. It is from the Commander Serbia, Command Staff, dated Belgrade 2 September 1941. Again the subject is: Attack on Rtanj, and the reference is to the preceding document. The communication is to the 809th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters, Nis:

"Under proper conditions, hostages may be shot or hanged without further ado.

"Consequently, this also applies to the 15-20 hostages detained there as a reprisal measure for the shooting of German soldiers during the attack in Rtanj.

"For the Commander Serbia, The Chief of the General Staff, signed Granvenherst, Lt. Colonel, General Staff Corps."

This document, if Your Honors please, is offered in reference to particularly 5 b of Count I of the indictment.

Passing now to Document Book 17. Document Book 17 is a collection of orders and reports from various subordinate units to higher headquarters. There are, for example, reports from the Division Subordinate to General Boehme to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, as well as reports from various units subordinate to General Bader as the Commander in Serbia. In general these reports are of an operational or tactical nature. We have extracted from those reports only those portions which concern matters in the indictment and even as to those extracts which we have translated I think it is not necessary to read in their entirety all of those references but simply to point out to Your Honors that those from a Prosecution standpoint seem to need particular attention.

The first document is on page 1 of the English and page 1 of the German, Document NOKW which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 115. This is a series of daily reports from the 342nd Infantry Division to General Boehme as Plenipotentiary General in Serbia. The reports, in all cases, are signed Ia, 342nd Division and are addressed to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Belgrade. They reported 24 September 1941, and concerns the mopping up of Sabac. The participating units are listed and then the report continues:

The mopping up operation was connected with the occupation of the Chemical Works and the settlement there which were outside of the former security line.

The complete operation is not yet concluded.

The selection of the men, which has happened until now without friction, about 4000 men up to 1700 hours who are being kept temporarily in the collection camp west of the bridge Sabac.

Searching for arms and ammunition has started, but up to now has been without results.

Neither during the occupation of the Chemical Works we encountered no enemy, nor at first during the searching of the adjacent settlement. At 1600 hours the enemy opened violent rifle fire from covered terrain south and southwest of the settlement on the troops in the settlement and were answered by heavy artillery-, anti-tank-, machine gun and rifle fire.

At present we hold Sabac, the Chemical Works and the settlement, the operation will be continued tomorrow.

Own losses are not reported from the mopping up and combat operations up to now.

This morning 2 civilians shot dead who had been encountered in the fields with weapons in their hands.

The daily report of from 24 to 25 September 41. Course of the operations was given. I direct Your Honors' attention only to the fifth line of paragraph a :

"During the night 4 enemy reconnaissance groups were pushed back on the South and West fronts of Sabac."

Under the paragraph beginning "Impression":

"Focal point of enemy forces in difficult terrain to survey to the south of Sabac. The strength can not be estimated. Up to now only rifle fire. The population is composed, without any considerable insubordination."

Continuing on page 3 of the English and page 3 of the German: The daily report of 24 to 25 September under "Prisoners and Booty":

"3500 - 4000 male inhabitants of Sabac arrested. Delivery of arms up to now considerable. Exact enumerations in progress.

"Losses: Own losses of the unit up to now 5 wounded. In addition 1 racial German dead.

On the enemy side: 4 dead. 39 Inhabitants shot dead."

The daily report of 25 to 26 September 41: I call Your Honors' attention only to paragraph e on page 4 of the English which is also on page 4 of the German:

"Prisoners and Booty: Arrested 4410 men.

"Arms found 1 Machine Gun model 34, found in a cornfield.

1 Rifle an indefinite amount of ammunition.

Wounded of the Division: the Commander of the 9th Company of the 698th Infantry Regiment and 1 man also 1 man of the II. Battalion of the 750 Infantry Regiment. Losses on the enemy side not established.

6 more inhabitants shot dead."

The daily report of 29 to 30 September 41: I think here again I need only call Your Honors' attention to the paragraph under "Prisoners and Booty " which appears on page 5 of the English and on page 5 of the English and on page 5 of the German:

"The unit reported 1870 prisoners, 1 Machine Gun and several rifles with ammunition. A vehicle belonging to the baggage column was captured in the area of Pricinovic.

"Of the prisoners 190 men could be selected by interrogation as forming a communist group at the village of Uzveco.

"These men will be shot today.

"Losses:

"Own unit 2 dead by own fire during the night.

Of the enemy 84 men shot dead."

Turning next to page 6 of the English and page 8 of the German the report of the Major General and Commander of the Division, Dr. Hinghofer, to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

Subject: 10 day reports and monthly reports. This report of the 29th of September 1941:

In compliance with order of 23 September 41, during the period from 24 to 27 September the male population of Sabac between the ages of 14 and 70 years was evacuated by the division.

During the evacuation of Sabac and the mopping up of the Save/Drina river bend the division suffered 3 dead and 20 wounded.

On the enemy side 830 men were shot dead and 8400 were arrested and taken away.

I direct Your Honors' attention only to the comparison of the German losses and the enemy losses.

The daily report of 3 to 4 October 1941. Again I think the only paragraph important is that under "Losses" which is on page 7 of the English and page 8 of the German:

"Losses: Own unit: none. Of the enemy 10 men shot dead."

Continuing with the report of the Division of 9 October 1941, on page 7 of the English and page 8 of the German. Subject: 10 day report concerning Prisoner and Booty.

"To the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia Quartermaster Branch. Belgrade.

"During the period from 24 September to 9 October at 1600 hours the enemy suffered the following losses:

"83 Fallen in Combat; 1127 Shot dead; 17420 Prisoners."

Signed For the Headquarters of the Division, Second General Staff Officer Captain.

On page 9 of the English and page 9 of the German is a table showing the losses of the division, the losses of the enemy, and booty for the period from 24 September to 9 October inclusive. Under "Own losses", you will note number "23 wounded", and "2 dead". Under "Enemy losses", no wounded listed, 20 fallen, 1126 shot to death, 20,575 captured. The table continues on page 10 of the English, which is page 9 of the German; and the totals at the bottom of the page are as follows: Own losses, wounded 26, dead 3. Enemy losses: wounded 1, fallen in combat 88, shot to death, 1,127; captured 21,440.

Continuing on page 11 of the English and page 11 of the German, the Divisional report of the 13th of October 1941, daily report of 12-13 October '41.

"Own intentions: Systematic combing out of the Iverak-and the Cer-mountains, preparation for the attack against Krupanj. About 100 civilian prisoners will be shot dead as reprisal measure today." I think we may skip now to page 12 of the English and page 13 of the German.

The report of the 342 Division for 11 November 1941:

"Since 10 November 41 the 697th Infantry Regiment is located in the area Ub, the 698th Infantry Regiment, after transient billets in Valjevo, in the area Lajkovac, the 699th Infantry Regiment and the Division Staff in Valjevo; no contact with the enemy.

On the roads Sabac, Valjevo and Sabac, Ub no new destructions.

Battle Headquarters: Group 697 Ub Group 698 Lajkovac Group 699 Valjevo Group 342 Artillery Regiment Valjevo Division Staff Valjevo Of the 160 shootings ordered in the radio message of 7 November 1941, 1830 hours 129 were carried out as there were no more hostages available in the Sabac concentration camp."

The Prosecution's next document is on page 14 of the English and page 14 of the German, Document NOKW-1060, which is prosecution Exhibit 116.

This is a series of reports of the 717th infantry Division to General Bader, Commander of the 6th Special Corps Command. The report is dated the 5th of October 1941. The receipt stamp of the 6th Special Corps Command, showing it received the report on the 6th of October 1941 appears on the top, right-hand portion of the document. The subject is employment in area around Rekovac. "Reports that we have received state that there are fairly large groups of bandits with well equipped camps in the area around Rekovac (36 kilometers northwest of Krusevac). For the purpose of combatting the bands and the destroying the camps the Division intends to employ the following:" and then follows the operational detail with which we need not be concerned at this time.

Turning now to the bottom of page 15 of the English, which is also page 15 of the German: "Judging from past experience it is to be feared that this assault may possibly be of little effect – that is, the bands may be driven away, but not annihilated. It will be necessary to give the troops clear instructions as to what is to be done in such an event. The instructions may be: 1. Propaganda and menace; 2. incendiaries; 3. arrest of hostages; 4. arrest of entire male population except children and men of old age. Proposal of the Division: Point 21 and Point 24.

To 1.)

Propaganda speakers of the Serbian Government will accompany the troop and enlighten the population in a propagandists way with a simultaneous threat that the most radical means will be used (extermination of whole communities).

To 2.)

When giving this order, approval of the execution has to be asked for in every case.

To 3.)

Statement of census for every community is requested.

To 4.)

As the shooting to death of men not found with arms, does not appear expedient, it is proposed that they be taken prisoners. In this way it is guaranteed that no innocent ones are shot to death, that the guilty – after having hidden their arms do not escape, to take up arms again. Therefore one must see that the prisoners are taken away. Hereby we ask for orders and the approval of the Plenipotentiary General in Serbia, in so far as this is necessary for reasons of principle.

The necessary transfer of units for this operation into the area of neighboring Divisions, will be settled in direct agreement with the 714th Infantry Divisions.

It is requested that the persons designated (Security Service and Liaison Office) be committed to strictest secrecy on this matter. (signature) Hoffmann."

On page 17 of the English and page 16 of the German is another report of the 717 Infantry Division to the 65th Special Corps Command. The receipt stamp, 11 October 1941 appears on the document. The report itself is dated 10 October 1941. "The last events have shown that the disturbances and destruction of communication lines (railways, roads, etc.) brought on by insurgents and bands could up to now, not be adequately prevented. The reasons for this are known. It has been confirmed that especially in the sector 749th Infantry Regiment the adversary is advancing from west to east according to plans and trying to encircle Kraljevo and to cut it off, all around, just as was done before with Cacak. Novacovic was already sighted on 5 October in Vrnjacka Banja at a conference of leaders and is now with several units near Alexandrovac and south of Kraljevo.

The enemy units are being led tactically correct (Serbian officers and soldiers!). Their fighting force and leadership has essentially improved. Roads important for us, railways, etc., have been destroyed according to plans in the area Cacak, Kraljevo, Kragujevac, Krusevac.

It can be assumed with certainty, that the bands - encouraged by the local successes they have had up to now - will now try to destroy our most important artery of communication:

the railway and road Belgrade - Nisch - Salonika. In order to prevent this, it seems necessary, in addition to the measures of protection taken up to now to install an "obstacle zone" on both sides of the railway and road. This forbidden zone - on both sides of the railway line and road or around most important places (mines) 3 kilometers wide or with a radius of 3 kilometers - must be evacuated entirely (first of all at especially endangered spots) of all civilian population! It will be best to have the Serbian Government make the necessary decree. This area should be declared a "Combat Area" and is to be evacuated in the interest of the civilian population which does not fight and is not to suffer innocently. In view of the situation such an apparently severe measure is necessary. Such measures for example were also carried out with our own German population at the time of the west wall construction. Mines, must be placed around the most important railway bridges and tunnels! I already made such proposals orally at Corps Headquarters a few weeks ago.

Further measures - taking into consideration and employing the Balken customs, in my opinion, would be:

1.) The seizure of idle young men loafing about in towns and villages (Concentration Camp.)
2.) Establishment of a "Labor Service" by the Serbian government.
3.) Employment of Servian propaganda speakers and propaganda activity of the Serbian government (via the mayors and above all the heads of communities of the villages situated near our most important objectives) (possibly cars with loud speakers) as a measure of combatting Communist propaganda. These Serbian speakers should be obliged to follow the troops on every operation or this propaganda should be carried out by the interpreters of the troops themselves (the latter is not so effective).

Contents:

Situation in Russia Situation in Serbia To emphasize that these momentary local successes of the bands can alter nothing with regard to final outcome of the war.

The entire Serbian people will now feel the might of greater Germany in all its weight. Now, whether Serbia will exist in the future or not, is dependent wholly on the behavior of all Serbs.

Threats of draconic measures in case of repeated sabotage acts or the like, whereby the complicity of the whole Serbian people is emphasized. The peasants must take steps for self-protection!"

Then, if Your Honors, please, in the margin by paragraph D, there is written this note: "To threaten is useless, only action." Continuing at the bottom of page 19 in the English, page 17 in the German.

"An example: In a village near Paracin the population capable of carrying arms was forced to join the bands. After they were armed they raided the bandits and killed 15 of them. They captured another 15. Other peace loving inhabitants were provided with the captured arms, a Gendarmerie Officer was requested who was immediately sent from Nisch to take over the leadership. The 2 enclosed "Articles may be of use to the propaganda speakers or interpreters.

Setting up posters and large billboards on which operations in Russia, number of prisoners taken etc. are indicated in Serbian. This has proved itself effective in the area of the Division!

Transfer of the arrested men to work outside of Serbia (Albania, Hungary and Bulgaria), this also at first only as a "threat"!

Influencing the women, especially with reference to paragraph 3 d and paragraph 5. Promise of immediate release of the arrested men, in case their cooperation leads to the arrest of bandits.

Imposing a war contribution.

Hostages especially priests and teachers.

Page 477

Ransom fees! This must also be brought to the knowledge of the peasants in the measure of propaganda. Appeals in newspapers, which they cannot read, are no good.

Work still more with agents and stool pigeons!

Reprisals against relatives of the Serbian prisoners of war who were "released" at a certain time.

Regulations for behavior in winter!

Preparations for the suppression of bandits must be made now. As experience has shown, bandits come out of their hiding places when the cold season begins, and go back into the villages where they spend the winter safely sheltered as "harmless peasants".

"The bands who stay in the woods during the winter will give themselves away by their campfires or smoking huts and should be spotted in the great forest areas by airplane reconnaissance." The report is signed "Hoffman."

Continuing with page 21 of the English and page 19 of the German, we see the order of 16 September 1941 from the High Command of the Wehrmacht, signed "Keitel" which has already been introduced into evidence as Exhibit 53. The document here shows that the 65th Corps Command for Special Purposes received the Keitel directive on the 11th of October 1941. I think we need not read the Keitel directive at this time.

Beginning on page 24 of the English and page 21 of the German is a report from the Commander in Serbia, administration Staff, dated "Belgrade 1 November 1941" to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, Corps Command 65, and the Command Staff, Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and SD. The subject is the "Arrest of Hostages", and the report is stamped received by the 65th Special Corps as of the 2nd of November 1941.

"The Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and the SD was instructed, in cooperation with the Chief of Police of the city of Belgrade to arrest a number of about 700 representatives of the Belgrade population as hostages. The persons in question are nearly exclusively representatives of the intelligentsia, whose attitude in the past years was hostile to Germany and who for the greater part belonged to Free Mason lodges or are Communists. The operation will begin suddenly on Tuesday, 4 Nov. 41 at 2000 hours and will probably be terminated in the early morning hours. The arrested will at first be kept in concentration camp "Transit Camp Dedinje". Anxiety for the lives of the above will probably deter large groups of the anti-German population from any activity.

"Nevertheless I believe that special care is to be taken during the days which will follow. In this connection I draw attention to the report of a reliable confidential agent of the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and the SD, according to which individual terrorist measures are being prepared by the Communists, directed against high military and political personalities of the occupying power."

The report is signed: "For the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, The Chief of the Administration Staff, Turner."

Prosecutions next document begins on page 27 of the English and page 22 of the German. It is Document No. NOKW-891 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 117. This is again a collection of reports, this time from the 704th Infantry Division. The first report -- rather, the first document -- on page 27 of the English is an order from the 65th Special Corps Command to the 704th Infantry Division, a subordinate unit. The division's receipt stamp appears on the right hand corner of the document for the 16th of October 1941.

If your Honors will please note the code number of this order which appears right below the heading, it is "926/41." Those numbers will appear later in another connection.

The order refers in the first paragraph to the Keitel order of 16 September 1941 which has the code numbers "206/41". That, if your Honors, please, refers to the Keitel 50-100 order introduced as Prosecution Exhibit 53. This order of the 65th Special Corps Command also refers to an enclosed order of General Boehme as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

The code numbers here again are important. They are "2848/41" which refers to the Boehme order of 10 October 1941 introduced as Prosecution Exhibit 88.

Continuing with the order: "Regarding order 2, Special Purpose Corps Command 65, in agreement with the Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia orders additionally:

"In the future, for every German soldier killed in action or murdered, 100 prisoners or hostages are to be shot to death; for every wounded, 50 prisoners or hostages are to be shot to death."

"For this purpose as many Communists and Jews as well as seditious elements camouflaged as being nationalistic or democratic -- particularly from out of the ranks of forest rovers - are to be arrested in each Command as can be guarded without endangering the combat strength. The reason for the arrest or the shooting is to be announced publicly and also communicated to the people arrested and their families."

"The number of people arrested and shot to death is to be reported on the 8th, 18th and 28th to Special Mission Corps Command 65."

The order is signed: "Bader, Lt.General of Artillery."

On page 29 of the English and page 23 of the German is the enclosed order of General Boehme of 10 October 1941, to which General Bader makes reference in his order to his subordinate, 704th Infantry Division.

The enclosed order of General Boehme has already been introduced in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit No. 88 and I think we, therefore, need not read it again at this time.

Your Honor will note on page 31 of the English and page 24 of the German at the bottom of the page the enclosed order of General Boehme was sent to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for his information.

Continuing on page 32 of the English and page 25 of the German, we have the 704th Infantry Division showing its receipt on the 15th of October 1941 of a Boehme order dated 9 October 1941 which relates to the prohibition of negotiations with the partisans. This order, too, has already been introduced in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 74 and need not, therefore, be read again at this time.

Turning to page 33 of the English and page 25 of the German, at the bottom of the page we have the order of the 704th Infantry Division, dated 20 October 1941, to its subordinate units and again it will be seen that the text of this order is almost identical with the language of the Keitel order of 16

September 1941, Prosecution Exhibit 53, the Keitel order as passed on by General Boehme on 10 October 1941 which is Prosecution Exhibit 88, and the Keitel and Boehme orders as passed on by General Bader on the 14th of October 1941, which is Prosecution Exhibit 117.

It can now be seen that the division passes on the same order to its subordinate units on the 20th of October 1941.

The only material in this order which is now found on page 35 of the English and on page 27 of the German. It begins with paragraph 5.

"In each single case of loss, the report of the Division must include whether and to what extent the reprisal measure has been executed or when it will take place at a later date. The independent units are to make an application for the shooting to death of hostages with the report.

"Infantry Regiment and independent units will report to Division Ia on the 7, 17 and 27 of each month, the number of (a) arrested, (b) shot to death.

"The sentencing by summary and other court martials are in no way effected by the above directives. Reports under paragraph 6 will not include such arrests or executions."

Signed: "Borowski."

Continuing with this document on page 28 of the German, who have a report from the 2nd Battalion of the 704th Infantry Regiment, dated 23 October 1941. The report is sent to the 704th Infantry Regiment, its subject "Shooting to Death of Hostages."

Your honor will note, that the date of this report is 23 October 1941.

"The Battalion reports that 50 hostages from Valjevo have been shot to death by the 6th Company, 704th Infantry Regiment on 22 October 1941, because during a skirmish against bands near Iverak 21 October 1941 a member of the 6th Company, Infantry Regiment 724 was wounded by a shot in the head."

Signed: "Almer, Captain and Battalion Commanding Officer."

On page 38 of the English, page 28 of the German, is a report from the 704th Infantry Division, as to the Special Corps Command, 65. The report is dated 27 October 1941, and the reference, Your Honors will note, is to the order of the Corps Commander 65th, but the code number is 926/41, the order of General Bader dated 14 October 1941, which was the passing on of the Boehme and Keitel orders, 10 October 41 and 16 September 41, respectively.

"Subject: Number of Persons Arrested and Shot to Death during the Period from 18 to 27 October 1941.

"In accordance with the order referred to above, the division reports for the period from 18 to 27 October 41:

"18 Oct 41 - 88 arrested "22 Oct 41 - 50 shot to death as reprisal for a German soldier wounded during attack on armored train near Iverak on 20 October 1941.

"27 Oct 41 - 38 arrested."

Turning next to page 39 of the English and page 29 of the German, is a report of the 704th Infantry Division to the LXVth Corps Command. Again reference to the Corps Command Order of 14 October 1941, with the code numbers 926/41:

"Subject: Number of Persons Arrested and Shot to Death during the Period from 27 October to 7 November 1941.

"In accordance with the order referred to above the division reports for the period from 27 Oct to 7 Nov 41:

"a) Garrison headquarters of garrison Valjevo turned over to the 342nd Infantry Division on 2 Nov 41. Number of arrests and executions by shooting by 342nd Infantry Division unknown. New arrests of shooting to death by 704th Infantry Division.

"b) In the garrison of Belgrade, number of arrests unknown. Number of shootings to death by 734th Infantry Regiment: 101, on 27 Oct 41 - pursuant to order of Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia 19 Oct 41 - as part of reprisal measures for ten German soldiers killed in action and 24 wounded (members of the unit surrounded in Valjevo)."The prosecution's next document is on page 40 of the English, page 30 of the German, Document NOKW--1055, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 118.

This document again is a series of reports, this time from the 342nd Infantry Division to General Boehme as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

The first report is dated 12 October 1941 and is the daily report for the 11th to the 12th of October 1941. Here again we have extracted only those excerpts which relate to matters set forth in the indictment:

"(f) Losses: Own: Two wounded Enemy:

About 180 fallen in combat and shot to death."

The report of the 342nd Division for the 13th to 14th October 1941:

"Losses: Own: Four dead, 19 wounded.

Enemy: Not yet determined. 170 men shot to death."

On page 41 of the English and page 30 of the German is the division's report for the period 24 September to 9 October 1941. There are two columns, 1a and 1b:

1a 1b "Fallen in combat 88 88 "Shot to death 1127 1127 "Taken prisoner 21440 17420 "The reports 1b are based on the rates in the concentration camp; the reports 1a are based on the continuous reports of the troops.

"The numbers 1a differ from 1b because "a) The troops could not hand in exact statements of the units in time.

"b) Because persons made prisoner by the troop were in some cases dismissed shortly before transfer to concentration camps.

"c) Because prisoners, shortly after having been transferred to the concentration camp, were dismissed without this being marked off the list of inmates admitted.

"The numbers of the 1b reports are authoritative.

"f) Losses Wounded:

Three officers, 27 men.

"Enemy: Could not be determined.

"g) Reprisal: Of the 2300 shootings to death resulting from our own losses, 400 were carried out. 1900 still remain."

The daily report for the 14th to the 15th of October 1941, under losses:

"Own dead: One officer, 7 men.

"Wounded: Three officers, 27 men" If Your Honors will please note those totals, 8 dead and 30 wounded continuing on page 42 of the English and page 31 of the German, we continue with the report of the 342nd from the 14th to the 15th of October 1941, "Enemy losses could not be determined". Your Honors will note that for the eight persons dead, if we multiply the figure 8 by 100, we will get a total of 800, and if you multiply the figure of 30 wounded by 50, you will get a total of 1500, or a total of 2300, to which the paragraph "g" under "Reprisals" referred.

Continuing with the daily report of 14 to 15 October 1941:

"The 400 persons shot to death are people who were arrested in the combat area around Dranigac. The rest of those arrested, who were reported today, voluntarily put themselves under the protection of the German Wehrmacht to be transported to concentration camps."

The report is signed "342nd Infantry Division, Ia department".

On page 42 of the English and page 42 of the German is the division daily report from the 15th of October in the morning to the 16th of October in the morning.

Under (e) Prisoners and Booty:

"Arrested: 233 "Shot to death:

635 (including the 400 reported yesterday) "Booty:

5 pontoons 200 pack saddles 104 head of cattle" Under "f) Losses": "Own:

None "Enemy:

Could not be determined," Continuing on page 43 of the English and page 32 of the German, the Daily Report of 16 October morning to 17 October 1941 morning:

"e) Prisoners and Booty:

"Arrested: 541 "Shot to death:

244 "f) Losses "Own:

One man wounded and one man missing.

"Enemy: Fourteen killed in combat."

Under the Daily Report of the 17th of October in the morning to the 18th of October in the morning:

"e) Prisoners and Booty "Arrested:

765 (most of them from Loznica) "Shot to death:

32 "Booty:

28 cows, 10 calves" Under "f) Losses": "Own:

Wounded: One officer, 4 men Fallen in combat: 2 men "Enemy:

140 killed in combat determined."

Continuing with the 10-day report of the 342nd Division, dated 20 October 1941, and again the report is sent to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia:

"6) Losses and Booty for the Period of Time Reported on:

"Own Losses: Dead: Two officers, 13 men Wounded: Four officers, 72 men "Enemy Losses:

About 546 killed in combat 1081 shot to death 4295 prisoners and arrested" Again I direct Your Honors' attention to a comparison of the losses of the Germans and the losses of the enemy that they were fighting.

We may pass now to page 45 of the English, page 24 of the German, to the report of the 242nd Infantry Division for the 20th of October 1941, subject, "Reprisal Measures":

"According to Daily Report 15 Oct 1900 shot to death for 15 to 29 Oct 41 10 dead 1000 39 wounded 1950 "Division asks for further orders; at the moment no prisoners are available.

"For the Command of the Division "The 1st General Staff Officer."

Then the figure "1900", if Your Honors please, should appear right above the figure "1000" rather than where it does appear, so that the total of 1900, 1950, and 1000 adds up to a figure of 4,850.

Continuing with the tabulation:

"Shot to death up to today, 1600; remain 3250.

"The division asks for further orders; at the moment no prisoners are available." Signed: "For the Command of the Division "The 1st General Staff Officer" Page 46 of the English, page 35 of the German, is the division 10-day report 20 to 20 October 1941.

Under:

"Own Losses: Dead: - officers, 6 men Wounded: 4 officers, 20 men "In the 1st Battalion of the 202nd Tank Regiment - 8 tanks knocked out.

"Enemy losses: About 200 killed in combat 100 shot to death 110 arrested."

The report is signed by the commander of the division, Dr. Hinghofer.

Turning finally to the last report, page 47 of the English, page 35 of the German, is the division report to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, from 30 October in the morning to 31 October in the morning:

"Four wounded calls for 200 executions by shooting.

"No prisoners available for this."

It is signed "342nd Infantry Division, Ia Department".

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our afternoon recess.

Page 489

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR.FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, the prosecution's next document is on page 48 of the English and page 37 of the German Document NOKW-559 which becomes prosecution's Exhibit 119. This is a report from the 65th Special Corps Command to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia. If Your Honors will turn first to page 49 of the English, which is on page 38 of the German, you will find the report from the 65th Corps Command dated 17 October 1941. The receipt stamp of the 18th Corps for the 18th of October, 1941, appears on the right-hand corner. The subject is "Surprise attack on a guard on 15 October 1941." The report is sent to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. "Enclosed find copy of a report of the Panzer Jager Detachment 220 with the request for proper action."

Then down at the bottom of the document "handwritten", "Taken care of by order 19 October to LXV Corps Command for Special Purpose that 50 hostages are to be shot to death by the Panzer Jager Detachment 220 in conjunction with Commander Serbia Administrative Staff."

On page 50 of the English and page 38 of the German, rather on page 39 of the German, the handwriting continues: "A German guard, was attacked and wounded in Belgrade on the 15th of the month by communists who escaped without being recognized by throwing a hand grenade and by shots. In reprisal for this vicious attempt at murder, 50 Belgrade communists were shot to death today."

On page 51 of the English and page 36 of the German is the report of the Panzer Jager Detachment 220 dated 16 October 1941 to which the 65th Special Corps Command made reference. The report subject is "Surprise attack on a guard on 15 October 1941."

The unit Reports below a surprise attack on a guard of the 3/Pz. Jag. Detachment 220:

On 15.10, 1500 o'clock a hand grenade was thrown and one shot fired on a guard who was in the quartering area of the 3/Pz Jag. Detachment 220, (school building, street bifurcation Bulevar Kneza Aleksandra Karadordevica and Ljutice Bogdana). The guard was wounded in the shoulder by a grenade splinter. The guard and a patrol which came hurrying up immediately fired some rifle shots in the direction of the attack. The 3/Px. Jag. Detachment 220 which was immediately alerted, patrolled the neighborhood of its billets, immediately afterwards, without being able to discover the perpetrator.

Referring to LXV Corps Command (for special purposes), Section Ia, No. 926/41 secret, dated 14.10.41, it is requested the corresponding number of Serbian communists or insurrectionists be shot to death. Since the detachment has no authority within the city limits of Belgrade, the detachment can merely apply for the reprisal execution. Furthermore, the detachment requests pertinent publication by press and radio. Since circumstances accompanying the accident necessitated voluminous interrogations, final report could only now be made.

Now turning to page 48 of the English and page 37 of the German, is the report of the 65th Special Corps Command dated 29 October 1941 to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. The receipt stamp of the 18th Corps which General Boehme also commanded in addition to his duties as Plenipotentiary Commanding General Serbia, is found on the right hand corner of the document, the receipt stamp of 30 October 1941.

"Subject: Reprisal measures.

The villages of Meljak and Bacevao (10 kilometers West Southwest of Ripanj), as well as Arnajovo (30 kilometers South West Ripanj) are entirely Communists. Their destruction is requested."

MR. HINDEMITH: For the defendant Foertsch, on the occasion of the presentation of this document I should like to point out the following, without meaning to say that the defendant General. Foertsch--himself by this document.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me just a moment. I have a blank page 56 in my document book and I do not know to what you refer unless someone can furnish me--is there an extra page 56 which the prosecution has?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think we will be able to give you one in a moment, Your Honor.

MR. HINDEMITH: This is Document-- Exhibit 120 on page 40 of the German document book, page 53 of the English.

I shall repeat. I should like to point out the following in connection with this document, without intending to say that the defendant Foertsch is implicated by this document, the connecting statements of the prosecutor in my opinion are intended to help the Tribunal and all concerned to evaluate this document. The prosecution made no explanation of the heading of this document. This is an unofficial copy. This also occurs in other documents. I think, for this reason, it would be advisable to have this basic question cleared up once and for all by asking the prosecutor to make an explanation of these words at the top of the document.

THE PRESIDENT: Are you referring to page 13 of the original?

DR. HINDEMITH (counsel for the defendant Foertsch): Exhibit 120, on page 40 of the German Document Book, at the top of the page, there are the words: "This is an unofficial copy."

THE PRESIDENT: What page of the English?

DR. HINDEMITH: That is page 53 of the English.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there agreement on behalf of the defense counsel that the statement made by the prosecutor is correct? I am not questioning it myself, but for the purpose of the record, does defense counsel so agree?

DR. HINDEMITH: I was shewn the photostat of the original. From this photostat I cannot see this notation which is given in the German Document Book. It is still unexplained why this remark is made.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honor please, it is probably a mistake on the part of the stenographer who stenciled the mimeographed copy, some unexplainable reason.

Instead of typing entirely in German on her stencil, she typed four or five words of English.

THE PRESIDENT: There being no indication that it is on the original, it seems to me that there is no basis for the complaint made by counsel. The fact that it is on the German translation, that it cannot be explained, the fact that the Court has no way of ruling upon it -- the Court has not anything upon which to pass. On the English Document Book, it merely refers to page 13 of the original. Under the circumstances and with this explanation, the prosecutor may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing on page 57 of the English and page 43 of the German is the report of the Commander of Serbia to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia. The report is dated Belgrade 28 October 1941; paragraph 3a of the report "Combat Activity Details: 25 October, German Wehrmacht and Serbian auxiliary gendarmerie purges Raca (11 kilometers northwest Lapova) of Communists. Losses of our own: 1 German soldier dead, 1 auxiliary gendarme dead, 7 wounded. Enemy losses: 120 Communists dead, 23 captured and shot to death."

The prosecution's next document is on page 58 of the English and page 44 of the German, Document NOKW-724, which is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 121. This is a series of extracts from the war diary of the Commanding General in Serbia for the month of October 1941. The entry on the first of October, "Order of the Commanding General in Serbia la. At least one reinforced battalion is to fight its way through from Kragujevac to Gr. Milanovac in order to find the 6th Anti-Aircraft Battalion 920. If the Company is not found there the village is to be burned down."

The entry of the 12th of October: "The city commandant of Belgrade reports: on 11 October 1941 police forces and the Serbian Auxiliary Gendarmerie Group of Major Kalabic under the command of Police President Jovanovic attacked from four sides Lipovicka Forest, 5 kilometers West of Ripanj. The operation was supported by the 1st Field Gendarmerie 501 and by detachments of the Panzer Jaeger 220 (anti-tank unit). 32 insurgents were shot to death, 41 were captured. The gipsy village of Sremzica was set afire, its residents arrested. The village of Vk. Mostanica was shot at and set afire with 69 shells fired by the Panzer Jaeger troops."

DR. LATERNER (counsel for the defendant List): Mr. President, he said this was an excerpt from the war diary of the commander of Serbia. I object to the admission of this document. This is not an excerpt from this war diary. again we have four pages, merely typed pages. The enclosed certificate also indicates nothing to the effect that it is an excerpt from the war diary.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I am not quite sure that I understand Dr. Laternser's objection. Is it that these pages are not from a war diary, or that they are not from the war diary of the commanding general in Serbia?

Dr. Laternser: Mr. President, I cannot answer this question. I deny that it is an excerpt from any war diary, for, as I have already said, it is merely four typo written pages; and the enclosed certificate in particular does not indicate what war diary it is.

THE PRESIDENT: It seems to me that the Court has indicated its attitude in connection with exhibits of this character, and it needs no elaborated comment from the Tribunal.

The matter will receive such consideration as the Tribunal deems it entitled to. The objection will be overruled.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing on page 58 of the English and page 44 of the German, the entry of the 13th of October. "The 342nd Infantry Division reports: Strong blockade of the Jadar-Toles near Point 152/3, 6 kilometers Southeast of Draginac, also near the mouth of the Likodro Creek. Jadar Bridge dismantled by enemy near Point 152/3. 100 civilian prisoners were shot in reprisal. 250 men arrested. 8 prisoners."

Finally the entry of the 24th of October. "Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia III/Chief of Military Administration ... "the code numbers are then given ... "The Feldkommandantur (Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters) and the Kreiskommandantur (District Headquarters) are to supply hostages for execution."

Turning now to page 60 of the English Document Book, page 45 of the German, Document NOKW-1022, which is offered in evidence as prosecution Exhibit 122. Again this document is a series of reports, this time from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Boehme, to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. The documents cover a period of time from 21 September 1941 to 4 November 1941, during which time the defendant List and the defendant Kuntze occupied the positions of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

First report is of the 21st of September. The receipt stamp of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12th Army, is indicated for the 20 of September 1941. The report reads as follows: " Nedic Government unable to suppress insurrectionist movement.

Serbian Administrative Apparatus paralyzed in large parts of the country. Insurgents composed of communists, Nationalist Serbs and Chetniks, Leadership beyond doubt in hands of Nationalist Serbs Officers. A part of the Chetniks under Costa Petcana up to now, loyal to German troops."

Continuing down to paragraph 4: "8 wounded captured German soldiers before Sabac transferred to their own troops. 27 heavily wounded German soldiers are in the military hospital of the insurgents in Loznica. 12 Communists hanged for attack on the railroad line Petrovgrad-Pancevo."

Signed as the remainder of these reports, the Commanding General in Serbia.

Page 26 of the English and page 46 of the German, is the report of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia North, 23 September 1941. Again the receipt stamp of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 23rd of September 1941. "Losses Own: 3 dead, 18 wounded. 23 insurgents shot to death in Gradist."

Turning to the next page, the report of the 24th of September 1941, "Restoration of the respect for the German Government by ruthless measures against the main center of insurrection in the Save River Bend. Creation of an intimidating example. Further contradiction of forces to reinforce security troops on the main traffic arteries from Belgrade and Bor. Assignment of captured Panzers. The presence of 50 insurgents in gendarmerie uniform under the command of a Gendarmerie 1st Lt. in the attack on Gradiste 20 September confirmed. Attack of insurgents on Sabac and Krusevac repelled. Sabac will be "depopulated" from 24 September on."

The next on page 65 of the English and page 50 of the German, a report of the 26th of September, paragraph 3: "125 Infantry Regiment near Valjevo 49 insurgents shot to death.

Colonel Foertsch at Tatoi 27 September 1941, 1200 hours."

The next on page 66 of the English, 57 of the German the report of the 26th of September: "Jews arrested in Smederevo and vicinity since recognized as instigators of the insurrection. 125 Infantry Regiment. Northwest of Valjevo 49 bandits including leader (Serbian Reserve Officer) shot to death. 71 houses destroyed. Parts of Enemy wearing Serbian ticking coats and German cap."

On page 68 of the English, page 52 of the German, a message of 27th of September 1941. The receipt stamp of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, dated 28 September 1941, paragraph 2: "Start of operation 342 Infantry Division as reported 25 September. 4410 men arrested --" On page 69 of the English and 52 of the German, paragraph 3, page 52 of the German, page 69 of the English, paragraph 3: "4410 men arrested during mopping up of Sabac. 125 Infantry Regiment mopping up around Valjevo. Losses Own: Near Krusevac increases to 24 dead, 16 wounded, in addition 2 dead, 1 wounded, 1 missing. Enemy: 24 dead, 6 shot to death (Sabac) 1 prisoner."

Continuing on page 70 of the English, page 52 of the German, report of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 28th of September 1941. The right-hand corner of this document, if Your Honors please, is the initial "Foertsch" which the prosecution contends is the defendant Foertsch, as the Chief of Staff to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Paragraph 6: "Own 3 dead, 2 wounded 1 Panzer sunk on bridge, 1 Panzer run into mine. (1 slightly wounded). Enemy: 177 shot to death (Sabac)."

Continuing on page 71 of the English, page 53 of the German, the report of the 29th of September 1941, paragraph 7: "For attack in Belgrade 150 Communists shot to death." On page 72 of the English, 53 of the German: "Own: 342 Infantry Division: 6 wounded. Enemy: up to now 300 shot to death."

Paragraph 4 on page 74 of the English, page 54 of the German: "Curprijia 34 insurgents hanged. Paragraph 6. Own: 342 Infantry Division: 2 dead. Enemy: 84 shot to death."

Page 75 of the English, page 54 of the German begins the report of the first of October 1941. Again it is stamped received Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12th Army with the same date; and in the right-hand corner General Foertsch has written his name.

Page 76 of the English and 55 of the German, the report reads:

"Paragraph 6. 3,800 prisoners (342 Infantry Division) Own: 10 wounded Enemy: 69 dead, 358 shot to death, 32 wounded." Page 77 of the English and 56 of the German Document Books is the report of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia for the second of October 1941, paragraph 6 of the report which is on page 78 of the English, page 57 of the German. "Own: 2 wounded. 342 Infantry Division has shot to death approximately 1,000 and arrested 14,000."

THE PRESIDENT: May I see the original German document with the signatures on them?

THE PRESIDENT: Will you point out what you claim to be the signature? In what appears to be the second line on page 2 of the German Document?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That's right, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Let me look at that again. Is there some other document -- the document to which you are now referring is Document 122, and is found -- 1022 and is found on page 23 of the photostatic German Document, and is in the top line of this particular page.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think, if Your Honor, please, we can skip over the next several reports and read again on page 85 of the English, page 60 of the German. The report of the 7th of October 1941, turning to paragraph 6 of that report which is on page 86 of the English, and page 60 of the German. "Enemy: 115 dead, 41 wounded. In addition 43 including 1 armed woman shot to death. 38 including 1 leader captured (125 Infantry Regiment)".

Turning next to page 89 of the English, page 61 of the German, a report of the 12th of October 1941, paragraph 4: "Serbian gendarmerie participating in successful operations near Lipovicka (20 kilometers south west Belgrade) 32 insurgents shot to death, 41 taken prisoners, 5 trucks without ammunition taken as booty.

125 Infantry Regiment advance to Obrenovac slowed up by road blocks and blasting. 3 agents shot to death," Next report of the 10th of October 1941, which is on page 91 of the English, page 62 of the German.

I direct Your Honors' attention to paragraph 6 which is on page 92 of the English, page 62 of the German. Paragraph 6: "Total losses: Own 4 dead, 10 wounded. Enemy: 75 dead, 6 wounded 73 shot to death."

Next on page 93 of the English, page 63 of the German, is a report of the 9th of October 1941 from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Paragraph 3: "It is intended to move administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 816 and District Headquarters 838 from Kragujevac back to Topola. Shooting to death of about 2,000 Communists and Jews in retaliation for 22 murdered men of the 521st Signal Detachment of the 2nd Army underway. In Belgrade interpreter shot to death in the open street. New arson plots on 4 Communities."

I think we can pass now to page 96 of the English, page 64 of the German, a report of the 13th of October, 1941, paragraph 3: "342 Infantry Division: During advanced thrusts on Konviljaza and monastery of Tronosa, 10 German soldiers of which 9 were wounded, liberated. During the thrust by the division into the Jardar valley, enemy 2 dead, 8 prisoners, An additional 250 arrested by the Division. 100 civilian prisoners shot to death as a reprisal measure."

I think, your Honors, we can skip the next several reports and turn next to page 102 of the English, page 66 of the German. This is the report of the 16th of October, 1941:

"125th Infantry Regiment: Mopping up of JasencDracevac--Vranic. 230 hostages shot to death. 3rd Battalion of 749th Regiment advancing on General Milanovac since 14 October (Renewed reprisal measures)."

Next is the report on page 104 of the English, page 67 of the German, the report of the 18th of October 1941, paragraph 2:

"717th Infantry Division. For losses in Kraljevo 1736 men and 19 women up to now shot to death."

Next on page 106 of the English and page 67 of the German, the report of the 23rd of October 1941 -- the reference on page 107 of the English and page 68 of the German:

"704th Infantry Division, Reprisal Measure for one wounded -- 50 shot to death."

Your Honors may have a typographical error in your Honors' document books. Instead of "to shot to death," it should read "50 shot to death." It's on page 107 of the English, second line from the top of the page.

Continuing on that same page:

"717th Infantry Division -- depopulation under way of all villages immediately situated on the railroad and road Krusevac - Kraljevo".

I think we can turn next, if your Honors, please, to page 111 of the English Document Book , page 69 of the German. This is the report of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia from the 29th of October 1941:

"250 Gypsies were arrested.

"3rd Battalion 697th Regiment. Renewed occupation of the Debrava Sector. Focal point near Orid (9 kilometers South Sabac)."

Then under "Enemy": Dead 26, 76 shot to death, several wounded, 10 captured."

Turning next to the report found on page 113 of the English, on page 70 of the German, the report of 31 October 1941, stamped received by the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12th Army, on 1 November 1941, your Honors will note that in the right hand corner of the document is the initial "F" which the prosecution contends is the initial of the defendant Foertsch.

Reading from the report: "Belgrade, 1 Communist Leader shot to death by Police. 718th Infantry Division: During mopping up of area, 10 kilometers East Banja Lucka, 13 insurgents shot to death, 167 captured."

Turning next to page 117 of the English, page 71 of the German, the report of the 1st of November, 1941, from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, paragraph "B":

"Express Train Doboj - Sarajevo was attacked 10 kilometers south of Doboj. The passengers were plundered, 17 dead (1 German Non-commissioned officer) 15 wounded (1 German soldier) (in Belgrade: 7 Communists arrested. Order has been issued to shoot to death 200 hostages) Reprisal."

Turning next to the report found on page 119 of the English, page 72 of the German, this is the report of the 5th of November, 1941, paragraph 1:

"Arrest of 169 hostages of the intellectual circles in Belgrade".Next, the report on page 121 of the English, page --if your Honors, please, this begins a new document -- on page 121 of the English, page 73 of the German, Document NOKW-980 which becomes prosecution Exhibit 123 in evidence.

This is a series of war diary entries covering a period of time from the 29th of September to the 27th of November, 1941.

In the war diary of the 18th Mountain Army Corps the entry on the 29th of September 1941, page 121 of the English, page 73 of the German, is:

"As reprisal measure for an attack on German soldiers in Belgrade, 150 Communists are being shot to death according to summary court-martials."

And down on the bottom of the page, "Enclosure 37":

"Order to the 125th Infantry Regiment to arrest all available members of families of insurgents as hostages in the insurgent territory to be mopped up."

THE PRESIDENT: May I make this inquiry? Do you make any distinction between a shooting here which was the result of a courts-martial proceedings and one which was not?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, your Honor, the prosecution believes certain of the executions took place according to summary courts-martial and others of them took place simply out of hand, and the prosecution believes that when executions according to summary courts-martial took place the reports mentioned that fact and when there is no reference to summary courts-martial the prosecution believes the executions took place out of hand.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

DR. LATERNSEER: (Counsel for defendant List): Mr. President, may I comment? The question of the President, whether a courts-martial took place before shootings or not -- I should like to say by way of explanation that the clear opinion on international law in America as well as English literature is that if, by way of reprisal hostages are shot no court procedure is necessary beforehand.

The shooting of hostages, regrettable as it is, is the last recourse under international law which a commander has. It is the use of innocent persons. A court procedure, the purpose of which is to determine who is guilty and those innocent -

THE PRESIDENT; May I interrupt, if you please? Dr. Laternser, my inquiry to the prosecutor was as to whether or not he drew any distinction between the shooting of the hostages as a result of a courts-martial proceedings or one which was not.

I do not wish to limit you at any time, and particularly at this time, but I hardly feel that this is the time and place for a legal discussion on this particular question and, if you will wait until some later time when that question can be properly presented, you may be assured that you will receive a courteous hearing. I believe at this time it would not be helpful.

DR. LATERNSEER: Very well, Mr. President. I agree.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing with a reading of the entries in the war diary of the 18th Army Corps, page 122 of the English, page 75 of the German, the entry for the 9th of October 1941:

"Valjevo: During the operation by the 125th Infantry Regiment on 6 October against Karaule, several Communists were arrested in Radljevo. Corps Headquarters orders the transfer of the leader Pavlovic to Belgrade by Storch.

The SD interrogation shows the following results: Communist band, strength 1000-1200 men, in the forests around Ub.

"Organization: 4 companies.

"Commander of the 4th Company: Tribko, Reserve Officer, later civil servant.

"Leader of the 3rd Platoon of the 4th Company, Pavlovic.

"Armament; Rifles, up to 100 rounds of ammunition? the entire unit allegedly had only one Czechoslovakian machine gun.

"Attacks executed" -- I think we may skip the intervening lines, if your Honors, please, and drop down to the final three lines from the bottom of 122 of the English and page 173 of the German:

"In Grozdenovic a Peoples' Liberation Committee has been formed. Gun breeches, bombs and artillery ammunition have been buried near Glenovac (Valjevo) at An unknown spot."

The succeeding page, the entry of 9 October 1941:

"Commander Serbia: Several hundred Communists shot to death in Belgrade as reprisal measure for murdered soldiers."

And then, still on page 123 of the English and page 74 of the German, in the middle of the page under the entry of 6 October 1941:

"800 to 1000 men Krusevac-Kraljevo region von Bothmer requests stronger commitment against Communists. 100 men reinforcement is to go to Lescovac.

"Total Impression: P. (Pecanac) honestly and sincerely is on the German side in the fight against the Communists. The combats between Cetniks and Communists certainly have brought about a situation which makes cooperation of these two improbable, at least at this time.

The incidents near Krusevac (24 September) prove that K.P. (Kosta Pecanac) cannot depend on his different groups unconditionally. K.P. admitted without any hesitation that he will always have to count on renegade followers. The further development will depend essentially on the successes of the German Wehrmacht. As far as I (von Bothmer) can judge, K.P. may be considered absolutely dependable. He certainly will always keep a strong group of his followers on his side."

Next, the entry of the 11th of October, 1941:

"Propaganda Unit reports that the mass meeting on the terrace planned for Sunday, 12 October will not take place, since Prime Minister Nodic voiced very strong objection to the suggestion of State Councillor Turner to speak publicly. This would immediately evoke jeering or demonstration parades, particularly since he constantly receives deputations complaining about hunger. Prime Minister Nodic will speak over the radio at 1145 hours on 12 October."

Next the entry of the 11 November, 1941:

"11 Oct 41 'S' Propaganda Unit reports that the mass meeting on the terrace planned for Sunday, 12 Oct will not take place, since Prime Minister Nedic voiced very strong objection to the suggestion of State Councillor Turner to speak publicly.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: I have asked my associate Judge Edward Carter to preside during this day's session. You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors please, you will recall that yesterday afternoon we were concerned largely with Document Book IV which contains a series of reports from various subordinate units to higher headquarters. The material in the reports is of importance, because of the references to the nature, size, organization and insignia worn by the enemy against whom the Germans were fighting, as well as the German treatment of captured members of the enemy military organizations and the German treatment of the civilian population. At the time of the adjournment we were on Document NOKW-1157 which is Prosecution Exhibit 124. I would like next to have you turn to the report of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, dated 9 October 1941 which is on page 144 of the English and page 87 of the German. The subject of this report is a 10 day report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from General Boehme as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia:

Enemy 10 dead, 20 Communists shot to death as reprisal."

Next the report of the 20th of November 1941, page 163 of the English, page 99 of the German, under "Own troops. 342nd Infantry Division: In small local operations in vicinity of billeting area. The enemy lost 147 dead (129 thereof were shot as a retaliatory measure), 7 prisoners, 3 rifles, 2 horses were captured." The report continues on page 164 of the English, page 99 of the German, at the top of the page: "Of the enemy, 17 fell in combat, 130 were shot to death, 207 followers of Mihajlovic were disarmed and taken as prisoners to the Sabac concentration camp." Continuing under the 714th Infantry Division: "Parts of the 714th Infantry Division: "Parts of the 714th Infantry Division carried out 7 operations in the vicinity of quartering area, the enemy lost 3 dead, 33 prisoners. Six were shot to death." Under Paragraph 5, Administration and Economy: "300 men arrived from the Sabac concentration camp we work in the Senjaki Rudnik coal mine and 300 men to work in the Lignite mines Kostaolac and Klenovnic." Under Paragraph 7, Arrests: "Reports about shootings, etc., in compliance with prescribed form have not yet arrived at time of writing report. Partisans killed in combat: 513; shot as hostages: (total) 305; arrested as hostages: 239; captured in Combat: 814. 12 English PW's in PW hospital Belgrade will be transported to the Reich on 20 November."

The report of the 21st of November 1941, page 165 of the English, page 100 of the German. "33 Communists arrested in Belgrade, among them 4 officials and 56 suspicious persons. 8 Communists hanged for attempt to escape from Sabac concentration camp."

Turning next to the report of the 26th of November, page 166 of the English, page 101 of the German, under "Serbian Auxiliary Police: Attack on Gen. Milanovac unsuccessful, Communists hold 45 positions. 500 Prisoners from Rudnik shot to death by Gendarmerie. Paragraph 5. At 717th Infantry Division 4 Communists shot after court martial.

Next the portion of the 10-day-report, dated 30 November 1941, on page 168 of the English, page 102 of the German. Paragraph 2: "The enemy. Area south of the Danube: Mopping-up operations conducted by several Serbian Auxilliary Police Detachments in the area Pozarevac Petrovac - Rabrovo - Gradiste terminated on 22 November; 239 Communists were shot to death, 300 captured. With the shooting of teacher Veliko Pugosevic of Turija and of Professor Milanovic as well as the arrest of the partisan leader Pleskovic of Kucajna the driving forces of the partisans of this area having been removed. It may be assumed with certainty that in the area south of the Danube only small troops of bandits exist."

Under paragraph 7: "Enemy losses: Insurrectionists shot in combat: 847; shot as hostages (total) 534 (500 of these by Serbian Auxilliary Police); arrested as hostages: 376; taken prisoner in combat: 809; further surrendered: 300 Communists."

Next the report of the 5th of December 1941, on page 170 of the English, page 103 of the German. Under 113th Infantry Division: "47 insurgents, disarmed by Cetniks in the mountains near Guca, shot to death after interrogation. A total of 11 insurgents, who had returned to their villages, arrested." And this report, as are all the others, was signed by the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, who, at that time, was General Franz Boehme.

If your Honors please, this completes the presentation of documents in Document Book 4. Mr. Denney will introduce the documents in Document Book 5.

MR. DENNEY: At this time we hand to the Court the list of documents in Book III. I would ask that the Court refrain from marking it at this time because we have three more documents that we want to put in at the end of that book and we will furnish an extra page to be added to this, either today or tomorrow morning.

These are 24 copies for defense counsel, 1 copy for the Secretary General and 1 for the Court reporters and 1 for the interpreters.

The first document which we would like to insert at the end of Book III is NOKW-1711 and, if it's agreeable with your Honors, we will use letters after the numbers so that they will keep in order and, in view of the fact that we have used "a" for identification before, perhaps it would be better if we start with "b" on these and keep "a" out of exhibit identification, if that is agreeable with you.

JUDGE CARTER: That's agreeable with us.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Sir. In the English this contains--the Court has three copies in English, the Secretary General has the photostat of the original, the German counsel have eleven copies -- the defense counsel have 11 copies in German -- and the court reporters and translators have an English and a German copy.

This will become, if your Honors please--the first page will be 163, the second page 164 and the third page 165; and it is offered as Exhibit 14b in evidence.

Dr. Laternser, perhaps you can tell me what the German pages would be. It's in the book and it goes at the end, just after Exhibit 114, which is NOKW-1662.

DR. LATERNSE: That will be page 111 in the German.

MR. DENNEY: This will be 111?

111, 112 and 113 in the German, if your Honors please.

This is a communication dated 17 January 1942 and bears the stamp of that date and is from the 718th Infantry Division to the 342nd Infantry Division.

I don't think we need to comment on the first page. However, the second page, which is a communication from the 342nd Infantry Division to the 718th Infantry, dated 21 January 42 recites an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, Order No. 21:

"Armed enemy is to be shot. Armed enemy surrendering is to be treated as Prisoner of War. Inhabitants in whose homes arms are found and who do not participate in the fighting are to be arrested and treated as Prisoners of War."

And the attention of the Court is directed to the date "21 January 1942."

It has just been called to my attention that I omitted to read the last paragraph on the first page:

"So far six captured Cetniks shot, further enemy losses will be reported later."

Next we have NOKW-1066 which is a teletype from the 65th Corps, dated 19 September 1941 and this is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 114c in evidence. It is Document NOKW-1666 and the original is handed to the Secretary General, three copies for your Honors, a copy in English and German for the translators and reporters, and eleven copies for defense counsel to Dr. Laternser, please; and in Document Book III these pages -- this page -- will become 166 in the English and 114 in the German.

Are there only two pages to the other one in the German?

This is to become 113 in the German, your Honors. This is a report of 19 September 41 and bears the receipt stamp of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the following day, report from the 65th Corps that the 1st Battalion 724th Regiment was shot 165 bandits at Uzice.

And the last document to be inserted is NOKW-1633 which is offered as prosecution's exhibit 114c.

JUDGE CARTER: You mean 114d.

MR. DENNEY: I beg your pardon, Sir; 114d -- thank you. "D" for "dollar", Sir; three copies for the Tribunal, a copy in English and German to the reporters and interpreters, eleven copies in German for the defense to Dr. Laternser -- and the pages in the English book are 167, 168 and 169 and in the German book 114 and 115.

MR. DENNEY: Will you hand the original to the Secretary General?

This is a photostatic copy of a copy, dated Belgrade, 21 August 1941. It is to the Commander in Serbia, and it is from the, -- rather it is a report by the Commander in Serbia and through the Chief of his general staff and it gives the situation report as of the date of the document:

Enemy band activity has not decreased in comparison with the first third of the month. In particular, terror acts against German Wehrmacht and population have increased. Bands are apparently acting according to uniform pass-words, for instance attacks on municipal buildings, mayors, railway stations, and the like. Shutting down of industries in the vicinity of Krupanj and Loznica (72 km Northwest of Valjevo) according to plan.

Then it recites the main areas of unrest, and then in paragraph 2 lists the various installations which have been attacked. The note under (b), "on 13 August, the Sergeant who was kidnapped 9 August in the area South of Topola was released by the bands."

And, "On 16 August a pursuit detachment from 704th Division liberated 3 missing soldiers near Monica".

And, "On 16 August in return for the attack on a truck of the 3rd Company of the 64th Police Reserve Battalion near Skela, Skela was burned down on 14 August 1941 and 50 Communists shot, some hanged, 15 village inhabitants were shot.

Under "e" "On 17 August 5 Communists were hanged in Belgrade," and then it recites major operations, and gives the dates and areas. On the 14th and 16th of August, "in the area of Cacak".

"12th, 13th, 19th and 20th, in the area of Obrenovac; 16th and 17th west of Sabac; And an especially successful major operation on 19th August in the area Southeast of Uzice" Then it recites the Wehrmacht losses. Then the "Estimate of the Situation":

Estimate of the Situation Employment of special pursuit detachment and total employment of the remaining units in cooperation with reinforced Gendarmes has so far not resulted in the expected relief on account of lack of allocation of Tanks and Reconnaissance Cars.

Then for intended measures: Continuation of very wide employment of pursuit detachments results of which promise increasing success on account of the resulting training. In addition large operations with several battalions in preparation. On account of the totally insufficient strength of the Local Defense Battalions large forces of front line troops have to be employed for guard and security duty. Individual employment of an aeroplane met with good success. Therefore the request for bombers is renewed.

It is requested to speedily allocate the tanks requested separately. As before, request for a location of a Division is upheld, since industrial installations of military importance, among others those at Bor and Kuprany, are insufficiently protected.

There was a document which we passed in Book 3, on page 93. It is already in the book and defense counsel has had copies of it. It is NOKW 1378. It appears at page 69 in the German, page 93 in the English, and it is offered as Exhibit 104a in evidence.

It is report from one of the natives in the area in the southeast, with reference to bands. It is a photostatic copy of the copy.

DR. LATERNER: If your Honors please, I object against the introduction of this document. Again two sheets of paper with merely typewriting on them, they have no signature. Even the signature of the person allegedly interrogated, it is written in typescript. Likewise the alleged interrogator has not signed himself, - rather his signature is typewritten. This is not a document which can be admitted in evidence.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, it is the same proposition that has come up numerous times before. It is a captured document. We offer it for what it is worth. The photostatic copy of what purports to be a copy taken from the German file.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Objection overruled.

MR. DENNEY: The report speaks of the captivity by this interrogee, and I do not think it is necessary to read the whole report. However, at the beginning of the second paragraph it says:

"In the areas mentioned there are about 500 communists and the Cetniks cooperated with them."

And later, they speak of, --on page two of the original, which is page 69 of the German, and page 94 of the English, paragraph 3, or rather the first paragraph on page 2:

Four days ago the bandits were saying among themselves that they expected 80 peasant wagons full of ammunition from Uzice and that they were to receive reports about the situation on the Russian front."

At the end of the next paragraph:

"Furthermore the bandits mentioned that everything was prepared and 2,000 men were ready for the attack on Valjevo."

At the beginning of the next paragraph:

"Some of the bandits have civilian clothes, some have Serbian army uniforms, and about 10 to 15 German uniforms, as well as German headwear with Soviet Stars."

Then again, on page 70, the first paragraph, on page 95 of the English, the second paragraph rather:

"In the neighborhood of the iron bridge across the Kelubara I met a peasant; he was wet and dirty and came out of the gardens; he told me that in several days' time, 2,000 partisans were going to attack Valjevo".

My attention has been called to the fact, that I neglected to read at the top of page 93, at the beginning, before "Valjevo",--this is on page 69 of the German, 93 English, at the very top of the beginning of the affidavit.

"Before Valjevo nea the churchyard, 10 armed men who all wor Soviet Stars and red, white and blue badges came from the left."

That, if your Honors, please, concludes that document book.

We will try today, or if not, the first thing in the morning, to have an extra page added to the list of documents in this book, and it is suggested that this be marked in accordance with our procedure, 169a, and submitted for annexation to Document Book 3, not in evidence, but merely for purposes of indicating the counts, and defendants against whom the document in this book have been offered.

PRESIDENT JUDGE CARTER: That is agreeable.

MR. DENNEY: Turning to document book 5 as your Honors will note, there are only six document numbers there, and there is one which we would like to insert. Perhaps we had better wait until we reach the point.

Most of these reports have been received in evidence in other forms from lower units, - other copies, - but for purposes of making sure that these were brought home, we have offered these others, and I think that it will not be necessary to comment on them generally in mist cases.

The first document is NOKW 892, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 125, and it is on page 1. Again reports from and to the Commanding General in Serbia. I believe that the only one that it is necessary to read is the first one. The rest have already been received, and I believe that it will be sufficient to comment on them, just to call the court's attention to them.

MR. DENNEY: This is a report by the Councillor of State, Dr. Turner to the Commanding General, and it is dated 21 September 1941.

"The aggravated situation, especially however, the appointment of the Commanding General of the 18th Army Corps, who is invested with executive authority, necessitates -- as I believe -- a complete change, however also a completely new attitude towards administrative problems.

For psychological reasons, it appears to me intolerable, that the government Neditch be kept in office at the moment where the executive power is assumed by the troops and where large military forces are employed for the purpose of suppressing the revolt. This puts the government in an unfortunate light in the eyes of the people. Failing to suppress the Communist revolt with its own forces it will appear as though it resorted to the troops of occupation. This will doubtlessly be the assertion of the people -- creating thereby a situation which after the revolt has been suppressed will deprive the government of the people's confidence.

Therefore I intend to advise General Neditch in a purely private conversation to tender not only his own resignation but also that of the entire government of the Commander in Serbia. Simultaneously he should make a radio address saying that a week had past since his last appeal to the Serbian people and because the Serbian people had not listened to his warnings, the occupation authorities had to take the suppression of the revolt into their own hands. Hence he had to consider his mission as unsuccessful.

This would assure General Neditch of a departure which would be plausible to the public in every way and leaves the possibility to the Commander to appoint him again, when the cleaning up operation is terminated in the Serbian area and the Commander believes that he should again appoint a man of the rank and position of General Neditch. Besides one must also take into consideration, that it would be very difficult to form a government again or even to find men, after operation which had become necessary, who would be prepared to take over the administration of the country.

This however will be necessary because our own available forces simply will not be in a position to do so in the long run.

In addition the government cannot exercise any administrative activity as long as military operations are going on and as long as the country is not pacified. Moreover in the period during which only executive power is in force, our own military administration must be given a completely free hand, that is, a real government or a government by Commissars could not be taken into consideration. Administration reforms already introduced, with simultaneous purge of officials, commensurately severe legislation concerning the duties of officials, laws against corruption, would be decreed by the Military Administration and enforced by Military power. In this way after purging the country, one would be able to give into the hands of the Serbs an apparatus which would allow them to take up the administration activity.

If one proceeds thus, it might be expedient for psychological reasons, to take the newly established police detachments out of those areas in which they are operating at present. For it is to be feared, that as soon as these forces are militarily employed, and they see that the tasks assigned to them are executed by the Germans, they will no longer muster up the élan to go on fighting, because military commitment is necessarily directed against forces also which belong to national circles. Therefore -- passive resistance might set in, and what would be worse, they might permit themselves to be disarmed, whereby arms too would be played into the hands of the enemies of the German troops. The withdrawal of these forces may very well be explained by saying that the discernment of armed forces in the terrain is very difficult and that moreover the police forces are more urgently needed to protect priority enterprises and that the cleaning up operations are carried out by the Wehrmacht itself.

In the southeast area of Serbia, southwest and south of Nisch, thanks to the formations of Kosta Pecanek which are there, not a shot has been fired and there is absolute silence.

Also there are no German troops; the formations of Pecanek might continue to see to order and quiet and security as heretofore. The volunteers of the Ljotic group which placed themselves at the disposal of the newly formed police forces,--and which have proved themselves in doing excellent work -- could continue the cleaning up operation in the area between Belgrade and Gradiste, as this operation is primarily concerned with sheer combatting of Communists.

The separate Ministries, and thereby the highest authorities subordinated to them, are under direction of highest civil servants, who in all matters are bound only to the orders of the Military Administration.

With regard to the mopping-up operation itself, I am of the opinion, that for reasons of prestige,-- the reputation of the Wehrmacht has suffered seriously by the failures at Kuban and Losnica and a short time ago at Uzice, -- we must act at least in one place with complete lack of consideration in order to provide an intimidating example for the other parts of Serbia. I, personally, believe that in the area west of Labac, in the area between Save and Drina a complete evacuation must be carried out since according to unequivocal reports and messages, a large part of the male population of this area which is grouped in bands belongs to the Mihajlovic bands located in the southern part of the Cer mountains, and children and women maintain the communications service and the food supply. Therefore the whole population must be punished, not only the men.

Besides, this territory belongs to the most fertile area of the present Serbian area and every possible means must be applied in order to prevent even the slightest amount of food available there from benefitting the insurgents. Furthermore since winter is close at hand and living in the open air amid the mountains soon will no longer be possible.

Pushing off of women and children to the dreary mountains in the south would also present a catastrophe for the insurgents with respect to food supply. They can get their supplies by terror and also voluntarily from the peasants, but they are not in a position to supply thousands of women and children with the necessary food. Such an operation though it appears cruel, is in my opinion the only guarantee for engendering fear and terror in the country and bringing the enormous amount of forced insurgents and followers to their senses by causing them to fear that their relatives may be facing the same destiny.

The corn fields can be harvested in this area quickly and readily by the Germans from the Banat and Syrmia, who voluntarily are prepared for this work at any time. The same applies to the Wheat harvest which along with all the cattle should be brought into the Syrmian area, north of the Save, to be kept in reserve for the German Wehrmacht. The fact that this is Croatian territory should not be of importance because according to agreements, the German Wehrmacht possesses complete freedom of movement in the Croatian area.

At the same time I propose that the Croatian government be requested to occupy the western bank of the Drina in order to prevent the bands from trying to penetrate into Croatia, which not only seems to be their intention, but which according to reports is already being done by some forces. Thereby the insurgents will meet with disaster in the inhospitable areas in winter without forcing the Wehrmacht to intercede with any large scale combat operations in the mountains. At the same time the winter should be used to comb through all villages systematically. By means of money and confidential agents one could find out very quickly I believe who belonged to the bands or has helped them during these months and these people must be ruthlessly shot to death. Thereby the revolt which is expected to flame up certainly and perhaps on an enlarged scale this spring would be deprived of its subsistence.

Simultaneous with the cessation of the Neditch government it seems to me urgently necessary to conduct an especially severe operation in Belgrade, because here, without doubt, the threads pass on to the insurgents without being disturbed and via the most unreliable elements of the intelligentsia. Therefore, it seems to be necessary to arrest the circles from the highest persons downward without consideration and if necessary to liquidate them. To this group there belong in the first place: high grade free masons, members of the Russian-Serbian, of the English-Serbian and the French-Serbian clubs, and members of the Serbian Cultural Society, persons who have contributed money to the Communist organizations, instigating elements of the university and members of Serbian Technical organizations, who, as can be proved, were Communistically very active as far as their youth groups are concerned.

At the same time all active officers and NCO's are to be arrested with the exception of those who put themselves at the disposal of the government Neditch immediately. Consideration towards officers, who in the last months worked professionally, does not seem to be appropriate because these persons by virtue of their feeling of solidarity were no doubt used in the communications service or were put in harness in some way, likewise the arrest of all Jews which has already started, is to be carried out more drastically and the gypsies too, are to be arrested.

Last but not least a proclamation should be released in the Belgrade area allowing a deadline of a very few hours in which it is requested that all arms and ammunition and explosives etc. be surrendered. Belgrade should be cut off during this period and a warning should be published that if arms and such were found, not only the one in possession of arms but also the proprietor of the house will be shot without legal proceedings. Thus the proprietors themselves would be impelled to give information against others in order not to become liable for this punishment.

Thereby every possibility for a revolt in Belgrade itself -- an area which can be searched systematically block by block -- is removed -- which is especially important in so far as an insurrection is deprived of assistance from without.

(signed) Turner State Councillor

MR. DENNEY: On page 7 of the English and Page 8 of the German is Document No. NOKW-892 Continued. This is the same as the prior entry in Book II, Exhibit 62, and I don't believe it's necessary to reread it. As can be seen, it is the same report as the one of that date in the earlier book, which appears on Page 107 in Document Book II. It is, however, a different copy which we have here. On Page 10 in the English and Page 11 in the German there is a report of 24 September. This is the same as Exhibit 69, which is in Document Book II. The report in Document Book II, in that case, is from the Quartermaster, and this one is the copy from the Ia. Turning then to Page 13 in the English and Page 14 in the German. This, again, is the same as Exhibit 89, which is in Book III, Page 337. This is the report for information of the 65th Corps, and the earlier record was the same report sent by the 342nd Division up to the Commanding General -- Plenipotentiary in Serbia, Boehme. On Page 14, in the English and Page 15 in the German test is the same as Exhibit 70, Document No. NOKW-203, which is in Book II, Page 141. That Exhibit was a communication from the Defendant List to his subordinate, the deceased Boehme, and this one is Boehme's passing down the List order to the 125th Infantry Regiment. The entry on Page 18 -- the one that appears on Pages 16 and 17 -- is Boehme's reporting to List of activities of his various divisions -- 342nd, 125th, 717th, and 714th, the 125th being an Infantry Regiment. And these reports have similarly been read in evidence at an earlier time.

That concludes this document.

Starting on page 18, page 21 of the German, NOKW-1053, it is offered as Exhibit 126. Here again, this is a series of additional reports from Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Most of these have been read before.

In turning to page 20 in the English, 24 of the German, I would just like to direct the Court's attention to the entry on page 11 of the original which is under page 3--this is on 25 of the German--reference from Boehme to List of the 717th Infantry Division, "For losses suffered at Kraljevo so far 1736 men and 19 women were shot." That, of course, is the same report which we have seen before, page 90 in Document Book III, NOKW-1074, where the 749th Infantry Regiment reported to the 717th Infantry Division. It also appears on Exhibit 83 which is page 15 in Document Book III, NOKW-3042 in the Security Police-and the SD report issued from Berlin on October 21 1941, and the same entry also appears in the diary of the 65th Corps, Exhibit 85, which is on page 20 in Document Book III and it is from the War Diary kept by General Bader, the Commander of that Corps. And the entry appears under the date of October 18, 1941, and here we have the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia passing it on up to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast.

I don't think it is necessary to take up the time of the court or counsel to cover any more of these reports. They are all from Boehme to List and the court is certainly familiar with the contents of the reports from the various lower units up and I believe that one reference is sufficient to indicate the type of reports which were going up. They are also concerned with matters of very small detail.

It might be pointed out on page 28 of the German and page 22 of the English where they speak of their own losses as being three wounded and then on page 29 of the German, and on page 23 of the English, it is recited that individual enemy tanks appeared for the first time at Kraljevo. It is not submitted, that the individual enemy tanks called to the Court's attention in connection with the prior statement concerning three wounded.

I believe the balance of the reports need not be gone into.

Then turning to page 27 in the English, page 34 in the German, Document NOKW-123, there are additional reports from the same period but starting in July and concluding in December of 1941, from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. The report which appears in the first page has been given at page 66 from Book IV. This is, in this case, the copy which was received by 12th Army. In the earlier book, they were copies which were taken from either the files of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia or one of his staff.

On page 29, this has been placed in before, but I might call the Court's attention to it; it is the incident occurring in Belgrade on 25 July which the Court will recall was, it is alleged, that an unknown Jew attempted unsuccessfully to set a German motor vehicle on fire with a bottle of gasoline and further similar attempts were made. The culprit, a 16 year old Serbian girl, was arrested. She admitted that a Jew had been the instigator. As reprisal measure, 100 Jews will be shot to death in Belgrade on 29 July.

The Court will recall the balance of the earlier report which went up to Boehme.

In the next page, page 35 in the German, 30 in the English, there is the case of 31 July 1941 which recites "Execution of Communists as reprisal is being prepared." At the bottom of the page on the first of August, "As reprisal for the previously reported disturbances near Petrovgrad 90 Communists shot to death there yesterday."

On the next page, 36 of the German and 31 of the English, report for the 7th of August again reciting "In Zagreb 4 plotters and 98 Communists and Jewish hostages shot to death."

In the entry below, which the Court will recall, "Three pointed wire books, 7 centimeters wide are thrown on the road."

On page 37 of the German and 32 of the English, they continue the report for that day. The entry under the 4th reporting on the Communists and Jewish hostages shot to death on the 6th of August.

Page 37 of the German, 33 of the English, report for the 16th, reporting for the 15th, "Skela will be burned down and 50 Communists from Belgrade will be hanged there." The Court will recall the earlier reference to that.

Then turning over to 38 in the German and 34 in the English, the report with reference to Skela again of the people shot to death and hanged and village residents shot to death because they failed to report the presence of an armed band. That has been gone into at some length before, and in the next page 35, and 38 of the German, the recitation of the destruction of 350 houses.

Then we can turn over to page 37, page 39 of the German, these reports that we are passing have also been seen before. They are for the 4th of September and report the recital of 50 Communists executed in reprisal for the soldier killed on the open street in Belgrade on the 3rd of September.

Then we can turn to page 42 of the German, page 42 of the English, where we have the radio speech of Nedic reported to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, asking them to refrain from acts of sabotage and to be friendly toward the occupation troops and the entry under the 7th for the 15th of September. "Another Communist shot to death because of propaganda activity."

Page 43 of the English and of the German, the report of the 20th of September under 6, "Parts of the Belgrade male population sent to transient camp near Belgrade."

Then turning to page 44, of the English and the German, this document--the other copy is at pages 60 and 61 of Document Book IV-- and the entry at the bottom of 45 in the English, 44 in the German, under "3" for the date of 26th of September, 1941, "125 Infantry Regiment has shot to death 49 insurgents near Valjevo." The Court will recall that.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our morning recess at this time, Mr. Denney.

(There was a short recess)

Page 540

THE MARSHAL: All persons in the courtroom will please take their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, we were in the middle of Exhibit 127 which is NOKW-123 and on page 144 of the German text and page 45 of the English and again in proper order has gone in before, Document Book 4, pages 60 and 61. I just refer to item 6:

"8 wounded captured German soldiers before Sabac to returned to own unit. 27 heavily wounded German soldiers are in a hospital in Loznica belonging to the insurgents. 12 Communists hanged for attack on line Petrovgrad-Pancevo."

And still on 44 of the German and 46 of the English -this document was put in at page 69 of book IV.

Then turning to 46 of the German and 48 of the English, the recitals under 3A and B: "Infantry Regiment 268 has shot 44 Communists" -- I believe that is an error in the German; it should be "44" as it is "44" in the original -- "by summary court martial on 29 December."

And "3B": "In Cacak 50 Communists shot to death."

Turning to page 47 of the German and 50 in the English, material appearing at the bottom under the date of 1 October or a teletype of the 30th of September is on page 74, Document Book IV, page 48 in the German, 51 in the English, the reference under "6" in the teletype of 1 October 1941:

"3800 prisoners (342 Infantry Division)." That's on page 76 of Document Book IV and still on page 48 in the German, 52 in the English, in reference again under "6"; "A total of about 1000 were shot to death and 14,000 arrested by the 342 Infantry Division."

That's on page 78 in Document Book IV, page 53 in the English, 49 in the German -that appears at 79 and 80 in Book IV, page 54 in the English 50 in the German. That appears on page 86 of Document Book IV as does the balance of the message which is on page 55 of the English. Message starting for the 9th of October at the bottom of page 55 in the English, 50 in the German, page 93 of Document Book IV is the balance before the omissions on the top of page 56 in the English, still on 50 in the German, the matter which goes before the third paragraph of the communication. The third paragraph of the communication is on page 95 in Document Book IV and the entry which appears on the top of page 51 in the German which is page 42 of the original and 58 of the English: "130 hostages shot as reprisal." That should be deleted as that appeared in the earlier paragraph. That is an entry with reference to the third Battalion of the 697th Infantry Regiment and it appears on page 56 in the English and 50 in the German. There has been a mistake and this has been set forth twice.

On page 59 in the English, 52 in the German, the communication just preceding the signature and certification, in the communication of 11 October 1941 should be "73 shot to death" in the English instead of "70"; and on 56 of the German and 60 of the English, another communication of the 11th of October from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia Boehme to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast List again refers to the speech to the Serbian people against Communism.

On page 53 of the German and 61 of the English, that material appears at pages 89 and 90 of Document Book IV.

Page 54 of the German and 62 of the English, the entry at the bottom has been submitted before as the rest of them. I just call the Court's attention to "3":

"342nd Infantry Division, in addition to 250 arrested by the Division, 100 civilian prisoners shot to death as reprisal measures."

That's under date of October 14.

Page 55 of the German and 63 of the English, communication of the 16th of October -- or the 15th -- received the 16th -- by the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, beginning with sub-paragraph "3" under "II": "Infantry Regiment No. 125: 230 Hostages shot to death."

And on 54, still of the German, and 64 of the English, another report of the 342nd Division: "635 shot to death, 1043 arrested."

55 of the German, 65 of the English, the report of the 18th of October is at page 104 of Document Book IV, page 56 of the German, 66 of the English, has been put in at page 110 of Document Book IV.

Then going to 57 of the English -- or German -- and 68 of the English, a message of 23 October 41, report concerning the 704th Infantry Division of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia; "50 have been shot to death in reprisal for 1 wounded;" and the next reports very similarly have been seen before.

Turning to page 59 in the German and 72 in the English communication of the 11 November, received on the 12th, "129 hostages shot to death as reprisal measures," and in passing, we might note such as page 76 of the English, and 60 of the German, the distribution which is given this in the office of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, where it goes to the 1a, 1c and 1d chief of transportation, then the note for the 19th of November, that on, -- page 76 of the English -- "Generalmajor Hofmann has taken over command of the 347th Division".

The force of the band outside of Kragujevac, in November, is reported at page 81 of the English, -- I am sorry I do not have the German page, -- that is over several pages, -- a communication to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, under 26 of November, it is No. 2737/41 received by 12th Army on the 27th.

Does defense counsel have it in the book?

DR. LATERNER: The number is 62.

MR. DENNEY: 62, did you say, Dr. Laternser?

DR. LATERNER: Yes, 62.

MR. DENNEY: Page 62 of the German, recites that a band of 1500 men is reported near Kragujevac, and the balance of the message on the next page, reports "500 prisoners from Rudnik shot to death" and "four communists shot to death after Court Martial", with which your Honors are already familiar.

Then turning to page 88 in the English, this is a message of the 4 December 1941 received by the 12th Army. The 1a number is 2791/41 is on several pages. Do you have the German page, Dr. Laternser?

DR. LATERNSEER: Page 64 of the German.

MR. DENNEY: Page 64 of the German, and the bottom of the message on page 88, reports the size of the communist band. In the two areas, supposedly about 1000 communists in area Pecka west of Valjevo. And further down, reports, "11 communists shot to death; 11 suspects rather; 42 Mihailovic followers arrested", and a little lower, "hostages seized".

Then on page 90 of the English, which is a communication of 6 December, the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, is advised in paragraph 6 that the new staff has taken over the affairs of the Commanding General in Serbia, pursuant to orders, -- and this is submitted, if your Honors please, is the time which General Bader, as will be recalled from the Diary of the 65th Corps, which was placed in evidence in Book 3, on this date, -- he succeeded to the position formerly held by General Boehme. This is the notice to the Armed Forces Commander.

Then on page 94 of the English, communication of 11 December 1941, it has the last message, No. File No. 2821/41. This is a report about enemy band northwest of Valjevo, increased to 1500 men, and above that a band about 300 men strong in held positions. Then another band about 400 men strong.

On page 96 in the English, the next message of 13 December message No. 2973/41:

"Air reconnaissance finds concentration of bands of about 100 men" and "In surrounding villiages a noticeably large number of men."

On page 98, a reference of 23 December, which your Honors will recall, is Message No. 3124/41a, of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, and of course, at this time the Armed Forces Commander Southeast as of a late date in October, is the defendant, Kuntze, and of course, that applies as Mr. Fenstermacher has said, to the communications from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, which he read, as well as these.

Then on page 102, a message of the 30 December. This is the beginning of a new document. These, again, are now reports from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast to OKW and OKH. This is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 128, in evidence. These, again, are repetitious of the material which has been covered. However, now we are concerned with the last step in the echelon report, the reports coming from the lower units to regiment and division, and division to corps and Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

The corps reports from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, going to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, the receipt of those reports, and now we have the certified copies of the reports which the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, passed on to OKW.

It is to be noted that for information copies of these reports were sent to the OKH, Army General Staff, Operations Section; OKH group in the Near East; and in the Balkans; to the Commander in Chief of the Luftwaffe and the 1c of the Luftwaffe Operational Staff.

The reports of 30 December -- these go backwards, if your Honors please, -- cites the activity of the 113th Division, the part which we use:

"94 communists shot to death;" and "the communist leader of the Mavca group killed in action".

"In Sjenica, 103 communists shot to death". At this period in December, the Armed Forces Commander Southeast is the defendant Kuntze.

Then, on page 103 the second report which is on 27 December 1941, "31 Communists shot to death, 43 arrested".

Your Honors will note as we go along that the reports are addressed to the same officers as were indicated in the first one, OKW, with information copies going to OKH and OKL.

On page 104, the note on the daily report of the 18 December, two Majors of the Mihailovic staff were shot to death according to summary court martial procedure, and the report of the 16 which appears at the bottom of the page, "In Uzice 21 Communists shot to death". It is an entry concerning the 113th Infantry Division.

And the report of the 8 December, 342nd Infantry Division on page 105 reciting:

"During mopping up operations around Cacak, Uzice and Pozega 182 Communists shot to death."

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Sir?

THE PRESIDENT: Were all these orders made while the Defendant Kuntze was the Commander Southeast?

MR. DENNY: Yes, sir, that is, that order was made by the Defendant List, except for a latter portion in this order when the Defendant Kuntze took over. I believe it's already in, your Honor. And then, there's one reference in Document Book III, however. During November and December, the parts which we are now covering, the Defendant Kuntze was the Armed Forces Commander Southeast.

THE PRESIDENT: I just thought if you mentioned that as you went along, it would be helpful here. We could make a note of it.

MR. DENNY: Thank you, your Honor. I'm sorry, Your Honor. I was under the impression that I had made that statement earlier. Thank you for calling it to my attention. There's a note on Page 143 of the Document Book III, and Page 97 of the German, Exhibit 111 in evidence, which says that on 18 October Lieutenant General of Infantry Kuntze takes over temporarily for General Field Marshal List. If your Honors recall we referred to that yesterday, and it says General Kuntze, well-known in the Division as the Commanding General in the Ardennes area during the fall of 1940; but it's our submission that there's another document, and at the moment I can't put my hand on it, which indicates that the Defendant Kuntze did not actually take over until 27 October 1941. But certainly during the period December and November and for the latter small portion at the end of October, we submit that the Defendant Kuntze was the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. On Page 107, the Defendant Kuntze still in command, a communication of the 30th of November, again to the same addressees, reciting the arrest in Belgrade of 90 Communists and suspect in Bor 16 Communists shot according to Summary CourtMartial procedure. And then a note for Croatia that there was "New band activity north and northeast Banja Luka, north Bosnia, Gradiska and north Bjelovar. During this activity Novi Grad (80 kilometers northeast of Zagreb) attacked by Communists in Russian uniform with the Soviet Star."

And then we have on Page 108 the communication of 26 November being passed on to OKH, "500 Prisoners from Rudnik shot to death by Gendarmerie," the Defendant Kuntze is submitted was still the Armed Forces Commander Southeast in this period. On Page 110 there is a report of 11 November 1941, reciting the entry which has been seen before of "129 Hostages shot as reprisal measure", by the 342nd Infantry Division. And then on 1 November 1941, and the date-line of Serbia, Page 111, still in Document No. 128 in evidence, "In Belgrade 200 hostages will be shot as reprisal measures". And then, turning to Page 112, getting back to 26 October 1941, there is a note about Serbia and below it about Greece. And Your Honors will recall the document which was placed in evidence yesterday, from which all of these reports are compiled, it being the Document No. NOKW-1073, Exhibit No. 111, which reports from the 164th Infantry Division, which is on Page 140 in Document Book III. The reports of the shootings of the male inhabitants of the villages are passed on up, Page 112, "Male inhabitants (67 men) were shot to death. Women and children were resettled." That is the same report as was in Exhibit 111. On Page 113, again a report about Greece on 24 October 1941, and this, if Your Honors please, is at about the time when the change-over took place between List and Kuntze. This recites the villages northeast of Kozani being burned. "Male inhabitants (142 men) were shot to death. Women and children were resettled." On Page 114, Daily Report for the 23rd October, still concerning Greece, with one entry about Serbia, "704th Division 50 Serbs shot to death in reprisal." And in Greece, "During search for arms west of the estuary of the Struma River 5 Greeks shot to death, several houses burned down." And on November 22, on Page 115, the 714th, which is in Serbia, recites the burying of houses by the elements of the 1st Battalion of the 721st Infantry Regiment, which was part of the 714th Infantry Division. Page 116 has a report for the 21st October, "Serbia: 717th Division: Within the divisional area 529 shootings." And then on Page 117 a communication of 9 October 1941 from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, who at this time is the Defendant List, to OKW, and the informational copies to OKH and OKL. The incident which Your Honors will recall with reference to the 521st Signal Battalion goes on up to the OKW staff.

"In reprisal for 22 murdered men of the 521st Signal Regiment, 2,000 Communists and Jews are being shot to death." That has to do with the incident which, Your Honors will recall, took place in General Boehme's area, and which the initial documents in Book III, Exhibit 79, which is the report from Boehme to List, on Page 2 in the German and Page 3 in the English, of Document Book III, which is Exhibit 79 in evidence. And then Exhibit 80, which is on Pages 3, 4, and 5 through 8 of the German Book and Pages 4 to 10 of the English Book, Exhibit 80 in evidence, which recites the report of the Lieutenant to his Major, the Commander of the 521st Signal Battalion, and the report from the Major to the 1st Signal Officer for the staff of General Boehme. And then on page 118, indication of the 29th of September, recites a band of 500 men dispersed northwest of Veljevo by the 125th Infantry Regiment. "For attack on 27.9 in Belgrade, 150 Communists shot to death." And then on 27 September, Page 119, recites the burning of houses, 71 of them northwest of Valejavo. On the 20th--this is the report of List to OKH, with reference to his request to OKH that General Boehme be assigned as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia; and then, Your Honors will recall how that order was worded, and then List appointed him, and here he recites to OKW, "Corps Headquarters XVIII" that was General Boehme's corps, "arrived with small working staff in Belgrade 19.9. General Boehme has taken over command." Of course that is the position of Commanding General and Plenipotentiary General in Serbia. The reports of the 17th and 16th of September have already been called to the Court's attention. Turning then to Page 123, to show that he reported as well concerning Greece, the entry under Arabic "5" for the 8th of September, "During special operations against Franc tireurs on Crete, 20 more Greeks shot to death, 41 Greeks and 11 Englishmen captured." And then on Page 124 is the communication of the 8th of September, the first quoted paragraph "2"--that is Serbia, and the second one quoted, which is No. "4", recites "Greeks and Englishmen shot to death, 75 Greeks and 16 Englishmen captured." And then on Page 125 a message of 7 September 1941, "In three villages of the Banat 30 Communists hanged publicly in reprisal for repeated cable sabotage."

Turning over to Page 126, messages again continue about Greeks and English. The communication at the bottom of the page for the 3rd of September, "During special operations again, 20 Greeks and two Englishmen shot to death. 33 Greeks and 11 Englishmen captured." And then for the 2nd, again referring to Greeks and Englishmen, "27 Greeks and 2 Englishmen shot to death. 30 British soldiers and 23 Greeks captured." That was on Page 127. Page 130, the entry under the first paragraph sets forth houses being burned down in Serbia; it is a communication for the 19th of August 1941. And on Page 131, the communication of the 17th of August, "5 Communists convicted of sabotage, hanged in the main street of Belgrade." On Page 132, going from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, Defendant List, to OKW, entry of the 16th of August, "In addition to the Communists hanged in Skela (see Daily Report dated 15.8. 15 villages shot to death because they omitted to report the presence of the band. 350 houses burned down. The punishment has been publicized by radio, poster and in the press." That has been called to Your Honors attention before.

THE PRESIDENT: I believe this is the proper time to recess.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases.

(The Court recessed from 1225, to resume at 0130)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours, 22 July 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. DENNEY: If it pleases your Honors, we were approaching the end of Prosecution's Document Book V and we were on Exhibit 128, which is document NOKW-251 in evidence, and we were considering reports received by the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from the 164th Infantry Division, which your Honors will recall was operating in Greece and had been the case with prior reports here, most of these have been put into evidence before in Document Book III, Exhibit 111, in the form of copies which were taken from the files of the 164th Infantry Division, and these copies are taken from the files of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, and at the period of the telegram to which I will not make reference, 30 September, 1941, the Defendant List was Armed Forces Commander Southeast. This has been put in before, reports an operation on the 29th of September in area northwest of Negrita. "22 Greeks disposed of, partly while escaping, partly while resisting. Some houses burned down."

The next report on page 144 for the 6th of October recites divisional troops of the 164th making a search for weapons on the 5th of October. Two Greeks executed by a firing squad for unauthorized possession of weapons. Houses in which arms were found were burned down.

And on the 8th at page 145, "search for weapons in the area south of Lake Drojan on 7 October, various weapons and ammunition were found, 11 Greeks shot. 16 houses burned down."

On 17 October 1941, again from 164th Army, your Honors will recall this, the two Greeks shot southeast of Negrita and 12 houses burned down. A small quantity of arms found. "Additional member of the Bolshevik parachute squad which was dropped on 6 October was shot on 17 October while attempting to resist arrest."

And on page 147, the communication of the 8th, the figure of 207 persons shot, the male inhabitants between the ages of 16 and 60 years in the two villages of Ano-Kerzilion and Kato-Kerzilion.

Those are references to that same incident in Exhibit 111 in Book III, page 99 of the German, page 146 of the English.

On Page 148, daily report of the 24th of October, the figure appears as 142 on your Honors' English copy of Document Book III, Exhibit 111 in evidence, U. S. or English copy 149, and page 101 of the German. That figure appears as 42 instead of 142.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, please. We have a little mechanical trouble that has come up.

(There was a short pause.)

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNY: Thank you, your Honors. Referring again to page 148 of English Document Book V, which is - excuse me, your Honor, I passed on over and neglected to mark this section of these reports NOKW-1380 as Exhibit 129. That starts at page 92 of the German, for the benefit of German counsel.

THE PRESIDENT: What page on the English, please?

MR. DENNY: It starts at page 143 of the English, your Honor. It is the beginning of these reports of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from the 164th Infantry Division, and the first report is the one dated 30 September. That will be 129 in evidence.

Returning to page 148 of Document Book V, Exhibit 129, in the daily report here, the male inhabitants of the villages of Mesevunos and Selli are listed as 142 here. I checked that with the German original of this communication and also with the original of the copy which was presented as part of Exhibit 111 and in the English text at page 149, Document Book III, where there appears the copy which was retained in one of the offices of the 164th Infantry Division, the figure appears as 42. It should be 142, the same as is here. And this is the identical report to the one that was offered before.

On Page 149 of the English, the next page of the German, the recitation with reference to the 25th of October, the male population between 16 and 60, 67 persons shot. Women and children transferred. That also appears at 101 of the German, and 149 of the English, Exhibit 111 in Document Book III.

We now come to the document which is to be inserted, which is NOKW-1056, and these are further reports to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from the Commander Saloniki. It is Document NOKW-1056 which we offer as Exhibit 130 and ask that it be given pagination starting with 150a and continuing to 150p, "A" as for Abel and "P" for Peter.

11 copies for defense counsel in German, 1 copy of English and 1 copy of German for the reporters and interpreters, and the German pages, I believe Dr. Laternser, will start out as 98a and continue through 98g. Page 150 we can pass. It is just the heading of this document.

Then page 150b, the message of 29 July, paragraph 4:

"Sonderkommando Rosenberg starts Eisatzaktion against the Jews."

Turning then to 150c. The entry in there, note 4, report of August 11:

"Checking the Greek prefectures for newly employed personnel, in particular, former Greek officers. Installation of a concentration camp together with the Greek Governor for the purpose of receiving elements inimical to the axis."

Then at 150d, the report of 23 September contains a note:

"About 20 hostages siezed."

150e reports for the period of 29 to 30 of September:

"During mopping up action of the mobile column near the place of attack on Wehrmacht trucks, 22 men, some while attempting to escape, some while offering resistance were shot to death and some houses were burned.

150 f the report for 3 October, note 2.

"Near Poligires (Kalkidiki) 5 English prisoners of war and 4 Greeks trying to get to Asia Minor have been seized.

From prisoner of war Air Transport, 27 Englishment broke out. 2 shot to death, 1 heavily wounded. Search operations was started during which weapons were found. 1 Greek shot to death. Houses of owners of arms burned.

In a report of 8 October starting at 150g and continuing over to 150h:

"Operation for search of arms South of Dojran Lake - 11 persons shot to death, 16 houses burned" Starting at 150h and continuing over to 150i, the indent with reference to the two villages of Ano-Korzilion and Kato-Korzilion are set forth and in this report here it says 202 shot to death and that is the number that was actually transmitted by the Commander, although the prior reference is 207; so, some place en route it was changed from 207 to 202.

This same information is on page 147 in this same book, Exhibit 129, and it is also in page 146 in the English and 99 in the German in Exhibit 111, Document Book III.

Then passing to 150j, communication of the 21 October still from the Commander Saloniki-Aegean to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast:

"Of the Russians who had parachuted on the 6 October, one each was shot on the Struma River on 17 and on 19 of October. Nothing is known as yet regarding the other three escaped parachutists.

Then they go back to the 17 and recite the action again concerning Ano and Kato Korzilion and now the total has risen to 215 men.

In the note of the 20 October, "As preliminary reprisal measure, 10 insurgents hanged in public in Kato-Kastron."

In turning to 150(1) note of 24 October, the figures for the two villages Northeast of Ptolemais, the same figures and same report that appears on page 148, Exhibit 129.

Page 150m, communication 23 of October:

"In Dafni, 2 men shot to death while attempting to hide arms, in Sitochori, 2 men shot to death for belonging to bands and the houses of people concerned burned down.

"Also Zerovohori the houses of 9 confirmed members of bands burned down.

"In Efkapia, a Greek shot to death by Summary Court Martial for having been convicted of belonging to a band.

"Two death sentences each (each for the crime specified) for unauthorized possession of arms and for aiding and abetting members of enemy forces were carried out by shooting to death."

Then the note that 2 Australian prisoners who had escaped from Rest Transfer Camp 183, had been recaptured.

Then 150(o) The report again with reference to the 67 men is the same as appears at page 149 of this document book, Exhibit 129.

In the report for the 8 of November, this time the dependant Kuntze has become one armed forces Commander Southeast:

"During raids in the area of Nigrita, 95 persons who had carried on Communist activities were arrested and sent to a concentration camp. 1 band leader was hanged, two bandits shot to death."

Then we turn to page 152, Document 1033 NOKW which is the last document in this book. This is offered as Exhibit 131 in evidence.

JUDGE CARTER: What number?

MR. DENNEY: I beg your pardon 152, Exhibit 131 NOKW 1033, beginning at page 151, in Prosecution Document Book V and 99 in the German Book.

These are more reports from the Commander of the Salonika Aegean Area to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast and are certified copies. The first report, Paragraph 2 "In the area of Poligires (Kalkidiki) 5 English-prisoners of war and 4 Greeks, who were on their way to Asia-Minor, were captured."

That was just submitted from another source in a prior document.

Turning to page 153: The material contained here is the same as NOKW 1073 which is page 99 in Document Book IV and also Exhibit 129 Page 146 in Document Book V. Page 154. This report is contained in Exhibit 111, Book III, page 99 of the German, page 146 of the English and also in this book Exhibit 129, page 147. Page 156 - this is the same material that was contained Exhibits 111 and 129 and 111 is in Book III, English page 149, German Page 101 and Exhibit 129 it's in this book at English page 148.

Page 157, this report is contained in English Book III as Exhibit 111; English page 149, German page 101. Then there is Exhibit 129 in this book, page 149 of the English.

Then the last document in the book, the communication of 27 December 1941, from the Commander Saloniki - Aegean to the Chief of Staff.

DR. HINDEMITH: Mr. President, I only have one question regarding the numbering of the exhibits. I don't know if there hasn't been a mistake. Document NOKW-1056, which was subsequently submitted, and which was not in the book, has the Exhibit number 130. According to that, in my view, the next Document NOKW-1033 would have to receive number 131. From what the prosecutor has said, I believe that he has given the number 132 to this Exhibit. I would like to ask the Tribunal to clarify whether this is right or whether there has been a mistake.

THE PRESIDENT: According to the records that I have, NOKW-1033 is Exhibit 131.

DR. HINDEMITH: I believe the prosecutor mentioned this number, but subsequently the prosecutor corrected himself and gave number 132 to this Exhibit.

THE PRESIDENT: I think you are in error. I think the correct number is 131.

DR. HINDEMITH: I started from this number, but I assumed that the prosecutor had number this Exhibit 132.

MR. DENNEY: Returning to the last report which is contained in prosecution's exhibit 131 in evidence, which is NOKW-1033, it is dated 27 December 1941, from the Commander Saloniki - Aegean to his Chief of Staff, the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, who at that time was the defendant Kuntze. Paragraph 5 of the communication: "On 27 December 1941 at 8 a.m., 12 communists were shot to death as reprisal for attempts in which explosives were used."

And if your Honors please, that concludes the presentation of Document Book 5, and Mr. Fenstermacher will continue the evidence and the presentation of Document Book 6.

MR. PENSTERMACHER: If your Honors, please, with the introduction of Document Book 6, we now come to the major portion of the case against the defendant Kuntze.

You will recall that from documents previously introduced that Field Marshal List, the Commander-in-Chief of 12th Army and Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from April 6, 1941, throughout the campaign against Greece, became ill some time in October 1941. He was replaced during his illness for a period of one or two weeks by his senior Corps Commander, the defendant Felmy; and on the 27th of October, he was replaced by the defendant Kuntze who assumed all the duties and responsibilities of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and the Commander-in-Chief, 12th Army, but who retained, nevertheless, the title "Deputy Wehrmacht Commander Southeast" and "Deputy Commander-in-Chief, 12th Army." Many of the reports which we have introduced in the previous books, you will recall, overlapped from a time standpoint, so that some of the reports for the period of September and October were included in a report which also included the period of time November and December 1941. For those reports and the facts contained therein, we hold the Defendant List responsible for the period during which he was Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and Commander-in-Chief 12th Army; and we hold the defendant Kuntze responsible for the material introduced in the reports after he assumed command of the 12th Army and the position of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. But with the introduction of Document Book 6, we are concerned only with the period of time after the defendant Kuntze replaced the defendant List.

The first document book -- the first document in Document Book 6 is on page 1 of the German. Document NOKW-879, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 132. This is a biographical affidavit which the defendant Kuntze signed here in Nuernberg on the 12th of March 1947.

"I, Walter Kuntze, being duly sworn say and depose:

"I was born in Prtizerbe, Province of Brandenburg on 23 February 1883. I am a Protestant.

"From 1911 to 1941 I attended the Kriegsakademie in Berlin. During that time (1913) I was transferred to the 26th Engineer Battalion.

"Participation in the war 1914-1918: With the beginning of the war, I took over the 2nd Field company of the Engineer Battalion Number 26 and I led this company as a Captain (beginning of November) until the end of November 1914.

(East Prussia, fighting in the bend of the Vistula). I was wounded at the end of November. After I was well again, in May 1915, I was attached to the General Staff (Grosses Hauptquartier) being transferred there in approximately July 1915. About the end of May 1917, I was appointed 1st General Staff Officer of the Fourth Cavalry Division (Kurland), and in October 1917 was given the same assignment with the 89th Infantry Division (Rumania). I remained at this assignment until the end of the war.

"Decorations: Iron Cross 2nd Class, Iron Cross 1st Class, the Knights Cross of the House Order of Hohenzollern with Swords, Bulgarian Military Merit Cross, Austro-Hungarian Military Merit Cross 3rd Class with War Insignia, Turkish Iron Crescent, Bavarian Military Merit Order 4th Class, the Hapsburg Hansa Cross, the Wounded Badge (1934 Front Fighter Cross).

"In the spring of 1919 I was transferred to the Reichswehr Ministry (Department Foreign Armies). There I remained until October 1923. Subsequently until October 1925, I became Company Commander in the 3rd Engineer Battalion. During this time -- April 1924 -- I was promoted to Major, effective April 1923. I then was transferred to the Garrison Headquarters in Kuestrin where I remained until May 1928. Subsequently I was appointed commander of the 1st Engineer Battalion which I led until the spring of 1930. In the Spring of 1929 I was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel. From the spring of 1930 until October 1932 I was Chief of the Inspectorate of Engineers and fortifications in Berlin. I was promoted to Colonel in 1930. From October 1932 to May 1935 I was Senior Engineer Officer I, Berlin. I was promoted Generalmajor (Brigadier General) in 1934. In May 1935, I was ordered to deputize for the commander in Muenster (Division Muenster). In the fall of 1935, I was appointed commander of the 6th Division in Bielefeld which I led until February 1938. About August 1936 I was promoted to General-lieutenant (Major General). In February 1938 I was appointed Commander of the Headquarter's Staff, Kaiserslautern, simultaneously being promoted to General of Engineers.

As such, I had to prepare the construction of the Westwall from Mettlach to the Rhine and to execute it, and further, with the beginning of the fall of 1938, to assemble and to train the border troops. For this purpose the Headquarter's Staff, Kaiserslautern was changed into the Corps Headquarters of the border troops of the Saar Palatinate, which was charged in addition with the preparing the defense in its sector.

"Participation in the war 1939 to 1945: Corps Headquarters (since October 1939 Corps Headquarters XXIV) defended the sector Bliess, "west of Zweibruecken) to the center of the Palatinate forest with three divisions.

"In the beginning of June 1940 the Corps Headquarters XXXXII, which I had organized, was committed with 3 divisions south of Laon on the right wing of the 9th Army, for an attack against the Weygand position.

"After the armistice the Corps Headquarters was subordinated to the 16th Army. The 16th Army ordered it for Coast Guard duty in July 1940 between Ternenzen and Cape Gris Nez, later for training of the divisions (generally three of them) which were resting in the area Charleville - La Capelle - St. Quentin - Rethel - Sedan, and which in addition were employed in agricultural labor. During the period from the beginning of August to the beginning of June 1941 Corps Headquarters was situated in Charleville. In the first half of June 1941 Corps Headquarters was transferred to East Prussia and subordinated to the 9th Army of this Army. Now Corps Headquarters was subordinated to the 16th Army and it became its duty to ring up reserves for this Army approximately by way of Wilna-Dissna.

"During the middle of July and until the middle of October Corps Headquarters was subordinated to the 18th Army and then transferred to the Crimea.

"I myself was ordered to Nikolajew to deputize from four to six weeks for Field Marshal List, who was ill.

At that time Field Marshal List was Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and simultaneously Commander in Chief of the 12th Army. In the beginning of June 1942 I was transferred to the Fuehrer Reserve but remained in my position until the beginning of July until the arrival of Colonel General Loehr, the successor of Field Marshal List. I remained in the Fuehrer Reserve until 15 September 1942. Subsequently, I took over my new duty, supervision of the training of the replacement army (Chief of Matters pertaining to Training in the Replacement Army). This employment lasted until February 1945, being interrupted briefly in the fall of 1944 when I had to reconstruct the Westwall. Then I was again transferred to the Fuehrer Reserve where I remained until the middle of March 1945. From then on until 2 May 1945 I deputized for the Commander in Wehrkreis III, who was ill. The orders issued in the 2nd half of April making me commandant of Berlin did not become effective.

"Decorations: Clasps for the Iron Cross, 1st and 2nd Class, Knight's Cross to the Iron Cross; German Cross in silver; insignia for Training regarding the Protective Wall; the large cross for the Bulgarian Military Merit Cross; Great Order of the Crown of King Zwonimir.

"I am married and have one child.

"I have never been a Party member."

Then, if your Honors, please, follows the jurat. The affidavit is signed by the defendant Walter Kuntze.

Turning next to page 5 of the English and page 3 of the German, this document NOKW-205, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 133. This document consists of two communications between the Military Commander in Serbia, Administrative Staff with the Commanding Plenipotentiary General in Serbia, General Bader -- General Boehme. The first communication is dated 28 October 1941, receipt stamp of Boehme's 18th Infantry Corps Headquarters, appears on the right-hand portion of the document. Receipt dated 29 October 1941. The subject is captured members of the German Wehrmacht shot to death by Communists bandits.

"The Headquarters Staff reports that 8 German captives were shot to death by the insurrectionists in the area of Rabrovo on 9 October 1941. The required measures had been taken regarding 6 of those German captives, 4 men of the water security police fleet and 2 custom officials. With regard to the 2 other Germans, I request a German unit be ordered to perform the execution as directed."

Signed: "For the Commanding General, Plenipotentiary in Serbia, the Chief of the Administrative Staff."

On the next page, page 6 of the English, page 4 of the German, is another communication, a day later, dated 29 October 41, from the Administrative Staff, The Military Commander in Serbia, to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia:

"Belgrade. The Department for State Protection of the Serbian Ministry of the Interior has reported that a German soldier was killed and two German soldiers lightly wounded during Communist attacks on a train in the railroad station of Kusadak, district of Smed. Palanka, in the night of 27th of this month. I request that a troop unit be selected for the execution of 200 men on the basis of the order dated 10 October 41."

And your Honors will recognize the familiar code numbers "2843/41," which are one code numbers we have seen previously, referring to the Boehme order of 10 October 41 which incorporated the language of the Keitel document, the 100-to-1 directive of 16 September 1941.

"I suggest the execution be performed by a Belgrade unit."

I call your Honors' attention to the application of the ratios here. One German soldier was killed and two German soldiers were lightly wounded, or a total of 100 times 1, and 50 times 2, a total of 200 executed in reprisal.

Turning next to page 8 of the English, page 5 of the German Document Book, Document NOKW - 199, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 134. This is a report dated 30 October 1941 on the number and category of persons in the concentration camp at Sabac. It is a supplement to the 10 day report.

I think the first portion of the document need not be read but I ask your Honors' attention -- draw your Honors' attention -- to paragraph "6b" which is on page 8 of the English page 5 of the German:

"Removals: from Croatia, 76 railroad cars; from Serbia railroad cars," a total of "455 railroad cars."

Next, on page 9 of the English, page 6 of the German, under paragraph "7":

Arrests: 3853. Releases 727 from Camp Sabac after examination by Police Reserve Battalion 64.

Executions: 405 hostages in Belgrade (to date total number in Belgrade 4750) 90 Communists Camp Sabac 2300 hostages in Kragujevac 1700 hostages in Kraljevo Shot to death during combat by units:

697 Total number of inmates in Camp Sabac 25 October:

16,445 Next, on page 10 of the English and page 7 of the German Document Book, Document NOKW-191, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 135 -- this is a series of reports and orders from and to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

The first report is dated 19 October 1941 and it's from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Officer Commanding in Serbia, Administrative Staff, and the 65th Special Purpose Corps, with a copy for the 220th Panzer Jaeger Battalion:

"By virtue of the order for the suppression of the Communist rebellion movement for wounding of a guard of the 220th Panzer Jaeger Battalion in Belgrade on 15 October:

"50 hostages are to be shot.

"The shootings will be carried out by the 220th Panzer Jaeger Battalion.

"The Commander of Serbia, Administrative Staff, is to hold the hostages in readiness.

"The date and place of the executions, the fetching and delivery of the hostages as well as further details will be settled directly between the executionary troop units and the Officer Commanding in Serbia, Administrative Staff.

"The report on the executions is to be sent to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia."

The document is signed: "For the Commanding General, Plenipotentiary in Serbia, Chief of the General Staff."

The next report is on page 11 of the English, page 8 of the German, report of the 30th of October. You will note the subject is: "Retaliation Measures" and the reference is again to the Boehme order of 10 October 1941, with the code numbers "2848/41":

"By virtue of the order for the suppression of the Communist rebellion movement for murdering of 8 German prisoners on 9 July 41 by Communists in Rabrovo:

"800 hostages are to be shot.

"The shootings will be carried out by the Town Major Belgrade with respect to 200 hostages."

Then, if your Honors please, the three paragraphs of this report are the same in form as they were in the previous report.

Turning next to the report which appears on page 12 of the English page 9 of the German, the report dated 31 October 1941, again the subject is: "Retaliation Measures," and the reference is to the same order with the familiar code numbers:

"By virtue of the order for the suppression of the Communist rebellion movement, for Communist surprise attack on railway train in Kusadak, in which one German soldier was killed and two wounded:

"200 hostages are to be shot.

"The shootings will be carried out by the Units of the City Headquarters, Belgrade."

Page 564

The three paragraphs of the form are again the same as they were in the reports which we have just read.

Next, the report on page 13 of the English, page 10 of the German, report dated 20 November 1941:

By virtue of the order for the suppression of the Communist rebellion movement for losses of the 3rd Battalion, 697th Infantry Regiment:

"365 hostages are to be shot.

"The shooting is to be carried out by the following units in Sabac: Commander Serbia Headquarters Staff, 200 hostages; the 65th Special Purpose Corps, 185 hostages."

Turning next to the report on page 14 of the English, page 11 of the German, another report from the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, General Boehme, this time dated 29 November 1941:

By virtue of the order for the suppression of the Communist rebellion movement, for Corporal Bernhard Schmidt of the Mountain Corps Signal Detachment 449 who was wounded in the region of Tokeris on the 16 October and found dead on 19 November:

"100 hostages to be shot.

"The shooting will be carried out by the Mountain Corps, Signal Detachment 449."

And this report, if your Honors please, is to reference "5b" under Count 1 of the indictment.

Our next document is on page 15 of the English and page 12 of the German, Document NOKW-1103 which becomes prosecution Exhibit 136. I think we need not read this document which is a letter from Tutner, the Chief of the Administrative Staff of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, dated 3 November 1941. That has already been introduced in evidence as Exhibit 116 which is on page 25 of the English document book IV and page 21 of the German document book IV.

However, on page 17 of the English and page 13 of the German is an enclosure to Turner's letter dated 3 November 1941:

"The Commanding General has agreed to the publication by way of the press and the radio of the following declaration:

"Authoritative quarters state that in consequence of certain reports according to which relations between leading Masons and persons in the pay of the enemy with the insurgents have been established the arrest of a great number of persons in Belgrade as hostages has been ordered. In the first place, the representative of political corruptionism are involved whose entire attitude is co-responsible for the misery of the Serbian people. They guarantee with their lives the security in the Serbian area. With their arrest it has been proven that the measures ordered do not only hit the deluded farmer and worker who has joined the insurgents but that above all the wire pullers of this criminal system and their political friends are being caught."

Signed: "For the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia Chief of Administrative Staff"

Turning now to page 19 of the English, page 14 of the German, Document NOKW-1379, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 137, this is an Intelligence Report of the 342nd Infantry Division, which relates to the insignia worn by these Chetnik and partisan units:

"342nd Infantry Division 1c (open) of 1 November 41 - Information about the Enemy.

"However, on the basis of experiences made up until now, the conception seems to be growing that peace and order cannot be restored in the country without the German Wehrmacht. Even the mood for self-pity is increasing."

DR. MENZEL (Counsel for defendant Kuntze): I point out to the Tribunal that this document does not bear any heading nor signature. It is merely an excerpt of page 6, written in transcript, partly corrected in handwriting, as I said, without any heading and without signature. I request that the document not be admitted in evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled for the reasons already stated.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing on page 19 of the English and page 14 of the German, paragraph 10:

"The insignia of the various units has not changed. The Chetniks as a rule wear on their lamb fur caps a Serbian cockade and underneath it a skull and crossbones; the Communists wear on their headgear a red star, sometimes below it a narrow strip of ribbon in Yugoslav colors or the Soviet emblem with hammer and sickle, or also plain red stripes. Arm bands with the word 'partisan' written on them were encountered.

"Leaders often wear in addition tassels in their caps, the Chetniks gold colored ones, the Communists red ones.

"11) Clothes are already known. Mostly peasant costumes in all units only a few in uniforms, almost exclusively among the Chetniks; the Chetnik officers often wear over their peasant costume a Serbian officer's coat with epaulettes.

"12) Valid passes in green color which are certified by the German military offices by means of a stamp are only at the disposal of a part of the Chetnik group Valjevo.

The remaining Chetniks who are loyal to the government have in their possession passes issued by Pecanac.

(handwritten)

"Probably dating from the period before the split of the Chetnik units."

On page 20 of the English and 15 of the German the prosecution's next document is NOKW-1385, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit 140. This is a report on partisan movement and activities including the insignia worn by partisan units.

THE PRESIDENT: Isn't that Exhibit No. 138?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I beg your pardon, Your Honor, it is 138. It begins on page 20 of the English and page 15 of the German. It is a report dated for the period 1 October until 1 November, 1941, concerning band movement and activities in the area of Pozarevac, 20 October 1941:

"The gold mine Blagojev Kamen and its surroundings occupied by a major band, supposedly 2000 men, consisting of partisans and Chetniks. The Chetniks are commanded by a certain Mitar, the partisans by a certain teacher from Velko. Armed with heavy machine guns, light machine guns, and rifles. Uniform: peasant clothing and civilian clothing; headgear consists of army or civilian caps with former Yugoslav coat-of-arms or Soviet star."

I direct Your Honor's attention to the entry at the bottom of the page for 9 October 1941:

"Dubovac 19 kilometers north of Pozarevac. Appearance of a band in black uniforms."

Turning now to page 21 of the English, page 16 of the German, NOKW-1152, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 139.

DR. HINDEMITH (Counsel for defendant Foertsch): May it please the Tribunal, I want to say the following to the prosecution regarding this document. The prosecutor has said in his statement -- he said that this was the report. In my view this is not correct. If the document is declared to be a report, this concludes that this document has been sent from one department to another department.

It therefore contains facts which are of value for the probative value of this document. These facts cannot be read from the document. It cannot be seen anywhere in this document by whom this report has been sent and to whom it was addressed or which unit it reached. The connecting statement of the prosecution is in my view intended to give the Court and all concerned the possibility to make better use of this document. If concepts are used for this document which cannot be read from the document itself, this can only mislead. In this respect, I want to object to what the prosecution has said in this regard.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I would be glad to amend my statement and call the document a "memo" which on its face does not indicate whether received by any unit or sent by any other unit.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing, the next Exhibit 139, which is on page 21 of the English and page 15 of the German, this is a situation report on the Balkans, dated 2 November 1941, prepared by the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Turning first to page 22 of the English and page 16 of the German, paragraph 6:

"Insurrectionist Movement.

"Reasons for the insurrection are:

"1) Recovery from the shock effect of the short campaign which scarcely touched large parts of the country or did not touch them at all.

"2) Panslav and Communist tendencies.

"3) Merger of remaining parts of the Serbian Army.

"4) The refugees expelled from the separated territories (from Croatia 110,000; from Hungary 37,000; from Bulgaria 20,000), who were transported across the frontier without means and without sufficient care.

"B) Carriers of the revolt are:

"1) Remaining parts of the former Yugoslavian army "2) Communists bands "3) National units of the Chetniks.

The Chetniks are a Free Corps organized in a military manner, which has been in existence since the war of liberation against Turkey and which after the World War had received its legal basis for existence through the foundation of a Chetnik organization.

"The words with which their secret broadcasting station opens each broadcast, 'It is not Communists who are speaking here but National Chetniks who are ready to fight for the liberation of Serbia and Yugoslavia,' characterize their political attitude. Strictest discipline, silence, and absolute dedication of personal efforts are the basic pillars of this organization. The Vojvode (leader of the band) is master over the life and death of his people; only his will governs.

"Today part of the Chetniks fight together with German troops and the Serbian police under the Vojvode Kosta Pecannac against the Communists.

"4) Mixed bands (Chetniks and Communists).

"D) Combatting the Insurrection.

"1) The Commanding General of the XVIII Corps, General of Infantry Boehme (The Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia) has been charged with the suppression of the insurrection in Serbia and Croatia...

"3) In retaliation for acts of sabotage the following procedure is to be used respecting male population of areas cleared of bands:

"(1) All prisoners taken during combat or mopping up operations will be hanged or shot to death.

"(2) For the time being arrests are being made only for purposes of interrogation or to supplement reconnaissance.

"(3) In addition to that in order to stop a further increase of the insurgents, male civilians will be temporarily collected in camps. Of these, those who are convicted of having participated in combat will also be hanged and/or shot to death, suspicious elements will be detained as hostages, people who are beyond any doubt peaceful will be sent home under guard after their home area has been cleaned of bands.

"Doubtless the insurgents are impressed by the German operation. It remains to be seen whether a noticeable effect on the whole country has been achieved. The total situation is still tense."

The report is signed for the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, which is, at the time, General Kuntze, by his Chief of the General Staff, then a colonel in the General Staff Corps, the defendant Foertsch.

Next, on page 25 of the English, page 19 of the German, Document NOKW-235, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit 140; this is an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Boehme, dated 2 November 1941:

"Subject: Suppression of the Serbian Resistance.

Signs of Dissolution among the Insurgents.

"1) Under the pressure of the ruthless and successfully carried out operations of the unit, in consideration of the approach of winter and on the basis of the destruction of the Russian Wehrmacht which is gradually becoming noticeable, the first indications of dissolution are to be recognized among the insurgents.

"2) These signs were to be expected; they do not signify by any means that the opponent will give up his aims. It depends on:

"a. Destroying Communism in Serbia in such a manner that flaring up again under more favorable circumstances is impossible, "b. Destroying Serbian chauvinistic circles which now and in the future refuse close economic and political cooperation with the Reich.

"3) At the same time those parts of the Serbian population must now be won which have placed themselves on the side of the Serbian Government of Nedic, installed by the Reich. (See disposition of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia /Ia No. 33446/41 Secret of 2 Nov 41.)

"4) The following directives are published for the Commit ment of the units and the conduct of the administrative offices:

a. As before, all insurgents who are taken in combat even if they desert, are to be shot as partisans. Negotiators who come from territories which combat actions take place or will happen soon are likewise to be shot.

The arrest and shooting of hostages is regulated by the order of the Plenipotentiary CG in Serbia/Chief of Mil. Admin./Qu No. 2848/41 secret of 10 Oct. 41 and No. 3208/41 of 25 Oct. 41.

b. Negotiators who do not offer the capitulation of small or large groups under the pressure of combat actions taking place or to take place, are to be told that the battle against insurgents will be continued with unabated severity and only unconditional capitulation with surrender of all weapons will be accepted.

c. Unconditional surrender is to be carried out as follows: The insurgents are to lay down their weapons at a place determined by one of the troop commanders or the administrative subarea and/or district commandant and are to be brought together in a reception camp of the battalion, regiment or divisions.

They are to be examined there by the secret Field Gendarmerie SD, and Serbia auxiliary police. For this purpose, administrative orders in my mission proceed through tho Chief of the Mil. Admin.

d. The Divisions are to report in the daily reports, place of the reception camps and number of the prisoners.

5.) The exploitation of the signs of dissolution lies exclusively in the hands of the German Wehrmacht (Unit and Admin. Offices). Serbian auxiliary police may not accept offers of capitulation, but must obtain the decision of the German offices. The insurgents will, nevertheless, first of all approach the units of the Serbian auxiliary police with offers of capitulation. Through getting into close touch with them, it is to be guaranteed that the initiative remains unequivocally with the German offices.

It is understood that a crossing over of insurgents into the Serbian auxiliary police is to be prevented with all possible means.

Orders of this sort to the Serbian Government are issued through the Chief of the Mil. Admin. A copy of the order of the Prime Minister Neditsch to the branches of the Serbian Government is enclosed as a supplement.

6.) The larger number of the insurgents will attempt to strike through to their home localities unnoticed, in order to conceal themselves there. Such groups are to be arrested by the units or by the Serbian Auxiliary Police, if necessary with force of arms and are to be brought into reception camps.

The following is valid for the seizure of insurgents who succeed in escaping and reaching their home localities:

a. The administrative offices have received from the Chief of the Mil. Admin. an order to prepare exact reports and submit lists, from which the leaders of the bandits, members thereof, and all persons absent from the localities or returning there may be obtained. They are to note in addition the localities which have offered the bandits assistance.

b. In addition, frequent surprise raids are to be carried out by the unit in collaboration with the administrative offices. Because of their knowledge of the locality and population, it will often be practical to use the Serbian auxiliary police.

7.) In doubtful cases (above all when it is uncertain whether individual groups are to be regarded as "insurgents" or not) the decision of the plenipotentiary CG in Serbia is to be obtained."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The document is signed "Boehme, Lt. Gen. Infantry", and the initials "PM" at the side are those of Boehme's Chief of Staff, General Pemsel. You will note the distribution of the Boehme order, "Down to battalion and district leaders." On page 29 of the English and page 22 of the German is Document NOKW-235-a, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 141.

This is a letter of President Nedic in Serbia, sent to Serbia authorities regarding the treatment of Communists, saboteurs, and their helpers. It is an enclosure to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

"To all Serbian Authorities and Armed Units:

The visible successes of the Gendarmerie, the volunteer and Cetnik Detachments, the measures of the German troops; and the advancing season are no doubt the reasons that the communist bandit and activity and sabotage began to decrease and will decrease more and more. Therefore, numerous insurgents surrendered, yes, even entire groups surrendered to separate detachments and even went to join them. The possibility that the surrender of the insurgents was even recommended by the leading members of the bands and for reasons which were obvious cannot be eliminated, however, these elements are to be used for destructive and terrorist activities whenever the opportunity appears - and perhaps in a still worse way.

So it should not occur on account of an incomplete knowledge of the situation, misplaced sentimentality, or for any other reason that these guilty of the present woe of the people hide themselves and then reappear when the opportunity is favorable to act against the peace and order in order to endanger the lives and property of the unhappy citizens and their families.

I order:

1.) that all saboteurs, their instigators, helpers, Communist-reactionaries, their followers and in general all who have contributed by word and deed, actively or passively, to the present misery of the people, be punished in an exemplary and ruthless way and be compromised in every way:

2.) all chiefs of units, in close cooperation with the police authorities, are to examine every single place or surrender and turn over the guilty to the competent courts-martial. Those, however, who have committed no offense and/or were only seduced and betrayed or mobilized by force, will be proposed to me for pardoning, whereby detailed reasons must be given.

3.) no unit may take over deserters into their ranks. Those pardoned by me will receive information from me, whether and where they may join as volunteers.

4.) In those areas where no units and/or courts-martial exist, the District chief will act according to this order.

5.) Wherever possible and in cases where needed, the German local authorities in question will be notified of all decisions and events. Continuous cooperation with them is to be carried out.

6.) This order will be distributed by the: Deputy of the Minister of the Interior, the Gendarmerie Commander, the Commander of the Detachments of Volunteers, and the Chief of the Cetnik Staff to all District Chiefs and Commanders and/or all Leaders of the armed detachments in question with the remark that all must obey these orders closely and unconditionally.

Signed: The President of the Ministerial Council Signed:

Nedic Lt. General

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The Prosecution's next document is on page 31 of the English Document Book and on page 24 of the German. It is No. NOKW-801, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 142. This is an order of General Boehme, as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, issued by the Chief of his Administrative Staff, Turner. The order is dated 3 November 1941, Subject, "Arrest of Hostages." The order is distributed to "All Sub-Area and District Administrative Headquarters."

"With reference to my order of 10 October 41, No. 2848/41 Secret, I order the immediate arrest of all Jews and Gypsies as hostages.

If the carrying-out of the order is not possible for technical reasons, a report is to be issued concerning it, giving exact details as to number and residence at the same time.

In addition, the approximate number of the wives and children of the Jews and Gypsies, together with residence, is to be furnished and their deportation to an assembly camp in the proximity of Belgrade is to be prepared.

Closing time for the report. 15 November 41 Signed Turner

MR. FENSTERMARCHER: I will call Your Honors' attention to the date on which this order was issued--3 November 1941. General Boehme was Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, subordinate to General Kuntze, as Commander in Chief, and his Chief of Staff was General Foertsch. Turning next to page 33 of the English, page 25 of the German Document No. NOKW-905, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 143. This is a report by the 734th Infantry Regiment, to its next higher headquarters, the 704th Infantry Division. The Division's receipt stamp appears in the right-hand portion of the document, and is 10 November 1941. The report itself from the Regiment is dated 4 November 1941, subject is "Reprisal Measures", and there is one enclosure: "The Regiment encloses the report of 1st Lt. Walther, 9th Company, 433rd Infantry Regiment, concerning the death of Jews and Gypsies on 27 and 30 m October 1941". On page 34 of the English and 25 of the German appears the report which the Regiment sent to the Division. The 704th Infantry Division, at this time, November 1941, was subordinate to General Walther, who was subordinate to General Boehme, who was subordinate to the Defendants Kuntze and Foertsch. It is a "Report concerning the shooting to death of Jews and Gypsies."

"By agreement with the SS Office, I picked up tho selected Jews and/ or Gypsies from the Prisoner camp Belgrade. The trucks of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 599 available to me for this purpose were impracticable for two reasons:

1. They have civilian drivers. Hence secrecy is not assured.
2. All of them were without cover or tarpaulins so that the population of the city saw whom we had put in the vehicles and where we went. Wives of the Jews had assembled in front of the camp who cried and screamed when we drove off.

The location where the shooting to death was carried out is very favorable. It is situated North of Pancevo immediately on the road of Pancevo - Jabuka where there is a grade high enough to make it difficult to climb. Opposite this grade is swampy terrain, behind it, a river. When the water is high as on 29 Oct. it almost comes up to the grade. Thus, an escape of the prisoners can be prevented with few troops. Also favorable is the sandy ground which facilitates digging of the ditches and consequently shortens the time of the labor.

After arrival, approximately 1 1/2 to 2 kilometers before the selected site, the prisoners got off, marched to the selected site while the trucks with their civilian drivers were sent back immediately in order to afford them as little grounds for suspicion as possible. Then, I had the blocked for all traffic for reasons of security and secrecy.

Place of execution was secured by three light machine guns and twelve rifle men:

1. Against attempts to escape by the prisoners.
2. To protect ourselves against possible attacks by Serbian bands.

The largest part of the time was consumed by the digging of the ditches while the execution by shooting itself (100 men in 40 minutes) went very rapidly.

Luggages and valuables had been collected previously and taken along in my truck in order to turn them over later to the National Socialist peoples' Welfare.

The shooting to death of Jews is simpler than that of the Gypsies. It must be admitted that the Jews accept death very calmly - they stand very quietly - while the Gypsies cry scream and move continuously when they are already on the spot where they are to be shot to death. Some of them even jumped into the ditch before the firing and attempted to act dead.

In the beginning, my soldiers were not impressed.

The second day, however, it had become noticeable that one or the other did not have the nerve to carry out shooting to death for a longer period of time. My personal impression" is that one does not develop any psychological inhibitions during the shooting to death.

However, these appear if one contemplates it quietly after a few days in the evening.

The regiment report is signed by Walther, 1st Lieutenant.

Major Hatfield, may I see the original exhibit, please? It is Exhibit 143. On the original exhibit, if your Honors please, is a map which shows the location of the burial place of Jews and gypsies which were reported shot by this 9th Company of the 233rd Infantry Regiment between the 27th and 30th of October, 1941. The site is near Belgrade on the road between the towns of Pancevo and Jabuka.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our afternoon recess at this time.

(There was a short recess.)

DR. HINDEMITH: (Attorney for defendant Foertsch) To the presentation of the Prosecutor when he presented No. 140, 141 142 and 143, I'd like to point out the following:

The Prosecutor, when he made the connecting statement, pointed out not the measures concerned which various units executed; those were units which eventually, that is at the top, were subordinate to the defendants General Kuntze and General Foertsch and therefore the presentation of the prosecution is not a factual presentation but a legal argument. It contradicts, in my opinion, even the conception order Command that a person in plura can be designated as issuing the order as the person issuing the order, only one person can be represented and that is the person who in his own name signs the corresponding document. I believe it is sufficient to point out this fact and then later on it will be the task, especially in the pleas, to say more concerning this legal argument. At this point I only request to point out to the prosecutor that this respect he shows refrain from a legal argument at this stage of the proceeding.

JUDGE CARTER: At this time we will consider only the exhibits as they are offered in evidence. Any arguments that are casually made will be ignored by the Tribunal.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, turning next to 37 of the English, page 27 of the German, the document which you find there, NOKW 1219, has already been introduced into evidence as Exhibit 110, so I ask that you strike reference to it at this time from your books.

Turning now to page 38 of the English, page 28 of the German, Document NOKW 1358 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 144. This is a daily report from the III Battalion, 697th Regiment, dated 10 November 1941 to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

"Parts of the Battalion combed the terrain between Sabac and Lesnics. 130 men shot as a reprisal measure Reconnaissance in the direction of Dobric and Kokesina."

Next, on page 39 of the English, page 29 of the German, NOKW 726 which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 145. These are reports to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia dated Belgrade, 11 November 1941. In the middle of the page, paragraph 2.b.

"Enemy situation: 10 November. Arrest and commitment into a concentration camp of 2 former Yugoslav officers and of 4 men in Belgrade because of suspicion of having connections with Mihailovic".

Next, under paragraph 3.b.

"Details of combat activity 5 November Skirmish between Bulgarian detachment and communist band near Palovo (13km. South Southeast Leskovac). Enemy losses: 3 bandits dead, 25 insurgents villagers shot to death."

Next on page 40 of the English, page 30 of the German, the report of the 18 of November 1941. Paragraph 3.b.

"12 to 13 November. During mopping-up operations in Zabrdje and Punkovo (29 km. Southeast Pozarevac) by detachments loyal to the government, 63 communists killed and 23 arrested. 12 of the latter were shot to death.

Losses of our own; 2 dead, 2 wounded."

Turning next to page 42 of the English, and page 31 of the German, Document NOKW 1052 which we offer as Prosecution Exhibit 146. The document is a series of reports from the 342nd Infantry Division to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. The first report is dated 11 November 1941.

Its subject: 10 days report from 31 October to 10 November, 1941.

"Divisional Combat Post: Valjevo:

"Own; 1 killed in combat, 9 wounded (2 officers.)

"Enemy losses: 53 killed in combat; 248 shot to death; 45 captured."

The report is signed Dr. Hinshofer, 342nd Division.

Next, on the same page, page 42 of the English, page 32 of the German, another report of the 342nd Infantry Division:

"Subject: Reports on shootings, arrests and reprisals."

Turning next to page 43 of the English and 32 of the German, the report reads: paragraph 1: "According to decree: Plenipotentiary General in Serbia III/Chief Military Administration/..." and the code number ... "Qu. No. 2848/41, Secret, of 10 October 1941 the troops are to shoot to death: a. For every killed or murdered German soldier or German National (men, women or children) 100 prisoners or hostages, b. for every wounded German soldier or German National 50 prisoners or hostages. In this number shootings of insurgents during combat actions may be included. Regimental and independent Battalion Detachments report according to enclosed form the total number of shootings, arrests, and reprisal measures as they are listed from the 5th, 15th and 25th inclusive to 7th, 17th, and 27th of every month. Reports of the various troops are to be presented by department 1b of the Divisional Staff. They will be submitted for the first time on 17 November 1941 covering the period beginning with their commitment until 15 November 1941 inclusive."

Next on page 44 of the English, page 33 of the German is a report of the 699 Infantry Regiment, dated 13 November 1941. I think we may pass over that report, but continue on page 44 of the English, which is page 34 of the German, with another report of the 342nd Infantry Division, dated the 30th of October 1941. The report, as the others, was sent to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Boehme. "According to Daily Report of 15 October for 15th to 29th October 1941, 10 dead," and then out to the right, "1,000". "39" wounded," and out to the right, "1,950". And at the top of that column is the figure "1900 shot to death." The total executions by shooting is the sum of the three figures, 1900, 1,000 and 1950.

"Executions by shooting to date 1600, remaining 3,250." If Your Honors please, the total 3,250 is derived by adding the first three figures, 1900 1000, and 1950, for a total of 4,850, and then subtracting the 1600 which have already been shot. The "Division begs for further instructions, as no prisoners are available at present."

Turning to the supplement which is on page 45 of the English and page 35 of the German. "Losses during the period from 31 October to 15 November '41: 1 dead, 100 shot to death, 5 wounded, 250."

And the total 350. "Enemy losses: 73 dead, 129 shot to death." A total of 202; the figure 202 is subtracted from the figure 350 which is the figure which must be shot to death according to retaliation quota, and the balance left is 148. Then the line beginning "Losses for which reprisals have not yet been taken: 3398, "which is a total of the 148 and the balance carried forward of 3,250.

Continuing on page 45 of the English and page 36 of the German, the report of the 342nd Infantry Division of the 18th of November 1941. "Report according to status on 15 November inclusive on shootings, arrest of hostages, and reprisal measures, during the period from 21 September to 15 November 1941. Own losses: during the period covered by the report: 32 dead, 127 wounded. Losses during the period reported on for which reprisals have not been taken; None dead and none wounded. Paragraph 2. During the period covered by report there were shot to death: a. Insurgents during combat actions, 905; b. hostages as reprisal 2,685," and the total is 3,590.

Turning next to page 46 of the English and page 36 of the German. "Paragraph 3. Therefore total for which reprisals not yet taken: 5960. Remark: Further shootings not carried out as hostages were sent to concentration camp. Paragraph 4. Number of hostages at the beginning of report period, none; arrested during the report-period, 22,175; of these shot to death or sent to concentration camp, 21,875; therefore still remaining 300. During the period covered by report there were further..." then a blank... "shot to death..." then again a blank ... "As reprisal for losses of troop units not belonging to Division, none; by special orders 129."

Continuing with the report for the 18th of November 1941, on page 46 of the English and page 37 of the German. "Enemy Losses from 24 September to 15 November 1941." Your Honors will note the tabulation form in which the numbers enemy killed in combat, shot to death, and captured, are listed and the various totals given for the indicated periods. The totals also should be noted. 950 killed in combat, 2685 shot to death, 21875 captured. I believe in Your Honors' Document Books the figure captured for the report of 9 October is given as 1742. It should read 17,420.

Both prisoners have not been recaptured to date. Since at that time the 342nd Division ordered the 3rd Battalion Infantry Regiment to carry out the execution notwithstanding the present immediate subordination of the Battalion to the Commanding General, Plenipotentiary in Serbia - the 342nd Division is charged with the immediate investigation and report."

Turning to page 49 of the English and page 39 in the German, is a communication dated 18 November 1941 from the 342nd Division to the Commanding General, Plenipotentiary in Serbia. "In answer to radio inquiry at 3rd Battalion Infantry Regiment 697. Executions took place two kilometers..." Apparently there should be a geographical notation in here... "of Sabac. During the bringing up of a group of 10 men, these broke away to all sides. 8 were shot, 2 men escaped. One of the latter was slightly wounded. A more thorough search of the terrain and further investigations remained without results. The Company Commander concerned received an admonition by his Battalion Commander. The leader of the execution detachment was punished by a reprimand."

Then on page 50 of the English and 40 of the German is a notation of the 9th of November. "Unit 3rd Battalion, 697th, picked up 131 prisoners, according to orders. 2 prisoners escaped during execution. 1 of them is said to be wounded. Neither one of them has been recaptured." and the notation at the bottom of the page: "Due to insufficient security measures by the unit."

This document represents correspondence between the 697th Infantry Division and the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. I think it will be helpful if we turn first to page 55 of the English, which is on page 41 of the German. This is a message from the Commander of the 3rd Battalion, 697 Regiment. It was sent on 13 of November and arrived at the Headquarters of the Commanding General, Plenipotentiary, in Serbia on the 13 of November. "The Battalion requests assigning another troop unit for shooting to death of 250 more hostages as reprisal measure, since the battalion at this time is committed and the distance to Sabac is too far. At the time the Battalion marched off, hostages in sufficient numbers were not yet available."

Then turning to page 54 of the English and 42 of the German, there is the communication from the Commanding General, Plenipotentiary, in Serbia to the 3rd Battalion Infantry Regiment 697th, dated the 14th of November 1941, and the reference is to the communication of the Regiment which we have just read, dated the 13th November 1941. "Subject; Reprisal measures. Information is requested why the 250 hostages are to be shot to death. Is it reprisal for losses of the Battalion or has the shooting to death been ordered by special order of the 342nd Infantry Division for the losses of other troop units?"

Then turning to page 53 of the English and page 44 of the German is the communication by the Battalion Regiment involved, dated the 19th of November. Again the communication is to the Commanding General, plenipotentiary, in Serbia. "Reference letter dated 14 November 1941 "which we have just seen... "referring to the 250 hostages to be shot to death in reprisal.

Regarding the 250 hostages to be shot to death, it concerns reprisal for the losses of the Battalion."

And now turning finally to 51 of the English and page 43 of the German is the report of the 3rd Battalion, 697th Regiment to the Commanding Plenipotentiary General in Serbia. The report was sent on the 18th of November '41, arriving at the higher headquarters on the same day. "In the mountain terrain southeast of Draginac near Terzici and Reginovac, 150 to 200 Communists in reinforced field positions concerned. According to statements by Chetniks heavy fighting between Chetniks and Communists in Ljubovija. Reportedly two to three thousand Communists. Chetniks unable to hold Ljubovija against them and asking for help particularly for ammunition. Arrival of a company in Koviljaca. Taking over of vital installations. Chetniks were disarmed and led to Sabac on 18 November. Despite greatest security measures, a reinforced reconnaissance unit, with combat strength was attacked by 150 Communists with 4 light machine guns and 1 heavy machine gun. This group of Communists came from the direction of Draganic, from the mountain terrain near Terzici and Rejinovac. Bitter hand to hand fighting occurred. Enemy losses: 15 dead. Losses of our own; 1 dead, 1 wounded (radio non-commissioned officer). Reinforced reconnaissance had to withdraw due to strong enemy superiority. One broadcasting apparatus and three bicycles were lost. The unit code was secured. A unit which immediately pursued with tanks could not save broadcasting apparatus and bicycles. Communists disappeared in stupid flight. Captured material: 57 rifles, 15 bayonets, 400 rounds of ammunition, replacement parts. Since no hostages are available at the Battalion, the Battalion asks that a unit in Sabac be assigned with the shooting of the 150 hostages.

As reprisal measures, Terzici and Draginac will be fired on by artillery. Patrol activity near Leznica." The report is signed by the commander of the 3rd Battalion 697th Regiment, Salzmann.

Turning now to page 51 of the English and 45 of the German -- I beg your pardon -- it's 57 of the English, page 45 of the German -- NOKW-1384 which becomes prosecution Exhibit 149, this is an "Evening Report" of the 1st Battalion, 699th Infantry Regiment. It is written from the field and dated 20 November 1941. Paragraph "2" is all that is pertinent from a prosecution standpoint:

"Towards 1:30 hours elements of the 2nd Company (Company Troop I and II Platoons) carrying out their task of occupying height 440 came into contact with the enemy. In a short violent exchange of fire, six Communists were shot. They were fully uniformed. Their average age was 20 to 21 years. Individual Communists managed to escape in a westerly direction. Enemy losses: 6 Communists dead, 2 Prisoners; Own Losses: None." Signed: "Captain and Commander of the Battalion."

Next on page 58 of the English, page 46 of the German, Document NOKW-236, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 150, this is an order of the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia dated "Belgrade 23 November 1941." distributed to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia for his own files, to the LXV the Corps Command, and to the Headquarters Staff on the Premises; subject; "Death Certificates of Executed Communists, etc.":

"An inquiry of the Feldkommandantur 610 (Administrative Subarea Headquarters) in Pancevo has occasioned me to ask you to inform the units that if the relatives apply for confirmation of deaths resulting from executions carried out by the troops, it is to be given by the unit which carried out the executions, provided the name of the executed person and his death are established beyond doubt.

"I should further like you to order the troops to limit the confirmation to the statement that the person concerned has been shot to death on.... in.... by order of a high authority and to have this confirmation show the official seal of the unit but no signature.

I have issued the same directive for executions carried out by the police battalion and by the police forces of the Banat administration in the Banat."

And the Stamp: " For the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia The Chief of the Administrative Staff."

Page 60 of the English and page 47 of the German is prosecution's next document, NOKW-1200, which is offered in evidence as prosecution Exhibit 151. This is a report of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. I beg your pardon -- it is a report of the 342nd Division to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia dated --transmitted, rather -- the 27th of November.

Paragraph 4: "As reprisal measures 265 Communists were shot today." Continuing on page 61 of the English and page 48 of the German is another report of the Division sent to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia on the 29th of November and received by him on the same day.

Paragraph 4: "Group North A. 7 dead, 12 prisoners, 2 shot."

On the same page, page 61 in English, page 49 in German, is a report of the Commander of the IIIrd Battalion, 697th Regiment, to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, sent on the 30th of November, arriving in higher headquarters the same day:

"Talisavac was taken with the support of artillery after heavy combat. Three road blocks on road Krupanj-Mojkovic were eliminated, one entirely destroyed bridge temporarily repaired. In many houses German equipment was found. These houses were set on fire."

Next, on page 63 of the English and page 50 of the German, Document NOKW-1113 is offered as prosecution Exhibit 152. This document is a series of extracts from the war diary of the 113th Division which was subordinate to General Boehme. Your Honors will note that from the 1st of November 1941 until the 12th of January 1942 this unit was subordinate to General Boehme as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

Then on the last four lines on the bottom of page 63 of the English and page 50 of the German:

"The division will be placed under the command of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia (Headquarters LXV the Corps), Lt. General Boehme, Infantry, for the purpose of pacifying the Serbian area of revolt."

I should like to call your Honor's attention to certain of those entries: first, the entry of 18/19 November which is on page 64 of the English document book, page 51 of the German:

"The Plenipotentiary Commanding General visits the division and confers with the Division Commander about the operation for the destruction of the enemy in the Western valley of the Morava and the pacification of this area."

Then at the bottom of the page, entry for the 4th of December 1941:

"260th Infantry Regiment carried out two mopping up operations, during which the area around Cacak was investigated as to their membership in the Communists." It should read "in the Communist party who had actively participated in the uprising were found and shot. All other civilians were not suspected and were released. 32 rifles, handgrenades and ammunition were brought in."

I call your Honor's attention next to the entry of 5 December 41 and the reference to partisan units which is given in that entry on page 65 of the English, page 51 of the German:

"260 Infantry Regiment and 268th Infantry Regiment have mopped up the quartering area and have arrested 51 Communists, which were shot immediately. The leader of the 3rd Partisan Company of the Cacak Battalion was also arrested."

Next, the entry for the 7th of December 1941 on page 52 of the German, bottom of page 65 of the English document book:

"261st Infantry Regiment marched into Novi Pazar with the II. Battalion and Regimental Headquarters and was welcomed rejoicingly by the population. The situation there has been clarified in a surprising manner. Albanian gendarmes occupied the village so that neither Communist nor partisans appeared in its vicinity. But since the Albanians are mortal enemies of the Serbs, the Cetnik units located at Raska only wanted our help in order to take revenge on the Albanians. The unit needs great skill to master these various political tendencies.

The Division Commander arrived in Novi Pazar soon after the first troops and obtained a personal impression of the situation existing there."

The entry of 8 December 1941:

"Surprise raids carried out resulted in a number of partisans at Cacak, Uzice and Pozega who had returned again to the villages. 182 at Cacak, of which 16 whose active participation in the fight could be proved were shot immediately; 42 at Pozega; 40 at Uzice."

The entry of 9 December 1941:

"The Division Commander visited the 260th Infantry Regiment at Cacak and the IIInd Battalion of the 260th Infantry Regiment at pozega. The commanders reported the impressions gained in their areas. According to the opinion of Lt. Colonel Haerder attacks against the troops are scarcely to be expected any more, since everybody fears the execution of the penal measure of 100 for 1."

Next, on page 67 of the English and page 53 of the German, portion of the entry for 11 December 1941, the middle paragraph of that entry:

"34 Communists of those arrested on the previous day were shot after exhaustive interrogation."

The entry of 13 December 1941, the last two lines on page 67 of the English, page 53 of the Germans
"19 Communists and 18 partisans were arrested.

A further 10 Communists were shot."

Next on page 68 of the English and page 53 of the German, the entry of 16 December 1941:

"268th Infantry Regiment was mopping up from the Drina In the direction of Uzice and came upon a fight between Communists and Cotniks, in which the Communists lost 6 dead and the Cetniks 3. Twenty of the prisoners brought in were shot after exhaustive interrogations."

Finally, under the entry of 23 December 1941:

"Smaller bands have appeared again in the area of Novi Pazar. Major operations against them cannot be started on account of the snow. During minor patrols 43 Communists were captured. On the basis of reports by confidential agents arrests of suspected insurgents were carried out. 31 Communists, including 1 woman, were shot by order of Town headquarters Cacak."

Next, on page 70 of the English Document, page 55 of the German, NOKW 983, Document offered as Prosecution Exhibit 153, this is an enclosure to the Activity Report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and simultaneously the Commander of the 12th Army, dated 30 November 1941.

This enclosure outlines the jurisdiction of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Commander in Chief of the 12th Army, and is important enough, I believe to be read in its entirety:

"On 5/11/41, the new basic order of the Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast and Commander in Chief of the 12th Army was issued regarding the regulation of command in the Southeast.

"In order to create clearly defined and coordinated channels of command in the occupied Southeast, the Fuehrer, the Supreme Commander of the Wehrmacht, has appointed a "Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast" by order No. 31, dated 9/6/41."

Your Honors will remember that this is the document which appointed Field marshal List as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, in addition to his command as Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army. The seat of the Wehrmacht Commander in the Southeast is Salonica.

The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is the highest representative of the German Wehrmacht in the Southeast. As such, he is directly subordinate to the Fuehrer and the Supreme Commander of the Wehrmacht. He carries out the Executive power in the territory occupied by German troops and he has here all the authority of a territorial commander.

Excepted from this unified command, regulations are:

- a) The offensive aerial warfare in the Eastern Mediterranean. This is carried out according to orders of the Commander-in-Chief of the Luftwaffe. For this purpose, the Xth Fliegerkorps is subordinate immediately to him.
- b) Problems of operational naval warfare in the Eastern Mediterranean, the cooperation of the Naval Group Headquarters South with the Italian, Rumanian and Bulgarian Navy, as well as the transport tasks of the Navy in the Black Sea traffic, which will be carried out in accordance with orders by the Commander-in-Chief of the Navy.

These exceptions, however, do not change the basic principle of a coordinated Wehrmacht leadership by the responsible Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

In detail, the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is charged with:

- a) The guaranteeing of a coordinated defense of the territories including the Greek Islands.
- b) The coordinated direction of Navy Transport Movements.
- c) The regulation of cooperation with the Italian, Bulgarian and Croatian High Commands in the Southeast.
- d) The control of the supply by land and sea for all German Wehrmacht units committed in the Southeast.
- e) The supervision of the administration in the territory occupied by German troops.

Subordinate to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast are:

- a) For the area Old Serbia, the "Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia" simultaneously charged with observation of the affairs of the Commander Serbia.
- b) For the area Salonica and the Islands of Lemnos, Mytilene, Chios and Strati, as well as for the neutral zone of Turkey in Thrace, the Commander Salonica-Aegean.
- c) For the area of the harbor of Piraeus, for the billeting area of the German troops in Attica as well as for the islands of Melos and Creta: The "Commander Southern Greece".
- d) The QAdmiral Aegean".

The "Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia" and the Commanders are responsible for the coordination of the defense in their areas and for their security against interior disturbances. Within their areas, they have the authority of a territorial commander.

Within the above mentioned areas they carry out the executive power and direct and or supervise the administration. They are competent for all problems of billeting and of road construction.

All unit headquarters authorities and units are to fulfill the requests of the commanders pertaining to these matters. If danger threatens, each unit commander is obligated beyond this to take action independently and immediately with the necessary forces.

The Island of Creta occupies a special position in the Southeast. It is an operational area from which the Air War in the Eastern Mediterranean is carried out.

The "Commandant of Fortress Creta" is subordinate to the Commander South Greece. All units of the German and Italian Wehrmacht employed in Creta for the defense are subordinate to the Commandant of Fortress Creta in all tactical matters.

The eastern part of the Island has been assigned to the Italian occupation forces.

In his capacity as Commander of the Luftgau Staff, the Commandant of Fortress Creta is subordinate in all Luftgau affairs to the Commanding General of the Fliegerkorps by way of the Commander of the Luftgau Headquarters Southeast.

The "Commandant of Fortress Creta" carries out simultaneously the executive power and the supervision of the administration over the entire Island.

The "Admiral Aegean" is subordinate to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. For duties of "Admiral Aegean" sec. Ia No. 0303/41 top secret, paragraph 8.

Cooperation with the Italian, Bulgarian and Croatian High Commands in the Southeast is regulated in all basic matters by the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Matters of local significance are regulated by the Commander, the General in Zagreb and by the General of the German Army with the Royal Bulgarian Army Command.

The General of the German Army with the Royal Bulgarian Army Command, is subordinate to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast in every respect.

The Military Attaches in Zagreb, Sofia and Athens are to inform the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast continuously regarding all problems pertaining to their work which affect the tasks of the Military Commander Southeast.

The position and the duties of the Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army remain unchanged by his appointment as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. The staff of the 12th Army functions simultaneously as the staff of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. All Army units employed in the Southeast are subordinate to the 12th Army.

Regarding the chain of subordination in the Command area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, a difference must be made between:

- a) Tactical subordination.
- b) Territorial subordination.

Enclosures 9 to 16 of the order "Regulation of the Channels of Command in the Southeast" contains: Political problems, counterintelligence and ideological welfare, matters pertaining to the Engineers, road maintenance, rationing of construction material in Greece, Transportation, Signal communication, Problems of Wehr Economy, Jurisdiction, Wehrmacht patrols, I think we may skip now to the page 75, English, page 60 of the German, to enclosure 119:

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Our next document is an insert, if Your Honors please, and I give three copies in English of NOKW-1066 to Your Honors. This should be marked Exhibit 154, I beg your pardon 155, and be marked Pages 81-a and 81-b in the English Document Book. I hand eleven copies in German to the Defense Counsel. One copy in English and German each to the Court importers and Interpreters, and the original to the Secretary General. This document should be marked Page 64-a in the German Document Book. This is an order from the 342nd Infantry Division to one of its subordinate units, Group A. It is dated 2 December 1941. And I call Your Honors' attention to the portion of the document which we have had translated on the bottom of Page 81-a. "Combing through from Vardiste, as far as it is not Bosnian in the direction of Kremna. One Platoon remains in Kremna. Wounded Communists are to be shot to death." Next, on Page 82 of the English Document Book and Page 65 of the German. It is Document No. NOKW-1150, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 156. This document consists of notes of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, simultaneously Commander in Chief of the 12th Army, regarding his trip to Belgrade. This, Your Honors, refers to the trip which the Deputy Commander in Chief of the 12th Army and Deputy Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the Defendant Kuntze, took, and notes are dated 5 December 1941. Under Paragraph II, "Political situation in Serbia, subparagraph b, "In winter it is intended to examine the entire population of the insurgent territory by means of special detachments in collaboration with the troops. Whoever is proven to have participated in insurrection is to be shot."

The question of the resettlement of the women and children of the insurgents as well as other unreliable elements is still being examined. The retention of these people in Serbia south of the Danube does not appear to be practical. There are still difficulties with respect to shelter, rations, and guard which oppose the transfer into the Banat.

All Jews and gypsies are to be transferred into a concentration camp at Semlin (at present there are about 16,000 people there). They were proven to be the bearers of the communication service of the insurgents.

The arrest in Belgrade of 1,200 active Serbian officers and their accommodation in prison camps in the Reich is to be carried out next."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The notes are signed by a Major in the General Staff Cotps. Turning next to Page 85 of the English and Page 66 of the German Document Book, there is Document No. NOKW-1521, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 157. This is a report of the 342nd Infantry Division, dated 8 December 1941, sent to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia. "Enclosed please find recapitulation concerning losses and booty in the course of operation Uzice submitted by the Division." And the enclosure, "Losses and Booty during operation Uzice":

"25 Nov. to 4 Dec. 1941.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The next document is on Page 87 of the English and on Page 67 of the German and is, in effect, the same as the preceding document; so I ask that Your Honors strike it from your book and disregard it. On Page 88 of the English and Page 71 of the German is Document No. NOKW-660, which is offered in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 158. This is a ten-day report of General Bader, dated Belgrade, 10 December 1941. If Your Honors will recall after General Boehme departed from Serbia on the 5th of December, General Bader took over Boehme's Command and succeeded to the title of Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. This is General Bader's ten-day report, The document is signed in the draft by General Bader, Lieutenant General, Artillery.

I. General Situation and Intentions:

A. The attack operations of the units are over, in the main. They have brought about the expected success and brought about considerable pacification of the situation in Serbia.

Decisive in this was not so much the number of the insurgents taken care of (erledigt) in combat as rather the draconic reprisal measures and the fact that sufficient strong, well-armed, and well-equipped German units under mobile and energetic leadership also sought out the bandits in those places, where they had previously felt themselves safe on account of the inaccessibility of the terrain or where they could carry out their terror unmolested, on account of the lack of sufficient German forces.

The Mihajlovic Group can now be regarded as beaten. Mihajlovic himself has only evaded with difficulty seizure by the unit, and is in flight, Mihajlovic was prescribed, in one of the appeals to the Serbian population, circulated by radio and leaflet as being a criminal insurgent and a premium of 200,000 dinar was set on his head. His staff has been taken care of (erledigt) for the most part. The Staff Officer, Major Misic, is among the prisoners. Many followers of Mihajlovic appear to have fled into the forest and mountains. Reports are at hand according to which these bandits which are now without leaders have tried to go over into the Cetnik detachments of Kosta Pcanac. Signs indicate also that certain Serbian government circles only recently desired to come into contact with Mihajlovic, in order to spare Serbian blood. Along the same line, there are attempts of the Serbian Prime Minister Nedic which amount to preventing a severe thrust against the - allegedly only forced into it - Mihajlovic followers. The investigations concerning are still in progress. Report follows.

The Communistic Partisan activity has also relaxed. This is doubtless because of the service of the Serbian gendarmes and partly also of the Cetnik units which are loyal to the government, which have fought well against the Communists lately.

B. From these reasons, it may well be taken into consideration that larger actions of the insurgents will hardly occur in the following (winter) months, in Serbia.

The activity of the bands will, in general, be restricted to terror and sabotage acts.

Nevertheless, however, the Serbian resistance movement can not be regarded as finally beaten down. The relative pacification which has now appeared must not delude one, that it is a question perhaps of only a temporary circumstance. The greatest danger lies in the fact, no doubt, that a quantity of rifles and munition are still in the hands of the Serbs – in the hands of numerous illegal and so-called legal organizations.

Accordingly it must be taken into consideration the start of the warmer season of the year, the resistance movement will come to life again, above all, if the whole situation should make a withdrawal of large troop units out of Serbia necessary.

C. Accordingly I see as my chief mission during the next few months the complete pacification of Serbia and the rendering impossible of a renewed flame-up of the resistance movement.

This should be attained by:

1. Sufficient security of the traffic lanes, the economic centers, etc.

(as ordered.)

2. a large-scale, thoroughly prepared disarmament action.

3. arrest and deportation of the active Serbian officers.

4. speedy commencement of German and Serbian administration in the territory occupied again by the troops.

5. reorganization of the Serbian police forces, (proposal being presented.)

6. continuous influencing of the Serbian population by the necessary propaganda.

D. A pacification of the situation can not yet be spoken of, in the Serbian-Croatian border area (Bosnia). It really appears that unrest has increased there, as a result of the changing-over of Serbian insurgents. Whether the Croatian troops are in the position to carry on with the means at their disposal appears questionable according to the latest reports and experience. I propose, accordingly, to concentrate the 718th Infantry Division more strongly in the Bosnian insurgent area (Sarajevo-Zenica-Doboj-Tuzla) and shall examine the question as to whether a reinforcement of the German troops in the Croatian border area (by the 342nd Infantry Division) is necessary and can be executed with our own forces.

II. Details.

A. a) large enemy groups are still reported in the following areas.

In the adjoining Croatian area west of the Drina (strength not yet known).

Between Krupanj, Valjevo, and Koceljeva 3 bands, each between 500 – 100 men strong.

Between Arandjelovac and Kosmaj Mountain Range, remnants of bands (strength about 500 men.)

In the Moraviza Valley, about 800 men at Arilje.

North of Novi Pazar, remnants of bands, about 400 men all together.

Territory around Leskovac, bandits in a total strength of up to 2000 men.

b) for sabotage acts and surprise attacks, see enclosed chart.

B. Our own forces:

a) I took over the affairs of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia from Lt. General, Infantry, Boehme on 6 Dec 41. Chief of Staff, Colonel, General Staff Corps, Kuebler. The affairs of the Corps Headquarters XVIIIth Corps were transferred to the Headquarters Staff of the Commander of Serbia.

Leadership, fighting power and discipline of the individual genarme and volunteer detachments are various. The Gendarme Colonel, Babic, successful in the cleaning-up of the Morava-Danube triangle disarmed and arrested his own people on account of undisciplined conduct toward the civilian population.

D. Our own and enemy losses:

THE PRESIDENT: We will adjourn until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(The Court adjourned at 1630, to resume at 0930 23 July 1947.)

Official transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America, against Wilhelm List, et al, defendants, sitting at Nuernberg, Germany, on 23 July, 1947, 0930-1630, Justice Wennerstrum Presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Person in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V. Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Marshal, will you ascertain if all the defendant are in the courtroom.

THE MARSHAL: May it please, Your Honor, all the defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, counsel.

DR. MENZEL: (Counsel for the defendant Kuntze): During the session yesterday, towards the end, the document 660 was being read—that is Exhibit 158. After the Document had been read, it was announced that the session was adjourned until this morning so that I couldn't point out something which I want to do now. The representative of the prosecution, when finishing the document, read figures about "Own losses" which were not in the German translation. This is in the official translation which we have in front of us. I rather think that such discrepancies should be ascertained and that as a matter of principles documents should, in my opinion, only be read when they correspondent with the German translation; or rather when they don't correspond with the translation, the defense should have an opportunity to correct the translation which they have.

THE PRESIDENT: To what particular section or part of the document do you make objection?

DR. MENZEL: That was the last part of Document 660, capital D. It reads there : "Own losses", and "Enemy losses." In the German translation, only the "Enemy losses" are mentioned, not the German losses.

Since the retaliation measures are in a certain proportion to the own losses, the translation swere, this point, in my opinion showed to be corrected, is quite important.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors, please, I think the trouble here is just the human margin of error. In making so many stencils, it often happens that the portion which appears in the English document book will be omitted from the corresponding portion of the German document book.

THE PRESIDENT: We are now referring to the bottom of page 91?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: 91 of the English and 74 in the German. Apparently, in typing the German document book, the "Our losses" section which appears in the English document book was omitted from the German. I think that is just the human margin of error in handling such a mass of material, but I believe if the original document is passed to the official interpreter, she can read into the record that portion from the German which correspondents to "Our losses" in the English document book.

THE PRESIDENT: If that is acceptable to counsel for the defendant in question, you may do so. Will you kindly hand it to the interpreter?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I believe Major Hatfield is getting the official document now, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The document is not here at the present time, and will be brought in shortly; and in the mean time, counsel now before the desk may present any statement he cares to.

DR. HINDEMITH: (Substitute for Dr. Rauschenbach, counsel for the defendant Foertsch):

May it please Your honors, the part that has just been mentioned, I'd like to voice a somewhat different opinion. The defense counsel, Dr. Menzel, said that documents should only be read by the prosecution which contain the same contents as in the German version. I believe that this does not quite correspond to the matters as they should be.

The documents which are being presented by the prosecution are being presented as incriminating as a whole, without consideration as to whether it is being read as a whole or not, that is, also the parts which are not being read have the evaluated by the Tribunal. It does not help the defense, therefore, if only those parts are read which are contained in the German version of the document. The defense thinks that it should be ascertained in each case that the whole document, as it is in the English version, should be presented to the Tribunal, and it should be presented to the defense in just the same version. Only on the basis of this assertion, the defense is in a position to ascertain what it has to object to and should defend again.

THE PRESIDENT: If the Tribunal is correctly informed, the defense counsel has access to all material which has been presented by the prosecution, am I correct in that, Mr. Fenstermacher?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: You are correct, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, that being true, can you not ascertain such parts to which you might object, counsel?

DR. HINDEMITH: Mr. President, the fact that in individual cases it has been ascertained that in the German version not the whole text appears, makes us a little doubtful since not all documents are being read into the record; and if necessary, one has to count on that fact that in the English version of the document there is a larger part of the contents than in the German version. Therefore, most defense counsel find it difficult on the basis of the photostats to make sure what is contained in the document. The defense, in my opinion, has to assume that everything is contained in the German version that the prosecution presents as evidence.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, I can assure this Tribunal and the defense counsel that we make every effort that is humanly possible to have the English document book correspond one hundred percent to the German Document Book; but when two different staffs of people, one staff typing up and stenciling the English version and another staff typing up the German version, are involved there is bound to be some error.

Sometimes the English typist in typing up the English translation will omit a line or two, or a figure which appears in the German document book; and on occasion, as has happened here, that may happen the other way'round. But we do everything that is humanly possible to have the English document book and the German document book correspond to the Nth degree.

THE PRESIDENT: This Court and Tribunal is of the opinion that if prosecution fails to show such matters as the defense counsel feel should be shown that the defendants can and it is their privilege and right to do so later in the trial of this case. We are taking for granted that the translations as presented in English are the same as presented to German counsel and if that is not true counsel can so indicate it in their presentation of their defense.

JUDGE CARTER: Counsel for the prosecution, I think they are objecting to the fact that they can't tell what part they have of their document book is being offered by you; in other words you are not offering as much as they have in their book and they can't tell which part is being offered by the prosecution. Is that the -

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Well, if your honors please, I think the problem here is the section on "our losses" which appears on page 91 and does not appear in the German document.

JUDGE CARTER: I think that is the object made by the first counsel but I think this counsel is distinguishing between your exhibit offered here and the part in excess of that in his German document book.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think the answer to that, then, your Honors, is simply that we are not reading into the record everything that appears in our book, the English as well as in theirs, the German.

JUDGE CARTER: I think that is what he is complaining about.

DR. HINDEMITH (Counsel for defendant Foertsch): Your Honors, may I add something? I was less concerned with this individual case than this individual case just caused me to generally point out that the defense finds it necessary that it can assume that the version of the copies of the document which they received correspond with the version of the documents which are being presented in English. They have to -they can only form their own picture on the basis of the documents which they have in front of them and they can only thus ascertain what they have to defend again.

Not all documents are being read completely. The fact that when the documents are being read it has been found out that some parts are not contained in the German text, this very fact lets us doubt whether other documents which are not being read at all are only in part might also contain such discrepancies.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, again, I can only say that we make every attempt to have the defendant and English document books correspond. We have members of your staff sit with an English version on one side and the German version on the other and they compare them and I believe, except for very, very rare errors, such as this one, which has been called to our attention, there are no cases in which the English document book and the German document book do not 100% correspond.

JUDGE BURKE: Just one moment, please. Your present objection is based largely upon a inference then, is it not?

DR. HINDEMITH: Your Honors, this particular event causes me to make some general remarks. I believe that it would be fair if -- the prosecution would assume that the German and the English text should correspond. However, this individual case shows us that in this particular case it was not the case. Now, not all documents are being read in total, only excerpts, parts, or certain documents have been passed over completely. They were only taken judicial notice of. The defense therefore has no possibility to ascertain that these documents correspond in the English and the German version but the fact that in this particular case, where the document has been read and where there was such a discrepancy leads to doubts whether such discrepancies are not also the case in documents which are not being read at all or which are only being read in part.

THE PRESIDENT: It seems to this Tribunal that this is a matter which should be checked through the defense center and we are taking for granted that the matters as presented here are authentic and are correct and we trust that the parties who are presenting these matters are doing so in good faith.

Counsel can check with the defense center and through the interpreters and translators and if you have any doubts about these matters it is your privilege and right to present them in such way as you see fit.

I believe that ought to dispose of the matter at this time. We do not want to limit you. We, however, that that is a matter which should be presented by defense counsel in such way as they see fit. That's your privilege and right and we want you to make use of it; but this particular question -- we cannot make any definite ruling until you have raised some particular question as to some particular document.

Now, as to this one document, I think it is now in the courtroom and we can give consideration to that and have it translated by the translators and interpreters.

DR. HINDEMITH: This particular document I am not interested in. I was interested only in the general aspect of the matter and I wanted to make it clear for once that there should be -- that the German and English versions should always correspond when both of those documents are being read to the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: I think I have expressed the attitude of the Tribunal. We want you to have every right that's due you as counsel and due to the defendants but it's a matter which you will have to check through the defense center and the interpreters and the translators.

DR. HINDEMITH: Very well, I follow you, Mr. President.

DR. MENZEL: (Counsel for defendant Kuntze): May I point out that we have now the original or, rather, the photostat of the document in question and from this I see now the version as the representative of the prosecution presented it corresponds with the photostat. Therefore, it was merely a mistake in the German translation.

I thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any necessity -- is there any necessity of having it translated by the translator and interpreters here into the record?

Page 617

DR. MENZEL: I don't think that necessary. There are only a few figures and we can add them in our copy.

THE PRESIDENT: They are not on our document, are they? Oh, very well. Mr. Fenstermacher.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: As I understand it, the defendant documents books contain more information than the English.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, Your Honor. The defendants' document books correspond 100%, within the margin of human error, to the English document books but the actual photostat copy of the document of which we only use excerpts is only in the possession of the defense information center, to which all the defense counsel have access and it is only that photostat copy of the document of which we are only using excerpts that contains a good deal more material than we actually use.

THE PRESIDENT: So they have exactly the same exhibit you are offering here and no more or no less.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That is right, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: All right.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: For the record then I should like to state that the text "Our losses," which appears on page 91 of the German book will now be market in the German document book on page 74 and inserted should read:

"Our losses: Dead 14 Wounded 35 Captured (blank)" Your Honors will recall that yesterday we were dealing with Document Book No. VI which contains various orders and reports covering a period of time from November and December 1941 during which time General Boehma was Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, subordinate to the defendant Kutnze who was at that time Commander in Chief, 12th Army, and Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and his Chief of Staff, the defendant Foertsch.

Turning next to page 93 of the English Document Book and page 75 of the German, Document NOKW-474 is offered as prosecution Exhibit 159. This is a statistical report dated 20 December 1941, apparently compiled by the Plenipotentiary Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. I say "apparently" because there is nothing other than the pencilled notation at the top of page 94 in the English and page 76 in the German to indentify this document. It reads:

"Reprisal measures carried out from the beginning of the insurgent movements in Serbia up to 3 December 1941.

"With the transfer of the affairs of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia from the XVIII to the XXXII Infantry Corps, the reprisal measures completed up to this period of time should be summarized. The basic orders are attached in the file Qu 2 (Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia VIII &). On the basis of the troop reports, the following final numbers are given."

And then there follows a table broken down into the various units subordinate to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia the 125th Infantry Regiment plus the 1st Battalion, the 342nd Infantry Division, the Commander of Serbia Administrative Staff, the 113th Infantry Division, the LXVth Corps and the III rd Battalion of the 697th Regiment, as well as the 220th Artillery Regiment.

Your Honors will note the table "Own Losses." Under "a" -

"Dead 11, 32 and 117" which I should like to call to your Honor's attention is a total of 160.

Under "Wounded" there are entries of 30, 130 and 218, which is the figure "218" when added the total of 160 for the above and gives a total of 378. That figure will appear later, if your Honors will please keep it in mind.

Then the table goes on with "Enemy Losses" with these various entries of 369, 923, 24 and 2,246.

Then the entries for "Reprisal Measures": 214, 2,685, 3,616 and 4,649, together 11,164.

"According to the basic key of 1 to 100 and 1 to 50, the following is given as reprisal measures to be executed:

"160" which your Honors will remember is the total for German dead times "100" equals "16,000."

"378", which your Honors will remember is the total for German wounded, times "50" -- "18,900," or a combined total of "34,900."

Turning to page 94 of the English, page 76 of the German, "Reprisal measures executed 11.

164, which is the figure given on page 93 of the English, and page 75 of the German as the total for enemy having fallen in battle, and Reprisal measures then estimated, enemy dead, 3,562. The quota, enemy dead, 34,900 and then by subtracting 3,562, the enemy dead from the established quota, one gets a remainder of 11,338. Thus there would be due for further reprisal", and then the figure 11,164 is subtracted from the total 31,338, or a remainder, of persons due for further reprisals of 20,174.

Paragraph (5) of the memorandum continues:

On 16 Dec. in the forenoon the data was still lacking for this report on the 718th Inf. Div., the III Battl. 697th Inf. Regt., and 113th Inf. Div.

Captain von Haacke and Captain Schuster were asked for a telephone report. Nothing was effected in the case of the 718th Inf. Div.

It is confirmed definitely that the reports of the subordinate units are incomplete and inexact since at first, at the start of the insurrection, the executions took place without written record and reports made later must be inaccurate. The alleged number 11, 164 is to be evaluated as an approximate number.

In order to establish clear conditions in the field of reprisal measures, the issuing of a new order, which establishes clear reporting terms, is essential. It is already worked out and now being printed.

On page 95 of the English, and page 77 of the German, this document NOKW 342, which is offered in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 160, Your Honors will recall that on the 5th of December, General Paul Bader, who had been the commanding general in Serbia, replaced General Boehme, the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, and assumed the title which Boehme had of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, and assumed the title which Boehme had of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

The document which we now have before us is a report from General Bader in his new capacity, dated 22 December 1941, a report sent to the Administrative staff, Branch Ia, which Your Honors will recall is the operations staff.

The subject of the report is given and then the text:

"I command, that from 5 Dec. 41, in reprisal measures for German Wehrmacht members and "Volksdeutsche" killed, the following basic reprisal quota be imposed:

For 1 dead: 50 reprisal prisoners.

For 1 wounded: 25 reprisal prisoners."

The report is signed, "Bader".

Your Honors will note that the date, "22 December 1941", when it established reprisal quotas, they are reduced by General Bader.

Turning next to page 96 of the English, 78 of the German, Document NOKW 840 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 161, this is a basic directive of General Bader dated Belgrade 20 December 1941:

"Subject: Basic orders for the Winter".

With the commencement of the warmer season of the year, a flaring up of the unrest and the franc-tireur movement has to be taken into consideration, especially if the overall situation should make a withdrawal of large bodies of troops necessary.

All military and civilian offices have to adjust themselves to this possibility. The calm - perhaps only temporarily - must never lead to a slacking-off of security or too carelessness! Security and Conduct of Battle:

The divisions bear the responsibility that the installations to be protected remain undamaged and in working condition under all circumstances. They are to determine the strength of the occupying forces and provide for regular relief. The unit is not to become over-tired; only salert guards fulfill their mission. Strong mobile reserves must always be ready to be thrown quickly into the threatened positions. Accordingly, the most important roads are to be kept free, also in Winter (snow !)

Surrounded units must break through by the concentration of all forces at their disposal. There is to be no negotiations with the enemy! The German soldier never surrenders to insurgents!

The completion of protective structures (guard towers) is to be pushed forward by the unit. They are to be occupied as soon as possible. The speedy completion of sufficient impediments (barbed wiring) is important.

The previously named security missions must in no case lead to waiting and passive conduct! It must be clear to each German soldier in Serbia that attack is the best protection against bandits who crop up. Therefore, wherever insurgents are confirmed, they are to be attacked, after thorough preparation. With sufficient forces, without order of Corps Command authorities, if possible, they are to be destroyed by sudden encirclements, but at least, however, to be scattered. Only thus can the organization and assembly of the enemy bandits be prevented. The insurgents must not even rest in Winter!

Such attack operations also afford as well the best opportunity for the schooling of officers and troops and must accordingly be taken up cheerfully for psychological reasons. Execution is to take place according to the directives for "Combatting Partisans".

Billeting itself is to take place everywhere according to warlike points of view. The quarters are to be erected basically for defense. An officer is to live in the range of each unit constantly.

The following directives are given for the treatment of the Serbian population:

The Serbian population must be so educated and influenced that it endures no insurgents of any kind in its spheres.

It must learn to see its own greatest enemy in insurgents of all kinds.

In case of irregularities, the families, households, communities, etc. must be brought to responsibility ruthlessly.

All Mihailovic members are to be treated as insurgents and may not be given special treatments. The Serbian government is striving to make impossible a severe blow against the Mihailovic followers allegedly only forced - or at least to ameliorate it. This must be prevented.

In the same way, everything must be done in order to exclude a changing-over of Mihailovic followers into the legal Serbian organizations.

I call particular attention to the abstinence of all German Wehrmacht members from national – or other political questions – for example, relationships with Albanians or neighbouring states. In this territory, no soldier is to occupy himself with any sort of politics or propaganda which only leads to misunderstandings or to questionings of the highest authorities.

propaganda and ideological care:

Propaganda will be directed uniformly by the competent authorities of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

It is of primary importance to seize the credible Serbian national population in the territories which have been re-occupied recently by our troops.

Through corresponding explanations in word and picture, suited to the mentality of this population – radio, press, leaflets, posters, etc. – a considerable pacification and a reasonable attitude of these classes of the people may be attained.

Last but not least the unit must try to gain the respect of the population through a determined unobjectionable and just appearance.

I refer to the ideological education and care of our soldiers during the Winter months. Its pronounced main effort must lie with the unit in the field where quarters are bad, variety and possibility of amusement are restricted.

I think we need not read the rest. The order is signed, "Bader, Lt. General Artillery".

DR. HINDEMITH for DR. RAUSCHENBACH (representing the defendant General Foertsch):

When this document was read by the representative of the Prosecution, at the point under figure (3) -- that is the last but one paragraph -- I saw that in the German version, after the sentence, "The execution has to be carried out according to directive for partisans", the part in parenthesis, (Commander in Chief of the Army General Staff of the Army Training Branch IA, No. 1900/41 from the 25 Oct. 41) – was not read. This reference seems important to me, since thus we can see that it was only the execution of an order which had been given from above, I do not know whether in the English version this parenthesis is contained. When it was being read this parenthesis was omitted.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, the phrase which Dr. Hindemith refers to is in the English version. I neglected to read it. Perhaps in the future when I omit any version of the document, I will specify that I am omitting that portion.

DR. HINDEMITH: That is sufficient for me. I am now convinced myself that the parenthesis is contained in the English version and I am satisfied.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The document which we have just been reading is signed, "Bader, Lt. General, Artillery".

Page 625

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning next to Page 100 of the English and Page 81 of the German Document Book is Document No. NOK W-610, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 162. This, if Your Honors please, is an enclosure of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. It is of such importance. If Your Honors please, I withdraw that. On Page 100 we continue with the previous Exhibit No. 161, which is an enclosure to the order of General Bader from which I have just been reading. We will hold the Exhibit No. 162 until the next document. The subject of this memorandum is seen from the middle of Page 100 in the English and Page 81 in the German, "Seizure of prisoners for reprisal measures.

Seizure of hostages, and Other prisoners."

Your Honors will note the first reference which is to the order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, with the familiar code No. Ia No. 3848)41 secret, of October 10, 1941.

The hard, ruthless and vigorous action of the units in regard to reprisal for human lives, which was ordered by the highest German authorities, has led in the main to quick and successful suppression of the insurgents in Serbia. The reports of completion of the Corps commands and the divisions show that the Fuehrer order concerning reprisal measures has been carried out fully up to 5 Dec. 41.

The reprisal measures will be continued further. In order to exclude any existing doubts concerning them, I am referring to the fact that three groups of prisoners are to be differentiated:

1) Reprisal prisoners are persons who for reason of their attitude and conduct are destined as reprisal for German human lives, for example, Communists not encountered with weapons, Gypsies, Jews, criminals, and the like.

2) Hostages are persons who play a role in public life and on the basis of their personalities exercise a certain influence on the population in their realm of activity. They are composed from the most varied strata of the population. They guarantee with their lives the public peace, order and security in their part of the country.

3) Prisoners of the unit are persons who are taken in the course of an operation as suspicious. They require a further examination by the administrative sub-area headquarters authorities. They will either be released or transferred to the reprisal prisoners.

Treatment for various prisoners:

1) Prisoners are to be transferred by the unit after a short interrogation, together with the results of the interrogation to the nearest competent district of Administrative sub-area headquarters. This district headquarters have to send them on to the administrative sub-area headquarters. After examination in the administrative sub-area headquarters, they are to be held as reprisal prisoners in readiness for revenge measures in the competent camps, or to be released.

2) The seizing of hostages is the task of administrative sub-area, district and local headquarters. The unit has only to concern itself in exceptional cases and then only in cooperation with administrative sub-area, district and local headquarters. It cooperates in the seizure of hostages only on demand of the local administrative offices.

The hostages are to be held in readiness in camps. The recourse to reprisal measures as well as their eventual exchange is to be decided separately by the chief of the administrative staff of the Commander in Serbia.

3) The administrative sub-area headquarters maintain camps of the necessary extent for this purpose. In Belgrade, the administrative sub-area headquarters turn over their prisoners to the already existing camp of the special purpose unit of the SP and the SD. In Kraljevo, a corresponding camp is to be erected at once. All camps are subordinated to the Chief of the Administrative Staff of the Commander in Serbia. The camp direction is the affair of the SS-Fuehrer assigned at the time to the administrative sub-area headquarters. Guard is the business of the administrative sub-area headquarters.

Inspection and examination of all prisoners is exclusively the task of the SS Fuehrer assigned to each camp. 4) If Wehrmacht losses occur (dead and wounded), they are to be reported, as well as by way of the IV b channel, with the daily reports to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General. In combat losses, how many enemy fell in the course of the battle is to be given. Basically, the insurgents, including Mihailovic followers, encountered with weapons in combat actions are to be shot. They have nothing to do with seizing of hostages, but count nevertheless on the quota ordered for the reprisal measures.

5) Reprisal prisoners and hostages may from now on be shot only on my previously-given written order, which is to be obtained for each individual case. The principle is that the unit is to avenge its losses itself, if at all possible. Since, however, the reprisal prisoners are collected in few camps, this principle cannot always be followed; therefore, troops must be used accordingly for the execution, troops which have nothing to do with the case and are only in the proximity of the reprisal prisoner's camp.

6) Decree reference 2 is valid for the carrying out of executions; for special seizure and reporting, decree reference 3. Reports of completion pertaining to orders for shootings are to go through the Plenipotentiary Commanding General with the daily reports.

The mission of the unit is fulfilled with the handing in of the nominal roll of those shot to the competent administrative sub-area district, or local headquarters.

7) Dead and wounded Volksdeutsche (men, women and children) are to be determined from the Chief of the Military Administration and to be avenged for by the SD upon written order (suggestion by the Administrative Staff).

8) Dead and wounded of the Serbian gendarmerie and auxiliary police do not fall under reprisal measures. Therefore, they have to be entered in the loss reports separately.

9) The administrative sub-area headquarters are to report the reprisal measures carried out for German soldiers for the last month; likewise the SD, for reprisal measures carried out for Volksdeutsche, by the 5th of each month to the Plenipotentiary Command General in Serbia/Chief of the Administrative Staff, who makes a survey and reports to me.

10) Reprisal measures carried out are to be publicized by the competent administrative offices primarily in those territories in which German sacrifices are to be avenged."

Mihailovic followers no longer offer battle. It seems that the national group of insurgents has actually been smashed. Attempts of the Mihajlovic people to disappear in the Serbian gendarmerie and in the Cetnik units of Kosta Pacanic have again been reported. It has been confirmed that a member of the government has attempted to establish connection with Mihajlovic via the Serbian auxiliary gendarmerie. MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning to the last document in Document Book VI, Page 107 on the English and Page 86 of the German, Document No. NOK -725, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 163.

This is again a 10-day report, sent by General Bader as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, who at this time, 31 December 1941, was the Defendant Kuntze. The report begins with a review of the general situation in Serbia.

"Prime Minister Medic was informed on 29 Dec of immediate occupation of a part of Serbia by Bulgarian units. A memorandum of the Ministerial Council presented concerning this maintains that this measure is unbearable for Serbia and contains a request for alteration. It remains to be seen whether the government will remain in office.

The occupation of Serbian territory by Bulgarian units has a strong effect on the Serbian national sentiment. Encroachments of Bulgarian soldiers on Serbs in the previously occupied territories and Serbian acts of sabotage against Bulgarians are continuing. An increase of these hostilities must be taken into consideration, if the occupation is extended.

Quiet prevails in the middle of the Serbian area. The territories near the border Nis-Lebane, the area south of Loznica-Krupanj, region of Pozarevac, and the border territory SW of Uzice remain places of unrest and centers of sabotage. Successful smaller operations of the unit and the Serbian gendarmes and auxiliary police lead to a further scattering of resistance units.

(The report of General Bader to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast also contains a section on Croatia)

b) Croatia The general situation is tense.

Unanimity of the Ustaci movement standing behind the government must be doubted. The combat value and the reliability of the Croatian units is small. Without efficient help of German units, they will not be able to destroy the resistance movement which has increased strongly in the last few weeks, especially in the eastern part of Croatia.

2.) Enemy

a.) Serbia Enemy situation in the main unchanged.

Dispersal movements of the insurgents into the out-of-the-way border areas, especially of the Serbo-Croatian border area continue. Surprise attacks and sabotage acts have increased from 25 in the last report period to 53 since the 15th of December. Enclosure 1 For details, see Enclosure 1.

The territories of unrest are (compilation of previous reports):

aa) Area Nis-Lebane The operations of the 717th Infantry Division at Lebane did not clear up matters.

An operation of the Serbian gendarmes is in progress. Division of the enemy group of about 3000 men in strength is apparent. One group (strength about 1000 men) appears to have withdrawn to the South over the Serbian-Bulgarian border, a second (strength about 2000 men), to the region Prokuplje-

Kursumlija. The conditions in this territory have been obscure for sometime, since the influence of Kosta Pecanac appears to be vanishing.

Page 632

Area south of Loznica-Krupanj.

No important changes. Dispersal of insurgents to the Croatian territory continued to be observed. With the exception of one surprise attack, the enemy was quiet.

Area around and east of Pozarevac.

Small enemy groups in strength of 20-30 men continue to be active 2 successful cleaning-up actions of the Serbian auxiliary police. The impression exists that the enemy has taken to winter quarters.

Border area southwest of Uzice.

Enemy group about 3000 men strong. Dispersal of insurgents from the Croatian back to the Serbian territory observed. The impression exists that the enemy is considering wintering with strong forces in the out-of-the-way territories of the Zlatibor and Murtenica Mountain Range.

Croatia.

Increasing aggravation of the situation. Further increase of insurgents from Serbia. Mihailovic has taken over the leadership of the struggle in East Croatia. The unrest around Doboj, Sarajevo, and Tuzla, which shows strong Communistic direction, is continuing.

The Centik leader Dangic operating there, allegedly does not wish to subordinate himself to Mihailovic and fight against the German Wehrmacht. He only wishes to protect the Serbs against Croatians and Communists.

.....

Then paragraph 7 of Bader's report to General Kuntze, Enemy losses.

The enemy lost 132 dead (of these, 37 from reprisal measures) and 372 prisoners in the period from 16-25 December.

.....

The report is signed For the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia The Chief of the General Staff Your Honors will note the distribution list on the back.

The first copy of the report was sent to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. This, if your Honors please, concludes the introduction of the documents in Document Book No. 6. Mr. Denney will continue with Document Book 7.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, with reference to the statements of the prosecution as to the counts on which exhibits are offered and the defendants against whom they are offered, we have found some omissions and it was also necessary to make some deletions in Book III; so we have had the stencil rerun and now submit three copies of the new stencil to your Honor, which should be substituted for the old one in Book III. We also have 24 new copies for defense counsel. This will be substituted for 16 -- that is, it will be put in at page 169-A and be given the number which the present one has of 114-A, and we have copies for the reporters and the interpreters and for Major Hatfield.

I believe defense counsel understands this is just being substituted for the one we gave yesterday. We found that we had included one of the defendants in several counts where he should not have been included so we felt it was better to submit a new copy if that is agreeable with your Honors.

And with reference to Book IV, three copies for the Court and copies for the defense counsel --24. This should be inserted as page 171-A in Book IV and the last exhibit is 124, so this will bear the identifying numbers of 124-A. Copies for the reporters, the interpreters, and Major Hatfield.

THE PRESIDENT: May I ask again what page number you gave this?

MR. DENNEY: 171-A, sir. At the end of Book IV.

And for Book V, three copies for the Tribunal. This should be 160-A page and the identifying numbers are 131-A after exhibit 131, which is the close of Book V, if your Honors please. 24 copies for the defense counsel, copies for the interpreters, the reporters and Major Hatfield The prosecution now offers Document NOKW-922 which appears at page 1 of the English and German in Document Book VI as prosecution's Exhibit 164 in evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: You mean Document Book 7, do you not?

MR. DENNEY: Excuse me. Thank you, your Honor. Document Book VII, page one of the Document Book VII, Exhibit 164 in evidence. This exhibit is a directive from Bader, General of Artillery, as the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, dated 3 January 1942, with reference to the combat against insurgents.

The insurgents have taken up winter quarters in the eastern part of Croatia. (See enclosed sketch.) From their villages they press hard upon the Croatian troops and commit continuously acts of sabotage. They press forward more and more towards important thoroughfares and towards the objects that are economically important. For details see enclosure 1.

To stop this enemy activity the 342nd Infantry Division and 718th Infantry Division shall attack the enemy on 15 Jan 1942 in the Southeastern part of Croatia and will destroy him. In this operation the German troops will be aided by Croatian troops, in order to set free the 718th Division for the duration of the operation, Croatian troops will take over the security duties, which the Division has had to fulfill up to now.

All German and Croatian troops assigned to the above mentioned operation will be subordinated as of 12 Jan 1942 to the Commander of the 342nd Infantry Division Brigadier General Hoffmann.

Then appears the distribution order to the Divisions involved, the 342nd and 718th, the Croatian Battalions, and various other supporting and service units, followed by the signature of Bader.

Then further distribution to the Corps Headquarters and the other units listed therein with some additional ones including the 113th Infantry Division.

Then follows a recital of the -- excuse me, the stamp of receipt by the 718th Infantry Division in at the bottom of page 2 of the English and at the top of page 3 of the German, "Received on 4 January" and the enclosure which is cited at the top of page 3 in the German and on the bottom of page 2 in the English contains a report with reference to the units which are in the area of Croatia.

On page 6 of the English and page 6, I believe, of the German document NOKW-1124, which I believe we can pass because this entire document appears in the next document. It is an order by General Hoffmann, Commanding General of the 342 Infantry Division and I request that Your Honors ignore this because it all appears later and I will make the same request of defense counsel. It appears in the next document.

Turning then to page 8 in the German text and page 9 in the English, Document NOKW-1067 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 165 in evidence. I wonder, Major Hatfield, if I might see the original. Thank you.

DR. HINDEMITH (Counsel for defendant Foertsch): Mr. President, in one of the previous sessions it has been ruled that defense could insist that parts which were deemed important to the defense but which were not being read by the prosecution could be read by the defendants on their part.

Therefore, I would first like to ask, to tell me, whether I am right as to this ruling of the Tribunal and whether the Tribunal upholds this ruling.

THE PRESIDENT: That was a previously announced ruling of the Tribunal and we adhere to it.

DR. HINDEMITH: Therefore, in connection with the document which has just been read I'd like to read the part, enclosure 1, which had been a part of this document, which is in addition to this document, which belongs to Exhibit 164, NOKW-922, the first enclosure to this document.

THE PRESIDENT: Found on what English page?

MR. DENNEY: The exhibit, if Your Honors please, is on page 1. Counsel is reading from the photostatic copy which as Your Honors recall is the complete document put in evidence. We have not translated the section which he wishes to read.

DR. HINDEMITH: This enclosure reads as follows:

"Heading I-6. 10-6-2. Top Secret. Enclosure 1 to 9/42, Top Secret, of the 3rd of January 42, handwritten, Plenipotentiary Commanding General Serbia.

"The insurgents in the eastern part of Croatia (see sketch) have gone to winter camps. The fighting troops will probably, in their quick march cleverly camouflaged, have the enemy in front, only selecting the districts west of the Drina as quarters because they are not occupied by German or allied troops. The enemy again will, similar to east of the Drina, try to deceive the troops camouflaged as peaceful farmers, and will attack the troops from behind later on in a different part, All the people not familiar with the district have to be counted as enemies. In addition even local people cannot be trusted. In the quick advance these directives can only be regarded as general directives. The troops, supported by Croatian liaison men, must according to circumstances try to ascertain foe or friend locally. A survey of the nonenemy troops is added, also Croatian insignia and uniforms of Croatian units which may be recognizable are added too."

The document closes with a stamp, "718 Infantry Division, received on the 4th of January 1942, Top Secret, No. 742. Top Secret."

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, there are some figures in the next document which present somewhat of an accounting problem and perhaps if we could take them up all at once.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our morning recess at this time.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. DENNEY: Exhibit 165 which is NOKW-167, page 14 in the English and page 13 in the German -- if your Honors please, this actually -- the page which appears first should be page No. 6 in the English copy. They are a little bit out of order. Perhaps it is not in Your Honors' document book but at least it was in mine. The first page is page 9 in the English and page 8 in the German.

JUDGE CARTER: Our book seems to be in the proper order.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Sir. This is a report of the 342nd Infantry Division dated 10 December 1941, and it is a 10-day report to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia with a reference to a communication received from him on 29 September 41. which directed--these reports. It is signed by Hoffman, the Division Commander, and it has an enclosure which sets out losses and booty during operations for the period 25 November to 4 December; their own losses: 10 dead, 22 wounded, released from captivity 1 officer, 315 non-commissioned officers and men; enemy losses 707 dead, 93 shot to death, 312 arrested, beside numerous dead and wounded taken along by the enemy.

And then on page 10 of the English, still on page 9 of the German, an inquiry to the 3rd Battalion of the 769th Regiment: "Where were the 11 Communists arrested? Communists are to be shot to death after a short interrogation as a matter of basic policy."

Then coming down to "Pacification," Enclosure 2, dated 14 December 1941:

"See directives of the Commander-in Chief of the Army, 25 October 41, for combatting of partisans, Part C, Paragraph 3, released down to companies.

"Measures of law and order. Reliable Mayors are to be put into office who are liable with their lives and their possessions. Non residents and wood squatters are to be arrested and deported.

Communists are to be shot to death. Control of residents is to be established according to lists with identification papers. Whoever leaves the village without authorization loses life and possessions. No interference of any sort in the measures of the Serbian Auxiliary Police."

And then for the 16th of December daily reports of the 3rd Battalion of the 697th Infantry Regiment from 10 November to 15 November: "Advance of the Battalion from Sabac to Loznica surrendered by the Cetniks on 15 November. Communists are withdrawn."

16 November to 5 December: "Combing through of the terrain along Loznica. During this operation, appropriation of vital plants in Koviljaca and Zajaca, cooperating with the 1st Battalion of the Russian protective corps. Repeated contact with the Communist enemy.

"Enemy losses: about 220 dead, 345 prisoners (of which 25 were shot to death). Own losses: 2 dead, 16 wounded, 16 losses."

And then the further report of the 342nd Division, dated 17 December 1941, "Reports on Shootings to Death, Arrests and Reprisal Measures," directed to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia:

"Enclosed, the Division submits reports on shootings to death, arrests and reprisal measures for the period from 6 December to 15 December 41 including Group III, 697 Infantry Regiment (26 September to 15 December 41 inclusive)." and the Group III is submitted as 3rd Battalion of this regiment. "Accordingly, the Division had a total of 4189 hostages at this disposal."

"Of these 3618 were transferred to Concentration Camp Sabac, 343 were transferred to Collecting Camp Belgrade, 70 to the Serbian Auxiliary Police Valjevo (Lukic), 75 were released."

And then, if your Honors will add those figures, they will total 4,106; and, subtracting 4,106 from 4,189, the figure given is the total number of hostages at the disposal of the Division.

The next line: "so that a total of 83 hostages is still available.

"For the Divisional Command: The 1st General Staff Officer."

By "(illegible initial) Captain" And then on the 18th this enclosure is sent along, dated the 18th:

"Report as per 15 December inclusive on shootings to death, arrests of hostages and reprisal measures" during the period from 6 to 15 December incl. measures of Group III, that is the 3rd Battalion of the 697th Regiment -- "during the period from 6 December to 15 December 41".

Then turning over to page 12 in the German and page 13 in the English text:

"Own Losses: period of the report, dead (3)" in brackets and "wounded (19)" in brackets with a little cross after it, and on the original there is a note at the bottom which indicates that figures in brackets signify the Group III, 697th Regiment which is subordinate to the 342nd Division which is in turn subordinate to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. These figures in brackets signify this group which is included in the total; and the next figure, "Losses not retaliated preceding the period of the report, 7,098--now, if Your Honors will take that figure "7,098" and add to it the figure of 1250 which is arrived at by multiplying 3 by 100, and 19 by 50, a total of 1250 is reached and that equals 8,348, the next figure.

Excuse me. I am sorry. That is an error, if Your Honors please. This figure is -- I made the wrong computation here. This figure "losses not retaliated preceding the report" is 7,098 and then "Shot to death during the period of the report: Insurgents during combat action 8" with a figure in brackets for the 3rd Battalion of the 697th, 417, that is, in addition.

The next, "Hostages as reprisal measure 2" with a figure in brackets "(389)", which are the figures for the 3rd Battalion of the 697th.

Now, if these figures under "2" -- 8, 417, 2 and 389 -- are added they total the next figure which is 816; and then, if 816 is subtracted from the figure 8,348, the total for number "3", "Therefore the total as yet unretaliated 7,532," is reached.

Then the number of hostages at the start of the period of this report, 87; arrested during the period of this report, 484, and then in brackets the figure 4,009. The 4,009, it is submitted, is the report for the 3rd Battalion of the 697th, and the great difference in the two figures is based on the fact that their report is for 26 September to 15 December, whereas the report for the figures not in brackets, for the 342nd, other than this one battalion, the 3rd, of this one regiment, the 697, are only for the 9-day period 6 to 15 December.

The next entry consequently still available after deduction of people shot to death under 2b is 4,189, and the figure which they subtract under 2b is 816, so that the number of people still available are 4189.

Turning over to the next page, this sets out in more detail the activities of the 3rd Battalion of the 697th which can be checked back into the earlier figures, dated the 18, and is a report for the 15 December inclusive, on the shootings to death, arrests of hostages and reprisal measures during the period from 6 to 15 December, 1941 including measures of Group III/697, during the period from 26 September to 15 December, 1941.

Our own losses for the period of the report, "Dead 3, wounded 19", the same figures which appear in brackets on the preceding page.

"Losses not retaliated preceding the period of this report, none" so the totals are 3 dead and 19 wounded.

"Shot to death during the period of the report:

Insurgents during combat action 417 Hostages as reprisal measures 389."

a total of 806.

"Consequently total still unretaliated 444" That figure of "444" is arrived at by taking the number of dead "3" and multiplying it by "100", which is "300"; taking the number of wounded and multiplying it by "50", which is 950.

Adding the two figures makes a total of 1250, and then subtracting from 1250, 806 the total of hostages shot as reprisals, and the insurgents shot during combat, the remainder is 444, which is the total number of retaliations that are yet to be carried out.

Dropping down to 4, the number of hostages, they set forth at the start of the period of this report, "None"; "Arrested during the period of this report, 4009; consequently still available after deduction, according to 2b," -- that is, hostages shot as reprisals, -- "3620". The figure 4,009 less 389, -- if that is performed, the figure 3,620, which appears under 4d, in the result. There are two notes in connection with these numbers, the first, that 246 of the 4,009 "Milhailovic-Cetniks", and the second, that 3,620 were transferred to the concentration camp at Sabac.

Now this figure, "4,189" is arrived at by taking, -- if to that is added the figure "87" which is the number of hostages available, -- this is on page 12 of the German, 13 of the English -- which were the hostages available at the start of the period, subtracted from that a total of 4,102 is reached, and if to that is added 391, the hostages shot as reprisal measures, taken from 2b, the total, 4,493 is reached, so that this last figure, on page 12 of the German, and 13 of the English is computed that way.

It does not include the hostages shot as reprisals, and the 87 is also part of that figure.

Item 5 of the report, turning to page 14 of the German and 15 of the English:

"Further shot to death during the period of the report:

As reprisal measure for losses of other troop units by.....

By virtue of special orders"

Then on page 12 of the original is a report, or rather a communication from Bader, dated 30 December 1941, and it is directed to the 342nd Infantry Division:

In accordance with application, The Commanding General-Plenipotentiary has ordered that the reprisal measure is to be carried out by shooting to death 25 persons as well as a levy of 500,000 Dinar by the 342nd Division.

Hostages are to be selected from that group of insurgents who committed the kidnapping and mistreatment. Both groups participated, hostages are to be selected equally from both groups.

It is signed "Bader, Lt. General Artillery".

Below is a reference to an oral report commanding officer, 342nd Infantry Division, dated 26 December 1941, and has to do with a 2nd Lt. Lange, who appears is from the 2nd Battalion of the 699th Regiment:

"Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia:

Enclosed, please find report by Infantry Regiment 699 concern ing the attack of Lt. Lange, Company Commander 2nd Company, 699th Infantry Regiment on 25 December 1941, about 2000 hours. The report could not be submitted earlier because Lt. Lange was not fully able to answer questions. Reprisal measures ordered by teletype, Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia No. 4825/41."

And, if your Honors will recall, that is the number of the commuication from General Bader to the Division which is on the previous page.

"secret, 30 December 41: Shooting to death of 25 persons, Levying of 500,000 Dinar was carried out."

27 Dec. '41 While combing through the area North and West of Sabac by Units II and III of the 697 Infantry Regiment 8 Communists were shot to death and 4 prisoners captured,30 Dec.

'41 In reprisal for the company commander of the 2nd Company of the 699 Infantry Regiment attacked on 25 Dec.

25 Communists were shot to death and 500,000 Dinar were levied on the municipality of Valjevo.

Then we turn to page 17, and quote the text. This is the order which your Honors and defense counsel were asked to disregard earlier:

"342nd Division, 6 January, 1942. Order for the annihilation of the enemy in Southeast Croatia."

Then it gives the scale of the map which accompanies the order:

1) Enemy:

Insurgents - including Mihailovic men - in Winter Quarters in the Eastern Part of Croatia west of Drina. Milhailovic himself is alleged to have taken over command in the area of Rogatica.

Enemy situation on 10 January 1942 will follow.

2) Mission:

The enemy is to be attacked and annigilated wherever he appears; he must not have any chance to revolt again in Spring.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the troops will complete this mission.

3) Troops

a) By virtue of the order of the Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia beginning 12 January 1942 at 1600 hours.

All committed troops--the 332 and 718 Infantry Division as well as participating Croatian Troops.

The latter with 7 Battalion, 9 Batteries, 3 Engineer Companies and one railroad company are under my command.

"The troops with the means at their disposal must do their utmost to supplement the special measures carried out by the Division. This is essential to the success of the impending operation."

It is signed, "Hoffman, Brigadier General and Commander. It has enclosures of, "Organization of Groups; and Combat Directive."

Combat Directives

1) General The impending operations comprise an extremely large and difficult territory.

There is little news from the enemy. Identification of the enemy again is difficult, particularly because various Yugoslav nationalities are living together. (Croatians, Serbians, Turks) The situation requires in particular an organized employment of troop interpreters, very extensive use of civilians acquainted with the country, in particular Croatian Administrative Officials.

The Division has applied for a certain number of Croatian Administrative Officials to assist the troops. But the latter will have to help themselves essentially. The enmity of the different tribes based on racial differences is to be exploited usefully.

Not to be considered as enemy are Soldiers of the Croatian Wehrmacht in uniform.

The insignia on the cap is a large round badge;

Soldiers of the Croatian Ustascha in uniform, Cap insignia U, Civilians (sometimes wearing military overcoats) with arms permit of the Croatian Wehrmacht.

To be considered as enemy are All non-residents and residents who according to reports have just returned recently:

All recognizable Mihailovic men with and without arms and ammunition.

All recognizable Dangic-Cetniks enemies of the Croatians with or without arms and ammunition; all who in any way are recognized as Communists with and without arms and ammunition; all those who shelter or feed non-resident Mihailovic and Dengic men or Communists.

All those participating in the signal communications service of the enemy.

Here one must not differentiate between the members of different nationalities.

And the second enclosure to the order of General Hoffmann:

"In order to identify the enemy who frequently will not appear armed, surprise searches and interrogations are to be carried out.

"Refugees are to be pursued immediately, particularly since frequently they turn out to be leaders.

"The division will reward especially the capture of Draja Mihailovic who it is assumed is wearing civilian clothes. Compare distributed photos.

"4) Treatment of the Enemy "Communists in any case will be shot to death after a brief interrogation and only in special cases will be turned over to the division.

"Whoever participates in combat or is active in signal communications will be shot on the spot after a brief interrogation.

"Whoever offers resistance or escapes will be shot to death on the spot.

"Women and children will not be shot to death nor will they be taken along unless they have participated in combat or have been active in signal communications service.

"All communities must turn over arms and ammunition to the troops.

"Individuals bearing weapons are to be disarmed, captured and taken along by the troops as carriers. Prisoners unemployable as carriers are to be evacuated in the direction of Zvornik and Uzice.

"Houses showing defense installations or from which shots were fired are to be burned down. Beyond that nothing is to be burned down because of the need for billets.

"5) Croatia is a Friendly Country "The troops must be conscious of that fact and must avoid any excess in performing their task.

"Regarding the rations of the country, attention is called to the directives issued by branch Ib of the division."

DR. MENZEL: Dr. Menzel for the defendant Kuntze. In Document No. 1067 I would like to point out two things. At the beginning of the document, on page 9 in the German and page 10 in the English, there is a conclusion that 11 communists were arrested, and they are to be shot to death after a short interrogation as a matter of basic policy.

If I heard correctly, the word "grundsatzlich" is translated in English, "as a matter of policy". This term, in my opinion, is too strong, and it is not a proper translation of the word "grundsatzlich". "As a matter of policy" would mean that is a direction of policy, which is more than this word "grundsatzlich".

THE PRESIDENT: In keeping with the previous policy of this Tribunal, may I suggest that the original be handed to the translator for her translation, stating the page that she is reading from in the German and in the English.

INTERPRETER: Page 10 in the English and page 9 in the German copy, "Where were 11 Communists arrested? Communists are to be shot to death after a short interrogation as a matter of principle."

THE PRESIDENT: Does that satisfy counsel?

DR. MENZEL: Yes, Your Honor. And I have to say something else about this document. May I have the document back please? In this document on page 13 they speak about shooting twenty-five people and a contribution--

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me. On what page of the English?

MR. DENNEY: That is on page 15 of the English, if Your Honor please. He is referring to the communication from General Bader to the 342nd Infantry Division, dated 30 December 1941.

DR. MENZEL: From another part of the document one can see that Lieutenant Lange is concerned here, about whom it is said -- first of all, he wasn't completely capable of being interrogated. On this point, if the Tribunal allows, from the supplement which is mentioned here I would like to read a part of this which hasn't been read by the prosecution.

MR. DENNEY: Perhaps the easiest way, Your Honor, would be for the Doctor to indicate what he wants read in the German copy and then hand it to the translator, and it will be easier for her.

Page 652

THE PRESIDENT: I think that it will be a good way to proceed.

(Mr. Scharf, German interpreter, read the passage in German.)

MR. DENNEY: This will be the same now for the record in English. It has been read in German, and counsel has agreed that is the part which he wishes read, if Your Honors please, and now the English interpreter will read it into the record.

INTERPRETER: "The company commander of the 2nd Company, 699th Infantry Regiment, was attacked in the town area of Valjevo and kidnapped. After numerous maltreatments he succeeded in freeing himself and going back to Valjevo."

DR. MENZEL: I asked that this part be read because from this it can be better understood why these shootings took place, especially in connection with the comment on the report of the 30th of December 1941, according to which Lt. Lange was not yet capable of being interrogated. Thank you very much.

MR. DENNEY: In view of the counsel's comment with reference to the portion which he has read, I believe it is also proper to direct the Court's attention to the fact that Lt. Lange was still alive at the time that this action took place. Turning now to page 22 of the English, page 21 of the German, Document No. NOKW-1094 is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 166 in evidence. This is substantially the same as the orders contained in the previous communication from the Commanding General of the 342nd Division; however, here we have another division involved - the 718th. And there are one or two minor changes which might be called to the Court's attention. The Court will recall in the earlier document that the statement about shooting after interrogation applied only to Communists. However, here on page 21 of the English and 22 of the German, under entry "4", "After a short interrogation Communists and Serbian Chetniks will be immediately shot to death." "Serbian Chetniks" have been added here. And then down a little farther they put in the words "halt" and the equivalent that is to be used, "stog", in the area of operation.

And the rest of the order is the same as that before, concluding with the last paragraph beyond that, referring to the prior burnings, "Nothing is to be burned down in consideration of billets for the troops." And this is signed for the divisional headquarters by Dr. Ehlich, a major.

Page 654

Then turning to page 24 of the English and page 22 of the German, we come to Document NOKW-1092 which is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 167 in evidence. This is a report of 9 January 1942 from the 1st Battalion of the 750th Infantry Regiment to its parent organization, the 718th Infantry Division; and it is stamped "Received by the Division on 10 January 1942."

It recites:

"The group advancing along the forest path on flat top trucks with heavy trench mortars and heavy guns made relatively slow headway due to the snow situation, notwithstanding the fact that 80 civilian auxiliaries of the plant had been employed for removing the snow from the path. At 1200 hours of 8 January, the mill East, Southeast of letter 1 of Lovnica Mus 1 was reached. In the course of the continued advance our spearhead encountered an enemy reconnaissance detail of 3 men who opened fire immediately. During the reply to the fire, one Chetnik was wounded, the two others escaped. The wounded man, a Serb equipped with Chetnik cap, rifle and ammunition was shot to death. During further progress the received strong fire from Cardak which was taken under fire with heavy trench mortar."

And it bears the legible initials of a Captain who was the Battalion Adjutant of the unit.

Then turning to page 26 in the English which is page 23 of the German text, Document NO-3338 which is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 168 in evidence; here again we have a report from the Chief of the Security Police and of the SD in Berlin, dated 19 January 1942. 65 copies were made, of which this is the 57th.

Under Roman Numeral III:

"III. Reich and Occupied Territories:

"The Chief of the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and of the SD in Belgrade reports:

"Arrests made by the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and of the SD. 12 persons for Communist activities, 2 persons for evasion of currency control, one person for unauthorized crossing of frontier.

Page 655

The Serbian Special Police arrested: 58 persons for Communist activity, 2 persons for actively working with the insurgents. In addition, the names of 926 former regular Yugoslav Officers were listed. 440 of these can not be found, 79 were released for illness, etc., 407 officers were arrested by the municipal police and transported to a prisoner camp in the Reich. In the Banat 150 Communists were shot to death in reprisal for the murder of 3 Volksdeutsche field guards and in the camp Sabac, 100 Communists were shot to death.

Communism:

An active group of the Skoj in Belgrade was raided. 9 Serbs, mostly students, were arrested. The purpose of the group was the organization of Communist cells and the building of the Communist youth.

"An afternoon tea party, held by Communists, was raided. 30 arrests. All prisoners belong to small Communist sub-groups. Purpose of the camouflaged meeting: Reading of leaflets, collection of money, preparation of sabotage.

"On 5 January 1942, murder of a member of the Russian Factory Guard. The murderer, high school pupil Graga Radic, 18 years of age, was hanged publicly on 14 January 42. Two accomplices were shot to death. Investigation established that the three culprits are members of a larger-sized terrorist group and that they acted on orders. Up to now, 16 persons arrested, mostly adolescents and members of the Skoj. Aim of the group: recruiting workers and adolescents for the Skoj and for terrorists acts in Belgrade. The persons arrested included employees of the Belgrade municipal administration who issued forged papers to members of the activist group.

Partisan.

"Acer Vucuvic, the Commanding Officer of the 3rd Communist Company from Uzice arrested during the fighting of Serbian armed units. Two boxes of Italian ammunition were found among the loot.

"A 1st Lieutenant in the Serbian regular army was arrested. He was a member of the Staff of a Chetnik unit, loyal to the Government. He was convicted of having joined the unit by order of the band leader Mihailovic and of maintaining communication with Mihailovic.

"A major of the former Yugoslav Army was arrested. He was convicted of and confessed to having issued blank identification papers of the refugee commission to followers of Mihailovic.

"A confidential agents report established that Mihailovic insurgents attempt, in an increasing extent, to join Serbian armed units.

"Several confidential reports state that a Balkan revolt is planned. Communists, Nationalists and all other groups, though differing on interior politics are averred to have agreed on fixed time.

"It has been reported confidentially that the Communists intend to mine buildings containing German Offices in order to blow them up at the proper time."

Then turning to page 30 which is page 27 in the German, we offer Document NOKW-1361 as Exhibit 170, in evidence. These are daily reports by the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, covering the period 4 January, to the end of the month. We have only used a few of them. On 4 January, the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Bader, reported to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, General Kuntze, "In Belgrade 3 January 20 arrests. Local Administrative Headquarters Cacak 10 January 12 Communists shot to death."

On the 6th of January - Major Hatfield has just called to my attention that I have given this Exhibit No. 170 and it should be Exhibit 169. Thank you. This is Document NOKW-1361 at page 30 in the English, 27 in the German, and it is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 169. It had been improperly offered earlier under a different number.

Returning to the portion of the Exhibit which deals with the report of the 6th of January, "On 3 January during operation southwest of Belgrade 6 Communists shot to death, 5 hostages arrested.

"On 3 January in Kikinda 9 Communist murderers shot to death and hanged. On 3 January 8 arrests in Belgrade."

Report for the 7th of January, "Reprisal measures for the murder of Russian factory guard. 1 of the perpetrators hanged, 5 shot to death." That is an incident which was referred to in the prior Exhibit 168.

The report for the 10th of January, "In connection with the murder of the Russian guard up to the 10 January further 39 Communists arrested." That is, it is submitted, the same incident that is referred to in the report of the 7th.

"Extensive inquiries are in progress. In Belgrade 52 arrests. As reprisal for murder of 3 German Nationals (Volksdeutsche) in Kikinda 150 Communists shot to death."

In the report of the 14th, still from the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, General Bader, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the defendant Kuntze, under "5", "In Vlaska 10,000 detonators confiscated. On 13 January in Belgrade 23 arrests. On 14 January reprisal measure for murdered factory guard carried out, 1 perpetrator hanged, 2 others shot to death."

And for the "6th to the 16th of January in the prison camp Pozega 10 Communists shot to death. In Belgrade 5 arrests."

Report for the 19th or rather the 20th, at the top of page 30 of the German text, bottom of page 33 of the English, "Operations on 19 January: In Regatice 300 Alpini from Visegrad joined the group. Supplement enemy losses on 18 January: 35 dead, 61 prisoners, 29 men shot to death."

Report for the 21st of January, "Operations on 20 January: Group 697 with 1 Battalion occupied Han Pijesak without combat. 8 insurgents were shot to death."

Then there is an additional report concerning losses only in the original of the teletype message which is handwritten.

Page 658

And the last report in this entry, the report from General Bader to General Kuntze, 30 January 1942. "On 29 January in Sabac attempt of imprisoned Communists to escape by night 4 men escaped, 21 persons accessories shot to death."

Signed by Bader, as the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia.

THE PRESIDENT: We will adjourn at this time until 1:30 this afternoon. In announcing this adjournment, the Tribunal wishes to state that we are desirous of starting on time, and we ask and request and direct that all parties be here so we can start on time. Possibly on some occasions the Court has been tardy, but we trust that those occasions have been the result of necessary conferences.

(The Tribunal recessed until 1330 hours 23 July 1947)

AFTERNOON SESSION

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Court room will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honors, one of my associates has indicated to me that he did not think the explanation made by me to Your Honors was sufficiently clear in reference to, -- sufficiently clear from the standpoint of my explaining it, if your Honors please. Page 13 of the English and page 12 of the German, Document NOKW-1067 which is Exhibit No. 165 in evidence and I would like to very briefly go over that portion of the document with reference to the figures so that there is no doubt about our contention with reference to them. If Your Honors will turn to that page, and in order that the procedure might be a little more clear, I suggest that we number the lines of figures which appear to the right and defense counsel can do as well if they wish, that is lettering them. The first line under "1", period of report, opposite the letters 3 and 19 if we would put A; then opposite the figure below, 7098, if we would put D opposite 8348C; opposite 8 (417) D; E opposite 2 (389); F opposite 816; G opposite 7532; H opposite 87; I opposite 484 (4009), and J opposite 4189; and it is to be remembered that the figures in brackets represent the report of the IIIrd Battalion of the 697th Regiment of the 342nd Division which goes back to the 26 of September and is inclusive to the 15 of December. Whereas, the figures not in brackets, to the left of those where brackets appear, are the figures from the 6 to 15 of December for the balance of the Division, on line A, for the period of the report German losses: 3 dead and 19 wounded; and that is from the IIIrd Battalion of the 697th. Losses not retaliated proceeding the period of the report, 7098, opposite B. Now, if to figure B is added at the current ratio the figure of 1250, which is obtained by multiplying 3 for those dead, by 100; 19 those wounded by 50, the figures 300 and 950 are obtained and if they are added together a total of 1250 is reached.

If that total is added to figure B, then C 8348 is arrived at. Now, that is to be noted as under their own losses and includes the figure 3 times 100 and 19 times 50. Then dropping down to the next section of the report, figure 8 (417) on line D, those are insurgents shot during combat. The 8 represents the period 6 to 15 December and 417 represents the figure for the IIIrd Battalion of the 697th Regiment from 26 of September to 15 December and hostages shot as reprisal measures E to during the December period 6 to 15 by the Division and 389th by IIIrd Battalion of the 697th Regiment. Then if all of D and E, both the bracketed D and unbracketed D material are totalled the figure at F is reached which is 816. Then if F is subtracted from C the figure 7,532 or G is arrived at, which is the total as yet unretaliated. In short they deduct the hostages which have been shot from the line C and reach the line G, a total of 7,532. Then dropping down to number of hostages, paragraph 4 of the report, at line H, they have a hold-over of 87 in the period at the beginning of this period. Then that is at line H; then line I shows those arrested during the period, 484 by the division and in brackets 4,009 by the IIIrd Battalion of the Regiment. Now, if those two figures on line I are added together, a total of 4,493 is obtained. And, if from that 4,943 the total of the two figures on line I there is subtracted the total of the two figures on line E, 389 and 2, which is 391, hostages shot to death as reprisal measures, subtract the total of line I and a remainder of 4,102 is obtained. And, if to that remainder of 4,102 is added the figure for line H, 87, we reach the final total of line J, 4,189 and the number of hostages still available for retaliatory purposes.

Returning now to page 36 of the English and page 32 of the German, Document NOKW-1256 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 170 in evidence.

This is a collection of ten day reports from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia Bader to the Armed Forces Commander South east, defendant Kuntze.

The first one is dated 10 January and is addressed to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. And, this is the same, in substance, as the report on page 26 which comes from the, Your Honors will recall, is part of the exhibit 168 which is from the Einsatz or Security Police SD in Berlin, reports of their action in Serbia. This covers the period from 26 December 1941 to 5 January 1942:

"Enemy Losses: 504 dead, of these 252 by reprisal measures; 50 captured. 160 arrests in Belgrade.

"In addition, out of 926 active Serbian officers listed 486 were arrested. The rest could not be found.

"79 were released for health reasons etc. and 407 reported to the Reich.

"Own Losses: 1 German officer wounded. 1 Russian Factory guard shot openly in a Belgrade district. Here, the six murderers were hanged, resp. shot.

"Strength of Camps: On 5 January 1942 a total of 7,582 prisoners were held in detention camps."

And it is signed by Bader as Lieutenant-General of Artillery.

Then the report for the 20th from the same source addressed to the same persons: "In the boarder areas of Croatia our previous conception of the enemy situation was confirmed by the current operation being conducted there. An offer by the Bosnian Cetnik leader, Major Dangic, to the 342nd Infantry Division to conclude a kind of a non-agression pact was refused. Units of Dangic-Cetniks, 500 men strong, voluntarily reported to the German forces. Small groups offered resistance, the majority, apparently by order, avoided fighting contact with the German unit. Undisciplined Toiror Ustasca members are also forcing an increasing number of Croats to join the Cetniks by means of terror. 4. Own and enemy losses: (for the period 6 to 15 January) Own losses 9 dead, 48 wounded. Enemy losses: 191 dead, of these 185 by reprisal measures, 247 arrested in Belgrade." And the distribution list is included here: the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the 65th Corps Command, and so on.

30 January 1942, the last of these three reports. The third ten-day period, again to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, on page 34 of the German and 39 of the English. "Losses and Booty from the 16th to the 25th of January. Own losses: Germans, 25 dead, 125 wounded, 1 missing 64 sick, 337 from exposure to the cold," and the totals which I need not read, which appear on the next line. "Enemy losses: dead 761, wounded 33, prisoners 1,471, of these (25)...." and on the original, there is the notation "S" equals reprisal measures. "Liberated prisoners: Croats, 168, Italians 104. In Belgrade from 16 to 25 January 1942, 107 arrests. Distribution on the draft:" and it is signed by General Bader.

Turning then to page 35 of the German text and 40 of the English, NOKW-1093, which is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 171 in evidence. This is a radio message from the 718th Division to the 697th Infantry Regiment, dated 1 February 19 -- dated 31 January '42 and received the following day, 1 February.

"All men in this region are to be considered insurgents, and insofar as they do not carry arms they are to be handed over to the Croatian Wehrmacht."

And page 42 of the English and 36 of the German text, NOKW -887, becomes prosecution's exhibit 172 in evidence. This is a report of Enemy losses in Croatia for the period 1 September '41 to 15 January 1942, and based on Daily or 10-Day Reports. "Killed in Combat 7,904, reprisal measures 12,196, Booty: rifles 3,903, guns 9, machine guns 88, tanks 3, horse drawn vehicles 85, motor vehicles 28, motorcycles 6. Large amounts of ammunition, other equipment, crude metals, fuel." And it is signed by Pfafferott, and below the signature, bears the stamp of the 12th Army, received on the --excuse me a moment. And it appears to be 7 February, 1942. It may be 17, I don't know. We will pass it up to Your Honors. And it is submitted that the defendant Foertsch has placed his initials on the top of this report, his name. That is the signature which Your Honors have seen before. Whether it is 7 or 17, I don't know. I think it is immaterial. It says 7 in the English, and I believe there is just as much basis for arguing one way or the other. The "1" does not appear to be sufficiently close to the "7", and it looks as though it may be the edge of the rubber stamp. In any event, it was stamped by the high command of the 12th Army as received no later than the 17th.

JUDGE BURKE: You made a slight error in the pronunciation of the name of the signatory.

MR. DENNEY: No, sir, I did not maintain that it was signed by Foertsch. I said that the signature----

JUDGE BURKE: I am referring to the name "Pfaffmatt", and you pronounced it "Pfafferott".

Page 664

MR. DENNEY: I am sorry, sir, it had been changed on mine from "Pfaffmatt" to "Pfafferott", and the German original shows that the order of the battle officer in question is named "Pfafferott", not "Pfaffmatt".

JUDGE BURKE: That should be changed?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Your Honor. I thought that had been done in your books. (Spelling) P-f-a-f-f-e-r-o-t-t.

Then on page 37 of the German text and 44 of the English, NOKW - 1095 is offered as Exhibit 173 in evidence. This is a report -- excerpts from a report of the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Daily Report of 4 February 1942: "Combat activity of the 718th Infantry Division Group Ease arrived at its target of the day. On 2 February, 62 suspect persons were arrested, on 3 February, 69 prisoners were taken, two Cetniks shot to death, booty consisting of light arms and ammunition. Cetniks flee individually into the mountains. 3 February, 12 arrests in Belgrade. In the month of January 449 reprisal prisoners shot to death. As reprisal for German losses 3,484 shootings ordered, carrying out to commence immediately. Temperatures around zero, showing at times, traffic situation unchanged."

And then on page 38 of the English and 45 of the German --38 of the German and 45 of the English-- is NOKE -945, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 174 in evidence. This is a teletype from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, the defendant Kuntze, to the Commanding General - Plenipotentiary in Serbia, dated 6 February 1942. "All subordinate units including the Bulgarinas are to be instructed that all reprisal measures and / or counter measures taken immediately or intended are to be included in reports regarding sabotage attacks, and so forth. The treatment of prisoners in the course of operations requires application of a more severe criterion.

Prisoners taken in combat can not be innocent. People who loiter in the combat terrain and are not in their residence..." first the words "must" were there, then it was edited and the words "will be mostly" were inserted..." considered as having participated in combat and consequently...." first the words "will be" were there, and they were edited and "must accordingly" was written in..." be shot to death. The main conception of the troops is to be combatted most rigorously in view of the same conception during the past summer and the ensuing consequences." Then below that are some initials which are illegible, and then typed below that is: General of Engineers, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, AOK, Army High Command, 12th, and then the numbers "431 slash 42."

And the second page of the document appears to be a later copy and if your Honors will compare them you will see that it has been edited according to the crossing out and handwriting editions which were called to the Court's attention in the first instance. I do not think there is any need to reread the document but it bears at the bottom of it: "Signed in draft" in type, and then is typed the word "Kuntze", Lieutenant General (Engineers), the German "General der Pioniere," and "Wehrmachtsbefehlshaber Suedost AOK 12" and the order number "431/42" and over to the left is typed, "Certified true copy," and then a signature which says below it "Hauptmann" or "Captain."

Then on page 39 of the German text and 48 of the English Document NOKW-1102, which is offered as prosecutions's exhibit 175 in evidence. This is an order from the 704th--714, seven one four, Infantry Division, 15 February 1942. The subject is: "Reprisal Measures for Sabotage and Attacks." It refers to a prior order of the Division issued on the 28th of December 1941 and a prior order of the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia issued on 8 February 1942.

"The strict execution of reprisal measures" -- and it says in brackets under that "not transmitted" -- "The strict execution of reprisal measures has been shown to be the correct measure. The more successful we are in hitting those who are actually guilty, the more impressive the effect of the punishment.

"The basic directives regarding reprisal measures are treated in enclosure 3 of the directive referred to.

"Particular attention is called to the following points:

"In cases of sabotage and attacks all participants and accomplices are to be shot to death at the locality of the incident by the troops committed there under the responsible command of the commander and or company commander - i.e. in so far as the interrogation of individuals is not deemed important.

Hanging at the locality of the incident has a particularly intimidating effect.

Persons who are encountered in the combat terrain during the fighting are to be arrested and to be investigated (to be Interrogated). Depending on the result of the interrogation they are to be released or sent to the competent district headquarters as prisoners for the reprisal measures (copy of interrogation to be sent along).

"Prisoners can be taken only in exceptional cases since every insurgent and or a person supporting the insurgents is to be shot to death.

"Women participating actively in combat - with or without weapons are to be treated like male insurgents. Women who are suspected of having supported the fight are to be detained for court martial sentence.

In cases of sabotage or attack the reprisal measures taken are to be reported immediately in the daily reports. I expect careful observation of this directive."

"Signed in draft" -- the signature is illegible. That is withdrawn. It says: "Signed in draft," printed "(Signed) Stahl." There is no "illegible signature" there. That is a mistake -- and then to the left: "Certified true copy, (Signature illegible) Major," and "Distribution" lists the two regiments, artillery battalion, and so forth.

And then, turning to page 41 in the German and page 51 in the English, NOKW-1098 is offered as Exhibit 176 in evidence. This is an except from daily reports from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia Bader to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, the defendant Kuntze, the Daily Report of 14 February 1942:

"12 February. 147 inmates of reception camp Nish have broken loose. 42 shot, 105 escaped. 1 guard dead.

"13 February. Attack with explosives on line Moravic - Visnicevo."

"(Signed) The Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia."

Then the report of 15 January 2, 1942: Assault squad of armored railroad train 23 searched Markovac and Crkvine, seized ammunition and burned down houses. Serbian volunteers in combat with about 200 insurgents East of Lom.

10 Enemy dead, 1 volunteer wounded."

And then the report for the 18th of February -- these signatures here are all typed:

"718 Infantry Division: Reinforced Infantry Regiment 750, early today started advance from Dudica against Prijedor. First contact with the enemy already 2 ½ kilometers South of Dubica. Bulgarian mopping up operation in the area South of the Prokuplje-Doljevac is being continued. Additional losses: Bulgarians: 11 dead 14 wounded, 3 missing. Enemy: 68 dead, 36 arrested. Arrestees shot to death after interrogation. During the withdrawal the insurgents took along all wounded and a large number of dead. On 16 February Serbian Auxiliary Police action against insurgents South of Bukuljabex. 17 enemy dead, 60 badly and slightly wounded and six prisoners shot to death. Pursuit of the band in a Western direction taken up by III Battalion 721 Infantry Regiment. Attack under way on the band encircled in Planinica 741 Infantry Regiment made search of village and district of Valjevo, 1st Company of the 721 Infantry Regiment Pinosava, 11 Company/721 Infantry Regiment Gorovic 41 suspects arrested and turned over for martial law investigation.

Near Kumane and Milinci 2 acts of sabotage. 1 culprit shot to death immediately, 93 arrests by police organs for the execution of reprisal measures. 17 February Belgrade, 43 arrests."

And again, as in all three of these reports, the signature is typewritten.

On page 43 of the German and page 54 of the English is NOKW-1255 which is offered as prosecution's exhibit 177 in evidence. This is again a series of reports from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Under date of 10 February 1942 he reports:

"Croatia: Worth considering seems to be the parachute jump during the night 4/5 February near Kosutica by an English Major and an English as well as two former Yugoslav Sergeants from a British plane which supposedly flew from Alexandria.

It was possible to capture the parachutists. Material dropped could be secured.

5) "Losses during the period 26 January 5 February 1942: Germans: 8 dead, w7 wounded; Croats: 4 dead, 7 wounded; Enemy: 128 dead, 318 arrested, in Belgrade 152 arrests, 3484 retaliations ordered."

And then the distribution list.

And then again for the 20th from the same source to the same addressee: "Losses during the period 6 -15 February 1942"; the German losses 5 dead, 2 wounded; Croatians: 60 dead, 92 wounded, 229 missing; Bulgarians: 4 dead, 7 wounded, 783 dead; 281 arrested, 181 arrests in Belgrade, 3484 executions by shooting are being carried out."

Then turning to page 45 in the German and 57 in the English Text is Document NOKW-1147 which is offered as prosecution exhibit 178 in evidence. This is an appendix to the operational report of the 718 Infantry Division with reference to the treatment of elements of the population. It is dated 20 November 1942 and was received 20 February 1942.

I believe there's an error in the text, if your Honor pleases --yes, the figure on the date should be 20 February. They have used the Roman numeral "II" for the month and if your Honors would care to look at the figure "1" appearing in "1942" it is obviously an Arabic figure and the figures "II" appearing for the month are Roman numerals. It should be 20 February 1942, the date as in the upper right hand corner, if your Honors please -- the day, then the month, and then the year.

THE PRESIDENT: The interpretation should be February 2, 1941?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, I believe it is 2 zero, roman numeral II, 1942, is it not? I had read it into the record "November" which I believe appears in Your Honor's book, and which I believe is an error.

THE PRESIDENT: It is February in our book.

MR. DENNEY: Over to the left appears the stamp of the 718th Infantry Division received 20 February, 1942:

Insurgents destroyed the railway line Banja-Luka-Prijedor at several places. Thereby the task of the Landesschuetzen Battalion 923 has come to nothing. So as to get the Landesschuetzen 923 out of Prijedor the 718th Infantry Division shall make an attack from Dubica on Prijedor.

I shall take over leadership of this operation as soon as I arrive in Dubica.

Instructions for battle: Cleaning up of the area is to be carried out only in so far as it is necessary for the given task.

Detection of the enemy is made difficult also in this operation by the known circumstances. All male Serbian inhabitants from 16 to 60 years of age are to be treated as if they were found in combat with us arms in hand. The Serbian villages on both sides of the road of advance are to be burned down - if we do not need them any longer as accommodations.

The report is signed, the signature is illegible, but Your Honors can see that there is some signature on it, and it is submitted by the prosecution, that it is that of the Commanding General of the 718th Infantry Division, one, "F-o-r-t-n-e-r".

On page 46 of the German, and page 59 of the English text, Document NOKW 1197, offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 179. These are some additional daily reports from the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, all bearing dates in February, 1942.

The first one, 21 February, 1942:

"Within the framework of the reprisal measures ordered 570 Communists were shot to death in the area Maljene Suvobor by the Serbian Auxiliary Gendarmerie.

On 19 and 20 February in Belgrade 20 arrests were made."

On page 46 of the German, page 60 of the English:

"Final report of the operation south of Prokuplje: Bulgarians 16 dead, 14 wounded; Enemy, 302 killed in combat, 403 prisoners shot to death. Enemy losses are probably considerably higher."

"In Gr. Strzava 36 Insurgents shot to death. On 21 and 22 February in Belgrade 16 persons arrested."

Under date of 25 February 1942:

"In Grn. Tresnjevica, 110 Communists were shot to death within the framework of reprisal measures."

Under date of 27 February, 1942:

718th Infantry Division: 3rd Battalion 741st Regiment, 9 Insurgents taken prisoner among them the bandit leaders Boruta and Simic, for purpose of interrogation not yet shot to death. The Insurgent Group Gvozdenovic was destroyed by the 3rd Battalion of the 741st Regiment. 107 enemy dead, among these the bandit leaders Soda, Popovic and Mile. 18 prisoners, for purpose of interrogation not yet shot to death. Booty: 5 light machine guns, rifles and ammunition, copious amounts of written matter. From 1 to 26 February enemy losses caused by the 714th Infantry Division were in all 679 dead!

And these again are just typewritten copies. There is nothing to show that there is a signature on them.

Then on Page 48 of the German, and 62 of the English, NOKW 1125, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 180, this is an activity report, extracted from the War Diary of the 704th Infantry Division for dates in January and February, 1942. Under 11 January 1942:

Engineer company 704 sends 5th report on the company's labor forces in the coal section north of Pozarevac: The production figures fell somewhat, because an airshaft caved in on 24.

12. A general overhauling of the airshaft is extremely necessary. To load the coal produced on peasant carts to the Pozarevac railway station is uneconomical and quite difficult. (Foot-and-mouth disease in several localities.) The workers made available for forced labor by the concentration camp Sabac, were not fit to work, because of lack of clothes and because of vermin and illness; they were returned to Savac on 25.12.

4 February 1942:

Dept. Ic submits report on the captives delivered to the SD-Belgrade. Until 3.2.42 161 partisans, 17 Jews and 2 Jewesses were handed over.

16 February 1942:

Division publishes decree of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General, according to which all insurgents participating in a battle are to be shot. According to this prisoners can only be made in exceptional cases, when an interrogation becomes necessary. After the interrogation the prisoners are to be shot immediately. These are to be differentiated from "reprisal prisoners" and "hostages."

At this entire time of these entities this Division Headquarters was located at Pozarevac.

Turning to page 58 of the German, page 65 of the English, Document No. NOKW 897, it is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 181 in evidence. This is a communication and order from the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, Belgrade, 18 March, 1942:

Revising the order valid heretofore, captured insurgents must not be shot to death unconditionally, but may be sent to Concentration Camp Sabac, later Semlin. From there, they will be sent as laborers to territories of interest to the German Reich.

In as far as insurgents are ready to surrender unconditionally they may be informed that they will not suffer the death penalty as before.

It is in the interest of general pacification that the insurgents be informed of this possibility.

This decision also takes care of the inquiry of the 714th Infantry Division Ia. No. 259/42 secret of 11 March.

The original is typed, "Signed, Bader".

On the original it is typed again, "General der Infanterie" and of course he was not. He was a Lt. General of the Artillery, but below it, very faintly, if Your Honors will look at it, "Artillery" is written in German, and to the left is typed "Certified true copy" and signed by a Lt.

JUDGE CARTER: Mr. Denney, this order addressed to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, isn't that, "Bader"?

MR. DENNEY: It is not addressed. That is just a heading of it, Sir, like a heading on a paper. It is an order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, signed by Bader. It is just the heading that appears at the top, even as an address would appear on a civilian communication, and throughout all of these orders, we have had a great many where the title is at the top.

For instance, this one just before, from the 718th Infantry Division to its units, if Your Honors will recall, on page 57 of the English, at the very top there, appears 718th Infantry Division, and it is signed by someone for the Division.

I think if Your Honors will look at the photostat of the original which is now being handed to Judge Burke, it will be clear.

JUDGE CARTER: It is rather misleading to have that appear right at the point where the address is generally placed in a letter.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, sir. I am sorry it is so close. That is just a mechanical matter in the typing, and we have tried to indicate to the Court at any time when it was addressed to someone.

I particularly would like to call the Court's attention to the fact that "Infantry" does appear there typed, although he is a General of Artillery, and that it is certified as a true copy and, "Artillery" is written very faintly in either pen or pencil in German below the word "Infantry", and the certification is by Lt. Colonel of the General Staff, Corps.

The distribution list which shows to whom the communication is directed:

"All divisions;

All Home Defense Battalions;

All Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters;

All District Headquarters;

Administrative Staff, Ia, Ic."

Then turning to page 51 of the German, page 67 of the English, NOKW 1080, which becomes Exhibit 182 in evidence, this is dated 18 March 1942.

This, if Your Honors please, is the same order as appeared before, and on the bottom there is the addition which shows that it is distributed by the 718th Division, and this is put in so that Your Honors can see the way these orders go through. On this copy the certification by the Lt. Colonel of the General Staff is typed, and on the copy which the 718th Division sends down, there is a further certification by an officer of the Division, and at the very bottom of the page the distribution list is contained. "This decree is only valid when the division is not actually fighting with insurgents".

I would like to submit this to Your Honors, and here it is signed for the Division Commander by Dr. Ulrich, Major.

Please hand it to the Court so that they may see it.

Page 675

MR. DENNEY: And then on page 69 is Document No. NOKW-1077, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 183 in evidence. This is an excerpt from the daily report of 19 March 1942, from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, a copy to the German General in Zagreb. "500 Jews transported from Kos. Mitrovica to Semlin." And then turning to page 59 of the German text and page 70 in the English text. I have a note here that the German Document Book is in inverted order. So, if Dr. Latenser or one of his associates would look at the next document, which is No. NOKW-835, which we offer as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 184, perhaps they might like some time to place their document into proper order. (Approximately two minutes taken by Defense.) This document is directive from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the Defendant Kuntze, dated 19 March 1942, and the subject is "Combatting of Insurgents in Serbia and Croatia," with one enclosure. The order number is Ia No. 500/42, and there are 100 copies of which this is the 100th copy.

1.) "Consideration must be taken that in spring the larger scale insurrections in Serbia and in that part of Croatia which is occupied by German troops will begin.

"The overall situation requires that in this area quiet and order be preserved under all circumstances. For this purpose all means are to be employed which lead to success. One cannot count on the bringing up of reinforcements.

2.) Pertaining to this I order:

a) "In Serbia each reinforced Infantry Regiment is to be assigned a definite territory.

"The Regimental Commander is fully responsible for quiet and order in this area.

"All troops situated in this area are to be subordinated to him tactically. The SD, the Waffen-SS and the Serbian Police Forces (including auxiliary forces) subordinate to the latter, are to be instructed to cooperate as closely as possible with the above. For combat activity he disposes over all forces within his area.

"After pacification of Drina triangle east of Regotica and of the Ozren-Plateau has been carried out, the same procedure is to be applied in Croatia.

b.) "In addition to a continuous patrol service, continual surprise operations are to be carried out in quiet areas for the supervision of the area and as mopping up operations.

c.) "Instruction is to be given again to all members of the German Wehrmacht in Serbia and Croatia regarding the significance of their duties for the overall situation in Serbia and Croatia and regarding their behavior in case of attacks. Here it must be accentuated that initiative and action is required of each German soldier, that he may not, no matter what the situation, negotiate with the insurgents and that he is never permitted to surrender.

"I expect troop leaders of all ranks to show special energy and ruthless action as well as to commit fully their own person for the duty with which they are charged, which is to preserve quiet, order and security by all means. All soldiers who do not follow orders and who do not act decisively are to be called to account.

"By means of brutal police and secret police measures, the formation of insurgent bands is to be recognized in its inception and to be burnt out. Captured insurgents are to be hanged or to be shot to death as a matter of principle; if they are being used for reconnaissance purposes, it merely means a slight delay in their death.

e.) "The disarmament of the population is to be continued. Only the state guard and factory guards retain their arms to the extent authorized. The reorganization of the gendarmerie and the absorption of the auxiliary gendarmerie, as well as that of the units loyal to the government, by the above is to be speeded up.

f.) "The state guard, its Serbian auxiliary forces and factory guards require supervision. Passive behavior, for instance permitting one's own is to be punished immediately by effective penalties! On the other hand it is recommended to offer rewards for courageous behavior and corresponding decisive action.

g.) "Full exploitation of the Serbian Government which is justifiably interested in an active cooperation.

3.) "I again refer to Directive for the Combatting of Partisans (Commander in Chief of the Army/ Army General Staff/ Training Section) (1a) - No. 1900/41 of 25.10.1941, distributed with the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Ia – No. 2759/41 Secret of 22.11.1941). This must become common knowledge among the troops."

The most important directives are again summarized in the enclosure.

4.) "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia reports:

a.) "To 10.4. that this order and enclosure is known to all Battalions and other Commanders. The Bulgarian Occupation Corps also is to receive sufficient copies. Simultaneously a map with the outline of the areas of the Division and Regiments is to be submitted.

b.) "Specific experiences and suggestions as they occur."

MR. DENNEY: And then there is a handwritten initial, and it is signed "Kuntze, General of the Engineers." And then follows a distribution list that the first 90 copies go the Commanding General and Plenipotentiary General in Serbia, that the 91st copy goes to the German General in Zagreb, and that copies 92 to 100 go to the Staff of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the Defendant Kuntze, the author of the letter. And it is submitted that the initial of the Defendant Foertsch also appears to the right of the typing, "General der Pioniere." Now, the enclosures start on page -- the following page in the German which I believe is page 53; I am not sure -- it is page 73 in the English. Do you know, German Counsel, where the enclosures start in the German? My book is improperly numbered here. It is "Directives for the Treatment of Insurgents in Serbia and Croatia General." And this has on the top "Enclosures to the Wehrmacht Southeast and Commander in Chief 12th Army Ia – No. 500/42 Top Secret of 19.

3.1940."

"Directives for the Treatment of Insurgents in Serbia and Croatia General.

1.).....

"The more unequivocal and the harder reprisal measures are applied from the beginning the less it will become necessary to apply them at a later date. No false sentimentalities! It is preferable that 50 suspects are liquidated than one German soldier lose his life."

MR. DENNEY: And then omitting a portion and coming down to details.

"Details" As for our own combat activity one must differentiate between the regular patrol service, the small-scale operation and the large-scale operations.

a) It is the purpose of the patrol service to supervise the entire territory continuously. It is to be carried out continuously over continually changing areas by patrols capable of combat who are as mobile as possible (mounted, with bicycles, etc.). Houses and farms are to be searched according to plan! Weapons are often hidden in hay or straw beds. Journeys with armored trains for checking purposes on all railway tracks.

b) It is the purpose of the small scale operation to annihilate small bands in reported rest areas, camps and billets, to check suspect villages and to carry out reprisal measures. These small scale operations are to be executed continuously. They are dependent in considerable measure on surprise.

The following procedure seems practicable when a band nest has been reported.

Alerting of the unit in the evening or during the night.

March or short railroad ride (detraining if possible between stations! near the target preferably without vehicles) Marching toward the target from different directions preferably across country without making investigations on the way, short preparation (no noise! then attack.

Bad weather conditions favor the surprise.

The large scale operation will be ordered by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia or by Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and has as its purpose the annihilation of stronger bands.

Then omitting some, and then we go down to the last paragraph before the paragraph numbered six which starts:

If the presence of mines is suspected the clearing up is to be done as far as possible by insurgents or by the Serbian population.

The same applies to road blocks, destructions, etc.

And then paragraph numbered six which applies to reprisal measures:

"R e p r i s a l m e a s u r e s are to be carried out immediately subsequent to the deed.

The following applies basically:

Rebels captured carrying arms are to be shot to death or hanged, as well as everyone of their followers or whoever is supporting them, or has supported them.

Villages in which arms or ammunition are found or from which the Rebels have been aided or abetted in any way are to be burned down. Villages in the neighborhood of which attacks, destruction, blasting or other acts of sabotage have taken place and if they are strongly suspected of having served as a support for the Insurgents, are to be destroyed. Deportation of the population into concentration camps may also be practicable.

Villages with Communist Administration (handwritten: are to be destroyed and men are to be) taken along as hostages.

If it is not possible to produce the people who have participated in any way in the insurrection or to seize them, reprisal measures of a general kind may be deemed advisable, for instance the shooting to death of all male inhabitants from the nearest villages, according to a definite ratio (for instance 1 German dead -100 Serbs, 1 German wounded - 50 Serbs)

DR. MENZEL: Menzel for the defendant Kuntze. The document which has just been read is an order which is rather important for the defendant Kuntze, since it is being changed to him and since it is very important. I have only just now received the document. It contains also a draft of the order which besides voluminous directives may well not be the original but just a draft. I therefore ask to make a short recess so that I may have a chance to look at the document closely.

THE PRESIDENT: I wonder if we could pass to some other document and then you could examine it during the recess period?

DR. MENZEL: Yes, that is acceptable.

THE PRESIDENT: With the privilege of returning to it after our adjournment.

DR. MENZEL: That suits me, thank you.

MR. DENNEY: I would like to show this section to the Court. There is quite a bit to this document and the original part which has been translated are these, as for the letter itself, and then the enclosures follow but I would like the Court to see this letter and the signature and the initial which appear at the end with the distribution list on it before it is given to counsel for the defendant Kuntze. I certainly have no objection to his seeing it but this is quite a thick document.

The Court's attention is directed to the Exhibit which was placed in evidence this morning, 160, NOKW-342, wherein an order was issued by General Bader setting the ratio as 50 reprisal for one dead and 25 reprisal for one wounded; and here the figure is again to that which it originally was of a hundred to one and fifty to one.

This is perhaps a good time to point out to the Tribunal too the mass of materials that is there which is available to defense counsel in connection with this document, and we, as the court has seen, have only used a small part of it but have furnished all to them.

Then turning to - Dr. Laternser, could you tell me the first page of NOKW-871 in your book? My pages seem to be all wrong here for the German. It is the next document. 67, thank you very much. Page 67 in the German and page 77 in the English. It is NOKW-871. It is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 185 in evidence. These again are extracts from the War Diary of the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, General Bader. The first entry for 21 March, Day report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast;

By virtue of Ia No. 542/Top Secret combatting insurgents in Servia and Croatia the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast orders hanging and shooting to death of captured insurgents.

Hence further inquiry, whether Ia No. 1847/42 Secret of 18 March (compare Enclosure 50) is to be annulled.

And the 23rd of March:

Telephone call Ia 717th Infantry Division, Major Hosterbach:

1) May ammunitions be given to Dangic?

Immediate answer Lieutenant Bode: No, as this represents illegal behavior towards Croatian State supported by Reich.

2) How are Insurgents to be treated, who march over into Serbia?

Answer: Patisans, Communists and prisoners caught with weapon in hand are to be shot to death. Respecting those coming over voluntarily an order will be issued whether transfer to territories of interest to Germany according to Ia order Number can be carried out. The decision depends upon Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

3) What is to be done with about 300 Cetniks who for a long time have been under arrest in Uzice, and whose political past is not quite clear, but who in all probability are former adherents of Mihajlovic, and who at the time were not shot to death. Answer: Wait, orders will be given after decision of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

MR. HINDEMITH: Hindemith as representative of Dr. Rauschenbach for the defendant, General Foertsch. On the basis of the presentation of Document NOKW 871 Exhibit 185, I have to point out the following concerning the German version. When the text starts, the German version reads as follows: "Enclosure 59, daily report to the Commanding General Southeast Ia, No. 542, top secret; subject: "combatting of insurgents in Serbia etc." Showing of insurgents ordered. An order No. 542, top secret is referred to." Thus the impression could be gained that a special order is involved here which was sent the unit concerned. I am of the opinion that there is a typographical error here and that the document which is being referred to is the Document 500/42. That is the document which bears the number NOKW-835.

MR. DENNEY: Well, of course, if your Honors please, the document says it is 542/ and it is submitted that the reference here is the same as that which is carried in the preceding exhibit, which is at page 59 of the German and 70 of the English. If your Honors will note on page 70, this order is dated 500/42. It is dated 19 March. It is received on the 21st in Belgrade from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

Now, the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast could hardly have written order 542 which he would be writing in reply to when the top order number that he had up to the time this was written on the 19th at his headquarters, was 500 and this is the first example that we have had where we have an order number without them number 1 slash 42 because it will develop when we get into the case that these order numbers which are kept in various headquarters, armies, Army high commands, divisions, corps, etc. are kept seriatim by year and if Your Honors care to refer to some of the early orders that have been put in with reference to January-February it will be seen where they go back to number 1/42 for the orders beginning in '42 and as we go along it will be seen we get into '43 and they again return to the

No.1 and us the slash 43 and here it is submitted in line with what counsel has just said and based on the material contained that what was meant here doesn't appear in the German; it appears exactly the same as it is in his text and in ours 542 slash. Obviously when it was dictated it was said 500-42.

THE PRESIDENT: I take it that German counsel speaking is reading from it and is reading from the German photostatic copy. It seem to this Tribunal that all we can take is the document as presented.

DR. HINDEMITH: Mr. President, the original also has the wrong same number. The original is the same as the German copy but in spite of this I am of the opinion that a typographical error was committed by the person who made the entry, in the war diary. It is a wrong reference.

THE PRESIDENT: It was an error when typed and in preparation of the war diary?

MR. HINDEMITH: Yes, Mr. President.

THE PRESIDENT: We have your understanding of it then and will so consider it.

Page 685

MR. DENNEY: The prosecution agrees with that, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our afternoon recess at this time.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. MENZEL (Counsel for the defendant Kuntze): Mr. President, I would like to refer to the extensive document which has just been read. The order about the combatting the partisans I would like to say the following about this. This document unlike the other documents, doesn't portray the final result of the regulations and the orders, but it is a mass of paper which contains collections of a large number of drafts which have been corrected over and over again. There are several drafts of the chief order, besides the original and here we don't need to look any closer into it because the signature on the original of the order is not denied; but the directives are different matter. As I have already said, there are several drafts which are corrected over and over again by hand, and which are rewritten, and then corrected again and so on. And the copy which is now being presented as the original of the directive, doesn't show at all that it is really the original. In my opinion, it is only another copy, another draft of the directives which isn't signed. It has no signature. This order was extraordinarily important, and those kind of directives had to be signed since the directives were just as important and actually contained the most important part of the order. Therefore, I think that here the copies must be checked very carefully, and that these last drafts of the directives, I am sure, cannot be recognized as an original. I therefore ask that the document insofar as it concerns the directives should not be admitted since in view of the large number of drafts it cannot be seen that the last draft is really the original.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. I think the Tribunal has indicated its attitude toward documents of this character, and they will receive such probative value as the Court deems it merits.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors, please, I would like to make a statement with the permission of the court with reference to this document, in view of what counsel for the defendant has said. It is true that there are a great many copies showing work on them. Some copies in type and some in longhand. We have offered this whole file because, among other things, the prosecution contends that this order was drafted by the defendant Foertsch, and we hope, at a later time, to be able to establish through the photostatic copies of the handwritten panes that they were written by him. Counsel for the defendant has stated that the copy to which was offered is only a copy. To that, the prosecution does not accede. The copy which was shown Your Honors bears the signature of the defendant Kuntze. It has the initial of the defendant Foertsch below it. It is numbered as copy 100 of a hundred copies of which were ordered. It had the distribution list. This copy going to KTB, the War Diary of the Wehrmachtsbefehlshaber Suedost, the Army High Command, 12, which was the post which was held by the defendant Kuntze as well as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. He was also Commanding General of the 12th Army at this time, and the document, it is submitted, is an original; it is not a copy. Now, all these other things that are in here are drafts through which the document went in the process of being worked up, a procedure which is generally followed, particularly in the case of important military orders which are put out by -- no matter what units in what army, that when it is an order as sweeping as this is, all of the material relating to the construction of the order is kept together in a file.

And for counsel for the defendant to say that this is a copy, he may contend whatever he wishes, but we submit that we have shown to the Court the pages which were handed up by the assistant to the representative of the Secretary General, with the signature of Kuntze and his initial, and at a later time, it will appear that the initials of the defendant Foertsch appear on various other copies throughout this file.

Turning then to page 68 of the German and page 79 of the English; Document NOKW-936, is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 186 in evidence. This is a situation report from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, the defendant Kuntze, forwarded to OKW, the High Command of the Wehrmacht, the OKH, Army General Staff Operations Branch, OKH, Organization Branch, and OKH, General Staff Group near East and Balkans. It is the 14th copy of 14 copies. It is a review of a situation in the area of the commander sending the report, that is, the Southeast, up to and including 22 March 1942.

"Total Situation. In Serbia small centers of insurrection were scattered, sometimes with considerable enemy losses by attacks of troops additionally employed, which were available for mobile use. Individual attacks and sabotage primarily near Nish and Pozarevac. Traffic situation improved continually.

"In Croatia bands in the area East of Sarajevo were reinforced by people pouring in from Montenegro as well as from Serbia. Lively activity of insurgents in area of Banja Luka - Sisak.

Croatian troops partly became more active and could show some combat successes which however are counter-balanced by some failures in East and West Bosnia. Preparations have been started for a common German-Italian-Croatian operation.

"In Southern Greece, new airplane attacks on airports. In the Aegean active enemy U-Boat activity. Enemy fleet unit fired on Rhodes on 16 March.

"Serbia: In the course of reconstruction the Serbian Police Force has been renamed 'Serbian State Guard.'

"Losses in the period of 16 February to 20 March 1942. Own: German: 37 dead, 67 wounded. Croatian, 75 dead, 205 wounded, Bulgarian, none dead, 19 wounded. Serbian Auxiliary Police, 15 dead, 13 wounded."

And then over in the right, under "Remarks: In addition, 45 missing (Bauxite-Kolonne Mostar).

"Insurgents: k,983 shot to death in combat. 1,552 reprisal measures." And the copy which is offered bears the typewritten signature of the defendant, but is certified as a true copy in writing by a first lieutenant; and the distribution list is given for the local command, that is, within the area of the Wehrmachtsbefehlshaber Suedost, the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. And, if Your Honors will look down at the list on the right, you will see the familiar designations of the units there.

MR. DENNEY: And then -

DR. HINDEMITH (Deputizing for Dr. Rauschenbach counsel for defendant Foertsch): Your Honors, I would like once again to refer to Document Exhibit No. 184 NOKW-834, in addition to the statements which Dr. Menzel has just made. According to the statements of the prosecutor, I must assume that the actual order from the 19th of March 1942 which bears the number "Ia - No.500/42 Top Secret" contains as enclosure the directives which are here. The assumption of the prosecutor seems to have certain justification. At the top of these directives - I refer to the German book, page 53 --I am afraid I can't tell you the English page -

MR. DENNEY: page 73, your Honors.

DR. HINDEMITH: "Enclosure to The Commander-in-Chief Southeast and the Commander in Chief of the 12th Army Ia No. 500/42 Top Secret" of the 19th of the 3rd, '42.

This conference concerns the order of the 19th of the 3rd. Whether it is justified or not, this mark doesn't show that these directives were really enclosed as an enclosure to this letter and the statement is therefore not justified because the document presented here for this purpose --namely, the directives themselves -- are not signed. From the document one cannot assume that this enclosure carried the directives. I just wanted to make this statement now. This is my personal opinion.

THE PRESIDENT: As I understood counsel, he was merely giving expression to his own views and without any objection being made to this particular document and it would not apparently necessitate any ruling from the Court.

DR. HINDEMITH: I am sorry -- the German translation

COURT V CASE VII

didn't come through. Will you please repeat?

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is of the opinion that, inasmuch as counsel indicated that he was merely expressing his opinion concerning this matter, it does not necessitate any ruling by the Tribunal at this time, there being no motion before the Tribunal.

DR. HINDEMITH: No, your Honor, I didn't want to have a ruling of the Tribunal. I just wanted to point out that this statement made by the prosecutor cannot be regarded as correct in my opinion.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, the only thing that was made in connection with this was to read what is on the German, on the enclosure, that is, on the next paper that comes after the letter signed by Kuntze as "Wehrmachtsbetchlshaber Suedost."

Then the next paper is the "Enclosure to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and Commander in Chief 12th Army Ia No. 500/42 Top Secret of 19 March 1942."

And if we look back to the beginning of the original letter it says: "Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and Commander in Chief 12th Army Ia No. 500/42 Top Secret 19 March 1942."

No comment was made about it. That's all that was said. It is admitted that the documents were self-explanatory.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor. We were in NOKW-936, page 82 of the English and page 69 of the German text, still on the situation reports from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast to the High Command. This is a report of 29 January 1942 which may be seen from the stamp which appears at the end, of the Chief Signal Officer, which is the time of the transmission and the date, in reference to the OKW communication of 25 January:

"In the Operational Area Southeast Croatia about 1000 Dancic-Chetniks (Serbian Nationality) and about 3000 Communists were present. The Dancic men well trained, only partly in uniform and equipped with rifle and machine gun. The commitment of enemy artillery has not been established despite the capture of 4 guns. The will to fight and confidence is there. The Chetniks live scattered in villages and only in certain places have they been recruited in closed units. Apart of the Dancic-Chetniks had received orders not to fight against German troops. Training and organization of Communists is worse. They are equipped with rifles and machine guns. With few exceptions both groups evaded German troops, consequently they have been scattered only for a limited time by the mopping up operation and one must continue to count on their presence.

Our losses: 25 dead, 131 wounded, 1 missing, 50 sick and heavily wounded, 297 frozen all degrees.

"Enemy losses: 521 dead, 1431 for the present are prisoners."

And it is signed and -- or, that is, the signature is typed just "Wehrmacht Commander Southeast" and it is certified "true copy" by a Major of the General Staff Corps who we believe is Major Pfafferott.

And then the report for -- excuse me -- that concludes that document.

The next document, on page 84 of the English and page 71 of the German, is offered as prosecution's exhibit 187 in evidence and this is a teletype to the Armed Forces, to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia and a copy which we have here we submit has the signature of the defendant Foertsch on it:

and hence it is submitted that it comes from the Army Commander Southeast.

"Reference: Commanding General and Commander in Serbia - Ia No. 174/42 Top Secret of 21 March 42.

"The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast agrees that insurgents not captured in combat be transferred to work in Norway, insurgents captured in combat action are on principal to be hanged or shot to death, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (12th Army) - Ia - No. 782/42.

"Top Secret. 23 March 42. In the direction Wehrmacht Commander Southeast - Ia - No. 500/42 Top Secret of 19 March the words in the enclosure under number 6, paragraph 2, or has given support to, are to be crossed out."

And that, if your Honor pleases, refers back to the enclosure which has been under discussion and refers to paragraph 6 of the enclosure which is on page 75.

DR. HINDEMITH: Representing defendant Foertsch. Your Honor, referring to presentation of document, Exhibit No. 187, NOKW-943, page 71 of the German, I would like to point out the following. The prosecutor especially stresses that this document finishes with the signature of Foertsch.

From this one gets the impression that the defendant, General Foertsch, gave the orders in this case. Looking at the photostatic copy of the original I must point out the following: The document does not bear the signature of Foertsch, but the initial "F" of 23/3. Apart from these initials there is another initial, according to the copy of the document before me. The prosecutor assumes that this is the initial "N". I would like to stress here that this cannot be seen with certainty from the initials as written. The defendant General Foertsch has told me that is really an initial "K", short for Kuntze, so that this document finishes with the initial "K". But I admit that from the way this initial is written it is very doubtful what it is.

Perhaps the Tribunal would like to look at the original.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will give consideration to comments of counsel, and at such time the defense presents this evidence they can give further attention to this particular matter.

I think we should proceed now, after these comments made by counsel for the defendant.

DR. HINDEMITH: Your Honor, might I just point out one thing. I assume that the English copy of the document also has the initial "N" at the end, and so far I object to the correctness of the translation.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you kindly hand the document to the Tribunal.

(Document handed to Court)

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, I just want to make the finish presentation of the document, and then explain our theory on it. I believe it will be apparent when the Tribunal sees it.

It is submitted, if Your Honors please, that the first paragraph was written by hand, and the defendant Foertsch's signature over to the right appears, and in the same hand appear the numerals 1 and 2, one above the first paragraph, and two to the left of the second paragraph with an arrow indicating that the second paragraph should go up ahead of the "Wehrmachtsbefehlshaber Suedost", which is printed.

Foertsch's signature, it is submitted, appears over to the right on the document.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors will note in your copy, "handwritten" appears on the English ahead of the second paragraph, with reference to the words "oder understuetzt hat", which are referred to here. If Your Honors will look at the enclosure which is the first part of this document, 184, about which there has been so much discussion, on the third page, under the second paragraph, under the number "6", Your Honors will see the words "oder understuetzt hat", and I might perhaps explain the difference between the spelling of the word "oder understuetzt hat" in the German where it is "s-t-u (umlaut)t-z-t" and in the English where it is "s-t-u-e-t-z-t".

The English typewriters do not have the umlaut and by adding the "e" after the letter "u" or after the letter "o" the same sound is endeavored to be produced, even as in the name "Goering", which the Germans always spell "G-o (umlaut) -r-i-n-g", which Your Honors will constantly see in the American "G-o-e-r-i-n-g".

Here again we would just like to call the Court's attention that the handwritten paragraph which is written on the original contains the numbers "500/42 Top secret, 19 March" and refers to the enclosure, gives a quote from the enclosure which we find in the original document as submitted, 184.

The next document is on page 72 of the German text, and 86 of the English text, and is NOKW-930, 25 March 1942, and is from the Commanding General and Plenipotentiary in Serbia, Bader, and has general distribution.

THE PRESIDENT: Give the exhibit number.

MR. DENNEY: The exhibit number is 188. Thank you, Your Honor.

This is a document which is signed and makes reference to the 500/ 42 order of 19 March 1942. At the second reference under the heading "Reference", and refers to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast 1a, under that reference and that number, communications of that date:

"On the basis of the decision by Wehrmacht Commander Southeast the following is ordered regarding order quoted in reference under 1) paragraph 2:

"1. Insurgents captured during combat actions are to be hanged or shot to death as a matter of principle. Band leaders, political commissars and couriers are to be interrogated in brief previously and whenever possible in the presence of SD.

"2. Persons who are found in the unauthorized possession of arms or while actively supporting the insurgents are also to be hanged or shot to death.

"3. a. Insurgents not captured in combat, b. insurgents having surrendered and given up their arms, c. persons under arrest because they are suspected of having supported or collaborated with the insurgents are not to be shot to death, but are to be sent to a concentration camp.

"There the Deputy of the Senior SS and Police Leader will interrogate them and order their disposition (for instance, transportation to the territories of interest to Germany for compulsory labor).

"4. At the present time the camps in Sabac, Belgrade-Dedinje, and Nish, later on the camp in Semlin, will be available as concentration camps."

I would just like to direct Your Honors' attention to the fact that Semlin is to be available later as a concentration camp. We have seen several references to going to one place, and later on to Semlin.

"There is no objection to informing the insurgents in a proper manner of the possibility that they may be used as labor under the conditions named above."

The distribution I believe is self-explanatory: all divisions, all home guard battalions, etc.

Page 697

Then on page 73 of the German, page 88 of the English, Document NOKW-946, which is offered as Exhibit 189 in evidence; this is dated 27 March 1942 and has an illegible signature, but it is signed for the Armed Forces Commander Southeast and has his heading on the stationary, and the subject is the designation "Cetniki":

"The designation 'Cetniki's' often used in reports has frequently caused misunderstandings; it should therefore be used no more.

"Enemy groups are to be called 'insurgents', 'rebels', or 'bands', or other unequivocal designations, for instance, the term used by the enemy, 'Insurgents of the 2nd Mounted Brigade of Proletarians', and so forth. The fighters on the German and Croatian side are to be designated by the usual troop designation, for instance, 'Serbian State Guards', 'Auxiliary Police', 'Ustascha'."

Again, below that they have "Army High Command 12th" and then typed "The Chief of the General Staff, For", and then below that is a signature, and the distribution list, "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia," etc.

MR. DENNEY: Page 74 of the German text and page 90 of the English is Document No. NOKW-1035, Prosecution's Exhibit No. 190 in evidence. This is a copy which is certified as correct. The copy is not signed except by typewriter. It is a communication from the 714th Infantry Division, dated 30 March 1942, and the subject is "Treatment of Captured Insurgents." Well, we don't have to pay any attention to the reference.

"In compliance with reference decree 1 the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia has ordered:" This 2070 of course, refers to the NOKW-930, which is Exhibit 188. That is the same order number that is referred to under 1, the order of Bader, dated 25 March, and then the other reference is to a previous order of the Division.

"1.) Insurgents captured in combat actions are on principle to be hanged or shot to death. Prior to this commanders of bands, political Kommissars and couriers are to be interrogated briefly if possible in cooperation with a member of the SD." And the order continues. It is the same as the order of 25 March, which is recited in reference 1, and I don't believe that there is any necessity in continuing through paragraph 5, which is the same. However, added is.

"Decree 2 is hereby rescinded.

"The transfer of prisoners for reprisal measures to Kragujevac and Sabac is therefore discontinued according to this ruling. Both camps are in future transit camps only. From there the prisoners will be transferred further.

"The executions are to be carried out by the unit. Insofar as hangings are to be carried out the troops are to see to the necessary preparations."

MR. DENNEY: And then "In draft," and the signature is typed, and below it is a certification with a signature that it is correct. This is the same order which Bader issued on 25 March, being passed down on the 30th try a division commander. And then, turning to page 76 in the German and page 93 in the English Document No. NOKW-1377, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 191.

These are a series of longhand entries with one typed at the end. They are reports of subordinate units to the 718th Division. The first one on page 93 recites: "3 reprisal shootings," and the permission date was the 22nd of February. Again on the 23rd of February, "Enemy losses: 7 dead, and 14 reprisal shootings," certified correct. Page 95 of the English page 77 of the German, on the 28th of February, "During reconnaissance of the Battalion Faninger (?) no contact with the enemy. 9 Serbs were captured in houses, of these 8 were shot to death in reprisal." On the 9th of March, "Battle headquarters unaltered.

Truck column fired on near Cerovak, 1 truck and 2 armoured cars knocked out by fire, they were hauled to point 144. Please arrange for them to be taken to Lublin. 2 Volksdeutsche dead, 2 wounded, 2 soldiers wounded, 2 prisoners shot to death, falling in tomorrow morning at 0700 hours."

MR. DENNEY: And then the report of 24 February, which is the one which is typed at the end of the Exhibit with some pieces of teletype paper pasted on it. This is for 24 February 1942 and is to the 65th Corps Command, with a copy to the German General in Zagreb. It is a Daily Report of 23 to 24 February: "Battalion Hoffmann received sudden fire from the direction of church 2379 while mopping up and advancing near Gay." If your Honors please, that is reference to an operational map.

"Captain Hoffmann himself was slightly wounded twice. Whilst mopping up. Intense enemy fire was received. The enemy consisting of strong forces in white coats, equipped with many machine guns, tried to reach the road. The adversary advance up to the height 218.

MR. DENNEY: And then they recite the three battalions -- one of the 724th Regiment, and two of the 750th Regiment: The total number dead 9, the total number wounded 20, and the total number missing 13. "Enemy losses: 21 dead." Then, losses of materiel. I don't think we need to read those. And then on the next page there is a "Supplement to the Daily Report of 23 to 24 February," which carries the note "To 1-3". This is another piece of paper which appears on the document.

It has some illegible initials after it. "Of the 21 dead of the enemy losses, 14 were shot in reprisal." And then to Document No. NOKW-1096, which is on page 99 of the English and page 80 of the German, becoming Prosecution's Exhibit No. 192. These are reports from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, Bader, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the Defendant Kuntze. The first one is for 2 March 1942.

"Enemy fled in the direction of Brusetic. Attacked there several times by reconnaissance of the 11/741 Regiment. Enemy losses: 22 dead, among them bandit leader Nikola Drljani. 3 prisoners not yet shot, because of interrogation. Own losses: 1 non-commissioned officer killed in action, 1 officer slightly wounded."

MR. DENNEY: Report for the 5th of March, "Banat: In Pencevo, 1 police official killed, 1 wounded. 1 culprit shot while escaping, reprisal measures are being taken." Report for the 10th of March on page 81 of the German and page 100 of the English, "Near Zerovac 5 insurgents were arrested, will be shot after interrogation.

II./721 Regiment on march through Western division area, mopped up Plana-Lapovo-Raca area without contact with the enemy. Bandit leader Kolarevic hanged in Natalinci."

MR. DENNEY: Report for the 12th of March, "Bulgarian area: Kragujevac: 80 hostages shot. To telephone inquiry: In Pancevo 75 Communists shot as reprisal measure (report of 5.3)." Daily report of the 13th of March, "717th Infantry Division: In Belgrade 100 hostages have been shot as reprisal measure for murdered Serbian police." and then there are references to the Daily Report of the 6th of March. For the 15th of March, "Artillery Division 661, part of the 714 Infantry Division. 13 arrested insurgents executed." For the 16th of March: "In Pancevo 50 more hostages were shot. (Reference to the report of 5.3.).

A Communist organization has been discovered in Belgrade. Party archives, cipher key and medical articles secured." Report for the 21st of March: "Area 717 Infantry Division: Serbian Volunteer Corps captured 42 insurgents South of Valjevo; 30 were immediately shot, the rest taken for an interrogation." Report for the 28th of March; "714th Infantry Division: In Valjevo, Ub and Obrenovac 6 insurgent leaders have been hanged." And then on page 85 of the German and page 103 of the English the last document in this book is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 193 in evidence, and these are 10-day reports of the Commanding General in Serbia to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. These are signed by Bader. The first report is 10 March 1942.

"Operation Area East Croatia.

"The insurgents in East Croatia receive reinforcements from Serbia and Montenegro. The Greek Orthodox population is being mobilized by compulsion and forced to fight against the Croatians.

"The civilian administration has to list the male inhabitants from 16 to 60 years of age in all communities of Serbia by March 5th of the latest.

"In Belgrade from 26 February to 7 March 1942: 214 arrests. 225 shootings to death ordered as reprisal measures.

"In the camps of the Administrative Sub-area and District Headquarters there were 2600 retaliation prisoners and 272 hostages on 26 Feb.

"In the Jewish camp of Semlin, there were 5780 person (mostly women and children).

MR. DENNEY: Signed by Bader, and distribution to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and various others which appear there.

Page 702

And the Ten Day Report for the period 6 to 15 March rendered on the 20th of March by Bader to Kuntze.

"In Belgrade from 6 March to 15 March 208 arrests, 3 hangings ordered for reprisal measures.

In the camps of the Administrative Sub-aria and District Headquarters there were 2,532 reprisal prisoners and 213 hostages on 15 March. In the Jewish Camp of Semlin, there were 5,150 persons.

The population continues to show a strong interest in the meetings initiated by the Propaganda Branch of the Serbian Prime Minister for the pacification of the country.

(signed) Rader" And the report for the 31st of March:

"In the East Bosnia Area the fight between Croats and Serbs has again increased in severity. Ustascha native partisans, moslems and finally the bands which have advanced from Montenegro here fight side by side against the Serbian forces fighting under Dangle.

At the suggestion of his "Government" Mihailovic seems to continue in a waiting attitude. As before, he still must be regarded as the bearer of the Nationalist Serbian liberation movement. It is conceivable that all other leaders of the different Nationalist Groups might be willing to subordinate themselves to him.

In the camps of the Administrative Sub-area and District Headquarters there were 2586 retaliation prisoners and 198 hostages, and in the Jewish Camp of Semlin there were 5293 persons."

That figure is not clear on my copy but that is- I am reading in this instance on these last figures from the original German if your Honors please.

It is almost time to adjourn and that concludes this Document Book. I wonder if perhaps we might suspend a little early this evening with your Honors' permission?

THE PRESIDENT: We will adjourn at this time until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 24 July 1947, 0930 hours.)

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America, against Wilhelm List, et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 24 July 47 0930, Justice Wennerstrum, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V. Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal. There will be order in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, will you ascertain if all the defendants are all present in court?

THE MARSHAL: May it please Your Honor, all defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: I have asked that my associate, Judge George Burke, preside at this day's session.

JUDGE BURKE: We have had under consideration the matter of the offer of introduction of exhibit known as Exhibit 4a offered on behalf of the prosecution.

The Tribunal has prepared a report upon it's findings in that matter. The provisions of Control Law No. 10 and Ordnance No. 7 Military Government Germany, enacted pursuant thereto, provide that certain specified kinds of documentary evidence shall be deemed admissable.

Document 071-PS, found on page 8 of Document Book IV appears to come within the scope of these provisions and for that reason it will be received in evidence.

It is the considered opinion of this Tribunal, however, that matters of competency, relevancy and of materiality have not been removed from the scrutiny of the triers of fact and continue to be pertinent factors in evaluating the weight and credibility of the evidence in determining the guilt or innocence of the accused.

Thus, it becomes important that the party offering an exhibit even though it is admissible by charter pronouncement, supports it with evidence of foundation, authenticity and correctness.

The credence to be given the document will be determined from a consideration of all these factors. Such must be the rule to be followed here in order that no inference may arise that a technical expediency has been substituted for long established rules of evidence.

For that reason the exhibit marked Exhibit "4a" will be received in evidence. The same ruling, and for the same reasons, will apply to Exhibit 100a which was offered by the prosecution at the conclusion of the introduction of Exhibit 99 found on page 76 of Volume III.

You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, before passing on to the presentation of the documents in document Book VIII, the prosecution has prepared another list for Document Book VI, listing the document numbers, the exhibit numbers and the counts, and the defendants for which these various documents are concerned.

I hand three copies of the list to the Tribunal and fifteen copies to defense counsel, two copies to the Secretary General, and two copies each to the interpreters and reporters.

This, if Your Honors please, should be marked Exhibit 163a for identification. We have also prepared a similar list for Document Book No. VII which should be marked 193a for identification, I hand three copies to the Tribunal.

JUDGE BURKE: Just a moment, Mr. Fenstermacher; how is it to be paged at the bottom?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors, I have forgotten to bring my document Book VI this morning but it would be inserted at the end of Document Book VI and be given the next two pages.

Page 706

JUDGE BURKE: The Secretary has informed me that we will start with 112, page 112.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: All right, Your Honor.

--And twenty-two copies to defense counsel and two copies each to the court interpreters and reporters. This should be marked Exhibit 193a for identification and be inserted at the end of Document Book VII and given the pages in the English, pages 104, 105-- just a minute, Your Honors -- should be given in the English pages 109, 110 and 111 and in the German pages 89, 90, and 91.

We now turn to a consideration of the----

JUDGE BURKE: The Court hearing no objection, the exhibit will be received in evidence.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: And two copies of the exhibit for identification for the Secretary General.

Your Honors will recall that yesterday with the introduction of the documents in Document Book VII we were considering the period of January, February and March 1942 during which period the defendant General Kuntze was Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army and Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and his Chief of Staff was the defendant General Foertsch.

With Document Book VIII we continue our narrative of events in the Southeast for the period of time, April, May, June and July 1942, during which time the defendants Kuntz and Foertsch were at Supreme Headquarters of the Southeast Command and General Bader was in Serbia as Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

The first document in Document Book 8 is on page 1 of the English and page 1 of the German. Document NOKW-1075, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 194.

This is a situation report dated 7 April 1942 of the 714th Infantry Division which was subordinate to General Bader in Serbia.

The subject of the report is: "Report of Enemy Situation of 16 March to 31 March 1942."

"Enemy Situation, Eastern Area 20 March.

Serbian volunteer Battalion Uzice captured 42 insurgents at Drenovacki -- Kik (17 kilometers South Valjevo) 30 were shot on the spot, 12 taken along to Uzice for interrogation."

I think we need not pay any particular attention to the distribution list to the report.

Turning next to page 2 of the English and page 2 of the German.

DR. HINDEMITH, (For Dr. Rauschenbach, representing General Foertsch): In the document which has been presented, I object to the correctness of the translation. The photostatic copy which I have here, has the letters, KTB, at the top, that means war diary or "Kriegstagebuch".

According to what the prosecutor has said, with his reference to the distribution list, it must be seen that from the document itself, that it went to the people concerned. I would like to ask that the transmission should be made right in the document, so the letters "KTB" are put at the top.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is there a question of an improper interpretation?

DR. HINDEMITH: Yes, Your Honor, incorrect, in so far as the transmission did not come through completely. I did not hear it, the letters "KTB" are missing. That meant, "War Diary". I am sorry, it has just been pointed out to me by the prosecutor, that it is there in the document.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning next to page 2 of the English document Book, page 2 of the German, Document NOKW 881, which is offered in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 195, this is a situation report from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast -- at this time the defendant Kunze -- to Higher Headquarters in Berlin, the OKH and OKW.

The report is a review of the situation in the area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, including 7 April 1942. Your Honors will note the distribution list at the top of the page, "OKW, Wehrmachtfuehrungsstab, National Defense", the OKH General Staff of the Army Operation Branch; OKH General Staff of the Army Organization Branch, OKH General Staff of the Army, Group Asia Minor and Balkans, and the Commander-in-Chief of the Luftwaffe, Luftwaffe Operational Staff.

Turning to paragraph 3 of the report, which is on page 3 of the English, and page 3 of the German:

Losses during the period from 21.3. to 5.4.1942 inclusive:

A) Own: Dead Wounded Missing Germans 3 1 5 Croatsians 53 161 110 Serbian Auxiliary Police 13 13

B) Insurgents: 1262 shot in combat 66 shot or hanged in retaliation Including the above since 1 September 1941:

11.522 shot in combat 21.

802 reprisal measures.

and the report is signed in draft by the defendant Kuntze, General of the Engineers, as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast."

Turning next to page 4 of the English, and page 4 of the German, Document NOK" 1123, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 196, this is a directive --

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Pardon me, will you present the Tribunal with the original document of Exhibit 195, please?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Will Major Hatfield hand it to the Tribunal, please?Document handed to Court

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Exhibit 196, page 4 of the English, and page 4 of the German is a directive of Combat Group Bader, dated 10 April 1942, to the 178th Infantry Division. It relates to certain operational matters in Bosnia, as well as to the insignia work by the enemy. I direct the Tribunal's attention to paragraph 3, which is on page 4 of the English and page 4 of the German:

"Treatment of Insurgents: Insurgents captured bearing arms, as well as everyone in their following or who supports them are to be shot dead."

"Cetniks who do not resist the Allied troops, are not to be treated as Insurgents. Above all they are to be treated as prisoners according to the Hague Regulations for land warfare.

Page 710

Other signs of distinction between Cetniks and Partisans:

Cetniks:

Uniform: Most of them in dark brown national costumes, officers in Serbian uniform, black fur cap with Serb coat of arms, Badges:

Badges of rank of the old Serbian army.

Partisans:

Uniform: German, Italian, Serbian uniforms or peasant dress.

Badges: Soviet star on the cap, indicating rank by means of Soviet Star and shoulder stripes. The political commissar has a sickle and hammer on the Soviet Star.

4.) Treatment of the civilian population The civilian population is to be treated with understanding and justice.

Villages in which arms and ammunition are found, or which befriend the bandits are to be burned down.

Civilians, who appear suspect of having befriended the insurgents are to be interned. An order will be issued with regard to their transfer to an Internment Camp.

The evacuation of whole areas, as well as of single villages by the civilian population is only to be carried out by order of the operational staff combat Group General Bader.

Civilians in the operational area of the Italian Division, who violate the issued decrees, are to be surrendered to the operational Staff Combat Group General Bader by the Italian Military authorities. Exceptions are civilians, who are guilty of violations, which are to be decided finally, according to Italian law, by Italian Military Special Courts.

The Commander of the Combat Troop General Bader (Signature) Bader General of Artillery It is signed, "The Commander of the Combat Troop, General Bader" and "Bader, General of Artillery."

Turning next to page 7 of the English, and page 6 of the German document book, Document NOKW 1028, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 197, this is an operation order dated four days later than the previous order, from General Bader to the 71st Infantry Division. This is the passing on by the 718th Infantry Division, on 14 April 1942 of the previous operational order. It is, however, a more detailed order which the Division received from General Bader.

Operational Order No. 4 I think we need not read the first two paragraphs on "Enemy" and "Missions". They are primarily of an operational nature.

Beginning with paragraph 3:

"Own forces:

Participating in the operation:

German, Italian and Croatian units.

Pursuant to the directive of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Lt. General Artillery, Bader, all troops of the 718th Infantry Division, troops of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia arriving in the area described above, units of the Croatian Wehrmacht and the Ustasha units are under my Command. These troops will be organized in groups according to enclosure 1."

"The subordinate troops of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, of the Ustasha and of the Croatian Wehrmacht will be subordinate to the 718th Infantry Division tactically and for rations and quarters.

All measures concerning equipment and ammunition supply for these troop units are regulated by 718th Infantry Division via their respective offices.

The groups will be issued orders directly by me.

Tactical Reports of one groups are also transferred to me directly."

It is signed, "Fortner". I believe in the German, the signature is "Tatner" which is in error. It should be changed to "Fortner" in the German document books.

The enclosures are listed and the distribution is listed.

Turning next to enclosure No. 3, page 9 of the English, and page 8 of the German, this is an enclosure to the order handed down by the 718th Infantry Division on the 14th of April 1942:

C o m b a t D i r e c t i v e (For the instructions of the troops)

1) Enemy To be treated and to be considered as enemy are:

a) Partisans – Communist insurgents External marks of identification:

Uniforms: German, Italian, Serbian or peasant clothing with rank insignia: Soviet Star on the cap, rank insignia on sleeve.

Political Commissars: Sickle and hammer superimposed on star.

b) Chetnik – Nationalists – Serbian insurgents (in as far as they offer resistance) Marks of identification:

Mostly brown National dress. Officers in Serbian uniform, black fur cap with Serbian Coat of Arms and National colors.

Dangic – Chetniks (in as far as they offer resistance) All non-residents and residents who, according to statements, have returned just recently.

Refugees are to be pursued immediately, particularly since they will mostly be leaders.

1) Not to be treated as the enemy are Soldiers of the Italian Wehrmacht in uniform, soldiers of the Croatian Wehrmacht in uniform (cap insignia large badge) Soldiers of the Croatian Ustasha in uniform (cap insignia "U"), civilians, partly with military overcoats with a permit for carrying arms issued by the Croatian Wehrmacht or with blue white brassards on their civilian clothing (voluntary militia).

3) Treatment of the insurgents:

a) Insurgents captured while carrying arms as well as all their followers and supporters or whoever owns ammunition are to be shot to death.

b) Chetniks who do not offer resistance are not to be treated as insurgents. They are at first to be sent in a group under guard as prisoners to the prisoner collecting point.

x) In searching the villages which were in the hands of the insurgents, the inhabitants, in particular the village elder are to be asked to state the names of those families whose men have taken "to the woods" and who have co-operated with the insurgents.

4) Negotiations with the insurgents:

Troops are to be prohibited from all negotiations on principle. Should the insurgents offer to negotiate, the Regimental Commander is to be informed immediately and action is to be taken according to his orders.

5) Procedure during capture:

During the preceding operations, it has been found that all persons present during the search of houses or villages were driven together by the troops and taken away as prisoners. During interrogations difficulties arose in the effort to find out under just what circumstances the capture was made.

Page 714

That is why each sergeant has to give a slip to a prisoner describing briefly how the capture was made. For instance; "Taken in house while working in stable" Signature and Unit. The use of prisoners for carrying wounded is prohibited as a matter of principle.

6) Interrogation of prisoners:

In order to make possible exploitation of prisoner statements, the following facts to be exploited by the troops are of value:

a) What are the names of the leaders and where are the leaders including those of smaller insurgent units?

b) Where are the depots for arms, ammunition and food?

c) Where are family members of the insurgents leaders?

d) An investigation is to be carried out to determine whether the prisoners include such as might be used as guides to hide outs and depots."

"7) Treatment of the Civilian Population:

"a) The evacuation of the civilian population from entire areas in the villages is to be carried out only by special order of the Combat Group General Bader.

"b) Villages and houses in which arms and ammunition have been found, from which shots have been fired, or the residents of which have aided and abetted insurgents are to be burned down. Other than that the burning down of villages is to cease in consideration of the necessity for troop billets.

"c) Village residents whose relatives are with the insurgents or who have supported the activities are to be taken away as prisoners.

"d) The approach to villages which are to be searched is as a matter of principle to be made under the protection of heavy weapons.

"e) A just and understanding treatment of the population by the troops must show that they are only fighting the insurgents and that the peaceful population has nothing to fear.

"8) Executive Power:

"The executive power in the operation area is in the hands of the Commander of Combat Group General Bader and is carried out according to his directive by the divisional commanders. Until the employment of the civilian Croatian authorities, they will be available along with the troop units, the Croatian gendarmerie units, the Croatian police units, and the Croatian administrative officials who remained in the area.

"9) Croatia is a Friendly Country:

"Troops must be conscious of this fact and are to avoid transgressing the prescribed limits of their duties. Regarding food taken from the country attention is called to the directive issued via Branch IB of the division.

"For the Division Command Ic (signed) "Lieutenant" Turning next to page 14 of the English document book and page 11 of the German, Document No. NOKW-1218, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 198.

These are various reports sent during the month of April 1942 by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, General Bader, to General Kuntze as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. First is a Daily Report of the 8th of April 1942:

"Area 714th Infantry Division: In Kloka (five kilometers northnortheast Natalinci) ammunition confiscated, owner shot to death... Thirty-four arrested in Belgrade."

Next is the Daily Report of the 18th of April 1942; the extract which we are using begins on page 15 of the English and page 12 of the German under Serbia:

"704th Infantry Division: 1st Company, 447th Ls. Battalion, skirmish with insurgents near Vlaska. One enemy dead, three prisoners shot after interrogation."

Next, the Daily Report of the 20th of April 1942, found at the bottom of page 15 of the English and page 13 of the German, the report for the 714th Infantry Division:

"As reprisal measure for one wounded German guard in Topola, 85 residents were turned in." This report, as were the other two, is signed by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, by his Ia Operations Officer.

Turning next to page 17 of the English, page 14 of the German document book, is Document No. NOKW-914, which is offered in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 199. This is a situation report of General Kuntze as the Armed Forces Commander Southeast to Berlin - OKW and OKH headquarters in Berlin. This particular report is a review of the situation in the area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast up to and including the 22nd of April 1942. Your Honors will note that the distribution list on this report is the same as it was on the report we looked at a few minutes ago. Again paragraph 3 is all that is important to the prosecution:

"Losses during the period from 6 to 20 April 1942 inclusive:

Dead Wounded Missing "A) Own:

German 2 9 Croatian 23 23 61 Serbian Auxiliary 69 18 Police "B) Insurgents:

1612 shot to death in combat. Three reprisal measures."

Again, I direct Your Honors' attention to a comparison of the losses suffered by the insurgents and those suffered by the Germans and their allies. On page 18 of the English and 18 of the German the report is signed "For the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, The Chief of General Staff", the defendant Foertsch. And I think, if Your Honors will look at the original document, you will see Foertsch's signature spelled out in his own handwriting.

Turning next to page 19 of the English and page 19 of the German document book is Document No. NOKW-1444, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 200. This is a series of reports - of 10-day reports - of the Commanding General in Serbia, General Bader, to the defendants Kuntze and Foertsch, the headquarters of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast in Greece. The first report is dated 20 April 1942:

"Enemy Situation.

"Serbian Area.

"In Belgrade quiet. The seizure according to plan of communists and persons closely associated with insurgents led to further arrests.

"VI. Losses and Booty for the Period from 6 to 15 April 42.

"In Serbia: 343 enemy dead "In Belgrade:

201 arrests "Booty:

Three pistols, 10 light machine guns, 67 rifles and ammunition.

"One own dead and three wounded of the 714 Infantry Division at the bridgehead Zvornik.

"VII. Administration Sector.

"In the concentration camps there are 182 hostages, 3266 reprisal prisoners and 4005 Jews.

"For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia "The Chief of the General Staff."

The report is signed for the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, the Chief of General Staff, a Colonel Kewisch.

Turning next to page 20 of the English and page 20 of the German is a 10-day report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Under "Enemy Situation":

"Serbian Area.

"In Belgrade the seizure according to plan of communists and insurgents is being continued. On 22 April, 128 Yugoslav former professional officers were arrested and deported to Germany to a prisoner of war camp.

"VI. Administration Sector.

"In the concentration camps there are 189 hostages, 3503 reprisal prisoners, 2974 Jews."

I ask Your Honors to note the distribution list on this, as on the preceding report:

"Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (with two enclosures) "Combat Group General Bader

"Plenipotentiary of the German Foreign Office "Plenipotentiary General of Economy "Higher SS and Police Leader "German Liaison Staff at the Italian Second Army "Intelligence Office, Belgrade

"German Liaison Officer with the Royal Bulgarian Corps of Occupation "Administration Staff" On page 22 of the English and page 21 of the German, the prosecution's next document is No. NOKW-1126, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 201.

This document consists of two reports which are extracts from enemy news bulletins, issued by the combat team Bader and the 718th Infantry Division, with respect to the organization and insignia of the enemy against whom the Germans were fighting. The first report is dated 2 May 1942, from the Division Battle Headquarters of the 718th Infantry Division, Section Ic, which is the Intelligence Section of the division:

"Report about the Enemy No. 1 "Area:

Mesici, Gorazde, Ustiprace, Mesici.

"I. In General: With the departure of the partisans and Montenegro nationals from eastern Bosnia and from around Rogatica the battalions and units of partisans plundering in this area increased in strength. It was a kind of winding-up position, for partisans as well as for Chetniks. However, there is a report that the Montenegro nationals have withdrawn further to Foca via Gorazde and that only local partisans are holding the positions. Some Chetniks who had changed to this side were either driven away by the partisans or won over to their party and added to their battalions. Careful with Dangic passes!

"Moreover there exists here also the great contrast between Chetniks and Mohammedans. For protection against the Chetniks many of these Moslems (who almost exclusively inhabit the villages here) have gone over to the partisans. Prisoners' statements agree that the partisans are determined to make a stand here. Above all they want to ward off all attacks from ambushes with tricks and cunning, as well as from freed position of a primitive type."

In paragraph II the leaders of the partisan units are named. I think we can skip that paragraph by just noting what it contains. And turning to paragraph VII, "Clothing", which appears on page 23 of the English and page 21 of the German:

"Clothing: Serbian uniforms or the well-known black uniforms and civilian clothing of the partisans. Almost everybody wears the badge of the partisans on his black cap, the Soviet star."

Signed "For Division Headquarters "The Ia" (Operations Officer) The next report on the enemy, No. 2, which is on the bottom of page 23 of the English and page 22 of the German--

DR. HINDEMITH: Dr. Hindemith, deputy for Dr. Rauschenbach, defense counsel for defendant Foertsch.

I object to the document which has just been presented, No. NOKW-1126. I don't think the translation was right. The German document which the defense has begins with page 1 and page 2. I would like to point out that from the photostat copy of the original it can be seen that this is only a part of the document. The first page of this document is marked 6; the next page is 6a.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, I think I can clear this matter up. The numbers which appear on the bottom of the various documents which we have been introducing are numbers which were placed on the document in Washington in order to facilitate the photostating of these documents. They have nothing to do with the trinsic pagination of the documents themselves. The page 1 which is referred to in the translation as page 1 is the top page of the document. Page 2 which is indicated from the German document book as page two is clearly indicated on the top of the photostatic copy of the document. The pagination on the bottom of the document written in pencil, not typed as are the pages at the top of the document, have nothing to do with the nature of the documents themselves, and were only for administrative purposes placed on the documents when they were originally photostated.

THE PRESIDENT: Does the explanation as given sufficiently clarify the situation?

DR. HINDEMITH: Your Honors, I would like to ask you to look once again at the previous document. Perhaps it could be seen from the previous document whether there are different paginations. Your Honor, I would like to ask that the previous document NOKW - 1444 - in this document, I noticed too, at the bottom on the first page there the number six. Yes, from this document can be seen that there are two different paginations. At the top there is the original pagination of the document -- 1,2,3,4,etc. and then at the bottom there are various numbers --4,5,6. I consider my objection dealt with.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If the Court please, the pagination on the top of the page -

THE PRESIDENT: Top of what page, please?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This is the previous document, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: It is NOKW - 1444?

MR. FENSTERMACHER:NOKW -1444, which is Exhibit 200. If you will turn to page 19 of the English document book, at the top of the page you will see a page 1, which refers to the top page of the exhibit. About in the middle of page 19 of the English, still on page 19 of the German, you will see the indication "page 3 of original " which means that the extract which appears below is taken from page 3 of the photostat copy of the document, and that page number appears at the bottom of the photostatic copy of the document.

Now, as I understand Dr. Hindemith's objection, it is that at the bottom of the pages on the photostatic copy of the document there appears another set of numbers which in this case is page 4, corresponding to page 1 at the top. Page 5 written in pencil at the bottom of the document, when page 2 is typed at the top of the document, and so on. Now in photostating those various documents in Washington and in assembling them in the proper order, a different numbering system had to be used. I thought that was clear earlier but if not I make this statement for the record and for defense counsel now: that the number system on the bottom of the documents should be completely disregarded, it is merely for a deministrative purpose.

THE PRESIDENT: Is any evidentiary value claimed for it?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: None whatever, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Does the explanation cover the situation?

DR. HINDEMITH: Yes, I understand it. I only noticed that because the first page of this document has only got numbers at the bottom. But now I can see from the document that there are two paginations, one done with a typewriter beginning on the second page with 2,3,and so on, and another written with pencil at the bottom, 4, 5, etc.

I thank you very much, Your Honor. I consider my objection dealt with.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, you may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, we were on page 23 of the English, page 22 of the German, looking at the report on the enemy No. 2 as of 28 April 1942, paragraph 1; the various insurgent groups in the Southeastern Bosnian area. Then subparagraph c: area south of Sarajevo, various units are listed which pertain to units of the enemy. The staff is mentioned, and finally the leader. This is on page 24 of the English, page 22 of the German.

Leader: of the group (band): Major Dickie from Trnovo and Sava Tomic, further Dr. Valado and Miso Jokanovic. Political Commissar Sareme.

Activity: Pillaging raids on villages Southwest and South of Ilidza.

(Members of the bands) wear the Soviet star or an arm band with the imprint; Death to Fascism - Freedom to the People. Members of the bands mainly Serbs from the Igman area.

Next on page 25 of the English and page 23 of the German is Document NOKW - 1142, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 202. This is an order of the Commanding General in Serbia, General Bader, dated 10 May 1942 sent to the 714th Infantry Division and the 717th I believe Your Honors have a repeat on the 714th. It should be changed to read the 717th Infantry Division.

"The aggravation of the situation in the area of Sjenica-Novi Pazar Kos. Mitrovica obliges us to reinforce the German troops kept in readiness in the Southern part of the area held by the 717th Infantry Division. Our orders to the above subject are:

.....

Crossing of the border of insurgents and disturbances of all kinds are to be combatted by most severe means.

Page 724

The insurrectionists are to be exterminated wherever found. Leniency toward these elements is uncalled for.

Disarming is to be carried out continuously.

.....

(Signed) For the Commanding General and Commander-in-Chief in Serbia The Chief of the General Staff Colonel Kewisch" Next on page 27 of the English, 24 of the German, Document NOKW- 1139, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 203, these again are situation reports sent from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast Headquarters by the defendants Kuntze and Foertsch to higher headquarters of the OKW and OKH in Berlin.

The first report is a review of the situation in the area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast concluded 7 May 1942.

"Losses during the period 21.4 to..." I believe this must be a mistake. May I see the original document, Major Hatfield? The error seems to be in the original as well.

Losses during the period 21.4. to 3.3.42 inclusive in Serbia and Croatia (exclusive of Eastern Bosnia number II/1) Dead Wounded Missing

A. Own:

Germans 6 5 ---

Croats 46 45 80 Serbian Auxiliary 3 ---- ---Police

B. Insurgents:

321 killed in action 404 arrested 82 shot as reprisal measures".Signed in draft, Kuntze and General, Engineers, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

Turning next to page 28 of the English, page 26 of the German the situation report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast concluded 23 May 1942, again the losses are listed. We call Your Honor's attention to the losses of the insurgents: 165 killed in action, 51 wounded, 237 temporarily arrested. Again the report is signed in draft by the defendant Kuntze.

Turning now to page 30 of the English and page 28 of the German, Document NOKW-894, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 204, we call Your Honors' particular attention to this document which is an order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, General Bader to his subordinate units. This, if your Honors please, outlines the procedure for the taking of hostages, and you will note the various criticisms which General Bader offers regarding the way the matter has been handled up until now. The order is dated Belgrade 21 June 1942. I think this is important enough to be read in its entirety. The subject is "Taking of Hostages".

1. Owing to special occurrences, I must state that my order concerning the taking of hostages, of 20 Feb. 42, was either not sufficiently published or not sufficiently understood.

Casel: An administrative Sub-area Headquarters reports, as an arrest of hostages ordered by the Sector Commander of a Division and also submits a letter of this Commander of the Sector addressed to the competent Serbian District head and the mayor of the town asking them to name hostages and to make them available.

Furthermore, the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters reports, that persons were arrested who, with few exceptions were known as "Active Communists". One hostage was arrested because he was known as a follower of Fraja Mihailovic.

These measures were taken on account of a raid on Serbian volunteers.

On principle it must be said with respect to this case, that the Field Administrative Sub-area Headquarters are competent for the taking care of the arrest of hostages, the final decision according to my order of 20 February '42 remains with me, unless a delay would entail danger. The latter was not the case, my decision could easily have been obtained by telephone or teletype. It is absolutely wrong to order Serbian offices to collect hostages. If my order of 20 Feb. 42 had been followed, the arrest of hostages would have had to have been arranged by the Field and Administrative Sub-area Headquarters and there would have been no difficulties for immediate action.

Furthermore it is surprising, that men are arrested as hostages, who are known as active Communists or as followers of Draja Mihailovic. These men should have been delivered to the Commander-in-Chief of the Security Police and the SD for further treatment a long time ago. Case 2: An Administrative Sub-area Headquarters punished various districts with fines and arrest of hostages because the marked was insufficiently stocked with goods. Here too the idea of taking hostages was completely misunderstood. To me it is nonsensical to apply these most drastic measures which will inevitably lead to execution in case of a reprisal."

I call your Honor's attention to that language:

"Which will inevitably lead to execution in case of a reprisal" because a marked was insufficiently stocked with goods.

As in Case 1 it was completely wrong to order a Serbian authority to nominate hostages. Moreover, in this instance too, my orders were not followed, in so far as my decision was not asked for.

II. In order to avoid the occurrence of similar cases in the future, I shall again make known the most important points concerning the arrest of hostages:

1. Purpose The hostages guarantee with their lives for the maintenance of public quiet and security in the circles from which they are taken.

By the taking of hostages the whole population is to be taught, to actively prevent acts of sabotage and terror out of consideration for the lives of the hostages.

2. Preparation The arrest of hostages is to be prepared by the Field and Administrative Sub-area Headquarters in such a manner as to enable the persons ordered to carry out the arrests to act quickly and also so that the monthly exchange which is provide for" We will see what is meant by the exchange paragraph 4 later.

"(paragraph 4) can be carried out without difficulties. Only in exceptional cases and even then, only in close collaboration with the Field and Administrative Sub-area and indigenous local Headquarters, does the troop have to concern itself with the seizure of hostages; in general the troops will collaborate only when requested by the indigenous Administration offices.

The hostages are to be taken from all circles of the population in the first place men from 16 years upwards are to be considered. Inhabitants whose activity serves important tasks of the occupation, may only be taken in special cases.

3. Arrest of hostages

a) General remarks: The arrest of hostages is permissible only in case no other means are available. The efficacy of these measures is questionable, if the hostages are not closely connected to the circles of persons which are to be intimidated, Fanatics and criminals, as is known by experience, do not take any consideration of the lives of hostages. Any haphazard arrest of hostages pushes loyal and hitherto inactive circles of the population into the enemy camp and strengthens the enemy's force of resistance.

b) Competency: On principle the arrest of hostages is only carried out on special order of the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia (officer in charge Administration Staff in cooperation with Ic Department). In case of danger the Field and Administrative Sub-area Headquarters are authorized to arrest hostages: the arrest however is to be reported to me immediately.

The seizure of hostages involves extreme responsibility, because already at the time of the seizure one has to count on the possibility that an execution will be carried out. If this conclusion can not be drawn from the arrest of hostages the measure, because it remains without effect, is a mistake.

The troop has to aid in the seizure of hostages if it is requested to do so.

c) Notice: When hostages are seized the population is to be notified with regard to the purpose for the seizure of hostages; attention is to be drawn to the fact that the lives of the hostages depend upon the maintenance of quiet and order in the respective districts.

4. Exchange and dismissal: This, if Your Honors please, is the exchange talked about under paragraph 2, on page 32, of the English and page 30 of the German.

"In order to rotate the responsibility of the whole population for the maintenance of public order and security, the hostages are to be exchanged as a rule every month.

Competent for the exchange and the dismissal of hostages are:

The Field Administrative Headquarters (Administration group) and in the area of the Field Administrative Headquarters 599 the Commander of the Security Police and the SD.

Dismissal may be allowed only in cases for which reasons are given and after having conferred with the competent SS Officer. In case the arrest of new hostages to replace those dismissed is decreed, they are to be taken from the same circles of the population as those that the hostages dismissed belonged to.

"These principles are to be observed closely; in case of infringement I will punish the guilty." Signed Bader, General in the Artillery.

May I ask your Honors to note the wide distribution this order was given. You will note on page 36 of the English and page 33 of the German that a total of 340 copies were sent out to various subordinate units. You will note too the Higher SS and Police leaders received a copy.

Turning now to page 37 of the English and page 34 of the German, Document NOKW-927, is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 205. Again, we have two situations reports of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast sent by the defendant Kuntze and Foertsch to higher headquarters of OKW and OKH in Berlin.

The first is:

Survey of the situation in the area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (Terminated on 7 June 1942)

A) SUMMARY OF THE SITUATION In Serbia.

In general without change quiet. Small bands were fought with success.

In Croatia. Great activity of the insurgents in west Bosnia and in the Italian occupied area. Stronger uprisings in the new-Italian area around Laibach. Pacification in Eastbosnia progressing.

In Greece. Isolated cases of sabotage were met by immediate shooting of the guilty. Numerous arrests of persons suspected of having aided and abetted the enemy.

I call your Honors' attention to paragraph 3, Losses listed by the Germans, Croatsians. Serbian State Guards, and finally the losses of the insurgents:

"1085 shot in combat; 79 wounded; 1745 arrest, large majority held for transportation to Northern Norway; 3 shot to death as reprisals."

I call your Honors' particular attention to paragraph 4 of this report:

"In Athens 2 explosive attacks on army cars. An attempt on railway line north of Athens. The guilty, i.e, hostages were shot. Strict warning was published.

"In Crete several of the mayors appointed by the occupation authorities were murdered. Participants in the crime and a number of hostages were shot to death."

Signed in draft by the defendant Foertsch, Brigadier General.

If Your Honors will keep in mind that this particular report is signed in draft by the defendant Foertsch.

The next report, still in the same document, is a survey of the situation in the area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, terminated 23 June 1942, which is roughly two weeks later than the report which we have just seen:

SUMMARY OF THE SITUATION "In Serbia:

In general situation unchanged. Only local disturbances.

"In Croatia: In the part of west Bosnia occupied by German troops, German-Croatian troops met with stubborn resistance when cleaning up the Kozara-Planina area.

"In the Italian area the disturbances in the Slovenian frontier area were increased.

A new development is being created in the Italian area by the fact that the Italian troops are being taken away from the areas next to the line of demarkation towards the coastal area.

In Greece: On 13 June sabotage operations on the air field Iraklion (north Crete) carried out by English Commando troop probably with support of Cretans in preparation for English Naval Operations directed towards the purpose of supplying the island of Malta.

..... We have next the familiar paragraph on losses, again I call your Honors' attention to sub-paragraph:

Insurgents:

1748 shot in combat 15 wounded 713 taken prisoner or arrested (large majority held for transportation to northern Norway) 275 shot as reprisal Up to now 37,477 have been shot to death in Serbia and Croatia in combat or as reprisal measure.

D.) Greece

2.) Investigations of the Commander in Chief South revealed, that raid on air field Iraklion (see Daily Report of 20 June 42) was carried out by individual (English, Gaullic and Greek) soldiers and Cretans and apparently a further raid was planned. Apparently draconic penal measures applied directly after the first raid, have deterred the civilians from giving their support in the newly attempted raid against Kastelli.

.....

Now, I ask your Honors to note that this report is signed in draft by the defendant Kuntze, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. The Prosecution will have cause to interpret the fact that the defendant Foertsch signed the first report and the defendant Kuntze this report sometime later.

JUDGE CARTER: Mr. Fenstermacher, what is the meaning of this statement "signed in draft"? What is your interpretation of that?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, I am not very familiar with that military procedure.

Perhaps Mr. Denney can answer that question.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, I think we have had examples up to now of the process of signing in draft on occasion; it is submitted that drafts which are signed go out. In short, an order is drafted at a headquarters. We can take just as an example Army, an Army or Corps or Division. The necessary officers who are to be consulted are given copies of it; a draft copy of the order is then completed, based on the information that is obtained from the various staff sources. Now, there are sometimes, when that draft is signed by the Commander approving it, and if the draft as such is complete and considered as a final order, it can be distributed in draft, that is copies struck off from that and sent on out, and that original draft order – it is a final order – but it does bear the draft, d-r-a-f-t-, the words will go into the order book. We have had one instance that I recall here and I believe I can find it for your Honors in an earlier book where a draft order was distributed, it being a matter of time to get it out and it prevents the extra time take for recutting an order. Now, most times, after an order is signed in draft, the chief of staff or perhaps some other person in the Headquarters Staff, it is more or less of a matter for the Commander himself to determine, and the different Echelons, will re-run a final

THE PRESIDENT: This statement on the side certified with the signature–

MR. DENNEY: And the certification with the signature is similar, if Your Honor please.

THE PRESIDENT: The certified copy?

MR. DENNEY: The certified copy in our army where an order comes out, and I think we had occasion to refer to one yesterday where an order went from the Wehrmachtsbefehlshaber Suedost (Army Commander Southeast) and had a division typed entry on the bottom from the 718th sending it down, and the original signature which appeared on the right and the certification were both typed and then added to that was a further certification by the division with a signature which appeared and the rank of the officer who was certifying to the order. But this signature here, if it is written and certified to, or in case it is a lower unit it can be typed, shows that the draft was signed or it wouldn't appear. The letters g.e.z. I believe appear before the typewritten letters of the person who has signed the draft. I believe that covers it.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I turn next to page 42 of the English and page 37 of the German, Document NOKW-1063. This is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 206. The document consists of various extracts from the War Diary of the Commanding General in Serbia and relates to certain retaliation measures taken by the Brandenburg Company 800.

I call Your Honors' attention to the entry under paragraph 1b:

"Mopping up action Fruska Gora showed fairly strong enemy near Grgurevci (16 kilometers northwest Buma) on 4 June. 18 enemy dead, 2 dead of our own, 3 wounded of our own. 6 June. Area around Grgurevci mopped up with concentrated forces. 257 Serbs shot to death, 3 wounded of our own."

Now, if Your Honors will remember this entry "257 Serbs shot to death". It would appear from this entry that this may refer to certain combat losses. If you will just bear that in mind, we will see from another page of the document exactly what is meant by that reference.

Turning next to the report for 18 June. 1942:

"In reply to the telegram of the German legation in Zagreb of 15 June 42 submitted to me by the Plenipotentiary of the Foreign Office in Belgrade I wish to state:

"The German general was informed 4 June 1942 of the intention to send Company 800 (Training Regiment Brandenburg) which has been especially trained for difficult situations to Fruska Gora. This decision was taken in order to create order in the Fruska Gora speedily in the interest of the Croatian state by troops which were especially trained for difficult combat. It is incorrect that the company has carried out the mopping up operation according to its own judgment. The carrying out took place on the basis of a commitment order issued by me. At first, the company contacted only the Home Defense company present in Ruma; (they contacted) Colonel Gvozdanovic only after Obergespan Dr. Elicker had called on my Chief (of Staff). This was a mistake; however, constant with the Croatian authority in Ruma was made on 10 June 1942.

Planned operations of the Croatians against the insurrection have not as yet become known to me. And in my opinion cannot be carried out either since according to Dr. Elicker suitable troops are not available. Thus, Company 800 was available for the combat. The Home Defense company in Ruma has a guard mission.

"The shooting to death of 257 Serbs was carried out because of the losses suffered at the forest edge north of Grgurevci and particularly because of the two sergeants killed in action. It is explained by the excitement of the company engendered by the loss of two particularly brave leaders.

"The company, which until a short time ago was committed in South Serbia, overlooked the fact it was not fighting in occupied territory but in our allied state of Croatia. That was clarified immediately. After the decisive action of the company no more enemy actions by the insurgents in Fruska Gora have been reported for days.

"I must reject as an insult to the German troops the comparison of the procedure of the German company with the atrocities of the Ustascha.

"I have issued an order that the Company 800 will depart from the area of the Fruska Gora on 18 June. It will be put at the disposal of Combat Group West Bosnia.

"The Home Defense company in Ruma is the only German troop left to guard the ammunition depot in Syrmia."

And the report is signed by Bader, Lt. General, Artillery.

Turning to page 45 of the English and page 39 of the German we see these entries in the War Diary of the Commanding General in Serbia:

"Major Rogoz, Croatian Liaison Officer intervenes concerning events in Grgurevci, reprisal measures and shootings to death by Special Missions Company Brandenburg 800."

Next the entry of 9 June 1942:

"Captain Muller, Special Missions Company Brandenburg 800, is again reminded that no reprisal measures of the troops are permitted to be carried out without approval of the Commanding General and Commander. During combat and immediately thereafter the troops have a free hand; however, reprisal measures at a later date are impossible."

The entry of 17 June 1942:

"Captain Muller, Special Missions Company Brandenburg 800, reports concerning results of mopping up operations Fruska Gora. He is informed that the company will be attached to Combat Group West Bosnia since the Fruska Gora operation has checked the activity of insurgents and Combat Group West Bosnia requires reinforcement."

Next on page 46 of the English and page 40 of the German is NOKW1390, which is offered in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 207. This is a report of Combat Group West Bosnia, dated in the field 27 July 1942. It relates to insignia worn by the enemy against whom the combat group had been engaged.

"Evaluation of Situation and Proposals.

"Enemy in Samarica, partisan unit 'Banija', strength about five bat talions, in all about 1400 armed men in uniform."

I think we need not read the rest of the document, if Your Honors please. The report is signed "Stahl", the Commander of Combat Group West Bosnia.

Next on page 48 the English and page 41 the German document book, Document NOKW-1440, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 208. This document is a collection of situation reports sent by General Bader as Commanding General in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander S.E. The first report is dated 21 July 1942 and is a situation report to--- I think it should be 29 July 1942:

Under "Enemy Situation, Serbian Area":

"North Serbia remained quiet.

"In the Banat 50 communists were shot dead in reprisal for attacks committed on members of the SS."

Under Paragraph VI, "Administration Report":

"In the concentration camps there are 111 hostages, 1695 reprisal prisoners."

The report is signed "Bader, General of the Artillery".

Your Honors will note the distribution list, "Wehrmacht Commander Southeast", as well as "Senior SS and Police Leader", among others.

Turning next to page 49 of the English and page 42 of the German. The paragraph of the report beginning on "Own Losses during the Period from 16 to 25 June 1942". Your Honors will note the tabulation, "Germans in Serbia, Germans in Croatia, Racial Germans in Croatia, Croats, Bulgarians, Italians, Serbian police (Chetniks), Russians," and the totals, 243 dead, 318 wounded, and 29 missing.

"Enemy losses during the Period from 16-25 June 42."

In the Serbian area 230 dead, none wounded, 49 arrested; in the Croatian area 775 dead, 23 wounded, 395 arrested; reprisal measures in the Serbian area, 50 dead, none wounded, and 15 arrested. Totals of 1055 dead, 23 wounded, and 459 arrested.

On page 50 English, 42 German, the final sentence of the report which we have extracted:

"In Belgrade during the period from 16 to 25 June 1942, 119 arrests."

Next the report from General Bader, dated 20 July 1942. The report again is sent to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. It is broken down into reports dealing with enemy situation. Another section dealing with activities of our own troops. Under that the next section, "West Bosnia":

"Mopping-up Operation Kozara - Prosara Pl. was terminated successfully after six weeks of combat. The strong enemy group which fought obstinately was destroyed. Total losses during the one mopping-up operation of the Kozara and Prosara:

"1. Germans: 63 fallen in combat, 144 wounded, 7 missing.

"2. Croats: 426 fallen in combat, 492 missing (of these 45 returned to the unit, 7 prisoners in partisan hands).

"3. Enemy: 3406 dead, 7947 prisoners, in addition 250 insurgents arrested, who will be shot dead after interrogation according to martial law."

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will stand in recess for 15 minutes.

(Thereupon a recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The Tribunal please, Your Honors will recall that prior to the adjournment - prior to the recess, rather - we were considering Document NOKW-1440, Exhibit 208, in evidence. The document, you will recall, is a series of reports from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and we particularly were concerned with the report of the 20th of July 1942 which appears on page 50 of the English and page 42 of the German.

We had just about finished the report of the 20th of July 1942 and we had looked at paragraph 3, the bottom of page 50 of the English and page 42 of the German.

"Enemy losses: 3406 dead, 7947 prisoners, in addition 250 insurgents arrested, who will be shot dead after interrogation according to martial law."

And that particular report was signed: "For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, the Chief of the General Staff, Colonel Geitner," the defendant Geitner in this proceeding.

Geitner became Chief of Staff to General Bader in July 1942. This is the first time we have met him in our documents. We will have occasion to refer to him at greater length later. I should like at this time, however, to point out to Your Honors the defendant Geitner's signature which appears in his own hand on the bottom of this particular report of 20 July 1942. It is on page 8 of the photostatic copy of the document.

Continuing on the bottom of 51 of the English and page 43 of the German, again the tabulation of German losses from 6 July to 15 July 1942: 43 dead, 99 wounded, 9 missing -- followed by the tabulation of the enemy losses from 6 July to 15 July 1942 -- the totals for the enemy losses: 1,454 dead, 144 wounded, 628 arrested.

"In Belgrade 103 arrests during the period from 6 to 15 July 1942."

Next, the Daily Report of the 18th of July 1942 from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, General Bader, to the defendants Kuntze and Foertsch at the headquarters of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast in Greece:

"West Bosnia: Total enemy losses in mopping up of the Kozara Prosara: 8,406 dead, 7947 prisoners and arrested persons were sent on to camps; further 250 partisans under arrest who will be shot dead as insurgents after interrogation. A list of the total losses will follow separately."

The report is signed by the Operations Officer for the "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia".

I think we may skip the final two pages of this series of reports at this time and pass to the next document. Before passing on to the new document, however, my attention was called to an error in translation which appears on page 38 of the English and page 34 of the German in Document NOKW-927, which was Prosecution's Exhibit 205. This error was called to my attention by the official interpreters and I am glad to call it to Your Honors' and defense counsels' attention. It appears in paragraph 4, the line beginning, "In Athens--". It is on page 38 of the German and the bottom of page 34 -- page 38 of the English, rather, and 34 of the German.

"In Athens two explosive attacks on army cars. An attempt on railway line north of Athens. The guilty" -- this line should read: "The guilty or hostages were shot."

Turning now to page 55 of the English and page 54 of the German, Document NOKW-1138 is offered in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 209. This document again consists of reports from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to the OKW and OKH Higher Headquarters in Berlin.

The first report is the "Survey of the Situation in the Area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (terminated on 8 July 42)." Paragraph 1 is the "Overall Situation in Serbia-Croatia":

"Good progress in the attack against the groups of insurgents encircled in the area Kozara-Planina whose complete destruction is impending.

Mopping-up operations still in progress especially in the northern part. Up to now the insurgents have lost 2080 dead. In the encircled area, starting from 5 July 1942, a mass flight of up to now 9591 refugees - of those two-thirds women and children - began. Some units of the insurgents hid their arms and fled also. Captured insurgents were shot dead. Male suspects were gathered as penal prisoners for Norway. Women and children were brought into camps on account of danger of epidemics and in order to prevent unrest in other areas. The livestock was taken over for later pacification and was then distributed to the peace loving population."

Paragraph 2 of the report continues with the tabulation of losses in the entire area. I call Your Honor's attention to the losses of the insurgents: 4,963 dead, 150 - it should be 150 rather than 160 - wounded, 6,641 arrested, 346 shot to death as reprisal.

"In all up to now a total of 45,261 killed in combat or shot to death as reprisal in Serbia and Croatia."

And this report is signed in draft by Foertsch, the Chief of Staff to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, the defendant Kuntze.

The next report begins on page 57 of the English, page 48 of the German, a report about the "Situation in the Area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Terminated on 23 July 42."

Under "Enemy Situation":

"In Croatia increase of number of bands appearing in the Danube Save band west of Belgrade. The enemy propaganda slogan to destroy stocks of crops and harvesting machines had as a result an increased activity of bands north of the Save."

Again the table of losses in the total area - and again I call Your Honors' attention to the losses of the insurgents: 1,620 dead, 273 wounded, 8,849 captured or arrested, 431 shot to death as reprisal; and this report is signed in draft by the defendant Kuntze, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Page 59 of the English and page 50 of the German - this is prosecution's next document, NOKW-1253, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit 210.

This is a combat report of the 738th Infantry Regiment to the 718th Infantry Division, dated 3 August 1942. We have omitted to translate the various operational matters which is listed at the beginning of the combat report but begin with the next portion.

"During these combats on 28 July the enemy lost at least 450 to 600 dead and 2-300 bounded.

"The demoralized partisans who hardly defended themselves tried to escape in a completely disordered flight. Bloody losses were inflicted upon them. A great number of them were captured and immediately shot.

"The village on the mountain pasture land was well camouflaged with branches. In the huts, the interior of which had been set up as quarters in the best possible manner by means of plank beds fixed one above the other, the following was found:

"Fresh traces of blood, bandages, two egg-shaped hand grenades, SS ammunition strips, one old rusted revolver, one completely rusted Serbian Very pistol, two bayonet sheaths, one German gas mask box, one wounded horse complete with a saddle and one novel with a Soviet star on the front page.

"On the huts there was written in Serbian 'Long Live Stalin'. Lying around in the neighborhood were bones of animals recently and not so recently slaughtered, goat skins, pocket lamp batteries, and tubes of tooth paste "The huts were set on fire and destroyed, and a considerable amount of ammunition that was in them, was detonated."

"II Battalion reports the destruction of four huts and have handed over as booty to the Regimental Combat Post one sack containing medical (gynecological) instruments."

"Survey: 1. Enemy Losses: Altogether the following losses were determined:

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I will call Your Honors' attention to the totals: 970 dead and 450 wounded; and to the German losses in contrast, a total of 9 dead and 7 wounded. And the report is signed by "Colonel and Commander of the Regiment." Next on page 61 of the English and page 52 of the German is Rosecution's Document No. NOKW-834, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 211. This is a collection of activity reports and directives of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, for the period from 1 February to 28 February 1942. The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast at this time, of course, was the Defendant Kuntze, and his Chief of Staff was the Defendant Foertsch. I will call Your Honors' attention to the Paragraph under Enclosure 47:

"Situation in Serbia and result of the penal expedition in southeast Croatia:

In a teletype to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast dated 1.2.42 the Chief of OK W points out that the situation in Serbia according to reports of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and the result of the penal expeditions do not as yet justify hopes that insurrections on a large scale will not start again in spring. Up to now we have been unable to break the backbone of the insurgents by draconic measures. The most effective means is by the use of an extensive system of informants by brutal measures on the part of the police and the secret police to detect and to burn down the formation of insurgents while still in the initial stage. After the appointment of a senior SS and Police Leader these methods must be employed to the utmost. The Chief of the OK W again points out explicitly that the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast will have to get along with the use of his remaining forces during the coming year also and that it is his duty to apply those methods which will guarantee success."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Next on page 62 of the English and Page 52 of the German are extracts from the Daily Reports of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, for the period 1st to the 15th of February 1942. The portion under "Serbia: In reprisal for German losses in the month of January 449 prisoners shot to death, the shooting of an additional 3434 has been ordered." And under the portion of the report dealing with Greece, "5.2: 3 attacks with explosives on motor vehicles in Saloniki, 20 Greeks shot in reprisal." And then the Activity Report for the period from the 1st of March to the 31st of March 1942:

"Losses during the period from 16.2. -20.3.42: Germans dead: 37, wounded: 67, missing: 45. Croatsians: dead: 75? wounded: 205. Bulgarians: dead: - , wounded: 19. Serbian Police: dead: 15? wounded: 13. Insurgents: 1983 (shot to death in combat), 1552 (Reprisal measures) "Enclosure 125:

Directives for treatment of Insurgents in Serbia Teletype to Commanding General and Commander in Serbia:

Wehrmacht Commander Southeast agrees that Insurgents not seized in combat will be transported to Norway for labor employment. Insurgents captured during combat actions are as a matter of principle to be hanged or to be shot to death."

Next under Enclosure 127 for the 24th of March:

The Deputy Wehrmacht Commander KUNTZE - General of the Engineers celebrates on 24.3.42. his 40th anniversary in the service. Time table for the 24.3 and speech by the Chief of the General Staff, Generalmajor (Brigadier General) Foertsch, see file folder Commander in Chief and Chief (OB. - und Chef).

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Signed "For the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, (12th Army), The Chief of the General Staff."

Continuing on Page 64 of the English and Page 54 of the German, the report dated 30th April 1942, for the period from the 1st of April to the 30th of April 1942. The various headings of the report are set out as Serbia, Croatia, and finally, "Losses during the period from 21.

3 to 5.4.1942." I will call Your Honors' attention to the losses of insurgents, "1262 shot to death in combat, 66 shot to death or hanged in reprisal. Total since 1.9.41: 11,522 shot to death in combat, 21,809 reprisal measures." And then Enclosure 28 a, "Conferences of the Chief of the General Staff of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (12th Army) with the Commander in Chief South and Commando supreme in Italy. The Chief, Generalmajor (Brigadier General) Foertsch returned from his flight to Italy on 11.4.42 P.M. The purpose of this duty trip was a conference with the Commander in Chief South regarding the Fuehrer directive: 'Regulation of the Channels of Command on the Coasts' and conference with Italian authorities regarding the return of the Siena Echelon. Result of these discussions see file notes to the Chief Conference on 13.4.42." Next, on page 66 of the English and Page 55 of the German, the notation of the "Chief of Staff Conference in Headquarters Wehrmacht Commander Southeast on 28 and 29.4.42. "The Chief," and here the Chief of Staff Conference is meant, "The Chief Conference took place on 28 and 29.4.42 in Headquarters Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Arsaklo near Saloniki, operations section." And then the participants are listed. Skipping now to Paragraph "c" under "Participants," "From Wehrmacht Commander Southeast:

Chief of General Staff, Brigadier General Foertsch", attended. Turning next to Page 67 of the English and Page 56 of the German, report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, dated 31 May 1942, for the period from the 1st to the 31st of May 1942. There is a notation of a duty trip taken by the Chief of Staff, the Defendant Foertsch. "On 3.5. P.M. Chief leaves for Belgrade for conference with the Deputy Chief of the Operational Staff OKW/WFSt., (Wehrmachtfuehrungsstab), Generalmajor Warlimont". Warlimont, if Your Honors please, was General Jodl's immediate subordinate in the Planning Section of OKW, Berlin.

The same Jodl who was tried by the International Military Tribunal in the Goering Case. Under the section of the report dealing with Croatia: "Dead: German: 6, Croatian: 46, Serbian Auxiliary Police: 3, Wounded: German: 5, Croatians: 45, Missing, Croatians: 80. Insurgents: 321 shot to death in combat, 404 arrested, 82 shot in reprisal." Turning next to Page 68 in the English and Page 58 in the German, the report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, dated 30 June 1942, dealing with the period of time from the 1st to the 30th of June 1942. Under the portion of the report dealing with losses I will call Your Honors' attention to the comparison of the losses suffered by the Germans, the Croatians, and the Serbian State Guard, with those suffered by the insurgents: "1085 shot to death in combat." For the wounded here, Your Honors, the figure should read 79 instead of 19 in your Document Books. "1745 arrested, mass intended for north Norway, 3 shot in reprisal." Turning to Page 69 of the English and Page 58 of the German the report continues for the section on Greece:

"In Athens 2 dynamite attacks on Wehrmacht motor vehicles. One attack on railroad track north of Athens. Culprits and hostages respectively were shot to death. A sharp warning was published.

In Crete several mayors installed by the occupation authorities were murdered. Accomplices and a number of hostages shot to death."

Next under Enclosure 25, dealing with the Attack on airport Iraklion (Crete):

"Air district Crete and Commandant of Fortress Crete reports (tactical time 1305): During the night of 14.6 despite additional security sabotage and air attack on airport Iraklion. 16 planes damaged. Commandant of Fortress Crete has let 50 hostages shot to death."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Next on Page 70 of the English and Page 59 of the German are the losses for the period 7 to 23 June 1942. And again the tables of losses invite the comparison between those suffered by the Germans and their allies with those suffered by the insurgents:

"Insurgents: 1748 shot to death in combat, 15 wounded, 713 captured or arrested (mass intended for Norway), 275 shot to death in reprisal."

"Total up to now of people shot to death in combat or in reprisal in Serbia and Croatia 37,477." Next, on Page 71 of the English and Page 60 of the German the notation for the 4th of July 1942, "General Field Marshall List: The Fuehrer has appointed General Field Marshall List to command an army group in Russia." Your Honors will recall that Field Marshall List became ill in October, 1941 and was replaced by General Kuntze, who was named as the Field Marshall's deputy, as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and Commander in Chief of the 12th Army. Returning now to Page 71 of the English and Page 60 of the German:

"The former Commander in Chief of the 12th Army remembers all soldiers subordinate to him in an order of the day and expresses to them his gratitude and appreciation. Simultaneously the Field Marshall remembers all members of the Army High Command in a staff order.

The General of Engineers Kuntze Deputy Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and Deputy Commander in Chief of the 12th Army was transferred to Fuhrerreserve OKH (peacetime Garrison) effective 3.7.42. General of the Engineers Kuntze will continue as Deputy Wehrmacht Commander and Deputy Commander in Chief of the 12th Army until the arrival of the new Wehrmacht Commander and Deputy Commander in Chief of the 12th Army, General Loehr."

Continuing with the Total situation Serbia/Bosnia:

"Losses of the Insurgents 24.6.-8.7.42; 4963 dead, 150 wounded, 6641 prisoners, 346 shot in reprisal.

It was General Loehr who was executed as a war criminal several months ago by the Yugoslavian Government. General Foertsch stays on as Chief of Staff to General Loehr, the new Commander in Chief of the 12th Army and Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Continuing on page 75 of the English and page 63 of the German, the "Report on the situation in the area of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast up to and including 9.8.42". General Loehr suggests to the OKW W. F. St. the following reorganization in the Channels of Command in South Greece:

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Finally, on page 78 of the English and page 65 of the German, Enclosure 40, dated 28 August 1942, Situation in the area of the 2nd Italian Army.

The Chief of General Staff General Foertsch reports to OKW, WFST and to the OKH on the situation in the area of the 2nd Italian Army during the period from 10 - 20.8.42

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This is signed "For the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (12th Army), The Chief of the General Staff." I would like to call Your Honors' attention to the size of this document from which we have just been reading excerpts. The portion from which we have been reading takes only from page 61 to page 78 in Your Honors' Document Books, and the size of the document which has been furnished for the Defense is this large (indicating by holding up book). Turning next to page 79 of the English and page 66 of the German Document Book is No. NOKW-977, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 212.

This document consists of situation reports of various subordinate units, to the 717th Infantry Division. "The 717 Infantry Division was subordinated to: from 1 Jan. 42 to 2 March 42 to the LXV Corps Command for special use from 3 March 42 to 31 Dec. 42 to the Commanding General and Commander in Chief in Serbia". Turning first to the Daily Report of the 19th of March 1942, "500 Jews after having been deloused were transported from Mitrovica to Semlin." Next, there follows a table for the 737th Infantry Regiment, listing the Day, Place of Commitment, Unit, and Purpose of Operation, performed by the Regiments. I will call Your Honors' attention to the activity of the Regiment on the 17th of March, when it was committed at Kragulevac, and the subordinate unit of the Regiment which was involved was the 11th Company, and its purpose of operation was a "Reprisal measure, 121 shot to death." Continuing with the report of the 737th Infantry Regiment on page 80 of the English and page 66 of the German, the prescribed form was not used in order to economize on paper, as neither we nor the enemy suffered any losses throughout the operations. Only in the reprisal measures carried out by the 3rd Battalion 737th Infantry Regiment in Kragujevac during the time from 24 February to 7 March eighty prisoners and within the period from 17 March to 23 March one hundred seventy one prisoners were shot to death.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: And then, there is a handwritten note.

24 Feb. to 23 March 201 prisoners shot to death.

I think we may skip now to page 82 of the English, page 67 of the German, the daily report of the 749th Infantry Regiment for the 6th of May 1942, "45 Communists were moved from Cacak to Germany (work camp)."

Next the report of the 717th Infantry Division dated 11 May 1942, subject: Combating of Insurgents in Southern Serbia, under paragraph 5, task: "Insurgents are to be annihilated when found. Leniency towards these elements is not in order."

Next at the bottom of page 82 of the English, 68 of the German, the daily report for the 24th of May 1942, "In order to prevent further acts of sabotage and raids 100 hostages shall be arrested from Section West, 50 hostages from Section Middle. At the suggestion of Mayor Uzice." Beg your pardon, that should continue as all one sentence.

Next on page 83 of the English and 68 of the German is an enclosure to the activity report of the 717th Infantry Division dated 15th of August 1942, with its subject "Enemy Situation." Report for the period from the 1st to the 15th of August, 1942. Under Enemy Situation, Section South:

A larger operation of the 749th Infantry Regiment from Biljanovac (12 kilometers north of Raska) and Rudnica (8 kilometers southeast of Raska) towards the east against the Kopaonik (Bloca) went on without contact with the enemy. The Bulgarian troops guarding the frontier to the West captured 10 men carrying arms. The men were shot by Bulgarians after having been interrogated. Among them were 3 Englishmen, one of whom is supposed to have been an officer. It is assumed that they were not parachutists but escaped prisoners of war.

The bad state of their clothes seems to confirm this.

Next on page 84 of the English - well, if Your Honors please, I think we may skip these intervening pages and continue on page 87 of the English and 70 of the German with the daily report of the 7th of October, 1942.

"Units of the 3rd Battalion, 737th Regiment search Mihajlevci (26 kilometers southeast of Ruma). Fortified positions found in a house, 1 case of bandages captured, house burned down, 4 partisans shot in flight, inhabitants of house arrested."

Next is the report of the 22nd of October, 1942: "The 1st Company of the 737th Infantry Regiment Captures 18 partisans in Mihaljevci (22 kilometers southeast of Ruma). On the way back they are fired on by 40 partisans at point 78 (1 kilometer south of Prhovo - 20 kilometers southeast of Ruma). 5 enemy dead, 18 prisoners shot to death; own losses; 3 wounded."

Next on page 89 of the English and 71 of the German is a fuller account by the 717th Infantry Division on the reprisal measures against the town which has been referred to here on two occasions earlier as Mihaljevci and Prhovo.

On 23 Oct. 42 the reprisal measure against Mihaljevci is to be carried out.

For this purpose 2 Companies transported on trucks equipped with heavy weapons and 4 armored cars will be employed.

Measures to be carried out:

1) The place to be encircled; the population to be assembled and interrogated concerning the whereabouts of those killed and the truck of the 717th Communications Company. Men from 16 years of age and over and single women are to be taken along for deportation. Cattle and other means of maintenance are to be carried away on vehicles belonging to the village. Mihaljevci is to be burned down.

2) Secondary operation against Prhovo; it is possible that the Communists who made the raid on 21 Oct. come from there. The population to be interrogated and 30 hostages to be arrested.

In both villages the reasons for the reprisal measure are to be made known and these reasons are also to be made known to the population of neighboring communities as a threat that the measures will be carried out again if similar incidents should reoccur.

3) The operation is to begin shortly before daybreak, so that the villages will be reached early in the morning, In approaching watch out for bell and other signals.

The order is signed: by Dr. Hinghofer, the Commander of the 717th Infantry Division Turning next to page 93 of the English, page 72 of the German, the entry for the 14th of November, 1942, concerning the reports of the 717th Infantry Division:

The 1st Company of the 737th Regiment arrests 14 suspects in Dob rinci (10 kilometers southeast of Ruma), 1 armed Communist, found hiding shot to death (the corpse was hanged up in public as a warning) 2 houses (Communist courier and leader of youth) burned down.

On the night of 12 Nov. a railroad security patrol composed of Volksdeutsche arrested an English officer who jumped out of a moving train near Babinci (8 kilometers southeast of Sid); given over to S.D.

Turning next to page 95 of the English, page 73 of the German, the daily report of the Division for the 18th of November, 1942, "Combat Troop, 1st Battalion, 737th Regiment contact with the enemy north of Popinci (17 kilometers southeast of Ruma); 2 Communists killed, 13 prisoners shot to death."

Turning next to page 97 of the English and 74 of the German, it is Document NOKW01443 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 213; with the introduction of this document and the two succeeding documents, we turn our attention to Greece for the period during which the defendant Kuntze was Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army and simultaneously Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and the defendant Foertsch was his Chief of Staff, first is a report of the Commander Saloniki Aegean dated 3 November 1941 to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. I ask Your Honors to note particularly the change which takes place during the period of time covered by this and the two succeeding documents.

This is 3 November 1941. The documents which will follow are of January 1942 and February 1942. The subject of the Commander Saloniki Aegean's report is the political situation, compared to preceding months, has become more acute. Especially around the middle of the month incidents of various types increased: an attack on a Wehrmacht vehicle on the road Saloniki-Serres, to which 2 members of the Navy fell victim; several cables destroyed; one serious act of sabotage at a railway workshop; local resistance to Greek gendarmes; and others. By energetic employment of fast patrols by the troops the centers of unrest were wiped out at the start. During this extreme severity was applied to achieve deterring effects. Of the total of 488 shootings carried out so far, 442 took place during the month covered in the report. 10 persons were hanged.

In addition 4 death sentences by courts martial were carried out. 3 villages were burned down, because they served as support to insurgents. In the course of the burning ammunition, and even in some Cases, explosives blew up in many houses. Of the 164 inmates of the Concentration Camp, 68 were sent there during the month reported on. The energetic treatment had its effect; at the end of the month an apparent easing of the situation is noted.

In order to strike at members of the bands personally who fled to the mountains, a proclamation was made to the population, asking everybody who has left his village to return within 10 days; the property of inhabitants who have not returned to their homes will be burned.

It is signed on page 99 of the English and page 75 of the German by von Krenzki, the Commander Saloniki Aegean.

Turning next to page 100 of the English and 76 of the German, Document NOKW-1392, it is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 214. This is another report of the Commander Saloniki Aegean to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, this time dated 6 January 1942 and being a monthly administration report for the month of December, 1941.

The political situation remained outwardly calm. A certain inner tension, resulting from the military set-backs in Russia and Africa and from the food situation, which is deteriorating, should not be overlooked. Several small attempts by means of explosives on the railway line and against the house of the leader of the former E.E.E. (National Socialist Party of Greece) are to be considered as individual acts. However, in order to show from the very beginning that if necessary the same severity would be used against disturbers of the quiet as was necessary in October, 12 Communists taken from a concentration camp were shot dead, according to martial law, in retaliation.

Communist propaganda has increased. It appears that they have succeeded in harnessing even intellectual circles for subversive Communist activities. According to the figures on 29 December, 1941, 370 arrestees were kept in concentration camps.

Signed the Commander Saloniki/Aegean, Major General von Krenzki.

Finally, on page 102 of the English, 77 of the German, Document NOKW-1398, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 215, this again is an activity report of the Commander Saloniki Aegean dated February 1942.

This, if your Honors please, completes the presentation in Document Book VIII.

THE PRESIDENT: At this point, we will discontinue, to resume at half-past one.

(The Tribunal recessed to 1330 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you. In view of the ruling of the Tribunal this morning with reference to Exhibits 4a for identification and 100a for identification, at this time I should like to give the Secretary General the exhibit which is Exhibit No. 071-PS and ask that it be marked Exhibit 4b in evidence. If Your Honors will recall, we have been using the letter "a" for identification purposes.

JUDGE BURKE: It will be admitted.

MR. DENNEY: And with Your Honors' permission I should like to refer to that portion of the exhibit which has to do with the defendant List. It is a letter of 23 April 1941 and it is directed to Reich Director (Reichsleiter) Bormann, at present at the Fuehrer's headquarters. It starts out, "Dear Party Member Bormann--" and I think we may turn to page 9 of the English which is the second numbered paragraph of the letter.

JUDGE BURKE: Is this Exhibit 4 to which you are referring?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, sir, Exhibit 4b in evidence. The interpreters and stenographers do not have the book. I would request them that they bring all copies of the books to court because from time to time this situation is going to arise again and obviously it is impossible to read excerpts if they have no copies and it is submitted that an out of hand translation is not what the record wants, particularly in these exhibits to which objections have been made and they are admitted.

JUDGE BURKE: You wish a suggestion from the Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, sir.

JUDGE BURKE: Very well, we can see that the suggestion is a good one.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Your Honor.

INTERPRETER: What book?

MR. DENNEY: Document Book 1.

JUDGE BURKE: Is your thought that they be procured now?

MR. DENNEY: I think we might pass it at the time.

JUDGE BURKE: Yes, and go to some current matter.

MR. DENNEY: I can come back to it at a later time when the books are available.

Turning now to Document Book 9, the prosecution offers as Exhibit 216 in evidence Document NOKW-858, which appears on page 1 of the English and German text. This is an affidavit executed on 12 March 1947 by the defendant Curt Ritter von Geitner.

JUDGE BURKE: Is this Exhibit No. 216?

MR. DENNEY: No. 216, if Your Honor pleases.

"Affidavit:

"I, Curt Ritter von Geitner, do swear, state and declare:

"I was born on 3.5.1885 at the Truppacher Hof near Zweibruecken, Rhenish Palatinate, as a son of the tenant farmer Ernst Geitner and his wife Maria nee Wolff. When father died in 1889, mother moved with us to the city of Zweibruecken. There I attended elementary school from 1890 to 1893. I then attended the Humanistic Gymnasium, where I graduated in July 1902.

"On 19 July 1902 I joined the Royal Bavarian 5th Field Artillery Regiment Landau (Palatinate). From 1 March 1903 to 31 January 1904 I attended the Military Academy in Munich. I was made a lieutenant on 12 March 1904. I attended the artillery school in Munich from 1 October 1906 to 15 August 1907. I became a 1st lieutenant on 12 March 1912. On 1 October 1913 I was detailed to the Military Academy in Munich.

"On 4 August 1914 I went to the front, as staff officer, with the mounted detachment of my regiment (Bavarian Cavalry Division) (France). In the winter of 1914/15 I became chief of the 1st Mounted Battery with which I went to the Russian theater of war in April 1915. I was promoted to captain on 15 August 1915. In September 1916 I was assigned to the General Staff of the XV Reserve Corps (West), and in September 1917 to the General Staff of the High Command of the Imperial German Army in the south (Galicia). This High Command was transferred to the West as High Command of the 19th Army in January 1918 (St. Avold). During World War I, I was decorated with: the Iron Cross, 1st and 2nd Class, the Bavarian Military Merit Order, and in May 1916 the Bavarian Military Max Josef Order, which carried with it the privilege of personal nobility.

"At the end of the war I left the army in order to join - by request of my childless cousin - the firm of Geitner and Co., a small factory producing ceramic dyes in Schneeberg/Erzgebirge (Saxony). For this position I prepared myself by studying chemistry at the Technical Institute in Munich in 1919 and 1920. Moving to Schneeberg I joined the firm as a partner on 1 January 1921. From September 1926 I was the manager.

"In 1936 without my doing anything about it I became major of the Reserve in the new Wehrmacht and on 8 September 1939 I was called up for war service, first as commander of an infantry replacement regiment in Zwickau (Saxony). On 1 March 1940, despite my express request I was detailed to the General Staff and transferred as IA officer to Wehrkreiskommando VIII in Breslau. Despite a renewed request to be used at the front I was transferred to the General Staff on 15 August 1940. On 25 October 1940 I became chief of the General Staff of the XXXXVth Corps Command in France. I was promoted to lieutenant colonel of the Reserve on 15 November 1940.

"In July 1941 I was ordered to the staff of Army Group Mitte (East), and on 31 January 1942 I was given a leave home and transferred to the Fuehrer Reserve. On 12 July 1942 I was ordered to Belgrade as chief of the Command Staff of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. From 1 July 1942 I was a colonel of the Reserve. In September 1943 I became chief of the Command Staff to the newly created Military Commander Southeast. On 1 April 1944 I was promoted to Generalmajor (brigadier general) of the Reserve and was relieved and transferred to the Fuehrer Reserve on 6 October 1944. On 31 December 1944 I was discharged from the General Staff and on 1 February 1945 I was appointed chief of the newly created office 'Operational Group Transportation Direction' (at Berlin, later Waltershausen near Gotha, Reichenhall, finally Zell am See, where I was taken prisoner on 9 May 1945)."During the 2nd World War I received the decorations:

the clasps for the Iron Cross, 1st and 2nd Class, and the War Merit Cross 2nd Class.

"In October 1933 I was transferred from the Stahlhelm as an honorary Fuehrer of an SA Standarte composed of members of the Stahlhelm. But after three and one-half months I was relieved because of political unreliability and no longer used as a Fuehrer. I became a Party member in the spring 1938.

"28 September 1909 I married Hedwig nee Kollmar. I have four sons, three of whom are living.

"I have read the statement above consisting of three pages in the German language and I declare that to the best of my knowledge and belief it is the entire truth. I have had the opportunity to make changes and corrections in the above statement. I have made this statement voluntarily without any promise of reward and I was neither threatened nor compelled to do so.

"Nuernberg, Germany, 12 March 1947.

However, it is on the German original.

JUDGE BURKE: It is on our copy.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor, it isn't on ours.

Certainly there were several stencils made in the process of running this document. The one I had does not contain the certification. It is on the German, as I stated, and I should like -- perhaps Your Honors would care to look at the original to see the photostatic copy of the defendant Geitner's signature. Your Honors have seen one on an order. It is the first signature appearing below that of Mr. Kreilisheim.

The next exhibit appears at page 4 of the English and page 4 of the German copies. It is NOKW 704 and is listed in the index as the service record of General Kurt von Geitner. It actually is the last three pages in the English copy. The first seven pages are excerpts from service records of other officers who served in the Southeast, and contain comments by some of the defendants here involved, which we submit are relevant.

We offer this as Prosecution Exhibit 217, in evidence.

Turning first, if your Honors will, to page 9 of the English, page 12 of the German copy. This is the American equivalent of a 201 file, which is the record which is kept -- Your Honors have seen others -- with reference to the earlier named defendants, List, Weichs and Kuntze. And the only entry, I think we need concern ourselves with on the first page, which is page 9 of the English and page 12 of the German, and the one of 5 July 1942, Chief of General Staff of Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, and following that entry of 26 August 1943, the same position, which is Chief of General Staff with Military Commander Southeast, and then at the top appears the names, Geitner, Curt, Ritter von; and turning over to page 13 of the German and page 10 of the English, we see General Bader rating Geitner for his performance up to the period 1 March 1943. Bader, Your Honors will recall, was the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, the one whom Geitner was serving as Chief of Staff during the period for which this command was made.

"Especially valuable individual, straightforward, open, energetic. Intelligent and comprehensive knowledge. National Socialist and General Staff officer of the old school, familiar with the present principles through private study and practice.

Great conscientious working force, with practical sense. Physically tough, possesses endurance. Adapted for commander. Especially impressive soldierly bearing. Above average. Adapted also for Chief of Staff of a regular corps."

And the defendant Foertsch had occasion to rate him at the same time:

"Foertsch, Chief of Staff, Army Group "E": Completely in agreement. Excellent Chief of Staff. Indispensable at the present time for Serbia."

And on the 31 August 1943 Felber, then the Military Commander Southeast rated him as follows:

"Has earned special merit for a year and a half as Chief of the General Staff of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, which has already led to repeated suggestions for preferential promotion. Now after the onslaught of work up till now and the size of the responsibility through the reorganization of the staff and the expansion of the authorities to the entire Southeast have been increased, a preferential promotion of the especially prudent and hard-working chief of the General Staff of the Military Commander, Southeast, appears justified. Deserves exceptional treatment as a person of above average formate and as an officer especially proven in two world wars. Adapted as commander."

And then Foertsch again, as Chief of Staff, and the Commander in Chief, Southeast:

"Suggestion is urgently endorsed. An excellent Chief of General Staff. Deserves priority promotion before the numerous other military and civilian offices."

And then on 1 March 1944, Felber, as Military Commander Southeast rated him again:

"Self-confident, clear personality. Succeeds, recognizes no difficulties. Excellent General Staff officer and Chief of the General Staff, who understands how to solve his often difficult missions with calm and a zest for work. Adapted for commander. Also adapted for Chief of Staff of a regular corps, but best utilized as before, most possibly under preferential promotion to Brigadier General."

And herewith follows the list of his promotions, which the Court already has before it.

Now, turning to some of the earlier pages, the personnel record of Major General Ringel, who was a general officer in the Gebirgstruppe or Mountain Troops. On 2 October 1944 the defendant Rendulic had occasion to rate him, page 5 of the English and page 6 of the German. At that time Rendulic was commander and Chief of the 20th Mountain Army:

"Energetic, personality. Outstanding leadership qualities. Enthusiastic National Socialist. No opportunity verification as Commanding General before the enemy."

On 7 August 1944, Field Marshal Frhr. v. Weichs, as Commander in Chief Southeast, had occasion to rate him, and he notes as the entry under Frhr. v. Weichs:

"Agreed: Ringel has gained an especially respected position by his capable handling of the Croatian offices in Zagreb. He stood the test also in operation in Hungary in a similar sense."

Then we come to Helge Aleb, who was a Lt. General of the Infantry--and this apparently seems to have been inserted only because the pages three and four come between pages two and five.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any other reason for its appearance in the document?

MR. DENNEY: Well, he was acting commander general of the 69th special purpose corps in June 1944. It will come up about him later. There are no comments about him to be offered now. And General GlaiseHorstenau, who was plenipotentiary commanding general in Croatia, this was in 1943 and 1944.

Felber, on 8 March 1944, as Military Commander Southeast, rated him:

"Extraordinarily educated and intellectual personality. Proven National Socialist. Despite his age, vigorous and full of fire. Excellently proven in his difficult position. Political talent. Expert on the Southeast. Above average."

And then on 1 March 1944, the defendant Field Marshal Frhr. von Weichs, at that time, Commander in Chief Southeast, rated him:

"Educated in many fields, proven National Socialist. Proved himself fully as Plenipotentiary General, thanks to his good gift of observation, his political experience, and talents, as well as through his good talent for negotiation. Intellectually highly endowed. Physically sound. His strength lies more in political than in military fields due to his earlier political activity. Recognized historian and writer. Good expert on the Balkan area. On the negative side. Long abstinence from troop service. Above average in a special field."

And that, if your Honors please, concludes exhibit 217.

We now turn to page 15 of the German and page 12 of the English document, NOKW 1335. Perhaps your Honors have not yet seen one of those 201 files, the one which has just been offered, the photostatic copies of which are there.

I might point out at this time that we are now moving up to the third period, which will cover from August 1942 to 1943, and the defendant Foertsch, as Chief of Staff for the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, and Geitner as First Chief of Staff for the Commanding General and Plenipotentiary in Serbia, and later as Chief of Staff to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. I am sorry -- later as Chief of Staff to Military Commander Southeast.

DR. LATERNSEER (Counsel for the defendant List): Your Honors, looking at the photostat copy of Document 704, I see that that part which was read has not been included in the exhibit. This concerns the opinion Field Marshal Weichs passed on certain military leaders in the Balkans. In other words, that which the prosecutor has read is not proved by the document because here the corresponding pages are missing.

MR. DENNEY: I am sorry, Your Honor, they seem to have been omitted. We will supply them. We have them. We can perhaps get them up this afternoon. It is just an oversight in the grouping together of the exhibits.

JUDGE BURKE: Will the suggestion of the prosecution satisfy the objection that you have made, Doctor?

DR. LATERNSEER: Yes, if it is brought up, otherwise, I would ask that it be omitted from the records.

MR. DENNEY: Sorry, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, shouldn't the file go with that?

MR. DENNEY: I thought I'd keep it here, then we'd only have to worry about getting four pages back, if we get it; and this has been marked already with the exhibit number. If that is all right with Your Honor?

THE PRESIDENT: All right, on the other hand that might be one way of getting it there and getting it back.

MR. DENNEY: He does work for us. I am sure he will come back. We are now -

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, I didn't mean to infer that he wouldn't bring them back.

MR. DENNEY: No, no, Your Honor, I quite understand. This is a very big place.

THE PRESIDENT: He might be lost.

MR. DENNEY: Yes sir.

Now, Exhibit 218, which is Document No. NOKW-1335. This is extracts from the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia for August 1942. None of the portions which we offer bear any signature. They are just extracts from the Diary. The first entry -

Could Major Hatfield have it for a moment, Dr. Laternser, to put the exhibit number on it, please?

Major Hatfield, I believe that is Exhibit Number 218.

The first entry of 12 August 1942, "In answer to a query by 1st Battalion/741st Regiment concerning retaliation measures in return for a racial German who had been murdered, Ia Section refers to order, to contact the Police President in Ruma. The insurgent village of Progor is to be bombed. Croatian Liaison Officer gives his consent.

"General Glaise-Horstenau saw the Chief (of staff): General Glaise announces the consent of the Croatian Government to evacuate Concentration Camp Semlin. Asks for increased deportation of Serbs to Germany as workers are urgently needed there. 25 August, Chief confers with adjutant IV b Section, Stabsarzt Winkler, about sanitary conditions in the Semlin Concentration Camp, where a daily death rate up to 100 prevails. The Croatian Government, in spite of promising to evacuate and feed the inmates, has not done anything yet. . .

"26 August 1942 - Dr. Puntigam, from the Office of the Plenipotentiary for Labor Employment at Zagreb, saw the Chief concerning recruitment of laborers for employment in the Reich . . .

"30 August 1942 - Order to Combat Group Borowski that, of those arrested, primarily strangers to the locality are to be regarded as suspects and are to be eliminated. . .

"31 August 1942 - SS Gruppenfuehrer Phelps reports to the Chief concerning intended employment of the SS Division."

Then at page 14 of the English and 18 of the German, Document NOKW-1127, is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 219 in evidence. This is an order of the Commanding General in Serbia with reference to the formation of Combat Group Borowski and the treatment of strangers and prisoners, which is mentioned in the Diary entry of the 30th of August 1942, in the previous exhibit.

It is dated 21 August 1942, Commanding General and Commander in Serbia:

"The center of unrest in Syrmia is the Fruska Gora. According to estimates the enemy is supposed to have more than about 2000 armed at his disposal, chiefly in the Eastern half. The regrouping of the divisions will be exploited to make a thrust against the enemy in the Fruska Gora. For this a Group Borowski will be formed.

"Units: Commander: Brigadier General Borowski with portions of the 704th Division and the assigned platoon of the 521st Signal Regiment."

And then on page 2 of the original, dropping down to paragraph 7, still on English page 14;

"The following guiding principles are given for the treatment of the population: In this area there are very many racial Germans as well as Serbs, besides a few Slovacs.

"According to available authoritative information the villages are often terrorized only by a few brutal partisans while the majority of the population continues its quiet work.

"Who is found bearing arms or giving aid is to be shot.

"In the mountain villages the male insurgent Serbian population between 17 and 50 years of age is to be arrested and to be brought to the Semlin reception camp, in as far as it is not needed to bring in the harvest." And it is typed, the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Deputy. And there is a signature of a Major General, and the distribution list.

Page 19 of the German and page 16 of the English -- no, excuse me. There is -- this is, the last page of this order continues on page 16 of the English and page 19 of the German. There it is receipted for, and there is a teletype below it again to the Combat Group Borowski from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, dated 30 August 1942.

"The Commander-in-Chief has directed that primarily those people amongst the arrested who do not belong to the locality are to be regarded as suspected partisans and are to be done away with. These people are to be regarded as alien-to-the-locality who have lately migrated there from another area without a plausible reason." The Commanding General and Commander in Serbia

JUDGE CARTER: Mr. Denny, am I correct in assuming that General Bader is in Serbia and General Loehr in the Southeast?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, sir, Bader is still in Belgrade. And General Loehr is now the Armed Forces Commander Southeast.

JUDGE CARTER: Might I inquire against what defendant this is offered?

MR. DENNEY: This is offered as against the defendant Geitner as chief of staff to Bader, who sent the communication, Your Honor.

If Your Honors, please, I now have the complete copy of prosecution's Exhibit 217 in evidence, which I hand to the assistant to the Secretary General to give to Dr. Laternser for his examination.

Then turning to page 17 of the English, 20 in the German, prosecution's Exhibit 220, Document No. NOKW-811. These are extracts of notes on conferences of the Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. The first note, file note for 17 August '42, refers to a: "Speech of Lieutenant Colonel, Staff Corps, Pfafferoort, concerning the political situation: In India, great rush of the people to the Indian Communist Party, which in the National Congress forms only a small part of the Indian people. 380 million souls live in India, of which 280 million are Indians, the rest Mohammedans, 221 languages! The situation and circumstances in India are obscure. In America, celebration of the anniversary of the meeting of Roosevelt and Churchill for the new proclamations of the basis of the war aims. France: For 150,000 Frenchmen, who will work in Germany a similar number of Prisoners of war were released. Changing of Turkish am bassadors in Berlin, Turkey has emphasized her neutrality again.

Churchill has arrived in Russia.

"Speech of the Chief of Staff concerning the situation in our own territory:

"Croatia: The enemy has suffered considerable losses again in the last three weeks: 2,868 dead, 182 wounded, 4,200 arrested, 677 shot as reprisal measures. Germans: 24 dead, 32 wounded, 5 missing. Croats: 80 dead, 137 wounded, 13 missing."

Then on page 23 of the German -- I believe in the German text the entire document is given whereas we only have excerpts here -- page 18 of the English is 23 of the German and it is the paragraph which bears the number "4" to the left and it is under, "Chief of Staff Conference on 7 December 42.

"Major Hammer (Ic/Intelligence Officer) weekly Political report:

"Speech of Churchill concerning the American campaign, increased propaganda campaign against the Italians in order to separate the people and state from one another there. According to English information 1,500,000 houses damaged by our Luftwaffe in England up to now and 550,000 houses were destroyed. All French colonial possessions are now all on the side of the Allies. The Duce made public the Italian war losses up to now with great openness, and exercised Italy's willingness to confirm the battle to final victory. Hungarian Prime Minister Kalay emphasized in speech before parliament the willingness of Hungary to hold out until the final victory likewise. In Sofia, a German Bulgarian economic treaty was settled. Increased pressure of the Allied on Turkey. A Turkish voice of the press says: As long as the European Mediterranean coast is not in the hands of the Allies, they will not rule the Mediterranean. Egypt: The Egyptian government has placed the Egyptian Army at the disposal of the Allies. The efforts at world domination of the United States of America show themselves further: American troop transports to Iran, erection of U.S. consul in Morocco, dominations of South America, etc. The Chief of Staff agreed with this. It is no question at all, that socialist thoughts in this war are at stake which have received a big push by the Allied powers throughout this war, of which one has still really no idea today."

And then under the next paragraph which I believe continues on page 26 of the German under the heading "Croatia" -- it is in the paragraph numbered "5" and it toward the end and is before the paragraph which starts, "Greece" -- it should be at the bottom of page 26 in the German.

Do you have it, Dr. Laternser? It commences with the word "After discussing these principal events."

Do you have it?

I am sorry to take this time, your Honors, but the complete document is in the German text.

"After discussing these principal events of the new conduct of the war, the Chief of Serbia turned to the following: The combating of the Mihailovic movement has had now successes. The disarmament of the Chetnik units is continuing. About 10,000 Chetniks fought on our side, of which half have gone into the woods. A quarter, around 4,000 men, were disarmed. The rest, about 4,000 men still holds with us. The whole action of disobedience called forth by Mihailovic amounted to nothing. The threat of retaliation measures alone had a frightening effect. Shootings even of those suspected of sabotage show that our methods are right."

"Greece:" -- and then this is on page 27 of the German copy, Dr. Laternser, 27 of the German under "Greece." It begins on 26 -- I am sorry -- I have it marked here as 27. Excuse me.

Under "Greece": A reconnaissance service with the greatest mobility must be used on the railway line (Draisenen). Lightening patrols on the railway lines. Also, hostages must be brought in from the localities in the proximity of the railway line."

And then turning to page 29 in the German, still on page 19 of the English, I note that this is all in the late period in 1943 after the period with which we are concerned so we will omit it at this time and perhaps will have occasion to refer back to it later.

Then turning to page 21 of the English and -- the next document is NOKW-1148--I have marked here "page 33 of the German." Is that right, Dr. Laternser? Page 33 of the German. Which is offered as Exhibit 221.

These are situation reports on the Armed Forces Commander Southeast to OKH and OKW for various dates in 1942, the first one for 25 August 1942; German losses: 2 dead, 1 wounded, none missing: Croats: 77 dead, and it should be 108 wounded -- I believe that figure appears improperly in the German -- and 362 missing; insurgents losses: 1,031 dead, 273 wounded, 2, 169 captured and arrested, 212 shot to death in reprisal.

"The total number of insurgents shot to death in combat and as reprisal measures up to 24 August 1942, 49,724"; and here again appears the: "Signed in Draft Lohr," "Colonel General" typed underneath, and then "Certified true copy" by "Lieutenant Rossler." His signature is signed as "1st Lieutenant" and your Honors are familiar with his certifications of prior documents in a similar manner.

Then on page 22 in the English and in the German, NOKW-1254, which is prosecution's Exhibit 222 in evidence. This is a directive of the Commanding General in Serbia to some of his troop units, specifically three divisions, all Infantry, 714th, 717th and 718th Infantry Division, 9 September" with a stamp and was sent on 4 September; subject: "Security of Croatia":

"The divisions are to consider as their most important task the security of the railroad line Belgrade - Zagreb - Reich Border and Belgrade - Vinkovci Osijek. The Croatian Government has given assurance that the communists are fully responsible for guarding the railroad tracks situated within their district and that they are compelled to surrender hostages to the Croatian police.

"The Order Commanding General Ia No. 4495/42 secret of 19 August 1942 remains authoritative for the method of combat.

"The Divisions can dispose over the Administrative Sub-area and District Headquarters in the areas of the Division only in the event of an alarm for defense against enemy attacks.

"The Order Commanding General and Commander in Serbia No. 2070/42 secret of 25 March 42 is accordingly valid for the treatment of prisoners.

"According to the express opinion of the Fuehrer any negotiations with the enemy (Communists, Bands, D.M. followers)" -- that means Draga Mihailovic -- "is prohibited.

"Maps showing the borders of the final Division Areas in the Croatian State Territory will be subsequently."

And it is signed: "Bader, Lieutenant General of Artillery."

Then turning to page 23, or page 24, page 37 in the English, NOKW1134, which becomes Document -- or Exhibit -- 223 in evidence, if your Honors would look at the order signed by General Bader, to the right of "General Artillery" appears the initial of the defendant Geitner, his Chief of Staff at that time. That is Exhibit 222.

Turning to Exhibit 223 in evidence, this is a report signed by the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, and forwarded to the OKW with copies to OKH, and various others that appear in the heading. Again the signature is in draft, and it is certified to by Lt. Roessler. It is dated 11 September, 1942.

The situation in Greece, on page 3, and on the first page bears the stamp of 12th Army for 16 September. Page 38 in the German, still on page 24 in the English:

"Strike in Athens ended. Cause: Hunger and inflation exploited by Communist and Nationalist propaganda. Strike discontinued by rigorous handling of the situation."

"III. Losses in the Entire Area (25 Aug. - 8 Sept. 1942):

a) Own losses: Dead Wounded Missing Germans 51 76 4 Croats 49 67 7 Serbian State Guard 22 --

b) Insurgents: 2,601 dead 121 wounded 3,325 captured and arrested 37 shot as reprisals Total number of insurgents shot in combat or as reprisals up to 8 September 1942:

52,362 Economical Situation.

Considerable harvest losses in Serbia. Nutrition in Greece continues to be insufficient, especially since grain deliveries from Serbia are not possible this year. The inflation continues. Prices doubled within 4 Days" Signed in draft, by General Loehr". Signature is typewritten.

Certification to the left is signed by Lt. Roessler.

Turning to page 39 of the German, 26 of the English, Document NOKW 1241 is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 224 in evidence. This is an extract from the war diary of an SS division. The "Prinz-Eugen" or 7th SS. It is handwritten and the extracts are taken from the diary, which was--this portion of it--was on the 19 March 1942 to the 31 May 1943. Out to the left, as your Honors will see, this diary was typed not typed, but rather made in long hand. There appear the dates for '42, which we are using.

"The SS-Mountain Artillery Regiment "Prinz-Eugen", and then it gives the subordination.

PRESIDENT JUDGE BURKE: From what page are you reading?

MR. DENNEY: From page 26, if your Honor pleases.

I do not think we need to read these headings. Your Honors have all seen it. The first entry for 14 October, "The patrol of the combat transport in the camp of Maejureije was fired on from the direction of the house of the local clergyman on 10 October 1942 at 2100 hours. 3 were wounded. The clergyman with two sons was arrested and all three were shot dead while trying to escape."

Then turning to page 28 of the English, 41 of the German, this is document C 81, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 225, this if your Honors pleases, is a photostatic copy without any distribution list on it. However, at a later time we can show that this Hitler order, - it is the Commando Order of 18 October 1942, was passed on to units in this area. We have diary entries later which we submit conclusively connect this order with the defendants, or some of them, Perhaps your Honors would care to look at that. That has a little different style than some of the other orders that we have seen, and at the end is a photostat of the former Supreme Commander of the German Armed Forces' signature.

It is dated 18 October 1942. Top secret. Only by Officer.

The Fuehrer a Supreme Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces I think this order should be read completely. It is only two pages, if your Honors please:

The Fuehrer and Supreme Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces.

I have been impelled to issue a strict order for the annihilation of enemy sabotage groups and to put the disobedience of it under severe penalty. I believe it necessary to inform the competent commanders in chief and unit commanders of the reasons for this order.

As it has never been done before, in this war a method was developed to disrupt the lines of communications in the rear to intimidate those parts of the population who are working for Germany, as well as to destruct industrial installations, vital for the war in the territories occupied by us.

In the East, this manner of fighting a so-called partisan war, already last winter had led to a considerable decrease of our fighting power, has cost the lives of numerous German soldiers, railroaders, workers of the organization Todt, the labor service (Arbeitsdienst), and has extremely decreased the performance of transportation for the maintenance of the fighting ability of the troops, it has even disrupted the latter for days. The successful continuation of this type of warfare or even its intensification may possible lead to a serious crisis at one or the other sector of the front. Many measures against this cruel as well as teacherous sabotage activity fail simply because the German officer and his soldiers have no conception of the extent of the danger they face, and thus they individually do not act against these enemy groups as much as it is necessary to help the most forward front and thereby the entire war effort.

Therefore, it was partially necessary to establish special units in the East which mastered this danger, or to transfer these missions to special SS units. Only where the fight against this partisannuisance was begun and carried out with ruthless brutality, successes were not missing, and consequently they eased the situation for the fighting front.

Therefore, the war in the entire Eastern territory against the partisans is a fight for the complete annihilation of one or the other part.

As soon as this fact has become common knowledge of a unit, it will be able to handle these happenings normally within a short time, if not, their commitment will not be successful. It therefore becomes useless.

Although under different names, England and America have decided on a similar type of warfare. The Russian tries mostly to bring sabotage groups behind our lines by land, and only exceptionally do they use aerial transport to infiltrate men and supply food. England and America, however, carry out this warfare by sabotage units until landed mostly from submarines or inflatable boats, or by parachute agents. Fundamentally, however, this type of warfare is not different at all from Russian partisan activity.

For the mission of these units is:

- 1) To build up a general espionage service with the aid of willing natives.
- 2) To organize terrorist groups and to supply them with the necessary weapons and explosives.
- 3) To undertake such sabotage actions as are not only able to continually disrupt our communications by the- destruction of traffic installations, but also, if necessary, to make troop movements impossible altogether and to neutralize the means of communications.

Finally, attacks are to be attempted by these units against establishments essential to the war, by blowing up key plants according to a scientifically explored program, thus paralysing practically entire industries.

The consequences of this activity are extremely serious. I do not know whether every commander and officer is aware of the fact that the destruction of, for instance, a single power station can cost many thousands of tons of aluminium for the air corps and thus the loss of production of numerous planes which are missing at the front for combat, and thus lead to severe damage at home and bloody losses among the fighting soldiers.

But this type of warfare is entirely without danger for the enemy. For since he lands his sabotage units in uniform, but on the other hand gives them civilian clothing as well, they can appear as needed either as soldiers or as civilians. While they themselves have the mission to liquidate ruthlessly German soldiers or even inhabitants who hinder them, they are not in danger of suffering really serious losses in their activities because of worse comes to worst and they are caught, they can give up immediately and thus they believe they will fall theoretically under the Geneva Convention. There is no doubt, however, that this is the worst kind of an abuse of the Geneva convention, even more so since some of these elements are criminals who have been liberated from their jails and can rehabilitate themselves by such actions.

England and America will therefore be able to find volunteers for this type of warfare as long as it can rightly be said to them that there is no danger of life for them. If worse comes to worst, they only need to complete their attacks against people, traffic installations or plants successfully, and then, caught by the enemy, they can simply surrender.

If the German war effort is not to suffer severe damages by such actions, then it must be made clear to the enemy, that every sabotage unit will be exterminated without exception to the last man. That means, the chance to get away alive is zero. It can under no conditions be permitted that a demolition-, sabotage- or terrorist unit simply surrenders and is taken prisoner to be treated according to the rules of the Geneva convention; consequently they are to be exterminated in every case without exception.

The report which shall appear about this in the armed forces bulletin, will contain very briefly and laconically, that a sabotage terrorist or demolition unit has been caught and exterminated to the last men.

I therefore expect, that the commanders of the armies subordinated to you, as well as the individual unit commanders do not only understand the necessity of this action, but also that they do their utmost toward the execution of this order. Officers and NC)'s who fail because of some weakness are to be reported without consideration or, according to the conditions – if danger is imminent – are to be held strictly responsible. The homefront as well as the fighting soldier on the front have a right to expect that behind them, the basis for their food as well as the supply of important weapons and ammunition be safeguard.

These are the reasons for the order issued by me.

Should it be advisable at times to spare one or two men at first for intelligence reasons, then they are to be shot immediately after interrogation.

signed Adolf Hitler And this is the section which is under Count 3 of the indictment, at letter "h", which says, "During a period of time after 18 October 1942 all of the defendants herein, except the defendant List, issued, executed, and distributed to troops under their command and jurisdiction an order to execute in battle, or within 24 hours after capture, all members of Allied 'commando' and 'military mission' units, whether or not such persons were regularly attached to, and wore the recognized uniform of, duly authorized members of the established military forces of enemy belligerents."

Turning then to page 30 of the English and page 46 of the German is Document No. NOKW-1106, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 226 in evidence. This is an order of the 710th Infantry Division, which is signed for the Division Commander by one of the General Staff officers of the division, who is a major, but the signature is not decipherable. It appears in the book that this Document No. 1106 is signed "Geitner", and there was a Geitner who was a major in the General Staff Corps in this division, but that is not the defendant who is in this box. And in order that there may be no doubt about it, we submit at this time that this Geitner was not Staff officer in the 710th Infantry Division because there are one or two other places where this same thing crops up. This is dated 22 October 1942, subject "Prisoners". There is a heading, the "710th Infantry Division".

"The enemy communications service is of very great significance to the leadership. Next to one's own task the enemy news is most important for an estimate of the situation. The basis for piecing together the enemy situation is formed especially by statements of prisoners. These are of value only if they are immediately forwarded to the division. The same applies to captured papers.

"Therefore the following regulations are issued concerning the seizure and the treatment of prisoners:

"Seizure:

"1. All persons of both sexes who participated directly in combat, with or without arms.

"2. All persons of both sexes from the ranks of the adversary (train, medical personnel, supplies, etc.).

"3. Civilians of both sexes in the operation area, who are encountered at work in the fields or at home, if it is proven that they were in the service of the adversary or supported enemy operations.

"4. Invalids, sick persons, pregnant women, and persons over 60 years of age (only in case they come under paragraph 1).

"B. Treatment:

"1. After a short interrogation all persons listed under A/1 and A/4 are to be shot to death by the troop.

"2. Persons listed under A/2 and A/3 are to be marched off as prisoners.

"3. Enemy deserters presenting themselves with or without arms are to be led off as prisoners.

"4. All prisoners are to be interrogated briefly and are to be transferred, listed, and with a short remark, to the military prison of the Alexanderkaserne in Sarajevo.

"5. Important results of interrogations of prisoners concerning formations, strength, armament, and intentions are immediately to be reported to the division by telephone; if necessary individual persons are to be brought to the division immediately.

"6. Thieves, slanderers, political suspects, or other civilians who commit offenses against public order are to be delivered to the nearest Croatian police or gendarmerie post.

"C. Captured Papers:

"Captured papers in original form are to be forwarded to the division by the quickest means.

"For the Divisional Command "1st General Staff Officer "(Signature) "Major in the General Staff" And then at the left appears the note "Distribution in Draft". And then turning to page 32 in the English and page 47 in the German is Document No. NOKW-1536, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 227 in evidence.

These are a series of telegrams which are reports from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH, and all of them are on telegram blanks and teletype that has come out and affixed with mucilage. There are no signed copies in them. They do, however, bear certain stamps which appear on the translations. The first one, "North of the Save: continued looting and local attacks. Ninety insurgents shot to death." And this is dated 30 July 1942 and it is from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to OKH General Staff in Berlin, and at this time on 30.7.42 the defendant Kuntze was still the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. Then, for the 31st of July 1942, Daily Report, still the defendant Kuntze. Your Honors will recall that General Loehr did not take over until the 9th of August. "Total losses during mopping-up Una-Sana Bend from 23 to 30 July inclusive. Germans: 6 dead, 11 wounded. Croats: 11 dead, 24 wounded. Enemy: 450 dead, 1946 temporarily arrested of which 269 shot to death so far." And then for 1 August, the defendant Kuntze is still the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, in a report to OKH, "Total number of enemy losses in the Una-Sana Bend has increased to 666 dead and 2640 temporarily arrested. Eighty-three additional prisoners shot to death so far." And then for the 2nd of August, still the defendant Kuntze, "West Bosnia - an additional 30 persons who were temporarily arrested were shot to death." For the 3rd of August, still the defendant Kuntze, "North of Save, south of the Fruska Gora, attack on passenger train halted in a siding. Two Germans dead, 40 Croats surrendered. The band succeeded in escaping before the arrival of the German detachment. Reprisal measures instituted." And then on a later page, a British intelligence officer, who apparently had parachuted down, was killed by anti-Communists. And then for 5 August, still the defendant Kuntze, "An additional 8 temporarily arrested persons shot to death." And for 8 August, still the defendant Kuntze, "On 8.8 German (Croatian) combat group started concentric mopping-up of Samarica mountains.

Fifty-three arrested and shot to death." And then on the 11th of August - at this time Loehr is in; however, we still have Foertsch as the Chief of Staff. "Samrica operation according to plan. Twentysix partisans shot to death." For the 13th of August, going back to the "temporarily arrested" incident, "Only minor contact with the enemy in Samarica. Fifty-three temporarily arrested, 10 shot to death." And then for the 17th of August, "Syrmia: Ninety shot to death in reprisal, 65 temporarily arrested." For the 29th of August, "Increased appearance of smaller bands in area south of Vlasenica 55 kilometers northeast Sava and around Rogatica 46 east of Sarajevo. Two bridges and a railroad station set afire. Counter-measures instituted." And then, further down in that same message, "In Samarica 262 temporarily arrested of which 20 were shot to death on the spot. Continued insurgent activity along the demarcation line south and southeast of Zagreb." Report for the 5th of September--

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, we will pause here and take the usual recess until 3:15.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, continuing with Prosecution Exhibit 227 in evidence, at page 44 in the English and 58 in the German text, still on the daily reports from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH, the High Command of the Army, the report for 5 September 1942:

"In Nish, non-commissioned police officer shot to death. 50 reprisal shootings to death intended."

Then on page 45, the report for the 9 of September:

"In addition to Communist incitement and hunger there is also a probable intention to paralyze Africa supplies. For the German area application of severest measures has been ordered. Arrests and seizures of hostages have been carried out."

Report for the 15 of September:

"Southeast of Ruma attack on community. 25 hostages arrested."

Report of the 21st:

"North of the Save: Continued Communist activity in the area southwest of Cirovitica. Attacks, 2 interruptions of railroad branch line, several hostages seized."

On the 28 of September:

"German Croatian operation (6 German Battalions) intended against Jayace."

The 30th: "1 village burned down as reprisal measure".

And the last report for the 23 of October 1942:

"In the Banat 50 Communists shot to death in reprisal for murdered Volksdeutsche policeman."

Then the figure at the top, 23/10 1945, also appears on the original.

The interpreters advise me that they have document Book I and I should like to apologize to them for failing to mention the document book in which Exhibit 4 appeared and assure the court it was my fault that they didn't have it here. This exhibit now is Exhibit 4b in accordance with the ruling by the Tribunal and it is in Document Book I, English and German, and the English page is 8 and the German page is 6. As has been said before; it is a letter of 23 April 1941 to Reichsleiter Bormann, who was at that time at Hitler Headquarters and there is no signature appearing on the letter but it has been established that the letter was written by Alfred Rosenberg, about whom we have commented before.

Paragraph 2 beginning on Page 9:

"There is a great misunderstanding with respect to what is involved in the question of the south-east and the employment of my administrative staff: art objects have always been treated as a second line problem. In the first line an order of the chief of the high command of the Armed Forces (OKW) on the instance of the Fuehrer has gone twice to the occupied territories of the west to place all scientific and archive materials of world philosophy opponents of the regime at my disposal for research purposes. That has resulted also in close cooperation on the widest scale with the Security Service (SD) and the military commanders, and I believe that I have secured priceless research pieces for the Reich direction of the Nazi party and its higher institutes of learning. I wish to inform you especially that as many as 7000 crates have been brought to Germany up to the present moment. In the course of these confiscations we have found according to the nature of the case other valuable cultural objects including very valuable works of art. And in order that these things should not be dispersed and that they be secured for the Fuehrer, the Chief of the high command of the armed forces (OKW) on my request and on the instance of the Fuehrer has ordered that these art objects should be catalogued by me. I ask you that if necessary it should be established for the benefit of the Reich Marshal that my working staff has executed these tasks in a correct fashion and in an objective blameless form. Art objects generally do not come into question as far as the Balkans are concerned although there are Free-Masonry archives and Jewish libraries and other relevant research objects. In my opinion only the same attitude as that prevailing in occupied French territory can be taken and what I requested, was really only an expansion of an already existing regulation. For with General Field Marshal List, and likewise with the General

Quartermaster of the Army the work has already been begun and my men are already at work with these circles in Belgrade.

And on command of General Field Marshal List as well as of his deputy general, these men will also be employed in closest relationship with Security Service (SD) in Salonika. As you know, Salonika is one of the largest Jewish centers.

"I should like to remark in this connection that this affair has already been executed on our side with Security Service (SD) in the most loyal fashion. One of our collaborators who also belongs to the Security Service (SD), had his duty-obligation countermanded by the Security Service, whereupon it was impressed upon him that the Security Service cooperates with my administrative staff in a most loyal fashion. The things are thus clarified in a practical fashion and the work has taken its course. What I asked was only a confirmation that the already pronounced decisions for the West should also have validity under the given circumstances for other occupied or to be occupied areas. Finally the representative of the Fuehrer has expressly ordered that the appropriate party members in this question should be placed so as not to permit this unique opportunity for inquiry in the Jewish and Masonic lodge question to pass away. The agreement in this matter is thus general.

"I trust that this letter has cleared up the resulting misunderstanding.

"Heil Hitler!"

Now with reference to the Exhibit 100a for identification, I request that the court direct that this Exhibit be marked 100b for Boy, in evidence, and I hand it to the Secretary General. The Exhibit was distributed the other day in Court, if your Honors recall, and I would request permission of the court to withdraw the exhibit and have the copies photostated and photostatic copies substituted in order that the papers which are now in the exhibit may be returned to their source in the National Commission for the Investigation of War Crimes in Yugoslavia.

JUDGE BURKE: There is no objection on the part of the Tribunal to that procedure.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor. I believe your Honors have the pages which begin with 76a and I believe run up to 76p, Document Book III, and for the record I should like to state for Dr. Laternser, that the lists of people who have been recited in the document will be furnished to him as well as the untranslated material prior to one week from now, and I hope within the next day or so.

It is a little difficult to find someone who can translate from Yugoslavian to German but we do have one such person here and for the Tribunal I have spoken with Dr. Laternser about this outside of Court.

JUDGE BURKE: Is that understanding agreeable to you, Dr. Laternser? Dr. Laternser has indicated that it is. You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor. The first report.....

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honors, I agree to this, after my objection has been rejected. But I shall maintain my objection.

MR. DENNEY: The Prosecution did not mean to imply that Dr. Laternser was withdrawing his objection.

JUDGE BURKE: Now did we intend that it should be implied.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honors. There are other excerpts of this report which will be offered at a later time. Therefore, the explanation for the figures, 87, and so forth, appearing at the top of the pages, are a compilation of a number of reports which were given page numbers again for purposes of translation. And there are short excerpts, as is indicated on these, which have not been translated, and those are the ones which will be translated and given to counsel in addition to the lists which do not appear here, which are lists of names.

This report is from the National Commission for the Investigation of Crimes committed by the occupation forces and their accomplices, this is Investigation No. 9278. State Commission Serbia for the Investigation of Crimes committed by the Occupation Forces and their accomplices.

REPORT CONCERNING ESTABLISHED CRIMESDuring the bitter battles between the People's Liberation Army and the German Occupation Forces in the neighborhood of Kraljevo in October 1941, the German authorities in Kraljevo carried out mass shootings of citizens during the period of 15 to 24 October.

Daily, they brought in several hundred of citizens from Kraljevo and the surrounding districts for execution by shooting.

On the basis of statements of eye witnesses as well as of some individuals who saved themselves from being shot to death, the following method was employed in this mass crime:

During the battles in the environment of Kraljevo, the German authorities in Kraljevo started to drive the population out of their houses, streets and shops and to lock them up in a camp situated in the yard of the railroad car factory. Patrols of the German Wehrmacht went from house to house driving out all men starting with children of 14 up to old men of 60 and above. All the citizens with their hands above their heads were led through the city in rather small groups.

Then they were formed into larger groups and driven into the camp of the railroad carriage factory. Before they entered the camp, they were counted, identified and registered in books by German soldiers. Then they were locked up together with the rest of the camp inmates. The Germans selected groups, each of 100 citizens, and took them from the camp. They were put in front of a machine gun on a site previously selected in front of open graves and shot to death. After the fire of the machine gun had mown this group of citizens, the German soldiers walked among the dead citizens, and anyone shewing signs of life, or whom they did not believe to be dead, was finally killed by a shot from a machine pistol or from a pistol. Having liquidated one group, the Germans, in the same way, brought up the second group and so on. In this way, the executions were carried out from 15 to 24 October 1941. Up until now, it was not possible to establish exactly how many citizens were shot to death in Kraljevo on this occasion since the families of all victims did not make any reports and taking into consideration that at that time many refugees from different areas of Yugoslavia, as Bosnia, Herzegovina, Lika, Macedonia and other areas, were living in Kraljevo. The majority of these refugees were working as laborers and employees at the railroad carriage factory and at the airplane plant in Kraljevo. Their families – insofar as they had any – could not find out anything about their death. However, meanwhile, many witnesses stated in their reports that according to their estimate between 4,000 and 5,000 persons were shot to death in Kraljevo on this occasion.

In addition to inhabitants whom the Germans drove out of their houses in Kraljevo during that time and whom they led to the place of execution many residents arrested by the Germans previously in different places and locked up as hostages in the camp of the railroad car factory were shot to death on this occasion.

Furthermore, at that time, a great number of inhabitants were shot to death who had just been brought in three transports to the railroad station of Kraljevo.

These were refugees from Kosovo and other Southern areas. The Germans had driven them together with other inhabitants, led them to the place of execution and shot them to death with the other citizens.

These shootings to death were directed and participated in by the penal expedition composed of elements of the 717 German Division under the Command of General Horsterbach whose 749th Regiment at that time executed reprisal measures in Kraljevo and neighborhood against the civilian population because of the battles of the People's Liberation Army which at that time had taken on considerable dimensions in that area.

It is signed by the President of the Serbian Commission, and attested on the 24th January 1946, and then follows a certification that this copy corresponds to the original, and it also bears the certificate of the delegate of the Yugoslavian Government, who is currently accredited to the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, United States, in Nurnberg, and his certificate is dated Nurnberg 29 May 1947.

Then the next report starts at page, -- numbered page 91. It is 76-E, - E for easy. Again the National Commission for the Investigation of Crimes committed by the Occupation Forces Republic of Yugoslavia, National Commission for the Investigation of Crimes committed by the Occupation Forces and their Accomplices.

On 19 Oct. 1941 as well as on several days preceding, German airplanes dropped leaflets ordering the population in the area of the community of Groznice, Mala, Pcelica, Erdeca, Vijiste, Adzine-Livade and Tresnjevik of the community of Groznice, were in the vicinity of their houses. But many of them, because it was Sunday and the Feast of St. Thomas were in the village church when the penal expedition of Major Koenig, already known for his criminal activity in Serbia, arrived in two groups on 19 Oct. 1941, before the village of Groznice from the direction of Kragujevac. One of the groups came in an extended formation, the second one on trucks along the main road because this made easier and more rapid the blocking off of the village. Then the German soldiers armed to the teeth, speedily showed their "Knighthood" and their "Combat Spirit" toward the peaceful and helpless peasants of this village.

Several groups of German soldiers spread through the village and picked up all male inhabitants wherever they met them, at home, on the street, or in church.

But those who attempted to save themselves by flight were fired on by all sorts of weapons and were killed. Those who were captured were machine gunned in groups of 30 to 50 men without any explanation. Those who still showed signs of life were finally killed with revolvers. Thus, they drove the shepherd Lubisa Manica who was only 14 years old, away from his herd and shot him to death. The Priest Nikola Leksica who was reading mass in the crowded Church, and all male inhabitants were driven out of the church and shot to death. The entire male population from the village of Groznice was killed. A considerable number of families remained without men.

Up until now it has been established that 206 men were collected and shot to death by the above method, mainly from the community of Groznice but including some travelers from Kragujevac and other villages who had been captured by the Germans on the road Kragujevac - Groznice. 196 of these persons were shot to death, 10 persons though heavily wounded remained alive. The Germans believed, these had been killed with machine gun fire and they did not give them the death blow with the revolver.

The Germans found the guilt of the peasants of the community of Groznice in the destruction of the bridge near the village of Groznice. The perpetrators were unknown and this obviously represented only a fictitious justification.

It was signed 19th November 1943 by the President of the Commission, Dr. Dusan Nedelkovic, and is attested by Secretary Ivan Strasek, and it is certified as being a true copy, bears the stamp, and it also has the certification of Dragoljub V. Katic, the delegate of the Government of the Federated People's Republic of Yugoslavia, with the Office of Chief of Counsel in Nurnberg.

The next report National Commission for the Investigation of Crimes committed by the Occupation Forces and their Accomplices, Investigation No. 1814/II, Democratic Federated Yugoslavian National Commission for the Investigation of Crimes Committed by the Occupation Forces and their Accomplices:

REPORT "For the purpose of intimidation and for the preservation of obedience in occupied Serbia, the authorities of the German Occupying Power have applied a series of drastic measures.

Among the crimes which in their brutality surpass all the other innumerable crimes, the mass blood bath in Kragujevac on 21 October 1931 takes first place.

"The crime was carried out within the framework of an extensive plan which included nearly all of Serbia. In addition to the Germans, our treacherous helpers of the Germans, in particular members of the voluntary LJOTIC Organization participated in the execution of this criminal plan.

.....

"The crime took place in the following manner:

"About 10 days before the execution of the crime a battalion of German troops came to Kragujevac as reinforcement of the German Garrison. On 15 or 16 October the 5th Volunteer Battalion under the command of Bosko Pavlovic arrived in Kragujevac. Some days before, the Ambassador Extraordinary of the Serbian Government BOSKO PABLOVIC arrived in Kragujevac.

Page 794

He summoned a conference of reputable citizens and of former politicians.

He was confronted with universally passive attitude concerning the fight against partisans.

"Since the action at BOSKO PAVOLOVIC was a failure, it was decided to carry out the plan since sufficient fighting forces had been assembled. Previous to that, mass shootings to death were carried out and the villages of MOJNIC - MECKOVAC and GROSNICA near Kragujevo were set on fire.

"At an earlier date, on 1st October, 1941, Baron von BISCHOF HAUSEN, the district headquarters commandant, had insisted to the principals and administrators of the Kragujevac schools that pupils continue to attend school. Since the pupils continued to stay away from school, von Bischofshausen - on 17 October 1941 - again called all principals together. He ordered them to have all pupils without exception attend school. In case of non-compliance, students as well as their parents would be considered saboteurs and shot to death as such. Such threats caused the pupils to attend school regularly. On 20 Oct. on the day of the general raid, the schools were fully attended.

"On 18 October 1941, German soldiers, on the basis of a special register arrested all male Jews and all those whom they considered to be Communists. These were locked up in the barracks of the former motor vehicle detachment on the STANOVLJA Field. They were kept here, almost without food until 20 October 1941 and all of them were shot to death at 6 P.M. on that date. Their bodies were found in the barracks where they had been kept and in the yard. They were dispersed in all directions just as they attempted to escape death in their panic. Here, about 60 people were killed including some women. The Germans took the property of the persons killed. On 20 October 1941 the general roundup of the men in Kragujevac started. The Germans blocked all exits of the city. But the peasants from the surrounding villages coming to Kragujevac on business were permitted to enter in order that they might be captured later on, and shot to death. Germans and volunteers participated in the raid.

It frequently happened that the volunteers captured exactly those which the Germans had happened to pass by, without pity and without exception.

"The Germans invaded High Schools and Institutes and during the instruction periods they took out professors and pupils from the 5th class upwards. They made them line up in threes and took them away. All workers employed on the LEPENICA River works were rounded up. This included many children. These too were taken along. All public buildings were surrounded and those who were inside were rounded up and taken away. The LJOTICEVCI under the immediate command of MARISAV PETROVIC, reorganized the community administration. STRAHINJA JANJIC was appointed mayor. All other civil servants were arrested and turned over to the Germans. Priests and sextons were arrested in the church disregarding the necessary respect for the Church. Finally STOSIC, the Police Chief turned all prisoners, political and criminal, over to the Germans. A great number of persons were arrested in their houses and taken away under threats or false pretenses. The Germans reiterated constantly that they were only being taken to exchange their identification papers. German culture made it impossible for them to carry out shooting to death. Thus they were successful in taking people passively and without resistance. The LJOTICEVCI first took the prisoners to their headquarters in the school of King Peter II. Then they were turned over to the Germans. All prisoners were taken to the yard of the barracks of the 3rd Artillery Regiment. There they were searched and everything such as tobacco, lighter pocket knives, watches, fountain pens and similar things, was taken away from them. From those who came from the jail, more than 50 were separated in the barracks yard. On the evening of the same day they were taken to the STANOVLJAN Field where mass executions were carried out by machine guns. Only a few were able, by sheer accident, to save themselves. Some were successful in escaping, some were only wounded during the shooting and the Germans did not notice it and did not finally kill them.

"The other prisoners were locked up in a cannon shed. They passed a horrible night, pressed together like sardines, without food and water. Certain persons, because of the personal intervention by MARISAV PETROVIC, had been released previously. On the next day, during the course of the executions, he separated those persons who were followers of LJOTIC and for whom he guaranteed.

"At 7 o'clock in the morning of the next day, 21 October 1941, the mass executions started. The Germans took one group after another from the barracks and proceeded with the separations. A small number, mainly specialists and persons of foreign nationality, were separated. The others, guarded by Germans, fully armed, were taken in groups of from 60 to 120 to the nearby brook. They were ordered to line up into rows. Then they were killed by fire from heavy machine guns. After that they inspected the people who had been shot. Whoever showed the slightest sign of life was finished off with revolver or rifle shots. They covered them with corn stalks and then went off singing to get a new group. That is the way it went on the entire morning until 2 o'clock. After everything was finished, they paraded through the city.

During the executions Major Koenig himself appeared, to take a look at the progress of the shooting.

"About 400 of the prisoners who had not been shot to death, were separated and detained as hostages. The others were released after Marisav PETROVIC, in the presence of a German officer gave them a lecture on the magnanimity of the great German Reich and requested them to shout "Heil Hitler".

Only a small number were able to save themselves from being shot to death, either by escaping or by receiving only accidental wounds. In order to stop further attempts of escape, the Germans tied the last groups together with rope or even barbed wire.

"Until now, 31 mass graves and many individual graves have been found. Names of 2324 people who were shot to death have also been established.

"Among the persons shot to death were many young men below 18 and children too. There were persons over 70 years of age too. All professions were represented including intellectuals, workers, and peasants. There were teachers, students and ministers, business men, tradesmen, civil servants, judges, workers and apprentices. On the basis of reports received, 8 ministers, 16 teachers, 15 professors, 59 students, and 17 apprentices were shot to death.

The following number of children below 18 years of age has been established as killed up to now: 5 children 12 years old, 3 children - 13 years old, 4 children - 14 years, 9 children 15 years old, 20 children 16 years old, 37 children - 17 years old and in addition 66 adolescents 18 years of age. This makes a total of 144. 11 persons over 70 years of age were also shot to death.

"There were incidents where they dragged sick people out of their houses and threw them on trucks to take them to be executed. Invalids also and people without feet were taken away. Some volunteers under the command of I.R. ZILA ZDRAVROVECA made it their task to round up all gypsies. There were 4 old men among the gypsies who were totally paralyzed. They were thrown like sacks on to the trucks by the volunteers. During the executions, all sorts of disgusting incidents happened. For instance: MILOSAV M. RADOJKOVIC was taken to the place of execution with his father. During the sorting out, the father was separated from the group who was to be executed. When the father saw that his son was to be executed, he suggested to a German officer to take his son's place to be shot to death. The German immediately made the exchange.

"Another incident: The Germans separated 4 children from the group which was to be shot to death. MARISAV PETROVIC asked the Germans to release two more from the group which was to be shot to death. He offered 5 others in exchange. When the Germans agreed, MARISAV PETROVIC gave them 5 young men. Two of them had been released earlier. One of them was able to save himself in such a way that his father was shot instead.

However the second one, son of BOSKO PETLJANSKI was shot to death. After the executions were finished, the Germans and volunteers robbed the corpses as they were being buried. A lot of the loot has appeared in the city.

"In addition to persons from KRAGUJEVAC and neighborhood a group of people from GORNJI MILANOVAC was brought in. This group, too, was shot to death on 21 Oct. After the crime was finished, the Germans did not permit the relatives to view the bodies. Anyone who tried to view the bodies was fired on. A special group of people who had received orders not to leave any traces of the place of internment was hired to bury the bodies.

"In order to hide any official traces which might show up these horrible crimes, the German authorities prohibited a public mass for their souls. Only priests were permitted to be present. By order of the German authorities the ecclesiastic death certificates were not permitted to indicate "shooting to death" as cause of death.

"The German authorities went even further. They gave certificates to the families which stated that the persons shot to death allegedly lost their lives during the fighting in KRAGUJEVAC on 21 October 1941."

Belgrade, 15 August 1945, signed by the President of the Commission, certified, and certified as a true copy, and also bears the certificate of Dragoljub V. Katic, delegate of the Government of the Peoples' Federated Republic of Yugoslavia to OCC, dated Nurnberg 2 June 1947.

We shall have occasion to present other parts of this report at a later time; and at this time, also as part of Exhibit 100-A for identification -- or 100-B, in evidence, we have a series of photographs which come from three sources. The first are from photographs captured from German troops; the second are from photographs captured from German troops and delivered to the -- and delivered by Allied troops to the custody of the Commission in Yugoslavia; and the third are photographs confiscated from the German Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters in Belgrade. There is also one poster contained here. These photographs bear the same certification as the copy of the report which has been offered and are from the archives of the National Commission for the Investigation of War Crimes in Yugoslavia.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor ...

JUDGE BURKE: Just a moment, please, the Tribunal doesn't know whether you are making the offer of this group of photographs as part of the exhibit 100b.

MR. DENNEY: The switch, your Honor -- it is not going into the record.

JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal desires to know whether you are offering the photographs as a portion of Exhibit 100b.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, your Honor, the photographs were not referred the other time. This is all part of the report that has been brought here; for the convenience of the Tribunal it would be better to give it another number. I should be glad to do whatever the Tribunal wishes.

JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, there is a rule here that all material for evidence which is offered to the Court must be submitted to the defense 24 hours in advance. Since this has not been done in this case, I want for this reason alone to object to the submission of the photographs. Before the photographs are submitted as evidence, I must have had the opportunity to have a look at them in order to make eventual objections. For this reason and this thought I ask that this evidence is not accepted. I propose that the question whether they are accepted or not be decided on after 24 hours, after I, as defense counsel, have had an opportunity to look at them.

JUDGE BURKE: Do you have any comments upon that subject of the 24-hour matter, Mr. Denney?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor pleases, that is a rule that has been honored more in the breach than in the observance but I certainly cannot contend that Dr. Laternser does not have a right to look at them before they are offered.

He certainly does and if he hasn't seen them, the reason they were not passed out before is because of the fact that your Honors excluded the exhibit at the time of the first offer and it was felt unnecessary to take up the time of the court in distributing the photographs.

Perhaps, if Dr. Laternser could look at the photographs overnight then in the morning he would be in a position to make any objections, if any - what objections, if any, he has to their offer.

JUDGE BURKE: It is the ruling of the Tribunal that he should be given the opportunity to examine them within the period indicated -- namely, 24 hours.

MR. DENNEY: Excuse me, your Honors.

I am now handing Dr. Laternser the original exhibits which we propose to offer, the pictures with the Yugoslav text and the seal of the National Commission for the Investigation of War Crimes on the back of each picture, save two or three where it has been necessary to photostat the front side and the back side to bring them to Nurnberg, also an English translation of what there appears.

I am delivering the duplicate original set of photostate with the Jugoslave photostated and a German translation of the matter which appears in the Yugoslav language on the back, on the reverse side of each picture.

JUDGE BURKE: Then it is mutually agreed that the period of 24 hours shall be allowed for such examination as Dr. Laternser desires to make in the photographs?

MR. DENNEY: Dr. Laternser has informed me he can examine them this evening, your Honors, and will have no objections to my again making the offer in the morning at the opening of court.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honors, that speaks for myself. I cannot make this statement for my colleagues. Maybe my colleagues want to have 24 hours. I personally am agreed that this can be offered tomorrow morning.

MR. DENNEY: Well, there are two sets of the pictures and I see five other counsel for defendants here. Perhaps, they would be willing to look at the original or the copy between now and tomorrow morning so that we can again make the offer at that time. I submit that there is -

JUDGE BURKE: In any event, if there is not complete agreement with respect to the period of time between now and the morning, it may be considered that the full 24 hours will be allowed. There is no such great speed involved.

MR. DENNEY: Yes, your Honor. I am perfectly willing.

DR. HINDEMITH (Assistant of Dr. Rauschenbach, counsel for defendant Foertsch): At this time, your Honors, I would like to point out to the Tribunal that this rule, to allow 24 hours before presentation of a document before the Court has never been abided by. Document Book No. IX which has been offered this morning -- or, rather, this afternoon -- was only given to the defense yesterday afternoon. That makes it very difficult for the defense because there is no possibility -- it makes it very difficult for the defense to talk with the defendant.

JUDGE BURKE: To which subject is the counsel addressing the Tribunal and what objection?

DR. HINDEMITH: I would like to ask the Tribunal to tell the prosecution quite generally that it should abide by this rule of procedure.

Document Book IX has only been given to us yesterday afternoon. It is already being presented not in the afternoon session. The 24 hours term has not been kept in this case.

JUDGE BURKE: No objection has been raised by counsel up to this time.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, we have furnished the defense counsel with many more documents than we have already used and I believe that everything that has been in Document Book IX has been in the Defense Information Center for quite some time and, while the actual book itself was not furnished until yesterday, I dare say that almost all -- by that I mean more the 95% of the material -- was available to them long before yesterday.

JUDGE BURKE: We will proceed.

MR. DENNEY: At this time we would appreciate it if we could serve to the counsel for the defense, and also give copies to your Honors some additional parts of this report so your Honors perhaps may have an opportunity to glance at it in case there are objections made. There are some several pages here, 20 or 30 -- if that's agreeable with the Court.

JUDGE BURKE: That may be considered as agreed on by the Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: We will also hand to counsel for the defense eight more sets of the pictures. Now they have a complete set of the pictures for every one of defense counsel in addition to the original set, and all of the nine sets have the text in German and in Jugoslavian -- and we also deliver three sets for the court.

JUDGE BURKE: We will reserve the examination until after the conclusion of such objections as may be made.

MR. DENNEY: The only reason I handed them to your Honors is because if objections are made you will certainly have to look at them then, it would seem and I am just -- I am not trying to show the Court something indirectly that I may be prohibited from doing directly, but it is submitted that --

JUDGE BURKE: Well, subject to the ruling that the Tribunal made with respect to the whole document, I think it is perfectly safe.

You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honors.

MR. DENNEY: I now hand the defense counsel nine copies in German of an interrogation conducted in the Military Prison, Belgrade, on 24 March, 1947, of one George Kiessel, and one copy in German and English for each of the reporters and the interpreters, and again, three copies for the Court. This is still part of Exhibit 100B.

The Court has now to received some additional pages starting out, "To the Population of Valjevo and Neighborhood". This is again part of Exhibit 100B, and I hand to the counsel for the defense 9 copies in German, and an English and a German copy for the reporters and interpreters, and three copies for the court, of the further sections of the report. This part is headed. "Novi list (Neues Blatt), 5 August 1941.

There are 9 copies for defense counsel, in German, copies in English and German for the interpreters and translators, and for Major Hatfield, of the exhibits, with an English translation of each.

These are not for the record. We are giving Major Hatfield a copy of the photographs, which he is now receiving.

Now may the record show that the defense counsel have received all of the material which comprises the official report which has been submitted here of the National Commission for the Investigation of War Crimes of Yugoslavia.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you so concede Dr. Laternser? For the record it is so conceded.

MR. DENNEY: This is all that we offer at this time.

There are additional excerpts which may be offered later.

THE PRESIDENT: Subject to the same ruling.

MR. DENNEY: Oh, yes, your Honor.

Turning again to Document Book 9, page 51 of the English and 65 of the German, we come to NOKW-1722 which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 228, in evidence: These are reports, orders, and memoranda concerning a conference with the Commanding General Serbia, dated 2 October 1942, and is taken from the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

"Conference of Chief's of Staff Salonika General for Special Missions von Unruh/OKW will call on garrisons and offices to check on garrison installations, table of organizations etc."

And then the note:

"(a person of a highly suspicious nature)."

"Chief of OKW has issued an order that certain punishable deeds of the non-German population particularly in the southeast area are not punished severely enough. In order to achieve an effective deterrent effect, these punishable deeds in particular which are directed against the Wehrmacht are to be punished more severely, the punishment to be executed ruthlessly. Aiding and abetting the enemy and unauthorized possession of arms is to be paid for with death.

A reasonable composition of the Courts must be attended to. The ideas of the judges are much to clement for the fourth year of the war. In cases of suspected espionage most severe measures must be employed."

Page 807

"Our Divisions frequently seem to have a too pro-Serbian attitude. The SS will offer example." And then enclosure 29 of the War Diary for 10 October 1942.

Subject: Precautionary measures against enemy attacks.

The treacherous attack on an officer with lethal effect compels greatest precaution toward the cunning enemy. The carelessness observed in different places is out of place even in times of complete quiet! The movement of individual soldiers outside of the billets and at night offers to the insurgents an easy opportunity for attacks.

Because the insurgents fear German reprisal measures one must count on the possibility that - contrary to previous custom - the German soldiers who have become victims of the attack will be hidden away.

For the protection of the German Wehrmacht I order therefore that the established reprisal measures for dead and wounded may also be entended in the future in accordance with the situation to missing German soldiers pursuant to an application.

This, if Your Honors please, is from Baden, the Lt. General of Artillery, Commanding General and Plenipotentiary, in Serbia, and it is signed by him.

Then on 10 October 1942, again the distribution of this next order appears on the following page, and went through the information of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, who at that time, of course, was Loehr, who had just moved in. This is:

"Treatment of captured insurgents in Serbia and States:

- 1.) A person encountered carrying arms or assisting insurgents during combat actions is to be hanged or to be shot dead as a matter of principle. Leaders, political commissars and couriers are to be interrogated first of all if possible in collusion with SD.
- 2.) Insurgents taken outside of combat actions, insurgents who have surrendered giving up their arms, persons arrested under suspicion of belonging to the insurgent movement, of having aided and abetted the insurgents or in any other manner cooperated with the insurgents are in general to be turned over to the Commander of the Security Police.

This does not infringe upon the authority of the Commander of Administrative Sub Area Headquarters to instigate and execute court-martial procedures."

Then dropping down to 4, on page 67 of the German text, "4.) Persons arrested who do not come within the province of a court martial trial will be treated as follows:

Persons whose guilt has not been proved will be released or sent to a prisoner of war camp. Convicted persons will be made available for the Plenipotentiary General for Economics to procure voluntary work for him or they will be deported for compulsory labor by the Commander of the Security Police in either case in accordance with the degree of their guilt.

And there again there is an illegible initial, but one order is signed by Bader.

Then again on the 10 October 1942 he makes a report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast with reference to an early communication which is cited there of 3085, 7 October 1942, Point "A", which was referred to in the earlier communication. Bader states:

"Has been settled by agreement with the Senior SS and Police leader in accordance with the enclosed order. Even in accordance with the ruling up to now only those persons can be sent to prisoner of war camp who have not been convicted but whose evacuation from Serbia seems to be required as a precautionary measure."

Again referring to the basic communication.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: We will pause at this point and adjourn the Tribunal's hearing until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please.

(Tribunal recessed until 0930 hours 25 July, 1947)

Official Transcript of Military Tribunal V, Case VII in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List, et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 25 July 1947, 0930, Justice Wennerstrum, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Marshal, you will ascertain if all the defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honors, all the Defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed on behalf of the prosecution.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, yesterday the court gave permission for the withdrawal of Exhibit No. 100B, so much of it as had been received in evidence, and that the photostatic copies be made, and I now hand the photostatic copies of the original Yugoslav reports back to the Secretary General.

I have discussed, informally, with some of the defense counsel, the question of proceeding with the balance of Exhibit 100B at this time, and it appears that one of the counsel who objected is not here at this time, so perhaps it would be best to pass it for the time, in view of the fact that he is not here to indicate whether or not he has had an opportunity to examine them.

At the close of Court yesterday, we were on Exhibit 228, which is NOKW 1722, and I should again like to direct the Court's attention to the fact that this is the period August '42 to August '43, during which time the defendant Geither was chief of staff to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, and the defendant Foertsch was chief of staff to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, who at the time, as the Court will recall, starting with 9 August 1942, was General Loehr.

Then there is one part of the present exhibit which has already been read to which I should like to direct the Court's attention. It was the last page, 53 of the English, and 66 of the German, on the treatment of captured insurgents in Serbia, dated 10 October 1942.

It refers at paragraph 1 to "political commissars," on the 3rd line of that paragraph. I neglected to point that out in passing, yesterday.

Turning to page 68 of the German, and 54 of the English, still on Exhibit 228, the report for 10 October 1942, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Point (A), this is in reply, - we were in the middle of this yesterday, -- this is in reply to a communication from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia:

"Point A) has been settled by agreement with the Senior SS and Police leader in accordance with the enclosed letter. Even in accordance with the ruling up to now only those persons can be sent to prisoner of war camp who have not been convicted but whose evacuation from Serbia seems to be required as a precautionary measure."

DR. LATERNER: I dislike to interrupt here, but I have just been told that the transmission is not in order, in the case of the defendants.

MR. DENNEY: The defendants cannot hear, nothing is coming through on their earphones, your Honors.

THE PRESIDENT: Let the record indicate that the defendants can now all hear, and we will proceed.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honors.

"Point A) has been settled by agreement with the Senior SS and police leader in accordance with the enclosed order. Even in accordance with the ruling up to now, only those persons can be sent to prisoner of war camp who have not been convicted but whose evacuation from Serbia seems to be required as a precautionary measure."

Point B of the original communication is being referred to.

"Point B) has been clarified so that a limited number of Security Police vehicles will receive special identification papers 'Secret Service Trip' which will free them from the control of Wehrmacht patrols."

"For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia", signed "von Geitner". The signature is typed and is signed.

Then the date 12 October 1942 with reference to a teletype of the previous day, a communication to the district headquarters from the Commander in Serbia, Military Commander Serbia:

"As reprisal measure for the racial German policeman shot in Samosch on 10 October 42 the hanging of 50 Communists is hereby approved."

On page 69 of the German and 56 of the English, report for 15 October 1942, with reference to activities of the SS Division Prinz-Eugen to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia;

"After the destruction of Xriva Reka the armed and resisting male population were killed.

Mayor and municipal civil servants near Trstenik convicted as insurgents. Houses burned down in reprisal.

Then for the 22nd of October, -- it says "27" on the mimeographed copy, it should be the "22", at the bottom of page 69 in the German, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, again from the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, 717th Division, 1st Company of the 700, -Could I see the original again please?

MR. DENNEY: "The 1st Company of the 737th Infantry Battalion encountered enemy group in Mhaljevci, 5 enemy dead, 18 prisoners shot to death, own losses: 8 wounded." And the Daily Report of the 23rd to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, "In reprisal for the racial German policemen murdered on 10 October, 50 Communist executed in public." And this is a reference back to the report of the 12th of October for the 10th of October, which is contained in Exhibit No. 228. That is Page 69 of the German and Page 55 of the English. And then, "1st Royall Bulgarian Occupation Corps: 6 Communists shot to death." Page 71 of the German and Page 58 of the English, report for the 24th October, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Croatia: 714th Infantry Division: During mopping up operations, 4 enemy dead, 7 suspects captured, 16 rifles, 2 machine guns and equipment captured. Shelters for insurgents burned down. During reconnaissance of II Battalion, 741st Infantry Regiment contact with the enemy, 2 dead, 2 prisoners shot, 1 Ustascha dead, 1 wounded." And then for the 25th, still to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and still from the Commanding General Commander in Serbia, on Page 71 of the German and Page 59 of the English, "Own patrol fired on by band northwest of Cacak, 13 inhabitants arrested, farm burned down. Influential Serb murdered near Cacak. Of 64 arrested (Daily Report 22 October) 4 convicted persons shot to death." And for the 26th--I believe in the German copy that is an error; it should be for the 26th of October, the next one. "Croatia: 714th Infantry Division: Kozara operation concluded. Additional 19 enemy dead, 6 prisoners (will be shot after interrogation)" Report on the same date for the "Prinz Eugen" Division, "Leading unreliable Cetnik shot dead for unauthorized possession of arms." And then, the last page of the document, Page 72 in the German and Page 60 in the English, the report for the 29 of October, "SS Division "Prinz Eugen": During operation Eizer Voda, 3 insurgents shot in public by the 2nd Mountain Jaeger Regiment." Turning then to Page 73 of the German and Page 61 of the English is Document No. NOKW-1156. This is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No.

229 in evidence. This is a report for the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, for whom the Defendant Geitner was Chief of Staff, for 30 October 1942, with reference to the title, "The Communist Insurrection Movement in the area of former Yugoslavia." Paragraph 3, "Leadership:" "The supreme leader of the Communists of Yugoslavia is "Tito". His origin is probably Croatian of Slovenian. He is alleged to have participated in the Spanish Civil War. Up to now, no details could be ascertained regarding his person. Headquarters are situated in Mliniste in the Klekovac Mountains (23 Southwest of Kljuc). "Tito" considers economic co-operation of the partisans as equal partners with Germany as absolutely possible even in the Yugoslav ares."

Strength: Reports available estimate the total number of Communist insurgents to be 28,000 to 30,000 men, 60% of which are armed. Only a minor part can be considered convinced Communists. The masses composed of farmers and workers who were mislead by propaganda and /or fled into the woods for fear of reprisal and elimination measures.

Active participation of women and girls as nurses and as couriers is common practice in all units.

Organization: The basic unit of the armed Communist groups is the peoples' liberation partisan unit which corresponds approximately to a Battalion (frequently also to a regiment) and which is organized in companies, platoons and groups.

When the movement grew, it became necessary to organize brigades which were assembled according to ancestral origin as Serbian, Bosnian and Herzegowinian brigades. A further step was the organization of the Proletarian Brigades which were to accentuate symbolically the part played by the workers in combat. The assault brigades represented a specialization which was due to the acceptance of selected fighters and choice equipment.

In the 1st unit of the staff for the Bosnian Krajina even a Youth Battalion has been found to exist.

"A political commissar --"

MR. DENNEY: And again the reference is called to the Court's attention "-----is assigned the leader in all of the units as far as the company.

Rank insignia: All are worn on the upper part of the left sleeve. Commandant of the zone of operation: like his staff officers an open chevron with the point on top and the red star below. Battalion Commander: 1 red star; 1 vertical stripe below. Company Commander: 3 red stars. Platoon Leader: 2 red stars. Group Leader: 1 red star. Unit Political Commissar: 1 red star, hammer and sickle in gold superimposed 2 vertical stripes below. Battalion Political Commissar: 1 red star, hammer and sickle in gold superimposed, 1 vertical stripe below. Company Political Commisar: 1 red star, hammer and sickle in gold superimposed.

All wear the Soviet star in their hat.

Method of Combat: In Combat, the insurgents apply the principles of guerrilla warfare as they were made available to the troops as early as Fall 1941.

MR. DENNEY: And then there's a reference to a Command Staff Section communication of that day.

However, as can logically be expected, the developments of the movement has brought along a change in combat method. One can differentiate three variations.

- a. The ambush of small bands with the purpose of acquiring weapons ammunitions and equipment to equip new members.
- b. The open attack of medium size bands with the purpose of annihilating the legal armed forces having for a secondary aim, the acquisition of loot.
- c. The conquest of strategically important villages in such numbers as to make possible a total occupation of the territory desires.

If a large size hand is scattered, the sub-leaders return to the methods of guerrilla warfare.

The attack on morally or materially inferior enemies is considered customary. The bands evade superior forces because signal communications supply them in time with the information necessary for an estimate of the situation. If a band is surrounded, it scatters according to orders and attempts individually under the protection of the night to leave the encircled area. During the day, all means of camouflage are used like digging in, covering with foliage, climbing up trees, etc. The treatment of prisoners differs. Frequently it is based on propaganda reasons and is carried out in such a manner that the prisoners are not shot to death but are released after having been robbed of everything. If the leadership considers it practical, exchange is also suggested. Officers were shot to death in almost every case.

And the attention of the Court is called to the part of rank insignia of Battalion Company political Commissars and the similar but not identical language in the Commissar order which appears at page 51 of Document Book 1 at -and that is NOKW-1076.

Then turning to page 75 of the German and 65 of the English, NOKW-1394 is offered as 230 in evidence, This is again a report with reference to insignia and it is an enclosure to the 718th Infantry Division report from the staff of the Division Commander and there are also annexed to the original, which I should like to hand up for the Court to examine, some small diagrams of the distinguishing insignia of the units which were fighting with the partisans under the direction of Tito. It is dated 1 November 1942.

"Information about the enemy No. 9. At the beginning of October 1942 a group of Communists 500 to 600 men in strength was reported south of Travnik in the area Bistrotstovo, and on the Vranica Plain. Another group moved on 8 October 1942 from Kupros towards the east to the Vranica Plain, These two groups form a brigade under the leadership of Steva Kovacevic, a former farmer from Montenegro whose staff is at a point 2107 Locike in the Vranica Plain."

Up to now the 3 battalions were determined. The III Battalion, it gives its area, strength 200 men, armament unknown.

The IV Battalion with a staff, gives its area, strength 180 men, armament 2 heavy machine guns, 3 light machine guns of Italian origin; leader: Milovan Saranovic; Political Commissar: Vrbica, alias "Migo".

The V Battalion, gives its area, consisting of indigenous peasants, men only, strength 200 men; armament; 5 light machine guns and rifles (of Yugoslave origin).

"The whole Brigade is not uniformly clothed. In addition to civilian clothes German, Croatian, Italian and Serbian uniforms are worn. All however wear a red star on the cap. The medical service is very bad. The food supplies are good, but there is no salt and no tobacco. Ammunition is very scarce.

The IV and V Battalions were alerted on 51 October 1942 as they presumed an operation of the German Wehrmacht and retreated allegedly in direction Bugojno on 1 November 1942.

The V Battalion has with it as a prisoner Corporal Buerger of the 3rd Company of the 668th Regiment. The negotiations of exchange offered by the Communists on 31 October 1942 remained without success on account of the alerting of the Brigade."

For the Commander of the Division The 1st Officer of the General Staff" And the Geitner who is mentioned here is the one we have referred to before and not the defendant Geitner.

Page 76 of the German and 67 of the English, Document NOKW-1412, is offered as prosecution's exhibit 231. These are some extracts from the War Diary of the Commanding General in Serbia with reference to the exchange of hostages with the SD, together with an order for shooting mayors who show a passive disposition.

Page 77 of the German and 68 of the English under date of 26 November, the Army Chief of Staff -

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, you now refer to page 68?

MR. DENNEY: Page 68 of the English and 77 of the German.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, will you repeat what it is, please.

MR. DENNEY: 68 of the English.

THE PRESIDENT: And what document number?

MR. DENNEY: 77 of the German, Document NOKW-1412. The first page is just the cover page of the War Diary.

THE PRESIDENT: My document book -

MR. DENNEY: Sir, we can get your pages for your Honor. Are some pages omitted?

THE PRESIDENT: Apparently so. I am using the Secretary General's book this time.

MR. DENNEY: I am sorry it has happened, your Honor. We will certainly endeavor to correct it at the recess.

Under date of 26 November 1942, the Army Chief of Staff -- that is a reference to the defendant Foertsch -- requests by telephone the shooting to death of all mayors remaining passive.

"Teletype order to 610th Administrative Sub-area Headquarters to exchange in agreement with the SD the 60 hostages (for kidnapping of a German police sergeant) which have been seized unauthorized by the Commanding Officer of the II. Battalion of the 5th Police Regiment primarily for persons those who are suspected of Communism.

The Commanding General agrees to the successive shooting to death of a certain number of these hostages if the kidnapped police sergeant does not return within a definite time limit. The population is to be informed.

And the Commanding General who is here referred to is –this is an extract from the War Diary of the Military Commander and Commander in Serbia.

Teletype order to 704th Infantry Division and to Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 599 to shoot to death 25 hostages in reprisal for Organization Todt man who was found murdered near Zagubica and to proclaim it publicly."

These again are typewritten excerpts, and on page 69 of the English and 78 of the German, NOKW –

JUDGE CARTER: In this previous document you say that the Army Chief of Staff refers to Foertsch?

MR. DENNEY: Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, yes, your Honor.

JUDGE CARTER: I thought this was the diary of the Commanding General in Serbia.

MR. DENNEY: It is the diary, sir, but it says the Army Chief of Staff and the only army that is down in that area at that time was the 12th Army, if Your Honor will recall, which at this time was the commanded by the not present General Loehr to whom the defendant Foertsch was Chief of Staff? It had been carried over from first List, then Kuntze, and now Loehr.

NOKW-1250, which is at page 69 of the English and page 78 of the German is an order of the Armed Forces Commander Southeast for increased partisan combat during the winter of 1942--1943. This is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 252 and on this we would pass it up to your Honors and direct your attention to the initial of the defendant Foertsch which appears to the right of the signed copy of the order. It is dated 7 December 1942, top secret, 20 copies of which this is the 20th copy, under Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and the distribution appears on the third page, page 71 of your Honors' book.

1). In the expansion of the overall position in the Mediterranean area the enemy powers will attempt more than they have done so far, to create the prerequisites for establishing a new front in Europe through inciting and supporting the insurgent movements in the Balkans. All the more we must do everything to prevent this. Every band formation which proclaims itself must be nipped in the bud, every enemy group which appears must be destroyed and exterminated immediately ...

2). This knowledge, as well as the fact that additional units from Germany cannot be expected, forces us to an intensified conduct of warfare. This must adjust itself to an increased extent to the fighting methods of our enemies and must surpass them. Surprise, speed, stratagem and ambushes, raids, espionage, effective reprisal measures (hostages), pursuit detachments, and shock troops led by hold commanders, etc., are the means for this. The concept "Winter Quarters" does not exist. But above all we must also become mobile with regard to the concentration of larger formations. The mission can only be accomplished if the largest possible concentration of fighting strength, in keeping with the appropriate traffic and terrain situation, can be attained within the shortest time possible, and relentlessly overcoming all terrain and weather difficulties. Any formation of the enemy that shows itself can be effectively destroyed and it must be accomplished under any circumstances. A shifting of units to combat enemy forces that have landed within the entire coastal area of the Southeast can also be considered.

3). This means increased efforts in all fields with the total exploitation of all possibilities and all sources of assistance offered by the country. The concept "Improvisation" hereby stands at the beginning of every thought and action. Everything, serving to increase the fighting strength and seeming suitable to accomplish the assigned tasks, is right. Bureaucratic concepts are to be opposed with a very loose interpretation of the directives.

"An order concerning the establishing of combat echelons and emergency units, as well as further individual directives necessary, follows.

Signed (Loehr) And in the distribution, it is to be noted that there was an advance message by teletype to Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, to the Commander of the German Armed Forces in Croatia and to the German Plenipotentiary General in Croatia.

Page 81 in the German and 73 in the English, Document NOKW-1251 is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 234 in evidence.

JUDGE CARTER: 233.

Mr. DENNEY: 233; thank you, Your Honor.

This is dated 15 December 1942, bears the heading Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, and is a report on experiences in connection with the dynamiting of the Gorgopotamos Bridge:

1.) Course of events:

On 25 November 1942 about 20:00 hours an attack was executed by a band of about 200-300 men on the Gorgopotamos Bridge South of Lamia. (This bridge is) about 211 meters long and crosses a rugged valley. The approach was made in three columns from the mountain side. Without being noticed the two flank columns occupied the heights rising above the railroad and bridge on both sides. From here, a concentric surprise fire attack on the Italian bridge heads took place which immediately caused losses in the shelters which are not bullet proof. In addition both flank groups immediately blocked the road to the left and to the right of the bridge by mines or rather detonations making impossible the bringing up of reinforcements by railroad.

The blasting material was of English origin and had been prepared carefully. The method of execution shows the hand of an expert blasting specialist; the auxiliary personnel had been instructed well but as yet it worked without experience. The demolition charges were fastened ready for use into pieces of wood which were inserted with prepared rope or by the use of a magnet holding it in place.

.....

f) Employment of the population for the security and patrolling of railroad tracks for short periods of time. In case of a mine explosion, loosening of rails, etc., to call to account the civilian who was patrolling there previously, if necessary to shoot him. In case of a surprise attack, to punish the villages situated near the locality of the attack ! To seize hostages! To arrest non-residents!

g) Employment of the civilian population extensively and ruthlessly for the construction of fortification!

For the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (12th Army) The Chief of the General Staff (Signed) Foertsch And, there were 70 copies of this order signed by the Chief of Staff, defendant Foertsch, which went out and I would like to pass the original to Your Honor so you may see his signature and then perhaps counsel for the defendant Foertsch would like to see the document.

Turning then to page 83 of the German and 76 of the English, Document NOKW-950, is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 234. This is a situation report of the Commander of German Troops in Croatia to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast for the period 7 to 16 December. The first date is 22 December 1942, situation report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and the note for the enclosure, and then an estimate of the situation from 7.12 to 16.12:

"Enemy situation: The enemy situation in the sector reported on here has become aggravated. The assault power of the partisans in the area between Livno and Karlovac has strengthened. The forces are mainly organized in 5 Partisan Divisions (3 to 400 men) consisting of 3 to 4 brigades each. The Divisions are equipped with heavy weapons including some artillery. Supply and rear services have been organized militarily.

Though, considering the difficulties involved in organizing an illegal army, these efforts should not be overestimated, the combat power of these units seems to have improved so much that they have been able to make a general advance between the Bosna and Una in a North-East direction.

A Corps Staff is situated in Benakovac (West of Sanski Most). Seemingly advancing are:

The 4th Partisan Division (?) some units toward Bosni and Novi and some units towards Prijedor.

The 5th Partisan Division toward Prijedor.

Parts of the 1st Partisan Division are assumed to be still in the area around Vacar Vakuf, units might possibly have advanced into the area Banjaluka-Prnjavor via Kotor Varos.

The 3rd Partisan Division has advanced toward the Bosna Valley between Zenica and Zepce via Jagce and North of it.

The 2nd Partisan Division is alleged to be near Livno.

If it is true, it has a mission to secure the partisan state against DM Chetniks in the Southeast and probably to invade the Makarsak-Zone evacuated by the Italians - in order to include this area in the Partisan State.

.....

.....

3. Acts of sabotage:

As compared with the period covered by the last report acts of sabotage on the main railroad line have increased. The following acts of sabotage and attacks took place and then it lists the various kinds of sabotage, for instance:

Railroad sabotage:

a) On the main line 15

b) On the unsecured branch lines 18 Road sabotage 2 Sabotage on telephone lines 11 Attacks on members of the German Wehrmacht 1 Other attacks.

..... 3 Cases of looting 3

4.) Own tactical situation and intention:

The tactical situation is conditioned by the advance of the partisans against the area of Bosna and Una as stated in paragraph two. This advance was stopped in the Western Part between Bosni Novi and Sanski Most but due to the frequent failures of Croatian units has not been entirely taken care of. In the Eastern part the East wing of the partisan group near Jajce suffered a considerable set back. Enemy losses during this operation: 431 counted dead, 60 wounded, prisoners and shot to death, 4. Losses of our own: Two officers and 58 men dead; wounded, two officers and 93 men; missing 8 men.

Then on page 85 of the German, 79 of the English, NOKW-956. This is a situation report of the Commander of the German troops in Croatia to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. 30 December recites the enclosure of the situation report for the 17 December to the 26 of December, the report just following the one that was submitted before as Exhibit 234:

"The large Communist Group on the other side of the line of demarkation threatens now as before the area secured by German troops. By the occupation of Livno and Tomislavgrad the "Reich" of the Supreme Communist leader Tito has achieved its largest expansion to date. His present day territory is 250 kilometers long and approximately 80 to 100 kilometers wide, and the court's attention is respectfully directed to those figures which set up an area approximately 135 miles which a minimum of about 50 to 54 miles.

According to orders which were found there are allegedly 63,000 armed men in this partisan state who have at their disposal heavy weapons, several guns, motorized and horse-drawn vehicles and a sufficient train of beasts of burden. The heavy offensive activities of these Communist units have abated since the period covered by this report. However numerous enemy reports disclose renewed assembly and preparations for attacks on Jaice, and possibly on Banja Luka too.

Because of the clever evasion on the part of partisan units, our own troops despite uninterrupted offensives were unable to fight with any noticeable effect the partisan brigades near Sanski Most. Sanski Most itself is again threatened from three sides. A similar situation exists near Jajce which is threatened for the fourth time by strong Communist units. Obviously, the enemy is attempting to bring about a decisive success (interrupting the main railroad line?) in connection with the Russian offensive (Before spring). Another reason that one may not count on a decrease in attacks is that the partisans constantly gain new confidence from the failures of the Croatsians.

.....

3 Acts of Sabotage:

During the period covered by this report railroad sabotage has increased. The following cases of sabotage and of surprise attacks have taken place:

1. Railroad sabotage:

a) On the main lines. 5 cases

b) On the unsecured branch lines road sabotage 11 cases 2. Sabotage telephone lines 1 case 3. Attacks on Members of the German Wehrmacht ----4. Attacks on farms, town halls and the like . 1 case 5. Pillaging ---. Operation Tusla II:

Page 827

Was concluded on 21 December. The intention to annihilate the partisans in the area Northeast of Tusla is fully realized. Due to the failure of Ustascha Battalion remaining partisans were able to break through to the south but they were scattered near Sekovici by Pravoslav volunteers. A pacification of the area Northeast of Tusla may be expected shortly. Result 250 enemy dead, 160 delivered for compulsory labor, the Grossgespan of Brod for weeks in captivity of the Chetniks was freed and 80 Chetniks disarmed.

.....

Signed in draft Lueters Turning to page 83 of the English and 88 of the German, NOKW-979, it is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 236.

Page 828

These are reports of the 718th Division with reference to the operation against Jajce, and they contain a detailed description of partisan units. Dated 30 September 1942 and carry through to the 20th of December, the same year.

"1. General matters:

"The insurgents in the area Jajce belong to a large well-organized group of partisans. The leader of this large group is the already wellknown 'Tito'. His headquarters is at Glamoc (50 kilometers southwest of Jajce).

"This group of insurgents is divided into several brigades which are again divided into three battalions each of which consists of three companies. The strength of one company is from 60 to 100 men.

"From enemy papers and statements of prisoners it is deducted that the 2nd Serbian Proletaria Brigade is situated west of Vrabas and the 5th Montenegrinian and the 1st Herzegovinian Brigade south of Jajce. The latter two brigades are meant for the interruption of the road and the railway line Travnik-Jajce.

"From the south further brigades some with Italian tanks are supposed to be approaching for support.

"From interrogations and enemy papers it is evident:

"1. In every unit a special confidential agent of the political staff is commissioned with the supervision not only of the partisans but also of the Commissar and the Commandant.

"2. The intelligence service of the partisans is excellent. As scouts they mostly make use of: beggars, youths, and Dalmatian peddlers.

"3. In every partisan battalion there is a signals officer whose task it is to organize an intelligence service of the civilian population.

"4. During an attack they first throw in shock troops equipped with hand grenades and bottles of gasoline. Then follow lines of riflemen. In the meantime in the terrain still further back, groups specifically provided for the purpose, commence firing in order to direct attention to themselves.

"5. The partisans have penal battalions. Members of these units must work hard; they must remove mines, must construct road blockades and tank traps and must serve as a carrier service. Furthermore they are employed in especially dangerous operations.

"6. The brigades have at their disposal anti-tank groups. The members carry beer bottles filled with gasoline which have a fuse 20 to 25 centimeters long. The fuse is lighted with a match or a lighter and from a safe cover they are thrown against the tanks.

"7. Furthermore they have at their disposal nine detachments eleven men strong. The members are former foremen of blasting gangs or workers from artillery workshops. Their task is the manufacturing of mines from bombs or artillery duds.

"8. By preference the attacks are made by night. Moonlit nights are avoided; rainy nights preferred.

"9. Before the attack the adversary is put under the effect of alcohol.

"10. Premiums are paid for the capturing of prisoners.

"11. The losses of the partisans are kept strictly secret even from their own people.

"12. The food supply of a part of the partisan units is insufficient. Once in a while only there is bean soup or a small piece of meat. The bread consists of a mixture of barley, oats and bran – every second or third day a small piece.

"13. Examples of enemy ground signal:

red: enemy in that direction.

white: enemy encountered, green:

we advance, green-red:

we retreat, green-white:

attack, twice green:

we request aid.

Page 830

"14. The partisans fix signs of recognition several days in advance; they are different during the daytime than at night. For example, during daytime: moving the body to the left and right or holding the left hand against the mouth.

at night: copying the noises of goats or the cuckoo.

Issuing of various passwords consisting of challenge and password. For instance, Sari...Suhaca, or Faschists...is withdrawn.

I don't think I need to read the insignia rank. We just had them. They are similar to those we had before. However, I would like to point out for Your Honors' notice, "Political Commissar" we have here, and on the prior page, and with reference to the hammer and sickle embroidered in gold on the star, and the reference back to the Commissar of June 1941, which is in Document I.

Turning to page 91 of the German, page 86 of the English, details about the enemy;

"II. Details about the enemy.

"After having taken Mrkonjic Grad on 24 August 1942 the partisans advanced with small units up to the near neighborhood of the town Jajce. After small weak attacks a stronger attack was made on the towns Prudi and Carevo Polje for the first time on 21 September 1942. At the same time Bukovic and the electricity works in Jajce were attacked. The partisans received reinforcements from Mrkonjic (2000 to 3000 men) on 24 September 1942. Thereupon on 25 September the concentric attack on Jajce and places south of it took place. The electric train line between Duganovci and Jajce was cut and destroyed in several places. Jajce was taken on 25 September at 1700 hours.

"According to our own land reconnaissance and Croatian reports the advanced posts and fortifications along the line Bunar - Bistrica Doribaba and various instances of distance and direction. Near Vericki Kam and Duganovci the partisans are in possession of machine gun positions which dominate the approach roads to Jajce.

"One of the leaders is supposed to be a certain Yugoslav Major Djokic who is now in the area of Podmilacje and Divicani with about 500 men.

"According to statements of prisoners the equipment of these groups of partisans is said to be excellent. They are said to have at their disposal mountain guns, heavy trench mortars, heavy machine guns, and light machine guns. In addition they captured two mountain guns in Jajce. One of these is said to be in position near Jezoro and the other one on the road to Banja Luka. Distribution in draft.

"For the Division Headquarters "The Ira."

And the name Geitner is signed here, and again this is not the defendant Geitner. It is the General Staff Officer in this division.

And then continuing with some more matters with reference to the Jajce situation:

"According to statements of prisoners the following participated in the taking of the town Jajce:

I Assault Brigade II Assault Brigade a Serbian and a Montenegrinian Brigade.

"On the march from Jajce in direction to Travnik there are:

I Assault Brigade II Assault Brigade IV Serbian Brigade IV Montenegrinian Brigade."

And then next strength of units:

"I Assault Brigade: Strength: Three battalions consisting of three companies and one escort company. In all: 600 to 700 men. Strength of the company: 65 to 75 men, each battalion about 200 men.

Armament: 45 light machine guns and 6 heavy machine guns with sufficient ammunition.

Escort company: Consisting of a heavy machine gun detachment with 7 heavy machine guns, a trench mortar detachment with 2 heavy trench mortars and 1 light, and an artillery detachment with 2 anti-tank guns."

And then it sets out the various units, breaking them down. I don't think we need more than comment on these. I would like to call the Court's attention again that now the political commissar is listed for the first assault brigade, and again for the first battalion of the brigade, and again for the second battalion, and then next the secretary of the brigade, the deputy commandant, the deputy commandant of the first battalion, as well as the battalion commandant or battalion commander, and administrative officer.

Again carrying back with the Commissar of June 1941, the reference which has been made before which appears in Document Book I, if Your Honors recall, we submitted two copies, one from Field Marshal von Brauchitsch, at that time Commander-in-Chief OKH, and then an additional copy to show the two different types of distribution which I used. And we hope at a later time to carry the issuance of that order up to show the summary execution of political commissars.

I want to direct the Court's attention to the use of this term as we go through these documents.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honors, I would like to point out that the Commissar's order shows it was only valid for the Russian front, and so far I want to challenge what the prosecution has said and say the prosecution is bound to prove this assertion.

MR. DENNEY: Well, if we are able to. Of course, if we don't, however, we believe it right to call the Court's attention to these references as we go along. Document Book I is a long time back.

In the Second Assault Brigade they again list the Commandant or the brigade commander, if Your Honors please, and the deputies both being unknown, however, they do give the commanding officer of one battalion. For the commanding officer of one company - they didn't have much information apparently about that.

"II Serbian Proletarian Brigade:

"Strength: Four battalions each consisting of three companies and escort company. Present strength of the entire brigade 200 men."

And then their:

"Armament and ammunition: 5-6 rounds in all, 10,000 rounds maximum. Each man having five or six rounds, which would indicate a strength of approximately 2,000 men."

Excuse me, Your Honor, while I check this figure here.

And then under the Second Proletarian Brigade they list the brigade commandant; the place for the Commissar was unknown, and the four battalions, with only one battalion commander known. The IV Brigade strength and armament unknown.

And then the statement:

"Allegedly four further brigades are on the march towards the area Jajce."

They recite: "1 Herzegovinian Brigade, V Montenegrin Brigade, Dalmatian Brigade, and the Sandzak Brigade."

(Mr. Denney) And again the signature, "Geitner" is the General staff officer, not the defendant in this case.

And a further report with reference to the partisan situation, dated 10 November, the first paragraph recites the capturing of Communist documents in the second operation at Jajce, Glamoc, Prozor and Travnik which contained valuable statements concerning the formation and composition of the enemy:

And then they set forth the details in these documents.

I Distribution of enemy forces

II Enemy situation before and during operation I Jajce II

III Attack on Mrkonjic Grad

IV Organization

V Administration

VI General matters."

Then with reference to distribution they cite III detachment with 2 battalions in the area east of Glamoc; the II Brigade in the area northwest of Kupres; the IV Brigade with 3 battalions, area Kupres; Bacu Krajine Brigade, area Kupres-Bugojno; and V Brigade in Area Prozor. And then the enemy situation before and during this operation:

At the end of the month of September 1942, the separate brigades and detachments had already occupied their jump-off positions for the operation pending.

The III Krajina detachment left the area east of Glamoc for the area southwest of Jajce and went into positions underlined.

The II brigade was transferred from the area northwest of Kupres to the area south of Mrkonjic Grad and occupied the line: Trnovo.

The IV brigade went from the area Kupres - Vakuf into the area southwest of Jezero and occupied the line Stupna near Miocici.

The V Brigade was assembled in the area Bugojno.

No statements were found in the captured papers about the movements of the brigade, and the added statement that they did not participate in this operation. Then they assume that the III brigade was assembled from the area Kljuc into the area Gadjavica.

And then they talk about the attack on Mrkonjicgrad:

" 8 Battalions participated in the attack, of those 6 took part directly, 2 were designated as reserve. It was remarkable that the Brigades were not employed in closed formation, but that single Battalions were taken out of Brigades in combat groups and were then formed out of mixed units".

2 Combat groups could be determined as follows:

And then they set up the combat group West and the combat group South.

a) Combat group west:

Commander: The deputy commander of the II Proletarian Brigade.

Composed of: 1st Battalion of the II Brigade, 1st Battalion of the III Brigade, 2 Battalions as reserve.

Command Post: unknown

b) Combat group south:

Commander: Chief of Staff of the Main Staff whose name was not known Composed of: 2 Battalions of the II Brigade, 1 Battalion of the IV Brigade, the Freiwillige Battalion of the III Krajina Detachment.

Command Post: At first Hocuna and later Previla.

With regard to the direction of attack of the individual units the following could be determined:

The I Battalion of the III Brigade which was in the area west of Sibovi advanced as far as Gradina. (6.5 kilometers west of Mrkonjic Grad) – Rogolje (4 kilometers west northwest of Mrkonjic Grad) and locked the road Mrkonjic Grad Sibovi at this point.

The I Battalion of the II Brigade advanced from the Sibovi area in the direction of Rogolje and occupied The line: Tomici (2 kilometers northwest of Mrkonjic Grad) – Brda (2 kilometers west of Mrkonjic Grad) in order to protect the left flank of the attack against Makonjic Grad and to be able to push back possible attacks from the northwest.

The II Battalion of the II Brigade which was in Trnovo advanced toward Okruglo (2 kilometers southeast of Mrkonjic Grad) – Staro Solo (2 kilometers northeast of Mrkonjic Grad) and blocked the roads Mrkonjic Grad, Jajce and Mrkonjic Grad – Banja Luka.

Then they set forth the advance plan of the 1st Battalion of the III Brigade, and then the advance plan of the 1st Battalion of the II Brigade, and then the 2nd Battalion of the II Brigade's advance plan is given, and then they recite the activities of two battalions, the 3rd Battalion of the II Brigade and the 3rd Battalion of the IV Brigade; in their line of advance, showing that they came into Mrkonjic Grad from different sides.

The 3rd Battalion of the II Brigade line of advance, and the 3rd Battalion of the IV Brigade. Then the 2nd and 3rd Battalions of the II, and the 3rd Battalion of the IV, subordinated to the main staff of the Brigade which was first in Hocuna at the command post which was listed for the Combat Group South.

Then after the occupation of Mrkonjic Grad, the III Brigade was withdrawn and given the task of preventing and repelling every attack from the direction Stinica while the II Brigade was encamped in the area Mrkonjic as follows: and they give the locations of the staff, of the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd battalions, showing the disposition of the troops at the conclusion of the action.

"Approximately in the area of Trijebovo a group of Chetniks had assembled: the partisans therefore had to reckon with an attack of this group in the direction of Mrkonjic Grad. The second brigade, concentrated in the area around Mrkonjic had therefore as its main task the preventing of an attack of this group of Chetniks."

Then the reserve is set up, 1st Battalion of the IV Brigade, and then the report continues on page 100 of the German text and page 94 of the English text, again reciting the units which opposed the 718th Division, in this same action.

I will call the attention of the Court to the designations the "IV Brigade and the Third Krajina Detachment.

The IV Brigade consisting of a staff, three battalions listed I, II, and III and a V battalion.

The Third Krajina Detachment, Staff, Battalions listed, and a Freiwillige Battalion. Total strength 2300-3000 men. Armament 50-60 heavy machine guns; 100-120 light machine guns. Then again subordinate.

Then again, tasks of the various battalions, which I do not think need to be gone into. Your Honors are familiar with them.

They recite the II and III of the IV, the Freiwillige Battalion of the III Krajina Detachment, the I Battalion of the IV Brigade and the I of the III, of the III Krajina, detachment the V Battalion of the IV the III Battalion. II Battalion of III Krajina detachment and then the communication unit of the III Krajina detachment.

On page 101 of the German, and 95 of the English, the 1st Battalion of the III Krajina detachment, and then on page 102 of the German, still on page 95 of the English, "troops of the IV Brigade were pushed back into the area south of Jezero". Also the III Brigade were also brought up as reinforcements. The organization and strength of the III Krajina detachment was ascertained and compiled from original reports", then it is listed. 3 Battalions, each battalion with five companies, one of these as Assault Company. "The strength of the Company varies from 50 to 100 men, though the exact composition of all battalions could not be ascertained it may be assumed that are all the same.

Then again this long list, on the next page, and covering the next four pages in English, and on 103-104 of the German, "Composition of the detachments", and this is for this battalion, the III Krajina Detachment, and lists the staff, the commanders, deputy, political commissar for the staff and also the commander, deputy, political commissar for the 1st Battalion; Battalion staff, of 15 men.

1 Company, the Commander, the deputy, the political commissar, the deputy, the platoon leaders, two platoons to a company; strength and armaments.

II Company, commander, deputy political commissar, his deputy, then two companies, strength and armament, 1 heavy, two light machine guns.

Third company, the same material, approximately the same strength; no platoon leaders listed, nor for the fourth company, there is no political commissar listed, as there is none for the Shock Company.

The second Assault Battalion, with substantially the same information, the battalion commander, political commissar, the battalion staff and strength.

1 Company, commander, political commissar, deputy; same information with reference to the second company and the third company.

It is to be noted here that no platoon leaders are given.

Then the same information for the III Battalion, but nothing below the Battalion is given here, except that they have three companies, but there is no information on the companies, and then the IV Battalion, very sketchy information concerning that, just the commanding officer, his deputy and the political commissar. And then continuing to.....

THE PRESIDENT: Perhaps this will be a good place to take a recess. The Tribunal will recess for a few minutes.

(Recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: If it please your Honors, again continuing with Document NOKW-279 which is Exhibit 236 which is being offered for the purpose of showing the prosecution's contention that the forces here were very well organized and that they were substantial in number and carried the insignia of rank had a regular setup, even as army units of other countries. On page 105 of the German and 100 of the English, the organization of the Freiwillige Battalion which is part of the Krajina detachment, which we are discussing, is set forth. Again the officers are listed: Commanding Officer as deputy, Political Commissar as deputy, strength and armament. The only information they had on this was the name of the Commanding Officer and of the deputy for the Political Commissar. Then they have a portion on subordinations during operations with reference to the organizations.

"During large operations the brigades and detachments committed are subordinate to a "Staff of the Brigades" which is Composed of the Commanding Officers and Commissars of the individual Brigades and Detachments. It comprises a Chief of Staff, his Deputy, a secretary, an Operation Officer and various Political Commissars and couriers.

During the operation Jajce II the II, III and IV Brigade as well as the III Krajina Detachment were subordinated to a "Staff of the Brigades" the head of which was the Commanding Officer of the IV Brigade, Peko Dabčević. As Political Commissar Mitar Bakic was appointed the Commissar of the IV Brigade.

Every Battalion possesses a so-called "Elite Company", composed of young men from the age of 17 to 20. This Company is equipped with the best arms available and designed for special tasks at each assignment. During the operation Jajce II this Company was employed to construct road blockades and for special surprise attacks against the attacking troops.

"As the stocks of ammunition are only small, thriftiness was ordered in that respect. From a captured order, instructions were ascertained that as much ammunition as possible be captured at every operation since only in this way the stock of ammunition be replenished.

"During every operation each Battalion detaches 2 men on horseback as couriers to the Staff of the Brigades where special groups of couriers exist. The couriers are exclusively used for the connection between the individual Brigades Staffs."

And then with rank insignia, they refer to the enclosure-

"As the Partisans lack radio apparatus the individual Battalions communicate with one another by flag signals. The signals in use are the following:"

And then they give the various signals for the formal movements of units; Fall in line; Break off; Ready to receive; Wait; Change of position; Understood, Repeat, with their equivalents following them in dots and dashes.

Then they recite the dash being equivalent to a rather long -- in the text it says "short" but that should be "long;" it is long in the German -- a rather long signal with a flag or a rather long flash with a pocket lamp.

The dot is a short signal with a flag or a short flash with a pocket lamp.

"Administration.

"The entire area of Croatia occupied by the Communists is divided into 4 operational zones. Of these only the fourth zone is especially mentioned in the captured documents and it was only established in August 1942 and comprises the area Livno - Glamoc - Grečovo (?) "The leader of this operational zone is a certain Jovic who is assisted by a certain Terzic who is the Chief of General Staff and a certain Milic who is Political Commissar.

Again the reference to the Political Commissar. The operational zone is subdivided into separate areas and these areas again into separate local headquarters.

The local headquarters have at their disposal Partisan guards to whom similar tasks are assigned as to the gendarmerie.

The area as such is composed of the Commander of the area, his deputies, his assistants and various technical auxiliary personnel and a court of justice. The local headquarters are set up in a similar way and its position is that of a security office.

In addition to these Divisions there are also Administration Districts and Communities at the head of which is a District or Community Committee. Both these administrative units are directly subordinated to the military authorities and have primarily the task of looking after and safeguarding the needs of the fighting troops.

The district committee consists of 30 members and the community committee of from 3 to 5. Each district and every community committee has available its own funds which are replenished by voluntary contributions, captured money, requisitioned sums and by money from the sale of booty. It is the duty of the District and Community Committees to deliver 70% of these funds to the units while 30% remain as funds from which the remaining expenses are to be covered. The funds are administered by a member of the district or community committee. The members are to be covered. The funds are administered by a member of the district or community committee. The members are re-elected every six months by a selection committee which is formed by as many persons as there are members in the committee in question. The election is carried out by acclamation. Men and women from 17 years upwards may participate.

Communists who have not had yet an instruction, receive their instructions in the use of arms from the Ordnance Officer of the individual Brigades. The hours of instruction are from 2 to 3 in the afternoon.

"The Partisans also have courses for the instruction of Political Commissars and Commanding Officers of Battalions and Companies.

"The Partisans have a military and political school in Benkovac; there courses of 1 month's duration are given. The director of the school is a certain "Bosko" and the superintendent of the courses is a certain "obrad".

Courses for Commanding Officers of Battalions and Companies are given in Glamoc and in Drvar. If possible the participants are to be well instructed people (former officials with talent for leadership).

The medical service of the Partisans is very bad. The Partisans have several hospitals at their disposal. There are hospitals in Glamoc, Ribnik, Skakavac, Vodjenica, Grmoc, Koricanica, Bizovac, The central hospital is in Grmoc. In smaller places, where individual Brigades are located, there are 1 or several dispensaries.

The convalescing Partisans are sent to the sanatorium in Dubovik. In Lukici there is a "Super Medical Examination Commission."

The food supplies of individual Battalions are very bad. The daily ration consists of 300 grams meat and 300 grams bread. There are no vegetables at all.

With regards to clothing, they lack shoes, so that individual Battalions (the Kupres Battalion and the III Krajina Detachment) are barefoot.

The operational staff of the Partisans has at its disposal a little theatrical group which organizes performances in the various hospitals. The members of this theatrical group are mostly one time female teachers.

In every Battalion the political commissars hold twice a month a military and once a week a political meeting.

And again this is signed for the Commander of the Division by an officer of the Division Staff.

Then the enclosure which was recited on page 101 of the English, 106 of the German with reference to Rank Insignia gives the insignia of:

718th Infantry Division Divisional Combat Staff 30 December 1942 Department Ia Enclosure:

- 1 Evaluation of the Captured Documents Operation Jajce III The German troops captured enemy documents in Jajce from which the combat actions of the Communists in the area Jajce could be ascertained.

The papers were exclusively papers of the III Assault Division and its movements could be calculated in detail while with regard to the 1st Proletarian Division determinations were only possible insofar as that Division was mentioned in orders of the 3rd Division.

The following sections could be worked out in detail:

I. Preparation for attack and the segregation of a security group "South".

II. Attack on Jajce.

III. Advance in direction Turbe – D. Vakuf.

IV. Retreat of the Communists.

I. Preparation for attack and segregation a Security Group "South". 2 divisions participated in the attack on Jajce:

I. Proletarian Division III.

Assault Division.

In addition a security group "South" 3 battalion strong which had been formed from elements of the individual brigades of the III Assault Division was withdrawn.

Composition: Of Units I Proletarian Division.

Commander: Koca I Brigade II Brigade III Brigade 1 battery of howitzers III Assault Division, with its Commander:

V Montenegro Brigade X Herzegovina Brigade XIV Dalmatian Brigade III Krajina Command 1 Artillery Detachment (2 guns) Security Group "South" Commander:

Page 847

Deputy Commander and Deputy Political Commissar of the V Brigade.

Composed of:

1st Battalion of the V Brigade 1st Battalion of the X Brigade One Battalion of the III Krajina Command Then some figures on rifles and men on the III Assault Division:

of their various units, Headquarters, X Brigade, XIV Brigade, V Brigade and the units of the II-Krajina detachment, a total of approximately 4,000 men, and a total of approximately 3,290 rifles.

"Since the 1st Proletarian Division can be assumed to be of like strength the forces facing the German and Croatian troops at the operation Jajce III totalled: 8,000 men, 6,582 rifles and 6 guns. Details can be ascertained from the enclosure.

Then they give the missions of the various units: "The 3 Brigades of the I Division were commissioned with assigned missions; the 2nd Battalion of the III Brigade on the 22nd November '42 and on 23 Nov. '42 the same unit was to establish contact with the XIV Brigade of the III Division.

"On the 24th the I Brigade was to occupy a line; the III Brigade went into the line; the II Brigade in reserve, partly at Mrkonjic Grad and partly at Jezero."

And, it gives the assigned tasks of the two elements of the II Brigade and then after the attack on the 24th and 25th of November the I Proletarian Division departed about 1 December.

Then the Security Group "South" which consisted of 3 Battalions, its mission and its commitment, one battalion sending a strong patrol daily toward Ljubuncic and then the location of another battalion at Staro Solo with the mission to reconnoitre in the direction of Drinovac and one battalion in reserve.

Then the Third Battalion with its mission, 20 November - Division left its assembly area and took up its position on the stated line. The division command posts were at Pribeljci and on the 21st it advanced and rested one day. The Command Posts of the Division and its brigades were given at Division Headquarters at Pribeljci: V Brigade at Vagan, X Brigade Pribeljci, XIV Brigade Sipovo. The Command Post for the III Krajina Command was not established because one battalion each was attached to the individual brigades.

Then they recite a conference on 21 November between the Commanders between the I and III Divisions, when the details of attack on Jajce were arranged. The V and X Brigade sent companies with the mission of cutting a railroad line from D. Vakuf to Turbe. A company of the V Brigade destroyed the railway tracks as did the company of the X Brigade. The III Division started its advance on 23 November, on the jump off position which they reached on the 21st of November. The V Brigade marched as did the X Brigade and the XIV Brigade. The II Battalion of the V maintained contact with the individual brigades and the Division.

During the evening of the 23rd the V and X Brigade and parts of the III Krajina Command reached the heights west of the road Vijenac.

Then they recite the activities of the Right Group consisting of the II and V Battalion and the baggage train of the X Brigade, field hospital and the Administrative Staff.

And, the Reserve: IV Battalion of the V Brigade and II Battalion of the III Krajina Command.

I think we can omit the next paragraph and follow down to the following one on page 118 of the German which speaks of the material captured by the V Battalion: 1 heavy mortar, 40 rifles, 6,000 rounds of ammunition and 58 Croatian soldiers.

The losses of the V Battalion was 6 wounded including 3 girls.

And then it recites the activities of the II and V Battalions thereafter and the II Battalion of the III Krajina Command. At the end of the paragraph just before the Left Group, shows that they established road blocks.

Then it sets forth the left group which comprised the III and IV Battalions of the X Brigade and III Battalion of the 7 Brigade and the activities of the group.

The following paragraph describes the material captured: 1 light machine gun, 30 rifles, 3,000 rounds ammunition, 37 hand grenades and other equipment. 1 Officer, 1 Sergeant, 25 Croatian soldiers and 1 Ustascha man taken prisoner. Losses of the Left Group were 3 slightly wounded.

Then the III Battalion of the V Brigade advances and takes Skela on the 24th of November. Then it recites the changing of the Division Command Post, and the further mission of the II Battalion of the V Brigade; and in the area the 1st Proletarian Division, on page 120 in the German, the I and III Brigades, Northwest and West of Jajce, the XIV Brigade of the 3rd Assault Division in the area, held ready for the attack on Jajce; and, the Howitzer Battery of the 1st Proletarian Division, was assigned an anti-tank gun as protection. The batter was used in support and was placed in position in front of the road blocks.

And, the last two paragraphs, in addition a group of surgeons and a booty and prisoner collecting center were organized at Jezero. A hospital train was held ready at Mliniste to transport the seriously wounded. And advanced message center to forward orders and messages was set up by 1st Division at Jezero.

Signed by General Staff Officer.

Then the last three pages of the document contain rather detailed reports of the various units, three in particular -- the headquarters Third Division, the five Battalions, Engineer platoon, and the Hospital of the 10th Herzegovina Brigade, and the 4 Battalions, the Headquarters Staff and Platoon, Engineering Platoon and Mortar Platoon, and the Hospital for the 14th Dalmatian Brigade. Of course there are some of these bits of material that the units don't have, but the size of the units is called to the attention of the Court. The fact that a baggage train and signal section, reconnaissance section, and administration section.

And I would like to direct the Court's attention to the fact that this unit also had a band, and that band is not the term "band" as we have been accustomed to hear it, but a band to play music.

And then the 10th Hercegovinian Brigade with components of troops, male and female, this weapons, ammunition, machine gun ammunition, pistol ammunition, hand grenades, riding horses, draft horses and baggage animals; and the 14th Dalmatian Brigade with similar notations as to the same elements mentioned for the prior units, both as to personnel and materiel.

I don't think it is necessary to read the figures. However, I would direct the Court's attention to the amount of ammunition they had. The fact that they had light and heavy machine guns, a few mortars, not very many, pistols and rifles, mortar ammunition.

Turning then to page 124 in the German, 117 in the English, NOKW 969, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 237, in evidence. These are some orders and reports, -- these are orders and reports of the 704th Infantry Division.

The first one with which we are concerned, these reports are for the period on the cover page, from 1 September to 31 December, but the reports that we have here are only during the period November and December.

On the 5th of November, 1942

"Division suggests reprisal measures to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia for the two kidnapped members of the Luftwaffe:

- 1) Execution by shooting of 10 of the Cetniks arrested in the district of Pozarevac for each of the two members of the Luftwaffe.
- 2) Arrest of 50 hostages from the area of D. Milanevac-Madjanpek.
- 3) Execution of these hostages to take place on 1 December unless members of Luftwaffe are released by that date.
- 4) Population to be informed of these measures.

"19 Nov. 1942.

The Division is to publicize by means of posters the capture of 20 hostages for the two kidnapped members of the Luftwaffe. The Division will have the proclamation of the commander of the Security Police and SD Belgrade regarding the execution of 20 DM followers who had been sentenced to death by a summary court martial posted.

"21 Nov. 1942 The Division will post Proclamation of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia stating that Serbian Officials of the civil service are under German protection and in the event that such persons should be wounded (5) hostages will be shot to death and if such persons should be killed, 10 hostages will be shot to death.

Officials of the civil service who resigned their Post without compulsion will come before summary court martial.

"23 Nov. 1942 The Division suggests that the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia that he authorize an operation after thorough previous reconnaissance for February 1943.

The operation for the purpose of destroying by draconic measures the partially disintegrated organizational staffs of the DM-Movement, hidden camps and Communist Bands. The combat area should be declared an operational area. All male inhabitants from 16 to 50 years of age are to be sent to the labor agency, and villages offering resistance are to be utterly destroyed.

In connection with the use of the term "Summary Court Martial" lest your Honors confuse it with the term which is used in the American Military Manual, this Court which is referred to here is a court Martial in the terminology used by the Americans, is a court which is limited in jurisdiction, both as to offenders whom it may try and as to the punishments which it may give. An American Summary Court, for example, may not try an officer. An American Summary Court may not try noncommissioned officers of the first three grades, unless the trial by a Summary Court is ordered by a commander, such as a General, who would have power to direct that those officers be tried by a higher court. As to punishments, the punishment of a Summary Court in America, which is an one-officer court, is limited to confinement at hard labor for 30 days, and forfeiture of two-thirds of one month's pay. At least there be any confusion, this is the closest by way of translation that we can come to the German, but this Summary Court is not the same as the American Summary Court.

"23 Nov. 1942 The Division does not consider the present orders regarding the discovery of weapons sufficient and applies to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia:

- 1) Whoever is found in possession of arms and ammunition is to be shot on the spot.
- 2) Whoever owns buildings wherein arms and ammunition are found is to be shot on the spot.
- 3) Family members of people executed by shooting and other inhabitants of buildings in which arms and ammunition are found will be arrested and sent to the German labor agency.
- 4) Buildings in which arms and ammunition are found are to be burned down.
- 5) In Communities where arms or ammunition are found 10 additional men are to be shot to death on the spot.

"28 Nov. 1942 The Commanding General and Commander in Serbia orders that hostages from the district of Zagubica be shot to death in reprisal for OT (organization - Todt) - man found murdered.

And if Your Honors, please, you are probably familiar with the Organization Todt, the builders of the West Wall, and the labor units which accompanied the German Wehrmacht wherever they went for purposes of construction.

"6 Dec. 42 Pozarevac.

Pursuant to order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia the Division ordered the execution by shooting of 25 hostages as reprisal measure for the Organization Todt - man found near Zagubica. Execution to be carried out on 8 Dec. by 734 Grenadier Regiment at Krst, 12 Kilometers East of Zagubica on the spot where the murdered man had been found.

"8 Dec. 42 Pozarevac 25 hostages shot to death on the spot where the murdered Organization Todt man had been found.

Two civilians who were assigned to dig the graves were shot to death while trying to escape

"18 Dec. 42 Leaflets are dropped over Pozarevac announcing the execution of 50 DM followers on 15 Dec.

42 for the German sergeant shot to death near Zlatave and for the blasting of a bridge between Pozarevac and Petrovac.

"21 Dec. 42 District Headquarters Pozarevac announces the execution of 10 hostages every three days up to a total of 60 hostages, for the German Wehrmacht driver "Organization Todt" who was kidnapped by Mihailovic followers on 24 Oct.

, if the missing organization Todt man does not return by 11 Dec.

That is what appears in the original German, however, it is submitted that it means 1942, and not 1943. I don't think it is a reasonable interpretation that they would wait for a year to determine whether he came back.

"The population is asked to assist in the release of the Organization Todt-man.

.....

"30 December 42.

District Headquarters announces by means of posters that by order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Ten hostages will be shot to death every 3 days until "a total of 50 hostages has been reached, if the Organization Todt-man who was kidnapped on 21 December 42 has not returned by 15 January 43.

1200 hours. The Serbian State Guard Station of Boljetin, 9 kilometers Southeast of D Milanovac surrounded allegedly by 250 D.M. Draga Michailovic men. Serbian state-guard men kidnapped. Three of them were able to escape and stated: The D.M. group wearing farmers clothing with Cetnik cockade is armed with Italian automatic rifles and with English rifles. The former German soldier Max calling himself Martin Tomarovic is with the band. Tribredjanin is also alleged to there." and there are various garrisons recited.

24 Dec. 42. "Lt. Koenig, Executive Officer, II/Battalion 724th Grenadier regiment and 2nd Lt. (Med) Dr. Engelhardt, the Battalion physician of the 2nd Battalion 724th Grenadier Regiment were fired on in Mladenovac at 14.13 hours by a 20 year old woman who is assumed to be a Communist. They were severely wounded (shot through the lung and the stomach) and immediately transferred to the Military Hospital in Belgrade. A former Cetnik leader was also shot to death by the woman while trying to arrest her. Later she shot herself. The 724th Grenadier regiment has ordered the encirclement and a search of Mladenovac. 72 men and 52 women were arrested. A part of the population fled immediately after the attack on the officers. Local Police and Serbian state-guard participated without causing trouble in the measures of the military. 3 Pistols were found.

The Division applies for authorization to shoot to death 50 hostages and/or people detained as retaliation prisoners in reprisal."

On the 21st December 42, one day after the incident "49 men and I woman shot to death in Mladenovac for the attack on the two officers of the 2nd Battalions/ 724th Grenadier Regiment. 2nd Lt. (med) Dr. Engelhardt died in the Military Hospital in Belgrade. The Division applies for authorization to shoot to death an additional 25 hostages and/or all people detained as retaliation prisoners from the district of Mladenovac. The execution will be carried out by the SD in Belgrade. The Division announces the Fuehrer order pertaining to procedure in the combat against bands.

According to this, the fight against the Communist Bands which are operating with all possible means is to be carried on ruthlessly and without any limitations in the sense of soldierly chivalry or of the Geneva Convention. Considerations of any kind and pity for members of bands or for followers does not exist."

At this point I should like to direct your Honor's attention to an earlier order offered as an exhibit.

Document No. C 81, which is on page 41 of the German, and page 28 of the English in this book. The Hitler order, with reference to the execution of Commandos, dated 18 October 1942. Unfortunately, in the notes from the Division, there is no marginal note indicating what the source is, but if your Honors will recall the original order it states that it is to be transmitted only by officer. There is no distribution list on it, and it is submitted that in case of an order like this, that they do not deem it expedient to put a distribution list on it, and the language of this order, it is submitted, corresponds to the language of the original order.

They mentioned the Geneva Convention, and the Geneva Convention is mentioned on the second page of the original order, page 44 of the German text, and page 29 of the English text, and I should just like to call that to your Honors' attention, in passing. Also the reference to "no limitations in the sense of soldierly chivalry".

Then turning again to document 969, Exhibit 231, which we have been discussing which we have been discussing, - the 704th Infantry Division activity reports, the last report is for the 31 December. The Division Commander reports to the Commander, and Commanding General in Serbia, losses for December, '42;

Own losses: 6 dead, 2 wounded, of which 5 were killed and 1 injured in a railroad accident.

Losses of Cetnik and volunteer units: 1 dead and 9 wounded.

84 Turning then to page 132 in the German, and 127 in the English we offer document No. NOKW 1562, this is Prosecution Exhibit 238 in evidence.

These are a series of daily reports from the Commander in Chief, Southeast to OKH. And again these are mostly teletype as were those before.

The first one for 4 November, on page 132 of the German, and 128 of the English;

"Serbia: 35 km South of Kraljevo a detachment of Cetniks 500 men strong was disarmed. Mopping up continues in the area 50 km south of Nisch. 23 arrestees shot". Then for the 6 November, page 134 of the German, 129 of the English:

"Mopping up 40 km south of Nisch has been concluded. 35 Communists shot."

On 134 of the German and 130 of the English:

"Near Ivanjica, 40 km southwest of Kraljevo, an enemy hideout has been destroyed, 24 followers of Draja Mihajlovic shot; arms and ammunition seized."

For the 15th November, page 135 of the German, 131 of the English:

"In Belgrade 30 arrests made, including the property administrator and two leaders of the Draja Mihajlovic movement; 20 members of a railway sabotage staff were shot."

At the bottom there is a stamp for the OKH code reception showing that it has been received, and at the top of this page it is interesting to note the people to whom this report went:

"To OKH/Army General Staff/Operations Sections.

Forwarded to: OKW/Wehrmacht Operations Staff.

To OKW/Wehrmacht Propaganda

OKH Group Foreign Armies Southeast and various officers there listed."

Page 858

On the 14 November, page 136 of the German, 132 of the English; "20 hostages were arrested for signal sabotage; near Leskovac 15 insurgents were shot."

For the 17th, page 137 of the German, page 133 of the English: "North of the Save: Near Ruma 3 Insurgents were shot."

For the 19th, German 138, 134 of the English:

"In Belgrade and Mladanovac 33 arrests were made; out of these 13 Mihajlovic followers were shot in Belgrade."

At 139 of the German, bottom of the German, and 136 of the English: "9 arrests made in Belgrade. The leader of an Insurgent unit and 7 Mihajlovic followers were apprehended. Will be shot after interrogation."

At 140 of the German, 137 of the English, on the 1 of December, "North of Save: 29 Insurgents shot. Individual surprise attacks."

At 140 of the German, 138 in the English, 2 December: "80 arrests in Belgrade. 12 Mihajlovic supporters were shot."

At 142, the bottom in German, 140 in English, 3 December.

"4 arrests in Belgrade. 7 Communists and 3 Draja Mihajlovic couriers shot."

THE PRESIDENT: We will take a recess until one-thirty this afternoon.

Page 859

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats. The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honors. Turning now to page 159 of the English and the German we have an evaluation of the enemy situation in Crete by the 22nd Division. This is Document No. NOKW-1054, and it is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 239. This is dated 3 November

THE PRESIDENT: What page are you reading from now?

MR. DENNEY: Page 159 of the English and 159 of the German, Sir.

THE PRESIDENT: I may be in error, but I left my papers on page 141 in the English. Am I in error in that respect?

MR. DENNEY: We had just concluded, I believe, Your Honor--no, Your Honor is correct. We had not finished the last part of that exhibit, page 141 of the English and page 143 of the German. Your Honor is correct.

THE PRESIDENT: Document No. 1562?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Your Honors, which is Exhibit No. 238. That is a report for 4 December 1942, "16 arrests in Belgrade. 59 suspects arrested, 8 Draja Mihajlovic followers shot." Again, this is directed to OKH, from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. And then, an entry for the Saloniki-Aegean area:

"By the timely arrival of reinforcements brought in by rail from the North and from Saloniki it was possible to defeat an attack on the important Gumenlissa bridge across the Fardar committed during the night 3/4 December by Greek bands.

"Own losses: 1 soldier dead, 1 wounded, as well as 5 members of the Organization Todt wounded.

4 Greek suspects, including 1 officer, were arrested and will be shot after interrogation."

MR. DENNEY: And then on page 144 of the German and 143 of the English, the Daily Report for the 6th of December, "20 Reprisal Prisoners and 2 Communists were shot.

26 arrests." All that is for Serbia. And then the report for the 7th, which I believe is in error in the German. It is on page 145 of the German and page 144 of the English, again for Serbia, from the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, to the OKH, "In the whole area 19 arrests were made. 9 Communists and 11 Draja Mihajlovic leader and 3 companions, who were shot after interrogation." And page 146 in the German and page 145 in the English, report for the 8th of December, "SERBIA: In Belgrade 24 arrests, 11 Communists shot. A Cetnik detachment was disarmed on account of unreliability. At the Zajaca Antimony factory 300 workers went on strike. Brought to work by compulsory measures." Page 147 of the German and page 146 of the English a report for 9 December, "Serbia: 25 reprisal prisoners shot. Cetnik detachment (130 men) disarmed. 16 suspects arrested." Next page, report for the 10th, "SERBIA: 9 Draja Mihajlovic followers shot." Report for the 11th of December, "Serbia: 20 Draja Mihajlovic followers shot and arrests made." Report for the 12th, "SERBIA: 62 arrests, of these 26 members of Mihajlovic signal staff who will be shot after interrogation." Report for the 16th, "In Belgrade 8 arrests. 60 Draja Mihajlovic followers shot." Report for the 17th, "In Belgrade 6 arrests. During patrol operations 40 km Southeast of Pozarevac 16 Insurgents were shot."

Report for the 23rd, "Serbia: During patrol operations 13 Insurgents were shot." Report for the 24th, "In Belgrade 37 arrests. 7 Insurgents shot, including 2 Draja Mihajlovic followers." Report for the 25th, "SERBIA: In Belgrade 23 arrests. At Mladenovac (50 km South Southeast of Belgrade) 2 German officers were seriously wounded in public by Communists' shots. During Bulgarian mopping up operations West of Nisch 87 insurgents were shot

MR. DENNEY: And that is the incident which was reported in the prior Exhibit No. 237, the report from the 704th Division. Your Honors will recall it; we had it in the last document. Report for the 27th of December, "Serbia: 11 arrests in Belgrade. 250 Draja Mihajlovic followers shot in reprisal for attack on members of Organization Todt."

Report for the 28th of December, "Serbia: 9 arrests in Belgrade, 2 well known Draja Mihajlovic leaders arrested by pursuit detachment and shot after interrogation. 35 reprisal prisoners (Draja Mihajlovic adherents) were shot. An attack with explosives on railway bridge 25 km North Northwest of Nisch was driven off. Sporadic attacks on communities.

MR. DENNEY: For the 29th of December, "Serbia: In Belgrade 10 arrests. Draja Mihajlovic radio station Belgrade seized. Head of Draja Mihajlovic Station's news service in Serbia arrested together with 4 insurgents; will be shot after interrogation." Now, coming to page 159 in the English and page 159 in the German, Document No. NOKW 1054, which is Prosecution's Exhibit No. 239. This is the report on the enemy situation on Crete, dated 3 November 1942, submitted by the 22nd Infantry Division.

"Estimate of Enemy Situation on Crete The Island of Crete, as seaplane tender in the Eastern Mediterranean Supply base for Africa, naturally continues to be a target of the English, and according to the situation in Africa its importance is more or less in the spotlight.

The main targets of the English are therefore:

1. The Air Fields, 2. The installations of the ports, 3. The supply roads to these installations.

Except for 1 air field, all installations are along the North Coast of the Island and are therefore, in the first place, exposed to air raids. Larger attacks from the sea are at present rather unlikely, however, this does not preclude that disturbances by submarines and also larger Commando operations.

MR. DENNEY: And the attention of the Court is directed to the term "Commando operations", in connection with the Commando order, Document C-51, in this book, which is in evidence as Exhibit No. 225. "carried out by parachutists will not occur. The air raids of the adversary are in the first place directed against the air fields Iraklion, used as a jumping-off base for combat units to Egypt, and against Malemes, trans-loading point for supplying the Panzer army in Africa with troops and supplies. The other jumping-off bases, Kastelli and Timbakion have thus far been attacked only in a small measure. The installations of the ports Suda and Iraklion were attacked comparatively little and most of the time without success.

The above mentioned objectives will, in connection with the combats in Africa, continue to be important targets for the adversary.

In the activity of the adversary thus far, the following special cases are to be noted; the firing on several places of the North Coast by submarines and the attempt to land small detachments on the Island Kufonissi, off the Eastern part of Crete, and near Palaeochora, these attempts remain so far without success. Furthermore, the landing of a sabotage Commando by a submarine in the area East of Iraklion is noteworthy; this Commando seriously damaged in the night from the 13 to 14 June 42 on the air fields Iraklion a rather great number of planes partially, Four members of this Commando, 1 Major and 3 Gaulist soldiers (1 shot to death) were taken prisoners as they tried to reach the South Coast. One English Captain and 1 Greek Lieutenant were able to escape.

According to reports, leaflets, food packages as well as pieces of clothing are being dropped from planes in the Messara area and in the area southeast of Rethimnon. Landings of submarines in the Maricaki bay to fetch Englishmen who are on the Island and to leave agents and land arms and equipment have been confirmed. Also illegal ship traffic with Egypt by means of small sailing ships from various points of the South Coast has been reported by confidential agents.

Since the conquest of the Island, at the end of May 41, a large number of English soldiers are still at liberty on the Island, who in part had not yet been imprisoned and in part had escaped from imprisonment.

In the course of time, a great number has been seized by means of several fairly large operations, and other occasions such as surrender statement made by Greeks, etc. According to reports of confidential agents another number succeeded to get to Egypt by means of submarines and illegal sailboats. The number of English soldiers on the Island, outside of agents that have been landed by plane is not thought to be very high any longer and again the Court's attention is directed to the landing of agents by plane according to statements of English prisoners about 2 to 300. They stay in the mountains in the Western Part of the Islands, and in the area around the Ida Mountains. The support that was given to these Englishmen at times by the civilian population has diminished considerably as a result of the severe sentences. This has led to denunciations on the part of the inhabitants of the country or compelled Englishmen to surrender just because they lack this support. For the reasons mentioned above, one can count on the fact that the remainder will soon be apprehended. Due to foreign domination, that has lasted for centuries, and the combats against the oppressors, the population is accustomed to the possession and the use of arms, and it is therefore difficult for the population to part with them. Campaigns, searches and fixing dead lines, brought considerable amounts of arms to light. As however, it is certain, that before, every Cretan possessed a rifle, and that during the combat in the last year a part of the arms of the combatting parties went over into the possession of the population, it may be assumed, with a fair amount of certainty that there is still a considerable amount of arms in the possession of the population.

Robber bands and cattle thieves have always been a plague to the population, and now too, these must continue to be tough with all available means. The main areas of the activity of these bands are:

1.) The area around the Ida mountain range, the Messara plain and the Asterusi mountain range which is situated South of it. In these mountain ranges several rather large bands of robbers (Panduwas, Satanas) render the country insecure.

It has been established that there is cooperation with the English. These bands are also responsible for the murder of persons friendly towards Germany, persons who in part were appointed mayors, in the area of the Messara plain, which occurred inside of four weeks in May and June of this year. Shooting of 12 hostages search of a whole series of villages held under suspicion, requisition of property belonging to Pandawas, arrest of his relatives, burning down of his house, offering of a reward for his head, evacuation of a broad strip of the Messara plain along the coast as far as the Italian sector, has brought about a considerable pacification in this area. According to reports of confidential agents Panduwas is said to have fled to Egypt.

The cattle thieves are all equipped with firearms and continue to be a considerable plague to the population.

Comparatively few acts of sabotage have been committed up to now. Only in July and August of this year, a certain number occurred in the district Chania. So far a unified organization could not be proved. It is mostly sabotage of cables, evidently with the aim of obtaining precious metal to manufacture copper nails, copper sulfate to combat parasites of the wine plants, material for bandages and such. Only in very rare cases could the perpetrators be captured. Measures taken, such as contributions, guarding of the lines by the population, arrest of hostages, advancing hours of the curfew brought about a considerable pacification in this matter also.

Franc-tireurs: Right after the termination of the combats, a serie of reprisal measures were carried out due to the participation of the population in the battle against German troops, the murder of parachutists and the atrocities which had been committed. Later on after a careful preparation a rather large scale troop operation was conducted at the beginning of August and September 1942 in the Western part of the Island, that is, in the area Alikianu - Lakki - Prasses and the Omalos Plain. During these operations a fairly large number of Greeks were shot to death by court martial, because their participation in combat had been established.

The population consisted and still consists, for the greatest part of Venezilists, that is of elements, friendly towards England, which does not mean that in general German soldiers are not treated politely and with especially pronounced hospitality. The reason for this is found in the character of the people. The hope of a large part of the population for the return of the English, depends considerably on the situation of the war in Africa and has accordingly suffered in the various ups and downs in times gone by.

The sensible part of the population has however on account of the development of war events gradually given up this hope, whereas the other large part still under the influence of the "Whispering propaganda" and the enemy radio broadcasts, which they listen to in spite of its being forbidden. The bad food situation and incapacity of the Greek authorities to bring about a change (inflation) also contribute to a lack of improvement in the attitude towards the occupying power. Summing up, it may be said that larger actions of the population are hardly to be expected as long as an attack by the English does not occur with the purpose of reoccupying the Island from outside. The general tendency of the occupying power naturally is to achieve a general pacification of the country in every respect. Nevertheless, in view of the friendliness toward England described above, it is necessary to keep strict reserve when associating with the population. This refers especially to the maintenance of secrecy.

For the Division Command The 1st Officer of The General Staff Dr. LATERNSEER:

Your Honor, I believe there has been a translation mistake here which might be of importance. On the last page of the document which has just been read, it says in the middle of the page, page 161 in the German and page 163 in the English document book, the English text says:

"A fairly large number of Greeks...." It is actually on page 163 of the English text, It says: "During these operations a fairly large number of Greeks were shot to death by court martial, because their participation in combat had been established." Oh, "Established". I have made a mistake. I withdraw my objection.

MR. DENNEY: The next document is to be inserted, your Honors. I don't know whether your Honors have it in your document book. It is NOKW -- no, I beg your pardon, this is one later.

The next document, is NOKW-132 which is at page 165 in the English and 162 in the German. This is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 240. This is an order of the General Braeuer who is commanding the fortress at Crete and it is dated 3 November 1942 and the first reference is to the OKW order of 16 September 1941 which is their order No. 2060/41 which has already been placed in evidence as prosecution's exhibit 53 and it is to be found on page 57 of Document Book II, and your Honors will recall the Keitel order which was offered at that time. It is the order setting up the ratio of 50 to one for the reprisals. The second page of the order, "In such a case the death penalty for 50 to 100 Communists generally must be deemed appropriate as retaliation for the life of a German soldier."

O R D E R For the Combatting of Insurgent Movements I.

1.) The OKW has ordered that all insurrections of bands in all countries occupied by the German Wehrmacht including all seemingly minor individual incidents are to be blamed on an insurgent movement prepared by Moscow. In view of the many economic and political tensions in the occupied territories, that means in Crete also, one must also take into consideration that nationalists and other circles will exploit this opportunity in order to bring about difficulties for the German occupation Wehrmacht in connection with the Communist revolt.

2.) Measures taken up to now to counteract this general Communist insurgent movement have proved inadequate. As early as Fall 1941 the Fuehrer ordered severest measures to be employed to combat this movement. And that of course is referring to the Keitel order of 16 September.

3.) The following directions on procedure are to be followed:

a) Each incident of insurrection against the German Wehrmacht regardless of particular circumstances must be assumed to be a Communist origin.

b) In order to nip these intrigues in the bud the severest measures are to be applied immediately at their first instance in order to demonstrate the authority of the occupying power, and in order to prevent a wider development.

One must keep in mind that frequently a human life does not count for anything in the affected countries and a deterring effect can be achieved only by unusual severity. In such a case the death penalty for 50 to 100 Communists generally must be deemed appropriate as retaliation for the life of a German soldier and that language, it is submitted, is the same as the language in the Keitel order.

The manner of execution must increase the deterrent effect.

The opposite procedure of employing relatively mild punishment at first and being content with the threat of more severe measures as a deterrent is not in line with these principles and is therefore not to be applied.

c) Propagandistically it is to be underlined that a severe procedure rids the indigenous population of Communist elements, cattle thieves and other criminals and thus, will also benefit the population.

Consequently a clever propaganda of this kind will not lead to undesirable effects in the right thinking sections of the population following upon the increasing severity of measures against Communists and bandits.

d) The indigenous police generally will fail in the execution of such measures of force. That is why the troops themselves are to carry them out.

However, the cooperation of the population in combatting bandits is absolutely essential. Rewards and recompense for people deserving it are to be given liberally and in no picayune amounts.

They are to be real incentive. And on the other hand, the reprisal measures for any assistance to the bands must be the severer.

e) If in exceptional cases court martial proceedings are initiated in connection with insurrection, sabotage, etc., the severest punishment is indicated. Here only the death penalty can be a real deterrent agent. Especially must espionage activities, acts of sabotage, and attempts to join a foreign Wehrmacht always be punished with death. Also in cases of unauthorized possession of arms is the death sentence generally to be pronounced. Persons who are met with the weapon in hand or who are under suspicion of having participated in combat action must be shot to death.

f) Persons fleeing or committing an assault on a soldier with intent to kill are to be shot at immediately with live ammunition.

The men are to be trained again and again to hardness and ruthlessness. In this way only will the lives of German soldiers be spared.

II.

In carrying out the above policies the units are to proceed according to the following directions:

1.) The Winter ahead will compel the bands, etc., still in the mountains, to return to settled areas more than it was necessary in Summer. Mostly they will appear as harmless farmers and will not easily be recognized. To catch these bandits is the most important task of the units at the beginning of the Winter. Coincidentally all villages must be cleared of non-residents. For this purpose the population must be checked even now. The commandant of the fortress, Gr. Inn, will take the necessary steps. Greatest suspicion of the mayors is indicated.

However, our units, too, will find increased difficulties of terrain and of the weather in pursuing the bands.

2.) The units will take these facts into account:

a) By increased guard control of the isle,

b) By increased training of the searching commandos and patrols.

The entire control of the island is to be organized and directed by the sector commander. All planned patrol and other operations are to be reported to them. At his discretion he can request troops of all Wehrmacht branches for guard duty in his sector in so far, as he does not thereby endanger their special assignments (For instance anti-aircraft).

3.) To 2.a) is ordered

a) The guard of the islands must be increased to the extent the occupation forces are increased. Through frequent maneuvers in the terrain, particularly in remote parts of the island, through regular sending of patrols even into rough areas up to the remotest mountain villages, the population must become aware again it cannot escape the German Wehrmacht guard at any spot on the island.

b) This guard must be carried out not only by the Infantry but by all branches of the Wehrmacht. Precisely those troops that are permanently stationed (for instance, coast artillery, flak) will welcome being sent on patrol as a change from service with the troops.

d) All guard assignments are to be carried out with arms because the bandits are equipped both with machine guns and machine pistols.

e) The guard must fulfill its duties especially well at night.

4.) To 2.b) is ordered

a) All leaders of patrols must adapt themselves to the methods chosen by the enemy in band combat. The enemy fights with cunning. The combat will admittedly be hard.

b) The unit employed is to be instructed on its task and prepared for the difficulties awaiting it by briefing as well as by physical training.

5.) Carrying out of the Guard Operation A difference must be made between guard and search operations.

Generally, the search operation will be ordered by the Commandant of the Fortress, but may become necessary during a patrol operation if the pursued men find refuge in a village or the patrol are shot at. In such a case the leaders concerned will act on their own authority and responsibility. Consequently only experienced soldiers are to be used as leaders.

In the same way sector and sub-sector leaders can order searches on their own authority where there is danger in delay.

However, all independently executed search operations are to be reported immediately afterwards to the Commandant of the Fortress Crete.

6.) Insofar as the population behaves loyally correct treatment is indicated. Exaggerated hospitality is to be rejected. Inappropriate confidence in the inhabitants of the country, particularly in those working for the Wehrmacht is to be opposed sharply. One must be on the alert everywhere for spies and informers.

7.) The unit may – for search operations – find it advantageous to ask the cooperation of the Secret Field Police and of the Field Gendarmerie

8.) It is forbidden that the unit take reprisal measures subsequent to a search action without approval by the Commandant of the Fortress Crete. Should such measures be necessary this approval is to be secured with all possible speed.

9.) Drum-head court martials are not necessary on the island since summary courts are available at any time. (KSTVO 13s).

10.) A short report on all guard and search operations is to be submitted to the sector commander. He will pass on important points to the Commandant of the Fortress.

11.) Otherwise all guard operations are to be carried out according to the policies laid down in the "Order for the Defense of the Island of Crete" (1300/42 1.11.42).

This is a communication of 14 December 1942 from the 187th Reserve Division and it is distributed down to its three component regiments, Artillery Battalion, and other copies within the Headquarters unit. It is to be noted that this is passed on only through hands of officers.

I.

With the overall situation in the Mediterranean area, becoming spread the enemy powers will seek to create the prerequisites for a new front in Europe by supporting the insurgent movement in the Balkans.

The combat of partisans in the Croatian territory must therefore be conducted ruthlessly and with the utilization of all available means. The method of combat must be adapted to the methods used by the insurgents. Surprise, speed, cunning and ambush, attacks, reconnaissance and effective reprisal measures (hostages) represent means which will suppress band activities.

All measures, which serve to reinforce the fighting strength and appear to contribute to the solution of specific problems are correct. There should not be any bureaucratic impediments.

And the courts' attention is called to the references to the various communications in this connection from the Supreme Commander Southeast.

And the last document in this book is NOKW 1489, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 242 and is on page 171 of the English and 167 of the German. This is the Hitler order which appeals the earlier Hitler order of 9 June 1941 which was placed in evidence as Exhibit 15 at page 55 on Document Book I and although we don't come to the portion until the end of the document perhaps we ought to call the court's attention to it at this time. It does not appear until the last paragraph on page 178. This is dated 28 of December 1942, transmitted by officers only, 24 copies of which this is the 10th.

Instruction No. 47

I.) The situation in the Mediterranean area renders feasible an attack on Crete and the German and Italian footholds in the Aegean and the Balkan Peninsula in the not too far future.

It must be expected that this attack will be supported by revolts in the western Balkan countries.

Page Unlabeled

The augmented influence of the Anglo-Saxon powers on the attitude of Turkey demands increased attention in that direction.

11.) Based on this situation and on the development in North Africa I transfer the defense in the Southeast area including the neighboring islands to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast who as "Commander-in-Chief Southeast" (Army Group E) is directly subordinated to me.

For the carrying out of the coastal defense the rules of instruction No. 40 are valid.

The army forces of the allied powers will be directly subordinated to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast tactically only in the case of an enemy attack.

The Naval and Air Forces of the allied powers will then be submitted tactically to the High Command of the Headquarters of the corresponding German Wehrmacht unit.

This chain of subordination will be made effective by special orders.

For the preparation of such defensive combat the following tasks devolve on the Commander-in-Chief Southeast:

- 1.) Preparation for defense along the coast with main efforts in the Dodekanese, Crete and the Peloponnesus which are to be developed for fortresses. (Exceptions Mytilene and Chios).
- 2.) Final pacification of the Hinterland and destruction of the insurgents and bands of all kinds in cooperation with the Italian 2nd Army.
- 3.) Preparation of all measures which become necessary in case of an enemy attack with the aid or consent of Turkey against the Balkans, in agreement with the Bulgarian High Command.

In addition the Commander-in-Chief Southeast controls for the German area: 875 macht committed in the Southeast, according to their request and the transport space available for the purpose.

Page 876

Decisions in all questions which result from the unified Command of all transports and communications in the occupied Southeast area for all three sections of the Wehrmacht.

Page 877

Organization of Command

A) In the German area:

- 1.) The Commander-in-Chief in the Southeast is the supreme representative of the Wehrmacht in the Southeast and exercises executive power in the areas occupied by German troops.

He supervises the Civil Administration established by the Commanders and the Commandant of the Fortross Crete.

The subordination of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast under the Commander-in-Chief, South, is cancelled as of 1 January 1943.

2.) Subordinated to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast are:

- a) For the area Croatia "The German General Plenipotentiary in Croatia" (except for his position as Military Attache) and "The Commander of the German Troops in Croatia".
- b) For the area Old Serbia "The Commanding General and Commander in Servia."
- c) For the area Saloniki and the islands Lemnos, Mytilene, Chios and Strati as well as for the neutral zone towards Turkey in Thrace, the "Commander Saloniki - Aegean."

- d) For the area of the port of Piraeus, the quarters and area of the German troops in Attica as well as the island Melos the "Commander Southern Greece."
- e) For the area Crete "The Commander of the Fortress Crete."
- f) The "Admiral Aegean" in all questions of coastal defense.
- g) The "Military Attache in Sofia" in the scope of his tasks beyond the asks of an attache. For the Navy the limits existing up to now between Navy group

3.) Luftwaffe:

- a) Command of Air Warfare aa) The Command of the Air Warfare in the entire Mediterranean area, except for the Mediterranean area belonging to the south of France, remains the task of the Commander-in-Chief South.

He receives instructions for the conduct of battle.

- (1) in the middle Mediterranean through the Commando Supremo.
- (2) in the eastern Mediterranean and the Balkan area through the Commander-in-Chief of the Luftwaffe, according to my directions.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Luftwaffe and the Commando Supremo adjust their essential intentions for the conduct of aerial warfare with one another.

- bb) In order to guarantee in joint combat actions especially in the coastal defense the centralized conduct of battle in the eastern Mediterranean and the Balkan area, the Commander-in-Chief South must designate a Headquarters which cooperates with the Commander-in-Chief Southeast with regard to the command of air warfare in that area. To this also belongs the preparation of the ground organization in the Balkan area, and the preparation of cooperation with the allied powers in case of enemy attacks.

b) Air Defense:

- aa) Preparation and command of the air defense in the Mediterranean is the task of the Commander-in-Chief South under the Commando Supremo.
- bb) In the Balkan area the preparation and command of the air defense is incumbent on the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, according to the instructions of the Commander-in-Chief South, in order thereby to establish uniformity of Command of the Air Warfare also for the eastern Mediterranean.

B) The preparation of the conduct of battle and the internal pacification of the country is to be guaranteed by close cooperation with the allied powers. In cases where it has not yet been done, Liaison officers are to be exchanged.

1). Italy:

a) Army:

Instructions considered necessary for the Italian area are to be submitted to the High Command of the Wehrmacht and synchronized by the latter with the Commando Supremo, who then gives the corresponding orders to the Italian armies operating in the southeast area.

b) Navy:

Instructions of the Commander-in-Chief Navy Group south to the Italian Admiral Dodekanes intended for preparatory measures are to be submitted to the Operations Division by the Navy Group South as orders in draft, and the Operations Division decides upon the corresponding orders together with Supremarina. The orders in question are issued by Supremarina after the consent of Commando Supremo has been obtained.

c) Luftwaffe:

Instructions considered necessary for the Italian Luftwaffe in the southeast area are to be submitted to the Commander-in-Chief South who synchronizes them with the High Command of the Italian Luftwaffe after having obtained the consent of the Commando Supremo, and effects the issue of a corresponding order.

2.) Bulgaria:

A similar procedure in cooperation with the Bulgarian Wehrmacht is being strived for (the result of the conversations with the Bulgarians is not yet available).

3.) Croatia:

The cooperation with Croatia and the utilization of the Croatian Wehrmacht continues as previously. It is the duty of the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, and the headquarters of the German Navy and Luftwaffe, to guarantee the centralization of preparations for defense in the entire Southeast area and they are authorized to examine the measures ordered for the purpose.

IV.) The Commander-in-Chief Southeast possesses all powers of a territorial Commander in relation to the three sections of the Wehrmacht and the Waffen SS in those parts of Croatia, Serbia and Greece including the Greek islands, occupied by German troops.

The areas exclusively occupied by German troops form an Operational area there, the Commander-in-Chief Southeast holds executive power via the Commanders subordinated to him.

Those parts of Croatia occupied by German troops or in which German troops operate are also counted as operations areas.

Page 881

In the areas belonging to the Italian area of occupation in which German troops are located, he holds supreme military rights for all parts of the Wehrmacht insofar as it is demanded by Military tasks of the German Wehrmacht.

For the limits of the authority of the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, with respect to the "Plenipotentiary for the Reich for the Reich for Greece", see the enclosure.

V.) Instructions No. 31 of 9 June 1941 and OKW No. 5551743/42 Top Secret Chiefs of 13 October 1942 are hereby cancelled.

Limits of Authority of the "Plenipotentiary of the Reich for Greece" and the Commander-in Chief in the Southeast"

Page 882

I.) The relations of the "Plenipotentiary the Reich for Greece" and the "Commander-in-Chief Southeast" between one another and toward the Greek government result from the following:

a) Fuehrer Decree of 28 April 1941 for the Plenipotentiary of Reich in Greece":

"1.) I appoint a 'Plenipotentiary of the Reich for Greece'. His office is in Athens.

2.) The Plenipotentiary of the Reich has to represent until formal diplomatic relations are taken up with Greece, the political, economical and cultural interest of the Reich in Greece with the new Greek government.

3.) The Plenipotentiary of the Reich has furthermore to establish the necessary contact with the Italian offices of occupation for the carrying out of his tasks."

And that is the order of quotation from decree of 28 April.

b) "The executive power is carried out by the Commander-in Chief Southeast in the areas occupied by German troops.

II.) The Commander-in-Chief Southeast has to support the Plenipotentiary of the Reich and to synchronize his own measures in Greece with the latter.

III.) The tasks in the political, economical and cultural sphere till as a rule devolve on the Plenipotentiary of the Reich.

The negotiations with the Greek government for the representation of interests of the Reich in the above mentioned sphere are incumbent on him.

The Plenipotentiary of the Reich in Greece informs the Commander-in-Chief Southeast about those questions of foreign policy, the knowledge of which is necessary for the carrying out of his military tasks.

IV.) In military instructions which may have repercussions on foreign policy, the Commander-in-Chief Southeast has to reach a prior agreement with the Plenipotentiary of the Reich for Greece, insofar as the military situation will permit.

V.) The control of propaganda in Greece insofar as Germany is concerned is the task of the Foreign Office which cooperate for that purpose with the High Command of the Wehrmacht (WFSSt/Wehrmacht Propaganda).

That concludes this book.

I would like to offer the pages which are at the end of Book VIII. Three copies for the Court, to be inserted at the end of Book VIII. Page 103-A and numbered Exhibit 215-A, for identification. Three or four copies for defense counsel, a copy for the interpreters, the stenographers and Major Hatfield. And this of course, is numbered, solely for the purposes of identification, as has been the rule before.

THE PRESIDENT: Have you given it an identification mark?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Your Honor, it is to be marked 215-A, for identification, and is to be paginated page 103, A and B, for Document Book VIII; and in the German the pagination, I believe, will be, -- can you tell me the last page in the German Book VIII, Dr. Laternser, please?

DR. LATERNSE: 77

MR. DENNERY: In the German book it will be pages 77-A and B, I should like at this time, if defense counsel have no objections, to renew the offer of the balance of Exhibit 100-B, in evidence, the first part being the pictures which were submitted to defense counsel yesterday, and then some newspaper clippings, copies of placards that were posted, and then an affidavit by one George Kiessel. All of these are from the National Commission for the investigation of War Crimes of Yugoslavia.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honors, I object as well against the submission of the pictures, as well as the record of the interrogation and the statement of George Kiessel.

First of all, regarding the pictures, I want to say this: Most of these pictures represent, undoubtedly, the killing of human beings. All countries know the death sentence according to legal procedure. In England, for instance, death sentences are, on principle, carried out by hanging, but even without a trial, according to International Law, the execution of a person may be carried out in the case of a reprisal; so this on this matter, Your Honor, I refer not only to the International Law, but also to the rules of your country which are laid down in the rules of Land Warfare, issued in Washington in the year 1940, you will find that they are expressly laid down, and this rule of the Surrogate, in see 58 B of this regulation, it says expressly: that for certain cases the killing of hostages is said to be admissible.

Your Honor I say this for the following reason. By the submission of pictures on which -- well the killing of human beings is represented, it cannot be proved that by the execution of these murders or killings a War Crime has been committed.

I will refer to the individual pictures in detail. These pictures are certainly not very beautiful. It is a great lack of tastefulness to make such pictures, but this lack of taste is not only committed by Germans.

In the Kesselring trial which took place before the British Court, the question arose also regarding such evidence. The Court, at that time only accepted in evidence photographs when witnesses could at the same time testify when the photograph was made, where it was made, and what it was supposed to represent.

In my opinion this principle should be taken into account by this Court.

Now to the individual pictures:

The Picture 2412 represents three persons hanged by the neck. It cannot be established, Your Honor, who has hanged these persons. It is known to me, and I maintain, that the inhabitants of the hinterland which were unwilling to follow the orders of the partisans, were hanged by Partisans.

I do not know either whether these persons have been hanged after a legal trial. I do not know either whether they were hanged within the framework of a reprisal admissible under International Law. For this reason I object to the submission of this photograph.

The photograph 2809 also represents an execution. It can only be submitted as proof of any illegal action if at the same time the prosecution proves that this execution did not take place after legal sentence, or not within the framework of a reprisal contrary to International Law. For this reason, I object to the submission of the Photograph 2809.

For the same reasons, Your Honor, I object to the photograph 2805. Here again there is a definite possibility that it was preceded by a legal trial. The same reasons also speak against the acceptance of a picture No. 2806.

Now as regards the photostat, No. Y103, in this case it is a placard or poster fixed on a wall that has been photographed. This poster contains no date, whatsoever but if a date is not established, the court will not be able to find out which of the defendants can be blamed for instance, for this poster.

Supposing, of course, that one can see in this poster, a commission of a war crime. For this reason, because of the lack of any definite data of this piece of evidence, I object to its submission.

Now let us turn to picture 889. Here again the picture can only be used if additionally it can be proven that this shooting did not take place after a legal trial, and not within the framework of a reprisal admissible in International Law.

The same reasons are applicable against the admission of picture 22, against picture 26, against picture 33, against picture 24, and photograph 32.

I also object to the submission of picture 2695. The picture represents a burning house. In the foreground German soldiers. What is to be proven by that?

First of all the picture does not show who set fire to this house. It does not show either whether the destruction of this house took place during combat. We all know that during war, many houses have been destroyed. Should this house – we will take the worst case have been set fire to by German soldiers, then a justification for the setting fire to this house may have been good. The justification of setting fire to this house, I also refer to the American Rules of Land Warfare, in which it says expressly that villages and houses from which hostile actions have been committed may be burned down.

This follows quite clearly from paragraph 358 (g) of the American Rules of Land Warfare. Accordingly, this picture, because it does not represent anything, must be refused.

The picture 995 represents the shooting apart from a thing that can be seen with any certainty in my view; I don't know what the original photograph looks like, or by whom this shooting was carried out. ... The prosecution handed the original to Dr. Laternser for his inspection ...

This picture can also only be used if the prosecution proves additionally that the shooting did not take place legal trial, and not within the framework of a reprisal admissible under International Law.

Picture 149, shows dead persons. It would have to be proven who has killed these people; and when that has been proven, and if it turned out that the dead persons had been killed by Germans, then in addition to that, it would have to be proved what I have repeatedly said.

For the same reason, I also object to picture 161. It is from my copy hardly possible to say what it is supposed to represent.

For the same reasons, Picture 952 cannot be used.

Picture 1030 proves nothing at all. There are a various people on this photograph, and nothing proves that this is a picture of the Camp Savac.

Page 888

DR. LATERNSEER: Now, as regards the photostat No. "Y" I assume that there has been a wrong translation. I said that on this picture, 1030, a number of persons are shown. One can not see from this picture for what reason these persons have come together. It has just been pointed out to me that this may be a matter of a motor car race, and that the people may be spectators. The Tribunal will perhaps kindly look at it to consider its admissibility. Against Picture 953 I also object because on this picture only people who cannot be recognized are represented there. For instance, no German can be seen on this picture. For the same reasons I object to the submission of picture 954 in the appendix to it it is asserted that this woman, who is pictured on that photograph, has been hunted by the Germans to be shot while running. I want to draw the Tribunal's attention to the fact that opposite to the photographer's position there are presumably Germans. If these Germans had shot this woman, then the German who has taken the photograph would have been in great danger. Picture 147 further does not prove who has killed the dead persons. The soldiers pictured on this photograph--we can see the whole surroundings--don't carry any rifles. For the same reasons I object to the submission of Pictures 205 and 206. That, by no means, proves who has killed these people. Against the submission of Picture 204 I object because the picture does not prove anything. If this photo would be accepted, then any other photograph could also be accepted. To Picture 861 I also object; to its submission, I also object for the same reasons as applied to the other pictures. I don't know whether the shooting took place after a legal trial, in the framework of an admissible reprisal. May I call the attention of the Tribunal to this. In the statement which is added it says that some of the victims gave some signs of life. It also says in this statement that this picture was made by a captured German soldier. That person who made this statement can not have found out more either than the person looking at this picture now; and from this it follows that the statement added to this picture was not made with the necessary care.

Those are the objections, Your Honors, against the submission of these pictures. I would like to justify my objections against the acceptance of the interrogation record of Kiessel. I object to this statement because this is not an affidavit. This statement was apparently made by Kiessel during his interrogation as a defendant. This statement of the witness Kiessel could be of considerable importance, and I want to point out that the Prosecution, in such cases, should be asked to present to the Court the best evidence available in every such case. And that in this case would be the witness himself.

MR. DENNEY: May it please, Your Honors, I would again like to turn to the original premise of the offer--the pictures, the affidavit, the photostatic copies of proclamations, and the phonostatic copies of newspaper excerpts--they are all official reports presented by the National Commission for the Investigation of War Crimes for Yugoslavia, and it is submitted that they are admissible, and they are to be given such probative value as the Court determines.

DR. LATERNSEER: May I say something quite briefly to this?

THE PRESIDENT: The ruling as expressed yesterday, as to 4a and 4b, 100a and 4a indicate our attitude as to the exhibits presented.

MR. JACOBSON (The Interpreter): Your key, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Repeating, the expression in this Tribunal in our ruling as to 100a and 4a, as expressed yesterday, indicate our attitude as to the exhibits here presented, and the objection will be over-ruled.

MR. DENNEY: These 24 pictures, Your Honor, are offered as part of Exhibit 100 (1 to 24), if that is agreeable.

THE PRESIDENT: Agreeable to the Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: And then the excerpts from the newspaper and the affidavit, and the placards--the excerpts which start with the one for 5 August 1941--will be offered as 100b-25; and then the one starting out with the "Proclamation of the Population of Valjevo, and the Neighborhood," which is part of Document No. NOKW-1639, will be 100b-26, and then the affidavit of Kiessel, which is part of Document No. NOKW-1637, will be 100b-27. But it is suggested that they be inserted following a prior insert, which follows page 77, and the first picture will be 77p (p for Peter); and then it's submitted that we continue on through the alphabet, and then start out with double numbers.

THE PRESIDENT: Double letters.

MR. DENNEY: Double letters. Thank you Sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you propose to give some further attention to them?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Before you do that, it is now 3 o'clock, and we will now take our afternoon recess.

(The court recessed from 1500 to 1515)

THE MARSHALL: The tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: With reference to the pictures, your honors, the sources which were given yesterday as being captured, that is being taken from German soldiers who were captured during combat, or delivered by Allied troops to the National Commission for the Investigation of Crime by these troops who had in turn found them on captured German soldiers, and the third source is confiscated originals from the German Administrative sub-area Headquarters in Belgrade. I don't think it is necessary to read the certificate on each one of them as to the Commission. However, I would like to read into the record a small portion of each of the caption, with reference to the Commission's findings.

The first picture in the group of pictures, which is 100b-1, picture No. 2412, investigation established that the picture represents the hanging of civilians in Serbia. The caption of this picture, written by the photographer, himself, shows that this incident occurred in the Spring of 1941. The caption of the picture reads, "Trees in Bloom in Serbia, Spring 1941."

100b-2, which is picture No. 2809, Investigation established that the picture represents the hanging of civilian population in the City of Pancevu-Voinodinje, 23 April 1941, a few days after the arrival of German troops in the city. And then, the printed material, rather the handwritten material which is photostated to the right of the picture, is dated Pancevu 23 April 1941, Reprisal for Four Murdered Comrades. Obviously, this is written by a German soldier and I believe it is to be fairly assumed that it either is in a letter or was affixed to the picture. 22 Hanged and 18 Shot to Death for Every German Soldier 10 Serbs; For every additional Soldier who was shot at the number of Serbs who will be hanged or shot to death is doubled.

Then the picture, which is 100b-3, picture No. 2805. Investigation established that the picture represents the hanging of the civilian population of the City of Pancevu Voinodinje, 23 April 1941, a few days after the arrival of German troops in the city and the handwritten part on the right, on the original, "A Roman owned a Restaurant, Secret passage went from there underneath the road to the Cemetery 200 meters, leading to a camp.

The German guards were shot to death from the Cemetery; all hanged persons were caught in the Cemetery."

Then 100b-4. This represents the same scene as the prior two pictures and therefore I won't read it. However, the writing at the right states, "After the ropes of the gallows had stretched the feet of hanged persons touched the ground, soldiers put a top hat on the Serb on the right", and it can be seen in the picture.

100b-5, which is a photostat of the placard; the translation of the placard is, "Confirmation Military Commander Serbia announces in the village of Skela a Communist band has fired on a German Wehrmacht vehicle. It has been established that certain village residents had the opportunity of notifying unobserved nearest Serbian Gendarmerie stations. It has been established that these village residents had the opportunity to notify German vehicles concerning the plot without being observed. They did not make use of this opportunity and consequently have sided with the criminals. The village of Skela has been leveled to the ground by fire. At that time ammunition exploded in some houses proving the complicity of the residents whose complicity has been proven were shot to death. 50 Communists were hanged on the spot." This photostat corresponds to the original of the German poster issued on 15 August and found in the burned out Archives of the German Administrative Headquarters in Belgrade under No. 559 and your Honors will recall from the evidence the incident which is cited.

The picture No. 889/920 which is 100b-6; the picture represented the scene from the mass shootings to death of hostages and civilians in the village of Skela in Mokva -, Serbia in 1941.

The picture No. 22218, 100b-7; The picture is one of MilovardProkeac who was hanged by the Germans in the main market of Belgrade on 17 August 1941.

The picture 24/1216, which is 100b-10 represents Belovir Jovanovic was hanged by the Germans in the main market of Belgrade on 17 August 1941.

The picture No. 32/1219 which is 100b-11 represents Radko Jeptic who was hanged by the Germans in the main market of Belgrade on 17 August 1941.

The picture which is numbered 2695/2209 which becomes 100b-12 represents the setting afire of the village in Bosnia in the year 1941 at the time of the penal exhibition.

The picture which is numbered 9995/5530 which is 100b-13 represents a scene of mass shooting to death of hostages and civilians by the Germans and of course of the penal exhibition in Sabac, Serbia in 1941.

The picture which is numbered 149-55, which is 100 -B-14, represents bodies of executed civilian population in the street of the city of Sabac. These people were killed by Germans in the course of a so-called penal expression on 21/22 August 1941.

The picture 161/567, which is 100-B-15, represents the burial in a common grave of the murdered civilian population in Sabac, who had been killed in the year 1941 by the Germans.

The picture 912/527, which is 100-B-16, represents the bodies of persons killed in Sabac, which were hanged on electric telephone poles on 21 and 22 August 1941.

The picture 1030/1075, which is 100-B-17, represents the camp in Sabac, Serbia, where the civilian population was collected toward the end of September 1941, and from there to be taken on a so-called death march for mass annihilation and mistreatment.

The picture marked 953/528, which is 100-B-18, investigation established that the picture represents a scene from the so-called death march in Sabac on 26 September 1941. The Germans forced these people to run for 30 kilometers. Those who stopped because they were tired were shot to death.

The picture which is numbered 954/529, which is 100-B-19, represents a scene from the death march in Sabac on 26 September 1941. The Germans chased this woman in order to shoot her to death while she ran, and then photographed the scene.

The picture which is 147/553, which is 100-B-20 represents the road along which the bloody march of Sabac, Serbia took place in September 1941. It is strewn with corpses killed by the German soldiers on that occasion. The dead came from the civilian population of the city of Sabac.

The picture 205/603, which is 100-B-21, represents mass shootings to death of civilians on 21 October 1941 in Sabac, Serbia, where the penal expedition executed more than 5,000 men and women.

And Your Honors, will recall the exhibits in the early part of Book III, which had to do with the Kragujevac retaliatory killings.

100-B-22, which is 306/604, represents a group of dead peasants, in the village of Marsec, near Kragujevac, who were killed by Germans on the 28 of October 1941, in the course of a penal expedition in Kragujevac. In the neighborhood on that occasion several thousands of civilians were executed. This refers to the same incident with reference to which the prior picture refers.

The picture which is numbered 204/604, which becomes Exhibit 100-B-23, represents a group of persons who were taken in Kragujevac for mass shootings to death on 21 October 1941, when the penal expedition of the German Wehrmacht executed more than 5,000 civilians.

The picture 861/997, which is 100-B-24, represents the mass shooting to death of the civilian population in the church of Vare-Skela near Sabac, in October 1944.

With your Honors permission I should like to withdraw the original and substitute photostatic copies, if agreeable with your Honors.

THE PRESIDENT: It is so ordered.

MR. DENNEY: Major Hatfield, I have indicated the exhibit numbers on the bottom, and I believe the set of photostats which I am giving you are the same, so if you will copy them off so I might have them back, at your convenience.

MAJOR HATFIELD: May I just keep the copy I have?

MR. DENNEY: Surely, if you have a copy very well. I did not know the copies were marked; we marked the originals, so if you will check them with your copy which you have marked and return them to me I will appreciate it.

And Your Honors attention is directed to Exhibit 85, and the succeeding and prior exhibits, with reference to the matter herein cited.

Then coming to the first of the three documents, -- the one which has at the top the identifying number, 100-B-25, which is an excerpt from the Novi list (Jeues Blatt) of 5 August 1941, reciting "The Communist Plague will be Rooted out."

In this instance I believe the first page will become 77(P). I believe Your Honors have copies of that, which came to Your Honors yesterday.

THE PRESIDENT: I have them; I trust my associates have.

My associates have indicated that they have these copies.

MR. DENNEY: Perhaps Your Honors would like to have a copy to follow. The first excerpt is from the Novi List ("Neues Blatt") 5 August 1941, "The Communist Plague will be Rooted Out."

"90 Serbian Communists were shot in Veliki Beckerek Belgrade, 4 August 41.

Under the heading "The Communist plague will be rooted out", the Belgrade newspaper "Novo Vreme" dated first instance published the following official report:

Because of criminal attempts of irresponsible Communist elements in Banat to sabotage the Nation's wheat supplies by fire, and because of treacherous assaults on members of the German Wehrmacht, which occurred recently, it has become necessary to take severe measures.

For this reason 90 known Communists from the Banat were shot on 31 July 1941 in Veliki Beckerek. It is again called to the attention of the population that it is to its own interest to cooperate actively with the authorities in fight against bolshevism."

The next page, which is 77 (Q), (for queen):

"Novi List (Neues Blatt), 19 August 1941

ONE SERBIAN VILLAGE LEVELED TO THE GROUND BECAUSE OF ASSISTANCE TO COMMUNISTS.

Belgrade, 18 August 1941 The Belgrade newspaper "Novo Vreme" of Saturday, the 16th publishes in large letters on the front page this communique of the Commander of the German Wehrmacht in Serbia:

In the locality of Skela a Communist band shot at a German Wehrmacht car. It has been ascertained, that several inhabitants of the locality had noticed the preparations for this attack. It has been ascertained, that the inhabitants were in the position to alert the Serbian Gendarmeria station located in the vicinity without danger of being observed. It was ascertained, that the inhabitants could have notified the German Wehrmacht car of the planned attack without endangering themselves at all. They did not take advantage of this opportunity and thus have sided with the criminals.

The locality of Skela was leveled to the ground by fire. On this occasion ammunition exploded in several houses. Thus the participation of the inhabitants has been proved.

Those male inhabitants of the locality, whose complicity could be proved, were shot. 50 Communists were hanged on the spot.

And then the similarity between that and the placard which was the only placard among the pictures which have been offered, which was submitted so as to get no comment.

THE PRESIDENT: What page number did you give this?

MR. DENNEY: 77 (Q), for Queen, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Are you numbering them by following the alphabet down as you go?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, starting with "A" and then starting with double letters, double "A" and "B", etc., if that is agreeable with your Honors.

THE PRESIDENT: It is agreeable.

MR. DENNEY: Then 77(R), (for Roger), "The Communists sentenced in Sarajevo."

Sarajevo, 18 August 1941 MIHAILO POPOVICI and SALOM AIBAHARI had to defend themselves before the Senate of the mobile summary court-martial because of Communist propaganda.

Through court proceedings it has been ascertained that the above-mentioned organized a Communist party and distributed pamphlets with Communist contents and thus the Senate of the mobile summary court-martial condemned them to death.

Page 898

The punishment was carried out by shooting after a legal respite.

Page 899

Next is 77s:

"Donauzeitung, 2nd September 1941 "Cruel Revenge, "Belgrade, 1 September 1941 "In the area of the district headquarters of Sajetschar seven Jews and Communists were shot.

"In the homes of a male and female teacher from Turija, who had been active as leaders of bandit groups, pictures of Stalin and other Communist leaders were found hanging on the walls. The houses were burned down, likewise the house of Popovitsch, Wujiza, from Turija, who together with his son Josef also participated in the bandit attack on Kutschewo.

"In addition seven more houses were burned, which are owed by members of bands."

77t is the translation sheet. 77u:

"Donauzeitung, 4 September 1941" With the caption "Fifty for One"."An authoritative source states:

This morning a German soldier was openly shot on a street in Belgrade. In retaliation for this cowardly assassination 50 Communist bandits were immediately shot."

77w:

"Novo Vreme (Neue Zeit), 16th September 1941 "Punishment for Common Murder "Belgrade, 15th September 41 "As penalty for a common murder of a German soldier 50 captured persons known to be Communists were shot."

77x:

"Novo Vreme (Neue Zeit), 25 September 1941 "Execution of Communist Leaders "Belgrade, 25 September 1941 "From an authoritative source it is stated that in the Banat villages Kumane, Melenci, and Mokrin ten Communists were shot on 6 September 1941 and hung up for 24 hours.

They were found to have been the instigators of Communist cruelties and acts of sabotage."

77y:

"Combat against the Communists in Serbia "12 Communists Were Shot as Reprisal Measures.

"Zagreb, 27 September 1941 "The Belgrade newspaper 'Novo Vreme' dated 27 September 1941 publishes the following report on the shooting of Communists in Serbia:

"As reprisal measures for sabotage acts on the railroad line Veliki Beckerek – Pancevo 12 Communists were shot and hanged within 24 hours.

"Zagreb, 29 September 1941 "In the Belgrade newspaper 'Novo Vreme' dated 27 September 1941 the combats of the Communist-Chetnik bands near Mladenovac with units of the public security were described:

"In this fight 15 Communists were killed and 15 caught alive. Thirty rifles and 5 machine guns were found. During the fight 2 persons of the units of the public security were killed and 8 wounded."

77z:

"Novi List (Neues Blatt) 23 October 1941 "200 Jews and Communists Were Shot in Belgrade "Zagreb, 22 October 1941 "The Belgrade newspaper 'Novo Vreme' dated 19 October 1941 publishes the following official report on the first page:

"On 17 October 1941 200 Communists and Jews were shot as reprisal measures for assaults from an ambush on two members of the German Wehrmacht in the streets of Belgrade."

77aa:

"Donauzeitung, 28 October 1941 "Communists Do Not Escape Retaliation "Belgrade, 27 October 1941 "A German sentry was attacked and wounded by Communists on the 15th of this month in Belgrade.

In retaliation for this malicious attempt at murder 50 Belgrade Communists were shot today."

77bb. This is an account in a different paper, the Novo Vreme, which was referred to in the Donauzeitung for the same date, the 27th of October, and recites the shooting of 50 Belgrade Communists for the attack on the 15th of the month on a German sentry, which resulted in his being wounded.

77cc. This is another recital of the incident first reported in Donauzeitung, and then in the last excerpt at 77bb, and now here:

"Novi List (Neues Blatt), 30 October 1941 "50 Belgrade Communists Were Shot "Zagreb, 29 October 1941" the shooting to death of 50 Communists for the attack on a German sentry.

77dd:

"Hrv. Narod (Kroatisches Volk), 30 October 1941.

'50 Belgrade Communists Were Shot for Attacking a German Sentry.

"Zagreb, 29 October 1941 "The Belgrade newspaper 'Obnova' of the 27th of this month prints the following official information in heavy type on its front page:

"On the 15th of this month Communists attacked and wounded a German sentry. In retaliation for this malicious murder attempt 50 Belgrade Communists were shot today."

This again recites the same incident from a different paper.

77ee:

"Novo Vreme (Neue Zeit), 4 November 1941 "Retaliation for Cowardly Attack "Belgrade, 3 November 1941 "An authoritative source states:

"In retaliation for a cowardly attack on a German sentry on 3 November 1941 100 Communists and Jews were shot."

77ff:

"Serbia "Attack on a German Sentry "Berlin, 4 November 1941 "The Southeastern Radio (Suedostfunk) reports from Belgrade:

Page 902

"According to the statement by an authoritative source, a number of Jews and Communists were shot Monday in retaliation for a cowardly attack on a German sentry."

77gg:

"Novi List (Neues Blatt) 7 November 1941 "In Belgrade 100 Communists and Jews Were Shot "Zagreb, 6 November 1941 "The Belgrade newspaper Novo Vreme of November 4th, 1941, prints the following official notification on its front page:"

And there again the same incident that was referred to on "77ee", with reference to the "shooting of 100 Communists and Jews for an attack on a German sentry 3 November 1941".

And the last page, 77hh - and this is for 6 November 1941:

"Kroatisches Volk, 8 November 1941 "100 Communists and Jews Were Shot in Belgrade "Zagreb, 6 November 1941."

And it refers to the Belgrade newspaper Novo Vreme which is "77ee" and recites the same incident of 100 Communists and Jews being shot for an attack on a German sentry 3 November.

The next pages are those other than the affidavit, which are part of NQKW 16939, which has been labeled 100B-26, and the pages will continue on, the first one being "77ii".

This is a placard to the population of Valjevo and neighborhood:

"Pursuant to proclamation of 20 October 1941, 50 hostages were shot to death as a reprisal measure because a member of the German Wehrmacht of the garrison Valjevo was wounded by bandits in the neighborhood of Valjevo near Iverak on 20 October 1941."

(Signed) "The Garrison Commander" 77kk:

"Proclamation from the Garrison Headquarters "Kragujevac, 21 October 1941 "The cowardly and treacherous attacks on German soldiers during the last week, during which 10 were killed and 26 wounded, must be atoned.

"That is why 100 residents of the country were shot to death for each German soldier killed and 50 for each German soldier wounded, a total of 2,300 – mainly Communists, bandits and their accomplices.

"In the future each similar case, even though it may be merely an act of sabotage, will be met by counter measures of equal severity.

"The Garrison Commander" Your Honors will recall in Exhibit 85 there is a reference to Kragujevac, and also in Exhibit 86, where there is a reference to 2200 Serbs.

7711:

"Garrison Headquarters Kragujevac Local Headquarters 22 October 41 "Proclamation:

If shots are fired from any house, all residents of this house from 15 years of age upwards will be arrested and shot to death.

"The house will be burned down.

"The Garrison Commander" 77mm:

"Serbs.

"The winter with its snow storms is right around the corner. The Communist bandits hiding in the forests will attempt to withdraw into the villages in order to find shelter and food among the peaceful peasants.

"The German Wehrmacht and the Nedic Government has resolved to clean up finally the Communist pest and to secure quiet and order for the Serbian population.

"It will not tolerate that these bandits find shelter with peasants, that they will be hidden there in order that they may again pursue their band activities in the spring.

"For this reason it is proclaimed that:

"Persons giving shelter to insurgents, "Persons not reporting their place of sojourn, "Persons supplying them with food, "Persons transmitting messages to them, "Persons committing acts of sabotage by their orders, "Persons supporting them either by working for them or otherwise will be considered insurgents themselves and will be shot to death.

"Serbs.

"The fate and the future of your families and your nation rest with you. You may choose between quiet, order peaceful work and reconstruction or annihilation as handymen of the Communists bandits."

Mr. DENNEY: The next page, which is 77n (for Nann):

No. 98 Received from District Headquarters Belgrade Text:

Serbs

Certified that this poster of the German Military Occupation Administration was found in the library of the municipal authorities of the City of Belgrade which had received it officially.

MR. DENNEY: And this applies to the prior poster. Next 77oo (for Oboe) proclamation to "Citizens of Tschatschak: Our troops have left your city because you did not display any good will in the fight against Communist Bands. You, yours elves have felt the entire brutality and thirst for blood of the mercenaries of lost Red Moscow and of Jewish London. You saw the effect on your city of a small penal expedition by our dive bombers." Here the Germans use the term "penal expedition" themselves.

You, yourselves, must decide as to what will happen to your city and yourselves.

There are two possibilities:

- 1) You, yourself, liquidate the Communist Bands to the best of your ability or
- 2) You prevent the Communist gangsters from shooting from your city at any member of the German penal expedition.

If you do not choose either one, you may ascribe the guilt for the ruin of your city, of your family and of your own life to yourselves and to the monsters which have caused all that, to the Jewish - Moscovite Communist profit and to the beaten Slavic bloodhound Josip VISARIONOVIC DZUGASCHVILJ - STALJIN who fled from Moscow to the frontiers of Persia.

One of these days, the German Wehrmacht will restore order in Western Serbia and in your city. The best example for the methods applied are:

SAPAC, VALJEVO, the entire MACVA, VITKOVAC, VITANOVAC, ZICA, RIDNICA and the other villages through which the troops of the penal expedition of the German Wehrmacht have marched.

MR. DENNEY: And the last page will be 77pp (for Peter). Coming now to the last part of the offer, which was 100b-27, which was the affidavit of one George Kiessel, the first page of this is 77qq (for queen). "Minutes of Interrogation, recorded in the Military Prison Belgrade, 24 March 1947",

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, Mr. Denney. Is there any other identifying mark at the top of the identification of the exhibit?

MR. DENNEY:NOKW-1637, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: And part of Exhibit 100b?

MR. DENNEY: 100b-27, Sir.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

MR. DENNEY: And the first page is 77qq (for queen) "Present:

Vladislav Sambaher, Interrogator Mihailovic Leposava, Stenographer Georg Kiessel was brought in and answered the questions put to him as follows:

My name is Georg Kiessel. I was born in Nuremberg on 31 October 1907. Home address: Pommelsbrunn near Nuremberg. Profession: Senior Government Councillor with the State Police Main Office - Waffen SS: Untersturmfuehrer. Married to Ilse nee Daubenspeck. Father of 3 children.

The office of Military Commander Serbia was established in Belgrade on 20 April 1941. The 1st Military Commander was General der Klieger i.e. of the Luftwaffe Foerster. After a brief period of subordination to the OKH he was subordinated after a few days to the Commander-in-Chief 12th Army i.e. to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. This was General Field Marshal List in Athens, later in Saloniki. The Military Commander had at his disposal immediately subordinate to him a General Staff with Gravenhorst Lieutenant Colonel G.S.C. as its Chief and an Administrative Staff with the Prussian State Councillor Dr. Thurner as its Chief.

MR. DENNEY: And here, if Your Honors please, "Thurner" is spelled with an "h". As we have had in Exhibit 17, which he signed, the "h" was omitted in the English; but it is submitted that it is the same man that they are talking about. That exhibit is on Page 63 of Book I. "It was in compliance with conception of Military Administration that military interests took precedence over all other interests. This was necessary for the military security of the troops. Thus the General Staff did not only attend to military interests, as such, but it also represented military interests in so far as these impinged upon civilian matters, as for instance in the case of the police of the occupied country (number and equipment). Regional defense battalions and Field Gendarmerie units were available to the General Staff."

It was the duty of the Administrative Staff to render expert advice to the Military Commander. Even as far as numbers were concerned it was constructed in accordance with the system of a supervisory administration, i.e. its main task consisted of checking up on the administration of the occupied country only in so as far as German interests were concerned. For instance there was a civil servant for the Minister of Justice, a civil servant for the Minister of Culture etc. Thus all Ministries in so as far as they belonged within the competence of Administration had one civil servant each at their disposal. Another voice in Military Administration was the Plenipotentiary General for Economics, Consul General and NSFK (National Socialist Flying Corps) - Gruppenfuehrer Neuhausen. However he was subordinate to the Military Commander only formally i.e., in military matters. Directives respecting his specific assignments he received from Goering in the latter's capacity as head of the Four Year Plan. Subordinated to the Military Commander as genuine outfits (Organe) were four Administrative Sub-area Headquarters: Belgrade; Smederevo; Pancevo and Vrnjacka Banja; Uzice later Sabac and Nish. They were set up by the OKH (Generalquartiermeister) outside of the country as self-sufficient structures.

The Feldkommandant (Commander of Sub-area Administrative Headquarters) was the actual representative of the Military Commander for his area. The organization and structure of his office corresponded essentially to that of the Military Commander, however on a much smaller scale. The So called Major with the Staff corresponded to the Ia with the Chief of the General Staff. The Ic corresponded to the Ic. There was a Law Officer and all other duties were concentrated in the hand of some officers. The so-called Administrative Group consisting of at most 3 to 4 officials corresponded to the Administrative Staff. The Administrative Group in due course was joined by 3 or 4 Economics Officers. As far as I can recall they worked in fields of agriculture and food which were included formally in the Administrative Group. The Feldkommandant was the jurisdictional authority for his area and simultaneously Garrison Commander, i.e. he was responsible for the preservation of public peace and order as well as for the discipline of his own troops. The General Staff Administrative Staff of the Military Commander could issue orders and/or directives to the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters where their affairs were concerned. In such a case both Chiefs signed: For the Military Commander in Serbia the Chief of the General Staff and/or the Administrative Staff. It was quite customary in current matters that the Chief himself let alone the Military Commander did not sign. Instead the corresponding Branch Chief and/or Group Chief of both Staffs - signed "i.A." by order, i.e. by order. The issuance of orders by the Economics Staff was very difficult. Neuhausen, who wanted to maintain his independence, channelled his orders through the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters by way of the Military Commander at the latter's request. I do not know the detailed channels since we were excluded from it. However since both the Military Commander as well as we ourselves disagreed with Neuhausen's system in essential points and Neuhausen on the other hand was supported by Goering's authority, the grotesque situation frequently developed wherein the Sub-area Administrative and District Headquarters - hence the authorities of the Military Commander - were obliged to carry out orders with which the Military Commander himself was in complete disagreement.

In the beginning of July 1941 the Chief of the Uniformed Police Berlin sent Police Battalion 64 with Major Josten as Commander to Belgrade as a police unit complete within itself. It was tactically subordinated to the Military Commander. Notwithstanding Thurner's objections General von Schroeder subordinated the Police Battalion to the General Staff.

MR. DENNEY: Here, if Your Honors please, you see this uniformed police battalion coming down and being subordinated to the General Staff. "The 3 Companies were transferred to Belgrade, Uzice and Valjevo. The Company in Belgrade was employed for guard duty but the General Staff also misused it for reprisal measures contrary to its real duties. (Operation Skela) and for special purpose employment of the Einsatzgruppe Security Police and for blocking off roads and also for reprisal measures."

The Commanding Officer as well as other officers of the Battalion protested against the last named employment so that Thurner finally succeeded in Berlin in having some influence on the Battalion beginning 1 October 1941. From this moment on all activity of the Battalion pertaining to reprisal measures ceased. Now, aside from the remaining armament tasks ordered partially by the Military Commander himself, its main duty consisted of training Volksdeutsche in the Banat for the tasks of Uniformed Police which was to be followed by the training of Serbs and Hungarians. Before the first course had been finished the office of the Senior SS and Police Leader had been installed, whereupon the Battalion came under the command of the Commander of the Uniformed Police General Nay who was with this office. I can make no further statements regarding its employment.

In my opinion the Staff of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast knew of the subordination and employment of the Police Battalion. I base this belief on the following reasons:

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, I can feel that it is certain that a witness, where he can only testify in writing, cannot do more than he would be allowed to do if he were present here as a witness. It is recognized that a witness has to testify to facts. To testify as to opinions is not permitted for him. For the Tribunal has to form its own opinions, and when the defense objects, the Tribunal may also not receive opinions of a witness. This paragraph which starts -- that is, in the English version, "In my opinion etc," does not contain facts, but an opinion as is shown later. The witness, later on, gives a justification. That is something that is not permitted to a witness; and I therefore, move that the reading of this paragraph may not be admitted, and, inasmuch as it has already been read, this testify should be stricken from the record, which I move herewith.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is conscious of the rules of evidence to which counsel refers and we wish to state that we will give consideration only to facts presented and not to conclusions announced.

MR. DENNEY: 1) When General von Schroeder subordinated the Battalion to the General Staff, Thurner protested so vehemently that a heated argument with the General developed who, thereupon, referred to the agreement of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to this subordination.

2) When I protested against the Operation Skela to Lieutenant Colonel Gravenhorst and at first requested an investigation, Gravenhorst expressly referred to the order of Chief of General Staff Southeast Foertsch. And it is submitted here that although an opinion is cited up above, this part clearly recites what the witness did.

5) In addition the General Staff of the Military Commander must report to the Military Commander Southeast regarding the employment of subordinate units. (These reports) also showed clearly how the Police Battalion was employed. The three occupation divisions transferred to Serbia were not subordinate to the Military Commander regarding training and command but to the so-called Corps Commander. And that is 69 in the English; that should be 65, under the command of army Lieutenant General Rader and the Chief of General Staff Colonel G.S.C. Kewisch. These were so-called Divisions of the 15th Wave; they were not assault divisions and were to be trained and equipped properly until they arrived in Serbia. As far as I can recall they were numbered 704, 714, and 717. The Division Generals I can recall were Brigadier General Hoffmann and his successor Brigadier General Hinghofer.

The staff of General Bader, like that of the Military Commander, was organized like the staff of a German Infantry Corps (Chief, 1a, 1c, 11a, 11b, 111, Intendant etc.).

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, pardon me. I take it that you will not be able to complete this document this afternoon?

MR. DENNEY: No, your Honor, there are still four pages.

THE TRIBUNAL: The Tribunal is personally conscious of the heat. Those associated with this Tribunal, I take it, are also conscious of that fact. That being the circumstances, we will—adjourn at this time until 9:30 Monday morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 28 July 1947 at 0930 hours.)

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List, et al, defendants, sitting at Nuernberg, Germany, on 28 July 1947, 0930, Justice Wennerstrum presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal 5. Military Tribunal 5 is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal. There will be order in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, you will ascertain if all the defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE MARSHAL: May it please Your Honors, all the defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honors. On Friday, just prior to adjournment, we were considering the affidavit of George Kiessel, a former SS-Untersturmfuehrer, and this affidavit, if Your Honors will recall, is concerned with the organization and chain of command in the Southeast. There was one portion which I would like again to call to Your Honors' attention which we had just completed prior to the adjournment. That is on page 27 of the English, Document No. NOKW-1637, which is 100B-27, and is at page 77tt ("t" for tare). It appears opposite letter "2", and Kiessel is speaking here of a personal experience, although it appears to be an opinion, as pointed out by the defense counsel earlier. Nevertheless, at paragraph 2 he states:

"When I protested against the Operation Skela to Lieutenant Colonel Gravenhorst and at first requested an investigation, Gravenhorst expressly referred to the order of the Chief of the General Staff Southeast Foertsch.

And there we have a subordinate speaking of an order which he received from the Chief of Staff of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Turning then to page 77uu, at the top of page 3 of the original:

"The staff of General Bader, like that of the Military Commander, was organized like the staff of a German infantry corps (Chief, Ia, Ic, IIa, IIb, III, Intendant, etc.)

. Only the Ib was lacking, i.e. the quartermaster branch which the Military Commander and the Corps Command had in common. It was the duty of the Corps Command to direct the management and training of the three divisions. Regarding commitment (of troops) General Bader had to take orders from the Military Commander in the latter's capacity as so-called Territorial Commander. However, the operational and tactical execution was exclusively his affair. Because of personal differences the connection was such a lax one that in practice General Bader and his General Staff regulated all measures pertaining to troop command and troop employment according to their own discretion. The immediate subordination of the Corps Command to Military Commander Southeast enabled General Bader of course to request direct orders from there personally. It was significant of the situation, for instance, that during the first visit of General Field Marshal List in 1941 List landed first in Nish asking General Bader but not the Military Commander to come there so that the General Field Marshal received his first local information from the Troop Commander and not from the Military Commander.

"Notwithstanding the report of General Field Marshal List 23 August 1941 in Belgrade - after Nedic had been appointed Prime Minister - the OKH sent Boehme, Lieutenant General of Mountain Troops, with the staff of the XVIII Mountain Corps, which was in Greece, to Belgrade with the mission to suppress the insurrection. Boehme bore the title of Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. This double title obviously was to show authoritatively that he was simultaneously the superior of Military Commander Dankelmann and of the troop commander Bader."

And it is submitted that this supports the earlier exhibits, which Your Honors will recall, where List, in September 1941, requested that Boehme be sent there, and then the OKW order, ordering Boehme there, and List of course sending him there, where he became the Supreme Commander for the area of Serbia, responsible only to List, and of course, subsequently too for the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. "Anything regarding military organization and units was subordinated to him."

That, of course, is speaking of the Commander General and Commander in Serbia.

"Chief of the General Staff was Pemsel, Colonel, GSC. Otherwise his staff was organized like a real corps staff (as above) which however was particularly suitable for combat. Genuine combat divisions put at his disposal were the 342nd Infantry Division, which, as far as I know, came from France, and the 113th Infantry Division. When Boehme had reported to the Wehrmacht Commander SE that the insurrection in Serbia had been suppressed and that peace had been restored, he was recalled with his entire staff. At the end of November or beginning of December he went to Salzburg with his entire staff...

"The office of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast developed from the General Staff of Commander-in-Chief 12th Army General Field Marshal List. This event was a result of a political argument between the OKH and the OKW whereby the OKH was eliminated from the Balkan area in so far as command authority was concerned. The designation Wehrmacht Commander did not only designate the subordination of all troop units but the quality of territorial commander and bearer of the sovereignty of the Reich."

And this, of course, is submitted to show the vast powers which were held by the Armed Forces Commander Southeast, List, at that time, and his subordinate, or his follower, Kuntze, and then those who followed him.

"I am not acquainted with the detailed organization of the staff. Senior Military Administrative Councillor Dr. Parisius was with the Staff in charge of affairs of the Military Administration in its narrower meaning, that is to say, affairs of the Administrative Staff. Chief of General Staff was the later Brigadier General Foertsch. Colonel GSC Josef Kuebler was Ia up to November 1941 and he was followed by Brigadier General Macher. Lieutenant Colonel GSC Pfafferoth was the Ic. He later became Chief of the General Staff of Combat Group Bader. There was an extremely close connection between the General Staff of the Military Commander in Serbia with the General Staff of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

Gravenhorst repeatedly emphasized to me that he had daily telephone conversations with Foertsch."

And then, of course, this sets up the Command Staff connection between those units and the statement that there were daily telephone conversations with the defendant Foertsch.

"Colonel Kewitsch also had very close connections with Foertsch."

Of course, Gravenhorst is the Chief of Staff of the Military Commander, and Kewitsch is Chief of Staff to Bader.

"In addition regular reports of the General Staff and extra immediate reports in case of special events kept the General Staff of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast currently informed. A regular monthly report had to be made by the Administrative Staff regarding its activities which also had to be submitted to the Wehrmacht Commander. In turn the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast published a situation report in which it was stated literally several times that the Military Commander Serbia did not agree with the opinions of the Administrative Staff.

"The first reprisal measures which became known to me were carried out by order of General von Schroeder between 28 June 1941 and 10 July 1941 for an attempt to dynamite a grandstand. According to the statements of the General and of von Gravenhorst these orders had been approved by Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. During the many arguments I had with Gravenhorst during the following weeks he simply asserted that he had been empowered to request ten reprisal victims for one German victim."

Now, the Gravenhorst here is the same one, the Chief of Staff of the Military Commander Serbia, and here Kiessel is talking about Schroeder who was then the Military Commander Serbia; and he says that according to the statements of General Schroeder and Gravenhorst as Chief of Staff these orders for the execution of reprisal measures came from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, which at that time, in June and July 1941, was the defendant List.

"As I was told after returning from my father's funeral, fifteen persons had been hanged for this attempted plot. They had nothing at all to do with the affair but five of them, by the express order of von Schroeder, were reported to have been Jews. Before the start of the insurrection, i.e. before 22 June 1941, the General assigned the Belgrade population to guard duty liable with their own person because of several destructions of telegraph poles. At the time we had been successful in deterring him from seizing hostages in connection with that affair. Furthermore I know - through a report from Acimovic - of the shooting of hostages in and near Uzice after the attack on General Lontschar."

And Your Honors will recall the attack on General Lontschar, which has been the subject of discussion at earlier times.

"I immediately telephoned the Administrative Group Chief of SubArea Administrative Headquarters, Dr. Dietrich. But he told me that the operation, which was known to his office also, had been carried out by the troops because of the attack on the Regimental Commander and it was done without the participation of Administrative Sub-area Headquarters.

A further reprisal measure known to me is the case of the village of Skela. Arriving at my office on that morning I found a note by Gravenhorst asking to come to a conference. This conference was already underway. Some officers of the General Staff and 2 Police Officers participated. Gravenhorst was dictating strict orders to one of the police officers according to which a number of men, if I remember correctly, - about 50 were to be hanged in the village of Sjela and the village to be burned down. Thereupon I asked Gravenhorst to interrupt the conference and went outside with him to ask him what had happened. He explained that a 1st Lieutenant of the Police Battalion and 3 to 4 men returning from Sabac to Belgrade had been attacked near Skela and killed. Their bodies had been thrown into the Save. To my query as to whether an investigation had been conducted, I received a negative reply. The report sufficed him. This gave rise to an unusually vehement altercation between us and he defended himself with the explanation that the order had been issued and had to be carried out and that he had to explicit approval of the Chief of the General Staff Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Brigadier General Foertsch to proceed with such severe measures. I asked him why he had called me at all and he told me I was to inform the Serbian government of the impending measure. General Dankelmann, if my memory serves me right, did not play any part at all in the Skela events. All I can remember is that his name stood at the end of the subsequent proclamation to the population. Along with the severe orders which he brought to suppress the insurrection General Boehme also transmitted the order to the troops (Fuehrer Order) according to which 100 Serbs were to be shot to death for 1 dead German. The independent reprisal measures of the 342nd Infantry Division in the Macva and the incidents in Kragujevac and Kraljevo were a result of this. Boehme allegedly did not hear about this until later"

This Fuehrer order that they are talking about, it is submitted, is the Keitel order, Exhibit 53 of 16 September 1941 which is at page 67 in Document Book II, and the Boehms order of 10 October 1941 is Exhibit 8 which is at page 34 of Book III, and this whole thing shows the military in connection with the police and the SS people getting together and discussing this Skela operation, and then the chief of the military commander Serbia telling this affiant Kiessel that this reprisal measure for the attack on the Lieutenant of the Police Battalion and three to four men had been ordered by the Chief of the -- that is, that he had the explicit approval of the Chief of the General Staff of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Brigadier General Foertsch, to proceed with these measures and that the order had been issued and had to be carried out.

And turning over to page 74 -- YY, "All orders of the OKW went by normal channels via Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to the Commander in Serbia," so it is submitted that that establishes the fact that the orders from OKW did not by-pass the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and come down to the Plenipotentiary and Commanding General in Serbia as well as the Military Commander Serbia, but that they all came through the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast first.

"I know that in 1941 the Security Police frequently exchanged information with both General Staffs and that the Security Police participated in several operations. The Administrative Sub-area Headquarters also informed us of arrest actions carried out by order of the General Staff whereby the arrestees had to be transferred to the Security Police in Belgrade. When I say 'two Staffs' I refer to that of the Military Commander and that of General Bader."

Now here as early as 1941 the Security Police. Your Honors recall the reports of Security Police and SD have been issued from Berlin at various times beginning with October 1941 setting forth what has happened down here and here they have been exchanging information and the Security Police participating in operations and that the arrest actions were carried out by them by order of the General Staff, whereby the arrestees had to be transferred to the Security Police in Belgrade and the affidavit continues:

"The above has been read to me, it entirely corresponds to my own statement which I made voluntarily and without any compulsion. (Signed) George Kiessel." There follows then the certificate of Colonel Zvonimir Ostric, Delegate of the Government of the Federated Peoples Republic of Yugoslavia with the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes.

That concludes this Exhibit, and now Mr. Fenstermacher will continue with a new book.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Fenstermacher, will you wait just a few minutes until we get our paper ready?

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, in consideration of the statement which has just been read, I would like to ask the Tribunal to ask the prosecution that this witness be called for cross-examination by the defense. The witness has as his own statement shows -- he has testified about matters which he cannot testify to. Your Honor, I would ask that the witness Kiessel, whose statement has just been read, be called.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a moment, please. There is trouble here in the translation.

(There was a short delay due to mechanical difficulties.)

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I am repeating. I am asking that the prosecution make available to the defense the written statement of the witness Kiessel, that the witness Kiessel has dared to make statements which he cannot make, which he is not in a position to make; for if he could make them, he would have had to be present, for instance when he says that all orders by the OKW went via the Commander Southeast and the Commander Serbia. He can indeed only say that if he had been constantly with the Supreme Commander Southeast. However, he was never there really. I just like to point out this one item. Since the witness makes statements referring to important material matters and voices opinions, I believe that the defense is justified to ask that a witness who makes such important statements be put at the disposal for cross-examination.

The Tribunals in Nurnberg have up to now in similar cases given the prosecution the right to cross-examine such persons whose statements have been put before the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: I thought you just stated that the right had been given to the prosecution. Did you not mean to say the defense?

DR. LATERNSE: The defense had been given the right to cross-examine witnesses in important cases whose statements had primarily been submitted in writing by the prosecution.

Page 922

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honor, please, I have been informed by the Yugoslav delegate to the Office of the Chief of Counsel for War Crimes that George Kiessel has already been executed as a war criminal in Yugoslavia.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, can this be proved by the Prosecution? For I would have to insist that this assertion be proved in such an important case?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, I think we can get a statement from the Yugoslav delegate to that effect for the defense.

THE PRESIDENT: Pending the receipt of this information the Tribunal will reserve ruling on this matter and the application made.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors, please, with the presentation of the documents in Document Book 10 we take up the period from January 1943 until August 1943. This is the second half of the period which the Prosecution calls the period of Foertsch and Geitner.

Your Honors will recall that as of January 1, 1943, the 12th Army goes out of existence and in its place we have the Army Group E as the Supreme Command authority in the Southeast Area.

The cast of characters with which we are concerned in this period from January 1943 until August 1943 is for the most part, the same as during the earlier portion of the period from August 1942 until January 1943. General Loehr is Commander -in-Chief of the Army Group E, and his Chief of Staff is the defendant Foertsch.

JUDGE BURKE: From what document are you reading?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, I am just interpolating very briefly before passing on to the documents.

Generals Loehr and Foertsch are in the Supreme Headquarters of Army Group E. In Serbia General Bader is commanding General and his Chief of Staff is as before, the defendant, Geitner. In Croatia, General Lueders is in charge of the German troops, and Horstenau is the liaison between the German Army and the Croatian Government, and finally in Greece, as Commander of Southern Greece we have the defendant Speidel.

Turning to the first document, page 1 of the English and page 1 of the German, NOKW-1132, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 243. This is an order of the Commanding General in Serbia, dated 16 January 1943, to the 704th Infantry Division. Its subject is "Daily Reports."

- 1) "The High Command of Army Group E demands that the daily reports be more precise than hitherto so that a more detailed report can be furnished to the OKW.
- 6) Especially important is the immediate notification of reprisal measures and counter-measures taken or planned in case these should result from the subject of the report according to the orders given. Also a report, that for instance counter-measures are not possible or not planned at the moment, by mentioning the reasons in code language if occasion arises, is indicated and necessary.
- 7) When arrests are made, the reason is to be given, Communists activities or suspected of having participated in a reported sabotage attempt. Here however I expressly refer to the Fuehrer decrees which deal with the combatting of bands and the treatment of Sabotage-groups."

If Your Honors, please, we believe that the reference treatment of the Sabotage groups is a reference to the Commander order of October 18, 1942.

"When, according to this order, the necessity of shooting arises one is, for instance, to add to the report: "Were Shot." In case by way of exception a shooting is not planned, the report is to read: "Will not be shot at the moment, is useful for own reconnaissance reasons."

"The Fuehrer has banned the term "Partisans." It is however still used frequently. In the Southeastern area it is to be replaced by the word 'Communists' or 'Communist bands.'" The order is signed by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, the Chief of the General Staff and Your Honors will note on the original the initials of the defendant Geitner.

Next on page 3 of the English and page 3 of the German document book, document NOKW 1634, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit No. 244, This is an order of the Commanding General in Serbia, dated 3 January 1942, which relates to the offensive against Partisan Groups in Croatia and various insignia worn by the partisans.

THE FIGHT AGAINST INSURGENTS IN CROATIA.

The Insurgents in the eastern part of Croatia have withdrawn to their Winter quarters (see the enclosed sketch). From these places they harass the Croatian Troops and continuously commit acts of sabotage. They advance more and more towards important arteries of traffic and towards the economically important works. For details see enclosure 1.

In order to stop these enemy activities the 342 Infantry Division and the 718 Infantry Division will attack the enemy on 15 January 1942 in the southeastern part of Croatia and will destroy him. The German troops shall be supported by Croatian troops. In order to make the 718 Division available for the duration of the operation, Croatian troops will take over the securities tasks which were fulfilled by the division up to now.

All German and Croatian troops employed in the mentioned operation are subordinated to the Commander of the 342. Infantry Division Brigadier General Hoffman as of 12 January 1942.

Then the various divisions which will be concerned in the operation are listed, and the document is signed "Bader, General of Artillery," and again the distribution list is given on the document.

At the bottom of page 4 of the English and page 4 of the German is the enclosure which was referred to in the body of the Order.

Page 925

"Insurgents Groups in the Frontier Area Croatia," and then follows, the list of the Partisan units, political affiliation and strength and their intended activities, which we believe shows the precise knowledge the Germans had of Partisan affiliation along military lines, the size leadership and the various insignia which they wore.

I should like to read from the bottom of page 6 of the English and page 6 of the German:

Communists, probably from Serbia.

Activities: Threatening of Visegrad from the south, beaten by Italians on the 30 December, subsequently crossing of the Drina in the area west of Visegrad.

Then on page 8 of the English and Page 8 of the German, are sketches of the Cap Insignia for the Croatian Wehrmacht, and Cap and collar insignia of the Croatian Ustascha Units. And reading again:

"The Croatian Wehrmacht and Croatian Units do not wear either Fur Caps or Cartridge belts (crossed over breast and back.)" This, the Prosecution believes, is a reference in a negative way to the manner in which the enemy was dressed.

If Your Honors will look on the original document you will note the map which shows the enemy situation and the various groups of the Partisans and where they are located. This we believe will show the precise knowledge which the Germans had of when and where the the various insurgent groups were located.

Turning next to page 9 of the English and page 9 of the German, NOKW-919, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 245 - these are two reports from the Commanding General in Serbia, General Bader, whose Chief of Staff was the defendant Geitner. The report is sent to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, who at this time, in January 1943, was General Loehr, and his Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch.

The first report is dated 1 January 1943 and, in addition to being sent to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, it was sent for information to the German Plenipotentiary in Zagreb, which was Gleise-Horstnau at this time, as well as for information to the Commander for the German Armed Forces in Croatia, General Lueters. The date of the report is January 1, 1943. Under "704th Infantry Division":

"During pursuit operation northeast of Petrovac sixteen Draja Mihajlovic suspects arrested. Arms and ammunition secured; farms in which these were found were burned down."

Then, under the "SS Division Prinz Eugen", of which we will hear much in the course of this trial:

"South of Pozega, of twelve suspects arrested eleven were shot while attempting to escape."

The report is signed "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia".

Then the next report is the Daily Report for 5 January 1943 which is on page 10 of the English, page 10 of the German:

"Belgrade city headquarters: Two arrests; ten Communist reprisal prisoners shot because of surprise attack on the community and railway station south of Mladenovac (see Daily Report for 25 December)."

And again this report, as the previous one, is signed: "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia" by his operations officer, the "Ia".

Turning now to page 11 of the English and page 11 of the German, Document NOKW-973, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 246 - this is an order dated 5 January 1943 from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809. The subject is "Reprisal Measures":

"The Deputy Commanding General, Major General Juppe, has approved the application of District Headquarters Leskovac of 89 December 1942 to shoot to death 35 hostages.

"Thus it is ordered:

"Of the hostages detained in the area of Administrative SubArea Headquarters 809, 35 hostages (D.M. followers or convicted Communists) are to be shot to death as far as possible in the villages in which the crimes have occurred.

"Ten hostages in D. Lokosnica for the murder of the village elder on 11 Dec 42.

"Ten hostages in Orasje for the murder of a Serbian border official on 13 Dec 42.

"Five hostages in Dzigolj for wounding the District Civil Servant on 20 Dec 42.

"Ten hostages in Balcak for the murder of the village elder on 21 Dec 42.

"Everything else is to be arranged directly with the SD Branch Office in Nish.

"The Senior SS and Police Leader is asked at the request of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809 to set up the execution commandos from the police of the Serbian State Guard."

The order is signed: "For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Chief of the General Staff," the defendant "von Geitner".

Your Honors will note the signature of the defendant Geitner on page 3 of the photostatic copy.

If Your Honors please, on page 11 of the English and also on page 11 of the German, I read that this order was dated 5 January 1943. The date appears on the English document book but does not appear on the German document book, so the defense counsel may correct their copies.

Continuing now on page 12 of the English and page 12 of the German, there is an order dated 6 January 1943 from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809.

Again the subject is "Reprisal Measures." The Deputy Commanding General, Major General Juppe, has ordered:

"In reprisal for the sabotage plot on the main railroad line Belgrade-Nish on 3 January 1943 near Luzane the six arrested guilty civilian guards are to be shot to death. Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters will attend to publication. Ten copies of the proclamation are to be sent to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. Report of completion of mission is to be submitted."

Again the order is signed: "For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Chief of the General Staff," the defendant "von Geitner".

On page 13 of the English and page 12 of the German is a public proclamation. I think here again Your Honors might look at the original photostatic copy. You will note that on one side of the proclamation the language is written in the Yugoslav language and on the other side in the German language. I would like the Tribunal to see how Document NOKW-973--

JUDGE BURKE: You refer to page 13?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That is on page 13 of the English and 12 of the German and I should like the Tribunal to note the original photostatic copy of the proclamation which is referred to on the page I am about to read. It's on page 8 of the photostatic copy, Your Honors. The proclamation reads as follows:

"On 9 January 1943, by order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, the following six persons were shot to death in reprisal for the sabotage on the railroad line Belgrade-Nish on 5 January 1943 near Luzane: Elizabeth Andrejevic, Nish; Ivan Rakic, Mramor; Mihailo Ignjatevic, Nish; Draginja Ignjatovic, Nish; Ratornir Ignjatovic, Nish; Uros Dinic, Nish."

The proclamation is dated "Nish, 9 January 1943", signed "The Commander" by "Muller, Major".

Turning now to page 15 of the English and page 13 of the German document book, Document NOKW-1090, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 247, these are various excerpts from the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia for the month of January 1943.

Reading the extracts from page 16 of the English and page 13 of the German, the entry for 10 January 1943, Enclosure 28 to the War Diary:

"Notification of the shooting of 33 persons as reprisal measures for the murder of 3 Bulgarian soldiers near Dunis."

And the entry for the 18th of January 1943, Enclosure 60:

"Notification of the shooting of 30 persons as reprisal measures for the murder of the Serbian mayor of Gornja Lokosnica, of the mayor or Palcak, and of a Serbian rural police guard in Orasje."

Finally, the entry for 19 January 1943:

"Written agreement with the proposal of the Serbian Ministry of the Interior in connection with the shooting of 10 persons each for the murder of the community leader in Kramari and Vlaska. Report of execution has been ordered."

Next on page 17 of the English, page 14 of the German, Document NOKW-915, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 248 – these are 8 series of orders by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to his various subordinate administration sub-area headquarters, the first dated 12 January 1943 and is to the Sub-Area Headquarters 809, subject: "Murder of Mayor of Turekovac":

"The application is approved.

"In reprisal for the murder of the mayor of Turekovac on 6 January 43, five DM followers and five Communists are to be executed by shooting. Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809 is to announce the execution in the Leskovac area. The execution is to be published in the garrisons of the headquarters Nish and Zajecar. Completion of mission is to be reported. Ten copies of the publication are to be submitted."

The order is signed "Bader, Commanding General and Commander in Serbia".

If Your Honors please, we have identified the initial which is listed on page 17 of the English and page 14 of the German as being illegible.

Page 931

We now believe that it is the initial of the defendant Geitner.

Page 18 of the English and page 14 of the German is an order of Bader dated 12 January 1943 to Administration Sub-Area Headquarters 809, subject: "Murder of Mayor of Koprivnica near Zajecar".

"The application is approved.

"For the mayor of Koprivnica murdered on 6 January 1943 ten hostages (5 each of the D.M. and 5 each of the Communist movement) are to be shot to death. The execution is to be published by name of the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809 in the District of Zahecar and in the garrisons of the headquarters Nisch and Leskova. Completion of mission is to be reported. Ten copies of the publication are to be submitted."

Again signed "Bader", and again the "illegible initial" which we believe to be the initial of the defendant Geitner, the Chief of Staff to General Bader.

Turning next to page 19 of the English and page 15 of the German, another order of Bader, this time dated 13 January 1943, to Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809:

"For the murder of the mayor of Plavci, ten hostages (5 DM followers and 5 Communists) are to be shot to death." And there follows the same language we have seen in the two previous orders. The last paragraph is different: "Female persons are not to be shot to death either as retaliation prisoners or as hostages."

Signed: "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Bader."

Next, on page 20 of the English and page 15 of the German another order of Bader dated 14 January 1943 to the same subordinate Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809, "Reference: Your teletype 31/43 secret of 13 January":

"The application is approved.

"The two guards who neglected their duty and three arrested hostages (from the circle of the insurgents) are to be shot to death."

Again the order is signed: "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Bader."

Page 932

Finally on 21 of the English, 16 of the German, is the Bader order, dated 19 January, 1943, this time to administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610, Your Honors will note also that informational copies of these orders were sent to the first Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps:

"Reference: Report concerning blasting of bridge near Dunis during the night from 8 to 9 January 1943.

Subject: Reprisal measures.

In reprisal measures for the blasting of the bridge District Headquarters Krusevac is to execute by shooting 10 persons (5 D.M. followers, 5 Communists.) Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters is to publish the executions in the district of Krusevac. Report of completion of mission and submission of 10 copies of the publication is requested.

Female persons are not to be shot to death either as retaliation prisoners or as hostages.

The persons arrested who are innocent are to be released.

And again the illegible initials, we believe to be that of the defendant Geitner.

Turning next to page 23 of the English, 17 of the German, Document NOKW 1130, Prosecution Exhibit 249, this is an order of the 7 SS Prinz Eugen Division, dated 18 January 1943, Division order:

"The 13th enemy brigade hitherto located in the Uskoken mountains is supposed to have retired into the Bosiljevo area."

I now direct your attention to the term which the Germans are applying to the various units of the enemy. They refer to, "The 13th Enemy Brigade".

9) "When combing through the area to be covered , all male population capable of bearing arms is to be seized without consideration; bearers of arms are to be shot immediately. The other captives are to be brought to the collecting point in Karlovac, which is under the command of SS-Hauptfuehrer Greindl.

Until its liaison with fighting group, West fighting group East will be in charge of deporting the captives to Glina; at which point the captives will be taken over by the Corps."

The distribution of the order is given, and it is signed "The Division Commander".

On page 24 of the English, and 17 of the German, is the Division Commander's Signature, "SS-Gruppenfuehrer Major General of the Waffen-SS"?

Turning next to page 25 of the English, and page 18 of the German document NOKW 899, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 250, these are letters written by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to the Prime Minister of Serbia, "Neditsch".

Turning first to the top of page 26 of the English, and page 19 of the German, in order to give the correspondence its correct chronological order, we have the letter dated 25 December 1942 to the Prime Minister Neditsch:

"The Commanding General has agreed, that in the future, the reprisal measures for attacks by insurgents against persons who are to be considered members of the Serbian government and in which such persons were either wounded or killed, shall be carried out and made known in public by the Serbian government itself.

However, we wish to point out, that the incriminating effect of these reprisals is only reached when the persons designated to be killed are persons with the same political beliefs as the perpetrators. Therefore, it is important to find out in every case whether the perpetrators were Communists or followers of Draza Mihajlovic. In case the government is not able to use Draza Mihajlovic followers for reprisal measures, this will be done by the Germans.

Until further notice is given, the intended orders concerning individual measures of reprisal are to be made known to us; also listing the names of the persons to be killed as reprisal, their age, residence and political group, the act for which the reprisal was taken as well as the place where the execution will be carried out."

The letter is signed, "For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, the Chief of the General Staff", by the defendant von Geitner.

Then continuing on the bottom of the page 26 of the English, page 20 of the German, is a letter dated the 22nd of January, 1943, from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

Now, on page 27 of the English, page 20 of the German:

"Enclosed we send a letter to the Prime Minister Nedic for his information.

It is desired that the Serb government itself attended to reprisal measures for the murder of its mayors. Up to now this was not carried out in any single case.

When mayors are murdered to report and the reprisal intended is to be submitted as before. The Commanding General and Commander in Serbia will give orders, depending on the situation, either to the Serbian government or to the German administrative sub-area headquarters, concerning the reprisals to be carried out. If the reprisal measures are carried out by the Serbian Chiefs of districts, the necessary support is to be given to them in case they ask for it. The carrying out of the operation must always be supervised."

The letter is signed, "For the Commanding general and Commander in Serbia, for the Chief of the General Staff, "illegible signature but there is an initial on the original document which we believe to be that of the defendant Geitner.

Turning now to page 25 of the English, page 18 of the German another letter dated the 22 of January, 1943, from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, to the Prime Minister Nedic, Subject Reprisal measures.

If your Honors please this is the enclosure which was referred to on page 27 of the English, page 20 of the German:

"I agree to the petition for shooting to death 10 insurgents as reprisal for the murder of the head of the community of Samaila on 26 December 42.

I ask you to tell the head of the district to get in touch with the administrative district headquarters Kraljevo and to decide about the details. Please have the publication done by your administrative offices and inform us when this has been completed."

The letter is signed, "Bader, General of the Artillery", The initials we have indicated on the English, and I believe on the German document books as being an "H" is instead, the initial "G", which is the initial of the defendant Geitner.

Turning now to page 28 of the English, page 22 of the German, Document NOKW 1099, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 251--

Dr. von JAKWITZ: (for defendant von Geitner: May I ask to stop for a moment before reading the new document, since I would like to compare the photostat with the defendant von Geitner.....

.....document shown to defendant von Geitner

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing now on page 28 of the English page 22 of the German, we turn with this document, and the next 5 or 6 that follow, to the picture in Croatia during the month of January 1943.

Your Honors will recall that General Lueters is in charge of the German troops in Croatia, General Glaise-Horstenau is the liaison between the German troops and the Croatian Government, and at the same time at higher headquarters, to whom General Lueters reported and was responsible, is General Loehr as Commander in Chief, Army Group E, and the defendant Foertsch, as his Chief of Staff.

On page 28 of the English and 22 of the German, we have an order dated 7 January 1943, from the Commander of the German Forces in Croatia, to this subordinate units. In the top right hand corner of the document is the receipt stamp for the 718th Infantry Division, dated 10 January 1943. The subject of the order is:

The development of the situation in Croatia again necessitates a clarification of the chain of command, together with a summary of the previous directives.

The areas of the 714th and 718th Divisions are operation areas.

Boundaries: German - Italian Demarcation Line. Drina-Save, line Sisak-Bihac (Up to Demarcation line). Separation line between 714th and 718th Divisions as before. Holders of executive power within their area are Major General Fortner and Brigadier General Reichert. The Commander of the German Forces in Croatia reserves to himself the right to issue directives. All armed Croatian units situated in the area designated in par. 1 are subordinated to the Divisions. If possible, some responsibility of their own is to remain with the Croatian headquarters. A breaking up of the croatian units just formed is unwelcome.

The refitting and reorganization, and if necessary the purging of the Croatian Armed Forces is to be carried out vigorously. Ustascha units, as far as has not already been done yet, are to be incorporated into the Croatian Reserve and are to be formed into units not below battalion strength.

Rigorous measures are to be taken against the population.

In unreliable areas the male population from 15 - 50 years is to be lodged in assembly camps. Deportation to Germany is intended."

Partisans and partisan suspects as well as civilians in whose homes arms and ammunition are found, are to be shot immediately" Your Honors will note the next word, in your Honors document book, which is "resp" should be changed to "read" "and/or", and this will be the case throughout the English document books when the abbreviation for the word, "respectively" is used.

It should always be changed to read. "and/or", Partisans and partisan suspects as well as civilians in whose homes arms and ammunition are formed are to be shot immediately and/or are to be handged; their homes are to be burned down."

"Town Headquarters (German, or Croatian in purely Croatian garrisons) are authorized to decide the hour of curfew for the entire population.

In cases of offenses against German regulations, fire arms are to be used ruthlessly and extensively.

Personages of the Croatian State, whose cooperation is not sufficient, are to be arrested for sabotage.

A general notification in the sense of these directives is being forwarded to the divisions. Further directives will be issued by the holders of executive power according to par, 1 The Plenipotentiary German General in Croatia is requested to notify all Croatian Headquarters of this order."

The order is signed, "Lueters," the Commander of the German Forces in Croatia.

Page 938

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning next to Page 30 of the English and Page 24 of the German, Document No. NOKW-1422, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 252. This again is an order of General Lueters as Commander of German Troops in Croatia, dated 7th of January. Your Honor's Document Book should read 7 January 1943, instead of 7 January 1946. Your Honors will note that the code numbers for this order "Ia No. 21/43" are the same as it is for the previous order, which was also dated 7 January 1943. The document which we are about to read we believe to be the order of General Lueters as it was finally sent out. We only need to read Paragraph 4 of this order.

"Severe measures are to be taken against the population.

a) In unreliable areas, the male population from 16 to 60 years of age is to be detained in collection camps. Transfer to Germany is intended.

b) Partisans and partisan suspects as well as civilians, in whose homes, arms and ammunition are found, are to be shot to death or hanged on the spot without formal procedure.

c) Local Headquarters (German or, in exclusively Croatian Garrisons Croatian) are authorized to set curfew for the entire population.

d) In cases of violations of the German regulations, arms are to be employed ruthlessly and extensively.

e) Members of the Croatian State who co-operate insufficiently are to be arrested for sabotage."

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The order is signed "Lueters", and on Page 31 of the English and Page 24 of the German is the distribution list for the order. Your Honors will note that the Commander-in-Chief Southeast (High Command Army Group E) received the eighth copy of this order. Continuing on Page 31 of the English and Page 25 of the German is another order of General Lueters, this time dated 20 June 1943, and it relates to a "Combat and Experience Report Concerning Operation 'Schwarz'". On Page 32 of the English and Page 26 of the German is a detailed tabulation report on the operation to which General Lueters refers.

I think we need not read it in its entirety -- just point out the heading, "Losses and Booty Report Operation 'Schwarz'", the various units subordinated to General Lueters, which took part in the operation, and the German losses as compared with those of the enemy.

DR. FROESE: My name is Dr. Froese, substitute for Dr. Tipp, Defense Counsel for Defendant von Leyser. The Prosecution read just now on Page 24 of the German Document Book, Document No. NOKW-4022. This Document consists of three pages. The first page is a communication from Lueters, the second page of the original, and the last page of the document contains an enclosure to the communication. I would like to point out that on page 2 of the index, where it reads later that also General von Leyser was involved in this, and that the directives of the Commander of the 15th Mountain Corps (Leyser) achieved these aims ruthlessly. As far as the Prosecution intends to incriminate the Defendant von Leyser by this document, I protest against the presentation of this document since General von Leyser was, at this time, not at all active in the Southeast area, and he was later successor of General Lueters, but only for the 15th Mountain Corps, not for the whole authority of power of General Lueters.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, we are not offering, at this time, anything against the Defendant von Leyser. There is nothing in the English Document Book, in this document, which relates to General von Leyser, and if there is anything in the German Document Book relating to General von Leyser, it should be disregarded at this time.

THE PRESIDENT: If the Counsel feels that the matter in any way affects General Leyser, it seems to me that is a matter which should receive attention regarding the presentation of the evidence on behalf of the Defendant.

DR. FROESE: Your Honor, I just wanted to point out that there is an error in the index of the document which has just been read.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors will turn to Page 2 of the English Document Book, the top of the page, the description of the Document No. NOKW 22 -- I ask Your Honors to strike out the lines in the index beginning, "Found in files of XVth Mountain Corps (See NOKW971 and 1099); Directive of Commander XVth Mountain Corps (Leyser) to achieve aims through severity and brutal ruthlessness." It relates to nothing which we are offering against the Defendant Leyser at this time.

THE PRESIDENT: Does that satisfy Counsel?

DR. FROESE: Thank you, that suits me.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning now to Page 34 of the English, Page 27 of the German, is Document No. NOKW-971, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit No. 253. This again is an order of the Commander of German Troops in Croatia, General Lueters, dated 7 January 1943. This document is the same as the two proceeding documents which we have just introduced. This document however, shows the receipt stamp of the 717th Infantry Division, dated 9 January 1943. The text is the same, and I think we need not read it again. Next on Page 36 of the English and Page 30 of the German Document Book, Document No. NOKW957, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 254. This is a situation report from General Lueters in Croatia to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, who was simultaneous to High Command Army Group E, at this time General Loehr whose Chief of Staff was the Defendant Foertsch. General Lueter's report is dated 10 January 1943 and is a situation report for the period from 27 December 1942 to 6 January 1943. "As enclosure we submit the Situation Report of the period from 27 Dec. 42 to 6 Jan. 43." And the communication is signed "For the Commander of the German Troops in Croatia, The Chief of Staff."

And then on the bottom of Page 36 of the English and Page 30 of the German is the situation report as enclosed, "Estimation of the situation from 27 Dec. 42 to 6 Jan. 43: Political Situation: The development of the situation in the Croatian area once again necessitated a clarification of the orders in the operation area of the German troops with a summary of previous instructions. For the protection of the Wehrmacht in the area of the 714th Infantry Division and the 718th Infantry Division severe measures against the male civilian population were ordered. On the whole the following concentrations can be observed:" And here, again, I direct Your Honors' attention to the designations which the Germans used in referring to the units of the enemy.

"1. 2 Brigades in Samarica supposedly preparing an attack against the railway line Zagreb - Belgrade. From these originate the numerous railway line raids in the area of Sisak.

2. A strong group of Partisans, 5 Brigades, is uniting in the area around Travnik, their direction of action is presumably towards the area of heavy industries Zenica - Zavidovici - Tuzla - Vares.

.....

Teslic was taken by a Brigade of Partisans in a sudden attack during the period covered by the report, but could be taken back in sight of three days due to the counter measures that were quickly carried out and thereby Army economical damage was prevented.

.....

3. Acts of sabotage:

In spite of most careful military security and constant guarding of the railway lines by strong Jagdkommandos and adequate protection of the main railway lines is not guaranteed. This is due to the strength of the enemy and his methodical operations, and our present forces in a terrain which is in part difficult to survey.

The weakness of the Croatia Governmental authorities, who out of concern for the life of Franzetic, a member of the government taken prisoner by Partisans, do not dare to apply the necessary force is impeding the execution of intimidating measures against saboteurs of railway lines.

The troop in the area Sunja-Sisak has already taken measures of reprisal against the civilian population living near the railway line. There is an impression that the railway personnel even up to the highest officials in Zagreb are on good terms with Partisans and tip them off as to the transport plans.

The following cases of sabotage and raids happened during the period of the report:

MR. FENSTERMACHER: And Your Honors will note the types of sabotage actions which were committed against the German occupation authority and the number of such attacks. Continuing with "Tactical Situation and Aims: The building up of effective protection for the industrial areas and reestablishment of the railway line Sarajevo-Jajce as well as replenishing the German and Croatian Units (sic). In carrying out the newly decreed instructions against the civilian population, both divisions intend to begin with the arrest of the male population in unreliable areas." The order is signed in draft by General Lueters. Continuing now with the picture in Croatia during the period of January 1943, Page 40 of the English and Page 32 of the German Document Book, Document No. NOKW-958, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 255.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our morning recess.

(A recess was taken from 1100 to 1115)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Proceed.

Mr. FENSTERMACHER: You will recall just prior to the recess we were considering Document NOKW-928, Prosecution Exhibit No. 255, at page 40 of the English and 32 of the German. We are concerned factually with Croatia during the month of January 1943. This document is a Situation Report from General Leuters in Croatia, dated 19 January 1943, to the Commander in Chief Southeast. The report itself appears in the middle of the page 40 of the English and page 32 of the German. "Estimate of the Situation from 7th January to 16th January 1943."

1.) Political Situation:

No change.

2.) Enemy Situation:

Offensive activity from the "Partisans-state" situated west of the line of demarkation remained unimportant. In the operation area of the German troops the enemy pressure shifted in the main towards the security area of the 718th Infantry Division. In detail the enemy situation during the period reported on was subject to the following changes:

a) The 2 Brigades reported to be in the Samarica have increased their activity. In addition to fortifying their positions in the North Samarica they are trying to seize arms from the 369th Infantry Division by means of well prepared raids.

c) During the period reported on several enemy brigades pushed forward to about 20 kilometers southeast and southwest of Banja-Luka, some of which must have reached Banja-Luka via the Vrbanje valley from the direction of Sanski Most and some from the direction of Travnik. The strength of the enemy is estimated to be about 4 brigades."

.....

Continuing with the report:

3.) Acts of Sabotage:

East of Ruma an especially serious case of sabotage occurred, during the period reported on against a German train transport, whereby 24 people were killed and numerous people were wounded. As reprisal measures, of 2 of the villages suspected of the act of sabotage one was bombed and the able bodied males of the other were arrested as hostages. One of the latter was shot while attempting to escape. The population was warned by posters and leaflets dropped by plane. As a result of another serious case of sabotage in Syrmia all telephone connections from the Balkans to the Reich were interrupted for 20 hours. As yet measures of reprisal could not be taken because all German troops have left and there are no men in all the suspect villages. For the rest the sabotage activity has not changed since the last report.

And then there follows a table of the cases of sabotage and raids which have occurred, and the number of such acts of sabotage and raids, it's on page 42 of the English and 32 of the German, and the report is signed "Luters, General of the Infantry," Page 43 of the English, page 33 of the German, NOKW-1037, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 256.

This first portion of the document is an Order dated 12 January 1943 from the Commander of the German troops in Croatia. The receipt stamp of the 718th Infantry Division showing the receipt of the order on the 14 January 1943, appears on the right hand portion of the document. The order is concerned with the method of combat in the Croatian area. And this order, Your Honors, please, the Prosecution believes to be representative of the type of orders which resulted in the acts in the documents which have been described up to now, and which we will continue to be concerned with and describe.

1.) The total war situation requires the pacification of the Croatian area. A spread of the present focal point of infection toward the north may seriously impair the main railroad line, and check the flow of supplies for the entire Balkan and for Crete and thereby lead to the collapse of the entire axis position in the southeast.

2.) Consequently rapid and thorough measures are necessary. These must be severe, since obviously Partisan and Cetnik terror has been more effective up to now than the law-abiding methods of the occupation troops.

3.) Consequently the following directives are valid for the Croatian area:

a) Any measure seemingly required for the security of the troops and for pacification is justified. In the area of operations, if necessary, formal law and even the sovereignty rights of the Croatian state must yield to this necessity. In the interest of real pacification the last mentioned (the disregard of Croatian sovereignty --) is to be done only in exceptional cases. Extensive and responsible cooperation of Croatian military and civilian offices is desired.

b) No one is to be called to account for over-severe measures; of course this does not cover any action showing a dishonorable attitude (for instance personal profit, mistreatment of women and children); in such cases severe measures will have to be taken.

c) By means of continuously combing through the country all men capable of bearing arms must be removed from the country as soon as possible.

d) The main mission of the occupation troops is the protection of plants vital to the war economy. They must remain in operation. All other economic problems will take a back place behind military necessities.

4.) Treatment of the Population:

Anybody who has participated in the fight against the occupation troops or against the Croatian State is to be hanged or to be shot to death. This also includes all non-residents or anyone else encountered on the field of battle.

People suspected of participation are to be arrested. Leaders are to be kept with the Division as exchange prisoners, the other suspects so as to be shot to death in case of reprisal measures (hostages).

All other men capable of bearing arms (from 15 years of age) are to be deported from Partisan suspect territories into special collection camps under guard.

The divisions will be responsible for providing guards, rations, etc. until the delivery to the collection camps.

Villages which are difficult to reach as well as other points established as Partisan support points or otherwise suitable (caves, barrack camps, etc.) are to be destroyed. The same applies to villages from which shots were fired. Beyond that villages are to be destroyed only if the Division Commander has ordered it especially as a reprisal measure.

6.) Booty:

The Commander of German troops in Croatia alone disposes over the entire booty (arms, equipment, cattle, food, etc.) The troops may appropriate their required amounts within the limits of the allotted rations simultaneously reporting it to the Commander (Qu.)

However arms are to be turned over to the captured material collection point without exception.

Supplies which the troops cannot transport and where there is danger that these again will give valuable assistance to the Partisans are to be destroyed.

7.) The above directives are to be communicated to all subordinate Croatian soldiers and to those participating in the commitments in Croatia. Each one must understand thoroughly that quiet and order can be restored only by the application of most severe measures and that only by this method can further losses of comrades as well as of the really innocent parts of the population be avoided.

The order is signed "Leuters," and the distribution is Down to Battalion Level, page 45 of the English, and page 36 of the German is the passing on of the Leuters Order by the order 718 Infantry Division. The distribution by the Division of the Leuters Order dated 18 January 1943:

"The Commander of the German Troops in Croatia on 12 January 1943 has decreed:"

And then there follows the same order we have just been looking at with the exception of the beginning on page 47 of the English and page 37 of the German which begins, "Implementation by Division":

"Once again attention is drawn to the fact that everybody who has acted energetically and decisively will be covered by me, but that officers and men who have harmed or caused disadvantage to the Croatian state, to German or Croatian troops by cowardice, inability of decision, or inactivity will be called to account by me without consideration, be placed before a court martial and without regard to rank, social standing or origin be sentenced mercilessly."

And this order of the division is signed in draft by the Division Commander Fortner.

We continue now on page 49 of the English and page 38 of the German, document NOKW-1031 which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 257, and now with these and the next five or six orders we turn again to the situation in Serbia where General Bader is Commanding General assisted by his Chief of Staff, the defendant Geitner. The document on page 49 of the English and page 38 of the German is a notice printed in both the German language and the Yugoslavian language:

"By order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia the following is brought to the attention of the population:

"Since the O.T. (Organization Todt) driver BRAUN had not returned as of 1 January 43.

"A TOTAL OF 50 FOLLOWERS OF DRAGA MIHAJLOVIC AND COMMUNISTS WERE SHOT TO DEATH -

"by 25 January 1943 -- as was threatened in the notice of 21 December 1942."

And the notice is posted: "Posarevac, 1 February 43" and is signed: "The District Commander Clausen, Major."

On page 50 of the English, page 39 of the German, Document NOKW1027 is offered as prosecution exhibit 258. This is again a printed public notice similar to the preceding document. This proclamation is dated "Belgrade 19 February 1943" and is signed : "The Commanding General and Commander in Serbia."

"On the forenoon of 15 February 1943 a passenger car of the German Wehrmacht was attacked by Communist Bands on the road of Petrovac -- Pozarevac near Toponica. The four passengers, 2 officer, 1 non-commissioned officer and 1 enlisted man were murdered and robbed insiduously, the vehicle was set afire. As a reprisal measure, 400 Communists have been shot to death today in Belgrade."

Your honors will note that there were 4 men killed, 400 persons shot in reprisal were at the ratio of 100 to 1; and the date is February 1943.

"The village of Toponica was partly burned down. Several hundred persons arrested, who were seized in the District Area Pozarevac, will not return to their villages but will be given worthwhile employment elsewhere. The curfew for the District of Poazrevac has been set at 1800 hours until further notice. The German Wehrmacht is not willing to watch passively the disastrous activity of the Communists and of other insurgents."

Turning now to page 51 of the English and page 49 of the German, Document NOKW-1249, which becomes prosecution Exhibit No. 259, these are situation reports of the 704th Infantry Division, the first one dated, "In the Field 17 February 1943.

The sources of information for the report are listed: "Reports of the troops, Reports of Confidential Agents, Results of Interrogations, Enemy documents, Reports from Police Offices, from Counter-Intelligence Report, Centers and from Administrative Officers."

Under sub-paragraph "d", "Special Events", page 52 of the English and page 40 of the German, the text of the report relates to the proclamation which have just been noticing. The proclamation dated 15 February 1943 relating to the execution of 400 Communists for the --in reprisal for the death of 400 insurgents.

"Action against the German Wehrmacht. Attack by a Communist band, evidently composed of 12 men and 1 women probably belonging to Sima Simic, on the command car of the Commanding Officer of the 724th Grenadier Regiment on 15 February 43 near Toponica, 14 kilometers SouthSoutheast Pozarevac. The 4 passengers, Colonel Hensel, another Officer, 1 non-commissioned officer, 1 enlisted man were murdered and robbed and the car was set on fire. As a reprisal measure, 400 men will be shot dead in Belgrade by the SD. 240 Serbian male civilians from the area South of Pozarevac were arrested and turned over to the SD in Belgrade. These people should not return to their villages but are to be sent for compulsory labor at the proper place by the Plenipotentiary General for Economics in Serbia.

The village of Toponica was partly burned down. The curfew for the District of Pozarevac has been established for from 1800 to 0500 hours. The population has to count on additional and reprisal measures if it does not fulfill its obligation to report all observations regarding the insurgents in the interest of the Serbian country."

Continuing with the report, on page 53 of the English, page 40 of the German:

"A captured bandit, who participated in the kidnapping of two members of the Luftwaffe of the weather station Kapetanski Dr. Milanovac, states that the two soldiers had been dragged along alive for four days and then had been be ten to death with rifle butts on the road from Rudna Glava to Majdanpek, one hour by road from Rudna Glava."

Under "D.M.Movement: Did not show up much. The order to refrain from attacking German Troops strictly obeyed. Despite numerous operations in areas in which many D. M. Trojkas are present, the troops have as yet been unable to make contact with the enemy."

Under "Own Losses: Troops, 4 dead, 1 wounded; Serbian Volunteer Corps, 1 dead, None wounded; Organization Todt, None dead, 1 wounded (died in hospital):

"Enemy Losses: (including people shot to death by the troops for possession of arms), 55 dead, 8 wounded."

"Additional dead and wounded of D.M. units to be assumed but could not be ascertained. In addition, 21 bandits arrested while carrying arms shot to death by SD in Pozarevac. Arrests: 328."

And the report is distributed: "Down to Battalions and independent units."

Page 54 of the English and page 41 of the German, we have another and extremely important report of the 704th Infantry Division, this time dated 26 February 1943. The subject is: "Enemy Situation Reports from 17 to 26 February 1943."

The first part of the report deals with "The Attitude of the Population."

"Attitude of the Population Fluctuates.

"On one hand, the events in the East and in Africa are regarded by the intellectuals and insurgents with confidence in the hope of a speedy liberation from the occupying power, due to the distorted reports of foreign broadcasting stations and the whispering propaganda ensuing from it. On the other hand, the severe reprisal measures, as announced in the last report and meanwhile carried out, have had a positive effect in the entire Divisional Area. While the shooting to death of 400 Communist hostages has lowered the morale among the bandits but did not break their will to fight, the effect of the evacuation for compulsory labor employment of more than 800 village inhabitants from the District of Pozarevac should be estimated much higher than was supposed in the beginning as far as the morale of the population of the district and also as far as the DM followers are concerned. Consequently, the morale in the Districts concerned in Sector East has reached its lowest point. The population asks itself seriously the following questions:

1. Will the German Wehrmacht carry out additional arrests as reprisal measures and when are they to be expected?

A. What happens to those arrested up to now? Will they really be put to work or will they be shot?

3. When could one count on a possible return to their families?

4. What can the population do on its part to speed up the return and to avoid further arrests?

These questions were voiced openly for the first time during a propaganda operation by the Division with the loud speaker car of propaganda detachment Southeast in the district of Pozarevac on 24 Feb. 1943. It is true, the majority of the population fled in panic at the arrival of the loud speaker-car which was accompanied by a strong convoy guard and a radio car.

However, the explanation of the loud speaker had a calming effect on those who were left so that the inhabitants who had meanwhile returned passed through the streets as usual during the return trip through the same villages. During the discussion of the speaker, a Sonderfuehrer of the Division" -- and, if your Honors please, the next three words, "with the population" should be stricken out of the English document book -- an offer by the population concerning the above problems, to turn over actual Communists and other suspicious elements and instigators to the German offices in exchange for those arrested up to now was discussed several times with the population. The Division will carry out such an experiment. Proper measures will be taken to counter the obvious danger of extensive denunciations. Anyhow, the operations of the troops have achieved that the fear of further reprisal measures for the first time outweighs the fear of Communist terror with the population in the District of Pozarevac."

And then, if your Honors please, there should be dots of discontinuance at the bottom of page 56 of the English and 42 of the German.

Continuing now on page 47 of the English and page 43 of the German:

"400 Communists and hostages shot to death in Belgrade. (Retaliation for the murder of Colonel Hensel and his companions).

"20 inhabitants of Brzohode, 11 kilometers West Southwest Petrovac pursuant to order OK (II) 378 shot to death by Serbian State Guard (Retaliation for the Serbian Labor Service Leader murdered there)."

Then, if your Honors please, we believe the illegible initials -- no withdraw it.

Continuing now on page 58 of the English and page 44 of the German, Document NOKW-1413 is offered as prosecution Exhibit 260. This is a collection of orders by the Commander in Serbia, General Bader, to various subordinate Administrative Sub-area headquarters.

The actual document relates to enclosures in the War Diary of the orders which have been issued by General Bader to the subordinate units. The first is dated "3 February 1943" and is "Enclosure 8" of the War Diary. It is an order to the 809th Administrative Sub-area headquarters.

"Penal guard duty of the destroyed telephone line near Knjazevac for the duration of 4 weeks is approved.

The shooting to death of 10 hostages as a reprisal measure for the murder of the municipal secretary Stanovic in Zubetinac is approved. Only persons who by their convictions are close to the circle of the presumable culprits may be shot to death. If the political affinity of the culprits cannot be established, one half each Communists and D.M. followers are to be used.

Completion of mission is to be reported. One copy of the publication is to be sent here for the records."

Signed: General Commander in Serbia" by his "Ia" or Operations Officer and the initial "B" which we have stated as found in the document should be changed to the initial "G" which we believe is the initial of the defendant Geitner.

Turning to page 59 of the English, page 44 of the German, an order of General Bader dated 6 February 1943, this time to the 610th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters, Subject, Reprisal Measures in the District of Jagodina:

"According to report of the Serbian Ministry of the Interior one hundred hostages were arrested in connection with the incidents in Svilajnac by order of the commandant of the district headquarters there. The arrest of the hostages was carried out without my orders and consequently is to be rescinded. Before the hostages are released a check is to be made with the Serbian head, which of the persons arrested are D.M. followers and Communists. These persons are to remain under arrest and may be used in later reprisal executions.

Reprisal measures in detail:

a) For the murder of the mayor of Kuseljevo on 19 January 1943 the ten persons suggested by the district head in Jagodina are to be shot to death. As far as they are inmates of the concentration camp Banjica in Belgrade they are to be shot to death by the SD in Belgrade, and in direct agreement with the letter."

"For the municipal treasurer Ilic of Vel. Popovic, murdered on 25 January 1943.

For the interpreter Magasic murdered on 30 January 1943.

For the district employee Borisav Stevanovic murdered on 30 January 1943.

For the Serbian State Guard Sergeant wounded on 30 January 1943, in Popovic.

For the Serbian State Guard Captain wounded on 29 December 1942 in Blagoje Milic," Now, if Your Honors please, the figure "10" should be inserted at the beginning of the line, 'DM followers,' and I believe also in the German if it is not listed.

"10 D.M. followers are to be shot to death for each person killed; five D.M. followers are to be shot to death for each person wounded.

The Serbian District Head in Jagodina has been directed by the Serbian Ministry of the Interior to submit suggestions to the Commandant of District Headquarters Jagodina before 12 February 1943. The execution is to be carried out only after review by the German Commandant of district headquarters. In case the number of D.M. hostages is insufficient the Commander of the Security Police will make them available from the camp in Belgrade on request."

Order reference to Ia No. 148/43, is amended insofar as 20 persons are to be shot to death in the area of 832nd District Headquarters, 75 in the area of 833rd District Headquarters and 50 persons in the area of 834th District Headquarters."

(signed) Commanding General and Commander in Serbia Ia No. 156/43 Your Honors will note, if you look at the original photostatic copy that there again appears the initial "G" at the end of the text of the order, and we believe that initial belongs to the defendant, Geitner.

Continuing now with page 62 of the English, page 46 of the German, another order of General Bader to Headquarters, this time dated 9 February 1943, 809th Sub-Area, the references are given. The letters of the Sub-Area Headquarters to General Bader, dated 7 February 1943:

"Teletype order Ia No. 153/43 of 5 February 1943 concerning reprisal measures for alleged dynamite plot against express train Belgrade-Sofia is rescinded.

For the blowing up of the bridge on the line Doljevac-Prokuplje on 29 January 1943 the shooting to death of five persons is authorized.

In the event that civilians serving as guard during the attack are found guilty the persons concerned are to be shot, however, not as hostages or reprisal prisoners but as accomplices.

Concerning proposals to 2 and to 3 the Commandant of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters can decide on his own authority.

Report of execution of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed."

(Signed)"Commanding General and Commander in Serbia Ia No. 166/43" The initial "Y" on the English, and I believe on the German document book, should be changed to read the initial "G", which again we believe to be the initial of the defendant Geitner.

THE PRESIDENT: What is the occasion for the misinterpretation of these initials?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, the interpretation was done, in many cases, by a translator of the document in the English, and by a German stenographer into German, before the lawyer or some other person with full knowledge of the signatures could actually get to the document.

THE PRESIDENT: Do you have any proof of the signatures themselves?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We have not as yet asked the defendant Geitner whether they are his initials or not. We believe that they will not be denied, and our basis for our belief is a comparison of his full signature with the initial.

THE PRESIDENT: You have no proof in the case in chief as to the signature?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No proof in the case in chief, Your Honor. It is only our assumption.

THE PRESIDENT: These are your conclusions, or conclusions of the Prosecution?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That's right. We simply direct Your Honor's attention to them, and when the defendant Geitner takes the stand, he may deny them.

THE PRESIDENT: All right.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing now on page 62 of the English and page 46 of the German, we have another order by the Commanding General, and Commander in Serbia, dated 9 February, 1943, again to 809th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters -- I beg your pardon.

Page 957

Continuing on page 63 of the English, page 47 of the German, Order of 10 February 1943 to 610th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"Subject: Murder of mayor Ristic in Zalogovac.

The shooting to death of 10 Communists in reprisal for the murder of the mayor of Za. is approved. In the event that the operation of police district office 34 results in the arrest of accomplices of the culprits they will be shot to death as accomplices. The Commander of the Security Police will make available hostages which are lacking. Report of execution of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed.

Since according to your teletype of 9 February 1943 the attack on the community of Luznica was due only to the fact that the village guard there failed to act, the village guard will be called to account of her", the next word should read "incompetence", Your Honors, rather than "competence", incompetence by the chief of the Police District Office. Reprisal measures by means of the imposition of a fine can be considered only if further cooperation of the village population can be established. In this connection reference is made to the order Military Commander Serbia, Administrative Staff No. 144/41 secret V, II of 17 July 1941 pursuant to which the Commandant of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters is authorized to impose fines up to 100,000 Dinars."

The order is signed "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia".

Again on page 64 of the English, page 48 of the German, is another order of General Bader, dated 12 February '43, again:

"To 610th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters.

Subject: Reprisal measures for surprise attacks on railroad line Laskovac - Cacak.

Page 958

In reprisal for the attacks on the railroad line Laskovac-Cacak. executed in the night of 10 to 11 February 1943 30 Communists or D.M. followers are to be shot to death. Persons brought in by the Serbian State Guard may be used for reprisal after screening. If the occasion arises, they are to be shot to death as accomplices or helpers. The shooting to death of hostages lacking is to be proposed directly to the Commander of the Security Police. Report of execution of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed."

Signed: "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia".

Again on page 65 of the English, page 49 of the German, another order of General Bader dated 15 February '43, to the subordinate 809th Sub-Area Headquarters:

"As a reprisal measure for the wounding of the secretary of the district office of Knjazevac the shooting to death of five Communist hostages is approved.

Report of execution of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed."

Signed, "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia."

Again the initial "Y" on the document should be changed to read initial "G", which we believe to be the initial of the defendant Geitner.

Continuing on page 66 of the English, page 50 of the German, General Bader's order 15 February 1943, to the 832nd District Headquarters and the 610th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"In reprisal for the murder of the district head and former mayor of Raca, 20 men are to be shot to death who remained passive during the attack and thereby are to be considered as accomplices.

Report of execution of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed."

Signed, "Commanding General, and Commander in Serbia."

Again the initial on the document has been misinterpreted, and should be changed from "Y" to "G". Again we believe it is the initial of the defendant Geitner.

DR. LATERNER: I am taking up the word now as the speaker for the defense, for the not present Dr. Sauter. The prosecution tries in its presentation to interpret letters which have been previously interpreted differently, and as they are shown in the document book, to interpret them and substitute another letter.

I object to this because from the original, it is by no means shown that this pure assertion of the prosecution is correct. Either the letter is clear, then it has to be shown like this in the document book. However, if it is not clear what letter is meant, then that has to be shown in the copy of the original. The prosecution can not now argue what the letter is.

I summarize, either the prosecution has to indicate the letter as it is clearly shown in the original document, or if it is not clearly and unmistakably shown, then this fact has to be pointed out in the copy of the document.

I object, therefore, to this interpretation of the prosecution for this interpretation has to be proved first.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, our comments are only for the assistance of the Tribunal in interpreting the evidence which we are presenting.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is of the opinion that these documents which are presented here are presented as accurate interpretations and translations. Until such time as they are shown to be inaccurate by a statement of proper evidence, the objection will be sustained.

Page 960

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing on page 67 of the English, page 50 of the German document book, is another order of General Bader, dated 16 February 1943, to 610th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"Reference: Your teletype of 12 February 1943.

"In reprisal for the telephone sabotage committed on the railroad line Arandjelovac-Mladenovac during the night 11 to 12 1943 five Communists and five D.M. followers are to be shot to death. These are to be taken, if possible, from the villages of Banja and Kopljare. The Serbian District Head is to participate in the selection of hostages.

"Report of execution of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed."

Signed by Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

Next, on page 68 of the English, page 51 of the German, is General Bader's order of 16 February 1943 to 809th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"Reference: Your teletype of 16 February 1943.

"The suggestions in your teletype above concerning reprisal for the destruction of the two telephone lines Knjazevac-Svrljig and Knjazevac-Soko Banja are approved.

"Only persons suspected of being Communists or D.M. followers may be apprehended as hostages."

Signed Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

Page 69 of the English, page 51 of the German, an order of General Bader, dated 22 February 1943, to the 610th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"For the murder of the railroad employee Tripkovic in the station of Stopanja on 19 February 1943 ten Communists or D.M. suspects are to be shot to death - according to the result of the investigations. If the political affinity of the culprits cannot be established, five D.M. followers and five Communists are to be shot to death.

"2) For the sabotage on the telegraph line near Darosava (10 kilometers NW of Arandjelovac) committed during the night of 10 to 19 Febru 288 Jul 47-M-11-2-EHM-Stone (Schaeffer) ary 1943 ten Communists are to be shot to death.

"3) Report of execution-of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed."

Again signed Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

Page 70 of the English, page 52 of the German, is another report of General Bader, dated 22 February 1943, to 809th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"Reference: Your teletype of 21 February.

"In reprisal for the blowing up of railroad tracks at the tunnel in the railroad station of Palilula on 10 February 1943 ten Communists are to be shot to death.

"Measures to 2 and 3 can be carried out on his own competence of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters. (initial ill)" Signed Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

Page 71 of the English, page 53 of the German, is the final order in this document, the order of General Bader, dated 26 February 1943, to the 610th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"A total of 40 Communists is to be shot in reprisal for the attack on the mines of Vrbica on 20th and 21st and Oraschatz. For the attack on Belanovica on 20th and 21st and the killing of three Serbian administrative employees which ensued 30 Communists for the destruction of the telephone line near Topola on 23 February ten Communists are to be shot to death." This should read "if": "If the area of Administrative SubArea Headquarters has not sufficient (Communists) available, they will be supplied by the Commander of the Security Police. Report of execution of mission is to be sent here with a copy of the publication enclosed."

And the order is signed Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

Turning next to page 72 of the English, page 54 of the German, is Document No. NOKW-1550, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 261. These are a series of Daily Reports for the months of January and February 1943 from the Commander in Chief Southeast, who at this time was General Loehr, and his Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch, sent to Army Headquarters of the OKH in Berlin.

First is the Daily Report of 1 January 1943. Under the section of the report dealing with Greece:

"Major General von Studnitz has taken over command in the Saloniki - Aegean sphere of command - in the area of Saloniki; 20 Communists shot dead in reprisal for attacks committed. The remaining two detachments of the Reich Labor Service, Group 40 and 45, arrived in Saloniki."

And this report, as are all the reports in this series, is signed by the Commander in Chief Southeast, who was simultaneously Commander of Army Group E.

Continuing on page 73 of the English and 55 of the German, the Daily Report of 4 January 1943:

"During mopping up northeast Bos. Novi 14 enemy dead, 2 villages of the insurgents burned down, enemy ammunition supplies destroyed."

And the next page in both the English and German, the report of 5 January, under Serbia:

"In Belgrade two arrests, 10 Communists shot dead in reprisal for attack. Plans for increased patrol activity during withdrawal movement."

"Message."

"Eight kilometers south of Sisak a transport train of the 369th Division struck a mine. Engine and four cars derailed. Train fired on from both sides. Eleven soldiers, one railroad employee dead. Train looted and partly burned out. Traffic interrupted presumably until 6 January a.m. Research under way. Panzer support did not arrive early enough because departure of transport from Zagreb had not been reported. Reprisal measure underway."

And the next page, the report of 8 January 1943 -- I beg your pardon, the report of 7 January 1943, under the sub-division "General":

"Increase of all kinds of acts of sabotage. Serbia: Radio monitoring of Mihailovic shows that the incipient weakening of the occupation of Serbia has been realized. Individual attacks."

And then continuing with the report of the 7th of January, on page 76 of the English, page 57 of the German, under West Bosnia:

"In Teslic quiet. Reprisal measures started. Bomb attack on band shelters near Teslic is intended. Thirty kilometers north and 35 kilometers northwest Jajce enemy assembling."

"Navy transport train for Crete derailed due to mine 40 kilometers northwest Belgrade. Up to now 19 dead and 22 wounded were taken care of. Reprisal measures against surrounding villages not possible since inhabitants are national Germans."

"The mass of the male population has been drafted, the rest is with railroad security. Individual troop transport trains will travel only during the day until further notice. Supply trains will travel also at night with security car. North of the Save Communists have carried out several compulsory recruiting actions."

And then the section of the report dealing with Greece:

"On 6 January the 8th and 11th Company of the 11th Artillery Regiment of the 11th Luftwaffe Field Division arrived. One hundred ninetyseven men flown over to Crete, of whom 57 belonged to the 22nd Infantry Division. In the Piracus a balloon with tow rope shot down and secured.

"7 January, 0330 hours, attack by a multi-engined enemy plane on Athens. Six bombs dropped on the southeast edge of Athens; two Greek houses destroyed, three damaged, one Greek dead. A renewed sabotage attempt on the searchlight Salamis was repelled. Culprits escaped after losses. In the German occupied territory it has been ordered to turn in all radio sets and radio installations. Entire small boat traffic is stopped; 18 hostages shot dead, 45 new hostages arrested."

And on the next page, page 77 of the English, 55 of the German, is the Daily Report from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH in Berlin for the 9th of January 1943. Under "Serbia":

"In Belgrade, 14 arrests. Near Valjevo small Mihailovic group captured. Numerous attacks on communities. Near Djunis (45 kilometers northwest Nish) dynamite attack on railroad bridge, main line Nish-Belgrade. Traffic interrupted for eight hours, suspects caught. Shooting of hostages will be carried out."

Turning to the next page, a Daily Report of the 12th of January 1943: "Serbia: Individual attack in northeast Serbia. In Belgrade eight arrests, in addition six more Communists shot dead in reprisal for railroad sabotage northwest of Nish."

On the next page, 79 of the English, 61 of the German, the Daily Report of the 19th of January 1943:

"Croatia.

Turning next to the report of the 22nd of January 1943 on the succeeding page. Your Honors will note that the same text of this report goes also to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia:

"German Liaison Staff with CDO Supersloda: German Plenipotentiary General in Croatia - Commander of German troops in Croatia - OKW/WFSt/op (Army)," and the other units which are listed as having received copies of the report.

Daily Report of the 22nd of January 1943, turning to page 81 of the English and 62 of the German for the text of the report. Under Serbia:

"Several minor attacks in Bulgarian occupied territory. Successful employment of Pursuit Detachment. More than 100 arrested. Ten shot dead in reprisal. Belgrade - 17 arrested."

I think we may skip the next report of the 30th of January 1943 and look at the Daily Report of 2 February 1943 on page 83 of the English and page 65 of the German:

"SS Division -- Together with West Group encountered road blocks near Ripac. Their removal underway. Companies ordered to mop up to the left to the advance road encountered strong enemy (about three battalions) north of Bijelo Brdo.

During successful battle 23 dead, 34 wounded. More than 100 enemy dead counted, 47 prisoners shot dead, 363 taken into temporary custody."

Turning next to page 99 of the English and 75 of the German Document Book, NOKW-1336 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 262, this is an order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia dated -your Honor's document book should be corrected from the 26th of February, 1943, to read the 28th of February, 1943. This is an order of General Bader dealing with making the execution of hostages administration machinery more effective.

Subject: Establishing of camps for Reprisal Prisoners In order to accelerate and increase the effectiveness of the reprisal measures which have been ordered, the establishing of camps for reprisal prisoners is hereby ordered in Belgrade for the districts Belgrade and Pozarevac Sabac for the districts Sabac and Valjevo Cacak for the districts Kragujevo and Uzice Kragujevad for the districts Kragujevac and Jagodina Krusevac for the district Krusevac Zajecar for the district Zajecar Nis for the district Nis Leskovac for the district Leskovac For the present, the establishing of a special camp for reprisal prisoners for the district Mitrovica is not envisaged.

The camps (with the exception of camps already existing in Belgrade, Sabac and Nis) are to be installed by the District Administrative Headquarters, utilizing existing facilities such as prisons, barracks, etc. They should be large enough at least to house 50 reprisal prisoners. The installation and the current upkeep of the camp is the task of the communities in which they are established. Feeding and medical care of the reprisal prisoners is to be provided for. The guarding is to be settled by the District Commandants in agreement with the heads of Police District offices and the local troop commanders. In case of difficulties reports are to be made to my office.

Installation capacity and guarding of the reprisal camps are to be reported by the 20 March 1943.

The camps in Belgrade, Sabac and Nis are subordinated to the Commander of the Security Police. The Higher SS and Police Leader reports by 15 March 43 what other camps can be taken over by Security Service Branch Offices." The order is signed Bader and your Honors will note the distribution of the order.

Page 969

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me just a minute. Does the turning off of these lights make it a little cooler in this room? Does it affect the reporters? If there is any objection on behalf of the reports, please indicate it. The fact that you have not indicated it indicates it is all right, so until such time as we find it necessary we will leave the lights off and perhaps it will make it a little cooler under the present summer conditions.

You may proceed. Pardon the interruption.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors will note that the order we are dealing with is signed by Bader and also note the distribution list. "To all Administrative, Sub-Area and District Headquarters; to the Higher SS and Police Leader; to the Commander of the Ordnance Police, and to the Commander of the Security Police."

Turning now to the final document in Document Book X, page 107 of the English, page 77 of the German, Document NOKW-382, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 263, this, if Your Honors please, is an extremely important document because it establishes the administrative machinery for the execution of hostages. It outlines the pattern which will be followed from this period on with respect to these -

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't hear the reference to the page from which you are reading.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This if your Honors please, is on page 107 of the English, page 77 of the German.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: It is this order of General Bader which sets the pattern which will be followed from this time on with respect to the seizure of hostages and the execution of hostages. The order is dated 28 February 1943. Subject: Reprisal by taking human life.

THE PRESIDENT: Page 107 of the English?

JUDGE CARTER: Page 101 of the English, isn't it?

Page 970

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor is correct. Page 101.

THE PRESIDENT: Does turning off the lights affect the translators or interpreters? It is all right.

Subject: Reprisal by Taking Human Life.

The increasing importance in combatting the insurgent movements in Serbia, of a uniform and clear procedure on this procedure - on the severest measure, the taking of human life - makes necessary a new and comprehensive summary of the orders in effect in this field.

All officers and heads of offices who participate in the carrying out of reprisal measures are charged by me with the duty of observing carefully the following regulations.

I. In what cases are reprisal measures applicable?

1.) Security of Personnel Reprisal measures will be applied in the case of any attack directed against the person or the life of:

a) A Reichdeutscher or a Volksdeutscher (Wehrmacht, Wehrmacht employee, or German civilian).

b) A member of the Bulgarian Occupation Corps.

c) A person in the service of the occupying powers regardless of his nationality.

d) A member of the Serbian government or a high Serbian official (District or Kreis Supervisor, Mayor), officers of the Serbian state guard, a member of the Serbian Volunteer Corps, et al., however, reprisal measures shall only result if

a) The perpetrators cannot be apprehended within 48 hours

b) The attack on the protected person was based on political reasons, and

c) The attack resulted in a wounding or killing. Killing is presumed unless a kidnapped person has returned after a certain period.

Whether or not reprisal measures will be taken where members of the occupying powers or of the Serbian armed units were killed or wounded during combat action, depends upon whether these deaths or wounds resulted from an enemy attack or in the course of our own operations (for instance, searching actions or arrests).

In general reprisal measures will not be taken in the latter case.

2.) Security of Installations Reprisal measures also will be taken in the event of any attack against war important installations, in particular against the means of communication, transport and roads, communications installations, industrial installations, and supply installations, provided that

- a) Damage has been done, and
- b) The perpetrators cannot be apprehended within 48 hours.

II. Reprisal Quotas Until further notice the following quotas shall apply - unless in individual cases another number is ordered:

- 1.) For 1 German killed or 1 Bulgarian killed 50 hostages are to be executed For 1 German wounded or 1 Bulgarian wounded 25 hostages are to be executed.
- 2.) For the killing of one person in the category listed in I,1Ac) and d) Security of Persons) 10 hostages are to be executed For 1 person wounded 5 hostages are to be executed.

- 3.) For any attack against installations to be protected according to Para. 2) up to 100 hostages may be shot to death, according to the seriousness of the case.

In less serious cases it will be sufficient to make reprisal through imposing collective punishments (burning down of houses, money fines, penal guards, arrests, etc.).

III. What persons are to be used for reprisal executions

1.) The confidence in the justice of the occupying power is shaken and the loyal part of the population too is driven into the woods by the procedure of arbitrary arrests of persons in reprisal after an attack or an act of sabotage near the locality where the incident occurred. This form of carrying out reprisal measures is therefore forbidden.

If, however, an on the spot investigation reveals an open or hidden cooperation or an intentionally passive behavior of certain persons toward the culprits, those persons are to be executed first, as bandit helpers. The proclamation is to point out expressly their complicity.

- 2.) If such accomplices can not be found, one must fall back on persons who are to be considered co-responsible although they may not have any connection with the particular incident.

Co-responsible are primarily persons who openly sympathize with Draja Michailovic or with Communism.

- 3.) The following are not to be used for reprisal measures:

- a.) Persons who have demonstrated by their behavior that they oppose the aims of the insurgents, to be protected, as for instance, office holders. Exceptions may be made for special reasons by the Commanding General and Commander.

4.) Generally the Commander of the Security Police will furnish persons proper for reprisal measures in accordance with the above points, from the circle of suspected persons delivered over to him in accordance with Ia No. 509/42 Top Secret from the routine operations of the military and of the police, in so far as these are not to be released as innocent or transported for free or compulsory labor (hostages).

5.) These hostages are to be collected in hostage camps by districts. An order will be issued simultaneously regarding the direction of the hostage camps. A sufficient supply is currently to be kept available in the camps.

If in certain cases suitable hostages are not available or the available hostages are insufficient, the number needed is to be taken either from a neighboring camp or from the collecting camp in Belgrade.

6.) In the event that special actions for the procuring of hostages should be necessary, suspected persons shown in the reviewed lists of the Serbian district supervisor are to be taken first (see Ia No. 184/ 43, 14/2/43). The Commander of the District HQ. with the concurrence of the commanding general and commander (Section Ia) will order such operations.

7.) In the individual cases hostages are to be selected from those available who are connected by blood or political group with the circle presumed-to be guilty: With the enmity existing at present between the two insurgent groups it would be more an inducement than a deterrent for the perpetrators, if Communist party members were killed for attacks carried out by D.M. adherents and vice versa.

The individual selection of hostages consequently depends on the political adherence of the perpetrators. If this cannot be determined, Communists and D.M. followers are to be used in equal numbers for reprisal measures. If possible persons provided for the execution should come from the neighborhood of the culprits or from the locality where the incident occurred.

IV. What authorities are authorized to carry out reprisal measures.

1.) The introduction of reprisal measures is the task of the commanders of the District HQs. These commanders after hearing the interested parties whether the conditions for the taking of reprisal measures are present in the specific case. If so, the commander of the District HQ submits to the Commanding General and Commander an application for the taking of reprisal measures.

The application must contain: a short description of the incident, losses or damages suffered, political origin of the culprits, number of hostages provided for execution.

2.) The Commanding General and Commander decides on the carrying out of the execution applied for by letter or teletype.

3.) The Commander of the District HQ orders the Kreis Commander in whose area the action took place or which is the home of the culprits to carry out the reprisal measures. After contacting the SD branch office concerned and getting the opinion of the competent Serbian Kreis supervisor, the Kreis Commander suggests to the District HQ Commander persons suitable for the execution, in accordance with III paragraph 7).

4.) The Kreis Commander issues the necessary instructions for the carrying out of the execution. Military and police units are to comply with this request to hold executions. Generally losses of the military will be retaliated for by the military. The police furnishes the execution squad in reprisal actions for their losses, and above that in reprisal actions for all attacks on non-soldiers and installations under protection.

5.) In general the executions of hostages will take place in remote localities without participation of the population. There must be no furnishing of Serbian martyrs.

The interment must be sufficiently deep. A list of the names of the people killed must be forwarded to the District HQ concerned, which will furnish death certificates on special application.

6.) The Kreis Commander responsible for carrying out the reprisal measures will immediately report the execution to the Feldkommandatur (Admin. Sub-Area HQ). The latter will arrange publication and will inform the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia (Section Ia) by teletype of the carrying out of the execution. A file copy of the publication is to be sent in later.

V. Publication of reprisal measures Since the reprisal measure represents not only a punishment for crimes committed but is to serve primarily as a horrifying example and a deterrent to further crimes, every reprisal measure must be published.

Reprisal measures must be made public in such a way that they reach the culprits and circles close to them. The proclamation must underline the infamy of the deed and the complicity of those executed. Persons executed must not be described as "persons" but as Communists, D.M. followers, bandit helpers, etc. Publications are to be signed "Commander of District HQ".

VI The Taking of Hostages and Reprisal Prisoners

1) All the reprisal prisoners in the camps of the Kreiskommandatur (District HQ) are to be considered hostages. The names of the camp inmates therefore are to be published in the area of the Kommandanturs for the population with the threat that these inmates must pay with their lives for specified disturbances affecting the public order in accordance with paragraph I. If in individual cases a military unit requires hostages these are to be taken generally from the camps or the local Kreis Commander.

2) As far as persons are detained as hostages by subordinate units and offices by reason of orders issued previously, the chiefs of the offices in agreement with the SD will decide (in accordance with Section III, paragraph 1), which persons are appropriate as hostages and are to be transferred to hostage camps.

There will no longer be an exchange of these persons as before. All other persons are to be released.

3) Carrying out of this order is to be reported by 20.3.1943. If arrests of persons as hostages become necessary for the prevention of anticipated conspiracies or attacks in certain individual cases, procedure will be according to III, paragraph 6. In the execution of reprisal detainees as hostages as far as jurisdiction and procedure is concerned, Section IV is to be applied.

VIII. Validity of orders In cases of reprisals procedure is to be according to this order immediately after the time of receipt of this order and not later than 5.3.1943.

And then there follows a list of the orders which are rescinded by this order, dated 29 February 1943. The order is signed "Bader", and on page 110 of the English and 81 of the German is the distribution list for the order. Your Honors will note a copy of the order goes to the Higher SS and Police Fuehrer, another copy to the Commander of the Regular Police and another copy to the Commander of the Security Police.

That, if Your Honors, please, completes the presentation of the documents in Document Book No. 10.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, after the last order has been read almost in its entirety the important point should also be read, the last, which has been left out and in which those orders are listed which are being rescinded by this order. That is what should be done so that the Tribunal can get a better picture of the situation which began with this order.

Page 977

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I will be glad to do that, if Your Honors, please.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 109 of the English, page 89 of the German:

The following orders are rescinded:

- 1.) Military commander in Serbia - Administrative Staff - Diary Number 144/41 secret, VII dated 17.7.41, Section II, paragraph 4, Section IV, paragraph 3.

- 7.) Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Ia No. 6090/42 secret, dated 1.12.1942.

Page 978

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, before you commence with any comments concerning this document, I think the Tribunal should make some announcement concerning Friday.

This coming Friday is the day which has been set aside and termed "Air Force Day" and under the European Command may be taken as a holiday.

MR. DENNEY: That's rights your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal, however, has ascertained that all the other Tribunals will be functioning at that time. We feel that at this present -

MR. DENNEY: You're not getting anything out in the mike, Sir -- that is, if I interpret the signes through the window as being proper.

THE PRESIDENT: Repeating for purposes of the record only, on this coming Friday the date has been set aside as "Army Air Force Day" and under the orders of the European Command may be taken as a holiday.

All the other Tribunals that are now functioning, because of the fact that they are nearing the completion of their work or for other necessary reasons, have decided to continue their work on that day. This Tribunal feels that under the circumstances we also should continue to function and operate on this coming Friday.

I might state that we have been advised that we are making very rapid and satisfactory progress in the presentation of evidence, that we are getting -- that the prosecution is getting along faster than perhaps was originally anticipated; and it is quite possible that we may take, and can take, a recess at a later time.

It might be arranged for the prosecution, if they have some matters which need to receive attention, that that could be done at the close at some weekend and we could get the benefit of this extra day which I understand, under the rules, may be taken as a substitute for the day that we will be working.

I am making that announcement so that all parties concerned may make their plans accordingly.

MR. DENNEY: The German line seems to be dead now, Your Honor.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I believe that the translation was not clear to us. I could not understand properly. Is there a session on Friday or isn't there?

THE PRESIDENT: There will be a session on Friday.

MR. DENNEY: Continuing with the documents where Mr. Fenstermacher has left off, the next document in NOKW 1360 which is page 1 of the English and page 1 of the German. It is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 264. This contains various orders from the Commanding General and the Commander in Serbia.

The first one is dated 10 March 1943 and is to "Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610" -- and it refers to a teletype of the same date from the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters and the sub-Area Headquarters and the subject is: "Operation 'Ibar'":

"People captured without resistance are to be released with the exception of officers. The same applies to those giving up arms before 25 March. Prisoners taken in combat are to be shot to death. Measures against family members are to be postponed.

"Commanding General and Commander in Serbia" --and the number of the communication appears below that, and it is signed with a signature that we believe to be "W. Auer."

And it is to be noted that after the release of this communication it's to go to the Commander of the Security Police for purposes of information.

And then the second page of the English, top of --this on page 1 of the German still -- communication dated 1 March 1943, from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809 and 610; and the subject matter is the "Installation of Camps for Hostages."

"Re order mentioned in the reference, the Senior SS and Police Leader reports that the care of the hostages in the new camps which are to be installed in Kragujevac, Krusevac and Zajecar, will be taken over by the branch offices of the Commander of the Security Police and of the SD there. However, this does not extend to rations and billets of the hostages.

"The Commander of the Security Police is unable to make personnel available for the hostage camps to be installed in Cacak and Leskovac. Therefore, the care of the hostages in these camps is a matter for the Commander of District Headquarters.

"For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia", and thereafter is typed, "The Chief of the General Staff"; and then various "For information" copies are distributed.

Then, on page 3 of the English and 2 of the German text, communication of 17 March 1943 to Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters, No. 10 - 610 rather:

"Reprisal order to number of the letter quoted is rescinded since investigations set up in the meantime have shown that the murdered man was a Communist who was killed by DM-men.

"For the destruction of 14 telegraph poles during the night from 25 to 26 February Southwest of Topola, 10 Communists are to be shot to death."

And then "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia" is typed and the initials "W. A." it is submitted, are the same as the first two initials in the first communication of this series which indicate that it came from W. Auer; and then below that is the large initial "B".

The next communication is dated "19 March 1943" and is to "Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters Nich 809", and I believe "809W" is not in the German. However, it should be. It appears in pen on the photostat of the original. This refers to a teletype of 18 March and again is from the "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia."

"In reprisal for the Communist attack on the dairies in Vrazegrnac, District of Zajecar, 10 Communists are to be shot to death for the murdered dairy manager and for the destruction in the dairies working for the German Wehrmacht 20 communists are to be shot to death. Completion of execution is to be reported here enclosing a copy of the publication.

"Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, 1a" and the number handwritten and "secret" and the initial "B", and here again is note showing it goes to the "Commander of the Security Police" for information.

Now, at this time I would like to again raise the question of these initials. It comes up a little bit differently here. I first pass up to the Court Document NOKW-858, which is Exhibit 8216 in evidence, having been admitted on the 24th.

This is the document, photostatic copy of the document, which is the personal history of the defendant von Geitner, made by him here in the Nurnberg prison. It contains a signature signed by Geitner and I would like to direct the Court's attention first to the signature page which is page 3 of the photo stat and then perhaps we may need, the lights on for this but -

THE PRESIDENT: Alright.

MR. DENNEY: Will you turn the lights on over the Court, please?

Line 1 of the affidavit, the Tribunal can see where the word "Ritter", R-i-t-t-e-r has been inserted by the defendant Geitner and to the left he made an initial. Again on the 11th line from the bottom he changed a letter in the second word and again made an initial out to the side. Now, I would like to have the Court look at those and, as we go through here, I would like to direct the Court's attention to the initial that I submit is similar. In connection with the Court's -- perhaps, the defendant Geitner's counsel would like to show it to him. We have had one document already with a signature on it and we have another one coming up very shortly.

MR. DENNEY: In connection with the Court's ruling about the change from the initial "Y" to the initial "G", these documents, many of them, were not as carefully examined as they are able to be examined now, because a limited number of photostats came from Washington, and we do not have the time to give the scrutiny to them that we do when we are putting the individual books in. The principal problem there is selection of documents, and then a selection of material.

Now it is a standard procedure that everything that is at the end, that comes by way of signature, shall be included. That is automatic, to show the source. Now very often a translator, may not have noticed the initial at the time --- a translator may mark it down as "Y", and if your Honors please, we have throughout the record, been calling to the attention of the court, mistakes. Now these may be mistakes either in translation, or mistakes in transcription, and we submit that it is somewhat limiting to us to not be allowed to submit that it is our contention that a defendant, as chief of staff for a military commander did place his initials on it -- we are not saying that we know that they are. But it is our contention that it appears to us to be his initial, and we submit that it is only -- we submit, of course, subject to your Honors' ruling, that it is proper that we be allowed to indicate that, and if at a later time defense counsel wishes to state that it is not, or if in the event the defendant Geitner takes the stand, and he chooses to deny them, that would be, we submit, the proper procedure.

Of course here the question is raised somewhat differently because there is nothing on this document that I have here, which I would like to show to your Honors. This is the 4th page of Exhibit No. 264, just after the 1a, and just before the initial which we submit is the initial of Bader, appears that same little peculiar initial. It is our contention that the defendant Geitner, as Chief of Staff, initialed it.

JUDGE CARTER: These documents are certified as having been correctly translated and offered in evidence on that basis.

MR. DENNEY: Yes.

JUDGE CARTER: Who testifies here that they have not been correctly translated?

MR. DENNEY: With reference to the signature, your Honor, those are pretty much of a guess. Your Honors have looked at a lot of these signatures and initials, and we submit that as to contents, yes, they are properly translated, but we also submit that in view of the initials which we presented that he made, the defendant Geitner, and the initials which appear from time to time on these documents, -- and I might add, parenthetically here, that in cases where it is a very dim copy on the photostat, the prosecution has not made any comment about them, we have only done it when we feel that at least in our mind there is no doubt.

JUDGE CARTER: The point I make is that you offer it in evidence and it is accepted; then when you get at the end of it, you ask us to change the exhibit without any evidence of anyone that what you purport to change it to has any bearing here.

Dr. Laternser is getting nothing through the earphones.

JUDGE CARTER: I will repeat what I said again. Mr. Denney, my point is that this instrument has been offered in evidence as a correct translation, and we have received it in evidence. Then when you read it you ask us, without any proof or anything else, to merely change the exhibit as it has been put in evidence. It seems to me that that is entirely irregular. If you want to argue from signature later, during the course of the argument, that is something altogether different.

MR. DENNEY: We have had errors in them before, your Honor, and as I said, these errors may be some typographical, and some may be in the process of re-transcribing.

JUDGE CARTER: I can understand where grammatical errors can come without much difficulty. When it comes down to the basis of whether one of the defendants signed the document or whether he did no to that is quite a serious matter.

MR. DENNEY: As we go along, would it be satisfactory to your Honors to show the original document, in each case, and just point out what someone has said is a "Y" and What we contend is a "G"? Now in this case, if your Honors will note, there is nothing on this document, (Page 4) to show that a "G" or a "Y" or anything else is there; yet, on the document which has been handed to your Honors, clearly we submit, the initial "G" does appear, and that it is the same initial that appears on other exhibits in evidence before in the case.

JUDGE CARTER: I see no objection to the Tribunal examining any exhibit, any original. That part is all right, but to start an argument during the middle of the prosecution's case as to what it may mean, other than the translation, seems to me is at the wrong time.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, with your Honors' permission I will hand the various documents up as we go along, and perhaps we will call a translator at a later time, who has translated these earlier marks.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, any alteration, -- an alteration of any kind of documents which are being presented, I object to emphatically for the following reasons:

I say that it has been asserted that in some initials that one can just guess at them. If that has to be done, then the copy should point that out too, -- that the signature is illegible. That it is not proper that in connection with the document, the prosecution assert that the document was signed or initiated by any one of the defendants which they designate at that moment - in other words they are arguing at the moment - and what they assert has to be proved at this point of the proceedings.

For this reason I object to any alterations of the signatures in the text.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is of the opinion that its ruling as announced this morning covers the comments made at this time by Dr. Laternser. I will keep in mind also the comments made by Judge Carter.

You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: It is your Honor's ruling that these documents may be passed up to the court to examine them as we go along, but that where a letter is indicated as being one letter in the translation, we cannot change it without bringing the translator, but we still there may show the document to the Tribunal?

Page 986

THE PRESIDENT: If you wish to make any different showing as to the translation, that is your privilege, but it has to be done by proof.

MR. DENNEY: Turning to the next page, which is page 4 of the English, and page 5 of the German, this is a communication of 19 March, the year is not given, but I think it can be fairly assumed it is 1934, Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 610:

Subject: Reprisal measures.

1. In reprisal for the attack on the corn requisitioning detachment near Gornji Dubac on 14 March a total of 150 hostages are to be shot to death for the murder of the two auxiliary police men and of the corporal of the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters. That is at the 50 to 1 ration. "Insofar as it has not been established beyond doubt from what circles the culprits emanate, the persons to be executed are to be taken, one half from the DM-men and the other half from the Communists.

In consideration of the existing suspicion that the culprits home was the village of Gornji Dubac or that they were supported by its population during the attack, the village is to be burned down.

2. In reprisal for the murder of the char-woman working for Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 610 and members of her family, 5 Communists and 5 DM-followers are to be shot to death. The publication must express the fact that all circles of the population working for the German Wehrmacht enjoys its protection, regardless of their social position.

Completion of execution is to be reported here, enclosing a copy of the publication."

I would appreciate it if your Honors would look at this page of the exhibit.

....Court examining document....

MR. DENNEY: Then on the next page, the note that after release the communication which has just been read should be sent to the Senior SA and Police Leader, and a copy for the Commander of the Security Police.

Page 987

On 21 March 1943: still from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 610:

"In reprisal for the burning down of the saw mills of the Organization Todt in Crna Roka, 30 DM-followers are to be shot to death.

According to reports available, the DM-bands intend to destroy additional saw mills shortly.

Approval for the arrest of 50 hostages is given. Completion of shooting to death and/or arrest is to be reported here."

That has the initial "B" and also the initial "G" WA, which is submitted are those that appear on the first page.

Page 988

MR. DENNEY: And then on Page 7 of the English, Page 5 of the German, from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, to the Administrative Subarea Headquarters 599, dated 23 March 1943:

"In reprisal for the murder of the mayor of the community of Sibnica of the District of Pozarevac, 10 hostages suspected of being Communists are to be shot to death."

MR. DENNEY: And this one is signed by Bader, and information copies go to the SD and Commander of the Security Police.

MR. DENNEY: And then on Page 6 of the German and Page 8 of the English, is Document No. NOKW-1633, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 265 in evidence. These are excerpts from the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. The entries here are for the period early in March. Under the 2nd of March:

"Teletype orders to Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 610 to shoot 10 communists in reprisal for the killing of the Commander of the Rural Constabulary Marinkovic in Krcevac, and to shoot another 10 communists for the raid on the station Dedina."

MR. DENNEY: And the next day teletype orders to shoot to death 30 D.M. followers in reprisal for the destruction of the funicular railway Majdanpek D. Milanovac, and 20 communists for the destruction of the power station of the Soko mines.

Enclosure 10 Letter to Prime Minister Nedic regarding individual reprisal measures.

MR. DENNEY: Page 9 of the English and Page 3 of the German, now going to the date, 4 March: Translation of Document No. NOKW-1633(Excerpts) Continued:

"Written communications to Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 399 saying that the proposal to shoot to death 10 peasants from the district Sopot suspected of being communists in reprisal for the murder of the mayor of the community Beljina is approved.

MR. DENNEY: And then on Page 8 of the German and Page 10 of the English is Document No. NOKW-955, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 266 in evidence. This is from the Commander of German Troops in Croatia, and is dated 31 March 1943, and is directed to the Secretary of State for the Armed Power, Enclosed please find as summary of operation "Weiss" with the request to inform his excellency Poglavnik of its contents.

The summary is not suitable for publication.

In the beginning of the year 1943, military interference in the area of Karlovac -BIHAC - LIVNO had become a necessity. The Commander of German Troops was charged with The execution of the mopping up operations.

For many months the enemy had cleared for himself a Sovereign territory, had organized a considerable number of fighters and by strong road destructions and fortifications in every direction he had secured the territory he ruled. The number of active fighters equipped with automatic and heavy weapons including Artillery and Panzers may be estimated at 65,000 men. They were organized in corps, divisions and brigades.

Later the supreme leadership proved itself quite good and very mobile. The intermediate leadership was less efficient. The combat value of the Communists was partly outstanding partly absolutely good. It was only toward the end of the operation that signs of deterioration appeared.

The German divisions had available as their own units two Croatian Mountain Brigades as well as units of two additional German Divisions.

They were to be ready for attack on 20 January 43. Overburdening of the railroad, lack of coal and engines, several particularly heavy cases of sabotage as well as sudden and unusual snow threatened to make the success of the operation completely doubtful.

Utmost commitment of all forces enabled us nevertheless to finish preparations on 19 January 1943.

The start of the offenses on 20 March 1943 caught the enemy by surprise. He had not counted on an attack in the winter months. By a courageous thrust the advance of the attacking troops brought them from KARLOVAC and GLINA to SLUNJ, BIHAC, from PETRINJA and KOSTAJNICA to BOS. KRUPA and from SANSKI MOST and KLUJC to BOS. KRUPA and PETROVAC. Directly behind them, engineers and the Todt organization began to repair roads and bridges. Very soon the completely surprised enemy had reassembled, and offered a tough resistance supported by a knowledge of the terrain. PETROVAGORA, SAMARICA and all wood land and bridges had to be mopped up at times amid bitter fighting. The battle for GREMEC mountains was the hardest one.

In almost 18 months labor, the enemy had made it into a fortress, he had collected considerable supplies and organized large barrack camps. This fortress too was taken piece by piece. Preceding this SLUNJ was liberated on 25 January. On 29 January BIHAC was liberated. BOS KRUPA was liberated on 30 January, and the Partisans were chased out of BOS PETROVAC on 7 February. The area from KARLOVAC to GRMEC was swept clean of Partisans on 15 February. Unfortunately a part of the Partisans had evaded toward the Southwest and the Italian Battalions which were operating there were unable to stop them.

The troops made ready for a new attack on 21 February 43. Notwithstanding the tremendous efforts of the preceding weeks, they meanwhile had executed the assembly for the second part. A rest would have been desirable. But that would have enabled the enemy to reorganize as units and organize resistance. This would have cost our troops considerable more blood. That is why the German leadership had to insist upon an immediate continuation of the operations which had been started. Indicative of the spirit with which the Germans as well as the Croats were imbued, -- is the fact that the elan of the attack in the very second part of the operation could hardly have been surpassed and that the men fighting at times amid high barren mountains overcame essentially great exertion with an exemplary attitude and a morale confident of victory.

Without stopping and in long marches, German and Croatian Battalions raced to the South and to the Southeast. DRVAR, BOS GRAHOVO, GLAMOC were taken. On 3 March the first soldiers, Croatians of the 369th Division were greeted in LIVNO by the jubilant population as liberators. In a final bitter battle around BUGOJNO, VAKUF and FROZOR broke the last noteworthy resistance power of the enemy. He hurried back in a Southeasterly direction with the remainder of his utterly defeated men.

But still the troops did not find their well earned rest. Meanwhile, disquieting reports from the area of Mostar caused the supreme German leadership to order German troops to occupy the Bauxite territory. Within a matter of hours this necessitated a thorough change of all plans of attack, and a renewed commitment of troops for which rest had been intended. In hard fighting the Narenta and Rama Valley were forced. The exhausted regiments rested near Livno and eastwards in spite of utmost supply difficulties marched again toward the Southeast and in a wide front reached the West bank of the Narenta river. The Commander of the German troops in Croatia was able to report the completion of his mission on 17 March.

German and Croatian Battalions in closest cooperation have achieved a wonderful success. Large parts of the country have been liberated from a tyranny which has lasted for months. The Communist State and its organization are beaten, though unfortunately considerable units were able to withdraw in the direction of the Adriatic Coast and other parts could cross the Narenta River.

Croatian Sovereignty has been reestablished within the mopped up territory.

Success has been bought dearly. Approximately 650 officers, non-commissioned officers and men have sealed their oath with their death.

Their sacrifice must not be in vain. Symbolic of German and Croatian comradeship their death shall constitute a contribution towards a free Croatia and a new Europe.

(Signed)

Lueters.

MR. DENNEY: And then the enclosure to the communication, and it is submitted that this is the enclosure because it was found with it, and it also bears the same order number as does the original "1729/43". This is a "Compilation of losses, of enemy losses and booty." Own losses: dead, a total of 640, wounded, a total of 1472; missing a total of 376. "Croatian losses can be stated only as far as they were classified by German authorities." Enemy losses: 11,915 dead (partly counted, partly estimated) 616 shot to death as a result of summary court martial, 2,506 prisoners (of which 490 men and 285 women were evacuated to Semlin, the rest either turned over to Croatian authorities or released after investigation."

MR. DENNEY: And Your Honors will recall that we have prior documents indicating that Semlin is a concentration camp.

3.) Booty:

The greater part of the booty had been made unusable in good time by the enemy, rations were mostly destroyed. All usable pieces were left with the troops for the purpose of filling in shortages which has arisen, captured cattle was sent to troop maintenance in proper amounts. The rest was given back to the returning population.

And then in the original there appears a list of various items of booty which is not in the German text. However, I shall read it. I have the German text here if any defense counsel want to check and follow me on it.

765 horses 83 Beasts of burden with equipment 1414 Heads of cattle 1678 Sheep Ration supplies - no numbers 17 Containers for cooked food.

And then follows the list of material destroyed or found destroyed.

120 Barracks camps 32 Other first camps 2 Hospitals 1 Wholesale bakery with electrical apparatus 1 Mill.

And the balance of the document which is from the Commander of German troops in Croatia dated 22 February 1943 - this details some experiences concerning the operation "Weiss I." The operation took place from 20 January to 15 February 1943.

Participating Units:

1) SS Volunteer Division "Prinz Eugen": well equipped to a large extent motorized Mountain Division.

Page 994

2) 369th (Croatian) Infantry Division a well equipped German Infantry Division with German Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers. Croatian men.

3) 717th Infantry Division: insufficiently equipped Occupation Division with a small combat strength (3500 men) partly over-age.

4) 2nd and 3rd Croatian Mountain Brigade: Croatian Units equipped for mountain warfare with variable leadership and men, poor weapons and equipment.

And this is signed in draft. That is all typed and the certification over here is written.

Then on page 17 of the German and 19 of the English is Document NOKW-947 which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit 267 in evidence. This is a report from the SS Volunteer Division "Prinz Eugen", which is also the 7th SS Division to the Commander of German Troops in Croatia. We have seen earlier the reference to the fact that this unit was in this area at this time. The subject is an experience report with reference to an operation "Weiss II" and Mostar. This is a separate action from the one that was reported before which was "Weiss I" and this refers to a communication from the Commander of German Troops in Croatia dated 4 March 1943.

The Division encloses an experience report of the 2nd SS Mountain Regiment regarding operation "Weiss II" and Mostar for information.

The experiences and the deficiencies referred to are pertinent to all units of the Division and will be weighed and/ or remedied during the present interruption of combat.

And herewith is the report 26 March 1943 concerning the operation "Weiss II" and Mostar.

In the beginning of operation "Weiss II" the enemy showed considerable weaker resistance than before in operation "Weiss I". A contributive decisive factor may have been the entirely insufficient ration situation and judging from the statement of prisoners, the lack of ammunition on the side of the partisans as a result of preceding fights.

And considering the deplorable clothing of the bandits, the icy Northwind which started in the beginning of operation "Weiss I" has proved the breaking up of the enemy's power of resistance. It has again been demonstrated just as during operation "Weiss I" that artisans are unable to resist a powerful attack effectively supported by heavy Infantry weapons. The following incident mentioned as an example shows that the Partisans have the full support of the Serbian population: During the advance from Javarusa - and then it gives its location on the map - (9 kilometers Southeast of Petrovac) about 60 women and children with three old men were encountered on M. Satornica near the group of houses, 1 kilometer Southwest of Kosa. Then there is a map reference. They were refugees from Kolunic South of Petrovac. When asked they stated that they had not as yet seen any Partisans near the place where they were located at present. They assured us that the terrain was free of Partisans. Thereupon one of the three old men received a pass permitting him to lead the refugees back to Kolunic on the following day.

Notwithstanding the seemingly reliable information, the saddle East of M. Satornica was not approached directly but from the Western Heights. Then they suddenly opened enemy fire of three light machine guns and about 100 enemy rifle men which came from the heights West of M. Satornica saddle (Rodici) was robbed of its effect; the ambush of the Partisans was about 1000 meters removed from the refugee group mentioned above. The enemy was attacked and repelled under losses.

Subsequently, the entire refugee group was shot to death. A boy admitted that the Partisans had been with the refugee group shortly before. A crumpled up identification stamp identifying him as a Communist functionary was found on the man who had received the pass permitting him to lead the refugees back.

Prisoners and deserters alleged as a matter of principle that they had been deported by the Partisans even though the place of origin was Montenegro or Dalmatia and they had on them weapons, hand grenades or ammunition.

Regarding the person of "Tito" the prisoners were only able to make very indefinite statements. They all agreed that he spoke a poor Serbian so that they believed him to be a Russian. The Priest of Bila (8 kilometers Southwest of Livno) claims that he recognized a certain acquaintance, namely Dr. Ribnik of Laibach, in the picture of Tito. They all agreed in their statements that numerous Jews are to be found among the followers of Tito.

And that concludes that document.

Turning now to page 20 of the German and 23 of the English, Document NOKW-920, it is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 268. These are some excerpts from the War Diary of the First Mountain Division and contain various excerpts with reference to their activities. The first entry is for the 25th of April; the period covered is from March 27 to 29 June in 1943.

District Headquarters Mitrovica reports the arrest of three civilians without travel identifications at the station of Orljane by a Serbian State Guard Patrol on the 10th of April. Their search resulted in the finding of enemy propaganda writings and 1 pistol. The three arrested were turned over to the SD-Mitrovica. They were probably D.M. Propagandists.

21,20 hours the 54th Mountain Jaeger Battalion reports: on 25 April at noon a Communist band identifiable by the Soviet Star on the cap attacked Trnavci with 150 men armed with machine guns.

About 20.00 hours 3 kilometers North of Banje a certain State Guard Patrol met a group of 9 bandits. Three bandits were shot to death, four prisoners were brought in and turned over to the SD.

Entry for the 21st:

Reconnaissance plane reports at 08.40 hours:

In upper Tata valley and in the Moraca valley no enemy movement detected.

In the forenoon, conference of the I-c with the Chief of SD Mitrovic regarding problems of evacuation and treatment of political suspects. It is agreed with the SD that the Division will send such elements immediately to the SD in Mitrovica. The Division Ic will always receive copies of the interrogations. The flare Signal of Red Troops for dropping by parachute of which we were informed by the chief of SD will be announced to the regiments.

For the 23rd of May:

Report by Dr. Wunsch via 4th Regiment Division Brandenburg regarding the situation in the Sandzak and in the area of ProzrenPristina- Pec.

17 Civilian Prisoners are brought in by 99 Mountain Jaeger Regiment which had been taken in the area of the H.K.D. Only one of them could be proven to be a Communist while the others are to be considered politically innocent. Among other things, they state that Tito forces are alleged to be in the Jasopje Mountains about 5 to 6000 men strong.

For the 30th:

The Commander of German Troops in Croatia/Ic receives antiCommunists propaganda pamphlet of the Chetniks which has been found in sizeable quantities in Kolasin. The Division requests information as to whether this pamphlet may continue to be used for anti-Communist propaganda. The answer of the Commander of German Troops in Croatia Ic is negative.

On 1 June:

09.30 hours report of Mountain Signal Communication Detachment 54 concerning the wave of arrests carried out in the area of Kolasin.

Page 998

The arrested persons will be sent to the SD via Field Gendarmerie troops 54. For details - see enclosure.

The Italian High Command Montenegro transmits to the Division a list of prices set on the heads of Chetnik and Communist leaders which is distributed as far as the companies.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our afternoon recess at this time.

(A recess was taken.)

Page 999

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats, The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: If it please, Your Honors, turning to page -

First, Dr. Laternser has called my attention to page 12 of the German, page 15 of the English, which is Document NOKW-955, Exhibit 266 in evidence. At the bottom of the page under the paragraph numbered "2" the German word about which we have had some discussion, "standrechlich" appears and it appears in your Honors' document book as "summary court martial" and it should be "court martial". The word "summary" should be dropped.

Your Honors will recall it is on page 15 of the English, Document Book XI, page 12 of the German.

THE PRESIDENT: I think I should call to the attention of Dr. Laternser and to Mr. Denney a communication which this Tribunal has received from Noah J. Jacobs, Chief of the Translation Branch, and I am referring it to both of you gentlemen for your consideration. If Dr. Laternser and Mr. Denney will confer on this matter, perhaps you can make some statement into the record.

Mr. Denney, do you and Dr. Laternser care to have some conference on this matter?

MR.DENNEY: I am perfectly agreeable to accepting the interpretation of the Chief of the -

THE PRESIDENT: I beg your pardon?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases, I am willing to accept the translation of the Chief of the Translation Branch. Perhaps Dr. Laternser would like to say something.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor the under figure "1" of the communication of the 25th of July, suggested translation is agreeable to me: that is, the suggestion of this translator.

THE PRESIDENT: May the Tribunal therefore suggest that this letter be read into the record?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases -

DR. LATERNSEER: I don't have anything to add. I am satisfied with the translation of the interpreter.

THE PRESIDENT: For the purposes of the record, it is stated that Dr. Laternser and Mr. Denney have agreed that the statement as incorporated in the latter which has been received by this Tribunal may be read into the record at this time as being a correct translation of the words in question.

MR. DENNEY: In order that it may be thoroughly clear on the record, I would suggest that both the German and the English be read into the record, if your Honors are agreeable.

THE PRESIDENT: It is so ordered.

MR. DENNEY: I shall read the English and I think someone more proficient than I am in German had better read that so perhaps Dr. Laternser will be good enough to do that after I finish this or, if he would like to precede me, it is perfectly agreeable to me.

THE PRESIDENT: The interpreters now have the letter and it is suggested they read first the English and then read the German.

Mr. DENNEY: This is a communication dated 25 July 1947 from the Chief of the Translation Branch of the Language Division of the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, APO 696-A.

"Memorandum. Subject: Translation of 'Standrecht.' That's spelled S t a n d r e c h t. The communication is addressed to the "Honorable J. Wennerstrum, Presiding Judge, Military Tribunal Number V", and is from "Mr. N.J. Jacobs, Chief, Translation Branch":

"1. According to expert opinion, "Standrechtlich erschossen" s t a n d r e c h t l i c h e r s c h o s s e n", should be translated "shot after having been sentenced by a summary court martial".

Paragraph 2: "It ought not be translated" according to martial law" as there is a difference between "standrechtlich" and "kriegsrechtlich" -- and the last word is spelled "k r i e g s r e c h t l i c h".

Paragraph 3: "'Standrecht' may be a peacetime emergency measure. 'Kriegsrecht' is not."

And the communication is signed: "Noah J. Jacobs, Chief, Translation Branch, Language Division."

MR. DENNEY: I thought this was a German copy but it is English. Perhaps we better have the translator read the translation in unless Dr. Laternser would like to try his hand at being a translator.

THE PRESIDENT: With all due respect to Dr. Laternser, possibly it would be better if we had the translator read it in the German, Is that agreeable with you, Doctor?

DR. LATERNSE: Yes, your Honor.

Your Honor, I would like to add something. It would be perfectly correct if, instead of under figure "2", the word "Kriegsrechtlich (marital law)" would be "kreigsgerichtlich." (Court martial)

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, we will give consideration to the Doctor's interpretation.

MR. DENNEY: In view of the letter which has just been read into the record, it would then seem proper to rechange the item on page 15 of the English and page 12 of the German, Document NOKW-955, which is Exhibit 266; and the word in the German "standrechtlich erschossen" so that should be "shot to death after having been sentenced by summary court martial. I believe Dr. Laternser is nodding his head in agreement.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser has so indicated his approval and the record may so show.

MR. DENNEY: Turning then to page 22 of the German and page 26 of the English, NOKW-978, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 269 in evidence, there is an order from the First Mountain Division to its various subordinate units, which appear on page 23 of the German and 28 of the English, with reference to reprisal measures against insurgents. It is dated 8 April 43, top secret -

THE PRESIDENT: Should that not be the 26th of the English?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, your Honor, I am sorry. The distribution list was on 28, Your Honor, that's what I was referring to.

Top Secret, 14 copies, of which this is the third copy, which went to the Anti Tank Detachment, which was part of the Division:

Subject: Reprisal measures against Insurgents.

1.) Whosoever is found

a) in Combat Actions with weapon in hand.

b) as helper of Insurgents or

c) in acts of sabotage is to be shot to death or hanged on principal on the spot.

Leaders, political commissars and couriers are to be delivered to the Ic Department of the Division and will be shot after interrogation."

I would like again to direct the Court's attention to the Political commissar item.

2.) Whosoever is suspected of belonging to an organization of Insurgents or of aiding and abetting or of having aided and abetted Insurgents is to be arrested and to be delivered to the Commander of the Security Police. This latter clears up the matter and takes the necessary further steps.

3.) If during a military operation ordered by the Division a person is found in unauthorized possession of arms (firearms and explosives of all kinds), he is to be regarded as an aid of the insurgents and is to be shot to death subsequent to an examination of the facts by the competent Company Commander.

In doubtful cases he is to be transferred to the Ic Department of the Division who, after clearing up the matter, decides on further steps – and depending on circumstances he decides for a court martial."

I should like to direct the court's attention here to the fact that a different staff officer is directed by the division commander as one who can determine whether or not someone will be court martialed.

4.) Burning down

a) The burning down of buildings during combat action may only be done on orders of an officer.

b) The burning down of houses after and outside of combat actions is a measure of reprisal. For the latter the authorization of the competent". Commander of Administrative Sub-area is necessary. In no case may entire villages be burned down senselessly, if the houses of the helpers of bandits or of the guilty are known. In this case only their houses, (i.e., the known malefactors) are to be burned down.

c) Before the houses are burned down all economic goods and supplies are to be secured by Special commandos and are later to be utilized appropriately. The impression of plundering must be avoided under all circumstance. The penal aspect of the measure must be expressly brought to the attention of the population and the local Serbian authorities.

d) The male population of the houses burned down are to be used either as reprisal prisoners or will be deported to work. In no case may they remain in the country as casuals.

5.) Principals respecting the execution of the reprisal law

a) Reprisal measures are being taken for:

aa) Any attempt against the body and life of a German or German national, a member of the Bulgarian Occupational Corps or any person in the service of the Occupying power, as well as the members of the Serbian government, and other leading Serbian officials and the officers of the Serbian State Guard, provided, that the perpetrators are not arrested inside of 40 hours and that the attempt (which must have caused wounds or deaths) was made for political reasons, bb) every attempt against installations vital to the war effort especially means of transportation and arteries of traffic, communications industrial organizations and supply plants presupposing that damage was caused and that the perpetrators could not be arrested inside of 48 hours.

b) Quotas of reprisal measures:

For 1 German or Bulgarian killed 50 reprisal prisoners are to be killed.

For 1 German or Bulgarian wounded 25 reprisal prisoners are to be killed.

For 1 otherwise protected person killed 10 reprisal prisoners are to be killed.

For 1 otherwise protected person wounded 5 reprisal prisoners are to be killed.

c) For the carrying out of measures of reprisal the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters are competent, and after the decision of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, they will take the necessary steps. All officers having to do with the carrying out of measures of reprisal are to address themselves to the competent Administrative Sub-area Headquarters."

This is type signed in draft by von Geitner, and the certified copy is signed with an illegible signature who is a major in the General Staff Corps.

The distribution continues over on to the next page.

Then on page 24 of the German, and page 30 of the English, NOKW-866 which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 270, these again are more instructions of the First Mountain Division with reference to the turn over of captives and others.

This is dated 20 April 1943, and is entitled, "Special Directives Pertaining to Intelligence Work Ic - Gobiot":

1.) Cooperation with officers:

The following maintain constant contact Group Dauner:

With SD branch Office Counter-Intelligence office in Nowi Pazar, with all frontier guard stations along the line of demarcation, with the local police offices (simultaneously Serbian State Guard) as well as with the 24th Bulgarian Division in Kraljevo.

2.) Counter Intelligence:

a) Relation to the civilian population:

In the present operational area of the Division, the enemy has an excellent net of confidential agents at its disposal. The majority of the population sympathizes with our enemies and with the various insurgent groups. The Serbian Administrative apparatus and the legal Serbian security formations (Serbian State Guard, Serbian Volunteer Corps) are only hypothetically reliable. That is why secret protection assumes increased significance!

In relations with the whole indigenous civil population, the greatest reserve and mistrust is suitable. Any contact with civilians is to be avoided. Volksdeutsche also are not absolutely reliable."

- b) Authorization by the Division is required for (1) Disarming of Serbian Legal units (Serbian Volunteer Corps Serbian State Guard) (2) The arrest of Serbian officials (mayor, district president, area president).
- c) Prisoners and captured material.

After a telephone communication with the Divisional Ic., all arrested bandits and suspected civilians are to be transferred to the competent SD for further interrogation after having been interrogated regarding tactical measures. In important cases, an officer is to attend the interrogation by the SD. Copies of all interrogations are to be requested, and be sent immediately to Division/Ic. Executions are permissible as a matter of principle only after the interrogation since otherwise valuable resources of interrogations will be lost!

Leaders, political commissars and Russians are always to be transferred to the SD."

And there again we have another reference to the political commissars.

"All prisoners are to be searched thoroughly for captured documents. These are to be handed over the SD with the arrested person.

.....

3.) Propaganda:

All units are to receive thorough instructions regarding the order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia dated 30 March 1943, "Basic order regarding active propaganda" and "Basic principles of propaganda, Apr. 1943" Unification of propaganda must be guaranteed so that each Serbian always hears the same from every German soldier. The main attack of the propaganda is to be put on the territory settled by Serbs.

The allotted posters and leaflets are to be distributed as quickly as possible as far as the remotest villages.

Experiences, suggestions, requests pertaining to propaganda, confirmations regarding enemy propaganda, as well as particular observations regarding the morale of the civilian population, are to be reported currently to the Division/Ic. Summarized report on the 15th of each month (Regiments and independent Battalions)" Typed at the bottom is:

"Signed in draft von Stettner" Then the enclosures contain an order regarding the active propaganda in April, and propaganda with reference to an absence without leave and desertion, and the distribution:

"Regiments and Independent Battalions" and the note to the first distribution, -- the enclosure rather, -- it is to go down to the companies, and the illegible signature of a First Lieutenant is signed.

Then on page 34 of the English, and 26 of the German, NOKW-1395, which become Prosecution Exhibit 271, these are a series of orders from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, for early April, 1943. Here is one about the middle of April.

The first one is dated 2 April, to the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610.

"Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610 As reprisal for the raid on 27 to 28 March on the Station Barosava, for the destruction of the telephone installation and the switches, 10 Communists are to be shot to death.

The execution is to be reported and a copy of the publication is to be enclosed."

The next one 2 April 1943, again from the Commanding General in Serbia to the same Administrative Sub-area Headquarters:

"On 24 March the frontier guard detachment Mocioci was disarmed by the band of Javorski. From the interrogation of members of the frontier guard who have returned in the meantime it has been learned that the villages of Mocioci and Praseka gave quarters and food supplied to the band of Javorski and also in other matters showed them definite signs of sympathy.

Le Liaison official of the customs border guard suggests,

- 1.) The arrest of the persons who as a result of the statements are known to be helpers of the bands,"
- 2.) Burning down of the houses of the persons in question,
- 3.) Evacuation of the entire male population of both places and their utilization as reprisal prisoners or for labor.

In agreement with the 24th Bulgarian Division, the proposed measures are to be examined and the intention to carry them out is to be reported.

For the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia The Chief of General Staff Signed "Geitner" Here is a signature of the defendant, Geitner, and I would also direct the Court's attention to the first page, and the small mark to the right of the last typed material there.

The signature appears on the second page, if your Honors please.

MR. DENNEY: Now, here's a signature of the Defendant Geitner, and I will also direct the Court's attention to the first page and the small mark to the right of the last typed material order. The signature appears on the 2nd page, if Your Honors please. (Sending copy forward). I would like to have it back if I may, when you get through with it, Dr. And it's to be noted here that the information goes to the Liaison official of the Customs Border Guard. The body of the letter itself makes these suggestions to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, and these are being passed down by his Chief of Staff to an Administrative Sub-area Headquarters. And the next communication is one dated 3 April 1943; and this again is from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, and its subject is "Burning down of villages and houses. The burning down of villages and houses in the course of combat actions may only be carried out by order of an officer." Now, I don't think there's any reason to read the rest of this because this is the same order that appears, in substance, on Page 26 in this book for the 1st Jaeger Division; the 1st Mountain Division passed this down. And, if Your Honors will look on the distribution list, which appears on Page 36, the second item appearing there is the 1st Mountain Division 3 x. I assume that the "3" means three copies; and, therefore, I don't think that there is any need. The material quoted here is identical with that which is quoted on Page 26, starting on the bottom of the page where it talks about burning down. Maybe it's on the top of the page. No, it starts at the bottom. And it goes on down to Paragraph 4, "The male inhabitants...". And then the quotation is the same. This is signed "Bader". Turning then to Page 28 in the German, Page 36 in the English, 5 April 1943, a communication from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, with reference to reprisal measures, to the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 809. "Cancelling the teletype orders - Ia No. 286/43", that, if Your Honors please, is Page 4 of this book, "of 3 March 1943 and Ia No. 342/43", --this is on Page 8 of this book. The first one is dated 3 March and the other is dated 19 March 1943.

"the shooting to death of 30 Communist reprisal prisoners is authorized for the destruction of the cable car line Majdanpek and the raids on the dairies near Zajecar. The execution is to be reported by 15 April 1943". And the earlier references--the first is a communication which is part of Exhibit No. 264, and the second one which appears on Page 8 is the diary entry for 3 March 1943, which is part of Exhibit No. 265.

"Care must be taken that at all times sufficient reprisal prisoners are available in the reprisal camps. In case the delivery of reprisal prisoners from the current operations is not sufficient, operations for the purpose of bringing in reprisal prisoners in definite bandit areas are to be prepared by the 1st Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps or by the Police. I reserve to myself approval in the individual case."

MR. DENNEY: And it is signed "Bader".

"Distribution: Commander of the Security Police, German Liaison Officer, 1st Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps".

MR. DENNEY: Then the 5th of April 1943.

"To Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610: For the destruction of the community post office in Rudnik, as well as for the blasting of the railway line near Kriva Reka in the night of 1 April, a total of 30 Communist reprisal prisoners are to be shot to death. The execution is to be reported here and a copy of the publication is to be enclosed."

MR. DENNEY: And then on Page 29 of the German and Page 38 of the English:

"To the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809 Nis of 5 April 1943. As reprisal measure for the murder of the mayor Stojkovic Dobrosav on 25 March and of the village elder Ilica Svetozar on 23 March, the shooting to death of 10 Communists or band helpers for each one is authorized.

Commanding General and Commander in Serbia" MR. DENNEY: And then turning to Page 38 in the English and Page 29 in the German still on Exhibit No. 271, there's a communication of April 6, 1943. To Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610 As reprisal for blasting of the main railway line

Belgrade-Nis between Stalac and Cicevac on 28 March 1943, as well as for the murder of the mayor of Plaskovac on 23 March 1943, 10 Communists are to be shot to death for each offense.

The execution is to be reported and a copy of the publication enclosed.

MR. DENNEY: And then on Page 30 in the German and Page 39 in the English, for 13 April, Subject, "Reprisal Measures," from the Commanding General and signed "Bader", to the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 599:

"For the raid on railway station Sirukovo and the murder of head of community there, 20 Communist reprisal prisoners are to be shot dead and for the sabotage of the telephone line between Kucevo and Pozarevac near Zvizd, 10 Communist reprisal prisoners are to be shot dead. The execution is to be reported.

Signed: Bader".

MR. DENNEY: And then on the enclosure, under date of 13 April To Administrative Sub-Area.

Headquarters 610 For the murder of the mayor Erceg, and the community cashier, Blagojevic, of Troponje, a total of 5 Communists and 5 D.M. followers are to be shot dead; for the surprise attack on the mayor, Grujic, of Jasenovac and the destruction of the community telephone, 3 Communists and 2 D.M. followers are to be shot dead; and for the murder of the Major of the Serbian Security Guard, Schubrilo, on 8 April, 10 D.M. followers are to be shot dead.

The execution is to be reported and a copy of the publication is to 1010A be enclosed.

Page Unlabeled

Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

MR. DENNEY: The "B" is signed, and the information copy goes to the Commander of the Security Police and SD.

1010B Then 17 April, this is a report to the Commander in Chief Southeast and for information to the German General Plenipotentiary in Croatia and for the Commander of the German Troops in Croatia.

"For surprise attacks and cases of sabotage, a total of 80 Communist reprisal prisoners were shot dead." I am advised that the next line does not appear in the original German and therefore it should be omitted.

And then under the heading "Local Administrative Headquarters Belgrade, 10 Communists arrested."

Then at the end appears typewritten "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia," and there is a signature over it which does not appear to be decipherable.

20 April 1943, "Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610. As reprisal for the surprise attack on the Morava mines on 13 April, 20 Communists are to be shot dead and their houses burned down. The execution is to be reported and a copy of the publication is to be enclosed. Commanding General and Commander in Serbia." and the large initial "B" is there.

Then on April 15, 1943, this notice which is all typed.

On April 15 1943 the Chief of District Mihajlovic was shot dead from ambush in Erstenik.

The gravediggers of their own people, the bands of Draza Mihajlovic, under the leadership of the bandit Gordic, have again shown their "heroism" by the insidious murder of a defenseless person.

As reprisal for this shameful murder, the following measures were carried out:

1. On April 27 1943, the following were shot dead:

a) Miskovic, Kosta, born on 14 Jan 1904 in Subotica

b) Cvejic, Radoje, born on 25 Sept. 1906

c) Pesic, born on 5 June 1906

d) Crnoglavac, born on 1 Jan 1891

e) Vukovic, born on 13 Nov 1913

f) Tdorovic, Student, born 1920

g) Gordic, born on 22 June 1923

h) Kevic, born on 18 April 1907

i) Milivojec, born on 15 March 1907

j) Ravilic, 15 April 1900 2. A levy of 2,000,000 Dinars to be paid immediately was imposed on the District Trstenik.

3. The male population of the village Novo Selo, which had supported the perpetrators, was arrested.

For every further murder by the Draza organization in the district Trstenik, the arrested will have to atone.

Chief of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters.

And then over at the left it has "place and date." All of that is typed.

And then turning to page 33, page 42, Document NOKW-1087, which is offered as prosecutions Exhibit 272, this is an enemy situation report made by the First Mountain Division as of 13 May 1943. The entire report is typed.

I. Tito Forces:

.....

1. 1st Proletarian Assault Division between Lim and Tara, direction of thrust Bijolo Polje -- Berane; parts of forces, presumably the VIth Assault brigade were detoured or flank protection towards the Jakuba Pass and the Kicevo-Mountains.

.....

For presumable organization see attached enemy tables of organization; estimates of strength vary between 3,000 and 4,000 men. Division Headquarters at the present time supposedly at Sahovici.

The Serbian Proletarian Assault Brigade (according to war-time strength it presumably belongs to the 2nd Division): 60 light machine guns, 14 heavy machine guns, 10 mine throwers, 2 mountain guns taken from the Cetniks (according to Italian reports 6-75mm guns.)

2. 2nd Proletarian Assault Division: between Tara and Piva, direction of thrust: Kolasin.

.....

For organization see attached enemy Tables of organization. Strength between 3000 and 4000 men. Division Headquarters at Savnik.

3. 3rd Proletarian Assault Division: has also stopped its attacks against Niksic.

.....

The Tito units are organized according to Soviet pattern, units comparable to regular units. The leaders ruthlessly enforce the orders given. In the battle with the Draja Mihajlovic forces Tito's forces have fully proved their value. By being increasedlly subjected to propaganda and be the allocation of Political commissars they have been made fanatical. And here again we have another reference to the Commissars.

As a rule Tito avoids an open battle and prefers the tactics of guerilla warfare. On principle any major operation is only started after a thorough reconnaissance. Surprise attacks on fortified villages are preferred. It must be taken into consideration that already in the preceding days red forces are smuggled into the villages to support the operation. Equipment with weapons can be regarded as being sufficient. Special attention is called to the considerable allocation of automatic weapons with regard to artillery, guns are only available in a few cases. The supplementing of the supply of weapons by constant surprise attacks on small groups is being attempted.

Clothing is bad. The uniform of the Croatian Reserve is most generally worn, then there is the Jugoslavian Army uniform, and also the Italian and sometimes German uniforms. The leaders prefer the Soviet field cap.

II. Since the defeat in East Bosnia the forces of Draja Mihajlovic are constantly retreating. Several attempts to establish a cohesive defense line along the Drina and Piva are to be regarded as frustrated. The units which are led without uniformity have fought badly. Desertion of entire Mihajlovic groups to Tito has occurred constantly. Reports about disagreements and political undermining on Muhajlovic's side persist stubbornly.

The Draja Mihajlovic forces can only be regarded as fighters worthy of consideration in their home areas. They are legalized by the Italians and have so far carried out combat missions according to their bidding. Equipment with heavy weapons is completely insufficient, the number of rifles is supposedly not sufficient for the fighters available. Civilian clothing is preferred, as a special sign of recognition a beard is worn.

III. The mode of fighting of both groups will again be guerilla warfare. Split up into small bands or camouflaged as refugees, they will attempt to squeeze through the difficult mountain terrain whereby above all a knowledge of the villages and country will be a valuable aid to the Communist brigades from Montenegro. Surprise attacks against weak parts of units, attacks from an ambush, and above all operations against supply lines are to be expected constantly.

Then turning to page 38 of the German, 45 of the English Document NOKW-870, it is offered as prosecution's Exhibit 273. This again reports from the First Mountain Division to the Commander of German Troops in Croatia. "Division Command Post 14 May 1943." Information copies go to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. This is a new report and does not appear in the German.

Liaison Unit reaches Kolasin at 0845 hours. Major Djuriscic and Chief of Staff captured. Up to now about 500 Cetnik prisoners. So far no resistance Further intention of the Division depends on expected mission according to telephone conversation with Ia Brod on 14 May 0930 hours.

It is signed by the 1st Mountain Division/Ia" Next page new report, "98 Grenadier Infantry Regiment: 11.55 hours. 63 officers, 1400 Cetnik prisoners, 60 Communists." And there is an illegible initial which follows.

Then for the 14th of May, again to the Commander of German Troops in Croatia, copy to the Commanding General and Commander Serbia, evening report for that day: "Prisoners; 1980 Cetniks disarmed including more than 50 officers. 60 to 80 dead Communists." Then again from the First Mountain Division and over to the left is the signature of a Corporal.

Page 41 of the German and 47 of the English, this is an order from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia and the report to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast by him,-- that is, by the Commanding General and Commander Serbia. This is Document NOKW-343, which in the prosecution offers as Exhibit 274 in evidence. Apparently the pages are reversed in the German book. The shorter note appears second in the German and first in the English. We will take first the 21 May note to the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 816, Sabac.

"250 DM followers, if possible from within the area of the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters, Sabac, are to be shot to death in further retaliation of the murder of 5 and the wounding of 6 members of the R.S.K. (Russian Protective Corps) west of Baljevo, Valjevo it should be in your Honor's book, on 19.5.43. The carrying out (of the measure) is to be reported, enclosing copy of the publication.

Commanding General and Commander in Serbia (initialed) b" Then on May 16, 1943, the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, information copy to the Commander of German Troops, Croatia, and the German General Plenipotentiary in Croatia, report for the same day, 16 May.

"104th Jaeger Division:

"3) Serbian corn requisitioning detachment attacked 6 km south of Belgrade, 2 dead, 6 wounded.

"4) 150 Communists shot to death in retaliation for German soldiers and SS men murdered near Smederevo on 22.4.

"1st Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps:

"1) 3 German customs officials murdered by Communists south of Leskovac.

"3) 6 Communists shot to death by auxiliary police respectively SS in Arandjelovac and Kraljevo.

"Ic Report:

"In the area 13 to 15 northwest of Bajina-Basta band unit said to be 500 DM men at the moment.

"DM band of Jankovic, 300 men strong, temporarily occupying Cuca (near Cacak). 6/S Nova Varos Chetnik group moving northeast. Leader said to be Masan Djurovic.

"to 3) Communists: 156 dead (of which 150 reprisal shootings to death), 1 wounded, 14 arrested; DM men: 6 arrested.

"Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Ia."

And then there is an illegible signature.

Now, Document NOKW-341, which is page 42 in the German and page 51 in the English, is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 275. Now, in this document, although the typed part at the bottom says "illegible", I believe if Your Honors will compare it with some prior Bader signatures it will be apparent that both this and--- I should like to hand the Court Exhibit 271 in evidence, which has the signature of Bader on it, and also on this exhibit. Exhibit 275, and ask the Court to compare these. It is the prosecution's contention that on both of these, Exhibit 271 and Exhibit 275, is Bader's signature. Perhaps counsel for the defense would like to take a look at this.

This is to the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610, and has to do again with reprisal measures.

Before we proceed here, I would like to pass this up to the Court again, and direct their attention to the small figure which appears on the first page, and the second just above the last letter of Bader's signature.

THE PRESIDENT: When referring to this, counsel, what is the exhibit?

MR. DENNEY: Exhibit 275, Your Honor, the current exhibit.

THE PRESIDENT: What is your claim for this?

MR. DENNEY: I am just calling the Court's attention to the initial above which we submit is the defendant Geitner's. It appears just above the letter "r" in Bader, and just to the right of the figure 596/43.

"Subject: Reprisal Measures.

"1) A total of 100 DM hostages is to be shot to death in retaliation for the murder of 3 members of the R.S.K. (Russian Protective Corps) near Konarevo (7 km west southwest Kraljevo) by the band of Keserovic 23 May, for wounding a member of the R.S.K. (Russian Protective Corps) near Ivanjica on 11.5. and for the murder of 2 members of the S.F.K. (Serbian Volunteer Corps) near Vezania (18 km southwest of Bajina Basta).

"Since DM hostages are not available at the present time in the camps of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610, they are to be made available from other camps by the commander of the Security Police. Carrying out of the reprisal measures is to be regulated immediately by F. Kdt. 610" --that is administrative sub-area headquarters-- "with the commander of the Security Police (Sturmabfuhrer Sattler).

"The carrying out (of the measure) is to be reported by Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610 to here, enclosing a copy of the publication.

"2) Reprisal measures for the losses of the 9. Russian Protective Corps in the skirmish near Samograd are not to be considered referring to I./1, paragraph 3 of order Ia No. 652/43 secret dated 28.2.43."

And then if Your Honor please, it refers to page 101 of Document Book 10, and that is part of Prosecution Exhibit 263 in evidence, which has to do with reprisal by taking human life, and is a communication of 28 February 1943 from Bader setting up the same policy throughout the area, and the distribution list was read by Mr. Fenstermacher.

That was the last document in the prior document book.

And then the last page of this exhibit, the communication to Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809:

"150 Communist hostages are to be shot to death in retaliation for the murder of 3 members of the German customs border guards near Vucje on 15.5.43.

"Since there are no Communist hostages available at present in the camps of Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters Nisch, they are to be made available from other camps by the commander of the Security Police."

And I would just like to direct the Court's attention here to the fact that there is no hostages in one place, so the security police take them from another place.

"Details regarding the carrying out of the execution are to be arranged by Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809 directly with the commander of the Security Police (Sturmbannfuehrer Sattler). Carrying out of the reprisal measure is to be reported here by the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809.

"2) The hostage shootings ordered by teletype as follows are not to be carried out:

"F.S. Ia No. 475/43 dated 22.4.43 490/43 dated 27.

4.43 510/43 dated 3.5.43 525/43 dated 5.5.43 "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

"After release:" To the "Commander of the Security Police."

THE PRESIDENT: Are you taking up a new exhibit?

MR. DENNEY: This is a new exhibit, yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: It is just within a minute or two of our adjournment period. We will adjourn at this time until 9:30 tomorrow.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 0930 hours, 29 July 1947.)

DR. LATERNSE: 172.

MR. DENNEY: It will be 173-A and -B in the German.

We are still in the period from August 1942 to August 1943 concerning the time when the defendant Foertsch was Chief of Staff to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast and which post was also 12th Army until 1 January 1943 when it became Army Group E and the defendant Geitner was Chief of Staff of the Commanding General in Serbia.

At page 44 of the German and page 54 of the English, Document NOKW-340, it is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 276 in evidence. This is an order dated 30 May 1943 from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia to Administrative Sub-Area. Headquarters, having to do with reprisal measures. The subject is reprisal measures.

The communication states:

In reprisal for

1.) Shooting at the SF train Sofia-Nisch on 18.5.43 -- the copies which Your Honors have say 1942, but in the original it is 1943 --which caused the death of 3 and the wounding of 2 Bulgarian soldiers, a total of 200 Communist hostages.

2.) The murder of a member of the RSK during the attack on the district jail in Negotin on 22.5.43 50 D.M. (Draja Mikailovic) hostages are to be shot to death.

Since a sufficient number of hostages are not available within the area of Administrative Sub-Area HQs Nisch the reprisal measures were carried out by the Commander of the Security Police in Belgrade. Details are to be regulated directly with the commander of the Security Police again (Sturmbannfuhrer Sattler).

The carrying out (of the measure) is to be reported here enclosing a copy of the publication.

And then typed "Signed Commanding General and Commander in Serbia" and the larger initial "B" at the bottom. And information copies went to the Commander of the Security Police, attention Sturmbann fuehrer Sattler, who is the one who is mentioned in the communication who is going to regulate the details for the furnishing of the hostages and also to the German Liaison Officer with the 1st Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps.

Then turning to page 45 in the German and 55 in the English, still on the same document, this is again from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia and is dated 29 May 1943, reprisal measures, and there is a reference to 652/43 which is page 101 in Book X and the specific page to which it refers there - there are two of them in here; one is page 103 of Book X and the other one is page 105, and that, if Your Honors recall, is the exhibit which Mr. Fenstermacher put in yesterday with reference to the Bader order for the procedure to be followed in reprisal retaliation measures in his command. The exhibit in Book X to which reference has been made is Exhibit 263 in evidence. Subject: reprisal measures.

"In the future, persons to be arrested as hostages are to be taken, to a larger extent, in accordance with paragraph III/6 of the pertinent order", and that, if Your Honors please, is the paragraph which appears on page 105 and just to recall Your Honors' attention to that, paragraph 6 of the basic communication under III, reading now from Exhibit 263 in evidence, states: "In the event that special actions for the procuring of hostages should be necessary, suspected persons shown in the reviewed lists of the Serbian District Supervisor are to be taken first. The Commander of the District Headquarters with the concurrence of the Commanding General and Commander of Ia Section will order such operations."

Collective punishment will be used more frequently..." We are now returning to the exhibit at hand, No. 276, "Collective punishment will be used more frequently according to paragraph II/3..." That again refers to the original communication from Bader on this subject. Exhibit 263 in evidence. ".... in cases requiring reprisals according to the pertinent order but which are of lesser importance.

3.) It does not fulfill the requirements of speedy reprisal if the carrying out of reprisal measures is delayed for weeks owing to lack of hostages. In case a sufficient number of hostages are not available in the area of the Administrative Sub-Area HQs., application is to be made for the central execution of reprisal measures by the commander of the Security Police, at the same time as the application for reprisal measures. This application again referring to the commander of the Security Police, is to be made at the latest when the execution cannot be carried out within one week after issuance of the reprisal order.

But under no circumstances should the central execution by the commander of the Security Police become a habit, since only reprisal measures carried out within the area of the scene of the incident have shown themselves to be effective.

4.) In order to counteract the view which has appeared suddenly amongst the population that reprisal measures are only published on posters and are not carried out, the entire number ordered (to be shot) is to be publicly shot to death from time to time. If executions take place in different villages, the places of execution are also to be published."

And the distribution goes to all Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters, the Commander of the Security Police, and a copy to the War Diary.

Turning then to page 46 in the German and 57 in the English, Document NOKW-1084 is offered as Exhibit 277 in evidence. This entire exhibit is typed. There is no writing that appears on it. There is a date May 1943 which appears on the original. It has been omitted from the German text.

This is an Instructional Pamphlet for German Soldiers who were committed in Montenegro.

German soldier, you who are fighting on the soil of Bosnia, Herzegovina, and now also in Montenegro, you must know:

Nowhere in Europe is there as marked a contrast in peoples and religions as in this area. Nowhere do the differing interests clash so abruptly as they do here. This demands from you an open mind and the ability to adjust yourself to the actual mentality of the population. We want to handle with determination those who at heart are our enemies though they may camouflage themselves outwardly to be otherwise. But we don't want to hurt unnecessarily those who perhaps will yet find their way to us and make them our enemies.

With whom then are we concerned in Montenegro?

1.) First, there are the "Whites" ("Bjelasi") or "Cetniks". These are Montenegro nationals with pro-Serbian nationalistic feelings, who consider themselves a Serbian race and who favor a union of Montenegro with Serbia. They are opponents of the Communists, and therefore have allowed themselves to be set up and armed by the Italians for the most part as "National Militia" in order to fight the Communists.

They have also taken over the administration of the country to a great extent. But their real aim is to fight the Axis powers under their leader Draža Mihajlovic, the Minister of War of the Yugoslav Exile Government in London. They hope for a landing of the British and are preparing to have all their strength mobilized against us for that moment. Therefore they are our enemies. They wear partly civilian clothing, and partly Serbian or Italian uniforms. They wear the Serbian eagle either on the Serbian army cap or other black cap. Their leader in Montenegro is a follower of Mihajlovic, General Djukanovic.

2.) The "Greens" ("Zelenasi") or "Autonomists" have Montenegrin nationalistic feelings. They regard the Montenegro people as an independent people and strive for an independent Montenegro with the old Montenegro Royal Dynasty.

They are the strongest political group in Montenegro but are suppressed by the Whites. Therefore, their political leader Dr. Drljevic lives in Croatia. Although they fight conjointly with the Whites against the Communists, by their political convictions they are opponents of the Whites. However, they are well-disposed towards us because they hope for support from us in the carrying out of their aims. Their clothing corresponds essentially to that of the Whites, but instead of the Serbian eagle they wear a cockade with a white center and a red border on their cap.

3.) As everywhere, the Communists are our Number One Enemy. They deny being Communists and call themselves "The People's National Army of Liberation", but the Soviet Star with hammer and sickle distinguishes them sufficiently and proves what in the long run the aims of their leaders are. As far as they originate from the country, they are chiefly composed of exceedingly poor mountain prolectariat. The Communists are fought by the "Whites" and the "Greens".

4.) The Moslems pursue no political aims of their own. However, the Serbian Nationalists regard them as an obstacle for the union of Montenegro with Serbia and they are therefore exposed to a very fierce and bloody persecution by the Cetniks. Since so far only the Communists have offered them protection against the transgressions of the Cetniks, they have joined the Communists in many cases. But this happens primarily because of the urge for self-preservation and is no proof of the Communist Sympathies of these Moslems. Others again entered the Cetnik ranks because of pressure applied by the Cetniks in order to protect themselves in this manner. The main area of Moslem settlements is the Sandzak; and while the Serbianspeaking Moslems are found in the Western part, the Eastern part is inhabited by the Arnauts who speak Albanian (Racial Albanians). The religious customs and usages of the Moslems are to be respected unconditionally (more details about this in the following extracts from the principles of conduct for the behavior of Europeans in Mohammedan countries.

5.) The Croats are so few in number, that they do not play any special role. Transgressions by undisciplined Ustascha units have caused ill-feelings in wide circles of the population. The German Army has nothing to do with this and will take care that such transgressions are not repeated.

Distribution:

To company level, according to special distribution list.

Then at page 60 in the English and page 48 in the German, NOKW 863, which becomes Exhibit 278 in evidence. This is an Order from the Commander of the German Troops in Croatia to a Combat Group, which is part of the First Mountain Division. It is dated 20 May 1943, and the stamp of receipt for the First Mountain Division is dated the 23rd, and appears in the upper right hand corner.

To Combat Group v. Ludwiger 1. Mountain Division for information:

369 (Croatian) Infantry Div.

(simultaneously for information Div. Taurinense) and also to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia.

1.)

1 to 1-1/2 Divisions (about 3,000 communists) in front of Combat Group Ludwiger. Obviously they have been given at this time a defensive mission, presumably they are to secure the flank for the south movement.

2.)

Regiment Brandenburg will again be subordinate to the 1. Mountain Division beginning 25.5. 1200 hours.

.....

10.)

Unless annihilated in combat, Communists are to be treated as prisoners (not prisoners of war). Chetniks who clearly have not fought against us are to be disarmed and to be treated as prisoners of war.

All other Chetniks are to be treated like communists. As a matter of principle, all Chetniks found are to be disarmed and to be arrested."

And it is signed, "Luters." Then they submit two enclosures for the Combat Group v. Ludwiger:

Enclosure 1 to 1 Mountain Div./Ia Special Directives for the Operational Order The entire population capable of bearing arms in the area of the Division is to be considered and to be treated as communists.

Whoever is in possession of arms is to be shot; people capable of bearing arms without weapons are to be arrested and to be deported. All houses occupied by communists are to be destroyed.

For the Division Hqs.

The First General Staff Officer (illegible signature) Lieut.

Col. G.S.C.

And then follows a copy of a teletype message of 10 June again to the First Mountain Division, and again from the Commander of the German Troops, Croatia.

To 1 Mountain Div.

Strong enemy forces pressed together in narrowest area in Sutjeska-Piva. It is determined beyond doubt that Tito is among them. The last phase of the combat, the hour of the final annihilation of the Tito Army has thus arrived.

The attention of the unit is to be called sharply again to the order: "No man capable of bearing arms leaves the pocket alive. Women are to be checked as to whether they are not men in women's clothing."

Tito and accompanying personal said to be wearing German uniforms. Check pay books.

Commander of the German troops in Croatia.

Certified true copy: (signature illegible) Master Sergeant And the order number, certified a true copy, and an illegible signature of a Master Sergeant.

Then on page 50 of the German, page 63 of the English NOK W 975, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 279 in evidence. This again is all typed. These are reports from the First Mountain Division to the Commander of the German Troops in Croatia. Informational copies to the Commander General and Commander in Serbia. Daily report for 11 June:

"The Communists Lost:

498 Prisoners 640 counted dead.

In many cases people who died of typhoid fever were found in villages. Villages put on fire; counting not possible because of danger of infection...

1 Mountain Division - 1A" Report for the 15th:

Communists:

831 counted dead In villages many people dead of typhoid fever who could not be counted because of danger of infection.

According to statements of prisoners considerable enemy losses. There was success in evacuating the mass of those wounded.

Approximately 20 enemy graves were established. It is assumed that a larger number is in remote gorges; can not be found.

No reports can be made concerning enemy losses during withdrawal to hills West of the Piva River; However they may be assumed to be considerable.

Prisoners: 498 of which 411 were shot to death.

Own Losses:

Killed in Action: Total 43: 1 Officer 3 Non-Commissioned Officers 39 Men Wounded:

Total 195: 6 Officers 18 Non-Commissioned Officers 171 Men Missing:

2 Men And then there is a handwritten note over to the left about loss of horses, which I don't think we need to read.

It appears there.

And then:

Chetniks:

1.) During disarmament of Chetniks we made: 3,200 Prisoners No dead.

2.) Material secured: 5 Heavy trench mortars 25 Machine guns about 3000 rifles numerous rounds of Artillery, French Mortar, Infantry Ammunition.

3.) No losses of our own.

III.) Deported:

1.) Communist: 76 of which 27 were sent to lead mines in Zvecan 49 on 3 June to District Headquarters Mitrovica Still under the heading of "Deported" -- this is Entry No. III under that:

2.) Chetniks: 34 Officers 1,538 Men The difference as compared with II.

is explained as follows: 800 Chetniks in the Trager Battalion, evacuation of sick, exhausted, men above 60 and below 16, deaths due to exhaustion, etc.

3.) 213 civilian suspects capable of bearing arms from the area of operations."

And again Arabic III is an entry under which has to do with deportations: "Liberated were:

5 Italian Officers 366 Italian Officers and men 3 Croatian -- one of which was an Officer and one an officer candidate.

1 Mountain Division / Ic" I would just like in passing to direct the Court's attention to the fact of the substantial number of men who were liberated there -- over 350.

Then passing to page 67 of the English and page 52 of the German, NOKW 1636 becomes Exhibit 280 in evidence. This is a communication from OKH General Staff from the Foreign Armies East section, and has to do with designation of band formations. It is dated 13 June 1943, and the copy which we have was received is by the Army General Staff Operation Section.

"Subject: Designation of Band Formations."

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, may I first see this document before you read it?

Mr. President, I object to the introduction of this document. You can see very clearly from its contents that it only refers to the Eastern theater of operations. If the Prosecution claims that this order or this directive also was distributed in the Southeast, it must prove this and its distribution is not listed on this document.

MR. DENNEY: Then, if Your Honor please, we can't specify that we will get a distribution list on a document when it comes out. This document is signed by Zeitzler, at that time the Chief of the General Staff of OKH, and it's submitted that it will be later tied up.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, may I answer to this? If this document would be accepted, then the Prosecution could introduce any other document, too, which was distributed any time for any other theater of operation.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, all we have is Dr. Laternser's word. These are -- I certainly don't doubt that he is making a statement in good faith but every time we get a document that has a signature on it that doesn't have a distribution list and comes from OKH, such as the Commando Order and this one and the Commissar Order, he just comes up and says that didn't go down there.

We submit we can tie these things in at a later time and Dr. Laternser is, with all due respect to him, not the German General Staff. This is a matter that is being inquired into and we submit that this is relevant.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: The objection will be overruled.

MR. DENNEY: This is "Designation of Band Formations", and I should like to pass this up to Your Honors so that you can see the original.

The signature of Zeitzler appears there and the second page, in particular, is important. I don't presume to lecture Your Honors on military signs and symbols but, as you will see there, they are now working out military signs and symbols to be used on operation maps which would be kept at the various headquarters in order to show the enemy's troop dispositions, the size of the units opposed to the Germans, and these are what might be called conventional signs and symbols as used by all armies on situation and operation and intelligence maps.

Page 1 states: "In the future in designating band units the German military concepts (Brigade, Regiment, etc.) and German Tactical Symbols are no longer to be used.

"Bands in general, will be designated by differentiating between small bands (10 - 100 men), medium-sized bands (100- 400) and large bands (above 400 men) with indication of strength), inasmuch as the organization of the bands in question is unknown. Bands, the organization and composition of which has been established will be designated by the Registered Number assigned to them (for instance, band E 304).

In files kept on them on organization charts, and on situation maps, the Russian names - only inasmuch as it is necessary - without their German equivalent, and the military symbols indicated in the enclosure, are to be used."

And then there is a handwritten initial -- "By order" signed "Zeitzler."

And then on the next page they have the various examples of new designations, the map symbols and the explanations; and it is to be noted that they go from a single bandit all the way up to a brigade and, as you -- and then they have several brigades and a large number of uniformly led brigades, and it is submitted that the brigade is the unit in troop structure which is between the regiment and the division.

Turning then to page 54 of the English and 69 of the German -

DR. LATERNSE: Mr. President, as defense counsel I consider it important that the designations listed here are read and from them one can see clearly that this order was valid only for the Russian theater of operation. All designations refer regimental names, divisional names, which doubtless refer to the Russian theater of operation.

Only if this second page is also read, then the Court has the correct impression of this document.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, on the original we read in files kept on them, on organizational charts and situation charts the Russian names; and, if Dr. Latenser wants me to read it, too, the rest of them, I will be glad to do it. Judge: I (don't think there is any necessity for reading it; unless it is tied in, it will have to be ignored anyhow.

Page 54 of the German and 69 of the English, Document NOKW-1342, which is a teletype order from the OKH to the Commander in Chief Southeast with reference to the designation and size of bands, signed by Warlimont. This, it is submitted, ties in with this prior exhibit. This is dated 20 June 1943 and stamped for the "Commander in Chief Southeast (Army Group E)." The receipt stamp is there and its receipt is for "20 June 1943"; and the directive, although it's somewhat long, I think should be read for the purpose of connecting the document. It is to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast and we have here the teletype copy:

"Same text to: Army General Staff -- Commander-in-Chief of Luftwaffe Operational Staff -- Commander-in-Chief Southeast -- the Wehrmacht Commander Ukraine -- Wehrmacht Commander Ostland", which is Austria, "20th Mountain Army. For information to the Commander in-Chief South. For information to the Commander-in-Chief West.

For information to the Wehrmacht Commander Norway. For information: Commander of German Troops in Denmark. For information: Reich Fuehrer SS Command Staff" -- that's Himmler's staff.

"In the fight against the bands, German military terms and tactical signs are no longer to be employed in the designation of the band units."

Now that paragraph is respectfully called to Your Honors' attention in connection with the first paragraph of Exhibit 280. They're in substance the same.

"In order to avoid any false concepts arising amongst the leaders and troops, in future, the following directives are valid concerning the designation of bands: Small band (10-100) -- identical words in the order -- Medium size band (100-400*, Large bands (over 400))."

Now all those are the same, as in the original communication; we just don't happen to have found a sheet that they would send down and it is submitted that they wouldn't send a sheet that contained Russian units down in the Southeast; but this is the only one we could find.

This order of Warlimont, on the other hand, is directed to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, which at that time was Army Group "E" subsequent to January 1, 1943.

"As far as one is certain of the designations used by the bands themselves (for instance Roman II/Proletarian Brigade) these may be mentioned in addition to the ordered designation."

Signed: "By order Warlimont, OKW," General Staff; and, of course, it is to be called to the Court's attention that Warlimont is with the OKW whereas this communication here is from OKH; and, of course, OKH is subordinate to -- that is, it is not on the same level as OKW. Its comparable level is OKL and OKM -- that is High Command of the Luftwaffe and High Command of the Navy -- and OKW is superior to OKH.

Then turning to page 55 of the German and 71 of the English, we have NOKW-374 which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 282 in evidence. This is an order of the Commanding General in Serbia and a report to the High Commander Southeast, the Commanding General Army Group "E". The first is dated 27 June and the second is of 29 June.

The first is the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 809, from the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, initialed by Bader, the large "B" at the bottom. At the end we would like to call the Court's attention to the initial over to the right of Bader on the photostat, which we submit is the initial of defendant Geitner:

"Fifteen Communists and 15 DM hostages are to be shot to death in reprisal for the attack and destruction of mines near Aleksinac on 8 June 1943.

"No hostages are available at this time to the Administrative SubArea Headquarters. Therefore, execution is to be performed through the commander of the Security Police in Belgrade.

"The carrying out (of the measure) is to be reported, enclosing a copy of the publication."

The signature, Bader, of course is typed, with the initial "B" below it.

Then after release of the communication a copy goes to the commander of the Security Police.

Then on 29 June, Communication to the High Commander Southeast, and information copy to the German General Plenipotentiary in Croatia, and the commander of the German troops in Croatia. A Daily Report of that date, and this is typed, "Commanding General and Commander in Serbia Ia" and an illegible signature, 1st Lieutenant:

"1st Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps "1) Skrusevac SSW station attacked by medium size heavily armed band.

Among them were 15 attackers in German uniform who spoke German. Fourteen SSW men dead, quarters with corpses burned down.

"3) An order of the DM commander Pozega which was found states that 100 men of each brigade are to be under arms, being relieved every two weeks. Mission: fight against disloyal Apostates, Communists, and fighting the black market.

"4) In Krusevac: In reprisal for the attack on the auxiliary police detachment (see Daily Report 18 June 43) 310 Communists and DM suspects shot to death in public by German police.

Two hundred fifty-five more hostages shot in other Serbian villages by the SD."

At page 57 of the German, 74 of the English, Document NOKW-380, which becomes Exhibit 283 in evidence. This is a report of 23 June 1943 with reference to the execution of hostages, and is directed to the SubArea Headquarters No. 610, and is from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, and again I would like to direct the Court's attention to the original.

Bader's initial appears under his name. We respectfully submit that the initial out to the left of the typed word "Bader" is the initial of the defendant Geitner.

Dated 27 June 1943:

"As a reprisal for the shooting of the German hospital train at Trubarevo (13 ENE of Krusevac) in the night of 15 June and the blowing up of the line which happened at the same time, 50 Communists are to be shot. Also 10 Communists are to be shot for the attack on the railway station Bukovic (5 km NW of Arandjelovac) and the consequent damage to two sidings.

"No hostages are available now at the Field Commandant's office. Therefore the executions will be done by the Chief of Security Police in Belgrade.

"When completed an account is to be sent for publication with a copy."

Again after the message is released, the copy is to go to the chief of the Security Police, and then the second page of the document, dated 18 June 1943, goes to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, and informational copies to the Commander-in-Chief of the German Troops in Croatia, German Commanding General in Croatia with plenipotentiary powers.

This is a Daily Report of the 18th and is from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Ia, and it bears the signature of a colonel.

The 104th Rifle Division, Jaeger division:

"1) Kalabic bands are moving from the area southwest of Valjevo towards the Lajkovac-Cacak railway line.

"2) The SFK railway guard has been unsuccessfully attacked by a fairly strong band. The band withdrew after attack by armored train 109.

"3) Lajkovac mayor murdered.

"4) Addition to Daily Report of 16 June, No. 4, and of 17 June, No. 1: From the prisoners two men returned with arms, two Draja Mihailovic bandits were wounded during pursuit.

"1st Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps:

"1) South of Krusevac the locating squad of the auxiliary police attacked by strong Communist forces. So far 8 dead, 3 seriously wounded, 6 men missing.

"2) In the region of Prokuplje increased Communist activity and collision with SSW.

"3) In the region of Pozega one SM (?) man killed by a Bulgarian commando and firing between SFK and DM groups.

"4) Three hundred fifty Communists shot for the murder of 3 German customs officials and firing attack on a Bulgarian leave train (cf. Daily Report of 16 and 18 May); 50 DM hostages shot for the murder of an RSK man."

It is signed "Commanding General and Commander-in-Chief Serbia, Ia," and under it appears a signature.

On the last exhibit in the book, Prosecution Exhibit 284 at page 59 of the German, 76 of the English, Document No. NOKW-832, these are activity reports from the 1a Commander-in-Chief Southeast, High Command of Army Group E.

31 January 1943--- There is no date on the original, but it is submitted that is what it is, in view of the context. Activity Report from 1 to 31 January 1943:

"Commander-in-Chief: Major General Studnitz, the newly appointed commander of the Salonika-Aegean area, replacing Major General Krenzky, reported HQ the Commander-in-Chief.

"Enclosure 2 The New Regulation of Command in the Southeast Area.

"The night before 1 January Fuehrer Instruction No. 47 for Command Leadership and Defense of the Southeast Area arrived in extract form."

Then it gives the OKW operation number and that, if Your Honors please, corresponds to the number of the communication which is Exhibit 242 in evidence, which is at page 171 of Document Book 9.

Your Honors will recall that was the last document in that book, and the very end canceled the prior instructions which Hitler had issued in June of 1941 with reference to the Southeast:

"The development in North Africa and the situation in the Mediterranean area makes an attack on Crete, the German and Italian footholds in the Aegean, and on the Balkan peninsula possible in the near future has caused the Fuehrer to transfer the defense of the southeast area, including the adjacent islands, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, who will now be called 'Commander-in-Chief, Southeast' (High Command of Army Group E)--"

Here he gets the double title. You will recall the title before, up until 1 January 1943, was "Armed Forces Commander Southeast and 12th Army" and here it becomes "Commander-in-Chief Southeast and High Commander of Army Group E".

"--and who will be subordinated directly to the Fuehrer. The designation '12th Army High Command' ceases herewith. A great tradition in war history is thereby ended.

"Reprisal measures against the population of Teslic.

"Teletype to Commander of the German Troops in Croatia: OKW/WFSt/ Opns. Army has ordered application of the most severe reprisal measures against the population of Peslic, southwest of Doboj, for their participation in combat against the Croatian occupational forces.

"13 January:

"The new frontier between the commander of Salonika-Aegens and the commander of South Greece is established as the line Molos-GraviaAmphissa-Ithea (localities to the commander of Salonika-Aegen).

"24 January:

"Commander-in-Chief: Report of Major General Haarde, the new commander of Saloniki-Aegen, and of Major General von Waldan, Commanding General of the X Air Corps."

There is an illegible signature, "Colonel in the General Staff".

Then for 1 July 43, the stamp and the entry is for 1 June, Commander-in-Chief:

"Commander-in-Chief: Flew with Ia to Sarajevo, conference there with Fliegerfuehrer of Croatia, Brigadier General Chamies and Commander of the German Troops in Croatia, Lieutenant General, Infantry, Lueters, and Colonel, General Staff Corps, Pfafferot. Journey to Foca, conference with the Commander of 118th Jaeger Division, Brigadier General Kuebler, continuation of journey to the artillery positions of Gaertler unit, journey back to Sarajevo, conference of the situation with the Commander of the German Troops in Croatia.

"20 June:

"Service Instructions: The Staff of the Commander South Greece is transformed into the Staff 'Commanding General and Commander South Greece' to take effect at once."

MR. DENNEY: And then the last entry, except for the conclusion "Reprisal measures against acts of sabotage OKW/WFST.

has ordered, with order Opns. Top Secret, quick and decisive reprisal measures against sabotage acts. Detailed supplementary instructions to this are being sent by order Ia No. 1585/43 Secret to the Commanders and the troop staffs subordinated to the Army Group.

For the Commander-in-Chief, Southeast (High Command, Army Group E) For the Chief of the General Staff.

MR. DENNEY: That is all typed. There is an initial out to the right. And here again it might be appropriate to pass the Court this document, some twenty-five pages, of which we have used about three; but we are furnishing the entire one to the defense counsel. That, If Your Honors please, concludes Document Book 11, and now the presentation of Document Book 12 will be undertaken by Mr. Rapp, who would have been with us earlier in this case had he not been unavoidably absent and has just been able to return from America.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, we are turning now....

THE PRESIDENT (Judge Carter Preceding): What is the name of the Counsel who is now addressing the Court?

MR. RAPP: Mr. Rapp - R - A - P - P.

THE PRESIDENT: Apparently I do not have Volume 12. (Supplied the Court) You may proceed.

In Skakavic, Cardaci, Petacici, staffs were reported present on the Zjemet Mountain 1 depot was reported. On page 2 of the original: "7.) Suspected persons are to be arrested. People encountered carrying arms are to be shot to death after interrogation. Prisoners with valuable statements are to be turned over to the Ic Branch of the Division." That, Your Honors, is the Intelligence Branch. "Cattle obviously belonging to bands is to be driven out. Communities having aided and abetted bands (finding of material. entrenchment of the enemy) are to be leveled." Page 3 of the original -- Ruthless measures are to be taken against Red bands... Operations under the directions of the Division." And this is certified to be a true copy by a Lieutenant Colonel, of the General Staff Corps, and it is signed in draft by Zellner, Major General and Divisional Commander. And you will find below the distribution lists two elements lower than the division headquarters. The next document, Your Honors, is Document No. NOKW-1013, on page 2 of the German Document Book and on page 3 of the English Document Book. These are excerpts from a War Diary of the 104th Jaeger Division. It becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 286. It was started on the 1st of April 1943 and completed on the 9th of July 1943. We are turning now to page 2 of the original document, which is page 3 of the German and page 4 of the English Document Book. "The IIIrd Serbian Volunteer Corps shoots to death 23 captives who were convicted of belonging to Communists." If Your Honors permit us at this time, I believe there has been a slight mistake in the translation of the original document, and I would ask Your Honors' permission to hand this document to the Court Interpreter to straighten out this particular paragraph I am having reference to.

THE PRESIDENT: We'll handle it that way.

MR. LEA (German-to -English Interpreter): The IIIrd Serbian Volunteer Corps shoots 25 arrestees who were proved to be members of the Communists.

The shooting shall be made public by proclamations of the District of Pozarevac.

MR. RAPP: I believe this is all we have reference to, and if Your Honors permit, we would like to change the word "convicted." I'm repeating this for the record only, as the translator has corrected it to the word "proved." Is that agreeable with Your Honors?

THE PRESIDENT: Is it agreeable to the Defense?

DR. LATERNER: Yes, it is.

THE PRESIDENT: It is so ordered.

MR. RAPP: Thank you. On the same page, that is page 4 of the English and page 3 of the German, I continue, "349 Prisoners taken by Serbian Volunteer Corps and Serbian State Guard of which three were shot to death and 227 turned over to the SD. Prisoners made by troops: 162, of which 83 were turned over to the SD, 25 released, 11 transferred to the compulsory labor camp, the rest are still with the unit." Page 3 and 4 of the German, page 5 of the English, April 4, 1943, we find the following entry:

By order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. In reprisal for the member of the organization Todt shot to death by Communists, 8 kilometers South of Pozarevac, 75 hostages were shot to death in Pozarevac by the SD. The executions are secured by units of the garrison.

MR. RAPP: This, in other words, is the 1 to 75 ratio. On the 16th of April 1943, still on the same page we find the following entry:

In Pozarevac 30 hostages shot to death by the SD as a reprisal measure for the murder of the Mayor of Sirakovo (13 kilometers Northeast Pozarevac).

MR. RAPP: On the next page. Your Honors, page 6 of the English and page 4 of the German Document Book, is the entry of 22nd of April 1943:

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: On page 10, under date of May 28, 1943, it says:

"150 Communists will be shot to death on the 14th of May."

How does that happen to appear on the date of May 28?

MR. RAPP: If your Honor will permit, I will check with the document for one minute.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: We will take our morning recess at this time.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

JUDGE CARTER: You may proceed.

MR. RAPP: The inquiry in question is whether or not 150 communists from the districts of Smederevo, Mladenovac, Arandjelovac, Palanka and Sopot will be shot to death in Belgrade on the 14th of May. Notice that the entry in the diary is dated 28 May.

THE INTERPRETER: Well, the German text says. "were shot." I think that's quite obvious.

MR. RAPP: Thank you very much.

If the Tribunal, please, we are turning now to page 11 of the English and page 7 of the German, the entry of June 1, 1943:

Division receives the report that Lt. The Division applies to the Commander for the purpose of having additional 25 Communists shot to death.

Your Honors, then follows page 12 and 13 of the same document, Exhibit 286 which is page 7, 8 of the German document book, and I don't believe we have to read this now.

We are turning now to page 14 in the English document book which is page 9 in the German document book. This is NOKW-911, dated 12 July 1943, which will become prosecution's exhibit 287. This document enables from the 373rd Croatian Infantry Division. It is stamped "Secret" and is so-called "Combat Report." The first paragraph concerns itself with purely tactical matters.

Paragraph 4: "Result of the Operation:

"Losses:

"Resultant losses of our own: 23 dead were counted. Higher enemy losses may surely be assumed. An important prisoner is partisan Zolja Milan who is known to all inhabitants of the neighborhood as the brutal intendant of the Hotic Group. He comes from Medini and he has requisitioned cattle and other rations and recruited for both the Hotic Group and passing Partisan Groups."

Page 15, which is page 9 in the German Document Book:

"His interrogation confirmed the known partisan movement from North to Southeast toward the end of the Month of June. There he knew of the 5th Division and the Krajin Brigade which moved via Komar to Fojnica 10 to 15 thousand men strong. Hotic is alleged to be the Chief of Staff of the 5th Division. In the area between Travnik G. Makuf there are said to have been 380 armed and 120 unarmed partisans lately. Zolja has been shot to death by order of the Divisional Commander after everything has been gotten from him by interrogation. Some arms and unimportant documents were captured. Partisan hideouts were burned down. During this process an estimated several thousand rounds of ammunition were destroyed.

"The Divisional Commander, Signed in draft, Zellner, Major General," and under it it is certified to be a true copy with an illegible signature.

Your Honors, we are turning now to page 16 of your document book and page 10 of defense counsel's document book. This is NOKW-1494 which will become prosecution Exhibit 288. This is a report stamped "Secret," dated 5th of July 1943. That has also been handwritten initialed, to be sent to the Intelligence Section, to be entered into the War Diary. It's from the 1st Panzer Division, subject:

"Band Activity."

"1) Recent events show a revival of band activity in the entire Southeastern area. In the Peloponnesus there are also indications that here also an increase in band and sabotage activity is to be expected.

"2) The OKW has ordered that, also in the areas occupied by the Italians, after any attacks and acts of sabotage, speedy and sweeping reprisal measures are to be taken, to deter the population and to make amends for the damage inflicted upon the authority of the German Wehrmacht. The Fuehrer expects these measures to be carried out with the utmost energy and in a manner which will not fail to show its effects on the widest sections of the population.

"3) For the combating of bands in the Peloponnesus the following is ordered:

a) Units in their billeting areas police the main roads by employing motorized patrols at irregular hours. For this the normal trips by messengers or for supplies are to be utilized. Drivers and assistant drivers are to be instructed and armed accordingly. All observations are to be reported to the Division. The observations are to be exchanged with Italian headquarters. It is important to recognize early that bands are being formed and to suppress their formation at the start.

"b) In an extension of the order by 1st Panzer Division, Ia Section 1875/43 secret, dated 8 June 1943, number 7.), in every locality where units of the Division are stationed a fighter detachment of platoon strength is to be kept constantly at the alert for the combatting of bands and parachutists. Closest cooperation is to be maintained with Italian fights detachments existing in Italian garrison.

Requests for support by German fighter detachments are to be granted in cases of limited local engagements, this being previously reported to the Division. Major operations against bands, etc. with employment of stronger forces.

"4) Any acts of sabotage that may have occurred, as well as attacks on German soldiers, German Wehrmacht installations and all other installations, which are of service in the provisioning of the troops or in military tasks, are to be reported to the Division without delay. The division will then decide on the reprisal measures to be taken. Units are forbidden to carry out reprisal measures on their own accord.

"5.) I expect this order to be carried out with greatest exactness with regard to observation matters and reports. The opinion widely spread amongst troops that band activity is exclusively directed against the Italians is to be opposed with all severity. Rather the bands led by British officers aim merely at dividing the allied (Axis) nations by showing an apparently different attitude towards Germans than to Italian Occupation Forces. The German soldier, without doubt, is just as much Occupation Force, and thereby an enemy of the country, as the Italian. It is the duty of every superior, through his own behavior and during instructions, to constantly see to it that every German soldier adjusts himself to these particularities of the Balkans and draws his conclusions from it."

"Signature: Krueger."

The next document, your Honors, you will find on page 19 of the English and page 12 of the German document book. It is NOKW-1495 which will be offered as prosecution Exhibit 289. This is a rather voluminous document, being a collection of teletype messages sent from the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, High Command Army Group "E", the now deceased Colonel Loehr; and the first document which was sent on June 3, 1943 and was received at OKH on June 4, 1943, was addressed to the Operations Department of the General Staff of the Army OKH.

It gives a report of the situation in Greece.

"In the Italian region Vijese bridge west of Kenitsa (i.e. 40 kilometers north of Jbannina) blown up. Supplementary report concerning attempt on railroad Nezeres: 92 Italian and 60 Greek prisoners dead. Large number of wounded and missing. In Larissa 100 Communists from the concentration camp shot dead in reprisal. In the area of Soupre (40 kilometers northeast of Lamia) a band was reported in Greek uniform. Commande in Chief Southeast (High Command Army Group E)," dated June 3, 1943.

The next page is again a teletype or TWX Message from the High Command Army Group E, Commander in Chief Southeast, 4 June 1943, addressed to the OKH General Staff of the Army Operation Department:

"Secret --Daily Report of the Commander in Chief Southeast of 4 June 43 -- Operation 'Schwarz' -- Greece -- South of Florina a band 200 men strong. In the area Metsovo (38 kilometers northeast of Joannina) 1000 Communists reported. During Italian mopping up of area Joannina and Amfissa Atlanta 5 bandits shot dead quite a large number of rifles and ammunition secured, several houses of bandits burned down"; and that is signed "High Command June 4."

The next document, still the same NOKW-1495, which you find on page 14 -- or page 14 of the German, 21 of the English, is again a report about the situation in Greece and it states that:

"In the area Melisseurghi strong group of bands under leadership of former Greek General apparently in connection with Zervas hands in the area Arta. The strike situation in Athens has quieted down."

That is "Secret" and is dated June 7, 1943.

If you will turn your next page, your Honors, you will find the same addressee and the same source under the 18th of June 1943 pertaining to the situation in Serbia, however, and it says:

"Local band activity. In reprisal for raids and acts of sabotage committed during the last period 350 communists and 50 cetniks were shot dead."

And it is signed again by the "High Command Army Group E" -- on the next page, Your Honors.

On the next page, your Honor, you find the same source reporting to the OKH, the situation in Croatia pertaining to the 114th Jaeger Division, in which there it is reported that, "6 bandit villages destroyed."

That report was dated the 19 June 1943.

There is another report you will find on page 24, page 17 of the German Document Book, pertaining to the situation in Croatia again, and it states; "20 Cetniks and 10 Communists shot dead."

Also again signed, "High Command army Group E", June 23 1943.

We then go back to Greece again, which you will find on page 25 of your document book, and page 18 of the German, and it states that two commanders of bands have been arrested, and several bandit houses have been burned down.

Then it changes from Greece to Serbia, and you will find that 30 Communist prisoners were shot dead.

That was the 26 June 1943.

We turn to page 26, and there we find the High Command of Army Group E reporting under the 27 of June, 1943, pertaining to the situation in Serbia: "In reprisal for shooting of Italian officer in the area of Berane Podgerica Niksic, 150 communist prisoners in all were shot dead".

Page 27, your Honors, page 20 of the German, a tactical report about Greece and then about Serbia: In the area Krusevac and Mladenovac, in all 125 communists and their assistants and band suspects were arrested by the German police and the Serbian State Guards, 7 communists were shot dead".

Page 28, the report about Greece again, -- that is page 21 and 22 respectively of the German Document Book--, and down toward the end of the report we find:

"Complete destruction of the surrounding villages in connection with reprisal measures ordered, and in progress. Up to now 4 villages burned down, In reprisal for blowing up of line near Litochoron".  "50 communists were shot dead". 2 July 1943.

In the report dated 3 July 1943, on page No. 29, your Honors, you will find a report on Greece, addressed by the High Command of Army Group E, and stating:

"Slight contact with bands. 5 bandits dead. 2 further villages destroyed. Mopping up and reprisals continued."

On Page 30, Greece again, to OKH, from Army Group E:

"In Athens strike of the telephone company; mopping up operation southeast of Serbia continued by Combat Group Salminger; further villages burned down; 87 suspects were shot dead while escaping".

Then we turn to page 31, page 25 of the German Document Book, and here is a report of the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, dated 5 July 1943, "Greece: In Malaxe acts of sabotage on important communication lines. Searching operations so far without any result. Increasing security measures ordered since 3 July prevented more serious damage. Reprisal measures 50 Greeks shot dead. Further shooting threatened, if perpetrators not discovered by cooperation of population within 7 days."

Page 32, which is page 26 of the German Document Book:

"Greek railway personnel arrested. Examination and reprisals measures in progress."

"Serbia: Weather fine. Local band activity. 25 DM reprisal prisoners shot dead."

This concludes document 1495, which is Prosecution Exhibit 289.

Your Honors we would like to offer now NOKW 949, which will become our Exhibit 290. This, your Honors, is a top secret report, dated 22 July 1943, 4th Brandenburg Regiment Commander. There are various handwritten names on there which are illegible. There is also an illegible initial on the original. It is addressed:

"To the Commander in Chief Southeast/Ia, through Commander of the German troops in Croatia.

Subject: Proposals for the future employment for special purposes of the 4th Brandenburg Regiment."

If your Honors would now turn, please, to page 34 of this same document, in the middle of the page, -- that is page 28-29 of the German Document Book-- and we find here:

"The method followed up to now of shooting to death all partisans without distinction, could never be successful, Many became partisans but by the combined influence of several circumstances such as: Ustaschi-Moslems-or Cetnik-atrocities- want and starvation, terror and duress by other partisans.

They stay partisans because the way back is blocked by the German orders. They have lost their country and their family and so they fight to their death.

Since the political conditions in Croatia are not improving new partisans replace those who are killed.

According to congruent observations of the troop, it would have been possible to win over a certain percentage of the captured partisans for fighting on the German side, if their lives were spared and food, as well as their return to their homesteads later on, were guaranteed."

There are some marginal notes on this letter from the 4th Brandenburg Regiment to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast. The initials are illegible, but it says:

"Since the political conditions in Croatia are not improving, new partisans replace those who are killed."

"Correct" on the marginal side.

In the next paragraph, the marginal, information says, "But not the Croatians?

No!"

Now on the next page, your Honors, page 35, right on the top there is a proposal made by the 4th Brandenburg Regiment, it states:

"Immediate order to troops, not to shoot to death any more captured partisans. Delivery to collecting camps and humane treatment.

In the collection camps short observation of the partisans by confidential agents."

Somebody wrote on the margin, "No".

"Recruitment of the partisans considered suitable, by Brandenburg.

Transfer of those unsuitable to work camps.

After instruction and very careful observation in troop for special commitment - employment against Tito.

Means of pressure: All partisans still remaining in the troop and in camp guarantee with their lives against treason of the bandits employed.

In case of efficiency and prowess also recognition, pecuniary compensations, allotments of land and cattle. No pettefogery. What is precious today is only German blood."

Then Paragraph B which says:

"Raiding of the so-called "Mainstaff" and the English airfields in the area Bihac:

In the area west and northwest of Bihac there is a strong wellorganized group of partisans amounting to about 8,000 individuals extending far out into the Italian occupied area. Air-reconnaissance and reports of confidential agents confirm that a continuous supply of leaders and materials is being assured by the Royal Air Force. Active airfields, permanent billets, some of them barrack-camps, were identified whether this group is under Tito's command or whether it has its own leader is not yet certain. The latter is probable."

"This group is of special importance, because in the event of an English landing at the place most suitable for the purpose - (for the reasons see under letter c) - it will be able to form a bridgehead and to hold it open.

Inside this group, which beyond a doubt contains English officers, the designation "English-American Volunteers Army" has already been coined."

This document is signed: "Heinz, Colonel and Commander of Regiment".

Your Honors, we have now NOKW 1079, Prosecution Exhibit 291. This, Your Honors, is an order dated the 14 July 1943, and the order was issued by the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, simultaneously charged with Command of Army Group E, and the order concerns itself with the security and reprisal measures against the enemy population.

July 26, 1943-- this is about the period, your Honors, that the defendant Foertsch was Chief of Staff to the then Commander-in-Chief of the Army Group E.

I cite: "In the event of enemy landing attacks we must reckon with the most far reaching participation of hostile parts of the population on the side of the enemy. The activities of the bands against objects of vital importance especially the railroads will begin suddenly.

In order to overcome this great danger measures of adequate security are to be taken now.

1. I give permission to and oblige all commanders to take most severe measures in case of obvious hostile attitude of the population on their own responsibility and without having requested authorization from their superior offices. Measures taken are to be reported and will be covered by me. Commanders however who out of negligence or softness omit to take measures of reprisal will be held responsible.
2. Among other things, all strikes even if they do not directly affect military affairs are to be considered as hostile attitude." of the population. Curfew regulations for the entire population closing of shops and the cutting of electric light and water supplies are to be immediately introduced as efficient counter measures.

- 3.) It is the duty of every German soldier to break any active resistance of the population, by force of arms, immediately and relentlessly. Soldiers who violate this duty are to be brought before courts martial and the sentences are to be made known to the troops.
- 4.) As soon as sufficient forces have arrived, the setting up of an evacuation zone 5 to 10 kilometers wide is to be carried out in Greece on both sides of the main railway lines with the exception of large localities. The zone is forbidden to the civilian population except for those working under guard, every civilian is to be shot unchallenged. In the larger villages, curfew at dusk and the taking of hostages etc. are to be considered. Preparations are to be made now. Plans for such prohibited zones, with corresponding maps are to be reported by 1 August 1943.
- 5.) In all measures of reprisal the following is to be observed.

Ruthless combat and reprisals should as far as possible be directed only against the hostile civilian population. By a correct treatment of the friendly population a rush of the population towards the bands must be avoided.

As a result of these considerations however it must not happen that for example, if German soldiers were shot at in a village nothing is done because the perpetrator was not clearly determined. In such cases measures of reprisal must be effected by the immediate arrest and shooting to death or still better by hanging publicly influential personalities of the villages. The same applies when justifies suspicion exists that the perpetrators of successfully carried out or even only attempted acts of sabotage were supported by the population. In most cases the population is on the side of the bandits.

The reasons for all measures of reprisal are immediately to be made know publicly.

The extent of a reprisal measure is to be ordered clearly, its execution must be supervised in order to prevent excesses of our own troops.

In all reprisal measures sufficient troops are to be employed in order to guarantee complete success. A withdrawal of our forces in cases of failures will be interpreted as weakness and will only have a stimulating effect on the population.

The careful seizure of rations for the troops, in case the supply roads should be blocked belongs to the preparations for the fight which is to be expected against an enemy which has landed and against a hostile population. The necessary reconnaissance must be made well in advance. Becomes to such civilian stocks is however permissible only in case of open combat actions or in dire needs. ry superior must see to it that such measures do not lead to plundering. A lack of supervision herein can quickly spoil the troops.

(Signature) Loehr (Initials illeg.)

MR. RAPP: And there is also this document initialed, we submit, by the Defendant Foertsch.

DR. HINDEMITH: Your Honors, Hindemith for the Defendant Foertsch. Regarding what the Prosecutor has just said about the last document. I would like to state the following: I object to the prosecution's statement that this document the initial "F" on it and that indicates the Defendant Foertsch. The German document does not show this. It only shows the initial is illegible. What the Prosecutor has just said is not factual, but he was arguing just now. Since in the German document the initial is not shown I move that the remarks of the Prosecutor concerning this should be stricken from the record.

THE PRESIDENT: I think it is true that the argumentation is made; it will take further evidence to show that they are, in fact, the initials of the Defendant Foertsch. I think, however, the Prosecution may call the attention of the Tribunal to any marks made on any exhibit.

MR. RAPP; Very well, Your Honor.

DR. HINDEMITH: From what your Honor has just said, I take that the Defense has the right to make objections to the argumentation of the Prosecution at a later date.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, I think that is correct.

DR. HINDEMITH: Thank you.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors turn now to page 40 of the English Document Book, page 36 of the German, I continue with the same document--that is, Document No. NOKW-1079. It will not be necessary to read these two pages into the record; and this will close up the Document No. NOKW-1079 which is Prosecution's Exhibit No. 291. If the Tribunal please, we submit now NOKW-718 which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 292. We turn to page 43 of the English Document Book of the same document, page 37 of the German Book, and under paragraph 3, which is page 38 of the German Document Book, now we find.

3.) Counter Intelligence Office Grn. Milanovac reports: 1200 D.M. men under the command of Lt. Colonel Simic marching in two groups from Tresjnvica (about 12 South Southwest Arandjulovac) in a Southerly direction. A group is marching in direction of Strajari under the command of Captain Kalabic (400 men); the second group is marching in direction of Rudnik under the Command of Lt. Col. Simic. The band has 80 to 100 light machine guns and is wearing mostly uniforms of the former Yugoslav Army.

4.) In Kamenica the SD burns down 7 houses at 1700 hours because the village held a festive reception for D. M. and its buildings have served for some time as refuges for English men and D.M. bands.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, on the next page, Page 44 we find under Roman Numeral II:

MR. RAPP: This is all for NOKW-718, Prosecution's Exhibit No. 292. Your Honor we have now NOKW-893 to offer, which will be Prosecution's Exhibit No. 293. These are again some of these teletype reports. This one is dated the 22nd of July, and it is to the Commander of German Troops in Croatia.

"Brigadier General von Chamier Fliegerfuehrer in Croatia:

It is my duty to call the attention to the fact that especially lately the use of bombers in the Coratian Civil War has become a very problematic means of combat. Either villages are bombed in which bandits never stayed, or such villages in which the bandits stayed temporarily without the agreement of the population and have long since departed. A week ago several villages were bombed in Zagoria (north of Zagreb). They were completely free of insurgents and the pure Catholic inhabitants had, as was proven, up to now nothing to do with the disorders. There were dead and wounded and much damage was caused. All this was suffered by citizens and peasants whose brothers and sons served with us as Legionnaires or as Coratian soldiers and who are supposed to fight courageously on our side. All this in an area whose economic well being is in the interests of our conduct of war. The extraordinary national and political complexity of the country in which we are fighting demands that a means of combat such as air raids, which elsewhere may be used to combat Partisans without hesitation, be used rarely and carefully.

The targets are only to be bombed when it is established without a doubt that they are occupied by the enemy and the bombing of villages of villages is to be avoided as far as possible." "Since additional forces adversaries "(into the woods)" it does not help to pacify the country but is detrimental and shakes the confidence in the German soldier of those parts of the population which are of good will. I beg you to take these ideas into consideration in view of the extreme subtlety of our adversary and of the combats which certainly demand ruthlessness and severity."

NOKW-965 will be offered next. That is page 48 of the English and 42 of the German document book, and it becomes Prosecution Exhibit No. 294. This is a teletype message sent by the Commander of German Troops in Croatia to all of the divisions enumerated here: SS Division 369, 373, 187th and so forth, and it goes on to say:

Recently the air force was repeatedly used against completely peaceful villages. Such attacks do not help us, but rather harm us, as they only strike against the harmless civilian population. Attacks upon villages have to be reserved for special cases, when, furthermore, it is certain that these villages are completely communist.

Genuine successes of the air force can only be expected where a known enemy is being engaged.

Commander of German Troops in Croatia The initials are illegible.

Your Honors, now NOKW-1439, page 49 of your document book, page 43 of the defense counsel's document book, becomes 295 Prosecution Exhibit. This is a rather lengthy document and we have only made certain excerpts of this document, the rest pertaining to tactical matters. "Commander of German Troops in Croatia, Branch Ic" -that is the intelligence branch.

Enclosure - 1 Headquarters 5 July 1943 E n e m y S i t u a t i o n i n S l a v o n i a In Slavonia, East of the line Virovitica-Ban Jaruga units of the II Croatian (Slavonic) Corps were stationed up until the end of June.

The total strength of the Corps amounted to approximately 5,500 men without the units assigned to the territory after the dissolution of the III Operation Zone. This figure includes 650 women.

Organization: Staff (40) Batterie (32), 1st Division (1900 including 300 women), 4th Division (3,300, including 350 women).

Then it gives the weapons starting out with 3500 rifles, etc.

Each Division has three Brigades consisting in the main of four Battalions.

On the next page, Your Honor, page 50, you will find the breakdown of the order of battle or battle strength of these various units. It starts out with the first Division which also is called the Tenth. It talks of XVII Slav Brigade; it talks of the XXI Brigade; and it talks of a Slavonian Division, which is subdivided into the XII and XVI Brigades.

And on page 51, Your Honors, you will find "lately a 12th Division has been mentioned which includes three Brigades one of which is designated as the XIV. This is probably a new setup from compulsory recruitments or segregated elements of the units assigned to the area."

That is, by the way, page 44 and 45 of the German document.

Then:

The XIV Brigade of the 12th Division is cabled "Zagreb Youth Brigade JOZA SLAVONIC" because it is composed 50% of Croates.

Three units assigned to the area operate in the same territory. One of them operates in the Papuk (400 men) one around VOCIN (600 men) and the third changes constantly between the BSUNJ and the DILJ Mountains (300 men).

These units (the so-called Slavonic Order) assigned to the area are not to be mistaken for the so-called military forces of the rear area. They are guards which are subordinate to area headquarters and to town-headquarters. Like the gendarmerie, they are organized by districts. They do not wear the usual rank insignia of red cloth directly on their sleeve, but they wear the Soviet Star and insignia superimposed on green cloth background.

Your Honors, if you turn now please to page 54 of your document book, which is page 47 of the German, we find a little note about combat methods of the communists, and it says:

Combat methods of the Communists Prisoners are never to be shot to death without being interrogated concerning unit, commanding officer, strength and the intentions of their unit.

Intelligent people who wish to make statements, all commanding officers and commissars are to be sent to the division, all radio technicians and telephone men to be sent to the Commander for thorough interrogation.

And then this document is signed for the Commander of the German Troops in Croatia, the Chief of General Staff and in draft signed Major Berger of the General Staff Guard.

Then we have another teletype here, page 55, Your Honors, page 47 and 48 of the German document book, and it is dated July 5, 1943.

I. All Communists are to be shot to death. Suspects are to be arrested.

The following are considered bandits:

- a.) Any person having participated in combat or encountered bearing arms.
- b.) Any person convicted of Communist activities.

II. The following are considered suspects:

- a.) Any persons roving about away from settlements without compulsory reason.
- b.) Any non-resident unable to prove that his presence is necessary.

Women and young people are also to be taken. The entire population of all villages within the areas to be mopped up are to be screened. A few persons who seem trustworthy, belonging to different religious and national groups, are to be selected and to be interrogated individually concerning non-residents and Communists. The interrogation is to be carried out in such a manner that the people concerned do not have to fear any acts of vengeance.

The troops carrying out the arrest are to send along a short report giving reasons and place of the arrest and personal data when the arrestees are sent to the collection camp.

III. Deserters.

Deserters who voluntarily report to the unit are to be sent to a collection camp for labor employment. They are to be given brief identification papers designating them as deserters. Before they are transported to collecting camps, they are to be offered to the SD.

IV. All villages which are entirely Communists are to be destroyed. The population, in as far as it is not being treated as Communists is to be evacuated to collection camps.

In addition, villages serving entire bands as a permanent refuge with the consent of the population are to be considered Communist villages.

V. Houses in which weapons and ammunition are found and which are not reported promptly and voluntarily, are to be destroyed.

The shooting to death of Communists (bandits) the arrest of suspects, destruction of villages and the number of deserters is to be included in the daily report.

And the Distribution:

Troop units North of thee Save (down to companies) The next page, Your Honor, page 57, or page 49 and 50, respectively of the German document book, I still continue, paragraph I: All Communists (bandits) are to be shot to death.

Suspects are to be arrested.

The following are considered bandits:

- a.) Any person having participated in combat or encountered bearing arms.
- b.) Any person convicted of Communist activities.

c.) Any persons roving about away from settlements without compulsory reason.

Women and young people are also to be taken. In doubtful cases, persons concerned are to be arrested.

II. Persons arrested who are suspected of having actively or passively supported acts of sabotage, are to be used as hostages, for the execution of reprisal measures.

They are to be reported to the Commander of the German Troops in Croatia Ic giving reason and place of arrest as well as personal data and to be transferred with the identical report to the Prisoner-of-War Camp Zenica.

Subject: Order concerning counter-intelligence and reprisal measures against the enemy population.

In addition to the reprisal measures ordered, hostages are to be arrested from the area concerned in the event of sabotage.

When hostages are seized it must be considered that innocent people are mostly arrested while the guilty persons have fled to the woods.

Hostages may carry on correspondence under censorship.

The seizure of hostages is effective only when the hostages are taken as a reprisal measure from the immediate locality of the incident. The population is to be informed by means of posters and leaflets, giving the names and threatening that the hostages will be hanged or shot on the occasion of the next attack. The carrying out of the reprisal measures by hanging or shooting of hostages as ordered by the Commanding Officer also is to be published.

This is dated the 31st of July, 1943.

1. The sabotage activity which is increased of late, compels strict adherence to the order mentioned in the reference.
2. The Divisions are ordered to seize immediately as hostages from those areas and villages from which traffic and supply roads have been threatened and above all where attacks have already taken place and without regard to nationality.

by special detachments in closest cooperation with the SD and the Ordnungs Polizei.

A detachment with the 114th Jaeger Division has achieved great success by surprise operations.

These special detachments are to be of a sufficient strength and well equipped, suitable for their task. Forces of the Secret Field Police of the SD Field Gendarmerie and if at all possible of the Croatian Police or Gendarmerie are also to be employed. The Special Detachment is responsible for the Military area of the operation. House searches and interrogations are to be executed under the direction of executive organs of the Secret Field Police, of the SD or of the Ordnungs Polizei.

3. The arrested hostages are to be delivered to the Corps Prisoner Camp Zenica or Prijedor. Those divisions who are too far removed by rail from Prijedor or Zenica will install temporary hostage camps in agreement with the SD. It is intended to install hostage camps in Sisak and Mitrovica. The minutes of the interrogation together with personal data and the domiciles of the hostages are to be turned over to the camp Headquarters together with the hostages delivered.

4. Arrests and shootings of hostages is to be included in the daily report to the Commander.

5. Pursuant to the reference above, the seizure of hostages as well as reprisal measures carried out are to be made known to the population by means of posters and leaflets in cooperation with the Croatian propaganda staff, in Zagreb or its branch offices in Banja Luka, and Sarajevo.

The propaganda staff or its branch office will have the leaflets dropped over the territory where the attack has taken place and from where the hostages originate, as well as over the adjoining bandit territories.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: We will recess until one-thirty.

MR. RAPP: Very well, Your Honor.

(A recess was taken until 113- hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours, 29 July 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors will recall that prior to the noon recess we were concerning ourselves with NOKW--

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Just a moment, please. We will have to wait a few minutes. There are some repairs in the other room.

MR. RAPP: Very well, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: We were wondering about Document Book 13; 12 seems to be the last we have. Has 13 been served?

MR. RAPP: 13 has been served at about 1800 hours last night and it has been served as far as I know. If Your Honor desires, we can get you right now a copy of Document Book 13, if you haven't received it in your chambers as yet.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: If they haven't been served, we are not particular as we want to keep things moving along.

MR. RAPP: I will have some brought up right now.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You may proceed.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors will recall that prior to the noon recess we concerned ourselves with NOKW-1439, which became Prosecution Exhibit 295. We talked about this document on page 61 of the English Document Book and pages 52 and 53 respectively of the German document book. We now commence with paragraph 6 of this particular document:

"The leaflets concerning the seizure of hostages are to include: first and last name, age, and domicile of the hostages. Furthermore they are to include the threat that the hostages will be shot to death in the event of another attack.

"7. The reprisal measures ordered herewith are to be regulated by the competent division commanders. Excesses by subordinate authorities or by individual soldiers must be avoided.

"8. The division commanders decide whether the reprisal measure will be carried out at the locality of the incident or in the hostage camp.

"9. By order of the Ministry of the Interior the execution of the shooting to death is to be left as far as possible to the Croatian police, in the presence of Executive Organs of the Secret Field Police, the Field Gendarmerie, or of the SD.

"10. In the future every plot, attack, or act of sabotage must be met with a suitable reprisal.

"(signed) Lueters" Your Honors, turning to the next page we find an entry under the 25th of July 1943 which was received on the 28th of July 1943.

Commander of German Troops in Croatia. It states:

"During the month covered by this report cooperation with German military and police authorities was good. Cooperation with the SD was further extended and incidents concerning the SD were transferred to it."

At the end of the page:

"It also seems that the Croatian police do not apply severe enough measures. It is remarkable that the Croatian courts do not pronounce severe sentences."

Page 64, under the heading of Combatting of Bands:

"In the course of an operation carried out in the area southwest of Okucani, 50 kilometers north of Fanja Luka, on 9 June 1943 the following Croatian nationals who were suspected of belonging to bands were arrested by the Branch Office Banja Luka and sent to the jail 'Black House'."

At the bottom of the page:

"All 8 persons were charged with band membership; in addition they were charged with having acted as messengers for the bands and having driven cattle to them and having procured young men and women for them."

On page 65, paragraph 2, the middle of the page:

"When S. was supposed to join the bands on 9 July 1943, Bahtic and another band courier named Milan Prerad, born on 15 February 1911 in Pocitelj, resident in Brod, were arrested. The investigation which was continued immediately resulted in the arrest of additional persons who were accused of having recruited members for the bands.

Three of the persons arrested have been convicted and have confessed. The affair is not concluded as yet since investigations indicate the guilt of other persons whose arrest is impending. A subsequent report will follow after conclusion of the affair.

"3) The Branch Office in Semlin became familiar with the personal data of 42 band members in Boljevcı, 20 kilometers southeast of Semlin, from interrogation of band members. This office found out that the Bolshevik band intended to set fire to the Ferek estate situated near Boljevcı on 4 July 1943. That is why an operation with the purpose of arresting the band members was carried out in cooperation with the Commanding Officer of the Luftwaffe station of Semlin. Two combat planes participated in the operation. Bandits had set fire to the estate. Thirty-four of the 42 band members known by name were arrested. An unknown inhabitant of the village was shot to death while trying to escape.

"In the course of the interrogations which have taken place up until now, 10 accused persons have been convicted and have confessed to having supported the bands with money and foodstuffs and to have taken an active part as bandits. In addition, names of other bandits have become known to us. Investigations continue. A subsequent report will follow after conclusion of the affair.

"4) The Secret Field Police detachment with the 369th Infantry Division received from Branch Ic of the Division the Croatian national Dusan Grbic, born 17 June 1914 in Brck, Miladin Vrzljan, born 1926 in Buija, and Savo Pecanac, born 1925. Petrovac on 5 July 1943 for interrogation because of suspected band membership. The interrogation resulted in valuable material for giving information about the bands.

"After the interrogations were concluded, the three bandits were transferred, together with the files of the affair, to the Ic of the 369th Infantry Division with a request for his decision. Ic ordered the shooting to death of the three bandits, which was carried out by a detachment made available by the unit."

(There is also a question mark on the margin of this paper.)

"5) The German 187 brought 122 inhabitants, all Croatian nationals, of the village of Lucinci, about 20 kilometers northeast Brod, on 11 July 1943 into the transit camp of the Field Gendarmerie in Brod after a combat action with the bands. The office in Brod screened these persons on the basis of the available material. After conclusion of the screenings, 9 persons were arrested on suspicion of band membership and 20 additional persons on suspicion of aiding and abetting bands. Ninetythree persons who could not be proved of having committed any punishable deed were released after a conference with the Ic of the Commander of German Troops in Croatia. Investigations are continued against the 29 accused persons.

"6) The Secret Field Police detachment with the 373 Infantry Division in Prijedor cracked down an organization in Brezincani, 6 kilometers northwest of Brijedor, which was accused of supporting the band members hiding in the nearby woods. In cooperation with the division, an operation was carried out on 21 July 1943 to surround the village and to arrest the accused. During the course of it, a total, of 10 residents of Brezicani were arrested who were already know to the detachment as persons aiding and abetting bands. Additional arrests are impending on the basis of investigations previously carried out. A detailed report will follow after completion of the affair."

Your Honors, on page 68, which is 58 and 59 respectively of the German document book, we will find a statistical breakdown of punishable offenses by the population and we find out that:

"General felonies and crimes: 1 person "Offenses against the security of the troops:

"Unauthorized possession of arms: 1 "Band membership:

158 "Theft of arms:

2 "Misguidance of the German Wehrmacht:

Your Honors, on page 68, which is 59 and 60 respectively of the German document book, we will find a statistical breakdown of "punishable offenses by the population" and we find out that is:

"General felonies and crimes: One person "Offenses against the security of the troops:

"Unauthorized possession of arms.....1 "Band membership.

.....158 "Theft of arms.

.....2 "Misguidance of the German Wehrmacht.

If Your Honors will now turn to page 70, please, which is page 62 of the German document book, we find a report of the Group Secret Field Police No. 9 which is labeled as "Enclosure 3" in the German document. It has a "secret" stamp and is "Local Headquarters 25 July 1943".

"To Activity Report for the Month of July 1943.

"Court martial sentences in counter intelligence cases.

"1) In accordance with the judgment of the court martial of the 114th---"

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Let's have the exhibit number.

MR. RAPP: The exhibit number, Your Honor, is still Exhibit No. 295. It is still NOKW-1439.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I am sorry.

JUDGE BURKE: I don't have the page from which you are reading.

MR. RAPP: You do not have the page, Your Honor?

JUDGE BURKE: I do not have it immediately available. What is the number?

MR. RAPP: The number, Your Honor, is page 70. Is that page missing from your document book, Your Honor?

JUDGE BURKE: No, it is here.

MR. RAPP: Paragraph 1:

"In accordance with the judgment of the court martial of the 114th Jaeger Division, the following persons were sentence to compulsory labor in Germany on account of recruitment of persons for bands on 25 June 1943:

Steve Bojanic, born 1908 in Maglajani, District of Banja Luka.

"2) The court martial of the 114th Jaeger Division pronounced the following sentences on the persons below for band membership, courier services and recruitment of persons for bands on 30 June 1943:

"Sentenced to death:

"Duro Smiljanic, born 1917 in Grodjuani, District of Nova Gradiska.

"Milan, Jaglicii, born 1913 in Gredjani, District of Nova Gradiska.

"The sentence was carried out on 6 July 1943.

"2. Sentenced to compulsory labor in Germany:

"Svo, Gerovic, born 1924 in Gradjani, District of Nova Gradiska.

"Milan, Resanovic, born on 7 April 1920 in Vrbovljani, District Nova Gradiska."

We turn to the next page, Your Honors, page 71, and we find an additional individual, two additional individuals, on the top of the page who were also sentenced to forced labor in Germany. One individual is Peter Vukomanovic and the other one is Ljoposava Bosjodic.

Then in paragraph 3 on the same page we find:

"In accordance with the judgment of the court martial of the 114th Jaeger Division of 30 June 1943, the following persons were sentenced for proved aiding and abetting of bands:

"For compulsory labor to Germany:" and we find there again two names on the bottom of page 71.

If Your Honors please will turn to page 72, which is 63 and 64 of the German document book, we will find in paragraph 4 that one individual by the name of "Stana Siljak, nee Jasica, born in 1896 in Bjelajci, District of Bosn Dubica" was sentenced to a concentration camp for "aiding and abetting of and cooperation with bands".

Paragraph 5: "In accordance with the judgment of the court martial of the 114th Jaeger Division of 7 July 1943, the following sentence was pronounced:

"For compulsory labor in Germany:" -- there again we have an individual and finally, in paragraph 6, we have another person, and that concludes page 72 and Document 1439, which was prosecution Exhibit 295.

Your Honors, the next document the prosecution offers is Document NOKW-1109, which will become Prosecution's Exhibit 296. With Your Honors' permission I would like to hand this document to the bench as it shows from a German captured report a uniform description in photographic form of the uniforms worn at that time by the partisans.

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, the photograph shows a man in uniform but the further claim of the prosecution - namely, that this uniform was worn by all partisans - this claim will have to be proven.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: It will be received in evidence for what it's worth.

MR. RAPP: If the Tribunal pleases, we are submitting now NOKW1523, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 297. This, Your Honors, is a so-called Fuehrer Order, a directive from Hitler's headquarters, and pertains to the "Command and Defense of the Southeast Area" and it is called "Directive 48", dated 26 July 1943. There were eight copies made of this document. It is "top secret". Each copy was registered and this copy happened to be the fourth copy that was put out. It was carried by officer courier only. It states:

"Directive 48 for the Command and Defense of the Southeast Area.

"I. The measures taken by the enemy in the eastern Mediterranean in connection with the attack on Sicily lead to the expectation of impending landing operations against the defensive front of the Aegean along the line Peloponnesus - Crete - Rhodes and against the Greek west coast including the Ionic Islands before it.

"In the event of enemy operations reaching over from Sicily to the south Italian mainland, one must also count on an advance against the eastern coast of the Adriatic, north of the Straits of Otranto.

"In addition, the enemy command bases its plans on the band movements in the interior of the Southeast Area which it has increasingly directed according to plan.

"At this time the neutral attitude of Turkey is beyond question. However, it continues to require the necessary attention."

Paragraph II:

"On the basis of this situation, the Command in the Southeast Area will be reorganized in agreement with allied Italy according to the policies below:

"A. Army:

"1) Effective 27 July 1943, 0000 hours, Commander-in-Chief Southeast takes over the command of the 11th Italian Army.

"2) German units who are at this time in the territory of this army and those intended for it will be tactically subordinated to the Italian Army and to the command authorities designated by it. This measure provides that the unified command of all German and Italian troops on the Peloponnese will be exercised by Headquarters of the German LXVII Corps and that the Headquarters of the Italian VIII Corps will be transferred to the area north of the Straits of Corinth.

"The German units employed directly for coastal security are under the command of the commanding Italian divisions in these sectors.

"3) German troops committed temporarily in Albania, Montenegro, and the Croatian areas near the coast, occupied by Italian troops, are to be subordinated tactically to the Italian Army Group East and/or the Second Italian Army."

On page 77 we find:

"B. Navy and Luftwaffe:

"Directives issued up to now concerning the influence on our allies exercised by Navy and Luftwaffe remain in effect. Commanding Admiral Aegean will ensure the putting in effect of German principles in the coastal sectors of the 11th Army where problems of coastal defense within the authority of the Navy are concerned.

"III. The primary task of the Commander-in-Chief Southeast is the preparation of the defense of the Greek coasts on the islands and on the mainland.

It is a prerequisite for this task to free the supply roads by fighting, particularly the main railroad line, by annihilating the bands in Greece, Serbia, and Croatia, and to secure the required freedom of the rear area.

"For coastal defense, only the German principles for occupation and development of the coast are applicable. This applies also as far as Italian units are concerned.

"On primarily endangered coastal sectors German fortress battalions and - if these are insufficient - elements of the German divisions intended for reserves are to be employed on or near the coast for the support of the Italians. It is also required that important coastal batteries or other key positions are to be reinforced by German cadres."

It continues on the next page.

It continues on the next page:

"If German units are inefficient as reserves, Italian units made ready for this purpose are to be placed under German Command and combined with German units.

Airports near the coast are to be defended by German forces.

Selection and development of all defense installations and reconnaissance for approach and assembly must take into consideration the expected enemy air superiority.

The primary task of Commander-in-Chief Southeast in the rear area is to annihilate the bands in Serbia and Croatia with the focal point along the traffic lanes to Greece.

Close liaison with Army Group East and the 2nd Italian Army and a possibly necessary commitment of German forces must bring about the carrying on of the fight against the bands with the greatest energy in their territory too. The hand centers near the coast, in particular, which might be especially dangerous during an enemy landing, must be cleared up. Beyond this, if the development warrants it, the Army Group must always be prepared to take over the costal defense in the Italian area with German forces which are to be as strong as possible.

IV. The distribution of forces suggested by Commander-in-Chief Southeast on 26 July 1943 is approved in general. Details will be ordered separately (handwritten note in left hand margin: "is enclosed") An order will be issued concerning the bringing up of army Troops."

Next page:

"Beyond this, it is intended during the next few months to form an Operational Army along the railroad Belgrade-Larissa. It will be organized from elements brought up from the Last to be composed of the Following:

2 Panzer or Panzer Grenadier Divisions 2 Mountain Divisions 2 Jaeger Divisions.

Further orders concerning this will be issued separately.

The Greek territory occupied by German Troops and by the 7th Bulgarian Division, including the Islands and the neutral zone in Thrace is an area of operations Commander-in Chief Southeast exercises the executive power in this territory and he is authorized to transfer his authority to the Military Commander Greece.

The Chief of OKW will regulate his authority in a special standard order of procedure in accordance with the principle that all German authorities except the Wehrmacht stationed or to be stationed in Greece are to be subordinate to Commander-in-Chief Southeast and that they are made a part of the Staff of Military Commander Greece. The authority of the supreme Reich authorities to issue directives concerning their professional spheres remains intact. However, channels of procedure go via the Military Commander."

Next page, your Honors:

"2.) The Plenipotentiary of the Reich with the Greek Government and Ambassador Neubacher, whose special mission and authority so far remain unchanged, are excepted from ruling until final agreement with the Foreign Office. The standard order of procedure for the Military Commander will provide for closest cooperation between the Military Commander and the above authorities.

"3.) The Commander-in-Chief Southeast will make felt an authoritative German influence on the military administration of territory occupied by Italian Troops only as far as is required by military leadership. If no agreement with the local Italian authorities can be reached, pertinent applications are to be made to the OKW.

B. 1) In the zone of operations in Serbia and Croatia Commander-in-Chief Southeast delegates the authority vested in him to exercise executive power to "Military Commander Southeast", the latter employing for this purpose in Croatia the Commander of German Troops in Croatia.

2.) The extreme importance of the Serbian area for the entire direction of the war in the Southeast necessitates concentration of all German Offices. For this purpose all non-military offices employed in Serbia are subordinated to Military Commander Southeast and they are made a part of his staff.

Next page:

"The authority of the supreme Reich authorities to issue directives concerning their professional spheres is not affected by this subordination. However, channels of procedure go via the Military Commander.

Standard order of procedure will be issued by Chief OKW.

"3.) The Commander of German troops in Croatia and the German Plenipotentiary General in Croatia retain their present duties and authority.

VI. The necessary orders concerning the reorganization of staffs and command authorities as well as concerning supply will be issued by Chief OKW on my orders.

Any orders contradicting this directive are rescinded.

(signed) Adolf Hitler" Your Honors, if you will kindly turn to page 82 you will find, the distribution of this Hitler order as it went down from Hitler's headquarters to the various echelons at that time.

DR. HINDEMITH for Dr. Rauschenbach, for defendant Foertsch:

Mr. President, after the original of the document NOKW 1439 was submitted, I would like to point out the following mistake. It is in Exhibit No. 295, page 47 of the German Document book, under the heading, "Communist way of fighting". As a supplement to this it states here that, "I never treated them without interrogation". After looking at the German document one must---

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Let's have the English page.

MR. RAPP: 55, I believe.

DR. HINDEMITH: This is the beginning of the statement which is summarized under this title. My attention was drawn to the fact that here there must be a mistake because this statement does not refer at all to the Communists. After the document was submitted, I have noticed that the reference to the 7th paragraph of the statement which is under this heading in this paragraph, - there are also 6 other sections, but this is not immediately evident from the way in which the German original is made up.

In my view this would also have to be expressed in the translation, that important parts of the document are not translated here. I therefore ask that it be noted in the minutes, that in the statements, under the heading "Communist way of fighting," the 6 preceding sections do not appear in the translation.

PRESIDENT JUDGE CARTER: It is agreeable to have it noted in the minutes of the proceeding.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, we are offering now NOKW 1032, which you will find on page 83 of the English, and page 74 of the German Document Book. It becomes Prosecution Exhibit 298.

This is an evening report of the unit, dated 11 June, 1943.

"61st Bulgarian Infantry Regiment reports at 1940 hours.

"Mopping up operation in the area north of the Bulgarian positions as far as Tara. In addition to the booty taken yesterday, 12 charges for extra-heavy mortars were found. The school in Tepca was burned down today. Infantry ammunition exploded in it. Around the school were established 10 graves about 8-10 days old of dead Communists. The school was evidently a temporary dressing station."

Then the "Mountain Jaeger Regiment 98 reports at 2020 hours."

"Own reconnaissance troop activity. North of 1947, three Communists shot dead, otherwise no contact with, nor observation of, the enemy."

"Evening Report of the Unit, 13 June, 1943. Mountain Jaeger Regiment 98 20 hours."

"Mopping up in the area 830, 843, gridline 75 running south to 874, from there east to 911 and the Susika sector."

On page 84,74 of the German document book, we will find an entry which was again made by the Mountain Jaeger Regiment 98:

"About 200 houses burned down. Two civilians arrested, two Communists shot dead."

Then comes the "Morning Report of the Unit 14 June 1943. Mountain Engineer Company 54."

"13 civilians shot dead in the evening of 13 June. Otherwise nothing new."

Then we have the "Evening Report of March Group Salminger; 11 July 1943, 2130 hours."

"1.) Group Salminger will secure the area ordered from point 1120 which is 8 km. northeast of Leskovik) on both sides of the advance road towards the south as far as the bridge 1 km. east of Mawrowuni. Mopping up operation by 1 (Panzer Company of Infantry Regiment) 44 in the remainder of the Aoos--F1. to the Northwest pushing forward to Tsarsova. Countryside and village free of the enemy. Village was burned down. 11. (Company of Infantry Regiment) 79 pushing forward to the left of the Aoos--F1, to the northwest beyond Seja as far as Drasowa. 60 male civilians were shot dead during this, both villages were burned down whereby quantities of ammunition which was hidden in the houses exploded."

MR. RAPP: The next we find an "Evening Report of the Group Salminger," dated 12 July 1943, at 2000 hours, with an illegible initial on it. It says:

Evening Report of Group Salminger 12 July 1943 2000 hours Five civilians shot dead by security guards of the 16 (Company of Mountain Jaeger Regiment) 98 in the district of Vreptska.

Reconnaissance by the 11th Battery in the strength of one platoon towards Moliwdoskepastos and Wlachos confirmed that further villages were free of the enemy.

During the afternoon, reconnaissance of the 9th (Company) of the 98th (Mountain Jaeger Regiment) shot at in Aidonochori. Moppingup operation initiated thereupon resulted in no further contact with the enemy. Aj Dimitrios and Aj Theodori (West and Northwest of Aidonochori) were burned down.

MR. RAPP: Then we have a teletype message, "Priority: 15 July 1943, 1730 hours," and it's to the "1b 1st Mountain Division Commander Saloniki--Aegeon Daily Report of 15 July 43

1.) Band Situation Italian Reports

c) on 11 July a leaflet written in Greek was found in the vicinity of Agrinion. In it the British claimed that the Greek bands should be regarded as part of the British Army.

2.) In the mopping up of the band areas East of the road NegradesKaries by two companies of the II Battalion of Mountain Jaeger Regiment 98 (to approach from Negrades at 0430 hours) and one troop of Artillery Battalion 56 (to approach from Karies at 0600 hours) so far no results. Bands are retreating to the neighboring valleys. Asproangeli and Elati were destroyed; Mondendri, Witsa and Kato were fired on with one heavy field howitzer.

Final report still outstanding."

MR. RAPP: So much, Your Honors, for Document No. NOKW-1032. Now, we turn to NOKW-976, which Your Honors will find on Page 87, and Defense Counsel will find on Page 77. It will be offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 299. This is an excerpt from the War Diary of the 1st Mountain Division. It is kept in the Division Commander's Post on the 12th of November 1943. And it covers the period 24 March 1943 to 31 August 1943. It then states by which offices this journal was being kept. The entry on the 16th of June 1943 goes on to say, "The day passes without special events occurring. The mopping-up operations can be regarded as having been essentially concluded. By burning farms and driving away all the cattle within the area of the 1st Mountain Division any means for existence is taken away from any bandits who perhaps may want to return to this area." On the 17th of June we find various tactical information, and, if Your Honors turn then to Page 88, we find under the 21st of July, somewhat at the bottom of the page, the following entry--Page 78 of the German Document Book: "Concerning the treatment of the civilian population it is agreed that men carrying arms will be shot as well as such as are near nests of bands. All villages which have afforded shelter to bands will be burned. Details of the execution and cooperation in this operation are to be decided on in a conference on 24 July in Durazzo." And on Page 89, under the same entry, the last sentence states, "The Commander of Saloniki and the Aegean will be informed about the planned participation of the Division in the so-called "Zara Operation." This concludes NOKW-976. We have now NOKW-921, which is being offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 300. It is again notes from a War Diary, dated the 24th of July 1943, and is a telephone order to the 98th Mountain Infantry Regiment; and it says:

"The operation Salminger up until now has shown that the bands either retreat or disappear in the country as harmless working civilians. The division has not received permission to arrest the entire able bodied population. Therefore the following order are given:

The arrest of hostages in all villages who by confrontation with the indigenous population

- 1.) determine commanders of bands and report them,
- 2.) determine extraneous population.

Extraneous population is to be treated as members of bands and deport ed. Male members of the population encountered carrying weapons or in the vicinity of bands are to be shot to death."

MR. RAPP: Then, there are some illegible initials, and it is handwritten signed "Ia."

At the bottom of Page 3 of the original, and at the bottom of Page 90 of this Document Book we find a "report concerning the mopping-up of 22nd to 26 July 1943," and it says "Booty brought in: 150 dead bandits; 90 hostages." And turning to the next page of the same document we find, under Paragraph 5 the names of villages burned down. And in addition to the names--there are approximately ten in all--there are "several small villages and huts on the mountain pasture land not shown on the map." And then we find under Paragraph 2, on the same page, or sub-paragraph 2, "Enemy: Furthermore it has been found that every mopping-up operation remains a complete failure if one does not round up at least all able bodied men or if one does not evacuate the entire civilian population." And then, under Paragraph 4 it says, "Numerous villages and small isolated settlements were burned down." Your Honors will turn to the next page. In the second paragraph, we find: "On the 30 July the Battalion returned to its bivouac area. Presumably the enemy will again occupy the area Anojion. The following villages were burned down." And there are eight of these villages--small places which were burned down--and then finally we get a commendation from the individual whose initials were not legible under the original, and he says:

I expressed to the III Battalion of the 98th Mountain Infantry Regiment my thanks and recognition for their services in the moppingup operation carries out in the period from 27 July to 30 July. On account of the terrain and the great heat this operation made extraordinary demands of the men and beasts.

MR. RAPP: This, Your Honors, concludes NOKW-921. At this time, if the Tribunal pleases, we will present NOKW-730, which, Your Honors, becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 301. This, Your Honors, is a report stamped secret, from the 373rd Croatian Infantry Division, Field Headquarters, dated 2 August 1943. Subject is "Taking over the Corps PW (that's Prisoner of War) Collection Point." Reference: "Commander of the German Troops in Croatia," and it gives then various reference numbers, "secret." To Commander of the German Troops in Croatia Branch Qu/Ic. If Your Honors will look at the bottom of the page, under Paragraph 6, of Page 94, which is Page 82 of the German Document Book:

"The Division requests that they be allowed to transfer reprisal prisoners (B) to the SD unit at Banja Luka. On the occasion of a conference with the Commander of the SS and SD in Banja Luka, Sturmoannfuehrer Hersmann, the latter requested that all reprisal prisoners (hostages) be transferred to him. The hostages should be turned over to the SD at Banja Luka by the Division with a statement giving the reasons for their being taken as hostages and their origin. SD Banja Luka is to inform the localities concerned, from which the hostages came, with the aid of propaganda staff and in cooperation with the Luftwaffe, that the hostages will be shot if an attack on German troops takes place in the area of the locality concerned or if bridges and the like are blown up. If such a case occurs, the Division informs the SD at Panja Luka and requests for shooting of hostages named. The hostages will then be shot by the SD at Banja Luka, and the communities concerned will be informed about the shooting, with details of the reasons.

The Division considers this regulation very useful and one which will bring results and requests that it be allowed to send the hostages there.

For the Division Headquarters: The 2nd General Staff Officer deputy (initialed) V. v. Captain."

MR. RAPP: And it has a stamp on it, and it says "Transmitted 3 August 1943."

Your Honors, the following pages--that is page 96 to page 98--we will not read into the record. I believe that these pages are a personal history statement and commendations and comments made by the superior officers of Major General Zellner who commanded one of the divisions we just mentioned, but we believe that in order to put this previous part of this document into evidence, we had to leave these pages attached to the document.

If your Honors please, we would like to offer at this time an insert to the document book and, as such, it has not been registered in the index. The document book in question is called "PS-744." It will become Prosecution Exhibit 302. We were unable to provide defense counsel with mimeographed copies of this order, so instead we are furnishing defense counsels now photostatic copies of the original. Your Honors, the pages of this document will become 98-A, -B, and -C, in the English document book, I do not know the numbers of the document in the German document book, number of the page in the German document book.

DR. LATERNSEER: The last page is on 83.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, this document is a letter signed or is two letters: one letter signed by Himmler and one letter signed by the Chief OKW Keitel. It merely sets forth that "All male prisoners, from 16 to 55 years age, captured in guerilla fighting in the operational area, the army area, the Eastern commissariats, the Government General and the Balkans, will in the future be considered prisoners of war. The same applies to those males in the newly conquered territories of the East. They are to be sent to prisoner of war camps, and are to be brought from there for labor allocation into the Reich.

"The chief of the Army General Staff and the Reichsfuehrer SS after consultation will issue within their jurisdiction the necessary directives on the conscription and further treatment of family members."

Your Honors, we turn now to page 99 of your document book and this will become--pertaining to document No. NOKW-714--and this will become a Prosecution Exhibit 303. Here we have a document stamped "Secret, 373rd Infantry Division, Received 6 August 1943." It has again a number of initials on there which cannot be identified.

"Commander of the German Armed Forces in Croatia Section Quartermaster /Ic No. 2016/43 'secret' Local Headquarters, 4 August 1943 Subject:

Treatment of Members of Bands, Prisoners of War, Hostages Reprisal Prisoners, Deserters, etc.

1. 1.) All male members of bands over 55 years old and all female members of bands are to be treated as bandits as before.

2.) All male members of bands between the age of 16-55 years are to be designated, in compliance with OKW directive for the Preservation of Labor, as Prisoners of War and to be treated as such.

3.) Those arrested in compliance with the order dated 10 July 1943, paragraph II, are to be treated, starting immediately, as hostages. The concepts of reprisal prisoners and exchange prisoners accordingly are no longer valid."

Your Honors will undoubtedly note that this order was published by the 373rd Infantry Division as a result of the order we have just put into evidence as Exhibit 302.

We now go to page 100 and it says:

"4.) The order Ic No. 3621/43, secret, dated 31 July 1943 remains valid to the full extent.

5.) Members of bands who voluntarily report to the troops will be treated as deserters, as before, and will be sent away for labor employment in assembly Camps. They are to be given brief identification papers denoting them as deserters.

Then to Paragraph # 2:

The Prisoners of War in the Corps Prisoners Camps Zenica and Prijedor are to be kept apart from the hostages and are to be identified as such with the letter "K" on their clothing. After undergoing sanitary measures they will be sent as laborers to Prisoner of War Camps in the Reich.

To paragraph # 3:

Hostages are to be treated in compliance with Ic order No. 3621/43 secret, dated 31 July 1943. To distinguish them from Prisoners of War they are to be designated by the letter "G" on their clothing in durable paint and to be separated if possible from the Prisoners of War in the camps until hostage camps have been established.

To paragraph # 5:

All deserters are to be transferred to the Deserters Camp to Banja Luka. The Commander of the German Armed Forces in Croatia dispose over them."

Page 101, Your Honors:

"II. The divisions will report to the Commander in the Daily Reports villages destroyed, the daily arrivals of Prisoners of War hostages arrested, and deserters in addition to the number of bandits shot.

T. Prisoners of War, hostages, etc, who are being sent to another camp on the set days are to be reported separately by the departure camp, and are not to be counted by the receiving camp.

For the Commander of the German Armed Forces in Croatia The Chief of Staff Pfafferott Colonel, GSC" We now turn to NOKW-169, which Your Honors will find on page 103 of your document book and the defense counsel will find on page 87 of the German document book.

This is a communication signed by General Bader, the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia on the 5th of August 1943, at a time when the defendant Geitner was Chief of Staff to the aforementioned Bader. He states:

"The growing terror of the insurgents and Communist bandits against the peace-loving element of the population which does not follow --"

JUDGE CARTER: I don't believe you gave that an exhibit number.

MR. RAPP: Sorry, Your Honor. Exhibit 304.

"The growing terror of the insurgents and Communist bandits against the peace-loving element of the population which does not follow the enemy orders, works together with the occupying powers loyally and supports the orders of the Serbian government, the massacre of innocent members of the Serbian Volunteer Corps and others, make necessary the execution of further severe counter-measures.

"2) It is accordingly ordered that in extension of the order of 28 February 1943 Ia No. 652/43 Secret, also the male relatives, the brothers, as well as the fathers, of those persons who are with the insurgents or Communist bands can be used for execution of counter-measures.

"The counter-measures can, according to the severity of the deed to be avenged and which has rendered the insurgent or Communist bands guilty, consist in:

"a) Imposition of a fine up to 500,000 dinars, "b) Shipment to Germany for forced labor, "c) Utilization for reprisal executions.

"Persons are to be excepted from these counter-measures who "a) Are active as public officials, "b) Have declared themselves or are declaring themselves actively for the occupying powers or the Serbian government, "c) According to the knowledge of the competent military offices or own national authorities seriously refuse and condemn the actions of their relatives with the insurgents or Communist bands.

"Further to be excepted from the counter-measures under b) and c) are persons under 16 and over 65 years, and finally from the countermeasure under b) persons who, according to the judgment of the competent German military surgeon, are not capable of forced labor.

"Insofar as in special cases measures against still further relatives (par. 1) or exceptions from the paragraphs 3 and 4 appear necessary, the local district commander competent in the place of residence of the person concerned is to make the decision.

"3) The imposition of a fine is to take place through the competent District Headquarters. The arrest for purposes of deportation or for use in reprisal executions is to take place through the District Headquarters in whose area the arrested persons live, in cooperation with the unit, the SD, the Serbian Volunteer Corps, or the national authorities.

"4) Arrested persons who are sent to Germany for forced labor are to be brought to the Semlin collecting camp; those who are to be used for reprisal measures are to be brought to the locally competent reprisal camps (cf. Decree of 28 February 1943, Ia No. 650/43, secret).

"5) The names of the relatives concerned in the counter-measures and the basis for these counter-measures are to be made public to the furthest extent at the residence of those concerned.

"6) The movable property of those persons who are with the insurgents or the Communist bandits (but not that of the relatives), as far as living stock is concerned, is to be taken away, by order of the District Headquarters, by the military police, according to the considerations of the specialist for agricultural questions. In cases of doubt, that living stock which was found on their property is to be treated as belonging to these persons.

"Confiscation of other property of the aforementioned persons has been worked out with the Serbian government.

"7) If it appears necessary in special cases to burn down houses of those persons who are with the insurgents or with the Communist bandits (but not of the relatives), the locally competent District Commander makes the decision. The execution of this measure is to take place through the District Headquarters.

"In any case, the execution of such a measure is to be reported to me.

"8) If a person returns who was with the insurgents or Communist bandits, his relatives who were arrested are to be freed. The decision rests with the District Commander locally competent for the residence of the one returned."

And this instrument, Your Honor, is signed "Bader", and it also bears the initials "H.G." and two strokes, "G", and we believe this to be the initials of the defendant Geitner.

On page 106 of your document book, Your Honor, you will find NOKW148, which will be our next prosecution exhibit, 305. Defense counsel will find this on page 90 of the document book. This document is dated August 7, 1943, is marked "secret" and is addressed to the 809th Feldkommandantur, which is 809th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters. It says:

"For the information of: German Liaison Staff with the 1st Royal Bulgarian Occupational Corps.

"The shooting of reprisal prisoners from the operations against the villages of Brza and Todorovce, as well as the levying of the needed reprisal prisoners through an operation against the village Runjkovac, is authorized. The operation against Runkjovac is to be carried out with the concurrence of the 1st Royal Bulg. Occ. Corps and the SD.

"Completion is to be reported by furnishing one copy of the proclamation."

There are some pencilled initials on this document, "L.R.". It is signed by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. "Ia No. 3302/43 Secret (Initial B)" If Your Honors will turn to the next page,

"Since the political origin of the perpetrators could not be definitely established, 75 DM and 75 Communist reprisal prisoners are to be executed.

"Completion is to be reported by submitting a copy of the publication."

And that is a ration of fifty to one and twenty-five to one, respectively.

This document is signed by the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia again. The pencilled initials on it again are that of the defendant Geitner. The signature as such is illegible and it has merely the title of Major General under the illegible signature.

The next document, NOKW 155, which the Tribunal will find on page 112 of the English Document Book, defense Counsel will find on page 94 of their document book, will be introduced and submitted by the Prosecution as Document Exhibit No. 306.

This is a copy -- the original is a copy. It is, "Secret":

"The Commander-in-Chief Southeast Headquarters, 10 Aug. 1943 simultaneously Acting Commanding General, Army Group E O r d e r for Treatment of Prisoners and Deserters in Bandit Fighting.

Reprisal and Evacuation Measures.

Treatment of Prisoners and Deserters, execution of revenge measures and evacuations are not matters of administration but rather measures of combat and/ or of combat preparation and of security.

II. The Fuehrer order concerning the importation of human material into the Reich to ensure the necessary supply of coal is authoritative for the treatment of prisoners; accordingly all captured bandits are to be deported to the Reich by way of the prisoner of war collecting points.

III. Orders respecting this matter are in detail as follows:

1.) Captured bandit members are to be deported to the prisoner collecting points; the commanders are to examine whether the previously erected prisoner collecting points are sufficient. Further transport from the collecting points into the Reich is to take place according to separate order of the Oberquartiermeister.

An exception to this regulation is possible only if the combat situation does not permit a deportation.

The seizure of individual bandits for intelligence missions (intelligence units, intelligence branches, SD, Secret Military Police) is still necessary.

2.) Deserters are also regarded as "prisoners". Considering the good experiences encountered in Russia, which resulted from a better treatment of the deserters, from propaganda, etc. shooting of deserters must be discontinued.

Orders concerning deserter propaganda proceed through the Commander-in-Chief, Southeast, Branch Ic/Intelligence Officer.

3.) As already ordered in the directive of the Commander-in-Chief.

Southeast Ia/Id No. 566/43 Secret of 14 July 43, reprisal measures are to be executed as heretofore with most severe means, if an chemical attitude is discernible in the population.

In territories occupied by the bandits, in which surprise attacks have been carried out, the arrest of hostages from all strata of the population remains a successful means of intimidation.

Furthermore, it may also be necessary, to seize the entire male population, insofar as it does not have to be shot or hung on account of participation in or support of the bandits, and insofar as it is incapable of work, and bring it to the prisoner collecting points for further transport into the Reich.

Surprise attacks on German soldiers, damage to German property must be retaliated in every case with shooting or handing of hostages, destruction of the surrounding localities, etc. Only then will the population announce to the German offices the col collections of the bandits, in order to remain protected from reprisal measures.

Reprisal measures are to be ordered by the divisional commanders and/or independent regimental commanders, in order to avoid encroachments on subordinate offices and individual soldiers, and to prevent a false, unjust treatment of the population.

4.) In the territories especially valuable for the conduct of battle, the male inhabitants between 15-60 years are to be evaluated. They are to be collected together in guarded labor camps and /or insofar as they are capable of working, be transported into the Reich.

Evacuations must be carried out decisively, in order to prevent a premature escapt of the population.

The territories to be evacuated are the strips of coast especially suitable for landings, area of important pass heights and pass lanes, strips of terrain along especially dangerous railway line stretches, etc. The evacuations completed are to be reported through the commanders to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast.

The order for the treatment of bandits hitherto authoritative; Addition to Wehrmacht Commander, Southeast, Ia, No. 2868/42 Top Secret of 28 Oct 42 for the Fuehrer order re combatting of so-called commando operations - is herewith rescinded.

Sgd. Loehr"

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honors, I ask that the following be corrected. There have been two mistakes in translation. Under Roman I of this order the words "revenge measures" -- this has been translated as "revenge measures." I believe that it would be better, or rather correctly translated as "retaliation measures, " for the word "revenge" has its root, I assume, in the French word "revanche." That means

"revenge" in English. The second translation mistake appears under Roman III, No. 3. That's on the English Page 113, at the top. The words "in territories occupied by the bandits" -- they are translated "as occupied by partisans," but the German should be translated by another word. To put it like this, that is to say "occupied by bandits" would be putting it too strongly.

JUDGE CARTER (Presiding): Is there any objection to changing the first translation?

MR. RAPP: We will change, Your Honor; it's agreeable to us, Your Honor.

JUDGE CARTER (Presiding): All right; it will be so changed.

What do you say as to the second?

MR. RAPP: We suggest, Your Honor, that this be put up to the Interpreter, in the second case, and accept his interpretation.

JUDGE CARTER (Presiding): That's our practice. Hand it up to the Translator.

MR. JACOBSON (Court German-English Interpreter): The passage in question occurs in the English Document Book on Page 113, under 3. And you might translate it, and it probably would be the right translation to say that "territories penetrated by the bandits," rather than say "occupied by the bandits." (Dr. Laternser speaking) Dr. Laternser suggests "infested by bandits, "infested by bandits," which I think is just as good.

MR. RAPP: It's quite agreeable to us, Your Honor.

JUDGE CARTER (Presiding): All right, you may proceed.

DR. HINDEMITH: Hindemith, as representative for Dr. Rauschenback, for the Defendant General Foertsch. In my view, as a further mistaken translation in the same document, under Roman III, No. 2. (Giving the German version)

MR. JACOBSON (Court German-English Interpreter): He's now giving the German version.

DR. HINDEMITH: The word "unterbleiben" is translated, "must be discontinued." Discontinue in my view means to cease; to cease in German means that something had taken place before, which is now ceasing. Unterbleiben in the German does not comprise this meaning. For that reason, I think the English word "discontinue" does not mean "unterbleiben." For this reason I ask that the document be submitted to the Interpreter in order that he may translate it.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we agree to the suggestion made by Defense Counsel, and it won't be necessary to submit this document to the Interpreter.

JUDGE CARTER (Presiding): Being agreed to, it will stand as suggested.

DR. HINDEMITH: Thank you.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, we are turning now to Page 115 of your Document Book, and we have Document No. NOKW-735, which will be Prosecution's Exhibit No. 307. This is a document from the 369th Croatian Infantry Division, dated the 29th of July 1943, and it is secret. And the reference is "Commander of the German Troops in Croatia, Ia/Ic No. 3556/43 secret of 28.7.43, Subject: Treatment of Bandits."

"By virtue of basic orders for mopping-up operations in the operational area, Croatia - finally dated 10.7.43 - all Communists (bandits) were to be shot to death and all suspected persons to be arrested.

As bandits were considered:

- a) Whoever participated in combat and was found with arms.
- b) Whoever is convicted of communist activities.
- c) Who obviously, without compelling reason, wanders about outside of settlements.

Women and youths also are to be apprehended. By virtue of the decision of the Fuehrer, these bandits are no longer to be shot to death but to be treated as prisoners of war. The reason for that is:

- 1. To acquire people capable of work.
- 2. To stimulate the bandits to desert.
- 3. To counteract enemy propaganda that the Germans shoot everybody.

Members of bands from 16 to 55 are to be sent to prisoner collecting points.

The old directives are applicable for reprisal measures. Captures persons, who are suspected of having aided actively or passively in acts of sabotage, are to be used as hostages for the carrying out of measures.

They are to be reported to the commander of German troops in Croatia, Section Ic. This report is to contain cause and place of arrests as well as the personal history and the same report is to be sent to the prison camp Zenica.

Safety measures are to be taken for billets and railroad transports as before.

It is a matter of course that now, as before, strict procedure against Communist bands will be applied in combat.

For the Divisional Command 1st General Staff Officer (Signed) Bussman Lieutenant Colonel G.S.C."

MR. RAPP: And on Page 97 of the German Document Book, still Page 116 of the English Document Book, the 369th Croatian Infantry Division publishes a letter. Subject: Ic-Duties. (MR. RAPP: Duties of the Intelligence Officer)

A. Prisoners, deserters, captured documents.

I. Leaders of all ranks, as well as those prisoners or deserters who may be regarded as intellectuals because of their origin, their position with the Communists and because of the impressions they make, are to be transferred to the Division, Section Ic. The escort detachment is to be given at least a slip of paper showing place and time of capture, or desertion respectively and the transferring authorities. The same thing applies accordingly to captured records. Furthermore, it must be guaranteed that this accompanying slip also reaches the Division.

II. There is reason to point out that the designation "partisans" is prohibited. All verbal and written communications are to use the designation "Communists" or "Bandits."

III. Cap and rank insignia (Officers and men) of killed or captured members of bands are to be collected and to be sent to the Division Section Ic.

IV. In case of combat actions with invasion troops, the number of prisoners made is to be reported immediately to the Section Ic. Speedy transfers of utmost importance.

In case of delay, the division will have the prisoners collected or carry out an interrogation on the spot.

Except Military passes and pay books - which will be taken from these prisoners after they reach the prisoner collecting camp - all civilian and military identification papers, such as:

Military driver's license, enlistment papers for the unit, military identification papers, seamen's papers, leave passes, railroad passes, ration cards, identification cards (unless they are replacing the Wehrpass) foreigner identification cards, passes through the lines, professional papers, etc. are to be sent to the Division, Section Ic.

If at all possible, men killed in action are to be searched. Anything found is also to be sent to the Division.

Subject: Order pertaining to the treatment of prisoners and deserters in band combat reprisals, evacuation measures, and there is a stamp on this document which says: "Summary Court of the Commander of Luftgau Staff Crete, 24 Aug. 1943, Enclosure 1, Files, (illeg.)."

"1) The order of the Commandant of the Fortress Crete Ia No. 7309/43 secret dated 26.7.43 (individual order for the defense No.17) remains in force to the full extent. It is especially pointed out that until further notice the commander of Fortress Crete reserves to himself the right of reprisal measures.

You will find this on page 121 of you document book. Defense counsel will find it on page 101 of their document book and it will be prosecution Exhibit 309. This is a rather voluminous document consisting of a number of telegrams and TWX sent again to the OKH, Army General Staff Operations Section. That is the Oberkommando des Heeres, High Commander of the German Army; and we start on page 121 at the bottom, Daily Report from Commander-in-Chief; Southeast, from 1 August 1943. "Greece: 1st Mountain Division: During reconnaissance East of Parga contact and engagement with small band; 11 enemy dead, 2 machine guns and other weapons captured, 1 band village destroyed." And at the bottom of this page 122, or rather page 4 of the original, it is signed by the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, High Command Army Group E.

We then turn to page 123 and we will find at the bottom again a priority cable to OKH Army General Staff Operations Section, "Daily report from the Commander-in-Chief. Greece: On Rhodes lately repeated cable sabotage. Italian mopping up operations proceeding in the Northern sector of Euboea. And then it continues on the next page saying: "Band group near Volos repelled by Italian pursuit detachments." And then it says "10 bandits shot. In the evening of 1 August 4 enemy planes over the sea." Again signed "Commander-in-Chief Southeast High Command Army Group E."

The next one, your Honor, page 125, at the bottom, Greece again: "On Crete movements to mix formations have commenced. Local band activity.

Southwest of Naepolis contact and engagement between 2nd Company Brandenburg Regiment and medium-size band. 15 enemy dead. Numerous wounded, 1 village destroyed, several inhabitants were shot for favoring bands." And that again is on page 126 authenticated by being signed "Commander-in-Chief Southeast (High Command Army Group E).

We then turn to page 127; it is 105 in the defense counsel's books, and in the middle of the page we have a stamp again "Army General Staff Operations Section, received on the 6th of August 1943," and a report from the Commander-in-Chief Southeast for 5 August, 1943. Greece-and that concerns itself with purely tactical matters but if your Honors turn over to page 128 of the same telegram, the reference pertaining to Serbia, it states: "Continuing local attacks and clashes between insurgents and Serbian Police, 10 Communist reprisal prisoners were shot."

And then at the end it is signed again by C-in-C Southeast, Amy Group E.

If Your Honors turn to page 129, will you see again to whom this report is being sent and on page 130 you will find on top "1st Mountain Division: Engagement during reconnaissance Northwest of Paramythia, one village of the bands was burned down."

And the second paragraph, the second last line: "3 band villages destroyed, 3 depots with arms, ammunition, clothing, and rations taken. Hopping up operations continue.

"Area 373rd Division --" and there it says: "Total of 6 dead, 6 missing, Reprisal measures initiated." Signed "Commander-in-Chief."

Page 131, "Local band activity," Greece: "At Orestikon another band village and one enemy ammunition depot destroyed by 2nd Company Brandenburg Regiment."

It continues on page 132: "During mopping up operations along the costal road Northwest of Himare 1 band village was destroyed, Attack on Italian motorized column was repelled." Signed "Commander in-Chief Southeast."

Page 133, received by the Army General Staff on the 12th of August sent out by the Commader-in-Chief on the 11th August. In the middle of the bottom of the page, "Strong band forces reported in the area 15 km. North Northwest of Parga. Combing out of the area South of the river Asoos without contacting enemy. 3 villages of the bands were destroyed." And it is signed on page 134 of the document book again by the Commander-in-Chief Southeast.

135, 14th of August, Greece, bottom of the page. "Retaliation measures for attack on German column on the road Athens." And the next page continues: "These .." that is (yesterday's Daily Report) are proceeding. Vyllia (15 km. South of Thebes) has been evacuated." Then it says: "80 band suspects arrested.

"Area of the SS Division: IInd Battalion of the 1st Regiment encountered enemy superior in numbers in the area 40 km. West of Tara who had heavy weapons.

"Operation against band villages East of Stolac concluded, 2 villages destroyed."

In Crete, in a village Southwest Rethymnon, 1 German Sergeant who was shot by unknown perpetrators. As reprisal 10 Greeks were shot, male population of the village transferred to Forced Labor Camp." This is a ten-to-one ratio in this case.

Then "Serbia, paragraph 4." At the end of this paragraph, "German Customs Officials and 18 Bulgars who had become prisoners during the fighting at Arilje were released by the Cetniks upon threat of severe reprisals."

Page 143 or 119 of the German Document Book, dated 20th of August 1943, at the bottom: "Greece: Mopping up operation started in the Peloponnes against renewed band activity in the area Southwest of Xylokastron. Signed Commander in Chief Southeast.

Page 149, Your Honors, a telegram dated 23 August addressed to OKH, and on page 150 we find on top.

"During mopping up operations our combat group destroyed several villages."...."Two suspected villages burned down."

And then the last paragraph says, "In the area South and Southwest of Mount Parnessee two bands of medium strength reported."

"Serbia" it say in the bottom line of first paragraph: "North of Kragujevac 18 Serbian Auxiliary Policemen supposedly shot by Communists."

"Reprisal measures initiated."

"Commander in Chief Southeast."

And page 152 another telegram to the OKH, this time dated 25 August. The last line says:

"Several enemy deat 1 band village and 1 ammunition depot destroyed."

Page 153, we will identify this document as being sent on the 26 August 1943, and on page 154 we find its contents. It says: under "Greece." "23 hostages arrested and transferred to Forced Labor Camp.?"

Page 155, dated the 27 August 1943, we find the contents on page 156. It says:

Your Honor, we turn to page 157, which is page 130 of the German Document Book, and this is a report which was sent on the 28 August 1943. We find the contents on page 158 at the top. It says:

"Greece.

"Weather: Sunny, hot Slight local band activity (crossed out) In Crete the band village of Worica was destroyed by bombing after evacuation of the population and removal of men to Forced Labor Camp."

And that again is signed by Commander in Chief Southeast.

This, Your Honor, finishes Document 309, which was NOKW 1488.

(signed) Loehr General And then it goes on giving the distribution of all the units that have previously been mentioned.

Then your Honor, on page 163, and 164, which is page 138 and page 139, German Document Book, you will find same schematic presentation on the Document of the command generals, that were set up under this new directive, including designation of various headquarters. If your Honors permit I would like to pass this document up to you so that you yourself could have a look at this original document.

This, Your Honor, will complete Document Book 12, and if the Tribunal pleases, Mr. Fenstermacher will at this time start with the presentation of Document Book 13.

DR. JON JAGDWIRZ, for the defendant Rendulic, Your Honors, unfortunately I have to object to the presentation of Document Book 13, which I received only this morning. As far as my defendant Rendulic is concerned I could not talk over these documents with him previous to this session. For this reason I will object to the submission of this document book before 24 hours have elapsed, and I believe this is a usually acknowledged regulation.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors, please, the only documents in document book 13 which I believe we will have time to introduce today will only concern biographical affidavits of the defendants von Weichs, and General Rendulic, and perhaps we may reach the biographical affidavit of General Dehner.

Should Your Honors wish us to omit the presentation of the biographical affidavit of Dr. Tagdwik's defendant General Rendulic at this time, we can do that, and simply between now and 4:30 simply read the biographical affidavits of the defendants von Weichs and Dehner.

DR. FROESE (For the Defendant Dehner): I raise the same objection which Dr. Jagdwitz has just made, applying to the defendant Dehner; only during the course of this morning we had opportunity to look at Document Book XIII.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The original copies of all the documents which will be introduced in connection with Document Book XIII have for several weeks been in the defense information center.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Defense counsel has been objecting to hearing this before a twenty-four hour period; I think it will have to be sustained. We wish, however, that Prosecution make every effort to serve these document books in time so we can keep the processes of the court operating. We realize you run into difficulties but we urge you to keep these matters in shape so the court will not have to adjourn. I take it since this objection is sustained that there is nothing the court can take up at this time.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I would like to make one statement for the record if I may before we adjourn today. Your Honors will recall that last week, representatives of the defense counsel and two members of the Prosecution staff met with your Honors in chambers with respect to turning over to the defense various documentary evidence which is here in Nurnberg in the possession of the Prosecution. The Prosecution at that time offered to turn over to the defense, and Dr. Laternser on behalf of the defense representatives, accepted the Prosecution's offer to turn over all the documentary material in the possession of the Prosecution here in Nurnberg which we do not intend to use in our direct case, that is, with the exception of material which we are holding back for cross-examination purposes. I should like, therefore, at this time to hand to Dr. Laternser a copy of a memoranda which I have today written to our document room asking them to turn over one photostatic copy of each of the below listed documents which number thirty-nine to the Defense Information Center for the use of the defense counsel in this case, Case No. VII. There will be other lists which I shall prepare within the next few days and I believe that within the next week we will be able to turn over to the defense all the material which we are not intending to use in our direct case or withholding for cross-examination purposes.

Should Dr. Laternser not find these documents in the Defense Information Center within the next two or three days, if he will call it to our attention, we will see that it is expedited. I think, your Honors, that is all we have for today.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: To the extent that you have served them I assume that it is acceptable to Dr. Laternser. There is nothing more we can do about it now?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, I think not.

MR. DENNEY: Excuse me, I have been advised by Dr. Laternser that the question of the removal of the uniforms has been raised and I wonder if we might have just a statement from the court on the record about it so we can transmit it to the prison authorities so there will be no--

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I might say it is agreeable to the Tribunal that they may remove their coats and wear suitable shirts in the presence of weather conditions like this; that the Tribunal will have no objection to that whatsoever.

MR. DENNEY: And certainly as has been expressed to the Tribunal the Prosecution has no objection to this at all. Prosecution has nothing further at this time if your Honor please.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Due to the fact that we are unable to proceed further, the Tribunal will adjourn until 0930 hours in the morning.

The Tribunal will recess until 0930 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America, against Wilhelm List, et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, 30 July 1947 0930, Justice Wennerstrum, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal 5, Military Tribunal 5 is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal. There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, you will ascertain if all the defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE MARSHAL: May it please Your Honor, all the defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Prosecution may proceed.

MR. WENSTERMACHER: May it please the Tribunal, before passing on to the introduction of documents in Document Book XIII, the Prosecution has made up the list of counts and the defendants against whom the documents in Document Book X are offered. I hand three copies to the Tribunal. I hand 22 copies to the defense counsel, two copies to the Secretary General, and two each to the Court Reporters and Interpreters.

These should be marked Exhibit 263-A for identification, and should be given the pages 81 A and B in the German, and 110 A and B in the English Document Book. With the introduction of the Documents in Document Book XIII, we pass to the fourth and final period in this case, the period which, from the standpoint of numbers of defendants involved, is the most important period. We will be concerned from now on with the period of time dating from the end of August 1943 until October 1944, when German troops were withdrawn from Greece, Albania and Yugoslavia. We shall be concerned largely with the "Order of Battle Chart" which appears on the wall of the Courtroom.

Your Honors will recall that in the end of August 1943 a reorganization in the Southeast Command took place. Field Marshal Weichs was made Supreme Commander Southeast, and simultaneously Commander in Chief of Army Group F. His Chief of Staff was General Foertsch, who carried over from General Lohr, as he had previously carried over from General List to General Kuntze, to General Lohv.

In Serbia General Felber was made military Commander Southeast, and simultaneously Military Commander of Serbia. The defendant Geitner, was Chief of Staff to General Felber, as he had earlier been Chief of Staff to the Commander in Serbia, General Bader. In Croatia a General Rendulic became Commander of the 2nd Panzer Army. He was assisted by General Luders as Commander of the 15th Corps and late in November 1943 General Luders was succeeded by the defendant Leyser, as commander of the 15th Corps. Also subordinate to General Rendulic as Commander of the 69th Special Reserve Group, was the defendant Denner.

In Greece General Loehr, who had earlier been Commander in Chief Southeast, and simultaneously Commander of Army Group E, retained the Command of Army Group E, largely concerned with the defense of the Greek mainland and Greek Islands. Subordinate to General Lohr in Greece was the defendant Felmy, as commander of the 68th Corps, and also in the Epirus section of Western Greece was the defendant Lanz, as Commander of the 22nd Group. Also in Greece was the defendant Speidel as Military Commander of Greece.

Turning now to Document Book 13, page 13, page 1 of the German, Page 1 of the English, we have Document NOKW 856, which is offered in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit---

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me just a moment. I am informed the German translation is not coming over.

THE INTERPRETER: That is what I just wanted to say.

THE PRESIDENT: The Court will be in recess for a few minutes. Hold yourself subject to be recalled immediately.

(Thereupon a recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: Military Tribunal V is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: May I inquire of counsel for the defense as to whether or not they desire to have the preliminary remarks by counsel for the prosecution repeated at this time? They were solely of a preliminary nature.

Dr. Laternser, representing the defense, has stated that he does not desire, nor do the defendants desire, to have the preliminary remarks repeated, so you may continue.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning first to page 1 of the English document book, page 1 of the German, Document NOKW-856, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 311, this is biographical affidavit of the defendant Weichs outlining his career in the German Army.

"I, Maximilian von Weichs, swear, testify, and declare:

"I was born on 12 Nov. 1881 in Dessau as the son of the senior Master of the Horse in Anhalt Otto Freiherr von WEICHS. I was married on 28 July 1928 in Kassel to Margaretha von Niesewant. I have no children. I attended the Humanistic Gymnasium in Dessau and Munich. I completed my studies at the latter in 1900.

"I entered the Bavarian 2nd Heavy Cavalry Regiment in Landshut as an officer candidate in 1900. In 1902, I was promoted to 2nd Lieutenant. I attended the Bavarian War College from 1910 to 1913. In 1914, promoted to Captain. In the 1st World War. I was staff Officer of the Bavarian 4th Cavalry Brigade from August to October 1914. From May 1915 to July 1917 I was the second general staff officer of the Bavarian Inf. Div. From July 1917 until the end of the war I was general staff officer with the Deputy Headquarters of the 2nd Bavarian Infantry Corps in Wuerzburg.

"From 1919 to 1920 I was general staff officer of the 23rd Reich Defense Brigade in Wuerzburg. From 1920 to 1922 I was general Staff Officer with the 3rd Cavalry Division in Kassel. From 1922 to 1925 squadron chief in the 18th Cavalry Regt., Stuttgart Constadt. In 1922, I was promoted to Major. From 1925 to 1927 I was tactical instructor at the infantry school (Ohrdruf and Dresden); from 1927 to 1923, Major with the staff in the 18th Cavalry Regt.

(Ludwigsburg); 1928, I was promoted to Lt. Colonel; from 1923 to 1930 I was commander of the 18th Mounted Regiment Stuttgart-Cannstadt; 1930 I was promoted to Colonel; 1930 to 1933 I was Chief of the General Staff of the 1st Cavalry Div. Frankfurt on the Oder; Feb. to Oct. 33, Infantry Fuehrer 3 in Potsdam. In 1933 I was promoted to Brigadier General from 1 October 1933; I was the commanding General of the 3rd Cavalry Division Weimar. From 1 Oct. 1935, this division was reformed into the 1st Panzer Division, the commander of which I remained until 1 Sct. 1937.

"In 1934 I was promoted to Maj. Gen., 1936 to Lt. Gen. Cavalry. From 1 Oct. 1937 I was Commanding General Infantry Corps, Nurnberg. In this position I participated in the occupation of Austria and of the Sudeten Land 1938, as well as Bohemia 1939.

"I participated in the Polish campaign in the 2nd World War as Commanding General of the XIIIth Inf. Corps., which I led from the district OILS/Gross-Wartenberg through Lodz to Warsaw.

"In Oct. 1939. I was nominated Commander-in-Chief of the and Army. I had to supervise the training of a number of divisions in the winter of 1939/40 in Wesel, then in Bonn.

"In the campaign in the West in 1940 the 2nd Army was brought in as a reserve Army and was not used during the 1st part.

"In the 2nd part, I led the attack of the Army from Chemindesdames through the Aisne at Reims, over the Marne to the Loire.

"After the Armistice, I first of all, conducted in France the changing of an Infantry Division into Panzer Division and motorized protective divisions."

Now, if your Honors, please, I believe there is missing from your Honors' document book one sentence which I would like to read slowly at this time:

"In October 1940 my staff was transferred to Munich where it was changed"----I beg your pardon---"where I was charged with the supervision of the training of a number of divisions."

"In October 1940 I was promoted to General.

"For the Balkan campaign the newly formed 2nd Army was deployed in Styria and West Hungary and then led the attack through Zagreb in the direction of Sarajevo and Belgrade. On 17 April 1941 I had to sign the Armistice with Yugoslavia in Belgrade. After finishing this mission I returned to Munich in order to continue the previous training missions.

"At the beginning of the campaign against Russia in 1941, my staff was committed to Warsaw and was not used at first. Some weeks later, relieved the staff of the fourth Army (Klunge) at the front, continued the attack begun through Minsk, then over the Dnjepr on both sides of Mohilev. Then, the Army participated in the battles at Doeml, Kiev, and Brjansk. In the winter of 1941/42 it was in a position somewhat East of the line Kursk/Orel. From this position, it led the attack against Vornesh on both sides of the Don in summer 1942. On 15 July 1942, I was named Commander-in-Chief of Army Group B which had the mission of taking the Don Front and Stalingrad. In the course of this attack, the heavy set-backs at Stalingrad and in the North occurred, from Nov. 1942 on. In Dec., the front of the Army Group was split through the entrance of the new Army Group Mannstein. During these battles, the Army Group had to be recalled considerably from the Don. On 15 Feb. 1943 the Army Group Staff was pulled out and remained, not utilized at first, in Viniza.

"On 1 Feb. 1943, I was promoted to General Field Marshal.

From February to the end of July 1943 I was in the home land without being used. Only in April and May for 6 weeks, I represented Field Marshal von Mannstein who was ill, in Shaporosche. At the end of July 1943 I received a mission from the OKW to make a tour of orientation in the Balkans principally Greece, and to hold myself ready for use in that district.

"In August 1943 the staff of the Army Group F was set up in Belgrade. On 26 August 1943 I took over the command, as Commander-in Chief of Army Group F, (Commander-in-Chief, Southeast), and held then the command of all the German combat troops committed in the Balkans.

The Army Group E which was already employed there and the High Command of the 2nd Panzer Army which had been brought in recently were subordinated to me for this purpose.

"Through the withdrawal of Army Group E from Greece and the commitment of the 2nd Panzer Army to Hungary at the end of 1944 the front of the Army Group was so shortened that its staff was unnecessary. It was accordingly deactivated. The Commander-in Chief of Army Group E became Commander-in-Chief Southeast. I myself was assigned from the 26th March 1945 to the Fuehrer reserve to which I belonged, until my capture on 2 May 1945 in Ettal (upper Bavaria).

"I have received the following order and decorations:

1st World War: Iron Cross 1st and 2nd Class, Bavarian Military Service Order with Swords 4th Class.

Non-German: Great crosses to the:

Hungarian Service Order, Order of the Italian Crown, Bulgarian St. Alexander Order, Croatian Zvonimir-Order.

"I have never belonged to the Party or one of its branches.

"I have read the statement above, consisting of 4 pages in the German language, and I declare that to the best of my knowledge and belief it is the entire truth. I have had the opportunity to make changes and corrections in the above statements. I have made this statement voluntarily without any promise of reward and I was neither threatened nor compelled to do so."

Signed: "Freiherr v n Weichs," Nurnberg, German, dated 12 March 1947.

I should like to hand defendant von Weichs' affidavit to your Honors for examination of the signature.

DR. LATERNSEER: (Counsel for the defendants List and Weichs) Your Honors, I would like to have two translation mistakes corrected on page 2. The word "Schuetzen Divisionen" was used as "protective divisions." It should be translated, as far as I know, as "rifle divisions." To protect --rifle divisions have nothing to do with protecting. It's on page 2, near the bottom.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We'll accept whatever the Court Interpreter says on that.

INTERPRETER: Well, I agree Dr. Laternser. It should be "rifle divisions."

DR. LATERNSEER: The second mistake--

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me--we are having difficulty in locating it. Will you repeat again the place, the page and the line in the English?

DR. LATERNSE: In the English Document Book on page 2, last third of the page, bottom third, a paragraph begins with: "After the Armistice, I first of all, conducted in France the changing of an Infantry Division into Panzer Division and motorized protective divisions," and I suggest it to be "rife divisions."

THE PRESIDENT: As I understand it, the interpreter approves of the suggested change.

THE INTERPRETER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: The prosecution also accepts the change.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well.

DR. LATERNSE: Then on page 3 of the English Document Book -

DR. LATERNSE: Then on page 3 of the English document book -I beg your pardon, still on page 2 of the English document book, the German sentence on page 2 reads, I quote now: The word "abzuschliessen" is translated in the English text on page 2 as, --translated as "to sign" and this translation is not strong enough in my view.

It merely means to underwrite a treaty or to sign it, whereas "to conclude" means to conclude. That comprises negotiations, and well, conferences which lead to a treaty.

For this reason I ask for better translation of the word "abzuschliessen".

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I suggest we hand the original document to the court interpreter for his version of the text.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: It is so ordered.

INTERPRETER: This is on page 2, the last paragraph, and the sentence -- I repeat, that this is in the German document book, page 2, the last paragraph but one, and in the English document book it is on page 2, the paragraph starting, "After the Armistice," no, I am sorry , I must correct that. It is the last paragraph starting with, "For the Balkan campaign the newly formed 2nd Army was deployed in Styria and West Hungary and then led the attack through Zagreb in the direction of Sarajevo and Belgrade".

I think "concludes" is a better word than "signed" in this text.

DR. LATERNSE: I agree with this translation.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning next to page 6 of the English and page 4 of the German, Document NOKW 042, becomes Prosecution Exhibit 312. This is the German Army service record of Field Marshal von Weichs. Your Honors will note on page 6 of the English, page 4 of the German, the war time service record of the defendant Weichs, 1 September 39:

"Commanding General XIII Infantry Corps 23 Oct 39 C-in-C 2nd Army 13 July 42 C-in-C Army Group B 10 July 43 OKH Fuehrer Reserve 25 Aug 43 C-in-C Army Group F C-in-C Southeast 22 Mar 45 Fuehrer Reserve OKH at the disposal of the Fuehrer" Turning next to page 7 of the English, still page 4 of the German, various decorations which he received ---Turning next to page 8 of the English, and page 4 of the German, various commendations which he received from other commanders in the German army, 25 Feb 1941, General Leob writes of him:

"Perfect Army Commander-in-Chief with strong influence on training and a good insight for fiction and untruth. His next higher assignment cannot be sufficiently appreciated."

Then Rundstedt: A thoroughly proven Army Commander whose clear and well-defined leadership merits special mention. 29 Jan 42, v. Kluge: After an extended sick leave Weichs took over his 2nd Army recently when it joined Army Group South. I am unable to judge his army leadership since he was not subordinate to me. 3 Apr 42.v. Field Marshal von Bock: Continues to prove himself fully as Army Commander. Suitable for next higher assignment if required."

On page 9 of the English, page 5 of the German, there appears in chronological order the career in the German Army of the defendant von Weichs.

Turning next to page 11 of the English, page 6 of the German document NOKW 878, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 313, this is a biographical affidavit of the defendant, Rendulic, as commander of the 2nd Panzer Army, who as commander was subordinate to the defendant von Weichs, Commander -in-Chief, Southeast, and Commander of Army Group F:"I, Lothar RENDULIC, being duly sworn, say and declare:

I was born in Wiener-Jeustadt (lower Austria) on the 23 October 1887. My father was an officer in the Austro-Hungarian Army. I attended the elementary school and the Gymnasium of Wiener-Neustadt. I began to study Jurisprudence and political science at Vienna University in 1906/07. However, in the fall of 1907 I entered the Theresian Military Academy in Wiener-Neustadt. In 1910 I received my commission as an officer.

During World War I, I was a Company Commander, a Regimental Adjutant and finally an Officer of the General Staff Corps. I was promoted to Captain in 1917. After the end of the war I again studied law, and I received the degree of Doctor of Laws at the University of Vienna on the 24 December 1920. A short time prior to that I had been taken over by the Bundesheer, which had been recently organized. At first I had different assignments with the troops, later assignments with the Bundes Ministry for National Defense. I was promoted Colonel in the General Staff Corps in the Spring or summer of 1933. From the fall of 1933 until the beginning of 1935 I was military attache for France and for England with my residence in Paris. After that period I commanded a motorized brigade in Vienna.

I became a member of the National Socialist Party of Austria on 12 May 1932. The Party was already dissolved in the summer of the following year (1933). This ended my membership forever. After the Anschluss, I was taken over into the German Reichsheer on 1 April 1938, just like the majority of the officers of the Austrian Army. I became the Chief of the General Staff of the XVII Infantry Corps. With this Corps I participated in the Polish Campaign in 1939. The Commanding General of the Corps and the Commander-in-Chief of the Group applied for my promotion, waiving the customary period of service in rank, as early as spring 1939, (I had been a Colonel for 6 years), but the Army Personnel Office refused.

I became a General major (Brigadier General) in the normal course of procedure on the 1st of December 1939.

After the Polish Campaign I began to suffer from severe lumbago which made me unfit for service until June 1940. I was appointed commander of the 14th Infantry Division during the last days of the Western Campaign. When this Division was transferred home to be transformed into a motorized division I took over the command of the 52nd Infantry Division in France toward the beginning of October 1940. At the beginning of the war against Russia, the Division was sent to the East. I commanded this Division during the summer and fall offensive of 1941, during the winter battle 1941/42 and during the summer fighting 1942 to October 1942. Meanwhile -- I was promoted in the normal course of procedure to Generalleutnant (Major General) on 1 December 1941 after having held the rank of Generalmajor (Brigadier General) for just two years.

I became Commanding General of the XXXVth Infantry Army Corps on 23 October 1942. In view of my achievements the IVIth Army Corps to which I was subordinate at that time, as well as the 4th Army, and Army Group "Mitte" had proposed my appointment as Commanding General, waiving the customary period of service in rank in February of the year 1942. I commanded the Corps until the 5th of August 1943, in the winter and summer battle of Orel (Central Russia).

I was promoted to General of Infantry on the 1st of December 1942. On 26 August 1943, I was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the 2nd Panzer Army in the Balkans at the suggestion of Field Marshal von Kluge. I was glad when I was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the 20th Mountain Army in North Finland (Lapland) on 24 June 1944. There the period of my command was filled up with the struggle to extract the Army from a three sided pincer-movement and to lead the men back to Norway during the Arctic winter, 1944/45."

"I was appointed Wehrmacht Commander Norway on 18 December 1944.

On the 22nd of January 1945 I took over the High Command of Army Group "North" in East Prussia. I had hardly done so when I was assigned to take over the High Command of Army Group "Kurland", which had been cut off and which was fighting in the north of Lapland. There, the preliminaries for the "6th Battle for Kurland" were just under way.

On 6 April 1945 I was recalled and was appointed Commander-in Chief of Army Group "South" which was withdrawing from Hungary and Slovakia. My mission was to prevent the Russians from penetrating into the Alps and from pushing forward to the Danube Valley. On the 7th of May I surrendered the Army Group to the 3rd American Army.

I married in September 1916. I lost the elder of my 2 sons in the Polish Campaign. My wife and my younger son reside in See walchen in Upper Austria.

I have read the above statement, consisting of 3 pages in the German language. I declare that to the best of my knowledge and belief the statement contains the full truth. I had the opportunity to make changes and corrections in the statement above. I have made this statement voluntarily without any promise of reward, and I was neither threatened nor compelled to do so.

Nuernberg, Germany, 13 March 1947.

(signed) Dr. Rendulic Colonel-General".I ask your Honors to note only two things.

One is that the defendant studied law and received a degree of Doctor of Law, University of Vienna 24 December 1920, and ask your Honors to take note of the various promotions the defendant received, especially from the period August, 1943 on, when he commanded the 2nd Panzer Army in the Balkans, and the 20th Mountain Army in North Finland, Wehrmacht Commander Norway, and High Commander of Army Group North, High Commander of Army Group Kurland and finally Commander in Chief of Army Group South.

I ask your Honors to examine the affidavit and see the actual signature of the defendant, Rendulic.

I would like to point out just one more thing, if your Honors please, -- the membership in the National Socialist Party of Austria, of the defendant, Rendulic, in May 1932.

DR. FRITSCH: Counsel Fritsch for the Defendant Rendulic. Your Honor, from my experience in other trials before other tribunals I have found that a tribunal values objections made by the Defendant in his own affidavit or brought to the attention of the Tribunal in due time. I, therefore, intend at this stage of the trial not to bring any motions, but only to state that in view of my client -- the affidavit signed by him -- that for himself he had an opportunity to make alterations et cetera is not in conformity with the facts to the full extent. My client, when he was examined, asked to make additions to this affidavit, especially regarding the question of his membership in the National Socialist Party, which the Prosecutor has just been mentioning, as regards the time of entry into this party. He further wants to point out how his promotions came to take place in every case, and he especially wants to explain, his own position to the Party and to Hitler. The purpose of what I am saying today is merely to point out that to this affidavit further explanations will be submitted.

THE PRESIDENT(Judge Wennerstrum): I take it you are not making any objections at this time.

DR. FRITSCH: No, I don't make any objections at this time, Your Honor. Only in view of the discussions before other Tribunals to this point I merely want to make this statement for the record.

THE PRESIDENT: Counsel for the Defendant Rendulic and the Defendants will have ample opportunity at the time of the presentation of the evidence on behalf of the Defendants to make any explanation they may desire or that he may desire.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing next on Page 14 of the English and Page 8 of the German Document Book, Document No. NOKW-063, which becomes Prosecution's Exhibit No. 314. This, if Your Honors please, is the Service Record of the Defendant Rendulic. It outlines on the first page his career. I think I need only call your attention to his knowledge of languages which appears on Page 14 of the English, Page 8 of the German:

"French, perfect; Italian and English, good." The remainder of the page simply outlines matters which we have already heard in the biographical affidavit. Turning to Page 15 of the English, page 8 of the German, the decorations of the Defendant are listed:

"Iron Cross 2nd Class 18.9.1939 Iron Cross 1st class 10.

1.45 Cross with Swords"

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning now to Page 16 of the English and Page 9 of the German are various statements made by other German commanders about the Defendant Rendulic.

"1/2/41, WAEGER: Clever, high military knowledge, clear thinking, acts decisive, possibly later Commanding General. Specially fit for leader of negotiations, by reason of his earlier activity in Paris.

15/8/43, MODEL: Superior leader equal to the most difficult situations. Especially proven by the hard defensive battle before Orel July/August 1943. Fully fit for Army Leader.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Now, if your Honors please, the date in the next recommendation of von Kluge should be changed in the English Document Book to read 23 August 1943, and perhaps it needs to be changed also in the German Document Book. It should read 23.8.43 Von Kluge "A leader who has distinguished himself especially in the most difficult defensive battles at Orel. He constantly understood how to call on reserves which could be risked only by a specially responsible cheerful leader. A tough leader who has gained his aptitude for Army Commander by corresponding battles."

"1/3/44 - The Defendant Weichs who at that time was Commander in Chief, Southeast, says of him:

"Tough, strong-willed personality, with his own methods and clear point of view. Clean character stands strong on the ground of Nazi principles. As leader especially proven before the enemy. MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 17 of the English and Page 10 of the German outlines in chronological order the career of the Defendant Rendulic, as he passed up through the Austrian and German Armies. (Sgd.) Dehner" I ask your Honors to examine the actual photostatic copy for the defendant's signature.

Turning next to page 23 of the English, page 13 of the German, Document NOKW-609, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 316, this is the German army service record of the defendant Dehner. I call your Honors' attention to page 23 of the English, page 13 of the German, to the middle of the page.

"15.7.43 Commanding General IXIX Infantry Corps (Reserve) "21.

1.44 Commanding General LXIX Inf. Corps for special assignment."

Now turning to page 24 of the English, page 15 of the German, are various comments made about the defendant by other members of the German army.

"On 15.2.41, Briesen said of him: Basically sound, unselfish, devoted to duty, energetic, absolutely diligent, a good teacher and trainer Suitable.

10.1.42, Ruoff: Vigorous, energetic person, takes pleasure in his work. Clear tactical judgment. Sense of the important. Indefatigable in looking after his men. The fact that the division, which had been severely depleted in strength, still had in Nov. and Dec. 1941 so much force for attack and defense, is above all due to General Dehner who applied himself daily without consideration.

1.4.42, Wetzel: Decidedly energetic, vigorous person with clear tactical sense. Indefatigable active, gets the last ounce of effort out of his division. Always rises above difficult situations. Suitable for Commanding General.

25.4.42, Field Marshal V. Kluge: Cannot yet decide whether suitable for Commanding General.

18.4.42, Ruoff: Entirely agree. Has again and again stood the test as Div. Commander. Commanding General.

10.3.43, v. Vietinghoff-Scheel: Honorable, straight character. Has stood the test of being Div. Commander in the East. Indefatigable will to work, without consideration of himself. Very capable trainer, Good average. Commanding General in the West. Tactical ability and sense of the important not yet quite sufficient for the broader framework of corps leadership.

v. Rundstedt: I agree.

20.7.43, v. Vietinghoff-Scheel: Especially suitable for command position in training.

v. Rundstedt: Agreed.

1.3.44) Fromm, Chief of Ordnance and Commander of the Replacement Army: Good character, virorous, energetic and very versatile. In the short time in which he has been under me he has devoted himself to training with the greatest zeal and has made it a big contribution although, in view of its employment in battle special difficulties lay in the way of the training of his division. Good average. Commanding General of an Infantry Corps at the front.

17.3.44, Rendulic, C-in-C 2 Pz. Army: Under whom defendant Dehner was serving as Commander of the LXIX Special Reserve Corps, a person of high operational capabilities, he has accomplished a great deal with the few troops he had in relation to the area to be conquered. Takes great care of his men on whom he makes high, but always justified demands. Had no opportunity to collect more experience in the leadership of a corps in battle. Experience in training. Average. Commanding General of a Reserve Corps.

1.3.44, Rendulic, C-in-C 2 Pz Army: Yearly report as for 17, 3. 44.

Baron v. Weichs, C-in-C South-East: Under whom the defendant served, agreed. As his main strength lies in the sphere of training it is recommended that he be further employed accordingly.

9.11.44, Wiese, Acting Commander of the 19th Army: Very energetic, tactical leader and outstanding officer. Extraordinarily active and far-seeing. Distinguished himself in the face of the enemy. Proved himself again during the heavy defensive fighting at Besancon by his personal bravery. Still lacks the necessary calm, balance and tactical perception for leadership of a full corps."

There follows then the chronological career of the defendant Dehner through the German army.

We turn now to the first big event that occurred following the reorganization of the Southeast Command, the collapse of the Italian army, the surrender to the Allies, on the 8th of September, 1943, with the provisions in the Armistice to return to the Italian mainland as quickly as possible.

On page 27 of the English and page 18 of the German, Document NOKW-898, which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 317, this is an order from Field Marshal Keitel dated the 9th of September, 1943, relating to the taking of Italian prisoners of war. The distribution list is given on the first page and your Honors will note under "2" the copy which was sent to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, the defendant Weichs.

"Subject: Further treatment of Italian Soldiers under German jurisdiction. Italian soldiers who do not wish to continue fighting on the German side are to be disarmed and considered prisoners of war. They are to be taken over at first by the OKW Chief of Prisoners of War affairs. In Cooperation with the Plenipotentiary General for the Employment of Labor, the skilled workers among the Prisoners of war taken over are to be selected for the armament economy and are to be put at the disposal of the Plenipotentiary General for the Employment of Labor. Further, in cooperation with the Reichfuehrer SS, the Fascists still among the prisoners of war are to be selected and handed over to the above. All other prisoners of war are to be at the disposal of the General Staff of the Army, General Quartier Meister and of the Commander-in-Chief of the Air Force, General Quartermaster in the proportion of 7 to 1 as workers for the construction of the East Wall.

The selection ordered has to be carried out as soon as the prisoners of war are taken over, so that the camps are free for new prisoners of war as quickly as possible.

The Chief of the Prisoner of War Affairs will report the total number and their distribution to me every fifth day from 15 Sept. on.

Should the guards at the disposal of the OKW Chief of Prisoners of War Affairs be insufficient for the task, the Chief of Army Armament and Commander of the Replacement Army is to help out on guarding with persons who have recovered from their wounds or sicknesses, etc.

The transfer of English and American prisoners of war from Italy is to precede the transfer of Italian prisoners of war.

And the order is (signed) Keitel" Turning next to page 30 of the English and page 20 of the German, Document NOKW-813, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 318, this is a teletype from the XXI Mountain Corps to the II Panzer Army which your Honors will recall was commanded at this time by the defendant Rendulic.

For information V SS Mountain Corps. It is the daily report for the 26th of November, 1943. Under the 297th Infantry Division, the report states:

"During "Edelweiss" fighting much impeded by rain and terrain, supply by inundation.

Area Northwest of Debar: 16 communists shot to death, 30 Italians captured. Reprisal measures carried out against 8 Italian officers. Intention: continuation of mopping up area of Debar-Poshkopija.

Under the 100th Jaeger Division: Enemy before 1/54 moved far towards South. Nationalist forces have reached Vijose S. Greshice that is the reason for movement of 1/54 back to Patos. During road reconnaissance, 7 Italians shot while trying to escape. Two trucks and three passenger cars captured East of O Lushnje. 8 Italians and 1 civilian shot while trying to escape.

And the report is signed Corps Hqs., XXIst Mountain Corps by the Ia or Operations Officer" On the same page in both the English and the German is an order of the day of the XXI Mountain Corps which was commanded at that time by General Fehn who was subordinate to General Rendulic and in turn the defendant Weichs.

The order is dated Corps Headquarters 28 November 1943, and it is a commendation to the 297th Infantry Division for the carrying out of the action which we have just heard about in the preceding report.

"I wish to express my appreciation to those units of the 100th Jaeger Division and 297th Infantry Division as well as to II/2 Regiment Brandenburg which have carried out the pacification of the area Debar-Peshkopija under the orders of the 297th Infantry Division."

Notwithstanding the most difficult terrain and weather situation, in part almost tropical cloud bursts, they succeeded in the surprise thrusts into the Communist band center which so far has not been entered by any German unit.

My particular recognition is expressed to the Anti Aircraft 297 which forced an enemy combat group to fight by attacking them roughly and in doing so put 3 Englishmen out of action.

Our own losses being negligible, the enemy suffered 130 counted dead and 300 prisoners. Considerable amount of arms, ammunition and other equipment including 5 guns were captured and destroyed.

My appreciation is to be made known to the troops.

Signed The Commanding General 21st Mountain Corps FEHN General of Panzer Troops.

On page 31 of the English and page 21 of the German is another report from the 21st Mountain Corps to the Second Panzer Army See Daily Report of 21.11.43297 Infantry Division:

Signed Corps Hqs., XXIst Mountain Corps I believe this does not appear on the German but if defense counsel wishes to examine the exact document they may do so, signed XXIst Headquarters, XXIst Mountain Corps by the Operation Officer, November 21, 1943.

Turning now to page 33 of the English and page 23 of the German, Document NOKW 1403 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 319. These are a series of orders of the XV Mountain Corps which at this time was commanded by General Lueters in Croatia, who was subordinate to General Rendulic, who was in turn subordinate to Field Marshal Weichs. It is a teletype to the SS Division and the 114th Jaeger Division and, "For information to the 373rd (Croatian) Infantry Division.

No shipping space available for evacuation of Italians and supply via sea route."

DR. LATERNER: Your Honors, I object to what the Prosecutor is saying regarding arguments. For instance he has just said this Corps was subordinated to General Rendulic and he again was subordinate to General Field Marshal von Weichs. This is not true for the period to which documents now refer. For this reason I repeatedly ask that the Prosecution desist in arguments unless they are sentences and comments of a connecting nature.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No argumentation your Honor.(Film unintelligible)

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTURM: I think counsel for the prosecution should exercise care in connection with any comments concerning the evidence other than that which is self-explanatory.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing on page 33 of the English, 23 of the German with the order of the XV Mountain Corps to the SS Division and the 114th Jaeger Division:

No shipping space available for evacuation of Italians and supply via sea route. The Italian units in the area Split-Zara are to be ordered to Bihac via land route immediately under the responsible leadership of their Commanders and their Headquarters authorities pursuant to Corps Headquarters Ia/Qu. No. 769/43 Top Secret of 11 September Severest compulsory measures as well as reprisal measures are to be applied in the event of refusal (shooting to death).....114th Jaeger Division and SS-Division are requested to report immediately intention with time table and security precautions (for instance employment of Panzers). The order is signed XV Mountain Corps For the Operations Officer 12 September 1943 Next on page 34 of the English and page 23 of the German, here is another communication of the XV Mountain Corps dated September 11, 1943.

Subject: Carrying out disarmament of Italians As a matter of principle the Italians are to be requested to turn over immediately all their heavy weapons.

If attempts are made to delay ruthless measures are to be applied with employment of dive bombers. If the occasion warrants the Italians may retain their small weapons temporarily as protection against bands.

.....

Basic principle: Any open or attempted resistance is to be broken by applying severe methods. Disciplined leadership of return march by Italians themselves according to directives of the Division is the prerequisite for regular provisions, otherwise there is danger that they may starve to death.

.....

This communication is signed Lueters, and its distribution appears on page 35 of the English, page 4 of the German; 2 copies for each Division subordinate to the XV Mountain Corps.

Turning now to page 36 of the English, page 25 of the German, Document NOKW 037, offered as Prosecution Exhibit 320. This document contains 2 reports of the Second Panzer Army.

The first dated 13 September 1943, Daily Report, and under the unit subordinate to the Second Panzer Army which was commanded at this time by the defendant Rendulic there appears XXI Mountain Corps and subordinate to the 100 Jaeger Division:

In Argirocastro (70 km southeast Valona) communists attacked our own forces as well as disarmed Italian soldiers.

.....

118 Jaeger Division: Arrest and eventual execution of the Commanding General of the Italian XIVth Army Corps, General Boncalia, is intended in case of further insubordination and under III. (Germanic) SS-Panzer Corps: Coal mines were burned out by bandits north of Agram

The sender of the report appears on the bottom of the page, page 36 of the English, 2 of the German as the Second Panzer Army.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, I believe that the word "Widersetzlichkeit" is not translated strongly enough. I have heard that "Widersetzlichkeit" has been translated by "insubordination".

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTURM: Pardon me, Dr. Laternser, will you refer to the German document and also to the English Document. It will be helpful to the Tribunal.

DR. LATERNSEER: On page 36 of the English Document Book and the middle of the page there is the word "insubordination" on the daily report of the 118 Jaeger Division. This word is supposed to be a translation of the word "Widersetzlichkeit" which is a more active element which is not contained, as regards my feeling for language, in the English word "insubordination".

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: May I suggest that you refer to the interpreter for their decision.

DR. LATERNSEER: Yes. I ask for a new translation if this word "Widersetzlichkeit".

(Interpreter: The sentence reads: "Arrest and eventual execution of a commanding general of the Italian XIV Army Corps, General Boncalia is intended in case of further" 'refractoriness' you may say, but 'insubordination' is not definitely wrong.)

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: You may proceed.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor I must make a brief statement because I assume that it is decent to do so. I made an objection sometime ago to what the Prosecutor said. I said something about a period in which General Rendulic was not subordinate to Marshal von Weichs. I made a mistake in regard to the date. In the period of time quoted by the Prosecutor General Rendulic was subordinate to Marshal von Weichs.

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Very well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing now on page 37 of the English, page 26 of the German, still part of NOKW 037 which is Exhibit 320, we have a report from the Second Panzer Army, dated 13 September 1943, teletype report to the Commander in Chief Southeast, High Command Army Group F, which at this time was the defendant Weichs.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors will recall that prior to the recess we were considering Document NOKW-034, Exhibit 320. We are looking at page 27 of the English and page 26 of the German. This is a report from the 2nd Panzer Army, commanded at this time by the defendant Rendulic -a report to the Commander in Chief Southeast (High Command Army Group F) at this time commanded by the defendant Weichs.

A. Copy of the report of the 2nd Panzer Army was sent for informational purposes to the "German Commanding General -- Plenipotentiary in" --and here your Honors' document books should be changed to "Croatia" instead of "Serbia" -- "For information: German Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Croatia", who at this time was Glaise-Horstenau; and another copy for informational purposes to the "Military Commander Southeast", who at this time was General Felber, whose Chief of Staff, your Honors will recall, was the defendant Geitner.

The report is dated 13 September 1943 and contains language very similar to the report on the preceding page which we have just seen. I call your Honors attention only to the portion dealing with the 118th Jaeger Division which at this time was subordinate to the 21st Mountain Corps:

"Arrest and eventual execution of the Commanding General of the Italian XIV Corps, General Roncalia, is intended in case of further insubordination."

And the report is signed: "2nd" -- it should read on the bottom, if your Honors please, the "2nd Panzer Army", rather than "2nd Army Panzer Corps". The report is signed by the Operations Officer.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, the translation of the word "Widersetzlichkeit" as "insubordination" -- I will have to point out again -- just at the moment -- the prosecutor mentioned the word "insubordination" again and I believe the interpreters will have to consider will whether this word really has the right sense.

"Widersetzlichkeit" is active whereas "insubordination" does not have to be active and I believe in this case, for the evaluation of this particular case, it has a special meaning. Unfortunately, I am not in a position to suggest another translation but I would like to ask the interpreters again to think it over.

THE PRESIDENT: The matter will be submitted to the interpreters for their decision.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This is on page 27 of the English and page 26 of the German under 1.8 SD.

THE INTERPRETER: I might suggest another word, "resistance", but in my mind "insubordination" could also be active. In other words, if someone does not subordinate he does something active. It is rather difficult to make a distinction there. From my own knowledge of the languages, I would say "insubordination" could well be used as read. "Resistance" would be a little too strong, but I can suggest it.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Carter has suggested the word, "non-cooperative."

DR. LATERNSEER: Mr. President, I believe that the word as mentioned now, "resistance" would fit best because at that time the Italian Army had already fallen off, did not belong to the German any more. If they use the word, "insubordination", that means that the person in question is under an obligation to obey. However, that was not the case any more and on activity -

THE PRESIDENT: May I suggest that we take the translation as suggested now by the translator and with that I believe there will be no necessity for any further comments on that particular matter.

DR. LATERNSE: Mr. President, which word do you suggest is to be used now?

THE PRESIDENT: "Resistance."

DR. LATERNSE: I agree to that and I therefore ask for an order, on page 37 as well as page 36 of the English document book, to correct these pages correspondingly.

That is page 36 and 37.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, at this time we should like to discontinue the presentation of documents in Document Book XIII and put on a prosecution witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, we would request that the Court direct the Marshal to summon the witness, Zivojin Iovanovitch. That is spelled Z i v o j i n I o v a n o v i t c h.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, you will present the interpreter and the witness to the Court.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors, please, the witness does not speak any English and the interpreter is Mr. Targoni, who is thoroughly familiar with both the Serbian language and the English language; and the procedure which will be followed is that which has been followed in other cases where we have a third language, two basic languages here being German and English. The questions will be put in English. The questions will be interpreted by the regular interpreters into German for the benefit of the Defendants and their counsel. The question will be interpreted into Serbian from the English by Mr. Targoni. The witness will make his reply into the microphone in Serbian. He will make pauses as he replies. Mr. Targoni will take note and then Mr. Targoni will speak into the same microphone in English, and the regular interpreters can make a simultaneous translation from the English into the German for the benefit of the defendants and their counsel and such other people, including the German court reporters and those listening on the German channel in the court room.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Targoni, if you will raise your right hand and be sworn?

I, Vasiljek Targoni, do solemnly swear that I will perform my duties as interpreter to this Tribunal to the best of my ability and skill.

(The interpreter repeated the oath.)

THE PRESIDENT: The witness will raise his right hand and be sworn.

I swear that the evidence I shall give shall be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me God.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

THE PRESIDENT: You may be seated.

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. DENNEY:

Q. And have you lived there since?

A. I always lived in Kragujevac, since 1911 up until now.

Q. What was your employment prior to 1941, April?

A. I was graduated in the Military-Technical Military Plant in Kragujevac.

A. After the occupation I continued my work as a clerk in the Military Technical Plant in Kragujevac.

Q. Were you given some instructions subject to April of 1941?

A. I was sent to a training center, – German Training Center known as "Goering-Werke", and I was certified there as a bookkeeper.

Q. How large a town is Kragujevac?

A. Kragujevac is about 35,000 inhabitants.

Q. In what direction is it from Belgrade?

A. I will tell.

Q. You may proceed, if you will please.

A. On the 17th of September, 1941, I was working in my office in the Military Technical Plant in Kragujevac. On that day I got a telephone call to go to some other office in the Military Technical Plant, and this office was away from the building I was usually working. When I arrived at the office I found there three armed German soldiers and the chief of this office told me, "You will follow these men."

Q. May I interrupt there? Were these, -- what kind of uniforms did these men have on?

A. In the usual German Army uniforms, with the insignia GFB.

Q. Please continue.

A. We entered into a car and they took me to the building where they were stationed. In the room they took me in, there was a captain and a Lt, an interpreter and a typist. They started with questioning me, imputing me that I was a member of the illegal underground organization. I denied this, because I was not a member in any of the underground organizations.

MR. DENNEY: Let me interrupt there for a moment, did you ever do anything to help, either before 17 September, 1941 or after September, 1941 – did you ever do anything to help the partisans or chetniks?

A. No, I never have helped anybody because I am a poor man. I got my family and I have to take care about them.

Q. In fact, you had been working for the German occupation forces from the time of their occupation in April until 17 September, 1941?

A. I was working for the German occupation of Kragujevac, as a bookkeeper in the Military Technical Plant in Kragujevac

Q. Please continue.

A. Because I denied being a member of the illegal organization, they started to beat me; they beat me for about one hour and some more, maybe. The Lieutenant beat me, and the interpreter always was telling me, "You have to admit; you have to admit."

After about two hours, and a quarter of an hour, they stopped to beat me, because they broke the lamp. The first thing I didn't tell, because I could not tell that I was a member of the illegal organization. I always denied that. After that they told me, "You still have time to think this matter over in jail."

They took me into a car and took me into a Serbian jail, and told the men in charge of the Serbian jail to put me into a cell. I stayed there in a cell in the Serbian jail up to the 20th of October 1941.

Q. This jail was manned by Serbian Guards?

A. Yes, this jail was subordinated to Serbian authorities.

DR. LATERNER: I object to this question. It is a leading question and not admissible.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I am trying to help the witness and the court. He was testifying he was taken to a Serbian jail.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: The objection is overruled. By the tone of his voice it was given as a question.

MR. DENNEY: I shall be very careful not to lead the witness. Perhaps we may see some more of it later, however.

Q. How big was the cell in which you were?

A. The cell was long, - about two meters, - and wide about 70 centimeters, without any windows.

Q. Did you ever get served with any papers, or were you ever interrogated; did anyone ever tell you why you were in there?

A. No, I was never interrogated in the Serbian jail. I was interrogated only in the building of GFB, before I was in jail.

Then I was told that I would be arrested because I was a member of the illegal organization.

Q. During the period which you were in jail, you never received any official charge sheet indicating why you were being held, and no one ever came to see you to tell you the reason for your detention?

A. At that time "between the 17 September and 20 October in the Serbian jail, nobody came to tell me why I was arrested and nobody gave me any papers, any documents; Nobody interrogated me.

Q. Tell the Court what happened on the 20th of October.

MR. DENNEY: All right, tell the Court what happened on the 20th of October.

A On the 20th of October German armed soldiers arrived at the jail and ordered me to get out of my cell and go to the courtyard. We went to the courtyard, and we met there a Serbian who counted us. After he finished counting he said fifty-three.

Q These other people who were in the courtyard with you, of what nationalities were they?

A They were all Serbians but one who was a Jew.

Q Did you recognize any of the people?

A When we entered into the courtyard I recognized several of them. I used to know one of them who was an attorney and another man, but several of them I knew from seeing them in Kragujevac.

Q And then what happened?

A The German armed soldiers in the courtyard put us into a marching column and we started our march through the city. We were marching along the main street surrounded by German armed soldiers and then I could see other groups of German soldiers going into the houses in other small streets leading to the main streets. These German soldiers collected people from the houses and took them to the main street.

Q How far was it from the jail to the first place that you stopped?

A It took about half an hour.

Q And how many soldiers were around you during that march--that is, around your group?

A There were about twenty-five German soldiers.

Q Were they armed?

A They were armed.

Q What kind of weapons did they have?

A They were armed with machine guns, sub-machine guns, and automatic weapons.

Q Now, where did these soldiers take you?

A They took us to the courtyard of the Artillery barracks, in the city of Kragujevac.

Q And what did you see when you got there?

A When we entered into the courtyard of the artillery barracks I could see three big hangars filled with prisoner Serbians. I saw that they were at the windows and the doors because the Germans tried to push some more people inside, but they couldn't; they were filled up.

Q How many people were in the courtyard itself, excluding the barracks?

AAAt that time there were about 1,000 people in the courtyard, at the moment of our arrival.

Q And did they maintain our group separately, or did they mix them up with the other people?

A No, our group was kept separately. We got an order to sit down and not to talk to anybody; otherwise we would be killed. They repeated that we have to stay still--not to talk to anybody, otherwise they must kill all of us.

Q What happened while you were sitting there?

A I have seen some additional groups of population taken by Germans into the courtyard from the city, and I saw some mistreatment. For instance, if somebody couldn't walk fast, these people were kicked by the Germans.

Q And for how long did they continue to bring people into the courtyard?

A They were bringing people in up to about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Q Did you have anything to eat while you were there?

A No, we didn't receive anything to eat.

Q Anything to drink?

A Neither.

Q Then what happened?

A I remember very well one group of students of the first class of high school, about fourteen years old, taken along by Germans with their teachers. They arrived in the courtyard with school books. They were taken from the school.

Q Did you see anybody else come in that you were able to recognize?

A There was another group which struck me. There were about five priests--five or six priests, and then some other people. I remember very well one of them--one of these priests.

Q What was his name?

A He was a priest named Cvetic.

Q That is spelled C V E T I C.

Have you ever seen him since?

A I have never seen him since.

Q And he was a priest from Kragujevac?

A Yes, he was a priest from Kragujevac.

Q Now, there came a time when you left the courtyard at the artillery barracks. Will you please tell the Court what preceded that and where you went.

AAbout 11 o'clock came a German officer--a tall German officer-into the courtyard surrounded with some other people. He was giving some orders. I couldn't hear them, but he showed some directions and explained something. After that I realized that he was indicating places where the shooting should take place on the following day.

Q About what time was it that this officer came?

A It was about 11 o'clock.

Q 11 o'clock in the morning?

A Yes.

Q This was shortly after you arrived there?

A Yes, it was shortly after our arrival.

Q And how long did you stay after that until you left?

AAbout 5 o'clock and maybe some later.

Q 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the 20th?

A Yes, 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the 20th of October.

Q And then you did leave, and then what happened?

AAAt that time arrived another group of German soldiers armed in the same way as the previous one.

They surrounded our group and took us out in the courtyard.

Q Where did you go?

A We started our march to the outskirts of Kragujevac into the direction of another artillery barracks in Kragujevac.

We didn't enter into the courtyard of this other artillery barrack but we continued our march for about 200 more meters. At that moment, I saw a short German officer running towards our column and shouting in Serbian "Stoj"--that is to say, "stop."

MR. DENNEY: And if your Honors please, I believe we recall a document which had the word "Stoj" that equals "halt" in it. Continue.

MR. JOVANOVIC: In the vicinity of this German officer, I could see some bodies lying around but it was a bit dark so one couldn't recognize well the people lying on the ground.

MR. DENNEY: What did you do then?

MR. JOVANOVIC: Because I had seen these people lying around on the ground, I realized that we had to be shot and I decided to escape. I got out from the columns and started to run in the direction which is near Kragujevac. I was running away and I heard a general shooting behind me. Running away from the group, I passed a German guard who was staying on the gate leading to the artillery barracks.

MR. DENNEY: And then what did you do?

MR. JOVANOVIC: Running away, I passed this guard and entered into the first courtyard, the first house in the outskirts of Kragujevac. I jumped over the fence and entered the second house and jumped over some more fences.

MR. DENNEY: Then what happened?

MR. JOVANOVIC: There was another man running away from the group, together with me. I couldn't see him but when I reached the first fence I saw this man on the left side from me. I jumped over some more fences and getting out from the last courtyard, I ran into another German guard.

MR. DENNEY: What did you do then?

MR. JOVANOVIC: I stopped and recollecting several German words I knew, I begged of him not to kill me and explained to him that I had a mother, a wife, and a child.

MR. DENNEY: What did he do?

MR. JOVANOVIC: He asked me only whether I belonged to the upper group of people.

MR. DENNEY: What did you say?

MR. JOVANOVIC: I answered that I was in this group.

MR. DENNEY: Did you know what the upper group was?

MR. JOVANOVIC: Yes, I did. I realized that this German guard was asking whether I was in the column who was led by Germans to the shooting place.

MR. DENNEY: Then what happened?

MR. JOVANOVIC: He took me by the sleeve and led me into the direction of the place from which I had run away. He told me "Vorwaerts." He took me along a small street leading to the same place where I started my escape.

MR. DENNEY: And did you run into somebody on the way back?

MR. JOVANOVIC: When we reached the first guard which I passed in my running away, this guard gave a sign to the guard escorting me to get away. This first guard wanted to shoot at me but the guard who was escorting me didn't want to get away but shot himself. He wounded me in the back in the left side. The bullet came out in the front side.

MR. DENNEY: Then what happened?

MR. JOVANOVIC: I fell down but didn't lose consciousness. I heard some talks. I couldn't understand all but I understood that the guard who shot me asked for a pistol from the second guard. This one not having a pistol - because this one did not have a pistol the guard who shot me once shot at me the second time.

MR. DENNEY: Where did he shoot you the second time when you were lying down?

MR. JOVANOVIC: He shot me at the left side of my back. The bullet went out from this part (indicating on upper chest just below shoulder); it scratched my cheek and wounded me in the middle finger on the left hand.

MR. DENNEY: And then what happened?

MR. JOVANOVIC: I realized that there was immediate danger of being killed.

I concentrated all my power to remain still and not to show any signs of life. I heard some talks between these two German guards. I couldn't understand everything but I understood very well one word I have heard clearly, "Fertig." I understood they considered me killed and I felt much easier after that.

MR. DENNEY: You never lost consciousness?

MR. JOVANOVIC: No, never. I was always conscious.

MR. DENNEY: And later did you succeed in getting away?

MR. JOVANOVIC: Yes, I left this place. I couldn't tell how long I stayed there but it was night when I left this spot.

MR. DENNEY: And how far did you go?

MR. JOVANOVIC: I stayed in this place up until late at night and then more crawling than walking I left this place and went about three kilometers far from it. It took me more than two hours.

MR. DENNEY: And did you come to a house?

MR. JOVANOVIC: I went to the first house on the outskirts of Kragujevac, this house belonged to a woman whom I used to know. I asked her to let me in but she wouldn't accept me so I stayed in the open in the courtyard of this house.

MR. DENNEY: Did you ask the woman to do anything for you in addition to letting you in?

MR. JOVANOVIC: Yes. I asked for help but she didn't dare to do that because she was afraid of Germans. Finally I succeeded to persuade her to inform my wife and she did it early in the morning.

MR. DENNEY: Now, in the morning--

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, Mr. Denney, we will adjourn at this time until one-thirty.

(A recess was taken until 1330 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

THE MARSHALL: The persons in the court room will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Pardon me a minute, Mr. Denney. May I say to the defendants, if the weather conditions are such that they are exceedingly warm if they want to unbutton their coats it is their privilege and the court will take no exception to it. If you wish to change your tightened garb in which you came to the court room during this warm weather the court will not take any exceptions to your changing from your present uniform to something which will be more in keeping with the type of weather that we are now having. That may be worked out by you and your counsel. As I understand it the Prosecution has no objection and the Tribunal certainly does not have any objection. You may proceed.

WITNESS JOVANOVIC -resumed DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. DENNEY:

Q If you Honors please: Witness, we had reached the point in your testimony where you had gone to a house, asked the person residing in that house to call your wife back or remain outside the house. Did you spend the balance of the night outside the house?

A Yes, I spent the night outside in the courtyard.

Q What happened in the morning?

A In the morning I can't tell exactly what time was it or how late was it, but I believe it was about six o'clock in the morning I had firing on the other end of Kragujevac. At the same time I heard rifles screaming, coming from the city.

Q The screaming and firing lasted for how long?

A I have heard that until about 11 o'clock in the morning and how long was it later I don't know because at that time I was taken already by horse-drawn vehicle to a hospital.

Q This firing, what did it sound like? Was it heavy artillery firing, large field pieces, canons, or was it small arms fire?

A It was mostly shooting from rifles, usually infantry rifles.

Q Was the firing constant, did it go on all the time or was it sporadic? Did you hear some and it stopped and then started again?

A It was almost constantly up until 11 O'clock.

Q Now, what happened which caused you to leave this place by the house where you spent the night; you said a horse-drawn vehicle came and took you away.

A I asked the woman from the house where I spent the night outside, still in the night time, that she should inform my wife about what happened to me so she did in the morning and my wife arrived with the horse-drawn vehicle and took me to the hospital.

Q How long were you at the hospital?

A I spent in the hospital about one hour.

Q How long did it take you to go from the place where your wife picked you up with the horse cart, to the hospital?

A It would be about one hour.

Q And did you see anybody in the hospital?

A I have seen at the hospital doctors and some patients.

Q Did you see anybody else?

A Later on, about an hour from there, there came about four soldiers from the Serbian Voluntary Battalion and they took me away from the hospital imputing to me that I was the person who fired some rifle on the soldiers during last night.

Q These were Serbian soldiers?

A Yes, they were Serbian soldiers.

Q Serbian soldiers who were serving with the Germans?

A They were the soldiers belong to the Fourth Voluntary Battalion Serbian under the Command of Marica Petrovic in relation with Germans.

Q That is spelled M-A-R-I-C-A- P-E-T-R-O-V-I-C. Then where did they take you.

A They took me away imputing that I was the person who fired some shots on them during the last night but it was impossible because the last night I was wounded and laying on the ground outside of the house at Kragujevac.

Q Witness, you must pay attention to the questions, and to what I say. I asked you where did they take you. Please pay attention and try to make your answers responsive.

A They took me from the hospital to their headquarters.

Q The headquarters of the Fourth Serbian Voluntary Battalion?

A Yes, to Headquarters of the Fourth Serbian Voluntary Battalion.

Q What happened there?

A They took me to the headquarters and started interrogations imputing me always that I fired some shots at them last night. I refused it and denied it always and another soldier me on the stairs, hit me in such a way that I fell down the stairs. They handed me to another guard in the courtyard and told me that I will be put before the court martial next morning.

Q Where did you spend that night?

A I spent this night in the guard house.

Q At the headquarters?

AAAt the Headquarters of the Fourth Voluntary Serbian Battalion.

Q When did they release you?

A I spent the whole night there for sometime and they released me in the morning because they were sure that I wasn't the person in question.

Q Where did you go?

A I went straight home.

Q And after you were home did someone come to your house?

A In the morning I was released in the morning and went home; I don't remember exactly the time but sometime in the afternoon, the very same day there came 3 persons from headquarters of GFB and they told me not to leave the house and as soon as I recovered, my daughter was to come and inform the headquarters of GFB that I am all right.

MR. FRITSCH: DR. Fritsch for the defendant Rendulic. Your Honor, the objection which my colleague, Dr. Laternser, made I want to join in his objection. I must state here that the questions which are given to this witness here are leading questions. Obviously, it is very important for us to test the credibility of this witness regarding each question, but when the Prosecution questions the witness in a way that he puts the answer in his mouth, then in even less important questions it is very difficult for us to find out how far this comes from the own knowledge of the witness and how the witness feels on the individual points, and how the witness approached the things at that time. I would like to ask the Prosecutor to put simple questions which can not anticipate in any way the answers.

THE PRESIDENT: I think the objection which counsel has made does not apply to all the questions that have been presented to the witness. I do feel in one or two exceptions he has led the witness somewhat, and I caution him and ask him to watch that feature of his interrogation. I think under the circumstances there may come times when you to have to ask leading questions in a situation such as we have here, working through an interpreter, but until that time happens I see no cause for asking leading questions.

You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: I might add parenthetically for your Honors, none of this testimony concerns the client of Dr. Fritsch. This is all in October 1941.

Q How, these people, ---and I am recapitulating what the witness said. Dr. Fritsch was up here without the earphones on, so he may assume I am leading the witness again ---these G.F.P. people came to your house on the 21st and told you not to leave, and when you were well your daughter should come and tell them; how long did you stay in your house?

A I spent at home about 20 days.

Q And when you recovered did you return to your position?

A In about 20 days I left my house for the first time and went to the building of the G.F.P. I asked them whether I am allowed to find some job and do that, and what is my position now. I was answered that I am free and I can look for some job again.

Q And did you find a job later?

A Yes, I got a job with the tax office in Kragujevac on the 1st of February 1942.

Q Did you continue to hold that job until the liberation?

A Yes.

Q Now, going back to the period before you got the job with the tax commission in Kragujevac, and after you left your house recovering from your wounds, which would have been sometime around between roughly say the 8th and 14th of November, what did you do?

A I spent most of my time at home, and was getting out of the house very few and far between time, because I was not feeling too well still.

Q Did you ever return from the place from which you had fled on 20 October?

A Yes, I went there. I can't remember exactly when it was, but I am pretty sure that it was in the period when I had been for the first time in the building of G.F.P. and I would say during the first month I left the house.

A What did you see there?

A I went only to the first, to the first beach and it was pretty bad, it was maybe the 9th of November. I could see some blood and some water coming out from this area, which was covered, and there was still a terrible stinking around.

Q Did you ever see any of the soldiers who were involved in these various incidents which you have described prior to that day when you saw them on the 20th or did you ever see any of them subsequently?

A Which soldiers?

Q You saw the German soldiers who guarded you in the artillery barracks when you were there?

A I didn't know them personally.

Q Well, had you seen any of them before, to your knowledge?

A I have never seen them personally, but I saw later on some of these soldiers and soldiers in the same uniform in Kragujevac.

Q Soldiers wearing similar uniforms, but so far as you know you never saw any of them who were the same people, you didn't recognize their faces?

A No, I had never seen them.

Q Now, as you looked around Kragujevac after you left the house and during the subsequent weeks what, if anything, did you see which attracted your attention?

A On the first day when I left my home and was going to report to the headquarters of G.F.P. I saw a poster in the window of a shop telling that 1200 people have been shot because 12 German soldiers have been killed, somewhere in Kraljevo, and there were a long list of 1200 names of this post.

Q You didn't count the names of the list, did you?

A No, I didn't. I saw the last counted number on the list and the number was 1200.

Q Now, did you see anything else that indicated to you that people had been killed on the 20th of October?

A Yes, according to the customs in Serbia there were black flags on every house from which a person was executed or killed, and there have been black posters with the names of the killed people, executed people, and even the pictures of these people, which was according to the usual practice in Yugoslavia.

Q Well, as you went around the town afterwards you saw many of these flags and these posters on the houses?

A. Yes, it was quite usual. It was a common case. There couldn't be seen almost a house without this black flag.

Q. Now, did you ever -- had you ever heard of a Captain Bischofshausen?

A. No, never.

Q. Did you know who was the town major of Kragujevac?

A. Yes, I used to know one by the name of Schuster.

Q. Well, did you hear anything -- did you know anything -- about the activities of the town major at this time?

A. Yes, I know that he was the town major that time, which was before the 21st of October. In the same group with me there was another man. The town major the very next day went out in a tank to the place of execution and the noise of the motor woke up this man who was lying on the ground unconscious. The town major saw this man still living, looked around, and, because nobody from the Germans was near in the vicinity, he dragged this man into the tank, took him to the headquarters and kept him about seven days there, fed him well, and then sent him home.

Q. Did you ever the name "Major Koenig"?

A. I have heard the name of Major Koenig later, afterward, and I learned that Major Koenig was the same tall German officer who arrived at the artillery barracks when I was sitting down on the ground, and Major Koenig was the person who gave the orders and who indicated the places, the points, where the shooting took place the following day. I learned that afterwards.

Q. And so far as you know, the troops that performed these executions were not troops who were regularly stationed in Kragujevac?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, will you watch and endeavor not to ask leading questions, if possible?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors please, thank you.

A. No, the soldiers of the Kragujevac garrison participated in this special action but everybody, even the town major of Kragujevac, was subordinated to Major Koenig during this time. That's what I learned afterwards.

Q. Did you ever learn how many people were executed in Kragujevac?

A. Yes, I can tell you that. About 8,000.

MR. DENNEY: You may inquire.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, may I first of all ask in what manner we are going to have translations into these several languages--

THE PRESIDENT: I didn't get the inquiry, Doctor.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, I have asked how the translation is going to take place. Will my question put in German be translated into the Serbian language from English into Serbian or will my German question at once be translated into Serbian?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, Mr. Targoni advises me that he understands German sufficiently to translate from German into Serbian. He is familiar with the German written and spoken word, the first as he reads it and, of course, the latter as hears it. However, he feels that it is better if he translates from Serbian back into English, and if that's agreeable with Dr. Laternser, I see no objection -- I suggest that it be handled in that manner because that saves one translation each way.

THE PRESIDENT: That will be agreeable with the Tribunal if it is satisfactory to counsel.

DR. LATERNSEER: I agree to this.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. How long have you been in Nuernberg?

A. This is the first day I'm here.

Q. Did you arrive yesterday or today?

A. No, it was the day before yesterday.

Q. You just said that you were here for the first day.

A. That isn't right. It is possible that I told that.

DR. LATERNSEER: I would like to draw your attention that you are under oath also as regards to the answering of my questions.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I object to Dr. Laternser's inference, and I object to his arguing with the witness.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Sustained.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, I would like to make my position clear as regards the ruling of this court. I am justified in putting them questions in cross examination. In cross-examination every kind of questions can be put, also leading questions. However the prosecution may not do so in that type of examination.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: The statement is quite correct, Dr. Laternser, but I see no occasion for any inference at this time that the witness is not telling the truth or that he is not conscious of the fact that he is under oath.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I did not say that he was telling the untruth. I reminded him of the fact that he should be very careful in the answering of my questions too.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: You may proceed.

DR. LATERNSEER: Witness, I ask again, therefore, how long have you been in Nurnberg?

A. The witness is sorry but he arrived exactly on 28 July at 1730 in the afternoon.

Q. With whom did you talk in the meantime? During this time?

A. In order to talk to the men of the Yugoslav Delegation, he talked to Mr. Denney, I was present too, (meaning the interpreter); there was another man I cannot remember his name. I believe it was one of the members of the prosecution staff.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors, the person of whom he is speaking is Mr. Fenstermacher, of the prosecution staff, who was in my office for a portion of the time that we discussed the testimony of the witness, and I believe that Mr. Rapp came in once for a period of perhaps five minutes or so.

I am not sure the witness say him.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your evidence today was probably discussed at this occasion?

A. Yes, that's true.

Q. Was your evidence fixed in writing?

A. No.

Q. Were documents submitted to you?

A. No.

Q. There were documents presented to you?

A. No documents, but especially one thing was emphasized, that is to say, that in the course during the interrogation, I have to say only what I say myself, with my own eyes, and what I heard afterwards, that I should not tell, that is later on, only what I have seen with my own eyes.

Q. Witness, were you not shown a report which the Yugoslav Commission made about the things that happened in Kregujevac?

A. Yes, I saw the document.

Q. You said before that no documents were shown you.

A. This one is not a document; it is my testimony given in my own country, YUGOSLAVIA, it's my own testimony.

Q. Which testimony.

A. Yes, it is my statement, my testimony given in Yugo Slavia, what happened to me on the day of 21 of October, 1941.

Q. You had not given testimony about that in Yugo Slavia, already had you?

A. Yes.

Q. Was only that testimony submitted to you or was the report of the Yugoslav Commission also submitted to you, as I asked you before?

A. I do not know anything about some other documents.

Q. You still live in Kragujevac?

A. Yes, now too.

Q. And during which time were you active for the German occupation authorities at that place?

A. I cannot remember exactly well, but I started my job for the German occupation forces almost immediately after the occupation was completed, and I held this job until the 17 September when I was arrested.

Q. Did you get pay for your work?

A. Yes, I was paid.

Q. Did you also get subsistence?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever have any claim to holidays?

A. No, it was a short period I was working for Germans.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I do not want to limit Dr. Laternser, there is no charge that the man was not paid, or that he worked involuntarily or anything else, and I submit there are better ways of testing his power to recollect than whether or not he worked there, and whether they paid him or fed him.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Overruled.

DR. LATERNSE:

Q. How were you treated by the Germans while working for them? I am talking about the time until your arrest.

A. I was treated in a courteous way and enjoyed their confidence,

Q. In September 1941, as you said, you were arrested?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. You said that two or three armed soldiers-- that you were arrested by two or three armed soldiers?

A. Yes, and they had insignia, "GFP", on their shoulders.

Q. Witness, what does GFP stand for?

A. I don't know.

Q. Now I want to tell you what it stands for. It stands for "Secret Field Police".

Do you believe-- really believed,-- that a secret police would show his insignia openly? In that all of the secret police would be recognized at once?

A. I don't know.

Q. Are you quite sure that you saw those insignia, or is it possible that you are in error.?

A. No, I am quite sure that I have seen this insignia and I even saw a sign with an arrow showing the direction to the building, "GFP" also "GFP" shown on this sign.

Q. Would you kindly repeat this. I do not quite understand it.

A. I am quite sure that I have seen this insignia, not only on the soldiers' shoulder patches, the same insignias were worn by officers, and on the door of the office when I was interrogated there was in light blue glass the letters "GFP", written in a black color.

Q. You were then arrested by these people. What was your interrogation about?

A. I was arrested by these people, yes, and interrogations took place on the 2nd floor of the same building bearing the sign GFP.

Q. And what were you interrogated about? About what subject?

A. The matter of the interrogation was that I am a member of the illegal underground organization, and they tried to get my answer in the positive.

Q. You were not a member of the partisans or the underground movements?

A. No, never.

Q. Why were you not a member of the partisan movement?

A. Well, I was good Serbian. I couldn't tell that while there were Germans around. Being a poor man, and bearing on my shoulders my mother, my wife and my child, I had to take care about all of these people. To be a partisan meant to leave the house and my folks and go south to the mountains to fight. I felt too weak for that.

Q. Witness, you probably also did not do it because you did not think it right to do anything against the occupation forces?

A. Well, there was a period of time when I was working in the Military Technical Branch in Kragujevac. I had a pretty good life, that is to say, everything was taken care of. I didn't think whether it would be loyal or not to German occupation authorities if I joined the partisans, but later on when I was treated in such a brutal way and was wounded twice; I scared the Germans, that's true; but I didn't join partisans at this time because I was too weak. After two wounds I couldn't do that.

Q. Witness, the question which I'm putting to you refers to the time until your arrest. Did you think it right that fellow countrymen of yours were shooting Germans from ambush? What did you think about that?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, there is no evidence that this witness knows anything about fellow countrymen shooting Germans from ambush. And I don't think it's a proper matter of inquiry. Further, it probes the witness's the operations of his mind - in matters with which we are not here concerned.

DR. LATERNER: Mr. President, may I make my attitude plain in regard to this. Witness, I had asked you whether at that time and for what reason you refused to join the partisans, because the partisans shot Germans from ambush.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, he's asking the same question that Your Honor just sustained the opposition to.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. Witness, did you ever talk with partisans--that is, fellow countrymen of yours who were members of those bands.

A. No, never, until 1944.

Q. Until 1944 you did not talk to partisans, if I understood you rightly?

A. No, I had no opportunity for that.

Q. And after 1944 did you then talk to the partisans?

A Yes, I did, but only when the defense arrived, not like bands, but like a regular army.

MR. DENNEY: I have no objection to Dr. Laternser's going into the 1944 period if he desires to make him his own witness. This testimony has definitely been limited to the period prior to April 1941, except for explanatory matter and some time within a few months after October, 1941.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I have never heard--now for the first time--that a witness may only testify about a certain period of time, and that the Defense Counsel in cross-examination must be confined only to put questions about this period of time. I must have the opportunity to question the witness quite freely and this is also in conformity with the American rules of procedure, either for fact or for investigating the question, regarding the credibility of the witness. For this reason, I cannot see how this objection can be sustained.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection is over-ruled.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q Witness, I had just asked you whether after 1944 you had talked with partisans.

A Yes, certainly, I had.

Q What did they tell you regarding the manner in which they fought the Germans? They probably were proud of that, I take it.

A It's historical; it's what everybody in Yugoslavia talks about right now, and I can't tell it in several words.

Q Yes, I understand that. For that reason I will ask something more pointed. What did the partisans tell you personally how they treated the German prisoners?

A It was according to the military situation. Sometimes when it was just to take the prisoners back into the rear zone, they took them but sometimes they killed them.

Q And they told you that?

A Yes.

Q Did they also tell you the kind of orders they had from Marshal Tito regarding the treatment of such German prisoners?

A I am not acquainted with this problem.

Q Did they tell you the kind of weapons they had and from whom they got these weapons?

A Yes, they did--some of them. They told me that they got their arms and weapons from the Germans, from the killed Germans.

Q Did they also tell you that at night English and American planes --English planes came overhead at night and threw arms and ammunition down?

A Yes, you are right. That's what I told before. It pertained to the first period of the fight, but later on they were supplied, and very richly supplied, by allies because they were recognized as a regular army.

Q You say they were recognized as a regular army. By whom were they recognized as a regular army?

A That's what I have heard. The partisans were recognized by the Allies as a regular army, and besides they even--the German authorities--made sometimes the exchange of prisoners. That is to say, unofficially the German army recognized this unit as an army.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, Dr. Laternser. It occurs to the Tribunal that even though we want to be very liberal in our rulings on cross-examination, that we are getting quite far afield from anything which might have any bearing upon this witness's interest or his credibility. I suggest that we refer to the matters which are at hand--the original testimony of the witness which has heretofore been presented.

BY DR. LATERNSER:

Q We have rather strayed, Witness. I asked you what you were interrogated about after your first arrest. You said then whether you were a member of the partisans or not. And one question you have not yet answered--I asked you did you also not join the partisans because you looked upon it as not right that the occupational forces were shot at from ambush.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, why he did not join the Party of the Cetniks, the witness has said he didn't. I think it inquires into the operations of the witness's mind, matters which are not under consideration here.

THE PRESIDENT: Over-ruled.

Q Then, I should like to ask you to translate the question in order that the witness may answer it. (Statement to Interpreter Targoni).

A So far as I remember, I gave a quite clear answer to this question. I told you that what concerned the first period of my job in the Military Technical Branch. I didn't think about joining partisans because I had been taken care of. My family was all right, and I was hesitant to leave this job and join the partisans. I didn't concern myself with the problems of whether it would be loyal or not. So I believe that later on, after what happened to me on the 21st of October 1941, I would join partisans because I hated the Germans; but I couldn't do that because of my physical condition.

Court No. V, Case No. VII

Q. What did one have to fear if one was caught as a partisan?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, it has been established that the man was never in the partisans. I don't know how he could tell what one could fear from an organization of which he was never a member.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY LATERNER:

Q. Did you in Kragujevac see any posters which were made by the Germans?

A. Yes. I saw some people killed from the same group I was on the 21st of October, 1941. Later on, I saw a man hanged on the street in Kragujevac and I know one shop keeper who was killed too.

Q. I am afraid you have not understood me correctly. I did not mean attacks. I mean posters. I mean posters on walls. Did you see any of those?

A. Yes, I have seen these posters but the very first day I left my home and went to the building of GFP. I saw this poster in the window of a shop. It was written that because 12 German soldiers were killed in the vicinity of Kraljevo, 1200 people in Kragujevac have been shot. There was a longer list of names and last of the numbers was 1200.

Q. Yes, you have already said that. Did you ever see a poster on which it said who was taking active part in the activities of the partisans will be shot? Did you ever read anything of this kind?

A. Yes. Even such notices I signed when I started my job in the Military Technical Branch in Kragujevac.

Q. Yes. Now witness, you were unfortunately arrested beginning after December 1941. You said you were taken to a prison after being interrogated?

A. Yes, that is true.

Q. Yes, and you said that you were put into a cell which was two meters by 70 centimeters and did not have any windows?

A. Yes, that is true.

Q. What is the prison in question?

A. It was the Serbian Police Jail in Kragujevac.

Q. Who had built this prison? Did the Germans build this prison?

A. No

Q. Well, who had built it then?

A. This building was built up by the former Yugoslavian State. It is an old building.

Q. You said, however, that on October 20 you were taken away by armed soldiers?

A. Yes, that is true.

Q. And you said further that all those who were taken away from this prison were taken into a courtyard.

A. Yes, that is true.

Q. First of all, in this prison, did you know all the persons which you saw in this courtyard?

A. No.

Q. Witness, well how did you come to say that all these people were Serbs?

A. Well, I realized it afterwards. I have heard it afterwards. Then I would like to repeat that I told the Court that there were Serbians but one. This last one was a Jew.

DR. LATERNER: The translation isn't coming through.

THE PRESIDENT: Perhaps we should see if the mechanical matters are coming through all right. We will test it out momentarily.

We will take our recess at this time.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: You may proceed with the crossexamination.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q Mr. Witness, you said that in the first prison you were until the 20th of October?

A Yes.

Q Why were you fetched away from there?

A I was taken from this jail the 9th of October because on this day there was a special action going on in Kragujevac and I, together with all other jail persons, was taken away from the jail.

Q What do you mean by special action? Do you know in particular whether during those days around about Kragujevac there were hard fights between the German troops and the partisans?

A No, I never saw that in the vicinity of Kragujevac. There were some fights about 40 kilometers away from Kragujevac by a town named Milanovac and there were some killed German soldiers brought to Kragujevac later on.

Q Mr. Witness, I have here a communication from the Serbian Commission for the Investigation of Crimes of the former occupation troops and in this report of this government Commission it says that in October 1941 in the surroundings of Kragujevac there were bitter fights taking place.

A I don't know anything about that.

Q Have you heard anything about it, that there were bitter fights in the neighborhood around Kragujevac, in October 1941?

A No, I never knew about it.

Q Can you somehow explain then how this Commission came about to report such bitter fights in that neighborhood.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, Dr. Laternser is now trying to probe the minds of the people who are not here, of the Commission of which this witness was not a member; he was in jail. It has been submitted both in cross and on direct from the 17th of September to the 20th and he has said he doesn't know anything about it and I object to the question.

PRESIDING JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Sustained.

Court No. V, Case No. VII

Q. Where was the prison where you were located, was it located in Kragujevac or in the outskirts or outside of town?

A. I never was in Kragujevac in jail. It was about the middle of the town, in the center of the town.

Q. Did you while you were under arrest in this prison at any time, did you hear any noise of battle, did you hear shots so that you could assume that there were bitter fights going on in that neighborhood?

A. There were a couple of firings, but there no fight.

Q. You said, that then on the 21st you were taken away from the prison and in a march led to the main highway?

A. Yes, that is true.

Q. Can you then describe to the Tribunal how this march was carried out, and did you have to go in close formation or were you allowed to march wider spread?

A. We were all in a column three and three.

Q. And in close formation or in wide formation, were there any guards or no guards?

A. We have been escorted by about 25 of the German armed soldiers.

Q. Would you like to look at this picture, please, and tell me whether that was taken on the occasion of that particular march we are discussing?

A. Yes, this is a building which we passed, which we entered after the end of our march.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser, I think for the purposes of the record some references should be made to the number of the picture and the exhibit.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, it is Exhibit 100-B-23. I have the original here. Perhaps the witness would like to see that.

Q. I am showing the witness the original so that he can see it a little closer?

A. Yes, this picture is a bit better. The same kind of groups that come before mine and afterwards. Something like that should be my group too.

Q. And when was that, on what day?

A. It happened on the 20th of October 1941.

Q. On the 20th of October 1941, you said?

A. Yes, on the 20th of October.

Q. You said you were then led into a court yard which was near the artillery barracks, how many persons were in this courtyard at this time?

A. When I arrived there, there were about thousand.

Q. How did you know that there were about a thousand people?

A. There were about a thousand I mean.

Q. You yourself didn't count them, did you?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. That is merely a guess, is it?

A. Yes, I guess so.

Q. As you further said later you together with other groups were led into another barracks by German soldiers?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor, please, that was not his testimony. He said he was taken out of one artillery barracks kaserne and by another one. He did not say he was taken into another one. It may have come over improperly in the German.

MR. LATERNSEER: That is why I asked him, to clarify the matter. These kind of questions are certainly admissible.

THE PRESIDENT: The witness will be able to take care of himself, I am quite certain.

Q. Please, would you translate the question then so it can be answered; where were you led from this barracks?

A. We were taken by the barracks to a workers settlement outside Kragujevac, and then to a field outside of Kragujevac.

Q. And who was there when you arrived there?

A. There was a German officer there, and there being some bodies lying around on the ground in the vicinity of this officer. I couldn't see that really, because it was about 200 meters from me.

Q. Didn't you say before--maybe I misunderstood you, that it was already dark.

A. That is true. It was pretty dark, and apart from that there was a difference of about 200 meters, but it wasn't completely dark.

Q. And at that opportunity that was when you escaped?

A. Yes, that is true.

Q. Then you had a contact with two guards and one of these guards wounded you twice by shots?

A. That is right.

Q. When were you bandaged the first time?

A. On the next day about 12 o'clock.

Q. You mean around 12 o'clock noon?

A. Yes, at mid-day.

Q. And who bandaged you?

A. There was a hospital, a physician of the hospital who bandaged my wounds.

Q. Do you really mean to say that only on the next day around 12 o'clock you were bandaged for the first time?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. How did you manage that the wound stopped bleeding?

A. I don't know, but I lost plenty of blood and the scars could be seen on my body even now.

Q.- So you were then asked how many inhabitants of Kragujevac were shot in October 1941, you named the number "8,000".

A.- Yes, I talked about 8,000 people.

Q.- Who gave you that figure?

A.- First I learned it from our priests.

Q.- And where else did you hear any thing about it?

A.- Everybody knew that in Kragujevac. It was a matter of common knowledge.

Q.- Next, witness, I would like now to show you Document 100a, where the Serbian Commission ascertains or believes that in an ascertain 5,00 people were shot or allegedly shot. Are you still maintaining that 8,000 people were shot after the official commission believed that only 4-5,000 people were shot?

A.- I don't know anything about this official report of the Yugoslavian State Commission. I know exactly well that people in Kragujevac thought there were about 8,000. I have heard that from priests who counted the number of the victims according to the meals brought in the church; according to Serbian custom, for everybody was prepared a special meal and brought into church for every person.

Q.- Did you yourself witness shootings?

A.- No, I haven't seen any.

Q.- How can you say then that 8,000 people were shot?

DR. LATERNSEER: I am just being told that the transmission doesn't come through properly.

DR. HINDEMITH (Alternate for Dr. Rauschenbach, counsel for the defendant Foertsch): I have doubts on the correctness of the transmission of the interpreter. Dr. Laternser asked: "Did you yourself witness shootings?" According to my knowledge of the Slav language -- I know polish -- this question, by adding one word "micno" would be quite different. According to my knowledge, "micno" means "numerous" -- "Did you witness numerous shootings?"

That, in my opinion, would not comply with the duties of an interpreter if, by such an addition, the question is not properly expressed.

THE PRESIDENT: The Court first wishes to ascertain as to whether or not the German translation is coming through to the German defendants and German Counsel.

I think that answers the first inquiry of the counsel.

The next matter to be considered is as to the interrogation of the witness, or the interpreter, as to the statements made by him.

I take it that the cross examination should not be carried on by more than one counsel. I would suggest you permit Dr. Laternser to interrogate the witness on that point.

DR. HINDEMITH: I apologize, Mr. President. I only wanted to ascertain that the translation by the interpreter was correct. We get the impression that the transmission of the interpreting is not correct. This is not the first case that I notice the discrepancy. I remember when the examination first started the witness was being asked who interrogated him on the 17th of September when he was being collected. The witness designated the officer as "Porushnik". "Porushnik" corresponds to the Polish word "Porushnik." That means "Lieutenant." The interpreter transmitted "Captain." If one compares the record, this could be easily ascertained. There was, therefore, a discrepancy during the examination of the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me. May I suggest -- repeating -- may I suggest that you make a note of this matter and hand it to Dr. Laternser or confer with him concerning this matter so that he may carry on the examination? We cannot have it carried on by two parties.

DR. HINDEMITH: Very well, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: I might add that if counsel wishes to take a little time to confer with Dr. Laternser, the Tribunal will give him that opportunity; but I do not think that we should be interrupted and have the matter handled by two persons.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q.- Now, witness, I asked you -- I don't know whether the answer has come through -- whether you yourself witnessed shootings; that is in the course of the 20th or 21st of October, 1941.

A.- No, I answered that I never saw any killings by myself.

Q.- And, in contradiction to the report of the commission in which the alleged number of 4-5,000 are mentioned, you want to increase that figure to 8,000 without ever having witnessed a shooting yourself?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I object to the form of the question. He is saying that he is contradicting the commission. The record is clear that Dr. Laternser says the commission says 5,000 and that the witness says it was 8,000 and I believe the Tribunal can make any inference they wish to make from it, but I object to Dr. Laternser using the term to him of "contradicting the commission."

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q.- Witness, you further said that the Town Commander -- I think you mentioned the name "Schuster, the town major -- on the 21st of October, with a tank, drove to the spot of the execution.

A.- Yes -- but only one correction. It wasn't the town major. It was the "Ortskommandant."

Q.- And you mean to say that he, on the 21st of October, with an armored car drove to the spot of the execution?

A.- I don't know whether I told on the 21st of October. If I did, it wasn't correct. It should be 22nd of October. I am sorry.

Q.- Did you know the local commander Schuster personally?

A.- No, I didn't know him personally but I have seen him for quite a time. He was a short man, a blonde one.

Q.- Where were you yourself on the 21st, or be it the 22nd of October?

A.- On the 22nd of October I was home.

Q.- Didn't you say previously that on the 22nd of October you were in a hospital?

A.- No.

Q.- Did you, yourself, see Major Schuster drive in that tank, you are talking about?

A.- No, I didn't see him.

Q.- How can you say that he drove to the spot of the execution in a tank?

A.- I was told about that by the person who was saved by Major Schuster, as I told you before.

Q.- There is one last question I would like to put. Are you free now, are you at liberty?

A.- Yes, right.

Q.- How did it happen then that you are appearing here as a witness? Did you volunteer, or were you requested to come here.

A.- I reported myself as a voluntary witness, and I do not know through what channels that application of mine, went on.

Q.- I did not understand that answer.

A.- I reported myself to witness any German atrocities committed in Kragujevac, and according to this, my statement, I was called presumably by the State Commission. I do not know exactly.

Q.- There is one more point I would like to bring up. Have you ever seen a partisan in uniform?

A.- Yes, when I arrived in Kragujevac, in 1944.

Q.- Would you please describe that uniform, that that partisan you are talking about was wearing?

A.- Mostly it was a British soldier's uniform, battle dress.

Q.- Yes, what color did this uniform have?

A.- The same color as that man sitting here.

Q.- For the purposes of the record, it is a brown color?

A.- Yes, if you want brown.

MR. DENNEY: In order that we do not have Dr. Latenser's eyesight or mine on the record, I am willing to state that the witness pointed to a current uniform of a member of the United States Army which is known technically as "Uniform B; winter; olive drab color", but I object to the use of the term, "brown".

DR. LATERNSE: Did you see any insignia on that uniform?

A.- Yes.

Q.- What kind of insignias were this?

A.- There were lines on the sleeve.

Q.- Did you see several partisans in uniforms?

A.- I have seen a complete brigade of partisans in uniform.

Q.- Did you ask to be shown weapons also?

A.- Yes, twice.

Q.- What kind of weapons were that; German, Serbian, English, American?

A.- And Russian, too.

DR. LATERNSE: I have no further questions.

DR. HINDEMITH, Alternate for Dr. Rauschenbach.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: I take it you have completed your cross examination, Dr. Laternse?

DR. LATERNSE: Yes.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Counsel, you may speak/

CROSS EXAMINATION

DR. HINDEMITH, Alternate for Dr. Rauschenbach, for defendant Foertsch:

Q.- Your Honor, before I start putting questions I would like to point out what kind these questions should be. I would like to say that the statement of the witness does not seem likely to me in several points.

THE PRESIDENT: You just go ahead and ask the questions you see fit.

To begin with, I would like to put one question which Dr. Laternse has already put, and that is the question whether the testimony of the witness has been put down in writing prior to having been made here;

As I am repeating this question now, I would like to say the following for my reasons to do this. When the afternoon session started the representative of the prosecution summarized the latter statement of the witness, that is he repeated it. When he did that, he said amongst other things, that the witness had declared that he had managed to inform his wife that he was lying in some courtyard and his wife sent him a car.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: I think that we can hasten matters considerably if you will ask any questions that you see fit to ask in the way of cross examination. The matter of explanation of why you are asking the question is not of interest to the Tribunal.

We do not want to limit you in your cross-examination but I suggest that you proceed with it.

DR. HINDEMITH: Your Honor, I am only interested to ascertain from the record whether during the morning the witness had made a testimony to the effect that he managed to get information to his wife, and that she came to the courtyard where he was, in a car.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Then ask him the question.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I think that he is trying to find out whether or not the witness' testimony was overwritten down and handed to him. It was not. I kept a record myself, which I will be very glad to show the court, in my own handwriting. I have never given it to the witness and the Yugoslav representatives in Nurnberg have never prepared any written statement which has been handed to him.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: May I suggest that the witness be interrogated with due respect to both counsel, and we will proceed more rapidly and more expeditiously, if we question the witness and not make any general statements.

DR. HINDEMITH: Very well, Your Honor.

Q.- Witness, what experiences did you make on the basis of the events of the 17th of September and of the 20th of October, in respect to the German authorities?

A.- I had the worst opinion of them.

Q.- You believed then that no fair treatment was to be expected from German authorities?

A.- Later on that is true, but not before that. Before this event, I mean, I didn't think so hard.

Q.- My question was what experiences, what opinion you gained on the experiences of the 20th of September -- 17th of September and 20th of October, is that correct then?

A.- No, not before them.

Q.- On the 20th of October, when you marched from the Artillery Barracks to that place where an execution was to take place, were you the last group that left the barracks, or when you left were there other people left behind?

A.- The first; only our group which was taken away from the artillery barracks; all other people were left in still.

Q.- Was this an action which was carried out rather suddenly?

A.- No, this action did not come quite suddenly.

Q.- Were the name of the persons taken before they were put on the march?

A.- No, I don't know how they did that.

A.- You yourself had no personal data taken off of your own person; was there?

A. Yes, they asked me because I was in jail; I was arrested.

Q. On the 17th of September was that, or was it on the 20th of October when they asked you?

A. It was on the 17th of September.

Q. How far was that place where you were led to distant from the town or rather from the artillery barracks?

A. It was about 5 Km.

Q. And you escaped back into town from that place? Is that correct?

A. Yes, to the city.

Q. And on your escape you passed the artillery barracks again --that same artillery barracks from which you were put on the march?

A. No.

Q. But, I seem to remember quite well that you said you passed the artillery barracks; you encountered a guard there.

A. That's right, but it was another artillery barracks in Kragujevac not the first one; there was another one.

Q. How many artillery barracks are there in Kragujevac?

A. There are two artillery barracks in Kragujevac.

Q. And you went through both those artillery barracks didn't you? I think I understood your testimony to that effect.

A. I was taken into one of them--into the first of the barracks--and the second one I only passed by.

Q. But in the second barracks there were also Serbs under Guard gathered together. Is that correct?

A. No.

Q. I do believe though that you said something else in the morning, but we shall leave it at that. Tell me wasn't it very foolish of you to escape back into Kragujevac on the basis of the experiences with you had made previously -- on the 17th of September, and especially on the 20th of October? You simply had to assume that since the action hadn't been completed that you would be picked up again.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, I object to the form of the question, "Wasn't it very foolish of you to escape back into Kragujevac?"

THE PRESIDENT: It is sustained as immaterial.

BY DR. HINDEMITH:

Q. What aim did you have when you went back to Kragujevac?

MR. DENNEY: I object to the question, Your Honor; it's immaterial. --What reason he had to go back to Kragujevac when he had been wounded twice.

THE PRESIDENT: Over-ruled.

DR. HINDEMITH: May I say something in connection with this? ...

THE PRESIDENT: The Court has over-ruled the objection; you may proceed with the cross-examination.

BY DR. HINDEMITH:

Q. Where were you trying to go to in Kragujevac?

A. My aim was only to be alive, to save my life. I was almost killed; I was almost dead already.

Q. The reasons for your escape are perfectly clear and understandable. What I wanted to know is in what locality did you think you'd find shelter.

A. My aim was to reach the very first house--somewhere; and to get some help.

Q. Was the barracks which you passed situated on the outskirts of the city?

A. Yes, it was on the outskirts of Kragujevac.

Q. Now, something else. You were severely wounded by two shots fired by a German soldier, if I understood you correctly.

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And, as a consequence of these wounds, in the beginning you were almost unconscious and our collapsed.

A. No.

Q. Almost unconscious, I said.

A. No, I never lost my consciousness.

Q. How long were you lying there?

A. Because of complete darkness, I can't remember. I can't tell; I lost plenty of blood.

Q. And how and when did you reach that courtyard where you spent the night?

A. I don't know; I can't tell; it was at night; I was wounded.

Q. Well, did you get there with the help of other people, or did you manage to walk or creep there yourself?

A. No, I did it by my self. Nobody helped me. I crawled mostly and spent a long time to reach this first house.

Q. To begin with, you attempted to find shelter in that house, and the woman in the house rejected that because she was afraid to be persecuted by the Germans for that reason.

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. When did you ask the woman to inform your wife?

A. Immediately after my arrival at this house I asked her that.

Q. And when did the woman send the communication to your wife?

A. Early in the morning.

Q. How far is it to your home from the house where you found shelter?

A. It takes about one hour, roughly.

Q. That was on the outskirts of Kragujevac--that courtyard where you were lying, and you yourself lived where? In the city of Kragujevac or some place else?

A. My house was in another part, quite opposite that of Kragujevac.

Q. That is a town of 35,000 inhabitants. If one thinks of our conditions of towns, such a town, in my opinion, can be travelled through from one end of the town to the other, in a much shorter time than one hour. Can you give us an explanation why it took a whole hour from the house where you were lying to your own home? It was merely a small town wasn't it?

A. Yes. Maybe it is so here, but not there in Kragujevac.

Q. Did the woman in whose courtyard you had found shelter give the message to your wife herself?

A. I don't know that.

Q Didn't she say anything about that?

A No, she didn't.

Q And you didn't ask her either?

A It wasn't important for me at that moment who brought this message.

Q I believe that the obvious thing to your wife should have been when she received such terrible message that in the quickest way possible she would come herself to help you. Can you make any explanations for the fact that did not happen?

JUDGE BURKE: Just a moment. What is it you are seeking to establish?

DR. HINDEMITH: May it please the Tribunal, the witness has testified that his wife arrived in a car around about eleven o'clock in the morning.

JUDGE BURKE: I think we are familiar with that. What is it you are attempting to establish?

DR. HINDEMITH: I think it is most unlikely that a wife received such a dreadful message that her husband is heavily wounded, that she let so much time pass before she reaches him. A further thing is that the woman in whose courtyard the witness had found shelter was very worried to get into trouble because the witness was staying there. For that reason she refused to let him into her house. The woman and the other woman herself must have been very interested -

JUDGE BURKE: Pardon me for interrupting you. Isn't that a matter of argument at the appropriate time and place?

DR. HINDEMITH: May it please the Tribunal, the defense has no opportunity since they don't know the locality or the conditions there to make other inquiry with something that can be based on facts to establish its credibility; we therefore have to for the most part assume--for the most part, we have to take as a basis what the witness testifies. I am of the opinion that the testimony has to be evaluated whether from general human experiences point of view if it is likely, credible, and I am of the opinion that various statements which the witness has made here are of such an unlikely nature -- at least, they seem that way to me --that I deem it necessary that the witness get an opportunity to as far as possible remove the unlikelihoods.

JUDGE BURKE: I would like to refer the matter back to our presiding judge for such action on the individual questions as he desires to make.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed with the cross-examination with this suggestion from the Tribunal, however, that you direct your inquiries to the matters which were testified to by the witness and not endeavor to question him as to his interpretation of certain conditions that are disclosed by his testimony. You may proceed.

BY DR. HINDEMITH:

Q Witness, continuing, you then were brought to hospital -- that was when?

A It was on the 21st of October, 1941.

Q I don't mean the day. I mean the time of the day?

A It could be about one o'clock in the afternoon.

Q I think you said before it happened around eleven o'clock because you said you already left the hospital around about twelve.

A No as far as I remember I told you one o'clock.

Q Well, we will leave that. The records can show what you said.

Where you able to walk to the hospital? That is, could you have walked?

A No, I was taken to hospital by a horse-drawn vehicle.

Q And the horse-drawn vehicle -- what did happen to that after you came to the hospital?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I certainly submit it is irrelevant as to what happens to a horse-drawn vehicle after he got to the hospital.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

DR. HINDMITH: May it please the Tribunal, I would like to point out the following. The witness testified that he left the hospital again.

He just told us that he was brought to hospital in a vehicle; on the other hand, he left the hospital because four men of the Serbs Voluntary Organization came there and fetched him.

THE PRESIDENT: You ask him then as to how he left and that will answer our question them.

BY DR. HINDEMITH:

Q You were then fetched from the hospital?

A Yes, that is right.

Q And where were brought to? To the headquarters of the German Secret Field Police, if I remember correctly?

A I was taken from hospital into headquarters of the 4th Serbian Voluntary Battalion.

Q How were you brought there?

A The horse-drawn vehicle.

Q Now a different point. You said that you learned on the 20th or rather on the 21st of October, I don't know, about 1200 people were shot. This fact you assumed from two circumstances: first of all from a placard and then from the rest that were put up on several houses. On these posters, according to you, the people were written by name and you further said that you convinced yourself of the number, that the number of the last victim -- you looked up the number of the last victim. Is that correct?

A No, you didn't understand me quite.

Q Will you please tell us then how it is correct?

A I told only that the first day I left my house and went to the GFP headquarters I saw a poster in a shop with a long list of names. The poster was telling that 1200 people have been shot because 12 German soldiers were killed somewhere in the vicinity of Kraljevo. That is what I told you.

Q That was about 20 days after that that you read that, is that right? That you saw that poster? When was that?

A I don't know when this poster was put in. I didn't get out from my house for 20 days.

Q Another question. They you were dismissed and you were allowed to return to your home?

A Yes, that is right.

Q Then you were ordered immediately after you had got well you had to report to the Field Police and if I understood you correctly that your daughter should give a message to that effect to the Field Police. Is that correct?

A Yes, that is true.

Q And you did comply with this order which was given to you?

A No, I didn't.

Q But you said that you did go to the secret police or to some other authorities and that the question of your further employment was clarified later?

A Yes, that is true.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will stand adjourned at this time until nine-thirty tomorrow morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 31 July 1947 at 0930 hours.)

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List, et al., defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 31 July 1947, 0930, Justice Wennerstrum presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal. There will be order in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, you will ascertain if all the defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honors, all the defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Burke, my associate, will preside at this day's session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, we were having cross examination yesterday by the counsel for the defendant Foertsch who I believe was Dr. Hindemith acting for the absent Dr. Rauschenbach, and there has been no expression to the Court that that cross examination has been concluded; and I notice at the microphone counsel for another defendant, and I would appreciate an expression from counsel who through his representative was cross examining the witness for the record.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal will appreciate such a statement.

DR. RAUSCHENBACH (Counsel for defendant Foertsch): I have no further questions to put to the witness, President. I believe that one of the other defense counsel would like to further cross examine the witness.

DR. SAUTER (Counsel for the defendant von Geitner): I have a few short questions to put to the witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY DR. SAUTER:Q.- You told us yesterday that in 1944 you met Serb partisans.

In the previous years, 1943 or 1942, did you never in those years encounter any partisans?

A.- I had never met with any partisans until 1941. It was on the 20th of October.

Q.- 1944, was that?

A.- Yes, that's right.

Q.- And during the whole previous time of war, did you never meet any partisans in Kragujevac? Surely there were plenty of people who belonged to the partisans.

A.- No, never.

Q.- In these previous years, before October 1944, did you hear of any Yugoslav partisans against German forces? Did you hear nothing about that before October 1944?

A.- Yes, I have heard. I have heard about some fights, somewhere pretty far from Kragujevac.

Q.- Before October 1944, for instance -- let's say in 1943 or 1942 --did you hear that German soldiers down there in your neighborhood were killed by Yugoslav partisans -- that is, before 1944?

A.- Yes, I heard there were about 20 German soldiers killed by partisans in the vicinity of Vroni-Milanovac -- that's about 40 kilometers from Kragujevac.

Q.- Was that the only case, those 20 soldiers? Was that the only case that you heard of before October 1944 where German soldiers were killed by partisans; or isn't it correct -- I would like to add that -- isn't it correct that such cases down there in Kragujevac occurred quite frequently and were talked about amongst the civilian population and were known to them?

A.- No, I never heard anything else. I would like to make a correction.

I didn't mean to tell 20 soldiers, but 12 soldiers.

Q.- Didn't you hear anything about, in the time period before October 1944, that repeated numerous sabotage acts occurred against the German Wehrmacht -- for instance, attacks against railways lines, robbings -lootings and robbings of magazines, etc. Didn't you have about that in Kragujevac?

A.- No, I never heard that. I was sick and just was getting out in order to reach my office where I was working and from my office I went usually immediately home.

Q.- You didn't read anything either about attacks against the Serbian civilian population or posters by the German authorities which mentioned that certain attacks had occurred against the German Wehrmacht and that the German Administration would make ruthless measures against such attacks? Did you never read such posters in Kragujevac?

A.- No, I have never seen these posters and I would like to emphasize that I wasn't feeling well. I was concerned with my own business, and, in addition to that, my wife was sick, so I had plenty to do in my home. I wasn't interested in these things.

Q.- Witness, I have to remind you that today, too, you are under oath. I think it is incredible that during the years 1942 and 1943 you were ill all of the time, that as a Serbian National you weren't interested in those matters. I can't believe that and, therefore, I have to ask you really maintain this under oath that during the whole years of 1942 and 1943 you heard nothing about these things, not even from Serbian compatriots -

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, I object to Dr. Sauter's arguing with the witness.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The objection is sustained.

Q.- Witness, when you heard in 1944, as you say, that German soldiers were killed, what were you told about the partisans in which manner were these soldiers being killed, these German soldiers?

A.- I have heard from some individual partisans that some German soldiers had been killed but in which way this happened I don't know.

Q.- Did you hear of such a case in 1944, as you say? Did you hear about such a case only once or several times where German soldiers were killed by partisans?

A.- I have heard that from several persons. I do not know whether it is true or not.

Q.- Did you try to gather information about how many German soldiers that might have been?

A.- No, that wasn't the business of my concern.

Q.- You were not interested in that?

A.- No.
